Standing out above all others like a lighthouse on a prairie are the towering figures of Millard (Dixie) Howell, the Alabama halfback, and Captain George Barclay, North Carolina's fabulous guard.

At mid-season Howell and Barclay rate as certainties for all-American honors. The present season represents the close of a blazing career for Howell.

On Way to Top

Captain George Barclay, Carolina's greatest football player in many a year, was highly honored yesterday by the UP sports writers. He and Dixie Howell, Alabama halfback, were rated as the leading candidates from the south for all-American honors.

MEDYNSKI STARS IN MIT WORKOUT

Fisher and O'Flaherty Are Receiving Much Aid from Ed Dolan in Boxing Bouts.

The ropes enclosing the ring at the Tin Can took on awful beating yesterday afternoon as the boys went through their paces in two and three round bouts.

The outstanding man of the afternoon was Flash Medynski, who put on the most beautiful exhibition seen at the gym so far this year. Medynski took his workouts with McDonald and Alderman. With both hands moving with lightning rapidity, bouncing off the ropes in experienced fashion, and remaining cool throughout the rounds, Flash looked like a real Southern Conference champion.

Diehl vs. Frucht

In another bout, Marion Diehl and Maxie Frucht went two rounds. Both boys, according to Coach Rowe, need much more work to put them in tip-top shape.

Other fast bouts were the Dolan-Fisher, and the Dolan-O'Flaherty settos. It is easy to discern the improvement in the boys since they have been working out with Eddie Dolan. He has aided them considerably since their initial tussles with him and remarked himself about the manner in which they are improving.

Levitan And De Gray Top Tennis Ranking

Harris Second in Varsity List; Robinson Follows De Gray.

Wally Levitan, heading the varsity, and Eddy De Gray, topping the frosh racquet wielders, have been announced as the two players holding the present number one ranking in their respective groups. Both have been placed at the head of a ladder and will be forced to defend their position against the threats of nine ranked stars below them.

The selection of the leaders was no surprise as Levitan and De Gray have easily been the outstanding performers with the racquet during the past year. Levitan, third on last year's varsity ranking, has clearly earned the distinction of holding the University's uppermost position. He finally showed his right to the top ranking with his defeat of Harvey Harris in the recent Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate final.

De Gray has no opposition in his claim as the leading frosh player. He swept aside all opponents in the freshman tourney and climaxed his sparkling exhibitions by trouncing Gene Robinson in the finals by straight sets. Robinson has been ranked directly below De Gray and is in turn followed by Johnny Foreman.

The ranking for the present as drawn by Coach Kenfield follows:

R	Varsity	Freshmen
1	Levitan	De Gray
2	Harris	Robinson
3	Willis	Foreman
4	Jones	Bartelman
5	Minor	Elwell
6	Whitaker	Berge
7	Dowd	Parker
8	Abels	Fast
9	Johnston	Yeomans
10	Henderson	Van Hecke

Deans to Go to Guilford

Dean D. D. Carroll of the school of commerce and Dean A. W. Hobbs of the school of liberal arts will attend the meeting of the board of directors of Guilford College, of which Dean Carroll is the chairman, this afternoon at Guilford College.

RUFFIN UPSETS Y IN TAG FOOTBALL

Ruffin Comes from Behind to Get 20-6 Victory; Dekes Down Kappa Sigma.

Only two games dotted the intramural tag football slate yesterday afternoon, but the laxity of competition was more than made up by the fine calibre of the play exhibited as Ruffin came from behind to swamp the strong Y. M. C. A. team, 20-6, and D. K. E. scored a one touchdown victory over Kappa Sigma.

Scoring all its points in the second half the Ruffin team over came a 6-0 deficit to score one of the most surprising upsets of the season. Both teams were even in first downs with five apiece.

Trubnick opened the scoring as he took a fine pass to give the "Y" its only points of the contest. The remainder of the half saw both teams fighting hard, but it was evident that the Ruffin boys were going to send a snag into the enemy camp before the contest was over.

Ruffin Takes Lead

Immediately after the second half opened Snyder took a pass to even up the scoring, and Abernethey sent the dorm team into a 7-6 lead as he took a pass for the extra point. The Y. M. C. A. team stiffened, but it wasn't long before McKinnon went over for another touchdown after Gwyn had intercepted a pass and run to the three yard marker. Abernethy again converted and Ruffin was almost certain of a victory.

However, to make it a little more emphatic Henson tucked the ball away under his arm and skirted for another tally shortly before the contest ended.

The Dekes and Kappa Sigs staged a fine tussle among themselves in a hard fought battle that found the former coming out with a 6-0 win after Mebane had carried the oval over in the first half. Both teams fought on even terms for the major part of the contest, with the winners gaining a slight seven to five margin in first downs.

Today's games:

3:30—(1) Z. B. T. vs. Betas.

4:30—(1) S. A. E. vs. Pikas; (2) Kappa Alpha vs. Phi Gams; (3) Phi Alpha vs. Chi Psi.

FROSH TAKE HARD PRACTICE IN MUD

Burnette Looks Good at Fullback Position in Grid Drill.

Up to their ankles in mud, the Tar Babies yesterday afternoon went through a stiff scrimmage on the Freshman field.

The revised first stringers took the offensive against the freshman second eleven. Getting the ball on the mid-field stripe the regular aggregation continued to hammer away at the strong defensive second team but it was only after darkness covered the field that they were able to split their opponent's line for a touchdown.

Throughout this hour of play, "Bunny" Burnette shined at his new fullback position as he plunged consistently through the tackles and guards for short gains which he climaxed with a smashing drive from the four-yard line for the only touchdown of the day.

The second team, after being

Tar Heels Leave This Morning For Tilt With Tech At Atlanta

Thirty-one Players Will Make Trip; Team Stops at Greenville Today for Workout.

BARWICK INJURES HIS LEG

Martin, Snyder, Hutchins and Cooner Make Up First Backfield in Last Drill Here.

The Tar Heel football aggregation will leave this morning at 8:00 o'clock enroute to Atlanta where they will meet Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets in an important grid classic tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Snavely plans to stop in Greenville, South Carolina, this afternoon and run his charges through a light workout on the Furman University gridiron before going to Atlanta in the morning. Thirty-one players are making the trip.

The team engaged in a long tag scrimmage on the rain-soaked Emerson field yesterday. Most of the practice was devoted to punting and passing.

First Backfield

Snyder, Cooner, Hutchins, and Martin will probably be Coach Snavely's choice of a starting backfield. Martin, who replaced the injured Shaffer, will play the role of punter and signal barker in the first string lineup. Dick Dashiell will probably alternate with Randy Cooner at flinging passes for the first team.

Don Jackson, ace passer, displayed evidence of being a talented kicker in the reserve backfield yesterday. He will probably be called upon for relief work in both departments in tomorrow's fray. Jim McCachren and Wally Dunham were the other punters who stood out on the reserve team.

Barwick Injured

The Tar Heel's casualty list increased as Gene Barwick, reserve end, was carried from the field with a severe leg injury yesterday.

Charlie Shaffer and Bill Moore are the other injured Tar Heels who have been declared definitely out of the Georgia Tech game.

HARRIS-ABELS GET NET TOURNEY WIN

Aces in Love-Victory; Willis and Henderson Also Advance into Quarter-Final Round.

The third seeded doubles combination of Harvey Harris and Byron Abels opened their title quest yesterday with a slashing love victory over the game but outclassed pair of Kasen and Fiore. Ricky Willis and Archie Henderson also took to the wars and proved to have too many guns for the Stein-Brown pairing, in the only other match.

Playing on a damp surface that made the games sluggish and slow, Harris and Abels displayed a brilliant attack, despite the poor conditions, and absolutely overpowered their opponents. Abels' overhead was too consistent and Harris' game too confusing for their opponents to cope with successfully.

Look Like Finalists

Facing Bartelman and Clover as their next opposition, and if victorious, clashing with Foreman and Robinson in all probabilities, this team has an outstanding opportunity to reach the final round.

Willis and Henderson, without doubt the best of the unseeded pairs, advanced to the quarter-final with a victory that well suggested ease. They won at 6-3, 6-1, as Willis' remarkable backhand joined with Henderson's offensive style proved much too strong for the combined efforts of Stein and Brown.

Yesterday's play brought the tournament well into the quarter-final with but two teams lacking to complete the round of eight. The delayed match of Berge-Elwell versus Cordon-Outlaw has been set aside until Monday afternoon, when Elwell will be able to compete. The matches however will continue and all combinations, paired with each other, are urged to find the date when the four can convene at the same time.

HARRIERS LEAVE TODAY FOR TWO VIRGINIA MEETS

Eight Runners to Make Trip to W. and L.; Five Fresh Men Join Team for V. M. I.

GRUDGE RACE IS LOOMING

A team of eight cross country runners who will meet the harrier squad of Washington and Lee tomorrow morning in Lexington, Virginia, will leave this noon with bright hopes of coming back to the Hill with a win in the bag.

The eight who are to run the five mile course over the Shenandoah hills and valleys are Ed McRae, Ed Waldrop, Haywood Curlee, Fab Haywood, Louis Conte, Jack Bower, Marvin Allen, and Marcus Aderholt.

Tar Heels Favored

The Ranson runners stand an excellent chance of turning in quite a low score. The Generals boast only one real star, Captain Dunaj, while the Tar Heels have a well-balanced team. Waldrop outsprinted Dunaj to the finish in the S. I. C. two-mile run last season and should be capable of repeating the stunt in a certain grudge battle. McRae also has been up against this ace harrier and is expected to come through ahead.

Five fresh men will join the squad either Saturday or Sunday to run in the V. M. I. four-mile race Monday. These are Captain Williamson, Graham Gammon, Bob Gardner, Bob Neel, and Dick Gabori.

The whole squad took a light workout yesterday to keep in condition for the long trip today. All the runners were in good shape and are ready for both the Generals and the Cadets.

GRIDGRAPH — 3:00 P. M. — SATURDAY

Well-Known Actor Will Play in N. C.

Walter Hampden to Play "Macbeth" in Durham Nov. 8.

Walter Hampden, the leading actor on the American stage, will play in three North Carolina towns next week.

With his personal tour troupe, the famous actor will present "Hamlet" in Raleigh Wednesday night, "Macbeth" in Durham Thursday night, and Bulwer Lytton's "Richlieu" in Greensboro Friday night.

Hampden, in restoring Shakespeare's famous "Macbeth," has assured his own position as a powerful and fascinating actor.

Quoting the New York Evening Post: "Walter Hampden's 'Macbeth' is easily the finest of this generation. None other since Edwin Booth has so completely compassed the many phases of this complex and commanding character."

On the "Macbeth" program at the Carolina theatre in Durham, incidental music will be provided to add color to the great drama.

The management of the theatre announces that the play will open at 8:15 o'clock.

Officers of Foreign Policy League Resign

The two officers of the Foreign Policy league, Ralph Gardner, president, and Bob Page, secretary, tendered their resignations last night.

Both gave as their reasons an excess amount of other work. Gardner is at present playing on the varsity football team, while Page is managing editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Agnew Bahnson was elected president of the league, and Ezra Griffin replaced Page as secretary.

Griffin will speak on the University club radio program over station WDNC in Durham Friday, November 9.

The next meeting of the group is scheduled for Thursday evening at 7:00 o'clock at which time further organization will be undertaken.

Union Radio Program

Harper Barnes, director of Graham Memorial, announced yesterday that the lounge radio would be tuned in on the CBS foreign affairs program every Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The programs will be directed by Stephen Duggan, famous traveler in Europe. Duggan has interviewed numerous European leaders and he will attempt to make his programs an interesting discussion of each week's happenings abroad.

The programs will continue until May 3, 1935.

Geology Trip

Dr. J. F. Huddle, Mr. I. J. Martin, Mr. H. W. Straley, and ten students of the University who are majoring in geology are leaving early this morning for the Roanoke area in Virginia to study the rocks in that area.

Faculty members and students from V. P. I. and the University of Virginia will compose the rest of the group.

The group from the University will return late Sunday night.

STOLEN CAR

A Ford V-8 belonging to T. A. Fulghum of Danville Va., was stolen from in front of the Phi Gamma Delta house last Sunday night between the hours of 2:00 and 6:00 o'clock.

Police have been notified of the theft but as yet there have been no developments in the case. The loss was covered by insurance.

MISSED YOUR KEY?

Richard Arlen, above, is co-starred with Ida Lupino in "Ready for Love" which comes to the Carolina theatre Wednesday.

E. Carrington Smith, manager of the theatre, is offering five passes today and tomorrow to the persons sending the biggest news tip to the Daily Tar Heel. The student sending the best tip will be the recipient of two passes.

Two passes were won yesterday by Reed Alexander. The following won one pass each: David Ervin, Leonard Edwards, and Daniel Manly.

The winners will be announced in the Daily Tar Heel each day.

Carolina Captain On Way to Mythical Pick

He was a sophomore sensation two years ago and has improved steadily since. Weighing 160 pounds and standing five feet, 11 inches tall, he is a long distance punter, a deadly passer and one of the trickiest ball carriers ever seen on any man's gridiron.

Barclay is known as the "one man team." He captains the Tar Heels, calls plays, runs interference, backs up the line, makes touchdowns and does practically everything else except tote the water bucket. Coach Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech, member of the all-American board, calls the Carolina lad "all-American, all-southern, all-anything."

Rest of Lineup

Taking the others as they came in lineup order, the left end post goes to Don Hutson, of Alabama. This 189-pounder is sturdy on defense, adroit at receiving passes, and exceptional at ball carrying.

For left tackle, Capt. Bill Lee, another Alabaman, is nominated. Lee known as "Man Mountain" because of his 222 pounds and six feet, two inches, leave nothing to be desired as an all-around lineman.

Homer Robinson, of Tulane, snags the center position. Robinson is hard to match for all-around defensive ability, and behind the line he is a bulwark. He has never been known to make a bad pass.

At right guard, Mike Welch of Auburn gets the call. Welch, who captains the Plainsmen, is consistently a first-class man on offense and defense. He is the bright spot of that rather drab outfit.

Bob Tessier of Tulane fits naturally into the right tackle job. On defense, Tessier is always in the thick of it, and on offense he charges like an enraged water buffalo.

Duke End on Pick

Earle Wentz of Duke was picked for right end because of his speed in getting down the field under punts and his brilliance in snatching passes and going places with them.

Rand Dixon of Vanderbilt, the choice for quarterback, is the answer to any coach's prayer for a man to fill that important post. Dixon is a cool field general, a fast runner and an able defense man.

For right halfback, Abe Mickal of L. S. U. wins hands down. He is rated as 60 per cent of his team's offense, combines brilliant punting with accurate passing, and is a fast, shrewd runner. In addition, he is one of the most accomplished place kickers in the country.

The fullback post goes to Joe Demyanovich of Alabama, selected for his battering ability as well as excellent defensive skill. A consistent short gainer, he has discarded a bad habit of fumbling which plagued him last year and the year before.

It was difficult to leave Corky Cornelius, Duke halfback, off the mid-season all-southern eleven. But he has been kept under wraps by Coach Wallace Wade, having seen only 90 minutes of duty in Duke's first four games.

on the defense most of the afternoon, was given the ball on its 20-yard line but was unable to get going until its speedy halfback, Burlinsky, cut off tackle, skipped through the secondary, and was finally tackled from behind after running the ball 50 yards to the first string's 20-yard line.

This was by far the best piece of open field running displayed during this week's practice and it showed Burlinsky to be fast as well as shifty once past the line of scrimmage.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS ATTEND LIGHT DISPLAY

Senior members and a few juniors of the local chapter of the A. I. E. E. attended the Institute of Light held by engineers of the General Electric company in Raleigh yesterday afternoon.

The display demonstrated several illumination experiments developed at Nena Park in Cleveland, the research center for the G. E. concern.

Joint A. S. M. E. Meeting

The local society of the A. S. M. E. will attend a joint meeting of the chapters in Raleigh this afternoon. Society heads will introduce the members of their respective organizations. Chapters of the A. S. M. E. are located at Duke and State as well as at Carolina.

Law Mid-Terms Announced

Mid-semester quizzes in all first-year law courses, except administration of justice, will be held on Friday and Saturday, November 23 and 24, it was announced yesterday.

There will be no mid-semester quizzes in the second and third-year courses.

Bost Delivers Talk At Freshman Chapel

R. W. Bost, acting dean of the school of applied science, spoke on "Science in the Modern World" at the freshman assembly yesterday.

"The school of applied science offers courses which enable students to make the world more pleasant and more comfortable for you and me to live in," he said.

Mr. Harry Comer, introducing Dean Bost, explained that the talk on science was the first in a series to acquaint freshmen with the relationship between college courses and work outside the University.

The invocation was offered by Rev. Roscoe Fisher, local Lutheran pastor.

COMMITTEES TO PLAN STUDENT-FACULTY DAY

The Faculty Advisory committee will meet with the student committee on student-faculty day in Dean R. B. House's office Monday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, it was announced yesterday.

The purpose of the meeting will be to outline a definite program for the exposition.

To the student committee have been added Jack Pool, Harold Bennett, and Edwin Lanier. The original members included J. D. Winslow, Albert Ellis, and Agnew Bahnson.

LIBRARIAN TO ATTEND MEETING IN CHARLOTTE

Miss Susan G. Akers of the University library extension department, will attend the school library section of the North Carolina Educational association in Charlotte today.

Miss Akers attended a similar meeting last Friday in Winston-Salem. The purpose of the meeting of the librarians was to further organization of those connected with library work in that section.

TO SPEAK IN GOLDSBORO

Dr. J. B. Bullitt, professor of pathology in the school of medicine, will go to Goldsboro tonight, where he will speak to the Wayne county medical society.

"The Different Races of Mankind and the Various Structures of the Body" will be the subject of Dr. Bullitt's address.

Typewriter Missing

George Touhy of the Charlotte News left a Remington portable typewriter in the press box at Kenan stadium after the State game last Saturday. Anyone having any information concerning this machine will please call the University News bureau, South building. A reward is offered for recovery.

Grahams to Give Tea

Proceeds of Bridge Tea Saturday Will Go to Loan Fund.

President and Mrs. Frank Porter Graham will give a bridge tea tomorrow afternoon at their home for the benefit of the graduate women's loan fund of the American Association of University Women.

The bridge game begins at 3:00 o'clock. Tea will be served from 4:30 to 6:00 o'clock. Fifty cents is charged for tea and bridge, twenty-five cents for tea.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Hanft by telephoning 6516 or through any member of the association.

For the past five years the association has raised a hundred dollars a year for this fund with the ultimate aim in view of establishing a permanent endowed fellowship. At present the money is being loaned each year to a student recommended by the dean of the graduate school.

E. R. GROVES SPEAKS AT RICHMOND CLINIC

Professor Ernest R. Groves of the sociology department spoke Tuesday evening at the tenth anniversary of the establishment of the child guidance clinic at Richmond, Va., on "The Significance of Mental Hygiene in the Present Social Crisis."

From Richmond Mr. Groves went to Washington, D. C., to have charge of an institute on the teaching of marriage and the family in colleges and universities which is to be held by the national council of parent education during its annual meeting.

To my friends, neighbors, and patrons: I beg leave to warn you of malicious and dangerous ads appearing recently in this paper. Week after week we warn young girls and boys to stay out of Hollywood unless well financed because the chance of becoming a movie star is so remote. But fakers run fake movie schools, take your money and give you nothing in return. Using down-and-out directors, and the names of those once great but unfortunate as references they entice ambitious young women and men into parting with their savings, for nothing. Student Co-operative Members To Elect Directors Wednesday

Members May Name Additional Nominees

Harry Williamson, Jack Pool, Nat Townsend and Jimmy Rogers Are Candidates.

POSITION NOT SALARIED

The election of two new members to the board of directors of the Student Co-op association will be conducted Wednesday in the Co-op clothing store, Harper Barnes, chairman of the nominating committee, announced yesterday.

All student members of either the Co-op cleaners or the clothing store will be eligible to vote. A member of both groups may vote twice.

Nominees

The nominating committee composed of Barnes, Haywood Weeks, and Irvin Boyle, the present members of the board of directors, has nominated the following: Harry Williamson, Jack Pool, Nat Townsend and Jimmy Rogers. Any member may also nominate a candidate by turning in his choice at the clothing store.

The Co-op Cleaners first opened their doors here on January 3, 1934. The clothing store followed suit by opening for business here this fall.

Control Organization

These two concerns are operated under the supervision of a student board of directors composed of five members who determine the policies of both stores. All business must pass through the student auditor in Graham Memorial.

In connection with the current rumor that membership to the board of directors is a salaried position, Student Auditor Sherrill said: "To this time, no director has received one financial reward either from the cleaners or the clothing store. I have suggested, as an auditor, that the position be alloted a salary, but it has not been done."

"All the monthly reports of business are available to the public at all times," said the auditor, "and a public statement will be published at the end of the fiscal year on December 31."

Metzenthin to Speak

Professor Will Discuss Luther at Service Tomorrow.

Phases in the life of Martin Luther will be discussed by Dr. E. P. Metzenthin of the German department when he addresses the Chapel Hill Lutherans and their friends in Gerrard hall at 11:00 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The topic of his informal talk will be "Mechanical versus Spiritual Religion."

The professor was born and educated, and ordained into the ministry, in Germany. Since he has been in Chapel Hill he has actively assisted with Lutheran services here and in Durham.

Dr. Metzenthin speaks in connection with the recent celebration of the quadricentennial of the first translation of the Bible by Martin Luther.

Sanders Lectures

Professor S. G. Sanders of the Latin department lectured last night in Charlotte before the classical association of the district meeting of the educational assembly.

Tea in Spencer

Owing to the death of President Graham's father, the A. A. U. W. bridge tea from 3:00 to 6:00 o'clock today will be in Spencer hall instead of in the President's home.

Wanted: Country Boy Who Can Play Guitar, Cry Campus Players

Playmakers Need Star for Paul Green's "Southern Cross."

Though he might even be a freshman, a rollicking, romantic, guitar-playing young "country boy" would be an answer to the Carolina Playmakers' prayer, says Director Frederick H. Koch of the Playmakers.

Koch is looking for such a person to play the lead in the Playmakers' production of Paul Green's "Southern Cross," scheduled for December 6, 7, 8.

Rehearsals Tuesday

Rehearsals start Tuesday and the producing staff meets this morning to attempt to solve the problem.

Any student who thinks that he can fill the bill should "git his git-tar and git right over to Prof's office" in 113 Murphey, Koch said. "Out of 3,000 students, certainly one such individual can be found," he added.

The Playmakers are waiting until they secure this "country boy" before they decide definitely to stage "Southern Cross." The remainder of the large cast will be chosen at the regular tryouts next week.

CHEMISTRY 1 LAB PERIODS CHANGED

One 3-Hour Lab Replaces Two 2-Hour Labs per Week.

The laboratory in Chemistry I has been changed this quarter from two 2-hour periods per week to one period of three hours. It is possible with this arrangement to limit the sections so that no instructor has more than 20 students at a time.

In addition to the previous practice of requiring all work to be written up in the laboratory, this quarter all books are checked and corrected in the presence of the student before he leaves.

It has been found that practically as much work can be done in one uninterrupted three-hour period as can be accomplished in two separated 2-hour periods.

Kitchin Honored

At the recent meeting of the American Association of Medical Colleges in Nashville, Tennessee, which Dr. Charles S. Mangum, dean of the medical school, attended, Dr. Thurman D. Kitchin was elected vice-president.

Dr. Kitchin, who graduated in 1907 from the school of medicine of the University, is president of Wake Forest college and also holds the position of dean of the school of medicine.

ROOSEVELT'S VOTE

Washington, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt today announced he will vote for Governor Herbert H. Lehman, present governor of New York and Democratic nominee for that position, for re-election.

BERRYHILL URGES HEALTH CAUTIONS

Doctors Plan Series of Talks on Hygiene to Freshmen.

Addressing freshman assembly on the problem of the common cold yesterday, Dr. W. R. Berryhill estimated that on an average each person in the United States has two colds a year, lasting from three to five days each.

"If each cold causes the losing of one day's work," he said, "approximately two hundred and fifty million work days are lost per year."

Giving several examples, he showed how contagious a cold is, and said that it is a person's duty to avoid others as far as possible, when he has a cold.

Dr. Berryhill and Dr. Hedgpeth are planning to discuss various hygienic measures at freshman assemblies. The talk for next Friday will deal with the cures for colds, continuing the discussion begun yesterday.

GERMANY FEARS SAAR OCCUPATION

To Remove Possible Excuse for French Aggression, Hitler Avoids Show of Force.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—A summary decree was issued tonight prohibiting all storm troops from appearing in uniforms along the Saar border between January 10 and February 10 as the German government prepared to fight French threats to send troops into the basin to preserve order during the January 13 plebiscite.

Meanwhile uneasiness prevails in both nations and in the basin itself as French and German citizens are busy denouncing the intentions of each other in connection with the territory.

Saar to Choose

Two months from now the people of the disputed province will take part in a plebiscite to determine whether they shall remain under the League of Nations, become a part of France, or return to Germany.

Reminding France that the international definition of the aggressor is one whose troops invade foreign soil, Hitler declared that the reported intention of the French to enter the Saar basin if called upon by the governing body of the League is an indication that France is contemplating the seizure of the region.

Hitler's action in forbidding his troops to wear uniforms on the border of the region is taken as an evasion of former agreements and an attempt to counteract the French without making any show of force at the same time.

Soil Erosion School

Miller Has Applications to High Point Engineering Course.

Application blanks for a soil erosion school to be held at High Point have been received by W. J. Miller, dean of the engineering school, for distribution among students interested in taking the course offered.

The school, which will deal with the engineering problems met with in the prevention of erosion, will last from six to eight months.

Further information may be obtained by writing J. H. Stallings of the soil erosion service at High Point.

STATE EDUCATORS TO MEET NOV. 8-9

Conference at Greensboro Will Study Teachers' Training.

The North Carolina college conference will hold its fourteenth annual meeting at Greensboro November 8-9, according to an announcement by Professor Nathan W. Walker, secretary-treasurer. The central theme will be "The Selection and Preparation of Teachers."

The conference will open a session at 3:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon, November 8. At 6:45 o'clock there will be a dinner at the King Cotton hotel, followed by a short musical program. The second session will be at 8:00 o'clock Thursday evening.

The closing session will take place on Friday morning at 9:00 o'clock.

College officials are requested to extend to the members of their faculties an invitation to attend the conference and enter the discussions and debates.

Officers of the conference are Frazer Hood, president; H. T. Hunter, vice-president and Nathan W. Walker, secreary-treasurer.

Members of the executive committee are: Frazer Hood, H. T. Hunter, N. W. Walker, W. H. Frazer, E. L. Cloyd and Miss Miriam H. Blair.

INSULL ATTEMPTS SPIRITED DEFENSE

Broken Utilities Czar Drops Tearful Pose, Snapping Replies to Examination.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Samuel Insull in contrast to his tearful recital yesterday snapped back peevishly today at the persistent cross-examination of Leslie Salter, special assistant to the attorney-general.

Cross-examination disclosed that in 1929 Insull had taken $481,000 in salaries from twelve public utility companies in his control.

The same sources were reported to have brought the former power czar a total of $474,413 in 1930 and $486,767 in 1932.

Fair Pay

Admitting that he received the sums which were quoted, Insull replied by saying that the "laborer is worthy of his hire."

As explanation for his flight to Europe after his resignation in June, 1932, as a receiver for the Middle West Utility company, the aged defendant stated that he had fled to escape political persecution and to find rest and quiet after the ordeal of the depression.

He did not know, Insull said, that a prosecution was contemplated until he read of his indictment in a Chicago paper while he was in Paris.

Although the defendant appeared stronger in his denials of the charges against him and at times spoke with pride of his accomplishments, it was quite evident that he was tired when the court recess was called tonight.

English 52 Class

The class in English 52 which previously met in Graham Memorial is now meeting in the Bull's Head book shop at 7:30 o'clock Thursday nights, it was announced yesterday by Prof. Phillips Russell.

Dr. Alexander Graham, 90, Dies After Heart Attack

Gridgraph Today

The Carolina-Georgia Tech football game in Atlanta today will appear in a play-by-play account on the gridgraph in Memorial hall at 3:00 o'clock. The charge for admittance is 25 cents.

Bells Not Out of Order; Just Being Tested

New Yorkers to Hear Duke Game and Chimes by Phone.

Contrary to the concensus of opinion, the chimes in the Patterson-Morehead memorial tower were not out of order when they played the quarter-hour melody for ten minutes straight yesterday.

On the other hand, they were merely being tested preparatory to be relayed by wire to an alumni banquet which will be given in New York on the day of the Duke-Carolina game.

While the carilloneur was wearing blisters on his hands pounding out the familiar notes which usually announce nothing more exciting than the fact that another 15 minutes have passed, the workmen for the telephone company were experimenting to find a point from which the recital that follows the game can best be picked up.

Due to the fact that Southern Conference games are not being broadcast this year, the alumni group in New York will have to part with a considerable sum in order to hear the play-by-play account of the game with Duke and the bell recital afterwards.

FEDERALS PROBE DILLINGER ESCAPE

Reported Confession Says Gangster Paid $3,900 for Freedom.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Investigation of Dillinger's so-called wooden gun escape from the Crown Point, Indiana, jail was in the hands of the Federal authorities tonight.

Department of Justice agents reputedly obtained a confession from the Chicago man who involved a Chicago lawyer, an Indiana police official, and a Crown Point man as having assisted in the escape.

The confession stated that Dillinger paid $3,900 for his escape and that the wooden gun was sent from Chicago instead of being made by Dillinger.

Comforts of Home

Students confined in the University infirmary will henceforth be offered a new "service" program sponsored by a Y. M. C. A. committee headed by Paul McKee.

McKee and his cohorts plan to give the sick students attention in the little details beyond the scope of the regular infirmary attendants. They will return or take out library books, run errands, bring the mail, etc. for the patients. McKee's work will tend to make life in the infirmary more attractive.

Bagby to Speak

Dr. English Bagby, professor of psychology, will speak, November 6, in Baltimore to the Baltimore Kindergarten Primary Club on "The Integrated Personality."

DEATH FOLLOWS LENGTHY ILLNESS

Father of University President Was One of North Carolina's Leading Educators.

FIRST ADVOCATED CO-EDS

Dr. Alexander Graham, 90-year-old father of President Frank Graham, died of a heart attack yesterday morning at his home in Charlotte.

Dr. Graham had been in failing health for several years, although he was well enough on September 12 to celebrate his 90th birthday with his son, the president, who went to Charlotte to see him.

A number of Chapel Hill people, including Dr. and Mrs. W. deB. MacNider and Dr. M. C. S. Noble, will go to Charlotte for the funeral services. The time of the funeral could not be learned last night.

Leading Educator

Alexander Graham, called the "father of Charlotte's schools," has been, like his son, a leading educator in North Carolina. The Alexander Graham school now stands in Fayetteville as a memorial to the man who served as the superintendent of Fayetteville's schools from 1878 to 1888.

Dr. Graham was for 25 years acting superintendent of the Charlotte city schools. In 1913 these duties became too heavy and he took the position of assistant superintendent. He was made superintendent emeritus in 1929.

Sons and daughters of former pupils of Dr. Graham now attend classes in a Charlotte junior high school bearing his name.

In Civil War

After the Civil war, in which 20-year-old Alexander Graham, transferring his activities from the classroom to the battlefield, fought one battle before being captured, Dr. Graham went to the University of North Carolina to complete his education. While here, he was captain of the baseball team and a member of Zeta Psi.

Dr. Graham was the first man to ask that the University accept girls as students.

He was the son of Archibald and Anne McLean Graham. Among his survivors are seven children and his widow, who was Katherine Bryan Sloan. Mrs. Shipp Sanders is one of his daughters. All his other children except one son, a surgeon, are prominent in education in North Carolina.

PARAGRAPHICS

The A. & P. moguls who would rather "close their Cleveland stores than yield to labor" might be hanging themselves with a broken chain.

Then there's the timid old lady who wouldn't go to the Bull's Head because she didn't want to horn in.

E. Carrington Smith's philosophy: it costs less to see a movie star than be one.

Peace on The Hill

Students who have never participated in serious discussions of national and international problems will have the opportunity of hearing both sides of the question of armed conflict when the students' anti-war conference gets underway next Thursday night.

The permanent conference chairman announces that not only the peace angle but the true military viewpoint will be included in the two-day conference schedule. The significance of this fact on the University campus is two-fold: it will be the first time that students have had the opportunity of participating in both sides of this question, and it will be the first time that both sides have been fairly represented.

Programs presented here in the past by the League for Industrial Democracy were one-sided affairs for all their publicized fairness. Students remember the spectacle of capitalist representatives presenting a thoroughly futile refutation of their gifted "L. I. D. choice" opponents. Nevertheless, the fact that students realized the unbalance testifies to their alertness on both sides of the question.

Whereas probably it will never be possible to get anything resembling full student participation in conferences embracing questions even of such importance as the peace movement, any manifestation of student interest, any evidence that students definitely gain to the end of seriously thinking, warrants a continuation of such conferences or programs presenting the facts.

The reason for the coming conference's appearance next week is Armistice Day and the spirit surrounding its recognition. Despite the Y. M. C. A.'s extremely worthy and somewhat effective presentation of the war and peace situation, instigators and administrators of the students' anti-war conference believed that a larger and more thoroughly unified discussion was necessary at this time. The need for the conference and the response to its call will present an interesting diagnosis of what the students think of war and peace at the instance of the commemoration of a conflict of distress and disaster.

It is true that there has not been much time for preparation; but the conference leaders said they did not need it, that the program could be arranged and is arranged.

The significance of the conference will depend upon the extent to which students assimilate and digest the problem for their inspiration, not upon the extent to which the inspiration of pre-conference propaganda affects them.

Education in North Carolina

Chapel Hill township is one of the seven administrative units in the entire state which this year will supplement teachers' salaries above the state maximum of $90 a month. The seven units all voted special taxes to sustain the salary level above this plane.

That only seven units out of 140 can afford or are willing to raise the meagre allowances for state educators testifies to the seriousness of the condition in this state. Yet federal relief administrator Hopkins advised this state back in September that it does not deserve aid because North Carolina's tobacco prices increased so as to strengthen the ability of its taxpayers to support their own schools.

It is encouraging, at any rate, to see that the voters in seven communities saw their way clear to advance the rates paid to the teachers of their children.

* * * *

At the same time, Clyde A. Erwin, new superintendent of public instruction of North Carolina, declared to a body of teachers and parents that the key to the educational system in North Carolina "is to insure to every child an adequately trained and conscientious teacher who is adequately paid."

Going on further, Erwin said, "We need to re-sell education to the citizens of North Carolina, restore confidence in a program of education which will train the child for citizenship and re-dedicate ourselves to the principles laid down by the late Charles B. Aycock."

Teachers, he went on, must be granted financial aid. He stated that he was confident that the legislature will meet the situation in its next session.

The Advisory Budget commission, you remember, has been requested to recommend to the 1935 legislature that the appropriation for operation of the public schools of the state be increased from $16,000,000 to $20,200,000, which would make possible a salary increase for teachers of 25 per cent. Upon this appropriation, as we pointed out before, in the face of federal abandonment, will depend the future of our educational system.

Especially is this true when only seven administrative units can afford to vote a special tax in order to relieve the suffering profession.

* * * *

The North Carolina Education association has a four-point program.

It calls for: (1) continuation of the eight months minimum state school term, supported by taxes other than ad valorem; (2) adequate provision for teachers' salaries and for transportation facilities; (3) liberalization of the local supplement laws; and (4) continuation of the county as the unit of school administration so long as the county continues as the political unit.

Various teachers' associations throughout the state have endorsed this program in its entirety. But do the program or its endorsements mean anything significant in the fight for state school maintenance other than as an expression of state citizens rallying around the cause of education?

Its significance outside of that scope rests upon the action embraced in the fourth point. If the county is retained as the unit of school administration, then obviously the county must come to the aid of the school system within its bounds. We have already seen the problems confronting federal and state participation in the financial support of our inadequate school system; can the counties act to prevent any further cut in teachers' salaries and can they maintain the already low standard?

Governor Ehringhaus, while he agrees that teachers' salaries are "entirely inadequate and not commensurate" with the service rendered, emphatically refuses to suggest an increase in state teachers' salary scale proceeding on the hope than Washington "might dump money into the state" for the purpose of making up the deficit incurred. No deficits will be created, he states, that we may have an excuse to demand federal funds.

If deficits are created, school teachers have first claim; if they are not, the state, county, and township budgets must include the increased expense, if any is stipulated.

* * * *

In the passing of Dr. Alexander Graham, the state loses one of its foremost educators and valuable citizens. Author, lawyer, and scholar, he devoted his life to preparing the youth of his country for future citizenship.

Father of another illustrious educator, Frank Porter Graham, president of the University, Alexander Graham had always taken a keen interest in this University, his alma mater. Following a brilliant career here as an undergraduate and law student, he worked throughout the state with indefatiguable zest in the name of state education, his name being linked with that of Charles B. Aycock in the interest of education.

His son here carries on the traditions of one of North Carolina's most famous families.

Around the Well

By VERMONT C. ROYSTER

We want to pause this morning long enough to take off our hat to the new Finjan and eat any nasty words we may have said about the editor. The history of all collegiate publications is one of personalities, and particularly is a humorous magazine the reflection of its skipper. In our years we've seen comics come (and go) and to see a really clever publication of wit and humor without dirt gives us a quiet, peaceful feeling in our gastronomical regions. Where are all the old ladies of the sewing circle now who used to sit and gasp when they heard that little Johnny was writing for "that Buccaneer"?

Cap'n George (the football team) is becoming quite an idol for the kiddies of Chapel Hill and Carboro. Wandering up the main drag the other day we spied George being beset by two ladies, apparently school mam's, who were trying to get him to come over to the high school and talk to the boys. George was glancing furtively up and down the street as if afraid of being spied, all the while shrinking as close to the wall as he could get. But the more he tried to wiggle away the more they pushed after him, insisting that he come. It would mean so much to "the boys," they said. We passed on our way carrying the picture of a hacked face, but without learning who won. We are still wondering if the Tar Heels' Achilles has at last met his master. What price Glory?

We dropped in on the Playmaker's opening spasm, R. U. R., Thursday night to pop out again after a few minutes, but stayed to marvel at Director Sam Selden's ingeniousness. The play was one of these spectacle things that required a lot off stage noises of people and machinery, and it was all handled very effectively. Upon nosing about back stage we discovered that the machinery effect had been obtained with a small organ playing one sustained note, and that the sound of the mob of robots in the distance was nothing more than the stage crew and extras standing around saying, "Bottle, bottle, bottle . . . " The racket in the epilogues that sounded like the Chrysler building falling over was, however, added impromptu by electrician Hagood.

Personal nomination for the hall of fame: Ellen Deppe, who successfully held up Toreador Spann and twice kept the play from wobbling.

As one newspaper man to another, we delight in scooping the feature board. Our special town correspondent has been telling us about a unique bridge club which exists among the townswomen of the Hill. It seems that sometime ago they felt their game was being slowed up considerably by too much talking across the board (Imagine!), so the redoubtable ladies organized themselves a "silent bridge club," the idea being that while the game is in progress conversation is strictly taboo. We've tried to pull strings to see the plan in operation, but so far our most pathetic pleas have been in vain. We are told that the scheme works, but we can imagine what a strain it must be on some of the dowagers of the peaceful village.

DEMOCRATS SET TO CARRY STATE

Two of 11 Democratic Candidates for Congress This Fall Will Be Unopposed.

Raleigh, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—North Carolina, normally Democratic, undoubtedly will stay that way in the main with the fall election in the offing.

The Republicans will shoot at the "New Deal." With equal vigor, Democratic speakers and office seekers will defend it.

Out of the eleven Democratic candidates for Congress, two are unopposed. They are: John H. Kerr, of the second district, sponsor of the Kerr Tobacco Control Bill, and Frank H. Hancock, Jr., of Oxford, who starred in his support of a bill to take the ban off birth control literature.

Warren Up

Lindsey Warren, of Washington, who vigorously opposed Negroes eating in the House restaurant at Washington, is up for re-election. He represents the first district and is opposed by R. Clarence Dozier, Republican, of South Mills.

R. L. Doughton, of Laurel Springs, is seeking re-election to the House on the Democratic ticket. He is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. He represents the Tenth District, and his Republican opponent is Joseph M. Prevatt, of Jefferson.

Harold D. Cooley, of Nashville, will be one of these. The other will be Graham Barden, of New Bern. They are from the Fourth and Third Districts respectively.

"Off Year"

With no Governor to elect, no United States Senator to choose, this might be termed an "off-year" in North Carolina. However, the question of the State's three per cent general sales tax is smouldering throughout the State, as it has been for several years.

Until it was adopted by the last legislature, the fight was to keep it off. In the next General Assembly, the offensive will be taken by those seeking its repeal. Whether the issue will change materially the completion of the House and Senate cannot be determined with any degree of certainty. Republican membership in both branches was at its low ebb in 1933.

Graduate Exams

Graduate students desiring to take the reading knowledge of French and German examinations required of candidates for higher degrees should register in the graduate office by Monday, November 5.

The German examination will be held on Saturday, November 10; and the French on Saturday, November 17.

Any master's candidates who desire to substitute Spanish for French or German should register in the graduate office by November 5.

Player Treated

Glenn Rice, who was injured Thursday afternoon during freshman football drills, was carried to Durham yesterday to have a broken collar-bone X-rayed and set. Rice will be confined in the infirmary when he returns.

Students confined in the infirmary yesterday were S. G. Giddins, Archie Isreal, Phillip Brame, John Munyan, Stewart Leake, Dudley Jennings, and Jerry Kismer.

NEW CHAPEL HILL MAP COMPLETED

Copy of Original Will Be Placed In Book Exchange.

The newest map of the town of Chapel Hill and vicinity, including the University campus, has just been published in blueprint form by H. D. Carter, local architect.

In securing information concerning boundaries and possession of the land privately owned, Carter drew from 54 old land maps, dating from 1911.

All places of interest are shown on this map which is true to scale, although none of the old names and landmarks are omitted. Original prints of the map measure approximately eight by five feet.

Individuals or organizations desiring to obtain copies of this map for personal use may purchase them through Miss Love of the University library order department.

Carolina Rated Underdog In Contest With Golden Tornado Of Tech Today

Despite Absence of Shaffer, Star Back, and Strength of Georgians, Tar Heels Hope to Make a Comeback in Atlanta Game at 3:00 O'clock E.S.T.; Martin Slated to Start.

Although odds are tremendous against it the Carolina grid team will be out for blood this afternoon in its come-back effort against Georgia Tech at 3:00 o'clock, E.S.T., in Atlanta.

The Tar Heels still remember the great battle of last year when, rated underdogs, they only lost the game 10-6 in the final quarter because of some tough breaks.

Tech is Favored

This year as a result of the fine improvement shown in recent tilts by the Golden Tornado and the loss of Charlie Shaffer, star runner and kicker, Carolina is again expected to take it on the chin.

However, Coach Snavely and dope have it that if the visitors show the fight of the Georgia game three weeks ago, in which Carolina got a 14-0 victory, they will have an even chance to take another win.

Shaffer Greatly Missed

Charlie Shaffer, who has done some great playing for Carolina so far this season, will be sorely missed in the contest. Coach Snavely has no other man on the squad who can kick or carry a ball quite as good as the Greensboro boy.

Eddie Martin, letterman, is scheduled to take Shaffer's place in the first string backfield with Harry Montgomery doing the relief work. Randy Cooner is expected to be the second new man in the backfield, while Hump Snyder, excellent blocker, and Jim Hutchins are the old heads remaining.

Several men in the line will also be out as a result of injuries. Bill Moore and Eugene Barwick, both ends, were left at home with bad knees, while Paul Pendergraft, sophomore guard, is expected to be kept on the bench with a hurt hip. Captain Barclay and Eddie Kahn, guards, and Jim Tatum, tackle, will all be slowed up because of

State vs. Clemson

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 2.—Tomorrow's big football game in North Carolina is played here in the capitol city when N. C. State meets the fighting Tiger of Clemson College at Riddick field at 2:30 o'clock.

If a toss-up ever appeared on any schedule, this is it. Both teams have shown up quite well to date. Clemson's record seems to be more brighter but the Wolfpack showed an increased power last week against the University of North Carolina. And also State well remembers the 9-0 defeat suffered last year at the claws of the Tigers.

FACTS AND GUESSES
By
Bill Anderson

Carolina and Georgia Tech will clash this afternoon on Grant field, Atlanta, in what promises to be one of the "headliners" of southern football.

Some wise guy, seeing the Tar Heel gridiron contingent entrain yesterday morning for Georgia, said, " . . . . Well, they might call Georgia Tech the 'Rambling Wreck' down there in the Land of Peaches, but our Carolina boys sure look like the wreck to me . . . . I even wonder if they will ramble!"

Carolina's aggregation will not be the same one which handed the Georgia University eleven a great 14-0 lacing on the 13th of last month. The Snavelymen will be without the services of Charlie Shaffer, triple-threat halfback and main cog in the blue and white offensive machine. Then too, two fine ends were left behind here in the village: Bill Moore and Gene Barwick. The injury jinx has even gone further. Paul Pendergraft, up and coming sophomore guard who has been looking like good reserve calibre, is hurt.

But Coach Carl Snavely insists that if the Carolina eleven will get in there and play inspired football . . . . the Tar Heels will again march through Georgia victorious. We believe that the big blue is long since due for a good game; they looked mediocre against that splendid Kentucky club; against N. C. State . . . . well, the least said about that contest the better.

Carolina in the past has always played great ball against the Golden Tornado. Today is no exception. A juggled backfield may be for the best in our aerial game. Duke used an effective passing game to beat Tech, and if our passes click today . . . . victory!

The Tech club by its hard fight against Tulane last week showed that it is one of the most vastly improved contingents in the southland. The Green Wave won 20-12, but the score is no indication of the fine game that the Yellow Jackets gave the New Orleans lads. Watch for "Shorty" Roberts and "Sun Dial" Martin in the Tech backfield; in the line the Wilcox brothers, "Pee Wee" Williams, giant tackle; and "Hoot" Gibson, end.

BETAS ELIMINATE Z. B. T. IN MURAL FOOTBALL RACE

Down Rivals 12-0; S. A. E. Wins 28-0 as Harris Converts Four Extras.

K. A. DEFEATS PHI GAMS

Two more teams were dropped from the ranks of the undefeated in the intramural football competition yesterday afternoon as the strong Beta Theta Pi team easily downed Z. B. T., 12-0, and Phi Gamma Delta was crushed, 20-0, in its play-off encounter with Kappa Alpha. The S. A. E. gridsters continued free from defeat as they whipped Pi Kappa Alpha, 28-0.

Entering the contest without its star end and high point scorer, Trip Rand, who was confined to the sidelines with a leg injury, the Betas proved that they were not a "one man team" and blasted Z. B. T. completely out of the championship picture. The winners emerged with a margin of nine first downs to two. Statistics showed the Betas threw 30 passes and completed nine, while their opponents completed three in 19 tries.

Kappa Alpha's much improved team didn't experience any too great difficulty in sending the Phi Gamma Delta gridsters down 20-0, after previously playing to two absolute scoreless ties. The winners held the Phi Gams to a pair of first downs, while netting eight for themselves. The score stood at 13-0 at the intermission.

The S. A. E.-Pi Kappa Alpha contest was little more than a workout for the former, who set somewhat of a record as Harris converted four drop-kicks for extra points and a 100 per cent record for the afternoon. The winners pushed over two tallies in each half, and outgained the Pikas nine to one in first downs.

TENNIS VARSITY SHOWS STRENGTH; FROSH LOSE ACES

Potts to Be Unable to Play until Spring Quarter and Rericha Leaves for Home.

RANKING DISPUTES START

The battle for ladder positions in the Tar Heel tennis world is on and starting today the Carolina tennis civil war opens with a few players already having been challenged and due to defend their disputed positions.

The twenty players listed in the ranking issued Thursday form the temporary varsity and freshmen squads, and a glance shows two rather strong groups with many a sparkling tenniseer near the top of the ladder.

Varsity Rankings

The varsity, having Levitan, Harris, Willis, Jones and Minor as the first five, shapes up as a well-balanced squad and one that will probably carry Carolina's colors as far as the former successful varsities. Levitan will have his hands full retaining possession of the top rung with Harris and Willis constant threats to topple him from his kingly spot.

The freshman squad, although not weak, has been hard hit by the loss of two of their most promising stars. With both Ramsey Potts and Frankie Rericha out of competition, freshmen hopes were dampened quite a bit. Rericha, a New York State lad, has left for home and there is considerable doubt as to the possibilities of his return. Potts, considered the best junior in the South, is unable to play until the spring season, and although there are very few matches until then, his absence will be felt.

Pott's probable return will compensate the loss of De Gray who completes his freshman courses and joins the varsity.

Duke Frosh Defeat Wolflets, 8-0; Tar Babies Work For Clemson

Devilets Score Early and Hold Lead; in Front in Big Five Frosh Race.

BABES PLAY IN ASHEVILLE

Duke University, Nov. 2.—A powerful yearling eleven of Duke today took the inside lane in the Big Five frosh football race as it outfought a likewise potential N. C. State frosh team to win 8-0.

The Blue Devilets tallied in the first period and after that were able to hold their lead over any Wolflet attack. Both teams fought on even terms most of the game.

Duke's score came after Hudgins had taken a punt on his own 35-yard line and returned to the State 20-yard marker. Line plunges advanced the pigskin, and Hudgins finally took the ball over the goal line.

Carolina's baby gridders completed another week of hard work yesterday in preparation for their Armistice Day encounter with the strong Clemson yearling eleven on Monday, November 12 in Asheville.

This game is expected to be quite a hard battle as the little Tigers possess a pair of wild-stepping Clary brothers. These two backfield aces are brothers of the famous Gaffney Ghost, Earl Clary of Gamecock fame.

Their final workout of the week was featured by a passing scrimmage between the first two teams. The first year men refused to be serious in their practice and the skirmish resembled more a harum-scarum free-for-all than a football practice.

Squad B Scores

Team B was the first to cross the goal line on a 15-yard pass from halfback Ed Oliver to "Reggie" Wolfe, the new end. Following up their advantage they again came back to score on a long 30-yard toss from George Graves to "Shag" Thomas who received it over the goal line for the second touchdown making the score 12-0 in favor of team B.

Undaunted by the brilliant offensive exhibition of their rivals, Team A came back strong. After being stopped without gain, they managed to sneak over a touchdown on a short pass from "Bunny" Burnette to "Red" Maroney who ran 50 yards unmolested. The B team defense was caught completely napping.

The practice came to a close with a short instructive dummy blocking drill. Though this was the hardest week that they have gone through, "Doc" McCurry, frosh trainer, insists that the boys were never in better physical condition.

Varsity Harriers Meet Generals This Morning

Race Will Be Run Over Five-Mile Course At Lexington.

V. M. I. Will Be Met After One Day's Rest.

The Carolina varsity cross country team meets its first real competition this morning when it faces the strong Washington & Lee harriers at Lexington, Virginia, in the first of two meets scheduled in that city this week-end.

After its fine performance last Saturday against State, which ended in a perfect 15-49 victory for the Ranson-coached combine, the Blue and White harriers enter the match slight favorites to continue undefeated. However, they will be up against factors that are liable to give them considerable trouble.

Tough Meet

The first is the five mile course which is run over a mountainous route, and is reputed to be one of the toughest of its kind in the southern section. The other will be in the personage of Captain Dunaj, who is the present Southern Conference titlist and one of the finest in the game.

Following a goodly amount of serious preparation, a squad of eight men left here yesterday noon to compete today, while another quintet will leave this evening or tomorrow morning to join them at Lexington for participation in the V. M. I. meet there on Monday.

The squad picked for today's encounter included Ed McRae, Ed Waldrop, Marvin Allen, Fab Haywood, Haywood Curlee, Jack Bower, Louis Conte, and Marcus Aderholt, with Captain Williamson, Graham Gammon, Bob Gardiner, Bob Neel, and Dick Gabori composing the five additions for the meeting with the Cadets.

The V. M. I. runners are led by Captain Buck Moore who except De Camps is the only veteran harrier.

Big Ten Leader Meets Kaydets In Grid Feature

Football Lineup Featured by Regional and Intersectional Battle Royals.

New York, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Like a skyscraper in a Ubangi village, the Army-Illinois intersectional brawl stands out on tomorrow's hard and difficult schedule.

It brings into violent collision at Champaign two prominent championship contenders of the east and the mid-west, each striving to uphold its perfect record. It will be the fourth meeting for the two and if Bob Zuppke's robust Illini can bowl over the Cadets, the series will be evened at two each.

Hard Grid Week

But this battle royal is not the only toss-up on the week-end lineup. Regional warfare features the rest of the schedule, garnished with a few other intersectional meetings.

In the east, Navy will be attempting to maintain its perfect play against the fighting W. and L. eleven which came so near to upsetting the Princeton Tiger several weeks ago. Other headliners along the Atlantic coast are Princeton-Harvard, Dartmouth-Yale, Temple-Holy Cross, Columbia-Cornell, George Washington-Vanderbilt, and Georgetown-Richmond. Intersectional brawls pair off Fordham-Tennessee, and Pitt-Notre Dame.

Dixieland presents the leaders in the Southeastern conference in battles with Alabama meeting Kentucky, Tulane tangling with Ole Miss., and L. S. U. skirmishing with Miss. State. Other leaders in the south are Georgia-Florida, North Carolina-Georgia Tech, Duke-Auburn, Virginia-Maryland, N. C. State-Clemson, and South Carolina-V. P. I.

Student Audit Report

The Carolina Publications Union Board
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Dear Sirs:

I have audited the books and records of the Carolina Publications Union for the fourteen months ended July 31, 1934, and submit herewith condensed statements for publication. A detailed audit report has already been presented to you.

The unusual period covered is due to changing the end of the fiscal year from June 6 to July 31.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that, to the best of my knowledge and belief, the following balance sheet correctly reflects the true financial condition of the Carolina Publications Union as of July 31, 1934, and that the following statements of profit and loss reflect the true results of the operation of the various publications for the fourteen months ended on that date.

Very truly yours,
ROBERT H. SHERRILL
Certified Public Accountant.

LIKE THIS, SEE?

Ace Reporter Richard Arlen instructs his long-suffering printer to hold open the front page for the "scoop of the century." Arlen is co-starred with Ida Lupino in "Ready for Love," at the Carolina theatre Wednesday.

E. Carrington Smith, manager of the theatre, offers five passes today for the persons sending the biggest news tip to the Daily Tar Heel. Two passes are awarded the student giving the best tip.

Two passes were won yesterday by Claude Roberts. The following won a pass each: John McNeill, Henry Smith, and Phillip Gibson. The winners will be announced in the Daily Tar Heel tomorrow.

CAROLINA RATED UNDERDOG IN TILT injuries.

Coach Snavely may also send some new faces into the first string line. Murrey Kanner, sophomore, has been working all week at center and may get the call to start, while Trimpey, another soph, has been running in place of Jim Tatum at tackle.

Georgia Tech will feature in its backfield such bright lights as Shorty Roberts, tiny quarterback who got off several beautiful runs against Tulane last week, and Jack Phillips, North Carolina boy at fullback. The Techs use a special system which their famous coach, Bill Alexander, devised.

Last Saturday the Golden Tornado put up a fine exhibition against Tulane, coming back in the second half to count twice and get within one point of tying things up.

The Tech eleven will be watching Captain George Barclay and Don Jackson more than anyone else on the Carolina club. Last year after the battle in Kenan Stadium Coach Alexander remarked about Barclay's work that as far as he was concerned the guard was "all-southern, all-American, all-anything."

Don Jackson is the back who almost upset the Golden Tornado last year with his magnificent passing. His heaves resulted in a drive nearly the length of the field for a touchdown, and then another marker was missed only because one of his throws was dropped over the goal line.

The Tar Heels and Techs are all square for the three games they have played in Atlanta during the past seasons. The Golden Tornado got a 13-0 triumph in the first meeting in 1927 but in 1929 Carolina handed Tech its first licking of the season, 18-7. The 1931 tilt ended in a 19-19 deadlock.

Article on Wheeler

Dr. Alvin Sawyer Wheeler, acting head of the chemistry department, is the subject for the column "American Contemporaries" in the latest issue of "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry," the news edition of which is published semi-weekly by the American Chemical Society.

In the past this column has confined its win-pickings to games involving teams south of the Mason-Dixon Line. Today we are trying to spread out and will endeavor to pick the "Headliners" in each section of the nation. Leading off in our batting order are the Dixie games: Duke over Auburn; Richmond over Georgetown; Alabama over Kentucky; Tulane over Ole Miss.; L. S. U. over Mississippi A. & M.; Georgia over Florida; Maryland over Virginia; Clemson over N. C. State; and South Carolina over V. P. I.

In the East: Tennessee over Fordham; Navy over W. & L.; Dartmouth over Yale; Princeton over Harvard; Vandy over George Washington; Columbia over Cornell; Penn over Lafayette; and Carnegie Tech over N. Y. U.

The Mid-West: Pitt over Notre Dame; Army over Illinois; Minnesota over Michigan; Purdue over Chicago; Iowa over Indiana; Wisconsin over Northwestern; Iowa State over Kansas; and Michigan State over Marquette.

And in the Southwest: Rice over Texas A. & M.; Texas Christian over Baylor: Oklahoma over Missouri; and Southern Methodist over Texas.

Last, the Pacific coast clubs: Stanford over U. C. L. A.; Washington over Oregon State; and Washington State over St. Mary's.

TWO PROFESSORS WILL GIVE TALKS BEFORE CABINETS

Woodhouse to Speak to Sophomore Cabinet; Ericson Will Address Junior-Seniors.

DISCUSSIONS TO FOLLOW

The upper Y. M. C. A. cabinets will hear Dr. Eston Everett Ericson of the English department and Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the government department at their regular meetings tomorrow night, at 7:15 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Ericson will speak before the junior-senior group on the subject of Socialism as a cure for war. He will attempt to show how armed conflicts are caused by economic systems and practices used at the present time.

Professor Woodhouse will discuss the "Danger Points in the World Today Where Wars Might Start" before the sophomore cabinet.

Ericson's First Appearance

The meetings tomorrow night will be Ericson's first and Woodhouse's second appearance on this series of war and peace discussions being sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. this quarter.

Professor Woodhouse aided in a discussion held at a joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. cabinets last month, at which Dr. Carl H. Pegg of the history department spoke on "Nationalism: Is It The Way Out?"

Dean Elbert Russell of Duke University is scheduled to make an address on the Monday following Armistice Day on "Jesus, the Pacifist." Dr. Russell will try to answer the question: "Should a Christian Support War?"

Dean Russell has spoken on the University campus before, making an address here three years ago in a series of lectures sponsored by the "Y".

Discussions will follow the address by the Duke professor.

Phil Kind, president of the sophomore cabinet, has been asked to speak to the second-year group November 19 on phases of disarmament. Fred Weaver, also a sophomore, will lead a discussion following Kind's talk on some phase of international co-operation.

VILLAGE TO VOTE TUESDAY MORNING

Polls Open at Sunrise for County And State Elections.

Polls will open in the Chapel Hill high school Tin Can at sunrise Tuesday for the selection of Orange county and state officers.

Official markers for both parties will occupy chairs fifty feet from the voting booths and will give aid only at a sign from the voter.

Heading the ballot for state officers are Walter P. Stacy, Carolina alumnus and Democratic nominee, and A. A. Whitener, Republican choice, who will run for chief justice of State Supreme Court.

"This county has always conducted its elections without the slightest intimation of crookedness," said Paul Robertson, who will be in charge of the balloting Tuesday. "We ask the co-operation of all parties in preserving this record."

There are 23 new registrations in the Chapel Hill precinct, bringing the total to 1,700.

COMMITTEE VOTES TO AID STUDENTS

Persons with Composition Conditions to Receive Instruction.

Students who have received a grade of "CC" (composition condition) may receive individual help without cost, the University committee on English composition announced yesterday.

The grade "CC," while not affecting a student's eligibility for continuance in the University, must be removed before final credit will be allowed. When added to the regular grade, it signifies that, although the subject matter may be accepted as satisfactory, the penmanship, punctuation, and other mechanical features are not up to University standards.

The quarterly examination for the removal of composition conditions will be given December 6. Those who plan to take this exam should see Dr. H. K. Russell, secretary of the committee, at 203 Murphey between 10:30 and 1:00 o'clock or 2:00 and 4:00 o'clock Monday or Tuesday.

300 A. & P. STORES TO RE-OPEN SOON

Seven Point Truce, Advanced by National Labor Relations Board, Is Accepted.

Washington, Nov. 3.— (UP) —Substituting co-operation for bitterness, both labor and management in the A. & P. Co. today accepted a seven point truce advanced by the National Labor Relations Board.

The agreement of the A. & P. Co. to open their Cleveland stores ended the labor war which threatened to nullify President Roosevelt's plans for industrial peace.

Their 300-odd Cleveland stores will re-open as soon as orderly movements of produce may be started from grocery chains to the Cleveland warehouse.

"Collective Bargaining"

The truce solidified the "Collective Bargaining" principles embodied in the National Industrial Recovery Act and dimmed the prospect of a nation wide epidemic of labor disorders.

The conditions prior to this truce were very tense throughout the middle west due to threatened strikes in other cities by A. & P. employes and employes in allied industries. Milwaukee seemed to be the most affected of the middle western cities.

This action of re-opening their Cleveland stores by the A. &. P. Co. will restore a $60,000 pay roll to their 2,000 employes in that city.

Freshman Chapel

Dean R. B. House, administrative dean of the Chapel Hill unit of the Greater University, will address the freshman assembly in Memorial hall tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

These Monday morning talks by Dean House are a feature of each week's chapel program.

House in Atlanta

Dean of Administration R. B. House was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Atlanta alumni in Atlanta, Ga., Friday night.

Coach Carl Snavely and J. Maryon Saunders, secretary of the Alumni association, also made talks at the banquet.

NOMINATIONS FOR FROSH OFFICIALS SET FOR TUESDAY

Candidates Will Deliver Campaign Addresses Before Class Wednesday at Chapel.

WILL BALLOT THURSDAY

The freshman assembly period Tuesday morning will be taken up with nominations for the officers of the class of '38.

Nominations for president, vice-president, treasurer, and secretary will be made from the floor. The meeting will be presided over by Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, and the regular parliamentary procedure will be used.

Ballot Thursday

The class will go to the polls Thursday to cast their ballots. Voting, which will be by Australian ballot, will be held at Graham Memorial, and will be under the supervision of the student council. Balloting will last from 9:00 o'clock in the morning until 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

The candidates nominated Tuesday will deliver their campaign speeches at the assembly meeting Wednesday morning. This is in accord with the regular election procedure at the University.

Last year, the "New Deal" party swept all its candidates into office by a large majority, to defeat the "Square Deal" candidates. The officers of last year's freshman class were: Nate Lipscomb, president; Ed Herring, vice-president; Wilborn Davis, secretary; and Joe Grier, treasurer.

MARY PICKFORD, DOUG FAIRBANKS ARE RECONCILED

"We Are Happily Reconciled," Says Miss Pickford.

Chicago, Nov. 3.— (UP) — Marital troubles between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks appeared to be nearing a happy reconciliation tonight.

Interviewers who boarded Miss Pickford's train at Kansas City reported that she replied to questions: "We are reconciled, happily reconciled." Fairbanks, who is residing at his ranch in California, smiled as he said, "I've nothing to say about it."

Trouble between the two, who were considered the most happily married couple in Hollywood, began last year.

Fairbanks has been in England until recently where he was engaged in making a picture for an English company.

Attempts to reconcile the famous couple during the summer, seemed to be of no avail at that time. The apparent reconciliation of America's most famous married couple was received with great interest.

Friendship Council

The Freshman Friendship council will meet in Gerrard hall at 7:15 o'clock tomorrow night.

With the sophomore "Y" cabinet, they are making plans for a Red Cross campaign next week.

Infirmary

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: Glenn Rice, Stewart Leake, Dudley Jennings, Jerry Kisner, Gene Barwick, Phillips Brame, and John Munyan.

TEST TO BE GIVEN FOR CIVIL SERVICE

Third Year Engineering Students May Take Exam.

Applications for student engineer positions in the United States civil service have been forwarded to the Chapel Hill post office from the department in Washington.

The examinations will be conducted on a competitive basis and must be in the hands of the manager of the Fourth United States civil service district in Washington before November 10.

The requirements for the position demand that the applicant be a citizen of the United States, have completed three years of an engineering course in college, be under 26 years of age and have no physical defects. Students entering their third year of engineering are eligible to compete in the examination but cannot assume duties until that year has been completed.

Information and applications may be procured at the local post office.

CAROLINA PLAYS BRING ROYALTIES

Dramas Produced in Ten Different States; Works of Paul Green Not Included.

Plays by Playmaker authors were produced in ten different states during the last six months and brought a total revenue of $115.00 to their authors, announced Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Playmakers, yesterday.

The list of authors did not include the name of Paul Green, the Playmakers' ace playwright whose productions are handled directly through Samuel French and Co., New York publishers.

The twelve authors whose plays were produced in various communities throughout the country receive their royalties through Koch's office here.

Educational productions of the plays by high school dramatic groups and little theatres brought in no revenue, because there was no admission fee charged by these producers.

Thirteen Plays

The plays included: "Magnolia's Man" by Gertrude Wilson Coffin of Chapel Hill; "Ever' Snitch" by Irene Fussler of Chapel Hill; "Agatha" by Jane Toy of Chapel Hill; "Dogwood Bushes" by Wilbur Stout of Burlington; "Cloey" by Loretta Carroll Bailey, Winston-Salem; "The New Moon" by Telfair Peet, Auburn, Ala.; "The Beaded Buckle" by Frances Gray, Raleigh; "Dod Gast Ye Both" by Herbert Heffner, Maiden; "Gaius," and Gaius, Jr." by Lucy Cobb, Wake Forest; "Off Nag's Head" by Dougald McMillan, Wilmington; "Peggy" by Harold Williams, Carthage; "Trista" and "When Witches Ride" by Elizabeth Lay of Beaufort. Miss Lay later became the wife of Paul Green.

The states in which these productions were staged during the last six months included: California, Arizona, Missouri, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee, Ohio, New York, Virginia and North Carolina.

The three plays by Paul Green that appeared in the Playmakers' book entitled "Carolina Folk Plays" and which are not listed here are: "The Last of the Lowry's," "Fixin's," and "Quare Medicine."

Tar Heel Gridsters Run Wild To Down Tech, 26-0

Negro Will Address Presbyterian Group

William S. Nelson, president of Shaw University, Negro institution in Raleigh, will speak tonight at the Union services to be held in the Presbyterian church at 8:00 o'clock.

Nelson, who is one of the foremost Negro educators in the state, will take as his subject "Personal Religion."

The last two Union congregations have heard addresses by a theologian and by a scientist. In continuation of the policy of securing speakers from every walk of life, they will hear a Catholic priest, Jewish rabbi, and a business man on the following successive Sundays.

LIBRARY RECEIVES BABYLONIAN RELIC

A clay cone, over four thousand years old, inscribed with the cuneiform characters of ancient Babylonia, is the newest addition to the Hanes Collection on the History of the Book in the University library.

The cone, which was found at the site of the ancient city, Ur of the Chaldees, bears an inscription of twenty lines from Libit-Ishtar, a Babylonian king of the year 2150 B. C., who reigned shortly before the time of Abraham.

This inscription is very valuable since it mentions the names of most of the Mesopotamian cities of the book of Genesis. The existence of these cities has until recently been doubted.

The inscription, which reads from top to bottom and from right to left, is the best illustration yet discovered of civilized Babylonian writing of the age before Abraham.

Mrs. H. K. Russell Will Give Lecture

Mrs. H. K. Russell, wife of Dr. H. K. Russell of the English department, will be the principal speaker on the Bull's Head lecture program Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Russell will read selected pieces from "Wine from These Grapes," by Edna St. Vincent Millay.

Greatly interested in contemporary poetry, Mrs. Russell is well known as an excellent reader. During her undergraduate days and since her graduation from the University, she has been active in the Carolina Playmakers. She last played the role of Nora in Ibsen's "A Doll's House." Mrs. Russell is actively associated with the Playreaders, a local group devoted to reading plays. Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, will introduce the speaker.

COMMITTEE DISCUSSES TEXTBOOKS ON SCIENCE

The North Carolina High School Textbook committee met here yesterday to discuss science texts preparatory to making recommendations to the State Board of Education.

Members present were Dr. N. W. Walker, chairman; Supt. J. M. Shields, New Bern; and Miss Kate Finley of Rockingham. Dr. R. J. Slay of E. C. T. C., and Dr. C. E. Preston of the University science department met with the committee as advisors.

BACKFIELD SHOWS POWER IN ATTACK

Jackson, Hutchins, Snyder, and Montgomery Perform Well Behind Play of Line.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3.—With a revamped backfield performing in great style behind a fast and hard charging stonewall line, Carolina's football team made its second successful invasion of Georgia territory, this time whipping Georgia Tech, 26-0, here this afternoon.

As in the game with Georgia three weeks ago the Tar Heels were rated the underdogs and again the visitors rose to great heights, demonstrating for the second time to the southern fans a smooth working backfield behind a near perfect forward wall.

Forced to find a new combination because of the absence of his star runner and kicker, Charlie Shaffer, Coach Carl Snavely sent in the game a backfield consisting of Don Jackson, Harry Montgomery, Hump Snyder, and Jim Hutchins. However, this squad had everything on the attack including some great kicking, passing, and a 50-yard run from Jackson, some consistant ground gaining from Hutchins and Montgomery, and some beautiful blocking, pass receiving, and a couple of important runs from Snyder.

Great Forward Wall

The whole Tar Heel line put on another big show, charging the Tech team off of its feet and messing up the passing offense almost completely. Time after time the linemen threw the passers for losses as they tried desperately to find an open receiver.

Captain George Barclay was again the mainstay backing up the line in his usual colorful fashion. Besides making tackle after tackle, the all-American candidate intercepted a pass and fell on a fumble when Tech was making its only threat to count.

Carolina opened its point making in the first quarter with 14 points. Don Jackson put the Tar Heels first in position to count as he outpunted the Tornado kickers, Carolina finally getting the ball after several exchanges on its own 48-yard line.

After two plays had failed to gain, Hutchins hit the middle of the line for five yards putting the ball on Tech's 47 with it being fourth down. Here the Carolina signal-caller crossed the Tornado backfield up as he called a pass instead of a punt. Jackson tossed the ball to Snyder who took it on the 40 and dashed to the 30 before being downed.

Hutchins Ploughs Through

Hutchins ploughed through center for six yards, and then skirted his right end, making it a first down on the Tech 15. Hutchins cracked center wide open again for five more yards to the 10. Jackson made only a yard in two tries but Hutchins

PARAGRAPHICS

Twinkle, twinkle, little Saar,
How we wonder whose you are!

Allowing three seconds per melody and three seconds for the carilloneur's breath, we estimate that the tower chimes whipped off 25 hours in 10 minutes Friday. It certainly beats our time.

Insull is something like limburger cheese: he gets a little stronger every day.

Reporting on The Report

The DAILY TAR HEEL was the only publication in the union system which was revealed by Mr. Sherrill's report as showing a profit for the year ended July 31, 1934. The Yackety Yack, nationally recognized as one of the finest annuals in the country, incurred the greatest loss. But the figures do not tell the entire story.

It is commonly agreed that the Buccaneer's ending up "in the red" was due to poor business management and lax financial administration of the student manager. But the Yackety Yack's debenture was the result of a definite move on the part of last year's Publications Union board both to cut the revenue and increase expenses.

And why this policy? The board, controlling the publications in a year of financial depression, believed in passing on savings to the students. It upheld the idea that the profits of the union should be reinvested in the publications rather than amass in stocks and bonds. It agreed that organizations in a time of financial disparity, should be aided in making ends meet by being offered more discount for space payments.

So, junior-senior fees for representation were decreased; prompt space payments were rewarded by liberal discounts; the budgets for all publications, especially the Yackety Yack, were greatly increased. Results: all publications showed improvement, more students and organizations were represented in the Yackety Yack, a better annual was published—and the Yackety Yack received an all-American rating.

To make this latter point a reason for condoning the board's deliberate action in "losing money" is not our purpose. The reasons they advocated this policy were more than to help in the financial crisis or to better the publications; they were faced with the problem of balancing the budget to the demands of a student body which did not favor the $2,500 profit the year previous or the continued amassing of surplus. So the budget was "balanced" so that in normal years, when student fees were increased in number and organizations could pay for their space without qualms, the union's report would show neither profits nor losses, but an even break. In the meantime, of course, more money was being put back into the publications and the reserve was not being increased.

One fact is evident from the report, however, that deserves immediate attention. Some publications, regardless of board action or business management, support the others in the union. A re-allocation of student fees for publications must be effected in order to provide a truer basis upon which to build each publication's budget.

Dan'l The Explorer

Loyal Kentuckians and Governor Ruby Laffoon, who are intending to see that 600,000 commemorative half-dollars are to be issued in honor of their patron saint, Dan'l Boone, might very well be indignant over discoveries of Dr. Archibald Henderson, who is writing a biography of the pioneer explorer.

Dr. Henderson believes, with the acumen of a good historian, that Boone's discoveries and explorations were motivated by other than the pure pioneer spirit. One Richard Henderson, organizer of the Transylvania Company for westward exploration, and prominent figure in North Carolina history, says Dr. Henderson, apparently held a mortgage on Boone's property and sent him into the wilderness that he might free himself of his debt through his services as advance agent, so to speak, for the Transylvania Company.

What a blow that must be to true Kentuckians can only be surmised. Why, it takes all the glamor of the sixth-grade history books away, leaving us little more than the realization that Dan'l Boone was a mortal who got into debt just like the rest of us. And, instead of blazing a trail with visions of all the national parks and half-dollars that would be named after him. Daniel Boone was pushed in the press of necessity.

If true, it's an argument in favor of the economic interpretation of history.—But, by the way, is Richard any kin to Archibald?

Need of Tuition Change

There must be an insistence on the need that something must be done to remedy the lack of enrollment of southern students at the University. Its decline in recent years in proportion to the number of students from the northeastern states has brought about a weakness in our present tuition differential for out-of-state students. A difference of $100 in tuition payments for all out-of-state students, regardless of whether they come from states which have state-supported institutions or not, is working a hardship on the south.

Plans have been offered to remedy this state of affairs, and even if they are no more than tentative, they show the pressing need of formulating some system of a sliding tuition differential which will not exclude northern students, but which will attract southern students. Ben Husbands, assistant registrar, has suggested in a comprehensive study that tuition differentials be based on the reciprocity of student exchange between (1) students from North Carolina attending state institutions in other states and (2) students from other states attending state institutions in North Carolina.

Dr. W. C. Coker has proposed another plan which would allow for the giving of a sort of fee-grant or scholarship to students coming to the University from neighboring states. Either of these plans contains the germ of reform, which is sorely needed if the University is to draw heavily on the south for a large portion of its student body. It is time that a remedy for the situation was considered by the administration.

Et Tu, Brute?

Professor E. J. Woodhouse, efficiency expert and connoisseur of English as she should be spoken, wound up Tuesday night and took a good swing at Youth. In warning the debaters against vague generalizations in public statements, Professor Woodhouse said that Youth is especially prone to use such words as "never," "ever," and "forever."

Without pausing to quarrel on this point, (although we don't think that the words mentioned above are vague and generalizations, being pleasantly euphemistic) we only remark that it was with great glee that we observed that a criticism of the 1934 Yackety Yack by the N. S. P. A. was that "the copy written by the deans is too vague and general."

Well! This is interesting. Apparently Youth isn't the only offender in this line. In fact, in this case, it's a mighty fine compliment to Youth that it is able to write and talk a nice vague jargon, just like the deans. Vagueness is not the result, therefore, of lack of training; on the contrary, the art of talking jargon is something of an accomplishment, useful in dealings with the press and so on. Glad to have you, boys.

Mighty Good Samaritans

We understand that a student "Y" committee under Paul McKee is going to take it upon itself to give attention to infirmary inmates in "the little details beyond the scope of the regular infirmary attendants." This, we think, is noble.

Now with a student committee to run that obnoxious reserve book back to the library, to trundle over with the sweetie's epistle, or to pay a bill before the 10th (with our money, of course) life will be more bearable in the cold, bleak house for the sick.

THE ENGLISH HAVE BEEN MALIGNED

At the debate banquet given in honor of the Oxford debaters the other evening, Michael Foot, son of Isaac Foot, M. P., and president of the Oxford University Liberal club, told a story which indicates pretty plainly to us that the English sense of humor is better than it's reputed. It seems that an English schoolmaster required one of his students, as punishment for some misdeed, to write a paper on "Godliness, Nobility, and Chastity." After nearly a week of concentrated thought on the subject, the student turned in a paper which contained only this line under its imposing title: "My God, Duchess, take your hand off my knee."

EXPRESSION IN AMERICA

The following is an example of American wit, a paper turned in by an eight-year old boy in the class of Miss Gertrude Russell, a former University student: Under the caption "English" the paper read like this: "Once their war man planty his corn late an when it came up it war little and yellow. The corn war thick with grass. An one day a precher came a long when the boy was planty it. He said why is your corn so grassier, said the precher. We planty the grassier king said the boy. And the field war fence in. What between you and a fool said the precher. That fence their sir."

"WHERE DO HIGH-HATS GO?"

On the spur of the moment, nine of Mangum's worthy inhabitants piled in and onto a Ford roadster to go to Raleigh to a dance at which the Mills brothers were scheduled to play. They ran out of gas twice, and twice refueled, both with gasoline and with something to keep them warm inside. Arriving at the Auditorium about 2:30 A. M. (the dance was scheduled from midnight till 4:00 o'clock) they were approached by a Negro in a loud checked suit, spats and a derby, who asked: "Yawwl wanta buy some spectater's tickets?"

"Spectators' tickets, hell," came a voice from the rear fender. "We came to dance."

A broad grin spread over the Afric visage as he asked: "Didn't yawwl know dis-yar dance is fo' cullad people?"

BASE KNAVES

On one of the introductory pages of former University student Keith Fowler's novel, "All the Skeletons In All The Closets" appears this statement: "The characters in this book have no existence beyond its pages." Quite a nice transept, we think.

QUARANTINE

We spent most of last week envying the Phi Delts their freedom from the cares of this dear old work-a-day world, and tried to decide what we would do if we were quarantined for two weeks and didn't have scarlet fever. Our schedule is as follows: Write two term themes of five thousand words each, catch up with a month's back correspondence, read eleven books for parallel and do all the other reading we've put aside for the last month or two because of "no time," read the DAILY TAR HEEL every day, play bridge, poker, and ping-pong until we were heartily sick of all of them, and then 'phone the bootlegger and go to bed until he got there. We leave the rest to your imagination.

PASS WINNERS

The winners of theatre passes for the best news tips were won yesterday by the following: Lee Walters, two passes for the biggest tip, Don Kennedy, Haywood Weeks, and Harper Barnes.

Band Meets Tomorrow

The University band will stage a full rehearsal tomorrow night at 7:00 o'clock in the Tin Can, announced Earl A. Slocum, conductor of the band, yesterday.

The band will make the trip to Davidson with the football team Saturday.

To Speak at Fort Bragg

Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the University government department will speak at Fort Bragg, N. C., Tuesday.

Woodhouse's lecture on "The Political Scene in the United States Today" will be the second of a series of such lectures sponsored by the University extension department.

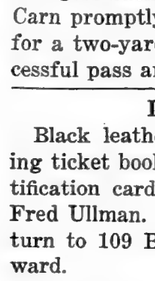
Tar Heel Grid Team Trounces Golden Tornado With Ease, 26-0

Jackson Scores on 50-Yard Dash; Montgomery Hits Line Twice And Snyder Once to Count.



DANIEL KICKS TWO POINTS

drove to another first on the five.

Montgomery tried right tackle and got two yards. Hutchins bucked into the mass for another yard and then Montgomery dived over left tackle for the score. Babe Daniel, center, sent a perfect placement through the uprights for the extra point.

Carolina was on its way to another marker a short time later when Dick Buck recovered a fumble by Shorty Roberts, Tornado quarterback, on Tech's 20. Buck had also made the tackle on Roberts as the little fellow attempted an end run.

On the first play, Snyder sneaked over tackle for 10 yards to the 10. Montgomery got a yard and Hutchins four to the five. On a lateral, Hutchins to Tom Evins, tackle, to Buck McCarn, the end skirted left end but stepped out on the one.

However, Montgomery again dived over the goal line for the touchdown. Daniel added another point from placement making the count, 14-0.

Here Coach Snavely sent in almost an entirely new eleven as the first quarter ended. Early in the second quarter Tech recovered a fumble on Carolina's 35-yard line and from there made its biggest threat to score.

Perkerson got two yards through the line and on the third down Jack Phillips shot a pass to Roberts who dashed to the 15. Coach Snavely then shot his first stringers back in the fray. McCarn promptly threw McKinley for a two-yard loss but a successful pass and penalty put the ball on the seven with a first down.

Daniel broke through to throw McKinley on the 10 and then Captain Barclay pounced on a fumble by Roberts giving the Tar Heels the ball on their own 10. Jackson immediately punted out to the 40. Tech started another drive which Snyder stopped by intercepting a pass on the 19.

Carolina came within two yards of scoring again before half-time. Boyd gave the Tar Heels the ball on his 32 by a fumble which Snyder recovered. Hutchins broke loose after crashing center and got to the 19 before being pulled down. Snyder took a bullet pass from Jackson for seven yards.

McCarn, end, again took a lateral this time getting to the four-yard line for a first. Carolina got it to the two in a couple of plays but the half whistle halted play.

The Tar Heels tallied their final two markers in the third period. Another fumble gave Carolina the ball on the Tech 49 when Montgomery recovered. Montgomery lost a yard putting the ball in midfield.

Jackson's Long Run

Here Don Jackson skirted his right end to the 30 where he picked up his interference. He then cut to the left and galloped through the Tech secondary to a touchdown. The run of 50 yards was the longest of the afternoon.

A little later Carolina took possession of the ball on Tech's 47 on a punt. Montgomery and Hutchins could get only four but then Hutchins faked a pass and dashed around end 10 yards to the 34. Carolina was penalized five yards but Montgomery stepped off seven to the 32.

Dick Buck then leaped up to take a beautiful pass from Jackson on the five. Hutchins smashed center for three and Tech drew a penalty of half the distance to the goal. Hutchins again dived into the mass, failing by inches. Snyder then on a fake went over the line with ease, making the count 26-0.

Throughout the rest of the game Coach Snavely used his second and third teams. The reserves almost pushed across another marker but a fumble cut the threat short.

CAROLINA'S LINE-BUSTING EXPERTS

Jim Hutchins and Hump Snyder, full and blocking backs for the Tar Heels, who cracked the Tech line wide open yesterday in Atlanta. With Snyder leading the way Hutchins made yardage every time he stuck the ball under his arm. The big sophomore outgained anyone else on the field in his line smashing drives, besides getting off a couple of lengthy trots around ends. Snyder again turned in a great performance in blocking and backing up the line. He also sneaked over guard for one of the Tar Heel markers.

DEVILS GET 13-6 WIN OVER AUBURN

Duke Forced to Come from Behind in Final Period to Whip Plainsmen on Wet Field.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 3.—Wallace Wade's Duke eleven came back strong today after trailing for three quarters to down Auburn's mighty Plainsmen, 13-6, on a soaked gridiron.

The Blue Devils emerged victors by the beautiful playing of their aces, Cornelius, Parker, and Alexander. Numerous fumbles marred the game.

Both teams fought on even terms the first quarter. In the second period, a bad pass from center to Alexander of Duke resulted in a free ball deep in Duke's territory. Morris of Auburn recovered the fumble on Duke's 13-yard line and from there the Plainsmen drove the ball across, with Karan scoring.

Early in the final quarter Cornelius took a pass from Parker on Auburn's seven-yard line and crossed for a score, after an Auburn fumble had given Duke the ball near mid-field. Cornelius converted the extra point.

Near the end of the game, Duke received the ball on Auburn's 42 after a short punt. McAnich gained two yards and then Alexander on a spinner went off tackle for 40 yards and a touchdown.

CLEMSON WHIPS STATE CLUB, 12-6

Smarter Playing Results in Victory for Tigers; Roy Leads Wolfpack Offense.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 3.—Clemson's smart playing was the deciding factor in their battle with N. C. State College as the Tigers fought the Wolfpack to win, 12-6.

State was in the rough the whole game except during the last few minutes, when several long runs by Roscoe Roy put the ball in scoring position and then Dusty, sub quarter, snagged a beautiful pass for a score.

Clemson tallied in the first period as the result of a long pass from the accurate arm of Hinson. The Iodiners scored their second marker on a perfectly-executed forward lateral with Lee doing some beautiful running to score.

Hinson led the Tiger attack while he was in the game, being removed in the second quarter because of an injury. For the 'Pack, Rex and Roy starred.

Mural Bowling Play To Start Tomorrow

The intramural bowling league will get underway tomorrow in Graham Memorial with four dormitory matches on the schedule. The fraternity teams will get in action Wednesday with three battles.

The schedule for the week follows:

Monday: Manly vs. Three Aces, 2:00 o'clock; Aycock 'B' vs. Three W's, 3:30 o'clock; Mangum vs. Lewis, 5:00 o'clock; Aycock 'A' vs. Ace, King, Jack, 7:00 o'clock.

Tar Heel Cross Country Team Gets 20-36 Victory Over Washington & Lee

Captain Dunaj Finishes First; Five Carolina Dalers Follow.

Lexington, Va., Nov. 3.—The strong University of North Carolina varsity cross country team won its second start of the 1934 season as it humbled the hill and dalers of Washington and Lee here this morning 20-36.

However, as was expected, the Blue and White color bearers met up with one obstacle that was a bit too much for them to overcome. It was Captain Dunaj of the Generals, present Southern Conference titlist, who led the way to the finish. The winners showed their strong balance of power as the next five men to cross the tape bore the U. N. C. monogram.

The Carolina squad will remain here until Monday when it faces the V. M. I. team that afternoon. Coach Dale Ranson said that the same team that was victorious today would not compete intact against the Cadets, but that he expected Captain Harry Williamson and four additional men here tomorrow afternoon for that meet.

Only Nine Outfits With Clean Slates In Mural Grid Race

Rand Increases Individual Lead; McKinnon Passes Austin.

Last week's intramural tag football sessions cut the ranks of the undefeated from thirteen to nine, but brought about very little shake-up in the race for individual scoring honors.

Missing from the select group as the season goes into its fifth week are the Y. M. C. A., Z. B. T., T. E. P., and Phi Gamma Delta, who met defeats from Ruffin, the Betas, Delta Tau Delta, and Kappa Alpha respectively.

Trip Rand of Beta Theta Pi continued as undisputed leader in the fraternity division and for the campus with a total of 78 points, which includes four touchdowns for his week's work. He was withheld from Friday's contest, and missed a chance of forging even farther ahead. Blythe of the Betas broke the triple tie that existed for third place after last week's games as he added 14 points during the week.

The dormitory league saw McKinnon, of Ruffin's great team, replace Austin of Lewis with 36 points to the latter's 31. Daniel of the "Y" kept his hold on third place with a six point margin over the three-way tie for fourth.

With the intramural season starting down the home stretch there is certain to be additional color added to the picture as the nine undefeated teams cross each other's paths. At least one team is certain of elimination on Friday—unless they pull the K. A.-Phi Gams stunt—when Law School faces Swain Hall.

Student Audit Report

Mr. Virgil Weathers, chairman
Student Audit Board
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Dear Sir: .

I submit herewith reports of the following organizations for publication:
Athletic Association
Graham Memorial
Y. M. C. A.
Student Entertainment Fund

It should be emphasized that all of these reports are condensed for publication. For example, the Athletic association report, as presented to the Athletic council, consists of twenty-two statements, showing in detail income and expense for each report, and details of various assets and liabilities.

No fixed property has been set up as on the balance sheets. Since these non-profit organizations are primarily interested in funds actually available for operation, such property is carried separately in a capital fund, additions for each year being shown as an expenditure of the operating fund.

Any additional information will be gladly furnished to members of the above organizations.

Very truly yours,
ROBERT H. SHERRILL, C.P.A.

STUDENTS' PEACE SESSION TO MEET THURSDAY-FRIDAY

Dr. Elbert Russell and Ex-Commander Stevens of Legion To Be Among Speakers.

TO PRESENT BOTH SIDES

Speakers for the students' anti-war conference to convene here Thursday and Friday were announced following yesterday's meeting of the conference praesidium.

Both sides of the war question, representing pacifistic and militaristic views, will be included in the presentations.

Thursday's session will include talks by Dr. Elbert Russell, Duke University notable; Ex-commander Stevens of the American Legion; Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the history department; and the Reverend Fletcher of Raleigh.

Friday's Speakers

On Friday the delegates will hear Dr. E. E. Ericson of the English department; Dr. Meno Spann of the German department; two student speakers, Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, and Bill Levitt, permanent chairman of the conference; and Professor K. C. Fraser of the history department.

The engagements of Fraser and Stevens are tentative, but conference officials believe that arrangements can be satisfactorily made for their appearance.

To Vote on Forum

At yesterday's praesidium, it was determined that conference delegates, who will include selected delegates and voluntary attenders, will decide by vote at the end of the speeches Friday night whether or not discussions of the entire program will be held or not.

It is also planned to have all University classes elect two delegates from their memberships to attend the conference.

OLSEN WILL ACT AS CRITIC OF PHI

Convictions by Student Council Will Be Question for Discussion Tonight.

Professor W. A. Olsen will act as "efficiency expert" at the regular meeting of the Phi assembly at 7:15 o'clock tonight in New East.

Olsen, who is professor of public speaking in the English department and faculty advisor of the debating squad, will direct such remarks as he sees fit to the assemblymen at the conclusion of the program.

Last Tuesday, the Phi had as a critic, Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the government department.

Student Trials

The bill that will be discussed tonight is: Resolved, that every person convicted by the student council be given another chance. The case for the affirmative will be presented by Tom Hull and Harry MacMullen, while W. E. Simmons and Leighton Dudly will support the negative side of the question.

Bids for the Phi dance, which will be held jointly with the Di senate on November 23, will be arranged.

Action will be taken by the members towards definite plans for the freshman debate.

Fifty Candidates For N. C. General Assembly Were University Men

Out of a complete list of the Democratic nominees for the General Assembly, 50 of the candidates for seats in both the houses either are graduates of the University or were students here for some time. Nineteen of the 50 are running for seats in the state Senate, while 31 are seeking places in the House of Representatives.

This group of 50 University men will compose almost one third of the total membership of both houses, if they are all elected in the coming contest. The 19 who are seeking seats in the Senate will compose two-fifths of the total membership of that body, while the 31 men running for seats in the House will compose over one-fourth of the membership there.

Among the candidates who were influential while here in school are the following: J. A. Allsbrook, president student body, 1924-25; S. F. Teague, Phi assembly, class of 1910; John Sprunt Hill, member board of trustees of the University; K. B. Nixon, Di senate, graduated cum laude; George B. Mason, track; L. L. Stevens, graduated cum laude; Thos. O'Berry, Phi society; and Rev. B. J. Howard.

Other candidates who were in school here are: P. W. Meekins, D. S. Ward, J. A. Taylor, R. L. Davis, U. S. Bryant, W. W. Eagles, L. S. Royster, Ben Cone, R. T. Pickens, R. P. Bender, C. H. Crabtree, R. H. Rouse, Dr. W. I. Farrell, W. D. Barbee, N. E. Day, J. G. Dees, W. Williams. R. B. Johnston, J. H. Paylor, H. L. Ingram, H. Newman, W. H. Powell, U. L. Spence, M. P. Horton, O. S. Robertson, J. B. Stacy, J. A. Dunn, Fred Folger, R. G. Carson, A. H. Johnston, F. E. Thomas, T. C. Bowie, L. M. Blount, W. A. Sullivan, G. W. Craig, J. H. Norwood, T. T. Barnes, A. B. Corey, and N. C. Clark.

Seniors to Meet

There will be a meeting of the senior class in Gerrard hall at 7:15 o'clock tonight.

The class testator, the prophet, the poet, and the historian will be elected.

Action will be taken in regard to the class budget.

NEW GREEN PLAY TO BE PRODUCED

Playmaker Tryouts for Un-Named Play to Be Tomorrow Afternoon and Evening.

After several conferences with their ace playwright, Paul Green, the Carolina Playmakers staff announced yesterday that the next public production for the current season would be a new un-named play by Green.

Try-outs for the production, scheduled for December 6, 7, and 8, will be conducted Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock and Wednesday night at 7:00 o'clock. The cast is unusually large and offers varied roles. Try-outs are open to everybody.

Alter Decision

A recent statement by the Playmakers listed "The Enchanted Ground," a new play of university life by Green as the next public presentation. The staff altered its decision this week in favor of the new drama because of its interesting form, different from anything previously written by Paul Green and unlike anything before attempted by the Playmakers.

The play will be done stylistically with music and will introduce a new note into the Playmakers work.

Complications

Green's new play centers around the dreamy, child-like daughter of a landlord farmer. Oscar Graham, the proud father, embittered by his unhappy relations with Lady Jane, a beautiful and pathetic woman, desires the marriage of his daughter to Colin Spence, an honest unimaginative young hired man.

Complicated situations arise when Lora Graham, the daughter, fails to show any interest in the proposed marriage.

Numerous other characters serve only to complicate matters further.

DI WILL DISCUSS ORGANIZED LABOR

Income and Inheritance Taxes And Revision of Class Schedule Are Other Questions.

One of the three bills to be discussed tonight at the meeting of the Dialectic senate at 7:15 o'clock in New West is: Resolved, that a strong industrial union organized on a national basis can not be successful in the United States.

The subject was debated by the University and the Oxford debating teams last week.

Tax Bill

Other bills are: Resolved, that an increase in the graduated income tax is more just than the present inheritance tax; and Resolved, that the present class schedule should be changed to begin at 9:00 o'clock, thereby abolishing freshman assembly and allowing the call meetings at 8:30 o'clock.

Announcement of the queries of the Mary D. Wright and the freshman Di-Phi debates will be made at this meeting.

There will be a number of committee reports on the swimming pool bill, the inter-society debate, initiation, and finances.

Among the neophytes who will be initiated at this meeting are: George Rhoades, Don Wetherbee, Bill Wakeley, Paul Best, Henry Haywood, Frank McCarther, Hubert Haywood, and Bill Macdonald. Other men who have been accepted are requested to attend.

Mrs. Russell to Speak At Bookshop Today

Edna St. Vincent Millay's Poetry To Be Read at 4:30 O'clock.

A discussion of selections from Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Wine from these Grapes" will be the feature of the Bull' Head lecture program in the bookshop at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Mrs. H. K. Russell, wife of Dr. H. K. Russell of the English department, will conduct the discussion, reading the selected pieces herself.

"Wine from these Grapes," Miss Millay's latest book of verse, was published this month and was added to the Bull's Head bookshelves only last week.

ERICSON BLAMES SYSTEM FOR WAR

Capitalists Will Continue to Sponsor War for Profits, He Tells Cabinets.

Stating that the nations of the world must first solve their seemingly impossible internal and domestic maladjustments before international peace can be viewed as probable or imminent, Professor E. E. Ericson last night continued the Y. M. C. A. discussion program with a talk on "Is Socialism a Cure for War?"

Ericson held that under the present capitalistic, or, as he preferred to call it, "industrial" system, was was inevitable regardless of what the masses think. "The capitalists," he explained, "will decide that for you, and inevitably will condone war because it is profitable for them to do so."

Market Problem

Another reason that under capitalism was is inevitable is that the system must look for new markets when the problem arises of "what to do with our output." The quarrel over who shall patronize the different nations in their sales campaign causes international animosity.

The problem under capitalism, then, is, Dr. Ericson said, that "workers are not able to buy back what they make." This internal inability he went on, leads directly to socialism.

The result of the situation is that the nations cannot get a decent co-operative international agreement because the internal forces tend to jeopardize any such co-operation.

"We need some sort of co-operative society," Dr. Ericson warned, "or we'll all go down together."

Then, too, he pointed out, the policies of Hitler and Mussolini to impress the theory of "racial superiority" upon their people is a force making international co-operation virtually impossible. Thus, he concluded, the problem is really rooted in the human character.

Debate Tryouts

Tryouts for the debate squad which will meet the University of Georgia on November 15 will be conducted in 209 Graham Memorial tonight at 8:00 o'clock.

The query of the debate is: Resolved, that peace is impossible under capitalism. The North Carolina team will support the negative.

CO-OP ELECTIONS TO BE TOMORROW

Pool, Williamson, Townsend, and Roberts Are Candidates for Board of Directors.

The election of two new members to the board of directors of the Student Co-operative association will be held in the Co-op clothing store tomorrow between the hours of 9:00 and 5:00 o'clock.

Four men have been nominated by the nominating committee: Jack Pool, Harry Williamson, Nat Townsend, and Jimmy Rogers. A membership card in either the cleaners or the clothiers will allow the owners to cast one vote. A membership in both gives one the right to vote twice.

Additional Nominees

In case any member wants to name another nominee for the board he will write the name of the nominee on his ballot.

Both the cleaners and the clothing store are operated under the supervision of the board of directors, composed of five members who determine the policies of the two concerns.

Contrary to a rumor that has been going the rounds, a member of the board does not draw a salary, although a salary has been suggested for the position.

Tapping Postponed

The annual tapping of Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity, originally scheduled for tonight, has been indefinitely postponed, it was announced yesterday by Dr. A. L. White of the chemical engineering department.

Walter Hampden's Tour Indicates Revival Of Old Stage Tradition

Walter Hampden, one of the foremost actors of the American stage, is expected to draw many students and residents of Chapel Hill who are lovers of the legitimate theatre to his performance of Shakespeare's "Macbeth" on the stage of the Carolina theatre in Durham Thursday night at 8:15 o'clock. Hampden, famed for his portrayal of Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" as well as his many Shakespearean characterizations, will play "Hamlet" in Raleigh tomorrow night and "Richelieu" in Greensboro Friday. Many critics have acclaimed "Macbeth" as his finest tragic portrayal.

Walter Hampden and the members of his permanent acting company are practically alone in the clarity of speech, the beauty of diction, the finer grace of stage deportment, the breath of technique and the commanding presence which are essential in doing justice to the majestic verse of Shakespeare, and in recreating the complex characters that dominate his plays.

"Macbeth" is seldom played on the modern stage despite its power and fascination as a drama, because they are few actors who can hold up under the strain of its physical and psychological demands. It has been said that no actor ever failed as Hamlet, and while this may not necessarily be strictly true, it is certain that a great many have failed as "Macbeth." Hampden says that the part of Macbeth holds but one rival in difficulties for the actor, Othello, but of the two he considers Macbeth the more exacting.

The part of Lady Macbeth, perhaps the most powerful and compelling woman in Shakespeare, has also had an interesting stage history. Mrs. Siddons and Charlotte Cushman have both made dramatic history in the part which is now played by Mabel Moore, an actress in the classic tradition who has played all of the great Shakespearean heroines in England as well as America.

Broadway's increasing tendency to "go hill-billy," following the success of Katherine Cornell's tour in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" last year, brings rich gifts from the dramatic world to the provinces. Not the least of these is the Walter Hampden "Macbeth" in Durham Thursday night.

DEMOCRATS VOTE TODAY CONFIDENT OF HUGE VICTORY

Record Off-Year Vote Expected; Seven Campaign Speeches Made Yesterday in State.

STATE OFFICIALS SPEAK

Washington, Nov. 5.—(UP)—The Democrats will emerge from the swamp of balloting in tomorrow's election still in control of both houses of Congress, last minute reports indicated tonight.

Every sign pointed towards a vote which will be the heaviest in years for an "off-year" election.

Estimates placed the number of voters registered throughout the nation at a point between 40 and 45 million.

Expect "Off-Year" Count

Party leaders, however, will be satisfied if the usual "off-year" election count—approximately 33 million—is reached.

The Democratic party machine threw its support behind Senator Hiram Johnson, California Republican, in his fight for re-election.

Those who are accustomed to forecast the future by the past have admitted that tomorrow's election will probably violate the political axiom that a party newly come to power in the presidency and in Congress loses its majority in the House in the election two years later.

Raleigh, State Democratic Headquarters, Nov. 5.—(UP)—On the eve of the election, headquarters officials expressed their confidence that a great outpouring of Democrats will cast a vote proportionately as large as that two years ago—heavier than any "off-year" vote for a long time.

Statements by Chairman J. Wallace Winborne, Mrs. C. W. Tillett, Jr., vice-chairman, and Secretary Cutler Moore evinced satisfaction and confidence in a big victory.

Final Speeches

Governor Ehringhaus delivered an address in Statesville tonight, whereas the other six campaign speeches were made this afternoon.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds spoke at Yadkinville, Clyde R. Hoey at Winston-Salem, Walter Lambeth at Cooloomee, Josiah W. Bailey at Charlotte, Thomas Johnson at Columbus, and Harold Cooley at Raleigh.

INSTITUTE HEADS WILL MEET AT "Y"

Human Relations Institute Committees to Meet Tomorrow.

Charles Aycock Poe, new head of the Human Relations Institute, announced yesterday that a joint meeting of all committees would occur tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The committees, which will be subject to reorganization at tomorrow night's meeting, will probably include 20 representatives from the University faculty and the student body.

The meeting will offer the first opportunity to the new chairman to make plans for the Institute which will meet at the University April 7-12, 1935. Poe is taking over the duties of chairman succeeding Simmons Patterson, who resigned several weeks ago.

Result of Moving Day

Arguments in favor of moving the Chapel Hill engineering school to Raleigh generally take on a tit-for-tat aspect in that protagonists say, in effect, "Now that we've consolidated culture at the University, let's move all technical training to the Raleigh branch. That's only fair, isn't it?" On the contrary, it is not in the least fair to those students who will seek the Greater University for their training in engineering.

"Two fairly distinct types of technical education are proposed for the new University," says the report of the survey committee on consolidation. "One prepares for the professional branches of engineering and the other for technical and executive work in specific industries. The two have elements in common and can work to advantage side by side, but the Survey Committee feels that they should be encouraged to develop along different lines."

Now, while the "technical and executive work in specific industries" is already concentrated at Raleigh in the form of training in textile, ceramics, etc., the admittedly better engineering school is already in operation here. Only in Chapel Hill do we have competent graduate training, and the school of sanitary engineering here is generally recognized as one of the best in the world. The recommendation of the survey committee that the two types of training in technical fields be allowed to proceed along different lines, can be taken for what it is—the advice of three of the nation's foremost educators, George A. Works, Frank L. McVey, and Guy S. Ford, who have made a careful study of the needs of consolidation.

Removal of the school of engineering to Raleigh would result in decentralizing the process of consolidation, which would nullify the very purpose for which it has been undertaken. It is the opinion of the survey committee that State College's present facilities for modern engineering training are "inadequate," and any such step would result in weakening the technical fields at the Greater University.

There is no practical basis for the argument in favor of moving professional engineering training to Raleigh. The reason that it has been advanced, however, shows the danger in insisting on the type of reasoning that has produced it, a sort of pulling for the home town or home college. Unfortunately, this can work great harm to the cause of the Greater University. We feel sure that, as soon as the facts become known, no champion of education can refuse to admit that engineering should remain in Chapel Hill.

We Want Art For Its Sake

Last week a young Elizabeth City Negro was taken to task for composing the following lyric:

"Outlaw feeds me,
Jesus leads me,
I ain't gonna work no more."

The fact that A. H. Outlaw, country relief administrator, was the person thus celebrated, was sufficient for a prompt rebuke, whereupon the Negro professed exquisite remorse, and promised to abstain from verse-making in the future.

Now, the cautious reader will perceive at once that there is nothing epoch-making about this ditty. As folk-music, however, it claims attention; had this young bard been allowed to continue, he might have produced something worthy of a P. Laurence Dunbar or a Nathaniel R. Dett.

In this connection, we notice that Congress' 20-ton statue of Washington in the togs of a careless Roman Senator, with torso bare (which created a mild sensation when it was unveiled in 1841, and has been safely stowed away from public scrutiny under the desk of the Speaker of the House of Representatives ever since), has found a new resting place in the Smithsonian Institute, "where nobody ever goes anyway," as our correspondent blandly informs us.

Is it any wonder, with this bigoted sort of attitude on the part of the public, that Art is under a terrific handicap? History shows that the Father of His Country was made as other men; Lord Bolingbroke tells us that, at Monmouth, he "swore so charmingly that the leaves fell from the trees." Then why hide this fact? Are we going to adopt an "officially-the-Queen-of-Spain-has-no-legs" policy?

You Vote!

Freshmen will do a little nominating this morning, good, clean, democratic nominating like we did our first year. We hope the fellows up above fixed things properly last night so that there won't be any hiches such as the best man being unfortunately nominated and getting the fool election.

Of course, we don't doubt that nice, wholesome freshmen will be the political choices. We hope one is a big football man because then he will get more votes and nobody will get all upset like everyone seems to do in these hectic close elections.

Riding on Gold Tires

Every time we settle back in the Lizzie and go out for a little Sunday afternoon spin "checking the drag," we are, while passing the Sabbath in the easiest possible way, aiding in the support of an industry upon which one-fourth of the wholesale, retail, and service establishments in this state are dependent.

It sounds unbelievable, but the National Highway Users conference says it's right. Furthermore, the automotive and petroleum trades give jobs and wages to one out of every five North Carolina workers engaged in wholesale, retail, and service trades.

We know from personal experience how many of our friends who even after graduating from college, become filling-station operators, truck drivers, or lubrication experts. But they're not so bad off; in proportion to the total volume of sales by all trades, the trades catering to highway transportation provided more jobs and a higher standard of wages, accounting for 20 per cent of jobs and 22.6 per cent of payrolls, as compared with 17.1 per cent of sales.

Quoting the director of the N. H. U. conference: "Except for the continued needs of the motoring public, every fourth business house or service establishment in North Carolina would close; every fifth person employed in the wholesale, retail or service trades would lose his job; and more than one-fifth of the business payroll of the state would dry up."

Together We Stand . . .

Mill workers who only a few weeks ago were engaged in a nation wide textile strike have taken the initiative in seeking a solution to the industries' problems by proposing that they co-operate with management in efforts to develop new textile markets for the benefit of both employer and worker. F. J. Gorman, who directed the September general strike of the United Textile Workers, is advocating conferences between employers' organizations and labor representatives looking toward the improvement of the textile industry.

The keynote of the proposed plan is co-operation. The underlying cause of the recent strike was the fact that the mills were producing a great deal more cloth than the market was consuming. The manufacturers, overstocked, cut production and the laborers, objecting to the loss of jobs, struck. If a joint employer-laborer union can co-operate successfully, without the jealousy and intrigues so prevalent in the past, the basic causes of strikes may be reached, and to a great extent removed.

"Y" PLANS TALKS ON HONOR SYSTEM

Freshman Cabinet Discusses Plan for Talks Before Tests.

A plan for honor system talks to be given in classes was discussed at the Freshman Friendship council last night.

Councilmen, after permission has been given by their professors, will lead discussions on the system before a class, previous to the next quiz. Representatives will meet with H. F. Comer, Y. M. C. A. secretary, who will talk over the manner of procedure.

A full discussion of the honor plan will be conducted at the next meeting under the leadership of several prominent campus men in order that a whole knowledge of it may be had by all.

It was also announced that student directories will be distributed by the councilmen today. Members will aid in the general Red Cross membership drive next week. The meeting was opened with a short devotional exercise.

Tar Heel Topics

"News from Chapel Hill" Number Sent to Parents.

Copies of the "News From Chapel Hill" number of Tar Heel Topics were mailed yesterday from Dean F. F. Bradshaw's office to 2,700 parents of Carolina students, to the faculty, and to the trustees.

Tar Heel Topics is published eight times a year and sent to prospective students. J. Maryon Saunders is the editor. The "News From Chapel Hill" number comes out three times a year under the editorship of Dean Bradshaw, dean of students.

A general summary of the most important events of this quarter is contained in the four-page paper.

Woman's Glee Club

Organization Will Have First Meeting Tomorrow.

The University Woman's Glee club will have its first meeting at 5:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Hill Music hall.

H. Grady Miller urges that all girls interested in the glee club be present to plan for the year's work. Anyone unable to attend the meeting should communicate with Miller or Margaret McCauley, to make possible an estimate of the club's probable membership.

FRENCH CLUB TO GIVE PLAY IN RALEIGH FRIDAY

The French club is to present the play "Topaze" at the state teachers' meeting in Raleigh Friday afternoon. This play was presented here at the University last spring.

The general meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Episcopal parish house will be a rehearsal of the play. Rehearsals will continue throughout the week.

$300 for Murderer

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—(UP)—The office of Governor Ehringhaus announced today that the state is offering a $100 reward for the apprehension of the unknown party who brutally murdered George E. Spruill last July 23 at Rocky Mount.

This reward will supplement the $200 reward offered by Nash county and will be effective for six months.

Here It Comes

Editor Joe Sugarman has threatened that the first issue of his Carolina Magazine will make its appearance on the campus tomorrow. So what?

FRESHMEN ADVISED TO POLISH SPEECH

House Tells Men to Learn Art Of Self-Expression.

"Look well to your speech," said Dean of Administration R. B. House to freshman assembly yesterday, "and you will acquire one of the most valuable trainings that a college man can possibly get.

"Don't stop to think about grammar rules before each sentence, but learn to speak well through practice.

"Here at the University you will have opportunities in various councils and meetings to express. Be sure that when you rise to speak you do not repeat what some one else has already said, but that you contribute something to the discussion.

"Writing makes an accurate man," he said, "speaking makes a ready man. Lack of talking ability may cause you to lose a contract, sale, or some other important transaction.

"The art of making acquaintances is valuable. Learn to introduce yourself and not to do all the talking. Listen more than you speak, and you will always learn something."

Chapel Hill Democrats Certain of Victory

Voting Takes Place Today at Chapel Hill High School.

Chapel Hill Democrats were confident of victory on the eve of today's balloting for the selection of state and county officers.

S. W. Andrews, Democratic leader, expressed the opinion that the Democrats could not lose unless too many became overconfident and did not go to the polls.

Ballot boxes will be located in the little Tin Can at Chapel Hill high school.

L. J. Phipps has issued a call for volunteers to count votes after the polls close at 5:06 o'clock. He expects to have finished the count within an hour.

HARLAND MAKES TOUR

Dr. J. P. Harland, professor the archaeology, left yesterday on a lecture tour which will last until Friday of this week.

He will speak for the Archaeological Institute of America at Johns Hopkins University on "Prehistoric Greece." At Richmond College in Richmond, Randolph-Macon College at Lynchburg, and at Roanoke College he will speak on "Archaeological Excavations."

Newman Club

Dr. Horace Williams Led the discussion on the subject, "St. Augustine," at a meeting of the Newman club last night in Graham Memorial.

Harriers Run Perfect Race With VMI To Win, 15-48

McRae Outclasses Field To Cop Easy First; Waldrop Second.

Haywood, Conte Tie for Third; Gammon Is Fourth.

Lexington, Va. Nov. 5.—(UP)—The University of North Carolina's well-balanced cross country team turned in a perfect score here today in outrunning the V. M. I. Cadets, 15-48.

Ed McRae, Tar Heel ace, completely outclassed the field of runners and breezed into the Number 1 position with the time of 23:55 minutes for the four and three-tenths mile course.

The first Virginia man to finish was Captain Moore who closely followed the fifth Carolinian.

Other Tar Heels

Ed Waldrop placed second in the race, which was run over quite a difficult course. Fab Haywood and Louis Conte tied for third and Graham Gammon broke the tape in fifth position.

Their win today gave the Tar Heels a perfect score for their week-end's work here in Lexington. They beat Washington and Lee Saturday, 20-43, but Dunaj of the Generals captured the first place. The Ranson runners finished in order as follows: McRae, Waldrop, Haywood, Conte, Curlee, Bower, and Allen.

WILLIS-HENDERSON ELIMINATE SEEDED PAIR IN DOUBLES

Defeat Jones and Whitaker in Straight Sets and Enter Semi-Final Round.

TOURNEY MOVES SLOWLY

The doubles tourney, which has been stalled for quite some time, again got under way and moved one notch closer to completion yesterday when Archie Henderson and Ricky Willis swept the fourth-seeded pair right out of the tourney.

Larry Jones and Myers Whitaker were the victims, and although they gave all they had, their die-hard spirit was not sufficient to stem the tide of the powerful combination on the other side of the net, and they went under in straight sets.

Long First Set

The first set see-sawed into extra games before Willis and Henderson were able to tuck it away. That hard fought set was the turning point of the battle and the victors ran through the next set with ease and scored at 6-2 for a straight set victory and a berth in the semi-finals. Willis and Henderson were considered the finest of the unseeded pairs and they immediately set about proving their right to a higher ranking with this sparkling victory over a seeded team.

It had been rumored beforehand that this combination would probable be the dark horse of the tourney. However, their next match, if the favorites run true to form, will run them head-on into the strongest doubles combination on the courts in the persons of Eddy De Gray and Wally Levitan.

The only other match on the board that promises action is the Harris-Abels affair with Bartelman and Clover. The seeded pair of Harvey Harris and Byron Abels is considered a heavy favorite but many a good shot lies in the racquets of their opponents and an interesting contest looms. The tournament is still being slowed by uncompleted early matches and the contestents are urged to finish early.

CHI PSI REMAINS UNBEATEN IN TAG FOOTBALL RANKS

Zeta Psi and St. Anthony Also Get Mural Wins; Three Games Set for Today.

CHANGES IN SCHEDULE

The opening session of the fifth week in the intramural tag football competition played yesterday afternoon saw Zeta Psi beating D. K. E., 8-0, Chi Psi downing Phi Alpha, 24-2, and St. Anthony getting an 8-6 first down win over Lambda Chi Alpha.

The Chi Psi team chalked up its fourth successive victory in as many starts as it easily humbled the K. A.'s, leading 18-2 at half time, and outgaining the losers ten to two in first downs.

Wilday accounted for two of the six-pointers as he took a set of passes, adding to one a 30-yard jaunt. Hagey went over after taking a forward from Leo Manley, and the latter second the remaining touchdown on a beautiful run.

Zeta Psi Wins

With Bill Carr's passing again superb the Zeta Psi eleven—though it actually numbered only ten—repulsed the ever potent D. K. E. team, 8-2, in a hard fought contest. The winners held a 6-0 advantage at intermission.

Early in the game one of Carr's aerials found its mark in the arms of Ed Clark, who carried the pigskin to the 10-yard marker. On the next play another pass from Carr to Clark resulted in the lone touchdown of the game. The additional two points came midway in the final setto when Laxton nabbed an opposing back behind the goal. Both lines played heads-up ball.

Lambda Chi Alpha and St. Anthony Hall put on a dogged fight throughout the forty minutes of play to finish in a scoreless tie, with the latter being awarded the game via the first down ruling. Both teams displayed fine defensive work.

Several important changes were made in the schedule for today and the rest of the week, Intramural Director Herman

FENCING PRACTICE IS HELD IN TIN CAN

Manager Tobey Meets with Large Squad of New Men And Old Varsity.

Manager Brad Tobey held the initial practice for the swordsmen at 4:00 o'clock yesterday in the Tin Can.

Practice will be held again tomorrow at the same time. All men who did not join the squad, and are desirous of doing so, are invited to attend the next meeting.

WILDCAT THREATS

On the left is Davidson's Captain Johnny Mackorell, numerous-threat ace. He punts, passes, hits the line, runs in broken field, blocks, tackles, and calls signals—all in superb style. The Hickory Haunt is all-state and received honorable mention on all-American. On the spot in every game, he still gets loose and chalks up many a six-pointer.

On the right is Midget Verble, petit halfback who has been suffering from injuries all season. This Concord fellow is remembered as being the only Wildcat who could gain to any extent over Carolina last year. This year against The Citadel, he beautifully led the interference for one of the other backs on a long jaunt resulting in a touchdown.

Tar Babies Start Week Of Work In Prep For Clemson Yearlings

After Week-end of Rest, Jamesmen Take Stiff Workout; Team in Good Shape.

MEET DUKE FROSH NEXT

Coach Snavely Helps James with First Year Men; Short Scrimmage Is Held.

The Tar Babies' week-end of rest evidently did not hinder their sprightliness of last week, for they immediately picked up where they left off, and romped eagerly through a hard drill yesterday afternoon, in preparation for their combat with Clemson on Monday, November 12, at Asheville, N. C.

If the play of the yearlings yesterday was any criterion by which to judge their possibilities in the forthcoming struggle, then the Clemson Tiger Cubs will have to play football par excellent if they wish to stop the much improved Jamesmen.

Still Chance in Big Five

Due to the unexpected upset of the State frosh at the hands of the Duke Blue Imps, the Tar Babies are well aware of the chance they stand of tying the state race in a knot when they battle Duke. Realizing the toughness of that future assignment they have plunged into the practice scrimmages with a renewed vigor in an effort to reach their peak for the important games to come.

Coach Snavely was down on the field yesterday, aiding the boys in their maneuvers and teaching them some new tricks to mix with the old ones. Snavely gave quite a few helpful hints to numerous players, who immediately showed improvement. Ed Juliper especially capitalized on the advice of the veteran

Tar Baby Harriers Meet Wildkittens

The freshman cross country men will meet their first opposition of the season this Saturday when they journey to Davidson to meet the Wildkittens.

The meet with Duke, previously scheduled for today or tomorrow, has been postponed until next week.

The Tar Baby runners have come along quite well to date and have been working hard to get into proper condition. The leading harriers include: Rivers, Davison, Rowley, Bronitsky, Rabb, D'Ascensio, Braxton, Gove, Eichorn, Darden, Chaitken, and White.

Challengers Win Ladder Battles In Frosh Division

Bloom, Yeomans, Fast Advance In Rankings; Willis Challenges Levitan.

Besides the slow moving doubles tourney, the tennis courts are the scene of frequent ladder struggles for positions on the varsity and freshman teams, which were inaugurated late last week and promise to continue at a steady rate.

Many challenges have already been posted and to date the surprising factor has been the consistent victories for the challenger over the defender.

Frosh Challenges

All the completed contests are in the freshman group and the first saw the toppling of Van Hecke from his position of tenth. He was moved down at the hands of Bloom in an easy 6-3, 6-1 victory, and is now on the outside looking in.

Johnny Yeomans continued the slaughter, when he moved into seventh position with a three-set victory over Stewart Parker, after dropping the opening set. Yesterday, Seymore Fast, formerly eighth, stepped out and clearly outplayed Berge 6-3, 6-3 to gain possession of the sixth rung. On the strength of

Snavely Pleased With Tar Heels; Entire Squad Rests Yesterday

CAROLINA STARTS DRIVE FOR STATE FOOTBALL TITLE

Tar Heels Meet Davidson Away This Week-end and Return Home for Duke Battle.

WILDCATS WILL BE TOUGH

After their trek to Georgia resulting in their walloping the Georgia Tech Golden Tornado, the Tar Heels will remain on Old North State soil for several weeks waging battles with Davidson and Duke for the championship of the Big Five.

The Tar Heels go to Davidson for their annual battle with the Wildcats Saturday. The Carolina-Duke classic, which drew close to 30,000 people last year, will be played in Kenan stadium the following Saturday.

Carolina and Duke are the only two elevens remaining undefeated in Big Five play, and the Tar Heels are seen as the only team with a chance to depose the Blue Devils of the crown they won in 1933.

Davidson Looms Big

Coach Carl Snavely is confronted with the difficult problem of keying the Tar Heels up for the tough game they can expect from Davidson while looking ahead to their final home game with Wallace Wade's mighties.

It is not likely that the Tar Heels, who have good reason to appreciate the strength and fighting qualities of Wildcat elevens from other years, will make the mistake of taking Davidson lightly.

Carolina barely beat the Presbyterians last year, 6-0, and Johnny Mackorell, their triple-threat and ace back, was laid up with injuries that day.

Aerial Attack Dangerous

The scintillating aerial attack which Mackorell and George Wingfield have been engineering this year has given some of the strongest teams, including Duke's mighties, great difficulty.

With Hutchens and Yarborough, they also present a hard running attack. Although State beat them 7-0 and only tied Carolina 7-7, the experts say State was a much better team against Davidson than it was against Carolina.

For the next two weeks the Tar Heels will devote their entire attention to settling up their home affairs after which they will go to Virginia to close the season with their annual Thanksgiving classic with the Cavaliers.

Fine Blocking Features Carolina Play; Barclay Plays His Best Game.

WORK HARD FOR DAVIDSON

No Injuries on Squad; Team to Be Ready for Scrapping Wildcat Eleven.

The Tar Heel gridsters got a holiday yesterday afternoon as a reward for their brilliant playing against Georgia Tech Saturday. It was the first "grat" Professor Snavely has given the boys since the season began.

"Well, I hope they don't get too cocky," was Coach Snavely's comment when interviewed by a sports writer of the DAILY TAR HEEL last night.

When asked what he thought about the decisive 26-0 score run up against the Yellow Jackets, the Carolina mentor chuckled, "It would be nice to have some of that figure to add to our score when we play Duke."

Fine Blocking

Coach Snavely attributed the victory to the fact that "Our boys just got in there and did some fine blocking as any good football team ought to do."

The Carolina coach was highly pleased with the performance of the Tar Heel forward wall. "Our linemen tackled so hard that it looked as if they would knock those Tech backs loose from their shoes." Coach Snavely commented.

When asked about individual stars of the game, the Tar Heel mentor replied, "Barclay played his best game of the season and Montgomery did a nice job at Shaffer's position; however, the entire team played good football."

The Tar Heels will journey to Davidson this week-end where they will encounter Big Five competition as they take on the Davidson College Wildcats.

The Snavely aggregation emerged intact from the Georgia Tech contest; so the same starting lineup will probably get the first call against the Wildcats.

Co-ed Net Tourney

The co-ed tennis tournament will get underway today. The contest is to be run off in the form of a ladder tournament.

The names of the girls entered in the tourney has been posted in Spencer hall along with the list of rules under which the matches will be played.

NEW UNIVERSITY BULLETIN ISSUED

University Facts, Edited by Grisette, Is Organ of Alumni Loyalty Fund.

A new bi-monthly publication, University Facts, "a chronicle of the problems and progress of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill," appeared yesterday for the first time.

University Facts, published by the Alumni Loyalty fund council and edited by Felix A. Grisette, secretary-director of the fund, concerns itself with fiscal news of the University and of higher education in general.

It will be the official organ of the Loyalty fund council's program to stimulate gifts to the University from alumni and friends.

Gifts Decrease

According to the first issue of the new publication, the University received during the fiscal year 1933-34 gifts amounting to $67,989.59, a decrease of 22 per cent in gifts since 1932-33.

Foundations supplied $45,032.72 of the total last year. The largest single gift from friends and alumni was $7,500 given anonymously for use in reconstructing Person hall into an art museum. Other gifts for this same purpose brought the total up to $8,550.

ENGINEERS HEAR FARRAGHER TODAY

U. N. C., State, Duke A. S. M. E. Groups Meet in Raleigh.

Dr. P. V. Farragher, noted chemical engineer of the Aluminum Company of America in Pittsburgh, will address the state engineering societies at two section meetings tonight and tomorrow night.

This evening at 7:30 o'clock the A. S. M. E. chapters of the University, State and Duke will hear one of the talks at Raleigh. Refreshments will be served after the meeting. A special invitation was sent to the local society.

Tomorrow afternoon and night at Duke University, the local divisions of the A. I. E. E. will meet. Dr. Farragher will address the group in the morning while David Ovens, business manager of Ivey's Department store in Charlotte, will be presented at a banquet meeting in the evening.

ABERNATHY GETS NEW SCHOLARSHIP

First J. L. Graham Award Presented to Frank Abernethy.

The Joseph Lewis Graham Memorial Award, amounting to $400, has been awarded this year for the first time to Frank P. Abernathy.

The award is made annually and is given to a student expecting to major in commerce his senior year and evidencing scholarship, character, personality, and activity in school affairs and promise of efficient business leadership, which in the opinion of the teaching staff in the field of economics and commerce entitle him to special recognition.

mentor and began to bust through the line and smash more plays then he had done in the past.

Kelly Polinski shined in a new lateral pass play, getting off several lengthy runs in which he used his burning speed to advantage.

Ed Oliver took the ball on reverses off tackle and continually crashed through only to be stopped by the secondary after long gains. It was one of these runs which paved the way for the only touchdown of the day, putting the pigskin on the one yard line from which "Speedy" Henderson climaxed the concentrated drive of the first stringers by plunging over for the score.

The only casualities to date are Glenn Rice and Al Gaydos. Rice is in the infirmary with a fractured collar bone, while Doc McCurry reports that Gaydos, who has spent the past week on crutches, will in all probability be in condition for the Clemson encounter.

Meteorologists

Half the campus became amateur meteorologists last night when unusually high winds struck Chapel Hill at about 8:00 o'clock.

The winds died somewhat after 25 minutes, but left the temperature noticeably lowered. Leaves that were caught by the wind were seen to be blown in counter-clockwise circles.

Freshmen Nominate Officers For Class Election Tomorrow

Eleven Men Named For Four Positions

Bricklemyer, Mullis, and Read Are Proposed for Office Of President.

NOMINEES TO TALK TODAY

Freshman class officers were nominated yesterday in a chapel program with Francis Fairley, secretary of the student council, presiding over the meeting.

Men nominated to the four class offices are: for president, Gene Bricklemyer of Doylestown, Pa., named by Richard Heller of Charlotte; Clyde Mullis of Charlotte by Cranmer Henderson of Wilmington; and Nick Read of Montgomery, Ala., by Bill Hudson of Chapel Hill.

Vice-President

Vice-president nominees are George Graves of Charlotte, nominated by Bill Wilson of Erlanger; and Bud Wooten of Kinston by Claude Hobbs of Charlotte.

Nominated for secretary were Bob Ellison of Charlotte by Ramsay Potts of Memphis, Tenn.; and Joe Patterson of New Bern by Tom Burnette of Tarboro.

Named for treasurer are Bill Jordan of Fayetteville by D. P. Russ of Fayetteville; Paul Darden of Wilson by Crowell Little of Asheville; Ed Bynum of Goldsboro by Pete Heyward of Goldsboro; and Paul Dixon of Pittsfield, Mass.

Presented to Class

Nominations were made from the floor with an introductory talk by the nominator for his candidate for office. The nominee was then presented to the class.

Today the nominees will present their platforms in campaign speeches at Memorial hall during the regular chapel hour. Election for the offices will be held Thursday.

Paul Green to Read "Roll Sweet Chariot"

Famous Author Will Present His Own Play Sunday Night.

Paul Green, outstanding American playwright and an alumnus of the University, will read his own Negro symphony play entitled "Roll Sweet Chariot" Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre.

"Roll Sweet Chariot" was first produced in Boston last spring, later for a try-out production in Milwaukee, and for its world premiere in New York in September.

The drama, with its distinctive idea and music, brought the author a great deal of praise from several of the outstanding critics in this country. Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times wrote a lengthy article for his paper on the subject of Green's play.

The dramatic critic of the Theatre Arts Monthly also devoted a special article to "Roll Sweet Chariot" praising it as one of the few modern dramas to have the touch of real genius and greatness.

Paul Green has returned to Chapel Hill from New York, where the play opened, and is planning to spend a part of this winter here. Last year he spent much of his time in Hollywood preparing scenarios for movie producers.

'Y' WILL SPONSOR HOLIDAY PROGRAM

Orchestra and Glee Club Will Be Heard in Series of Thanksgiving Services.

Sponsored by the University Y.M.C.A., a new Thanksgiving-week program will be carried out this year, it was announced yesterday.

Beginning Monday of Thanksgiving week, the assembly periods will feature the University musical organizations, the Glee club and the orchestra.

The orchestra is tentatively scheduled to give its part of the program at the Monday chapel hour. Earl A. Slocum will direct the orchestra. He has not announced yet the type of selections that will be played.

Glee Club to Sing

The University Glee club, under the direction of H. Grady Miller, will present a series of songs at the assembly hour Tuesday.

The program will culminate in a Thanksgiving musical and devotional hour Tuesday night in Hill Music hall.

The new program will be a distinctive departure from the old Thanksgiving celebrations at the University. Formerly, the program was given only on Thanksgiving Day when most of the students are away.

TAR HEEL STAFF SEES FREE SHOW

E. C. Smith Entertains Journalists with Special Showing Of "Ready for Love."

E. Carrington Smith, manager of the local theatre, played host to the staff members of the DAILY TAR HEEL last night at a special showing of "Ready to Love," which is featured at the Carolina today.

Starred in this newspaper film are Richard Arlen and Ida Lupino, the famous English actress who made her debut in "Search for Beauty" and later appeared with Arlen in "Come On, Marines."

Heroine in Scandal

The beautiful heroine, while visiting her aunt in a small town, becomes the object of a scandal that sweeps the country. She pits her courage against the town's mob spirit, aided in her fight against a group of vigilantes led by a jealous woman by Arlen, young newspaper editor.

However, when the girl learns this, she decides to fight against him. There is a surprise twist to the story's development that culminates in a swift and dramatic climax.

Sharing honors with Arlen and Miss Lupino are Marjorie Rambeau, Esther Howard, Beulah Bondi, and Henry Travers. The film is an adaptation of the Roy Flannagan story, "The Whipping."

MAGAZINE OUT TODAY

The Carolina Magazine for November will be issued today.

Students living in dormitories may obtain copies at their dorm stores. Students living out in town are requested to call at the Magazine office in Graham Memorial tomorrow for their copies.

STUDENTS MEET TO CONSIDER WAR TOMORROW NIGHT

Both Militarists and Pacifists Are Scheduled to Speak On Program.

TO OPEN AT 8:00 O'CLOCK

The students' anti-war conference will convene tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock in Gerrard hall with both pacifistic and militaristic views included in presentations.

Included in the first session are scheduled talks by Dr. Elbert Russell of Duke University, Ex-commander Stevens of the American Legion, Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the history department, and the Rev. Fletcher of Raleigh.

Friday Speakers

Scheduled for Friday as speakers on Friday Dr. E. E. Ericson of the English department; Dr. Meno Spann, German department; Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine; Bill Levitt, founder of the conference; and Professor K. C. Frazer, history department.

The engagements of two of the speakers, Frazer and Stevens, are tentative but conference leaders believe that satisfactory arrangements can be completed in time for the program.

Conference delegates will decide at the close of the meeting tomorrow whether discussions of the entire program will be held.

Organized Last Week

The conference was organized at an arrangements committee meeting a week ago when representatives of campus organizations assembled and made Levitt permanent chairman. A praesidium to direct the preparations was also selected.

Delegations from Duke University and the Raleigh unit of the University of North Carolina are expected to be in attendance. All students are invited to attend and voting delegates will be present representing different groups.

PHI DISAPPROVES HUMOR MAGAZINE

Professor W. A. Olsen Acts as Efficiency Expert at Assembly Meeting.

The bill: Resolved, that every person convicted by the student council be given another chance, was defeated by a vote of 28-22 in the Phi assembly last night.

At the suggestion of Jim Mizelle, the Phi assembly, by unanimous resolution condemned the first copy of the Finjan as a humorous publication.

Olsen Speaks

Professor W. A. Olsen spoke briefly to the assembly on the purpose of the group.

"What is the purpose of the Phi assembly?" asked Professor Olsen as he began his series of remarks as "efficiency expert" at the session.

Olsen said that in his opinion the purpose of the group was to "match wit against wit, philosophy against philosophy."

"Too much parliamentary machinery tends to restrict and to make things formal," he said. "Too little parliamentary law makes self-expression impossible."

General Assembly To Yield Republicans But Ten Seats, Indicate First Returns; Early Votes Give Democrats Landslide

ONE-THIRD STATE BALLOT ALREADY POINTS TO TREND

Scotland County Gives Democrats 1,240 Votes and Republicans Only 193.

TYPICAL OF WHOLE STATE

Raleigh, Nov. 6.—(UP)— A tremendous approval of the Democratic administration and the New Deal was rolled up in North Carolina in today's elections.

Returns after 9:00 o'clock tonight from one-third of the 1,833 precincts in the state gave the Democratic candidates a majority of votes for virtually every office. The Republicans will be lucky to gain as many as ten seats of the 170 in the state's general assembly, it appeared from early unofficial counts.

Scotland County

Scotland county, giving the Democratic ticket 1,240 votes and the Republican only 93, was typical of the entire state.

In many state offices the Democrats were entirely unopposed.

In Durham county nine precincts out of 30 give the Democrats 1,025 votes, the Republicans 116. In Camden county three out of three precincts give the Democrats a vote of 610, the Republicans 268.

In Lee county three out of eleven precincts give the Democrats an average of 142 votes for each office, while the Republican average is 56 votes per office.

Rowan County

In Rowan county Congressman Robert L. Doughton, Democrat, received 2,610 votes compared to 1,560 cast for Joseph M. Prevette, Republican.

In Hoke county ten out of ten precincts give the Democrats 812 votes, the Republicans 40. In Tyrell county three out of seven precincts give the Democratic ticket 168 votes and the Republicans ten. In Gates county six out of seven precincts give the Democrats 249 votes to the Republicans' 21.

These returns are unofficial and incomplete; however, they show the general trend of the election throughout the state.

SENIOR MEETING DATE POSTPONED

Commencement Officers Will Be Chosen November 15.

The senior class meeting called for last night has been postponed until November 15 and will take place in Gerrard hall at assembly period.

At the meeting next week the budget will be acted upon and the class poet, prophet, historian, and testator will be elected.

Vernon Ward and Margaret McCauley have been nominated for poet; Lonnie Dill and Dick Weesner for historian; Pete Ivey and Charles Poe for testator; and Carl Thompson and Pat Gaskins for prophet. Other nominations may be made from the floor at the meeting.

Finjan Business Staff

The Finjan advertising and copy staff will meet at 2:00 o'clock today in the office of the publication in Graham Memorial.

Democrats Lead Vote Here by Large Odds

Party Leads 8-1 for Town And County Officers.

Democratic nominees for town and county offices led their Republican opponents by an eight to one majority, while the Democratic seekers of state offices led by a six to one majority in Chapel Hill township yesterday.

Out of 1,700 registered voters, 728 came to the polls and cast ballots. Twelve absentee ballots were also cast.

In the race for member of congress from the sixth congressional district, William B. Umstead (D) led B. C. Campbell (R) in the Chapel Hill township by a vote of 569 to 102.

State Officers

The vote for state officers was as follows: for chief justice of the supreme court, Walter P. Stacy (D) 602, A. A. Whitener (R) 95.

For associate justices of the supreme court, Michael Schenck

SENATE DEBATES LABOR UNION BILL

Di Also Considers Bill on Government Control of Basic Industries.

The Dialectic senate met last night in a heated discussion of two bills, the Mary D. Wright debate query and a bill concerning the effectiveness of labor unions.

Resolved, that a strong industrial union organized on a national basis can not be successful, was the subject of the measure.

Reports were made by chairmen of the Di-Phi debate, the dance, and the finances. Two new men, Senators Young and Mullen, were named on the Di-Phi debate committee.

Debate Topics Discussed

The query for the Mary D. Wright debate: Resolved, that the government should assume control of the basic industries, was discussed at great extent, the Di finally going on record as favoring the affirmative side of the query by a vote of 16 to 15.

The swimming pool committee reported that the group will present to freshman assembly the question of an added fee of 75 cents to the present fees of the University. President Graham has been approached by the group, but his opinion has not yet been received.

The bill on labor unions after several heated discussions was continued for the next meeting. Senator Rancke, originator of the bill, will have a special message for the Di concerning the bill next meeting.

New men taken into the Di senate were as follows: Marshall Bell, H. B. Haywood, David Diberman, Stephen McCarther, O. H. Page, Bill Macdonald, W. L. Tabb, Donald Wetherbee, Pete Williams, George Rhoades, Paul Best, Stephen Mazur, and Brainard Rorison. Several others were excused because of outside work. They will be initiated at a later date.

KANSAS RETURNS INDICATE REPEAL EDGING OUT DRYS

New Deal Vote Shown Eating Into Republican Stronghold Of Pennsylvania.

PROGRESSIVES ARE AHEAD

New York, Nov. 6.—(UP)—Kansas, bulwark of the dry forces for a period of 54 years, appeared definitely swinging from the prohibition banner in early returns tonight. One hundred and seventy-six precincts out of 2,691 in the state gave 5,387 votes for repeal of the Kansas prohibition amendment and 4,862 against.

New York, Nov. 6.—(UP)—Democratic leaders tonight hailed the first returns from the congressional election as a landslide in favor of the New Deal party. James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee said private advice made to him indicated a sweeping victory.

Early returns gathered by the United Press supported Farley's forecast but also indicated that the Democrats lost, as was expected, several seats in the House of Representatives. At the same time they were sure of cutting into Republican ranks in the Senate.

Pennsylvania Returns

Meager returns from Pennsylvania indicated that the Democrats had succeeded in shaving down a usually heavy Republican majority.

Milwaukee, Nov. 6.—(UP)—The Progressive party appeared

DRAMA TRYOUTS SCHEDULED TODAY

Competition for Parts in Green's New Play to Take Place At 4:00 O'clock.

Tryouts for the next Carolina Playmaker production, scheduled for presentation December 6, 7, and 8, will be held at the theatre this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock and again tonight at 7:00 o'clock.

All students are eligible for the tryouts. The play that has been selected by the Playmaker staff is a new drama by Paul Green. The author has not yet given a title to the play but yesterday he was considering "The Honeycomb," "Dove in the East," and "Shroud Me Down."

Special Music

The play is highly dramatic and poetic and will feature special music which the author is now writing. The Carolina concert orchestra under the direction of Earl A. Slocum will play for the production.

The play will use an unusual stage setting, so arranged that several rooms in the same building will be shown at the same time. Action in this cross section will take place simultaneously.

Professor Koch, director of the Playmakers, announced that one of the characters needed in the play should be able to play the accordian. He is anxious to locate a suitable player for this part.

PARAGRAPHICS

What's in a name? And if so, is Chapel Hill journalism to be called funereal on account of Loius Graves and Oscar Coffin?

This co-ed tennis "ladder tournament" sounds all rung to us.

And the tersest account of California's election turned out to be, The more the Merriam.

One of Three Ways

Our mention in these columns, in connection with the publication statements for the past year, of the need for a re-allocation of student publication fees requires considerable amplification if the DAILY TAR HEEL's position on the matter is to be clear.

The policy of the Publications Union board during the past year is to be both praised and criticized. The board deserves commendation for its sincere attempt to pare down its surplus by giving reduction in junior-senior Yackety Yack representation space and liberal discounts for prompt payment of other space. Right here and now it had best be said that the DAILY TAR HEEL is in no wise carping about the fabulous "surplus" which has been made the issue of so many campaigns, or being so brash as to advocate a wholesale dispensation of what surplus there is among the student body. The surplus which the publications have built up is a healthy index to their soundness. If use must be made of it, and we believe that it should, that use must proceed in a direction beneficial both to the students and to the publications. Hitherto the latter have not been taken fully into account.

There are two channels into which publications profits can be turned. They can be diverted to the interests of the students either directly—by a reduction of student fees—or indirectly—by pursuing the same policy that the board did last year There is a third course open, however, which we believe to be the best for both the students and their publications. Under the system employed last year, the money-making publication bears the brunt of the loss of another that may have been badly managed, for instance. This third course would be to turn the profits of publications back into the publications themselves, maintaining, however, a reasonable surplus against unforeseen contingencies. This would be to the students' benefit in that better publications could be published on this campus.

It cannot be denied that the Publications Union board did increase the budgets of the publications to correspond, roughly, with the amount "returned" to the students. But under no circumstances should the publications as a whole sustain a loss because of space reductions or discounts which are supposedly to the students' benefit indirectly, but which, if carried to a logical conclusion, would result in cheapening the character of Carolina's publications. If possible, each publication should be put on a basis of self-sufficiency, even if it entails a slight increase in fees, which are more reasonable on this campus than on nearly any other in the United States. Resultant profits should then be returned to the publications.

Both Sides

At the outset of preparation for the students' anti-war conference which will begin tomorrow night, there were many representative students whose interest in the conference was only lukewarm because they were afraid of the "radicalness" of any move purported to hit at the question of war from all angles. They shrank from the thoughts of participating in a conference with anyone who had ideas socialistic in nature.

Heywood Broun would have a lot to say if he were to visit this campus. Says Mr. Broun:

"Every man ought to be a radical at some period in his life. College is the best place to start. In most countries of the world the student bodies are sensitive to all the new thought whether it be political, economic, or philosophic. But here intense effort has been made toward standardization. . . . They have become almost private property and not only the composition of the faculty but the doctrine to be set forth is subject to the veto of some absentee lord who has eased his conscience with a generous contribution. . . .

"My own impression is that many young faculty members seem radical only in comparison to the university dean or president. It is inevitable that the period between 18 and 22 should be one of inquiry and even skepticism. Progress must dry up if every generation follows sedulously in the footsteps of those who have gone before.

". . . The thing which threatens education is the forced drying up of the streams of thought. The rich man who is effect buys the university and says "Now you teach the things that I believe" is the real rebel and traitor to the spirit of learning."

While we are not in the position of subservience to a "rich landlord," we are nevertheless loath, in the face of tradition that is mis-nomered "liberalism," to stray from the parochial paths of strictly orthodox investigation. It is the job of every scholar to acquaint himself with every potential point of view.

While radicalism can be destructive to college campuses by becoming rampant and disintegrating in its attacks, its viewpoints are to be cherished as providing the opportunity for forming the opinions of problems, the solving of which tomorrow will rest upon the convictions which are established by the generation of today.

Now the Girls Sing

The advent of a woman's glee club to this campus comes as welcome news not only to co-eds interested in this activity but also to the many transfers who have missed this most venerated and respected institution.

All girls interested in music will find an opportunity to express themselves in this way; be it singing for the love of it, for voice improvement, for learning new music, or merely for making new friends and meeting once a week in a new atmosphere.

Under H. Grady Miller, the group will be organized into a regular glee club, sometimes meeting in collaboration with the men's club. It opens a new field for co-ed participation to add to the many innovations which have sprung up on this campus as opportunities for expression on the part of the co-eds.

These People Who Talk

Attending the Southern Students Conference the past week in Memphis, Tennessee, was a delegate who evidently possessed very little respect for her school. This student, engaged at present in graduate work at the University of Mississippi, one Miss Lucy Luckey, openly made a statement before the whole convention to the effect that the moral standards at that university were of a decrepit nature.

This open confession seems most uncalled for, inasmuch as some reporter who happened to be present and heard her denouncing words grabbed the stuff along with a picture of the young lady. Friday morning the whole thing was plastered across the front pages of the leading southern newspapers. Now, although the "boysh 'n' gurlsh" down in ole Miss are probably no more corrupt than the average college today, parents everywhere will become skeptical about sending their offspring to such a place of devastation.

What if the morals, table manners, and personal habits are all rotten down in the Delta State? Does that necessitate telling the world about it? Whatever the conditions are, broadcasting the facts does anything but ameliorate them. The conference, Miss Luckey, and all concerned would have been much better off had the co-ed's words never been uttered. Instead of telling the group about the troubles at home, she would have done well to institute a drive on the school's campus in an effort to wipe out the undesirable evils. Surely her efforts would have been more efficient in gaining her point, and the world at large would not have had occasion to look at Mississippi University with any other than approving eyes.

Judgeships

The following Democratic candidates for judgeships of the superior courts of the third, fourth, seventh, 11th, 13th, 15th, 19th, and 20th districts, respectively, were unopposed on the ballot yesterday: R. Hunt Parker, Clawson L. Williams, W. C. Harris, John H. Clement, F. Donald Phillips, John M. Oglesby, Pender A. McElroy, Felix E. Alley.

For judgeships of the 17th and 18th districts, respectively, J. A. Rousseau (D) recorded 552 votes to 101 recorded for W. C. Berry (R), and H. Will Pless, Jr. (D) defeated J. Lee Lavender (R), 555 to 90.

Professors to Attend Economics Convention

The economics and commerce department will have eight representatives at the meeting of the Southern Economics association Friday and Saturday at Chattanooga.

The party, consisting of Dean D. D. Carroll, C. P. Spruill, John B. Woosley, E. W. Zimmermann, M. S. Heath, W. F. Ferger, C. H. Donovan, and J. B. McFerrin, will be joined in Greensboro by Professor A. S. Kester and Professor Teague from the Woman's College.

The meeting in Chattanooga will be devoted largely to a consideration of the urbanization of the south, the Tennessee Valley project, and the economic aspects of the New Deal. Among the speakers listed on the program are John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce, and David E. Lillinthral, of the Tennessee Valley authority.

FORMER AMBASSADOR GIVES BOOKS TO LIBRARY

Frederick W. B. Colman, former United States ambassador to Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania, who now resides in Sanford, has presented the University library with a collection of 300 volumes of French literature and history.

Colman obtained the collection during his stay in Riga, Latvia. The books, which are handsomely bound, were formerly the property of a Latvian man of wealth, whose library was broken up when the Red armies invaded Latvia in 1918. The collection includes many of the classics of French literature.

DR. HUDSON TO SPEAK

Dr. A. P. Hudson will address the English teachers at the meeting of the central district of state education at Raleigh Friday.

He will give information and suggestions on the necessary college preparation in English and on the English courses offered by this University.

Boy Scout Group to Meet

There will be a committee meeting of the Boy Scouts of America in the Methodist church tonight at 7:15 o'clock. Friends and parents of the boys are also invited to attend.

Six Confined

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: John Munyan, Phillip Brame, Mary Rankin, Don Peery, W. G. Dixon, and George Betts.

Freshmen to Deliver Y.M.C.A. Directories

For the next few days the Freshman Friendship council will see that every student, faculty member and office on the campus and in the town has access to the "Y" student directory.

Next Monday night the group will actively enter its campaign to secure subscriptions to the Red Cross. The Roll Call will be divided among the members of the council and a vigorous contest for getting Red Cross subscribers will ensue.

The Red Cross membership drive is a national campaign.

Snavelymen Work Lightly To Open Drill For 'Cats

Same Backs May Start As Began Tech Tilt; Shaffer Is Out.

Team Works Hard for Strong Davidson Eleven.

Coach Snavely gave his charges only a light workout yesterday afternoon in the first preparation for the contest with Davidson this Saturday.

The Tar Heels spent most of the afternoon brushing up on their offense and making some changes in their plays. The forward wall warmed up with a charging and blocking practice while the backs worked on pass offense and defense.

After a dummy drill, the first two teams spent the rest of the afternoon in a tag scrimmage. Coach Snavely again warned his boys about over-confidence, pointing out that it was his opin- that they were still not in the same class with Duke.

Shaffer Still Out

Trainer Quinlan stated that Charlie Shaffer would surely not be ready to go before the clash with the Blue Devils so Coach Snavely will be forced to again depend on the same backfield which performed most of the time against Tech.

The outfit of Don Jackson, Harry Montgomery, Hump Snyder, and Jim Hutchins looked plenty good but it will have a bigger test this Saturday against the Wildcats as they are reported with a much better defense than the Tornado.

Real Triple Threat

Yesterday Coach Snavely spent quite a bit of time with his latest find, Don Jackson. Jackson ran, passed and punted all in excellent fashion against

SEEDED DOUBLES PAIR EARN BERTH IN SEMI-FINALS

Harris-Abels Easily Capture Match; One Second-Round Match Still Unplayed.

TOURNAMENT NEAR END

Another doubles team gained the semi-final round yesterday afternoon as Harvey Harris and Byron Abels alternated in putting the ball beyond the reaching racquets of Ray Bartelman and Bill Clover. They completely outplayed their opponents and had no trouble throughout the two sets in which they scored at 6-2, 6-3.

Harris and Abels next square off against the winners of the Foreman and Robinson-Berge and Elwell clash in the quest for a final berth. The latter boys are requested to play their match with their seeded opponents as soon as possible.

The other match that is delaying the entire tourney is the one in which Kirschman and Groves have failed to meet Poe and Fletcher in a scheduled second round contest. If these two matches can be played today, the tourney will probably come to a close during the latter part of this week.

Tatum, the Tackle

Jim Tatum, who will hold down left tackle for Carolina at Davidson Saturday, has hurtled into prominence as a leading candidate for all-state and all-southern. After the Georgia Tech game last week the Jacket coaches and players rated him as the best tackle they had seen this year. Jim, who is a senior, stands 6 feet 3, weighs 200 pounds, and is from McColl, S. C.

Football Finals In State Hi Race To Be Held Here

Date Set for Championship Tilts In Both Classes During Thanksgiving Holidays.

The dates for the state high school championship football games this year have been set at Friday, November 30, for the Class B finals, and Saturday, December 1, for the Class A finals, Secretary E. R. Rankin announced yesterday.

Both games will be played in Kenan stadium here beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

In the eastern Class A, Raleigh and Durham stand undefeated, with the Capitol school holding one more win. In the western division Greensboro is the only undefeated team on the roster.

The western Class B is led by Mount Airy and Reidsville, having three and two victories respectively.

The eastern B contest is being decided on a district basis, the four district champs to be settled this week. After this a schedule will be arranged to determine the coastal crown wearer.

Co-eds Open Tennis Practice Tourney Soon

The ladder and rules for the girls' tennis tournament are posted in Spencer hall and on the bulletin board at the courts. Any girl not interested, whose name is on the list, is asked to scratch it off and anyone interested, who was left out, may add her name at the bottom of the ladder.

Everyone who has signed up for tennis at any time this year is asked to ascertain if her name is on the ladder and, if so, to start playing immediately. At the end of two weeks, the highest four on the ladder will be chosen as a team to play against visiting colleges at the first playday.

NEWTON'S STARS

Above are two of Doc Newton and Gene McEver's reliable Wildcats who will undoubtedly get in the way of the Tar Heels this Saturday in the Cats' lair on Richardson field.

Dewey Hutchens (left) is probably the most consistent backfield star on the squad with the exception of Mackorell. He is an all-around player who means much to the Presbyterians on both offense and defense. On the right is Tubby Hand, petit 230-pound tackle. Despite his excess flesh, this man can get around well enough to bottle up many an enemy play.

HILL AND DALERS BEGIN WORK FOR COMING MATCHES

Varsity Run Against Davidson Cancelled; Point Toward Duke Contest Next Week.

TAR BABIES IN FIRST START

Both the varsity and freshman cross country men took thorough work-outs yesterday on Emerson field and prepared for a week of hard drill.

Time trials will feature the first part of the practice sessions, as the yearlings hold one today at 4:15 o'clock and the varsity try tomorrow at the same hour.

The Ranson varsity harriers have two weeks in which to get in shape for the Duke runners, as the scheduled meet with the Davidson Wildcats this Saturday was cancelled by the latter.

The yearlings will have their first run under fire this week as they journey to Davidson to meet the Wildkittens. Little is known of the opponent's strength, but it is expected that they will have their usual strong team.

Home from a nearly perfect week-end of distance running over the mountains in the Shenandoah Valley localities, the varsity shapes up as the foremost team in the Southern Conference. The Carolina combination of McRae, Waldrop, Haywood, Conte, Curlee, Gammon, Bower, Allen, Williamson form probably the best-balanced squad in the entire conference group.

GOODES RALLIES TO GAIN NINTH VARSITY RATING

Earns Varsity Tennis Post After Scoring Upset over Johnston in Fine Match.

TWO FRESHMAN MATCHES

Featured in yesterday's ladder matches were the consistent scrambling and spit returns of Gene Goodes as he ousted Jimmy Johnston from the ninth rung in the varsity lineup.

Goodes, on the verge of defeat time after time, rallied brilliantly to top the tiring Johnston in the final set.

Johnston, playing below his former par, started fast and took the opening set by a 6-2 count as he drove the ball easily to the corners and was the master throughout. Goodes stayed at his guns and his determined returns finally brought him through to victory. The final two sets went into overtime as Goodes pulled them out of the fire in 10-8, 12-10 scores.

Goodes Ranked Now

Goodes, tenth on last year's frosh squad, was unranked on the varsity and by his unexpected victory over Johnston has inserted his name on the ninth spot to drop Archie Henderson right out of the limelight.

Two other frosh matches were completed and, contrary to former results, the defenders turned aside the threats of their challengers. Ray Bartelman had a tough session downing Seymore

S. A. E. Takes Hard Battle from Kappa Sigma; Everett Upsets Kluttz.

PHI GAMS IN EASY WIN

Six Contests on Today's Schedule; Betas, Chi Psi, and Lewis in Action.

Three shutouts featured yesterday afternoon's program in the intramural football loop as Everett scored an upset in taking Kluttz Building by a 6-0 margin, S. A. E. won a hard fought contest from Kappa Sigma, 13-0, and the rejuvenated Phi Gamma Delta eleven took the Phi Delta Theta aggregation into camp, 12-0.

The undefeated S. A. E. gridsters came the nearest they have come to being knocked from the undefeated ranks as a hard charging Kappa Sigma eleven battled them on even terms throughout. Both registered five first downs.

However, the eventual winners were able to break through for two scores, one in each half. The opening six-pointer came when Kenan took a pass and carried the oval across. Harris converted via the place-kick route. The same Harris personally accounted for the last tally as he escorted the ball past the double stripe after a fine run.

Everett Cops Upset

The session's upset came as Everett dorm broke through in the second half to eke out a close one-touchdown win over the Kluttz Klanners. A pass from Nelson to Bessler turned the tide as the game neared its end. The winners gained a five to three advantage in first downs.

The third contest found the

AERIAL DEFENSE IS WEAK

With games against Clemson, Duke, and Virginia in the offing, the Tar Babies are slowly approaching the point of perfection which they have aimed for all season, and which will enable them to take the field against their future foes with confidence in their ability to play good sound football.

The yearlings have reached the stage where they no longer slouch through practices and save themselves for the actual games. Monday's scrimmage clearly demonstrated this fact when the first and second units fought each other to a standstill. The scrappy second eleven fought briskly for every inch while the offensive first stringers kept hammering away and digging desperately for their goal line.

Need More Fight

They will need more than their present fight to emerge victorious in their coming brawls, but if they continue to play ball as they have this past week, it is a surety that, win or

Buck vs. Morgan

Two of the finest ends in the state will meet at Davidson Saturday. They are Big Jim Morgan, Davidson senior, and Dick Buck, Carolina's brilliant sophomore. The resulting duel may go a long way toward settling their all-state claims. In the Tech game last week many of the Atlanta sports writers expressed the view that Buck played as great a game as any man on the field.

lose, their opponents will know that they have been through a tough battle.

Blocking, on which the present system depends, was what caused their downfall to State, and head freshman mentor George James has seen to it that his charges will not display again the poor blocking that they showed the Wolfiet aggregation.

Out on Emerson field yesterday the first-year men romped through a pass scrimmage in order to combat the aerial attack of the Clemson Tiger Cubs with a passing offense of their own.

"Birch" Bershak stood out by repeatedly making miraculous catches of forwards thrown by "Bunny" Burnette and George Graves. Burnette and Graves also stood out in their ability to complete passes nearly every time they attempted one. Burnette especially showed marked ability in eluding the incoming linesmen and getting off his forwards on the nick of time.

"Delly" Walborn, Ed Oliver, and "Chin" Henderson divided the major portion of the pass receiving between them; Walborn and Henderson scored a touchdown apiece, while Oliver did most of the ground gaining along with Bershak.

Though the aerial attack worked quite well, it was not heartening to the coaching staff, due to the fact that neither of the two backfields could find a suitable defense for the numerous passes that filled the air. They will have to develop a good defense against forwards if they wish to stop the highly touted aerial game of their Armistice Day opponents.

Harry Montgomery also broke into the limelight for the first time with his heady signal calling and his consistant gains off-tackle and around the ends. Montgomery dived over the line for the first two Carolina markers.

Veterans Again Star

Both Snyder and Hutchins are veterans who have been performing in great style all season. However, Hutchins rammed the line for gain after gain as he has never done before while Snyder, the finest blocker seen at Carolina in quite a while, showed signs of becoming an excellent pass receiver.

Indications are that Davidson is set to give the Tar Heels a real battle Saturday. The Wildcats have been developing all season and reached their peak last week, getting an easy 18-0 victory over Catawba, which had previously been undefeated.

The Wildcat line stacks up just about even with Carolina's as far as weight is concerned, both averaging around 190-pounds.

NOTED ENGINEER SPEAKS TO A.I.E.E. TODAY AT DUKE

Members of the local divisions of the A.I.E.E. will hear Dr. P. V. Farragher, noted chemical engineer of the American Aluminum company of Pittsburgh, at a section meeting at Duke University this afternoon.

David Ovens, business manager of Ivey's Department store in Charlotte, will address the group at a banquet meeting there this evening. All members of the A.I.E.E. have been invited to attend the two talks.

Train to Davidson

A special train to the Davidson-Carolina game Saturday has been chartered through the help of the athletic department on which students may travel to the game in Davidson. The football team and the band will also go on this train. It will leave Pittsboro street Saturday morning at 8:00 o'clock and return after the game. Tickets will go on sale at the Book Exchange tomorrow.

State Forest Fire Fund Least in Southeast

Allotment Is Second Smallest in The United States.

Raleigh, Nov. 6.—(UP)—The state appropriation for the prevention of forest fires is the smallest in the southeast and smaller than any but one in the United States, State Forester J. S. Holmes pointed out today.

North Carolina allowed only $2,755 during the last fiscal year for this function compared with the allocations of other southern states, the lowest of which, $9,430, was made by Mississippi and the highest, $56,900, was set aside by Louisiana.

Engineers to Attend Atlanta Conference

A meeting of the engineering schools of the southeastern district will be held at Atlanta Friday and Saturday.

Dr. W. J. Miller, dean of the engineering school; Dr. A. L. White, of the chemical engineering department; Dr. E. G. Hoefer, mechanical engineering division, and E. W. Winkler, instructor in electrical engineering, will attend the meeting. Dean W. C. Riddick, of N. C. State, is on the program.

The meeting, called on a recommendation of the representatives of the southeastern schools at a national convention of the S. P. E. E., will be a preliminary to the regular convention in the spring.

WOMAN'S GLEE CLUB WILL ORGANIZE TODAY

The University woman's Glee club, under the direction of H. Grady Miller, will meet for organization at 5:00 o'clock this afternoon in the choral room of Music hall.

Students interested in glee club work are urged to be present at the meeting. If unable to be present, they should leave their names with Miller or Margaret McCauley so that an estimate of the club's probable membership can be made.

SPEAK IN CHARLOTTE

Professors Nathan W. Walker and Arnold Kimsey King of the University school of education were speakers this week at the meeting in Charlotte of the South Piedmont District Teachers association.

Other members of the University faculty who attended the meeting included: Miss Susan G. Akers of the school of library science, Messrs. E. R. Rankin, R. M. Grumman of the extension department, Hugo Giduz and H. F. Munch of the school of education.

No Seminar Meeting Tonight

The economics seminar will not meet this evening owing to the absence of a number of members of the department who are attending the meeting of the Southern Economic association.

The next meeting of the seminar will be held November 14. Dr. W. F. Ferger will discuss the value and limitations of the mathematical method in the study of economics.

Stephens, Poet-Novelist, Speaks Here Sunday

Author Will Speak Monday on "Irish Renaissance."

James Stephens, Irish poet-novelist, will make two appearances in Chapel Hill next week.

Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial, Mr. Stephens will give a "Poetry Recital" under the auspices of the student union. The University will present the famous poet on Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall when he will lecture on "The Irish Renaissance."

Monday and Thursday, Mr. Stephens will speak at Duke University. He will arrive in Chapel Hill on Saturday and take residence in the Carolina Inn. He is accompanied by his agent, Mr. Snavely of the American Book company.

The first touchdown came shortly before the close of the first setto as Hoggard, surrounded by about five opponents, jumped high into the air to snag a long pass, wiggled himself free, and carried across for the score. The other came midway through the second half as McDaniel caught a long pass from Hodges, overcame an acute attack of "butter-fingers," and dashed across the goal just in the nick of time. CAMPUS AWAITS CAROLINA DEBUT OF ISHAM JONES

Famous Maestro to Offer Musical Variety; Is Composer Of Popular Hits.

FOUR DANCES IN FALL SET

Besides looking forward to the Carolina football team to capitalize on its best opportunity of achieving its first win over Duke since 1929, the more socially-minded members of the campus are eagerly waiting for week-end after next to roll around and bring with it the noted Isham Jones and his orchestra.

Jones has been engaged to furnish the music for the current year's first set of German club dances November 16-17. The set of dances is comprised of two tea dances and two evening dances. They will be given in the Tin Can and will start Friday afternoon and end Saturday night.

Jones and his ensemble are an appropriate choice to follow "The Idol of the Airways," Jan Garber, who played here for finals last year.

Presents Variety

Although he is sympathetic with the dancing public's penchant-of-the-moment for slow, romantic songs and tempos, Isham Jones is careful not to satiate the current appetite for this type of musical fare.

"We give them a dreamy waltz," the tall, sandy-haired band leader explains, "and then follow it with a 'quick' number. Otherwise there would be a risk of letting the band and the patrons get that draggy feeling

GEOLOGISTS MAKE TOUR OF VIRGINIA

University Is Represented by Ten Members in Party on Three Day Survey.

A party of 23 geologists from the University, Guilford College, V. P. I., and the Virginia State Geological survey conducted a three day tour in the western part of Virginia last week.

Ten members of the party, under the direction of Dr. J. W. Huddle, H. W. Straley, III, and I. L. Martin, represented the University.

Study Formations

The trip included a detailed study of the complex formations and structure of the area east of Roanoke Va., northwest to the West Virginia state line. Dr. R. L. Holden, of the V. P. I. Geological department, and Dr. A. A. L. Mathews, of the Virginia State Geological survey, addressed the group on various phases of the study.

During the entire trip collections were made from all the formations.

Included in the party were: Dr. J. W. Huddle, I. L. Martin, H. W. Straley, III, Ross W. Hornbeck, Philip M. LeBaron, W. R. Johnson, W. T. Wilday, W. Haskins, H. Engler Vitz, C. E. Prouty, Bob Copeland, G. E. Murray, and D. S. George from the University; Dr. R. L. Holden of the V. P. I. department of Geology; Dr. A. A. L. Mathews of the Va. State Geological survey; six students from V. P. I.; Dr. Raymond Binford of Guilford College, and son.

Notables Will Speak Tonight At First Anti-War Conference

All students and townspeople interested in the question of war are invited by the conference praesidium to attend the students' anti-war conference meeting tonight at 8:00 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

The conference is being presented in an effort to acquaint the students with the various aspects of the war problem. In order to do this an attempt has been made for all sides of the questions to be presented at the conference.

Class Room Delegates

Each class room at each hour today is requested to select two delegates to represent it at the conference.

The speakers scheduled for tonight are Dean Elbert Russell of Duke University, who will talk on the subject "The Far East Situation"; Ex-Commander of the American Legion Henry Stevens on the subject "National Defense and War"; Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the University on the subject "The Munition Industry Racket"; and Professor K. C. Frazer of the University on the subject "Internationalism and War."

Speakers Tomorrow

The speakers scheduled for the second half of the conference which will be held tomorrow night are: Dr. Meno Spann of the University, to speak on the subject "International Difficulties that Exist"; Dr. E. E. Ericson, also of the University, on the subject "Fascism as a Decay of Civilization and its Fostering of War."

Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, on the subject "The Liberal Student Viewpoint"; Bill Levitt of the National Students' League and permanent chairman of the conference, on the subject "The Radical Student Viewpoint on War and Fascism."

A student speaker from the Y. W. C. A. at Duke University has been tentatively scheduled to precede Sugarman at tomorrow night's conference.

GOP STRONGHOLDS CONTINUE TO FALL

Democrats Continue Landslide In Republican Centers; Elect 23 Governors.

New York, Nov. 7.—(UP)—The Democrats battered away at rockribbed Republican centers tonight to expand their powerful control of the house after winning at least nine G. O. P. senate seats.

The off-year downpour of ballots swept 23 Democratic governors into office, while the Republicans salvaged five.

As reports neared completion the Democrats were seen to have won 299 seats in the House of Representatives, the Republicans 103, the Progressives four, and the Farmerlaborites two.

Democrats Leading

The Democrats are leading in 18 contests, the Republicans in 11, the Farmerlaborites in one.

Interest tonight centered in the stubbornly fought senatorial battles in New Mexico and North Dakota.

The prohibition repealists won smashing victories today. The dry statutes of five states were shattered—Florida, West Virginia, Idaho, Nebraska, and Wyoming.

Kansas, a dry stronghold for 54 years, remained dry when rural votes cut down the wet plurality.

POOL AND ROGERS WIN CO-OP BOARD POSITIONS

Jack Pool and Jimmy Rogers were elected yesterday by members of the Student Co-op to fill vacancies on the Co-op board.

Pool led all the candidates with 262 votes, and Jimmy Rogers followed with 184 votes. Nat Townsend and Harry Williamson were the defeated candidates with 142 and 136 votes respectively.

The complete board consists of the following in addition to the two new men: Irvin Boyle, Haywood Weeks, and Harper Barnes.

Applications Due Today

All applications for Rhodes scholarships are due today in the office of the school of liberal arts.

Davidson Train

A special train will leave Pittsboro street at 8:00 o'clock Saturday morning for Davidson where a cheering section for Carolina rooters will be reserved. The round trip cost on this train will be $4.20.

The cheerleaders will be at the game and all Carolina students are asked to sit in a body. Both the band and Rameses III will be on hand to support the team.

RELATIONS GROUP SELECTS SPEAKERS

List of 15 Key Men Submitted to Program Committee.

A group of interested workers for the Human Relations Institute, headed by the new chairman, Charles Aycock Poe, met last night in the Y. M. C. A. to discuss plans for the coming Institute meeting here in April.

Last night's group selected fifteen key men, many of national importance, for platform speakers at the Institute. This list will be submitted to the program committee for final confirmation.

Chairman Poe, who presided at last night's meeting, withheld the announcement of his committee appointments. He stated that he will name the committees publicly within the next few days.

Ernest L. Mackie, chairman of the Y. M. C. A. board of directors, was present at the meeting and offered numerous helpful suggestions. The Human Relations Institute was created in 1927 by the University "Y" and this year's meeting, scheduled for April 7-12, will be sponsored by the Y. M. C. A.

S. G. E. Meeting

R. A. Edwards will speak at 7:30 o'clock tonight in room 401 New East at the meeting of the Sigma Gamma Epsilon honorary geology fraternity.

The subject of Edwards' address will be the recession of Niagara Falls.

All students who are interested are urged to attend.

UNIVERSITY CLUB

The University club will meet at 7:00 o'clock tonight to discuss and to start work on plans for the Duke game, Frank Willingham, president, announced yesterday.

Members are requested to bring the money for their pictures in the Yackety Yack.

DEMOCRATS HAVE BIG STATE LEAD

Late Returns Give Republicans Little Consolation; Democratic Victory Overwhelming.

Raleigh, Nov. 7.—(UP)—Republican sympathizers in North Carolina found no consolation in late election returns straggling in tonight.

Late reports merely strengthened the assurance of an overwhelming Democratic victory.

There is no doubt as to the re-election of eleven Democratic congressmen, the chief justice of the state supreme court, two associate justices, the state treasurer, and the state utilities commissioner, as unofficial incomplete returns from 1,423 precincts of a total of 1,833 gave the Democrats 238,508 votes and the Republicans 114,301.

Little G. O. P. Gain

The Republicans, who in 1933 had only ten members in the general assembly, won't exceed that number by far in 1935, according to indications tonight.

It was evident from the very first returns that there would be another Democratic landslide in the state, as each successive batch of returns piled up the approval by the state of the Democratic administration and the New Deal. With late returns being filed the Republicans have lost there last hope of establishing themselves more firmly in the state.

Fairley and Durfee Will Debate Georgia

At the debate try-outs in Graham Memorial Tuesday night Francis Fairley and Winthrop Durfee were selected to represent Carolina against Georgia here November 15. Professors Olsen, McKie, and Robson acted as judges.

The team will support the negative of the query: Resolved, that peace is impossible under capitalism. The University of Georgia team will stop here on its way to the Yale-Georgia game at New Haven.

Both men selected for the team have had experience in debating in past years and are members of the Phi assembly.

Band Practice Tonight

The regular band practice for the University band will be conducted in the Tin Can at 7:00 o'clock tonight, announced Earl A. Slocum, conductor of the band, yesterday.

Sophomores to Meet

There will be a special meeting of the sophomore class this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall, it was announced by John Rainey, president, yesterday.

Faculty to Meet

There will be a meeting of the general faculty tomorrow afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in Bingham hall, it was announced by Dean R. B. House yesterday.

RELIGIOUS COUNCIL BEGUN BY Y. M. C. A.

Local Presbyterian Assistant Pastor Elected President.

The Religious Workers council, made up of the Chapel Hill ministers, active church workers, and students interested in religious activities, was organized last night under the sponsorship of the University Y. M. C. A.

Organization resulted from a vigorous campaign led by Bill Yandell of the local "Y."

Officers for the council were elected with the Rev. Watt Cooper, assistant pastor of the local Presbyterian church, president. J. D. Winslow, head of the University Y. M. C. A., was made vice-president, and R. B. Fisher, student Lutheran pastor, secretary and treasurer.

At last night's meeting the council named next Sunday as a special "go-to-church" Sunday. They discussed plans for a church bulletin board to be placed in the "Y" lobby.

The council will meet again December 6 at the Baptist church.

HUEY PLANS NEW FOOTBALL JUNKET

Warns Railroads Must Agree to Prices or Give Free Ride.

New Orleans, Nov. 7.—(UP)—United States Senator Huey Long announced plans for a new football junket today and warned the railroads that unless they agree to his price for the trip "we'll ride free and pay 'em with their own money."

The pilgrimage will be to Knoxville December 8th for the Louisiana State-University of Tennessee game. Huey said that about a thousand would make the trip this time.

Colgate challenged Huey to a practice game: "If you believe your wild Bayou Tigers can give Colgate a better workout than our scrubs, we'd like to arrange a game—suggest machine guns. The National Guards will be barred."

Huey replied, "Our second team at Tulane will clean up your bunch Saturday."

Rev. Godbold has served as pastor here for the past three years.

FRESHMEN HEAR NOMINEES MAKE CAMPAIGN TALKS

Bricklemyer, Read, Mullis Speak; Weathers Presides; Elections To Take Place Today.

MEN STATE PLATFORMS

Candidates for president of the freshman class presented their campaign platforms at a chapel meeting yesterday morning with Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, presiding.

Clyde Mullis, nominee of the Clyde Mullis Party, emphasized co-operation in his talk and pledged himself to development of a freshman class that would become the greatest senior class ever to graduate from the University.

Gene Bricklemyer, candidate of the Campus Party, promised to do all in his power in granting the wishes of the freshman class itself. He described the possibility of arrangements of class dances, smokers, and free shows.

Independent Nominee

Nick Read, independent nominee, promised a reformation of campus politics and the breaking of political machines. Read solicited the support of all who agreed with him in this respect.

Elections will be held today at Graham Memorial from 9:00 to 5:00 o'clock. Weathers told of the registration procedure, asking the freshmen to sign up in the corridor before voting.

Ed Bynum, candidate for treasurer in the freshman elections tomorrow, has announced his withdrawal from the race, according to a statement made by Virgil Weathers yesterday afternoon.

FOREIGN LEAGUE TO MAKE PLANS

Will Meet Tonight in Graham Memorial at 7:45 O'clock; To Formulate Calendar.

The Foreign Policy league will meet tonight at 7:45 o'clock in Graham Memorial. The time is 15 minutes early to allow members to attend the anti-war conference after a short meeting.

The final plans for organization of the club for this year will be laid.

Four tentative committees will be appointed, to become permanent if they function efficiently.

The program committee headed by Ezra Griffin will make a report on possible topics of interest for discussion in the near future and the club will formulate a calendar of discussion based on this report.

The following are the members of the league, who are expected to attend tonight's meeting: Agnew Bahnson, Don Becker, Albert Ellis, Ralph Gardner, William Morris, Ezra Griffin, John Gunter, Edwin Kahn, R. Langdon, Don McKee, Jack Pool, Reid Sarratt.

Jake Snyder, Noel Yancey, Lawrence Frank, Phil Kind, Charles Poe, Blucher Ehringhaus, Lewis Morris, Jack Dunn, W. M. Daniels, S. W. Barefoot, Frank McGlenn.

PARAGRAPHICS

Well, it looks like the freshman class is going to have some all-American officers.

Huey Long's ideas about Louisiana's secession sounds like just another mental state to us.

Speaking of the New York elections . . . where was Moses when the votes came in?

Outworn Absurdities

The senior class is now considering candidates —God help 'em—for the positions of historian, poet, testator, and prophet, than whom in the realm of absurdities there is no whomer. We are willing to make exception to this statement in the case of historian and, possibly, poet. But the latter two have in our estimation no reason for being if divorced of the traditional hangover which they represent. They carry the stilted flavor of the crinoline days of American universities to the present, in which their justification is incongruous with both good reason and good reading. There may have been a sentimental time when the students of the University could chuckle over the ingratiating maunderings of a testator or the simple-minded (then humorous) predictions of a prophet, but that day is past.

Our experience has been that the usual graduating class doesn't care for the above drivel and bothers little about who is appointed to wear the crowns of testator and prophet. They are thankless jobs, the sole duty of the incumbents being to fill up a page in the year-book and to carry the names which tradition begs.

It would be a tribute to the good sense of this year's senior class to leave off this valedictorian pedantry, which certainly has served its time. While it is a small matter, the senior class would do well to dispense with it once and for all.

Break in Tradition

The first issue of the Carolina Magazine with a new format and editorial policy struck us as representing the most important break from literary tradition in the history of this publication. Where former editors have attempted to offer what the campus wants to read and have failed, Editor Sugarman, building his publication around the readable article, has succeeded admirably.

The break did not come in the form of a radical abolition of all that represents literary attempts toward style and culture by eschewing everything but the straight-from-the-shoulder expose; it has, instead, taken place in the form of a well-balanced diet of the well-written article embracing facts and the more stylistic prose.

We view the new magazine with the same approving note as we did the new Finjan. Both represent definite efforts to supply a higher standard of written material and a more popularly-favored type of presentation.

With all the opportunities available for expression through the medium of the magazine on this campus, the future of it offers the encouraging and optimistic outlook of truly valuable service.

Think . . . And Act

Tonight the students' anti-war conference convenes. The steps they will take, and the conclusions they will draw are still in question: the validity of this organization is as yet unproven.

One fact remains, however; students on this campus are sufficiently aware of the problem of war and sufficiently desirous of averting such a disaster to form this conference.

We have talked to a good many students on this point, and they are all in favor of scurrying unanimously to the Blue Ridge mountains, diving into the deepest and ruggedest cove they can find, and pulling it in after them. They realize that a war will not benefit the individual or the nation; that it will be waged for the profit of the few and paid for with the life-blood of the many; that it will prove nothing, settle nothing, will not improve trade, but will weaken the race and leave misery and desolation in its wake.

But they seem, in spite of their clear grasp of the problem, to be woefully scanty of ideas as to what to do about the situation. Few constructive ideas for avoidance have been propounded. Therefore, it seems good that the student anti-war league should have been founded.

At no time, perhaps, has the time been riper for work of this sort. The regular, unchanging cycle of wars has not changed since the discovery of America. According to this criterion, since twenty years have elapsed from the outbreak of the last war, it's about time for another to come along.

On the other hand, the youth of all nations have never been in closer touch. International clubs and organizations have partly broken down the barriers of national quarreling, race prejudice, and the hatred of aliens which is so carefully instilled into the youth of all lands. If all the students of all the nations could formulate an anti-war policy before their viewpoints become clouded and their judgments are biased by the insidious poison of a sordid patriotism, then another debauch of man-power and resources may be avoided.

37 Out of A Hundred

Professor J. D. Clark of the Raleigh unit has conducted tests to determine the quality of English preparation of college freshmen. And the survey reveals the amazing—amazing because of our relative ignorance of how badly our state schools do prepare freshmen—fact that the highest average scored by any of the freshmen of the different schools there was only 37.8 out of a possible 100.

Diction suffered the least discount. The greatest deficiencies were found along the broad lines of grammar and spelling. Why are our educational standards in our secondary schools so low in these vital teachings?

The problem has been hashed and re-hashed by every column in North Carolina, with the final conclusions always—financial discrepancy. Everything depands upon the legislature and the county and local units; if they cannot support a higher standard, then the present must suffice.

But any student on this campus where higher education is administered as well as in any such school in this nation, realizes after contact with the British debaters that the latters' superiority can be definitely traced to their marvelous system of secondary educational institutions. We do not feel that we can jeopardize higher education's standing to benefit secondary systems, but we do insist that the secondary standard must be made to conform in quality more to the level of the former.

Now We Are Voters

The freshmen will vote this morning. They will deposit nice little "Australian ballots" in a nice little box. It will be very secret so that no one can check up on the fellows.

By tonight we will have a president of the freshman class. Aren't elections simple nowadays?

Let's Secede

Huey Long, self-asserted Kingfish of Louisiana and the United States Senate, said yesterday that "the only way for us to get out of this here depression is to secede from the United States—sever all connections and make a clean start. We could be independent or join up with Mexico or something."

This secession business has been tried before. If you remember, it was tried about 1860 and all the seceders accomplished was the loss of what little prestige they had. But maybe with the Kingfish behind the movement, it might be a different story. However, there's still the big question of whether Mexico wants Louisiana, and Huey, to run their politics for them. No doubt his Utopian Mexicana is the country of the future; his football team can furnish international color and he can have a nationwide instead of a state dictatorship.

Tar Heel Football Squad Takes Workout Under New Floodlights

Lights for Practice After Dark Installed on Emerson Field; Kanner Shifted to End.

DUNHAM, DASHIELL STAR

The Tar Heel footballers worked until well after nightfall under the newly installed floodlights on the Emerson gridiron yesterday.

Wally Dunham and Dick Dashiell, playing in the reserve backfield against the frosh, were able to advance the ball at random, the former making a beautiful 40-yard touchdown run as the scrimmage ended.

Earlier in the workout Coach Reed put each lineman through a series of offensive and defensive blocking tactics. Coach Snavely then ran the first two teams through a tag scrimmage.

Kanner Shifted

Murray Kanner, reserve center, will probably see service at the end post against the Davidson Wildcats Saturday. He is being groomed at the flank position due to the injury of Bill Moore, regular end, and Gene Barwick, understudy to Moore.

Montgomery, Hutchins, Snyder, and Jackson are still running in the first string backfield. This is the same quartet that performed so brilliantly against Georgia Tech last Saturday. These four will probably get the first call to start against the Wildcats if they continue to click in practice for the remainder of the week.

Shaffer, Barwick, and Bill Moore are the three injured Tar Heels who have been declared definitely out of the fracas Saturday. Shaffer threw away his crutches yesterday, and will probably be ready for action when Carolina meets Duke in Kenan stadium Saturday after next.

Doping The Sports

By JAMES MORRIS

Saturday's relatively easy win over Ga. Tech showed the Carolina team to be just about ready. Starting with a new coach and system during the middle of last winter, the Tar Heels have developed into an excellent football team as fast as any college outfit in the history of the great game. No small amount of credit should be given to Coach Carl Snavely. Rarely is it that a first year coach has such success. Winning four and tying one game out of the first six is an accomplishment in itself, but also getting victories over such teams as Georgia, Kentucky, and Georgia Tech is almost unbelievable. It took Wallace Wade, mighty Duke mentor, three years to get his machine clicking in almost unbeatable fashion. By the way, I can't recall a time in the University's history that a Carolina team got triumphs over both the Bulldogs and Golden Tornado during the same season, and these were by comfortable margins at that.

It's a little late to be commenting on the pitiful 7-7 tie with State, but the facts have just been made known. It seems

BABIES TO MEET TOUGH GRID CLUB

Clemson Frosh Have Undefeated Powerful Grid Outfit; Clary Brothers Lead Attack.

There is an impression circulating among the frosh gridders to the effect that the forthcoming Clemson brawl, to be held November 12 at Asheville, will be just another battle, with the Tar Babies odds-on favorites to win.

These fears should be dispelled with immediately, for it would not be at all surprising to those who have watched the two teams in action to see Carolina enter the fray, once more, as the underdogs.

Clemson, this year, has developed a freshman team which at present ranks among the undefeated yearling squads in the south. Its last victory over the up and coming South Carolinians, was decisive enough to prove the good quality of their system and their team play.

Despite the fact that there are but two outstanding stars, in the form of the Clary brothers, on the Tiger Cub starting eleven, the team has, in the past, worked like a well-oiled machine with eleven men doing their jobs methodically and in unity.

They have developed a poisonous aerial attack which they mix with a dazzling ground game, consisting of a hard charging forward wall and four fleet backs.

NET STARS ENTER SEMI-FINAL ROUND

De Gray-Levitan and Foreman-Robinson Combinations Set Back Opposition.

The semi-final bracket of the tennis tourney was filled in yesterday afternoon as two seeded teams easily routed stubborn opponents in straight sets. De Gray and Levitan brushed aside a battling combination of Poe and Fletcher in their mad scramble for the doubles crown, 6-2, 6-2.

The other pair to keep pace with the leaders was the Foreman-Robinson unit, which is seeded directly behind in second place. They had but little difficulty in easing Berge and Elwell out of the tourney, dropping but three games in their 6-1, 6-2 victory.

Poe-Fletcher Win

Earlier in the day, Poe and Fletcher entered the quarter-final round with a sound win over Kirschman and Groves in a long delayed second round contest. They won easily at 6-2, 6-1.

Tennis Meeting

Coach Kenfield announced that there will be an important meeting for the members of both the varsity and freshman tennis squads at 9:00 o'clock tonight at Emerson stadium.

Dowd Defeated By Lawrence Jones And Archie Henderson

Johnny Dowd brought his racquet into play twice yesterday in ladder struggles and both times bowed to brilliant opponents in straight-set defeats.

Attempting to obtain fourth ranking from his spot at seven, he was decisively set back on his heels by the superior stroking of Larry Jones, who won at 6-2, 6-1.

Later in the afternoon, Archie Henderson furthered the downfall of Dowd by winning effectively and easily by 6-2, 6-3 scores. This brought Henderson back into the running, after having been dropped from the ranking on Tuesday, and gave him sole possession of seventh place as Dowd dropped into eighth.

FROSH HARRIERS TAKE TIME TRIAL FOR FIRST MEET

Varsity Has Easy Practice in Preparation for Race with Blue Devils Next Week.

The yearling cross country men took the spotlight in yesterday's harrier workout, as the Tar Babies ran a three-and-a-half mile time trial to determine who will make the trip to Davidson this week-end.

The varsity took it comparatively easy, but will take a five mile time trial today to keep in shape for the Duke encounter next week previous to the Carolina-Duke football game.

The time turned in by the top-placing frosh was 17:36 minutes, compared to the 17:24

CLOSE SESSIONS IN MURAL PLAY

Betas, Chi Psi, Kappa Alpha, and Sigma Nu Take Victories in Fast Tag Grid Contests.

Yesterday afternoon's competition in the intramural tag football loop saw three undefeated teams experience more than usual opposition as the Betas, Chi Psi and Kappa Alpha were held to close wins.

After being eliminated from the circle of inviolate record holders, the T. E. P. gridsters were anxious to drop Kappa Alpha from that group and almost succeeded, holding a four to three advantage in first downs with but three minutes to play, but lost out as Shriver took two passes for first downs.

Betas in Tough Win

Despite the fact that it outnumbered the Dekes easily in first downs the Beta Theta Pi combine received quite a shock in the early minutes of the game as Purden took a pass from Woollen to cross the Beta double stripe. The try at extra point missed. Shortly after matters were evened up as McCachren passed to Rose for a touchdown. Blythe broke the tie with a plunged over center for the extra point.

Chi Psi's aggregation faced some stiff repulsion from the Phi Kappa Sigma eleven and was only able to push across one touchdown. The lone score

Directions Given for Obtaining Magazine

George Underwood, publications circulation manager, announced yesterday that the Carolina Magazine had been delivered and that students in the dormitories may secure their copies from the dorm store.

Graduate students living in Smith may get copies from Byron Abels, in room 104.

Co-eds residing at Spencer or Graham dormitories are to see respective house mothers in order to obtain the publication.

The office of the circulation manager will be open at chapel period and between the hours of 4:00 and 5:00 o'clock today so that commuting students will have an opportunity to receive their copies.

Red Cross to Present Demonstration Today

R. M. Grumman, chairman of the local chapter of the Red Cross, announced yesterday that the First Aid and Life Saving committee would present a program in freshman assembly today.

The program will consist of a talk on resuscitation and actual demonstration of the process. The Red Cross is conducting an active campaign in an attempt to familiarize people with this phase of first aid.

Lee Greer, chairman of the First Aid committee, will direct the program with assistance of Ellis Fysal, John Brabson, Billy Greet and Marvin Allen, local Red Cross examiners.

Rivers, Bronitsky First

Joe Rivers and Irv Bronitsky, who finished among the first in the cake race several weeks ago, came in tied for first, 24 seconds ahead of the third man, Gove.

The others crossed the finish line in the following order: Rowley, Anderson, Garland, D'Ascensio, Flynt, White, Rabb, and Manning. Davison, one of the leading runners, was not in the trials but will probably be in the meet Saturday. Of this group seven or eight will make the trip.

Seniors who are not members of the committee are also invited to attend.

that Coach Snavely takes a motion picture of his boys in action and the camera got a good shot of Charlie Shaffer on his dash for a touchdown which was called back because the officials thought the Carolina star stepped outside just about the 30-yard line. Well, the camera shows Shaffer inside all the way down the sideline. A touchdown would have meant a victory for the Tar Heels, but maybe one can't expect the officials to see everything. It was a mean break anyway, the toughest a Carolina team has gotten since Coach Chuck Collins broke up the Tar Heel-Duke battle a couple of years ago by walking onto the playing field.

Coach Snavely's boys should not have a terrible lot of trouble against Davidson Saturday, judging by comparative scores, but there is no telling what the fighting Wildcats will do, especially against the Tar Heels. Last year a supposedly stronger and somewhat cocky Carolina team was plenty lucky in getting a 6-0 win, scoring the lone touchdown in the final quarter. This Saturday's Big Five games will give fans a chance to compare scores for the classic in Kenan stadium the following Saturday, not that comparisons mean a thing in college football. Anyway, Duke meets Wake Forest, defeated by Carolina, 21-0, while the Tar Heels take on Davidson, beaten by the Blue Devils, 20-0.

After Carolina's two upset victories down in dear old Georgia, the Tar Heel supporters are considering starting a movement to have the Duke tilt moved. Of course Kenan stadium is a fine place for a grid game, but it would look like a sure triumph for the University if the outfits were matched somewhere in the Land of Peaches.

Today's Games

The A. T. O.-Phi Sigma Kappa contest, listed for today at 3:30 o'clock, has been postponed until tomorrow at the same time. The remainder of the today's schedule follows:

"Topaze" Rehearsal Scheduled Tonight

The last rehearsal of the play, "Topaze" will be held tonight at 7:00 o'clock in 308 Murphey.

This play will be presented tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the Hugh Morson high school in Raleigh in connection with the state teachers' meeting to be held there.

Armistice Day

As Armistice Day comes on Sunday this year, there will be no special University observance of this day.

A joint committee of members of the faculty and of the Chapel Hill American Legion post recommended to the ministers of the Chapel Hill churches that a two-minute period of silence be observed during their services, as close as possible to 11:00 o'clock, that the national anthem be sung, and that their sermons bear upon some subject appropriate to the day.

He says: "I think there's a great field for psychology—so I try to hit the books for all I'm worth. When I'm listless or 'low,' smoking a Camel gives me a quick upturn in energy. Physical and mental fatigue drop away! The enjoyment one gets from Camel's fine flavor is an important psychological factor in maintaining poise."

How to get back vim and energy when "played out": Thousands of smokers can verify from their own experience the popular suggestion "get a lift with a Camel." When tired, Camels will make you feel refreshed—as good as new. And science adds confirmation of this "energizing effect." Camels aren't flat or "sweetish," either. You can smoke Camels steadily. Talk By Duke Professor Opens Students' Anti-War Conference

Woodhouse Indicates World Danger Spots

Rev. Joseph Fletcher of Raleigh Reveals Racket of Munition Manufacturers.

AUDIENCE OF 150 PRESENT

The students' anti-war conference opened its series of two meetings last night in Gerrard hall, hearing Dean Elbert Russell of Duke, Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the University, and the Rev. Joseph Fletcher of Raleigh.

Bill Levitt, permanent chairman of the conference, opened the meeting before an audience of about 150. Harper Barnes, director of Graham Memorial, was elected temporary chairman, and had charge of the program last night.

Russell Speaks

"The greatest danger to the peace of the world lies in the Near East," said Dean Russell, head of the department of religion at Duke. "Japan is the primary menace."

Dr. Russell spoke of the need of Manchukuo, not as a reservoir for surplus population, but as a new source of raw materials to furnish Japanese factories. "When Japan was refused an immigration quota to the United States," Dean Russell continued, "her pride was hurt." The people of that country felt that they were regarded as unfit for citizenship as Americans, the visitor said.

"The Japanese debt is 500 million yen a year. This is absorbed by the merchants. How long they will continue to absorb it, I do not know."

Danger to China

In conclusion Dean Russell said that the only danger in

PUBLICATION FEE SET FOR ALUMNI

P. U. Board Gives Former Students Special Rate for University Publications.

The Publications Union board gave its approval yesterday to a project to increase the circulation of the four campus publications by soliciting subscriptions from alumni of the University.

The plan, which was presented by Agnew Bahnson, business manager of the Yackety Yack, calls for subscription rates obtained by adding one-third as a commission for the solicitor to the actual cost of printing and mailing the publications subscribed to.

Students to Work

Students will be appointed to take subscriptions in their home towns during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays at the 25 per cent commission made possible by adding one-third to the cost of printing.

An increased circulation of the publications among the alumni will aid the alumni office in its work and also the business managers in securing better terms with national advertisers.

Yearbook Rates

Alumni rates for the Yackety Yack alone will be $3.50. The rate for all the publications together has not yet been worked out but will be obtained by adding the commission to the actual cost.

A proposal was also made at the meeting to set a flat rate for life subscriptions to the DAILY TAR HEEL, and a study will be made to see if such subscriptions are practicable.

COUNCILORS STOP DORM SOLICITING

Inter-Dormitory Council Asks Co-operation in Move Against Potential Thieves.

Believing petty thefts on the campus are caused by solicitors going from room to room, the Inter-dormitory council Wednesday night resolved to forbid soliciting of any kind in the dormitories.

The immediate cause of the resolution was the recent apprehension in Old East of a shoeshine boy's attempting to steal some money. Subsequently he confessed the previous theft of $4. Other thefts this year, the council suspects, had a similar origin.

Asks Inspectors' Help

Dormitory councilors are to enforce a ruling already in effect which prohibits all types of soliciting. At the same time, the Inter-dormitory council will send letters to the various dormitory inspectors asking co-operation and pledging theirs in return.

At the same meeting the council passed a unanimous resolution in support of the Red Cross drive on the campus. It passed another resolution, to be delivered in writing, asking P. L. Burch of the buildings department to install glass-enclosed bulletin boards in the dormitories.

The council will meet again next Wednesday, before the Duke game.

ARCHIVIST MAKES GIFT TO LIBRARY

Connor Contributes 100 Books on North Carolina History.

Dr. R. D. W. Connor, United States archivist, who was until recently head of the history department here, presented the University library with a valuable collection of books and manuscripts yesterday.

Among the books given by Connor are 100 volumes on North Carolina history and other standard works dealing with general history.

Included with the donation is a collection of several thousand manuscripts and family papers, dating back for as many as five generations.

These manuscripts shed much light on various aspects of North Carolina history which have been disputed heretofore, R. B. Downs, University librarian, stated.

Seven Confined

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: Vivian Crawford, Doris Weaver, Catherine Clive, Phillip Brame, Carl Peiffer, John Munyan, and William Boone.

GREENSBORO UNIT TO HEAR 'Y' MEN

Five Y.M.C.A. Workers to Conduct Vesper Service Sunday.

A special deputation team, headed by Y. M. C. A. leaders from the University, will conduct the vesper services at the Woman's College of the University Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock in Greensboro.

The Y. W. C. A. of the Woman's College will act as host to the Carolina group, holding open house for them after 5:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The deputation team, composed of five "Y" workers, will include Jack Pool, Bill Yandell, B. F. Smith, Jesse Parker, and J. D. Winslow. Pool will be the principal speaker on the program.

Winslow, president of the University Y. M. C. A., will preside, and Yandell will conduct the devotional part of the program.

FRESHMEN HEAR FIRST AID TALKS

Principles and Methods of Artificial Respiration Demonstrated Yesterday.

Freshmen were given a demonstration of artificial respiration yesterday morning in an assembly program sponsored by the American Red Cross.

Harry F. Comer, vice-chairman of the local relief organization, was introduced by Dean F. F. Bradshaw, who presided over the meeting, and told how the Red Cross functioned.

An outline of artificial resuscitation and the principles behind methods of life restoration were given by Lee Grier of the law school.

Has Many Uses

"Artificial respiration is useful not only in drowning cases, but also in cases of asphyxiation by gas or electric shocks," Grier said. "The breathing center becomes paralyzed following electric shock and no oxygen enters the lungs. The respiration administered forces out any foreign elements and gives the lungs a chance to function properly. This resuscitation method is valuable because one never knows when he may be able to help in saving a life," he concluded.

Ellis Fysal, assisted by three other students, then demonstrated the operation of artificial respiration. A show of hands proved that the majority of the class had had previous instruction in the process.

Dr. O. T. Binkley, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the devotionals.

Foreign Policy Head Appoints Committees

New committees of the Foreign Policy league for the year were named last night by Agnew Bahnson, new president of the league.

Professor K. C. Frazer of the government department gave a preliminary talk on the subject for discussion at the next meeting, the Nye investigation of munitions.

A program committee was named, along with an executive, college contact, and campus program committee.

The meeting adjourned early to permit the members to attend the anti-war conference in Gerrard hall.

RAINEY TO LEAD SOPHOMORE HOP

Second-year Men Select Leaders For Annual Fall Dance.

At a special sophomore assembly yesterday John Rainey was elected leader of the sophomore hop which will be held Saturday, November 24.

There was also appropriated an additional $50 to be used for the dance in case its cost came to more than was anticipated when the budget was made up.

Assistants to the chief dance leader were also elected at the meeting. They are Billy Lamm, Tracy Spencer, Jim Findley, Ben Carlyle, Jack Cay, and Jim Poindexter.

The dance will be formal. Les Brown of Duke, who recently took over Nick Laney's orchestra, will play for the affair.

The entertainment will be held in the Tin Can and will be preceded on Friday night by the Di-Phi dance.

MANGUM WRITES FOR NEW REVIEW

November Alumni Review Also Has Stories on University Day and Tech Game.

Copies of the November issue of the Alumni Review, which came out yesterday, are on their way today to 2,500 subscribers carrying news of the University and its graduates.

The lead story of the Review is an account of the observation of the 141st University Day by alumni groups from New York City to San Francisco.

Mangum on Football

Dr. Charles S. Mangum, '91, dean of the school of medicine, "recalls football's genesis at Chapel Hill" in an unusual article, telling how the first Carolina team, on which sophomore Mangum played, took a strenuous one-week "winter practice" course from Hector Cowan, Princeton star, in February, 1889.

This occasion was the first time American football had been seen at Carolina, although in the fall of that year Dr. Mangum's class of sophomores had organized a "football team" which played a modification of the English game.

Recent Win

An account of the Tar Heels' recent 26-0 triumph over Georgia Tech is carried, along with two action pictures of the game. Montgomery's second touchdown and the start of Jackson's 52-yard trip to the Tech goal line are displayed.

Freshmen who are sons and daughters of alumni are also shown in a picture.

French Survive New Administrative Crisis

Paris, Nov. 9.—(UP)—The French Republic temporarily survived another political crisis early today when Premier Pierre Etienne-Flandin, left-republican leader, announced that he had succeeded in forming "a truce cabinet" to succeed the ministry of Gaston Doumergue, which resigned yesterday because of financial constitutional reform policies.

Flandin planned to present his list of ministers to President Albert LeBrun immediately at the Elysee palace.

Flandin is the youngest premier in French history, being only 45 years old.

Freshmen Sweep Into Office All Mullis Party Candidates

BAND MEETS TOMORROW TO ENTRAIN WITH TEAM

The University band will leave with the football team on the train tomorrow morning, Walter King, president of the organization, announced yesterday.

Members are to meet at 7:45 o'clock tomorrow morning at Pittsboro street. The train will leave at 8:00 o'clock.

SYMPHONY PLANS TOUR NEXT WEEK

Concerts to be Played in Eastern North Carolina; Season's First Long Trip.

The North Carolina Symphony orchestra will play three concerts in eastern North Carolina during next week, Lamar Stringfield, conductor, announced yesterday.

The first concert will be played Tuesday night at the Eastern Carolina Teachers College at Greenville.

Wednesday night the orchestra will play at the high school auditorium at Goldsboro. Thursday night a concert will be presented in the Hugh Morson high school auditorium, Raleigh.

First Long Tour

The tour into eastern North Carolina will be the first long trip the orchestra has attempted since the fall season began in September. During the past two months the orchestra has played numerous concerts in the Piedmont section of the state.

These concerts have been in Winston-Salem, where headquarters are being maintained, Charlotte, Greensboro, High Point, Hickory, and Danville, Va. The Little Symphony group has also played at Buie's Creek and Red Springs.

This tour will take the orchestra to Goldsboro for the first time since the symphony society was organized in 1932. The orchestra has played previously at Greenville and Raleigh.

UNIVERSITY CLUB PLANS PROGRAM ON WDNC TODAY

Griffin and Snyder to Speak; to Broadcast Records.

At a meeting of the University club in Graham Memorial last night, the program for the weekly broadcast over WDNC, Durham, at 5:00 o'clock this afternoon was planned.

Scott Holman, a member of the Chi Psi fraternity, was elected into the membership of the club.

The radio program today over WDNC will feature phonograph records by Bill Allsbrook, Hal Kemp, and Ted Weems. Allsbrook will play "Hark the Sound," Hal Kemp will play "Strange," "Irresistible," "Why Am I Blue?" and "Washington and Lee Swing." Ted Weems will play "Ten Yards to Go."

After these records have been played, Ezra Griffin will give a short talk on the activities of the Foreign Policy league at the University, followed by a talk by Jake Snyder on the Carolina-Davidson game tomorrow.

It was also voted that Kay Kyser should be sent a vote of thanks for his dedication of a program to Carolina on the eve of the Georgia game.

Balloting Follows Ardent Campaigning

Winners Are Pete Mullis, Bud Wooten, Joe Patterson, and Paul Darden.

RECEIVE LARGE MAJORITY

The Clyde Mullis party swept all candidates on its ticket into office yesterday in the annual freshman elections.

The first-year men selected Clyde Mullis president; Bud Wooten, vice-president; Joe Patterson, secretary; and Paul Darden, treasurer.

Mullis easily carried the office of president with Bricklemyer, the Campus party candidate, and Nick Read, independent candidate, trailing in that order.

Votes

Mullis received 336 votes; Bricklemyer, 130; and Read, 82.

For vice-president, Wooten piled up 309 votes to Graves' 233. Patterson received in the secretary race 313; Ellison, 236. For treasurer, Darden was given 320; Jordan, 168; and Dixon, 60.

Voting took place all day yesterday in Graham Memorial.

The casting of ballots was supervised by the student council.

The candidates for these offices were nominated in the freshman assembly last Tuesday. On Wednesday each nominee for president made his campaign speech and presented his platform. Wednesday night the Mullis party staged a pep rally with a torchlight parade around the campus ending with several speeches in Gerrard hall.

IRISH POET GIVES READING SUNDAY

Stephens Will Also Speak in Gerrard Hall Tuesday on "The Irish Renaissance."

James Stephens, famous Irish poet, novelist, and critic, will appear here to read selections from his poetry Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial and again Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall to lecture on "The Irish Renaissance."

Stephens is rated among the great modern literary figures and as a conversationalist he is almost without equal.

"Crock of Gold"

Among the most famous of the Irishman's productions is "The Crock of Gold," one of his first books to receive distinctive recognition in America.

Other works, equally great, include "Deidre," "In the Land of Youth," "Etched in Moonlight," "Little Things," and "Green Branches." Various volumes of Stephens' collected verse have appeared.

Only recently did the poet and novelist leave his native Ireland for source material. However, the last few years have seen Stephens using material gathered on his visits to America and England. Only recently the first volume of an anthology of nineteenth century British verse was compiled and edited by him.

Faculty Meets Today

The general faculty will meet at 4:00 o'clock today in Bingham hall.

PARAGRAPHICS

If we can just keep Rameses III at home, we may have a chance to beat Duke.

So Mussolini is making the Italians shave off their beards. Now we can see what this fascism thing is about.

Gertrude Stein confused New York reporters by speaking plainly. As Gertie would say—a reporter is a reporter is a reporter is a reporter.

Double Protest

It was by no means an accident that the anti-war conference which began last night should be more commonly known by its anti-war proclivities than by its opposition to fascism. Yet we are reminded by the title of the organization sponsoring it that the conference seeks to bind both war and fascism in its portfolio of undesirables. From that there arises a number of implications which is not always taken into account. The phrase "against war and fascism" includes at the same time a protest against civilization's greatest detriment and against the mother which has fostered it since the dawn of national supremacy.

Fascism is another name for nationalism. It is, moreover, the culmination of that politico-economic thesis. Nationalism, beginning in the sixteenth century and achieving the goal of its struggles in the late nineteenth, has merged into a farther stage, which is fascism, to date the high point of this phase of world politics. Interwoven with it has been war, the chief instrument of nationalism, and the only effective means that it has to enforce its will, and preserve the thread intact.

When students cry out against war, they deplore fascism and ultimately nationalism. For every protest they make, the world is that much better for it,—but, at present, no nearer to the goal of internationalism, which has been so effectively mocked and marred by farcical conferences for disarmament. The way is long and the way is hard. The abnegation of nationalism in fact as well as in word will be a long time coming, but the student work that is being done toward it is a glimmer in the present darkness which courage and faith will light to a better day.

Amusing Survey

Up at New York University the class of 1919 was polled and the results were very enlightening. For instance, the average member of the class "has gained twenty pounds, added five inches to his girth, and lost most of his hair." About one-fourth of the class, the poll revealed, have married, half of whom admit being "henpecked." Their favorite hobbies are reading and hiking. Their favorite card game is bridge and their golf score is about 105.

It just occurred to us that it would be a delightful thing if we would conduct a poll of, say, the class of 1910 and see just what the old boys are doing and how they have changed since their undergraduate tenure in the good old days.

Student Control Solely By Students

On the Dartmouth college campus a plan is operating embracing student control of dormitories. The dormitories accepting the plan—and acceptance is voluntary—have free rein in the formulation of all regulations, policies, and administrative details.

Student government on most campuses is relegated to part participation by the students and ultimate control by the faculty administration. The Dartmouth plan is a break from this system with the students both originating and carrying out the administrative stipulations of student government.

In turning over the disciplinary power of the student body, the Dartmouth administration has not set forth any rules as "advisable, fitting, or extremely necessary." The students are allowed to make their own rules about drinking, quiet hours, dormitory conduct, and such phases needing attention. The beauty of the plan lies in the natural check which follows from the stipulations which the students require of themselves; it is the good of the group which is the ultimate authority in the student code.

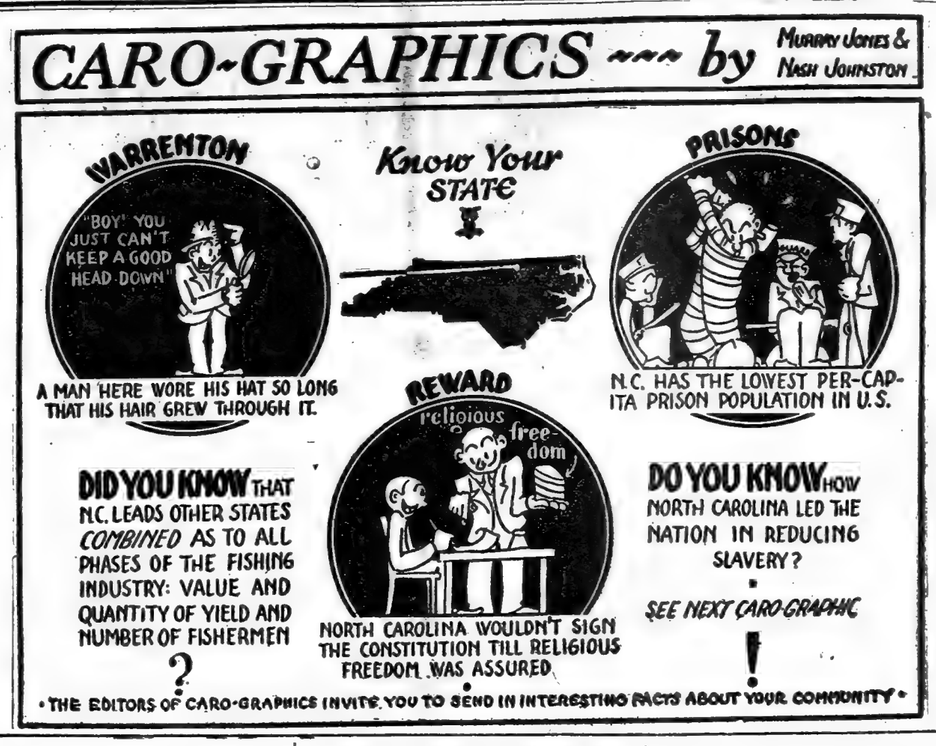
"The observance of the recognized standard of morality, good order, and gentlemanly behavior" leaves the students free to decide what that standard will be. And when the standard will determine student policy, the students will be careful to maintain the standard at the highest possible level.

Our dormitory experiment in Everett differs in that the ultimate authority is still the student council's and the faculty's, but the regulations originate with the students. Our experiment will present even more interesting facts if we can compare its development and methods with what the New Hampshire hillers are doing in their even broader revision of student administration.

A Good Reason

Further reasons for the retention of the engineering unit of the University in Chapel Hill are included in Dean H. G. Baity's discussion of the proposal. Dean Baity, former engineering head here, brings out the almost untouched point concerning library facilities.

Says Dr. Baity: "In any field of higher education the library constitutes the strongest and most indispensable means of instruction. Through more than a century of great effort and good fortune there has been brought to Chapel Hill a rich and irreplaceable store of library materials pertaining to engineering and the allied sciences that are constantly utilized in instruction and investigation. It is by far the best in the south, carefully selected, and comprises complete sets of the publication of all the important engineering and scientific societies of this and foreign countries . . . . None of these facilities, except a few recent engineering books bought out of state appropriations, could be transferred."



The library at the Raleigh unit is far from being equal to Chapel Hill's store of wealth, and, as Dr. Baity suggests, the great bulk of this valuable material must remain here. It can be truthfully maintained that a large part of the success of the local engineering unit has been directly or indirectly resultant from the excellent library and research facilities. To move the school to Raleigh, then, would rob the engineering school of an integral cog in its training machinery.

Approval Of The Nation

With the Democratic party more firmly embedded in both the House and the Senate than ever before as a result of Tuesday's elections, there is an opportunity for President Roosevelt and his Democratic backers in Congress to blaze the way to a new path of prosperity. Never before has a president had such a large majority in Congress behind him. The election also shows the nation as a whole approves the preliminary steps of the New Deal and urges him to go ahead in his progressive policies. Now is the time for the United States, under the inspired leadership of Roosevelt, to find a way out of the depths of the worst depression this country has ever known.

It is to be hoped that those who were defeated in the recent elections will allow the President to go forward without constantly harassing him with unfair criticism and useless suggestions. That might have been all right before the election, on the ground that it was merely political, but now co-operation must be the keyword.

Under the bi-partisan system of government which we have, valid criticism of the administration is admissible and welcome, and the duel of party principles is an effective check on any administration. But since the will of the people, so clearly demonstrated even in an off-year election, shows that their sympathy is all in favor of the New Deal, it is up to the Republican party to modify its standards—or else cease to hinder a foregone program in government.

Duke Professor Opens Anti-War Conference

China lies in an attempt to arm against Japan.

"If China tries to compete with Japan in industry or in a militaristic way, they are lost. If China does not become infected with the nationalism of the west, there will be little or no danger. China is necessary to Japanese trade and her recent boycott is now sending Japan into bankruptcy."

Fletcher Speaks

In discussing the munitions industry racket, Dr. Fletcher revealed that as late in the World War as 1917, British and American soldiers were found to have been wounded by shells made by the British concern of Vickers-Armstrong company and sold to the enemy.

During the Boer War, Sir Basil Zaharoff, acting as salesman for Vickers, not only sold British arms to the rebels as well as to the British, but secured credit for the Dutch from no other place than the Bank of England, Fletcher stated.

As regards the operations of manufacturers of arms in the United States, the speaker pointed out the rise of steel stocks shortly after Congress adopted the Vinson Navy Bill last winter, with its original appropriation of $100,000,000.

Dr. Fletcher was preceded on the speakers program last night by Professor of Government E. J. Woodhouse, who indicated some of the danger spots in the world where there is the possibility of the outbreak of war.

Woodhouse pointed out that while Japan realizes she cannot defeat the United States in a war of the future, there is reason to believe she contemplates control of the Pacific in the event of future hostilities.

"A Russo-Japanese war could easily lead to a world war," the speaker maintained, and called attention to the fact that Australia's proximity to Japan could easily involve the British Empire. "Yet," he declared in closing, "I think we are building up a resistance against war in this country and other countries."

He cited as one of the hopeful factors the disinclination of Great Britain in particular, and the whole United Kingdom in general, to go to war.

Tonight's program will include the following speakers: Dr. Meno Spann, speaking on "International Difficulties That Exist"; Dr. E. E. Ericson, on "Fascism and War Psychology"; Joe Sugarman, Carolina Magazine editor, on "The Liberal Student View"; and Bill Levitt, permanent chairman of the conference, on "The Radical Student Viewpoint on War and Fascism."

Varsity Takes Long Drill; Makes Finishing Touches

Whole Squad Is Ready For Strong Wildcats; Shaffer Works.

Work Under New Arc Lights At Emerson Field.

Coach Snavely sent his squad through another long but light drill yesterday, working until well after dark under the new floodlight at Emerson field.

Charlie Shaffer, brilliant kicker and ball toter, took his first workout since the injury to his knee last week. The star senior under the instructions and watchful eyes of Trainer Quinlan took it easy, just kind of getting the feel of his injured leg.

Shaffer will not be used in the battle with Davidson Saturday but it is hoped that he will be in top condition for the all important contest with the Blue Devils next week. The Greensboro boy tried his kicking leg for a while and got off several punts that carried for some 50 yards.

Polished Defense

The Tar Heels spent most of the afternoon polishing their defense against the Davidson plays, paying special attention to the passing attack which gained so much ground against Duke a few weeks ago.

The varsity also ran through its plays in a touch scrimmage. The same quartet of Montgomery, Jackson, Snyder, and Hutchins, which performed so well against Georgia Tech, made up the first string backfield.

Coach Snavely spent quite a bit of time working with his reserves in a touch scrimmage with the freshmen. The Carolina mentor hopes to use his reserves during a large part of the Wildcat contest so that the first eleven will not have to take too many chances with the Duke battle looming so near.

However, the Tar Heels may be in for a surprise and as a result may need everything to even get a victory over the speedy Davidson club. Coaches Walt Skidmore and Lefty James, who have been scouting the Wildcats for the past few weeks, state that the 'Cats have about the best passing attack they have seen, plus a number of pony backs who can really go once they get by the line of scrimmage.

The contest will be the Homecoming affair for Davidson and indications are that the Wildcats have been pointing to this battle for the past several weeks. The way their attack has started

State-V.P.I. Tilt Heads Portsmouth Week-end

Portsmouth, Va., Nov. 8.—Quite complete and elaborate plans are nearing an end here today for the gala gridiron "natural" between North Carolina State College and Virginia Polytechnic Institute and for all the extra trimmings which will go with it.

The S. I. C. football battle will be one of the closest matches of the week-end's schedule and a large crowd is expected to be on hand at the Washington Street Park.

The Portsmouth Lodge No. 898, Loyal Order of Moose, is sponsoring the affair which will feature a big dance in the huge city auditorium Saturday night and a gigantic Armistice Day parade, with local military corps and the V. M. I. Cadets co-operating. Clint Turner and his nationally known orchestra will play for the dance.

Dates Now Set For Intramural Mat Tourney

Nov. 21-22 Selected For Annual Competition; Large Squad Working Out.

The annual intramural wrestling tournament, to be held November 21 and 22 in the Tin Can, was announced yesterday by Herman Schnell, director of intramural athletics.

A squad of over 50 men are working out daily under the direction of Mac Auman, last year's varsity star, preparing either to participate on the team or in the tournament. Many of the 1934 varsity wrestlers have offered to aid men interested in the tournament.

Mural Points

The first five teams with most entrants in the tournament shall receive 50 down to 10 points. Team winners shall receive the same proportionate number of points awarded those having the most entrants. Individual winners shall receive 25 points; runners-up, 15.

Last year's team winner was Ruffin dormitory, with the individual titlists as follows: 118-pound class, Lowder (Ruffin); 126-pound class, Douglas (Sigma Chi); 135-pound class, M. C. Ward (Best House); 145-pound class, Donnell (Ruffin); 155-pound class, Northcross (A. T. O.); 165-pound class, Simonds (S A. E.); 175-pound class, Macphee (Theta Kappa Nu); Unlimited class, Dalzell (Lambda Chi Alpha).

Prospective team and individual entrants are requested to file entries as soon as possible with the manager at the Tin Can, as workouts will probably be required before competition is allowed in the tournament.

LEVITAN-DE GRAY PAIR ENTER FINAL

Ride Roughshod Over Henderson And Willis; Other Semi-Final Set For Today.

Walter Levitan and Eddy De Gray, the top-seeded combination that has been raising havoc in the ranks of doubles teams, continued on their merry way by blasting Archie Henderson and Ricky Willis off the courts and out of the tourney yesterday afternoon.

Opening fast and continuing at the same pace, they galloped through both sets with surprising ease over a combination that was expected to provide a great deal more competition before yielding in the title race. De Gray and Levitan scored at 6-2, 6-1, and the prospects appear rather dark for the other pair of finalists.

The remaining semi-final contest brings Johnny Foreman and Gene Robinson into conflict with the high flying pair of Harvey Harris and Byron Abels in the dispute for a final berth. The match is scheduled for today and the contestants are requested to appear for their match, so that the tournament may be brought to a conclusion this Monday.

EXCITING GAMES FEATURE MURAL GRIDIRON PLAY

Sigma Chi Noses Out Phi Delts; Phi Sigma Kaps Rally To Beat A. T. O.

LAWYERS - SWAIN TODAY

Four fine games topped yesterday's program in the intramural tag football leagues as Sigma Chi nosed out Phi Delta Theta 7-6, Phi Sigma Kappa beat A. T. O. 19-12, Kappa Sigma conquered Delta Tau Delta 13-6, and the Y. M. C. A. turned back Grimes 13-0.

The Sigma Chi-Phi Delt encounter was probably the most exciting of the afternoon as both teams forced across one touchdown, but Neal's dropkick conversion settled the issue. Sigma Chi tallied first as Neal carried the oval over and then added the point that was to prove the margin of victory.

The Phi Deltas retaliated and Tucker scored on a pass in the second half. The failure to make good the free try cost them the game as Sigma Chi had been outscored eight to three in first downs.

Great Battle

Phi Sigma Kappa and A.T.O. also furnished with a lively battle that saw the winners rally to push across two touchdowns in the final minutes of play. The score stood 6-all at the half after Kaveny had passed to Womble for the first score, and Blanton's pass to Hawley evened things up shortly afterwards for A. T. O.

Midway through the second half Johnny Hawley, standing in the shadow of his own goal,

VARSITY HARRIER SQUAD TURNS IN FINE TRIAL RUN

Tar Babies All Set For Opener Against Wildkittens Tomorrow Morning.

McRAE BETTERS RECORD

The Tar Heel harrier team turned in one of the best group runs ever run over the regular Southern Conference five-mile course yesterday in some fast time trials and Ed McRae led the team to chalk up the best time ever registered for a time trial.

The varsity squad took the time run in place of the Davidson meet which was scheduled for tomorrow but has been cancelled. They remain idle until next Saturday when they meet Duke's Southern Conference champions.

McRae Gets Hot

McRae turned in a time of 27:50, compared with the record for the course set by Galen Elliott of Carolina several years ago at 26:26 minutes. The whole team looked good as it stayed fairly well-bunched together

These Air Cats

Davidson, Nov. 8.—The Davidson Wildcats, with a season's record of completed passes that stands well above 50 per cent, raised this average in the game against Catawba last Saturday, completing seven out of 11 attempted tosses. Credit for this record goes to Captain Johnny Mackorell, who does most of the throwing, and "Big Jim" Morgan, who is on the receiving end of most of the attempts.

WALTER LEVITAN WINS OVER WILLIS IN NET THRILLER

Conquers in Straight Sets in Brilliant Battle; Goodes Overcomes Kasen.

MANY LADDER DISPUTES

Ricky Willis, diminutive varsity star, made a gallant attempt to wrest the top ranking from Walter Levitan yesterday afternoon, but failed by the narrowest of margins, as he went down in defeat by 8-6, 6-4 scores.

The match was a thriller throughout with both players unleashing a barrage of sparkling strokes as they fought tooth and nail to the very end. Willis, with remarkable shots simply streaming from his racquet, ran into an early lead as his backhand counted time and time again during the opening set.

Willis Starts Fine

After trailing by two games, Levitan successfully fought through the next four games to lead at 4-2. However, Willis' backhand again sizzled into the corners and Ricky regained the lead at 5-4. Levitan, battling desperately, succeeded in smothering the backhand long enough to knot the set but immediately went behind at 6-5. Here again he rose to heights and his stonewall defense finally brought results and he continued on to win the set at 8-6.

Willis opened the next set with another display of dazzling shots that passed Levitan and stepped into a 3-0 lead. Levitan,

Baby Gridders Work Sluggishly On Eve Of Clemson Encounter

Scrimmage With Varsity Shows Up Yearlings' Weakness on Aerial Defense.

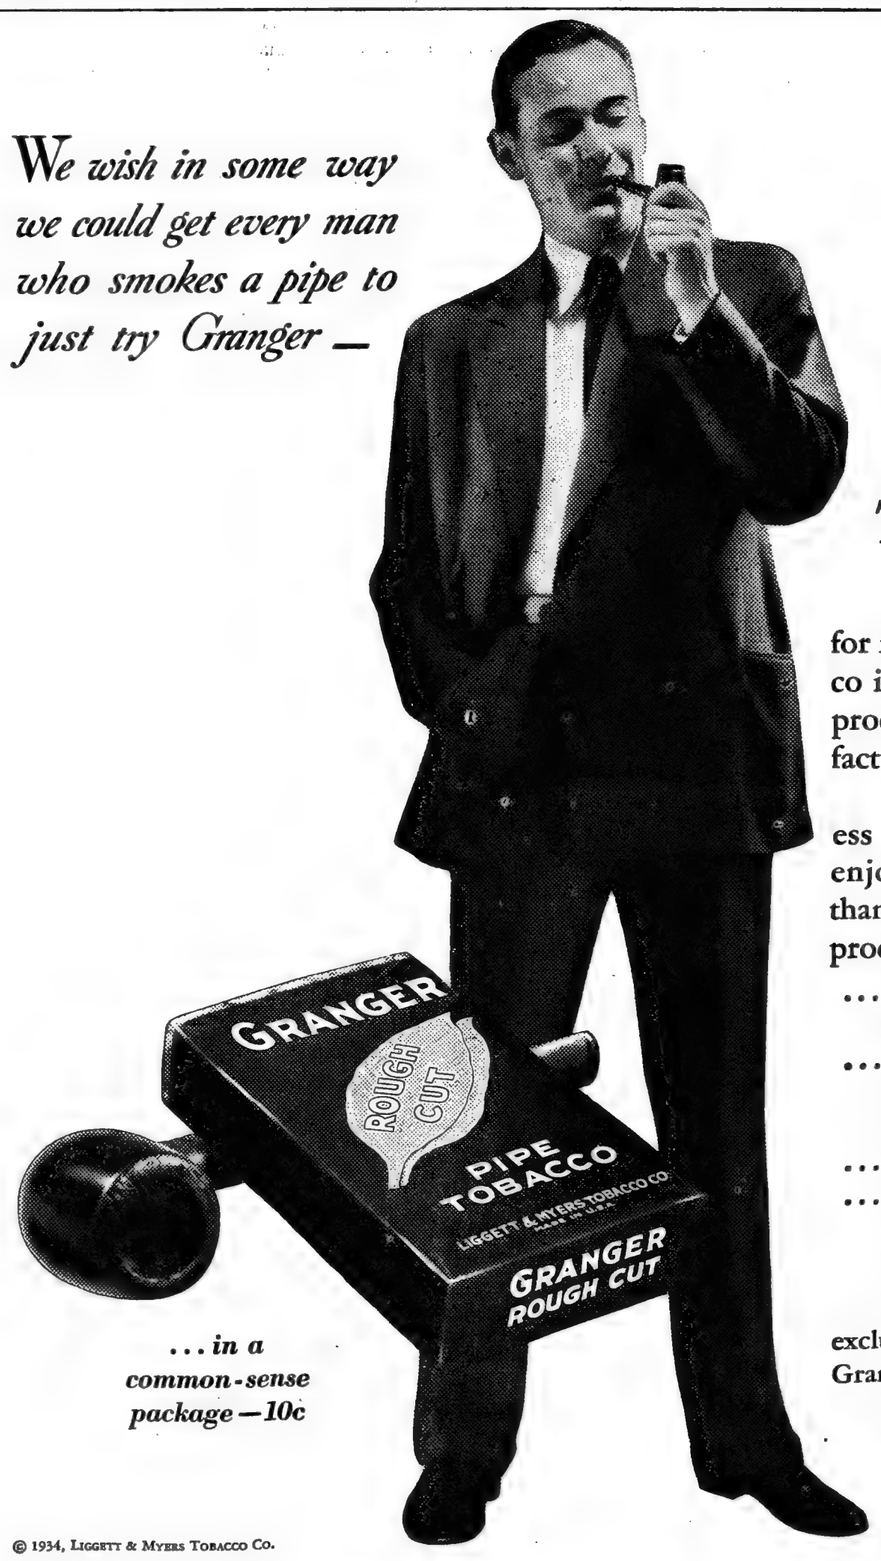
BATTLE IN ASHEVILLE

Jamesmen to Meet Undefeated South Carolina Eleven; to Be Close Fight.

The Tar Babies came up against the varsity in a dummy scrimmage yesterday on Emerson field, and managed to show very little on the offense and still less on the defense.

The varsity first and second stringers completely monopolized the two hours of play and aside from a few well-executed forward passes the yearlings were out of the running all the way.

Coming up against the varsity second eleven, the first-year men made their only good showing of the day when Ed Oliver completed several passes and "Bunny" Burnette got off a few short runs.



Weak Air Defense

In this first scrimmage the Babies were notably weak on their aerial defense. This is not the first time that the freshmen have appeared weak in this defense. Since the Clemson team is known to depend quite a bit on their air game, the frosh will have to do a lot of improving between now and Monday if they are to stop the strong Tiger Cubs.

With arc lights taking the place of day-light the freshmen took on the veteran varsity regulars. They were given the pigskin and told to punt, and for the first time since the beginning of this season, "Bunny"

First Magazine Issue Interesting Contrast To Present Journal

Originally Published by Committee of Senior Class.

First issued in 1844 by a committee from the senior class, the Carolina Magazine has been published almost continuously for ninety years. During that period many men of prominence in this state have contributed to it.

The first issue of the Carolina Magazine, introduced by its editors with "all the uneasy gawkishness of a blushing debutante," contained 48 small, badly-printed pages. Much of the material in it was borrowed from other periodicals of the day. It ranged in subject matter from an account of the presentation of some Ojibway Indians to Queen Victoria to an article on national courtesy.

Contrast

The first issue offers an interesting contrast to the 32 page November issue which appeared on the campus yesterday for the first time. Inaugurating a new format, Joe Sugarman's magazine is neatly set up, beautifully arranged.

By 1852 the Literary Societies had taken over the management of the Magazine. It was in that year that Z. B. Vance, who later became one of North Carolina's best governors and United States senators, served as one of its editors. During the latter part of the nineteenth century, many men who were to become famous contributed articles to the Magazine. Three future presidents of the University were among this number. They were F. P. Venable, E. A. Alderman, and E. K. Graham. Venable was a professor when he wrote for the Magazine; Alderman and Graham were students when they wrote.

Notables

At intervals between 1900 and 1910, the Carolina Magazine carried articles written by two professors in the University who later became notable as writers; Archibald Henderson, biographer and historian, and C. Alphonso Smith, English scholar. Early in this period, in 1901, J. C. B. Ehringhaus, present governor of the state, served as business manager of the Magazine.

Two of the south's most outstanding young writers of the present time, Paul Green, playwright, and Tom Wolfe, novelist, wrote for the Magazine during the period about 1920. Most of Green's contributions were poems; Wolfe's consisted of two short stories, "Concerning Honest Bob," and "Deferred Payment." Among the present members of the faculty who have contributed to the Magazine are C. P. Russell, A. S. Wheeler, and George Howe.

Creech Leaves

Walter D. Creech of the Romance language department will attend today and tomorrow the meeting of the French section of the Eastern Carolina Teachers' association.

It is before this meeting that the French play, "Topaze," will be presented by the French club. Creech is president of the French section of the teachers' association.

EDWARDS MAKES TALK

The North Carolina chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national honorary geological fraternity, met last night to hear R. A. Edwards of the geology department speak on the geological formation of Niagara Falls.

DUKE PROFESSOR TALKS TO 'Y' CABINETS MONDAY

Dean Elbert Russell of the school of religion at Duke University will address a joint-meeting of all the Y. M. C. A. cabinets in Gerrard hall Monday night.

Dean Russell will speak on the following subject: "Can a Christian Conscientiously Go to War?"

Russell has appeared in Chapel Hill on numerous previous occasions. He is the author of several books and a constant contributor to religious and peace topics.

The public is invited to attend the lecture.

"Shroud Me Down" New Name Of Play

Paul Green, author of the new play scheduled to be produced by the Carolina Playmakers December 6, 7, 8, tentatively decided yesterday to use "Shroud Me Down" as the title for the drama.

Several other titles were under consideration including: "The Honeycomb" or "Dove in the East."

Professor Samuel Selden, in charge of the new production, announced yesterday that the staff had narrowed the individual try-outs to four or five persons for each part.

The final cast will be announced tomorrow, he stated. Further try-outs will be conducted at the theatre tonight.

Green's play will be done stylistically with an original musical score, adding a new note to the Playmakers work.

Spann Will Organize New Language Group

Under the supervision of Dr. Meno Spann, the first meeting of the German language club is scheduled for Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

Dr. Spann's purpose in forming the club is to give the students taking German an opportunity to converse in German, to learn about German affairs, and to learn German songs and games.

This club will be very different from the informal club of last year which met at Dr. E. C. Metzenthin's home. All students who are taking or have taken German are urged to attend the meetings.

Crop Curtailment Urged By Governor

Farmville, Nov. 8.—(UP)—Governor John C. B. Ehringhaus and Congressman Lindsay Warren spoke to 4,000 tobacco growers here today.

Governor Ehringhaus urged the farmers to co-operate so that they might reap real prosperity.

The purpose of the meeting was to stimulate an immediate "sign-up" campaign for the continuance of the national crop curtailment program and for the urging of a 50 per cent maximum penalty to be imposed upon non-signers and over-producers.

Tar Baby Gridders Work Sluggishly

Burnette failed to get off anything resembling a good kick.

In the scrimmage the Tar Babies hit a new low on defense, when they consistantly failed to stop the end runs and trick plays, which the varsity executed successfully with apparent ease.

Coach James will most likely make his final decision today on the personnel of the group which will travel to Asheville for the Armistice Day game.

LIBRARY CANVASS BEING MADE NOW

Campaign Conducted by Children's Library Association.

The Children's Library association is making a canvass this week to secure funds for carrying on the library work, it was announced yesterday.

Parents of the children in the lower grades in the Chapel Hill school are especially asked to renew their membership. The fee remains $1 per family.

The members of the association stated that contributions have steadily decreased for the past several years while, on the other hand, the service of the library has more than doubled. Should this year's campaign not be more successful, the library will be greatly handicapped in carrying out its regular work.

Contributions may be made to R. H. Wettach, treasurer; Gladys Evans, librarian; or to Mrs. U. T. Holmes, president of the association.

Exciting Games Feature Intramural Grid Play

took the ball from center, dropped back, and threw a long 50-yard pass to Spencer, who exhibited some fine open field running over the remaining distance to send A. T. O. into a lead.

With but four minutes to play Kaveny sent a 35-yard pass to Womble for his second score to tie matters at 12-12. The deadlock was broken soon after as Kaveny intercepted a pass and journeyed 35 yards for the deciding tally. Mahoney booted the lone extra of the game. George at tackle for the winners was also outstanding.

After holding a slight 7-6 lead at half time the Kappa Sigma gridsters pushed over another six-pointer in the final half to gain a 13-6 win over the Delta Tau Delta combine. May scored the winners' first touchdown on an end run, and shot a pass to Simpson for the point after. The Deltas' sole score came after Shores passed to McCallren. May passed to Rosser for the final tally.

The Y. M. C. A. gridders returned to action to score two touchdowns in the first half and humble Grimes by a 13-0 margin. Both teams garnered six first downs. Daniel and Glenn accounted for six-pointers and Pool added the extra point.

St. Anthony forfeited to Phi Gamma Delta. The Ruffin-Old West game has been postponed.

Today's games:

4:30—(1) Law School vs. Swain Hall, (2) Z. B. T. vs. Lambda Chi Alpha.

Loftin Is Appointed To Chemistry Post

Dr. A. S. Wheeler, acting head of the chemistry department, assigned J. C. Loftin to new duties as lecture demonstrator for general chemistry, it was announced yesterday.

Loftin, besides being a demonstrator in the lecture hall, designs and makes apparatus for demonstrations. The set-ups which have already been assembled, numbering about 30, will be preserved for future use.

Among the laws illustrated by these set-ups are Boyle's law, Charles' law, expansion of gases, electroplating, and bleaching.

GOVERNMENT JOBS OPEN

Eight government positions are open at present subject to civil service examination, announced S. W. Bynum, local postmaster this week.

Closing dates for most of these examinations are November 23.

WALTER LEVITAN WINS OVER WILLIS

playing with equal brilliance, kept pounding the ball back with superb returns, and finally slowed Willis to an extent, which enabled him to sweep through to a 6-4 set and match.

It was a sparkling clash and although Willis was finally humbled, he put up a wonderful exhibition before yielding to the superior play of the varsity captain.

Other Matches

The only other ladder match of the day saw Gene Goodes, holding down the bottom rung on the varsity squad, easily come through his first defense of that spot, as he handed the mighty Kasen a 6-2, 6-4 setback. Goodes, having entered the select group of ten with an upset over Jimmy Johnston the other day, has already been challenged by five unranked players who again have hopes of making a position on the squad.

There were two disputes settled Wednesday that have not been mentioned. The first was Jimmy Bloom's third successive win in as many days, as he successfully did away with Kirven's threatening claim by 6-2, 6-3 counts.

Seymore Fast, playing fine ball, set back Johnny Yeomans in surprisingly easy fashion to retain sixth position in the other. He had little difficulty in the first set and less in the second as he went through at love. The scores were 6-3, 6-0, showing the ease of the conquest. Both these matches were in the freshman division.

This competitive ladder system has proved to be the present rage of the courts and challenges are the fashion. The small tags, having the names of the players, are enjoying a merry chase over the various hooks as upset after upset is recorded.

Bull's Head To Have Book Review Program

A group of book reviews by several students in the University library school will be the feature of the Bull's Head lecture program Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the bookshop, it was announced yesterday.

J. E. Greenaway, Miss Nancy McDaniel, and Miss Catherine Cline, will be the principal speakers on the program.

"Lust for Life," a life story of Van Gogh by Irving Stone; "Nijinsky," a biography of the famous ballet dancer by his wife, Romola; "Twenty Years of Growing," another biography by Maurice O'Sullivan, will be among the books discussed.

functioning is shown in the easy 18-0 victory over the previously undefeated Catawba eleven.

Davidson's starting line will average 193 pounds to Carolina's 189. However, the Tar Heels' backfield tops their rival backs 173 to 163, although the Wildcat backs will pack a little more speed in the shoes of Mackorell, Yarborough, Verble, Hutchens, Wingfield, and company.

It is believed that Bill Moore, letter end, will be in shape to go Saturday. Coach Snavely is grooming big Murray Kanner just in case an extra end reserve is needed.

McCarn in Homecoming

Davidson alumni are still wondering how the Wildcats ever let Buck McCarn, who lives at Kannapolis almost in the shadow of the Presbyterian institution, get away from them.

MAGAZINE DISTRIBUTION

University students not living in Chapel Hill may receive copies of the Carolina Magazine today from Circulation Manager George Underwood in the DAILY TAR HEEL business office.

Underwood will be in the office during assembly period in the morning and in the afternoon from 2:00-3:00 and 4:00-5:00 o'clock.

The circulation head will also receive complaints from subscribers to the DAILY TAR HEEL at this time.

Varsity Harriers Turn In Fine Trial Run

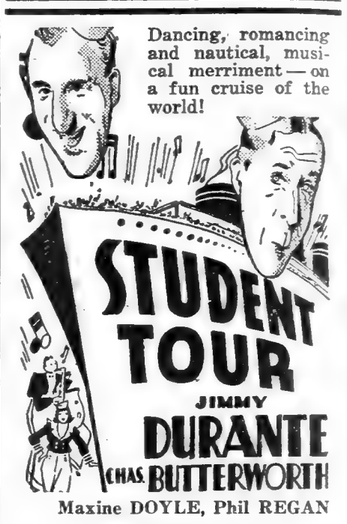
considering the good time.

Haywood Curlee and Louis Conte followed not far behind McRae. Fab Haywood ran in fourth place and the rest finished as follows: Gammon, Aderholt, Gardiner, Bower, Allen, Lynch, Kind, and Waters, Waldrop and Williamson did not run in the trials.

Great improvement was shown by several of this group who, with continued improvement, should break into the top-placing ranks. Conte ran up with McRae practically the whole distance but lacked the final great spurt which McRae displayed. Aderholt also showed improvement, being the first time he has run up with the leaders.



The yearlings took things easy, in preparation for their meet tomorrow morning at 11:30 o'clock in Davidson. The squad will leave this noon. Those making the trip include Rivers, Bronitsky, Gove, Anderson, Garland, and three of the following: Rowley, D'Ascensio, Flynt, Davison, and White.

Club Will Sponsor Sale Of Xmas Seals

Following the annual custom, the Community club will sponsor the local sale of Christmas seals. The chairman for this year's sale is Mrs. W. R. Berryhill.

The chairman for the sale is appointed by the president of the Community club. This chairman has as her assistants a finance committee of the local chapter of the National Tuberculosis association.

In former years the health department supervised the sale, but the growth of the town and the enlarging of this district has made it too great a burden for so small a department.

TALKS FROM ALL VIEWPOINTS END ANTI-WAR FORUM

Ericson Lays Problem Before Students; Blasts Their Lack of Idealism.

"FACE SHOCKING TRUTH"

The campus-wide anti-war conference came to a close late last night as a large crowd in Gerrard hall listened to speeches by Doctors Meno Spann and E. E. Ericson of the local faculty, Helen Clark, president of the Duke University League of Women Voters, Joseph Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, and Bill Levitt, member of the national executive committee of the national Student League.

Ericson, speaking on the topic of "Facism and War," brought the problem home to the college student by presenting the part he and this university play in the formation of attitudes toward war.

Liberalism in State

He expressed himself as discouraged by students in his classes who have no idealism. He disagreed with those who believe the people of North Carolina to be too ignorant to respond to intelligent arguments, and declared, "I have been surprised at the amount of liberal sentiment in North Carolina."

"The thing to do," he continued, "is to put the facts up before the people, let them be shocked by them, and dare them to do the thing they think is not the truth."

Psychological Causes

Ericson was preceded on the program by Spann, who analyzed the psychological causes of war. He maintained that in the fundamental nature of man, there is a certain dullness and meanness which results in a hatred for other men whose ways of living are not the same as his own. Spann conceded that cultural and spiritual differences may grow out of racial differences, but he contended that international understanding could be brought about by eliminating man's innate meanness. This, he thought, could partially be attained through education.

Influence of Women

In line with Spann's talk was the one made by Miss Clark, who spoke on "Woman and War." She stressed the im-

Long Promises Starring Gridsters Titles

Players Outstanding Today Will Be Made Colonels.

New Orleans, Nov. 9.—(UP)—Huey Long informed Coach "Biff" Jones here today that he would make colonels of all the Louisiana State University footballers who distinguish themselves in tomorrow's game with George Washington.

This will place "Biff" in a unique position, because, after all his years of service to the army and football, he himself rates only a captain.

Now each of the coach's pupils who makes a touchdown tomorrow will outrank him.

Long also said that he would fix up special quarters for the adopted football team in the upper stories of the 35-story state capitol building.

Law Professor Will Aid In Oil Investigation

Breckenridge Is Appointed Attorney for House Probe.

M. S. Breckenridge of the University law school has been appointed to serve as attorney for a special committee of the House of Representatives to investigate the oil industry, particularly the producing and refining branches.

The committee, headed by Representative W. P. Cole, Jr., of Maryland, will assemble in St. Louis tonight to leave for Oklahoma City for its first hearing. Other hearings will be held later in Texas and California.

Breckenridge was associated with the House's interstate and foreign commerce committee in its recent oil and gas pipe line investigation.

UNIVERSITY BAND TO PLAY AT GAME

First Opportunity This Season To Play Away from Home.

The University band, 75 strong, will leave this morning on the train with the football team for Davidson, according to Walter King, president of the organization.

The band will play for the Carolina-Davidson Homecoming football game this afternoon, as guests of the Davidson College band.

The 75-piece organization, conducted by Earl A. Slocum, is one of the largest college bands in the state and is larger than other recent Carolina bands.

The trip to Davidson today will be the band's first opportunity this season to play away from Chapel Hill. Plans are being made to take the club to Charlottesville, Va., for the annual Thanksgiving football battle between Carolina and the University of Virginia.

RED CROSS DRIVE TO OPEN MONDAY

Inter-Fraternity and Friendship Councilmen Will Canvass For Contributions.

The University Y. M. C. A. will sponsor the local Red Cross campaign here next week, as a part of the national Roll Call program, it was announced yesterday.

The entire local program will be under the direction of Lee Greer, Phil Kind, and Jimmy Coan. Nelson Howard, field representative for the national Red Cross, will open the campaign with a short speech in freshman assembly Monday morning.

To Canvass Campus

Beginning Monday night, the Freshman Friendship council will cover the dormitories, renewing student memberships. The Intra-fraternity council has been invited by the Y.M.C.A. to carry on the campaign in the fraternity houses.

The annual membership fee for the Red Cross is $1 but open contributions will be solicited. A booth will be placed in the "Y" building to receive contributions through the week.

Women's Association Convenes Tuesday at Odum's.

The November meeting of the American Association of University women will occur at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday evening at the home of H. W. Odum on the Pittsboro road.

The association will not, Miss Cornelia Love announced yesterday, choose any one subject for its programs this year. The policy will be to invite speakers who are specialists to discuss recent developments of major importance.

All-American Alphabetic Aces Zoom And Zip Like Zestful Zebras

Football Followers Find Fairly Full Flock of Flashy Fellows Featuring Fastidious Fashions in Flamboyantly Fancy Families.

The annual selections popularly termed the all-American football teams are again beginning to flood the country. And as hard as we are pulling for Captain George Barclay to make that darn thing, it nearly broke our hearts when two such lists of selections came to our notice in the office yesterday and Barclay had been omitted from both. But after looking them over carefully, we think we have found the reason. It's all in his name!

It seems that out on the west coast "Uncle Jack" Oakie has just completed a picture entitled "College Rhythm," which has a great deal to do with football. He got so enthused over the sport that he sat right down and picked an all-American to end all all-Americans.

Izzat Zo

His idea was that if "Z" is the last letter in the alphabet, then his team is the last word in football squads. Here it is: ends, Zarza (Michigan State) and Zornow (Rochester); tackles, Zucco (Colgate) and Zukas (Temple); guards, Zegolis (Wayne) and Zeigler (Dickinson); center, Zimmerman (V. M. I.); quarter, Ziegel (Michigan State); halfbacks, Zaleski (West Virginia) and Zayachek (St. Bonaventure); fullback, Zuk (Buffalo). And Bob Zuppke for coach.

However, he showed the list to Lyda Roberti and she burned over the crack that there weren't many guys named "ski" playing football. Lyda, being more or less Polish, got all excited and picked herself an all-American team, claiming that Oakie didn't have exclusive rights to such.

The Skis the Limit

Here is the way she picked them: ends, Wojcinovski (Pitt) and Korchinski (Villanova); tackles, Yezerski (St. Mary's) and Schilawski (Indiana); guards, Chyczewski (Carnegie Tech) and Gurzynski (Temple); center, Osmaloski (Iowa); quarter, Pelcyznski (Buffalo); halfbacks, Brominski (Columbia) and Bialowski (Lafayette); fullback, Janowski (Wisconsin).

And, as Lyda remarked, this team can easily complete the longest pass in history. Brominski to Wojcinovski. In lesser words, from Pole to Pole.

A couple of teams like that would give any radio announcer a headache. But imagine Ted Husing or Graham McNamee trying to get this one off at a critical moment:

"Pitt's Nicksick quick-kicked!"

BISHOP TO TALK ON 'Y' PROGRAM

Francis J. McConnell of New York Will Speak at Meetings Here December 7.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell of New York City, one of the leading churchmen in the world today, has accepted the invitation of the University Y. M. C. A. to appear here Friday, December 7.

Bishop McConnell will speak three times during the day. In the morning he will lecture to a convocation of the entire student body in Memorial hall.

Evening Sessions

A mass meeting for Dr. McConnell's evening appearance and also a supper for the religious leaders of Chapel Hill are being planned by the Y. M. C. A. At the banquet, McConnell will be the principal speaker.

McConnell, a bishop in the Methodist church, is the author of numerous outstanding religious works and holds a leading position among the theologians and speakers of the world.

In 1931, he was invited to take part in the Human Relations Institute at the University to attend, but was unable.

McConnell's appearance here will be one of the first presentations on the Y. M. C. A. program for securing leading churchmen to visit the University.

Griffin and Snyder Talk In Weekly Broadcast

Foreign Policy League and Today's Game Discussed.

With "Hark the Sound," recorded by Kay Kyser and his orchestra, the University club opened another of its weekly broadcasts yesterday at 5:00 o'clock over WDNC, Durham.

Following the opening selection Hal Kemp rendered his interpretation of "Strange," with Skinny Ennis singing. Among the other records played during the broadcast were "Irresistible," "Why Am I Blue?" and "Washington and Lee Swing" by Hal Kemp, and "Ten Yards to Go" by Ted Weems.

Ezra Griffin and Jake Snyder were the speakers for the program.

In his talk on the activities of the Foreign Policy League at the University, Ezra Griffin emphasized the delicacy of the foreign question stating that "The international scheme is one to be handled with care."

Jake Snyder spoke on the Carolina-Davidson game to be played at Davidson today.

UTAH GETS CHAPTER OF PHI BETA KAPPA

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 9.—Phi Beta Kappa's 120th chapter will be installed December 5 when the University of Utah will be added to the society's roll.

Under the Utah charter only seniors will be eligible for appointment, 75 per cent of all courses must concern cultural subjects and only 10 per cent of all eligible candidates will be elected.

History-Government Majors

All majors in history and government who plan to take the comprehensive examination November 24 must see Dr. C. B. Robson in 302-303 Saunders not later than November 14.

Faculty Adds Howe, Van Hecke To Greater University Council

Plan of Curriculum Change Is Deferred

Dean Hobbs, Dr. Taylor, and Dr. Adams Elected to Faculty Advisory Committee.

WILSON MAKES REPORT

Dr. George Howe, head of the Latin department, and Dean M. T. Van Hecke of the law school were elected to the administrative council of the Consolidated University at the meeting of the faculty in Bingham hall late yesterday.

Dean A. W. Hobbs, Dr. G. C. Taylor, and Dr. N. B. Adams were elected to the faculty advisory committee. The election of these officers was accomplished only after three ballots had been taken.

The elections, together with the report of Secretary T. J. Wilson, Jr., University registrar, consumed the major portion of the two and one-half hour session.

Discuss Reorganization

No decision was reached by the faculty in the discussion of the plan presented by Dean Hobbs for the reorganization of the University curriculum with the addition of science courses.

There was a suggestion from the floor that the plan be deferred until the fall of 1936, when it would be put into effect with all the minor details worked out.

After desultory comment, questioning, and discussion, the plan was set aside for more discussion.

GRIDGRAPH TODAY

A play-by-play account of the Carolina-Davidson game will be shown on the gridgraph in Memorial hall at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. An admittance fee of 25 cents will be charged.

INFIRMARY HEAD CONTINUES TALKS

Berryhill Suggests Safeguards Against Common Cold in Second Address to Freshmen.

Dr. W. R. Berryhill of the University infirmary spoke again on the common cold at freshman chapel this morning in the second of a series of programs being given by the medical staff.

According to Dr. Berryhill, the purpose of the infirmary is to educate the students to a more intelligent understanding of and care of the body. He expressed the hope that by the time the class graduates it will have a good general idea of health problems.

Suggests Precautions

"In addition to the common methods of contact," Dr. Berryhill said, "cold virus may be carried by food. If the waiter has a cold, he may infect the eaters." After cautioning waiters in this respect, he told of cold virus conducting through clothes. The infirmary head urged the use of handkerchiefs in sneezing and coughing to diminish the possibility of infection.

"Castor oil will not cure a cold," Dr. Berryhill said as he exploded several popular cold theories. "A popular misuse of "sweating out" a cold often increases its seriousness. Many boys after taking a gym workout go into the cold air to their dormitories, making the cold worse.

"No single medicine will cure a cold. Popular advertized cures may relieve the symptoms but can not cure the cold."

Dean F. F. Bradshaw presided and Dr. O. T. Binkley, pastor of the First Baptist church, had charge of the devotionals. Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth will address the freshmen Friday.

NORA BEUST ADDRESSES MEETING OF TEACHERS

When the Education association of the central district of North Carolina met in Raleigh yesterday, Miss Nora Beust of the University school of library science addressed the primary teachers' section of reading. Miss Beust displayed several new books during her talk.

With a group of library school students, she attended the school library section of the same meeting. Miss Beust spoke on "New Books about Hobbies."

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDING

The preliminary Rhodes scholarship committee will select local representatives for further application for that reward at 10:00 o'clock this morning.

All applications must be in by that time.

Red Cross Roll Call

There will be a roll call of the American Red Cross at 8:00 o'clock tonight in the Methodist church.

N. C. HIGH DEBATE TOPIC ANNOUNCED

Query of Federal Aid to Education Will Be Discussed over NBC Network Wednesday.

The query for high school debates this year will be: Resolved, that the United States should adopt the policy of extending federal aid to general public education, E. R. Rankin, secretary of the High School Debating Union of North Carolina, announced yesterday.

The question will also be debated by 33 state high school leagues, since it has been chosen as the national high school debate topic for 1934.

Finals Here

High schools in North Carolina will enter a triangular debate series, with the winners to compete in the finals for the Aycock Cup in Chapel Hill next spring.

A debate on the same query will be broadcast over the NBC blue network from 3:00 to 4:00 o'clock Wednesday.

Supporting the affirmative side of the question are George McCarty of South Dakota State college, and Karl E. Mundt of East State Teacher's college, S. D.

Roy C. Brown of Virginia Intermont college, and L. L. Ewbank of the University of Wisconsin will uphold the negative.

Infirmary List

The students confined in the infirmary yesterday were H. P. Stalling, Francis Hodges, William Boone, Edward Serrem, Doris Weaver, Irving Suss, Phillip Brame, Carl Peiffer, and John Munyan.

PARAGRAPHICS

Here's to Mrs. Mullis' son—
Picked up three and carried one.

Our conception of world danger spots includes counterfeit fivers, the "X" in the newsphotographs, and odds on the Cincy Reds.

And if the election results made the Republicans turn pale, could it mean the G. O. P. has a white elephant on its hands?

Dangerous And Inexcusable

The town of Chapel Hill very justly takes offense at the reckless driving that a few of our car-owning students seem to delight in. The urgent need for saner driving within the town limits was brought to the fore last week when a little Chapel Hill girl was knocked down by a student driver. In connection with this occurrence, the Chapel Hill Weekly mentioned that about 25 or 30 students have been arraigned this year for speeding in town.

If this is true, it's time that those students who are car-owners should begin to "take stock" of their driving habits. Speeding on North Carolina's highways is bad enough—so bad, in fact, that nearly every newspaper in the state is clamoring for a state drivers' license law—but wanton recklessness in town is less excusable and more dangerous.

Worthwhile Expenditure

With all due modesty, the four University publications make their bows to the Publications Union board which approved a plan Thursday to increase their circulation among the alumni. "With all due modesty" because the student publications here feel that they are worthy of being sent out into the state as a readable and enjoyable contact between alumni and the University.

For its yet undetermined part in the new plan, the DAILY TAR HEEL begins by recalling that the paper was once sent out to the high schools of the state and to the major secondary schools outside of the state, from which process of dissemination it has the affrontery to feel that it has been instrumental in attracting students to the University. Not a few students who came to the University this year mentioned having read the student daily, and that fact alone approves it as one channel of publicity for the University.

More of this type of publicity for the University is needed. If the publications can use their influence to attract students to Carolina, then it follows logically that they could make friends for the University among the alumni and serve as a bond of union between them and an institution that has changed much—progressively—since they walked beneath the oaks 'n' elms.

The hindrance to this has always been financial. The P. U. board has made what seems to be a sound start in giving a commission to subscription solicitors, but it is regrettable that the publications are forced into pleading penny-wise in the matter of sending out a certain number of free subscriptions to places where prospective students are making their choices of schools.

No More Solicitors

The Inter-Dormitory council, it seems to us, has done a good piece of work in outlawing soliciting in the dormitories. To begin with, of all places, a college dormitory is emphatically not suited to this type of thing. Study is difficult enough, under the most favorable conditions.

Concentration is greatly to be desired, but often difficult of attainment. In the dormitories, where the attractions of the bull-session, the water-fight, the discussion of art, literature, and the higher criticism prove superior to those of textbooks, study is the last consideration. A discussion of Aristotle in which nobody knows anything about Aristotle is a fascinating venture.

Solicitation, then, is the last straw, the final hey. Let it be clearly understood, however, that we are not seeking to deprive the student of a livelihood who is working his way through college by soliciting. As we see it, it is merely the perception of what is the greatest good for the greatest number which must actuate this decision. Solicitation is all very well on the streets, but the interests of the college student must be protected.

Question Of Economy

In continuing discussion on the proposal for moving the local engineering unit to the Raleigh campus, Dean H. G. Baity, former dean of the engineering school here, presents the following statements:

"There is a widespread belief that the existence of engineering instruction in two of the state's institutions results in gross monetary expense, particularly in connection with overhead and administrative costs." But, he went on to show, this is not true. The total administrative costs of the engineering school here are not more than $1528, which includes the salary of the dean, an assistant dean, and a part-time secretary. Economy along that line could scarcely be effected by consolidating this with the State unit.

Further, the immense amount of research by the local faculty would be lost, and with it the expense incurred. And in regard to the faculty costs, the common belief that the instructing staff could be cut in half by the merger is false; at present there is a maximum number of students in every engineering class here except in the more advanced sections.

According to President Wickenden of the consolidation committee, "Unit costs, both at Chapel Hill and at Raleigh, are now at the lowest level consistent with educational efficiency." Then, we ask, why combine?

Let It Not End

When 150 students turned out for the first session of the anti-war conference Thursday night and another large assemblage was present last night, it evinced a growing interest on this campus in participating in constructive discussions tending toward definite student opinion on pressing national and international problems.

Whereas the turnout has been disappointly small at other regularly-conducted forums on these and other important issues, the conference seemed to attract and crystallize student thought. This was the purpose of the affair; routine discussions have not in the past been effective because the sides presented have in most instances been given without offering direct opportunity for intelligent rebuttals.

The question of war must necessarily be presented in the political as well as the economic light; in this manner only can a full factual analysis be made of the causes and the results and the cures of armed conflict.

Student thought and discussion should not end with the conference. It is obligatory upon all campus groups whose functions embrace these problems to continue the analysis, piece by piece, so that student opinion will not be of the type perpetrated by passive attention but will instead by the kind which has definiteness resulting from both analysis and synthesis of the various factors contributing to the problems.

Turning The Dial

Without the headlines upon which the worth and activity of the University club often are erroneously based, the organization, known as the campus "spirit group," is working steadily on projects which are as important to student life and the good of the institution as its cheerio rallies and the like.

The radio presentations have increased in value and scope until now they are anticipated to the extent that programs are often scheduled weeks ahead. What this means is not thoroughly appreciated; it shows that the campus is regarding the "University on the air" as a regular feature of campus student activity and it means that organizations on the campus are realizing that their utilization of the radio is a valuable and satisfactory line for expansion.

SHAKESPEARE COMES TO NORTH CAROLINA

Enacted by Walter Hampden and his company, Shakespeare invaded the provinces this week, with performances of "Hamlet" in Raleigh, and "Macbeth" in Durham. At both performances friends of ours seem to have been afflicted with highly respectable old ladies in nearby seats who would explain things to each other while the play was going on. He's the thane of Corridor," said one of Macbeth, and a few minutes later another reported that this must be the "famous street-walking scene." But the happiest time of all was had by those who were within earshot of the wags in the orchestra of the State theatre in Raleigh. After the star had taken his third curtain call alone our wags began to call: "Author, author!"

FUN TO BE FOOLED

It seems to us that the honors for the neatest publicity stunt of the year should go to Mr. E. Carrington Smith, of the Carolina theatre. You see, it has never been satisfactorily explained that Mr. Smith is Walter Delmar and his school of acting to boot, in spite of all the nasty names he called himself in adjacent ads in this publication. Just when we were getting worried about Spencer hall taking off for Hollywood en masse via special train, it turns out that we were being beguiled to go see "365 Nights In Hollywood." "Beneath these mighty hoax . . . ."

BUSINESS ETIQUETTE

George Underwood, circulation manager of our little organ, received this invitation the other day, all neatly spaced out, very much a la Emily Post: "Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harris request the presence of the DAILY TAR HEEL every morning at delivery hours, Beta Cottage, No. 1 or R.S.V.P."

"THEY'RE HANGING MEN AND WOMEN THERE . . ."

James Stephens, the Irish poet who will speak here tomorrow and Tuesday, visited the south for the first time a few weeks ago when he arrived at the University of Virginia to read some of his poetry and lecture. He looked at the shady elms and the somnolent old buildings without comment, until a pair of blonde, blue-eyed students sauntered by. Amazed, he turned to his companion-guide. "But where are the Negroes? I thought," he said, his blinking eyes following the two students, "that down here in the south everybody would be Negro."

portance of home life in moulding attitudes towards war. She emphasized the significant part played by women in forming the nation's psychological outlook because of their naturally intimate relationship to youth. "Women as mothers," she declared, "have the most influence."

She found encouraging the fact that women today are becoming more socially-minded, as evidenced by the fact that women are now studying more of the social sciences and less of the humanities than they used to.

Miss Clark closed her speech with the ringing declaration, "In education lies the hope of youth—in youth lies the hope of the world!"

Speaking from the liberal student's viewpoint, Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, urged students to concentrate their efforts in getting rid of militaristic set-ups in the local community and state, before discussing situations in foreign countries.

Bill Levitt closed the session with a talk saying that the radical student's platform against armed conflicts called for action against imperialistic war, against R.O.T.C. in educational institutions, against fascism, and in support of the working class.

Following the meeting, the student's anti-war conference selected a permanent committee and made plans for future action against war.

BULL'S HEAD DISPLAYS NEW BOOKS BY WELLS

"Experiment in Autobiography," a new book by H. G. Wells, has been placed on the shelves of the Bull's Head bookshop, it was announced yesterday by Elizabeth Johnson, director.

Other new books recently added to the Bull's Head display include: "Afternoon Neighbors" by Hamlin Garland, "Pitcain's Island" by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, "The Golden Vanity" by Isabel Paterson, and the Modern Library edition of the poems and plays of Robert Browning.

Vanities Attractions: Acme Of Femininity, Songs, Comic Skits

Ken Murray Heads Cast Offering Various Popular Acts.

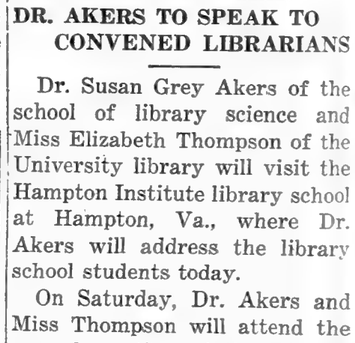
Touring under the personal direction of Earl Carroll, the latest edition of his Vanities will be presented at the Carolina theatre in Durham next Friday night only.

This season Ken Murray is at the head of the Vanities cast and supporting him are such talented folks as Chaz Chase, the three Samuels brothers, the four Rio brothers, Moran and Mack, "The Two Black Crows"; Ethel Torrence, Helen Charleston, Grace Dane, Rosie Moran, Buddy Doyle, Peggy Hoover, Milton Charleston, and John Kelly.

Hand-Picked Beauties

Also included in the cast of 100 people are the famous Earl Carroll beauties who comprise the chorus ensemble, all of them personally selected by Earl Carroll.

The many scenes of this production rapidly succeed each other in typical revue style, disclosing lavish spectacles spaced by comedy sketches, song numbers, large and specially costumed chorus ensembles, and a revel of dancing specialities.



All the musicians for a full orchestration are carried by the company. The song hits include "Cocktails for Two," "Sweet Madness," "I Saw Stars," and "Savage Rhythm."

The Davidson Wildcats will be playing hosts to Coach Carl Snavely's Tar Heels when the scene opens on Richardson field this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Carolina will need to win this afternoon's contest in order to remain undefeated in the state championship race; and the fact that it is Homecoming Day at Davidson will make the Wildcats strive that much harder to get a victory.

Coach Snavely with a squad of 38 stalwart Tar Heels will leave Chapel Hill by train at 8:00 o'clock this morning.

Light Workout

The Tar Heels took a light workout in Kenan stadium yesterday. The team practiced place kicking, passing, and returning kick-offs. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in a dummy scrimmage and running signals.

The backfield composed of Snyder, Montgomery, Hutchins, and Jackson will probably be in the starting lineup against the

FACTS AND GUESSES
By

Georgia teams are so much cream and peaches to Coach Carl G. Snavely's Carolina gridsters. Georgia University went down before the Tar Heel onslaught and then came Tech.

Last week a crippled, underdog North Carolina team ventured on Atlanta. Came the game. The boys from the Old North State blasted the Golden Tornado out of their own back yard, Grant field, 26-0. This was too much for the Tech fans . . . they couldn't take it any better than Carolina's supporters could believe the glad tidings conveyed in the Sunday papers!

The Governor of the Peach State, His Excellency, Eugene C. Talmadge, was one of the squirming spectators at the contest. When the Tar Heels were as hot as a metropolitan six-

Henry Cathey and Potter, veteran end and guard, of the Davidson Wildcats. These two boys have been bothered with injuries for the past few weeks but return to the lineup today in good condition and will give Carolina's opponents the strongest line they have had all year.

Watch the Mackorell

Captain Johnny Mackorell, Davidson quarterback, gained well over half of the yardage the Wildcats made from scrimmage against the Catawba Indians last Saturday, in addition to throwing most of the seven passes that were completed, averaging 42 yards on his kicking, and calling the plays with a cool head.

Negri Ruled Ineligible

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 9.—(UP)—Warren "Red" Negri, end on the football team and Southern Conference boxing champion of V. P. I., was declared today ineligible for all sports by the faculty athletic chairman. The ruling followed Negri's admission that he played freshman football at Vermont.

Dowd Tops Goodes In An Uninteresting Ladder Struggle

The tennis courts seemed deserted yesterday as the doubles tourney again went into reverse and but one ladder was contested. Johnny Dowd defended his spot at seventh in the varsity ranking, with an uninteresting triumph over Gene Goodes in straight sets.

Dowd took both sets by a 6-3 tally and playing uninspiring tennis, simply volleyed with his opponent and forced him into frequent errors. Goodes battled gamely, although always behind, and his defensive play brought long rallies before a point would be scored.

Goodes had challenged Dowd from deep down in tenth place, and now has to turn about on his lofty perch and attempt to squelch the clamoring of many a hopeful tenniseer, with ambitions of toppling him from the varsity squad.

The doubles, as aforementioned, remained stationary with one semi-final match yet to be played. Johnny Foreman and Gene Robinson, seeded second in the ranking, are due to face the high-flying pair of Harvey Harris and Byron Abels.

TAR BABIES END WORK FOR GAME WITH TIGER CUBS

Carolina Freshmen in Good Shape for Armistice Day Battle in Asheville.

CLEMSON FAVORED TO WIN

The Tar Babies finished their preparations for the Armistice Day game against the Clemson Tiger Cubs at Asheville, Monday, with a short snappy drill on Emerson field yesterday afternoon.

The entire squad looked physically fit as Coach James sent it through its paces. Ditt, Walborn, Thomas, Maffitt, Gaydos, Hinkle, and Dixon who were formerly on the injured list have returned to the lineup, and "Doc" McCurry reports that they will be in fairly good condition for the battle on Monday.

Teams about Even

The teams will be evenly matched with power versus speed and the outcome will probably be in doubt until the final whistle. Clemson will put a speedy, tricky eleven on the field which has showed through its past performances that it is capable of scoring both through the air and on the ground.

LAWYERS DEFEAT SWAIN HALL 6-0 IN CRUCIAL GAME

Markham Passes to Weathers For Victory Margin; Losers Offer Stiff Opposition.

L. C. A. WINS OVER Z. B. T.

The number of undefeated teams in the intramural football competition was diminished to eight yesterday afternoon as the Law School gridmen won the hardest and most crucial game played this season from Swain Hall, 6-0. The only other encounter on the schedule saw Lambda Chi Alpha nose out Z. B. T. by the same margin.

Both the lawyers and waiters had come through with clean slates of four games apiece and their meeting meant certain defeat for one. The lone tally came after the stop watch had ticked off but four minutes as Markham completed a pass to Virgil Weathers in the end zone.

Swain Hall was offside as it succeeded in blocking Markham's placement for the extra point, and thereby gave the shysters another chance to convert. Markham's pass from kick formation was grounded in the end zone.

Waiters Threaten

Throughout the remainder of the contest Swain Hall fought back valiantly, once carrying the pigskin across the double stripe only to have it brought back due to an offside. The win-

JIM TATUM OUT FOR FIRST-STRING OF ALL-SOUTHERN

Big Tackle Has Shown Much Power Both on Offense and Defense for Tar Heels.

RECEIVES MUCH PRAISE

Big Jim Tatum, who came to the University of North Carolina from McColl, S. C., is making a fine name for himself in his third year at tackle on the Tar Heel varsity and is being highly touted for an all-southern first-string berth.

Coach Carl Snavely says that he has not seen a better tackle this year, a statement in which the Georgia and Georgia Tech players and coaches readily concurred after the Tar Heels had upset and decisively defeated their teams, 14-0 and 26-0.

A power and a standout in the Carolina line in every game this year, Tatum's splendid defensive play has been one of the chief reasons why Tennessee and N. C. State have been the only teams that were able to score on the Tar Heels. Big Jim is also a hard blocker and a power in the interference.

Big But Fast

A big, husky fellow of 200 pounds, Tatum was also fast enough to cover the outfield for a Southern Conference championship baseball team last spring. He broke into the lineup in the Georgia game his sophomore year, stepping in and playing the full 60 minutes when the veteran who held down left tackle was injured.

He has been going great ever since, playing a charging, slashing brand of ball characterized by strength, speed, skill, and rare spirit. He is also the kind of player who saves his best games for the toughest opponents, as witness the marvelous performances he turned in against Tech and Duke last year and against Georgia and Tech this season.

In addition to football, Tatum has some first-rate Tar Heel family connections. He is a nephew of the W. D. Carmichael, formerly of Durham and now of New York, who is vice-president of the Liggett-Myers Tobacco company.

Wildcats this afternoon. This same four made up the combination that functioned so effectively against Georgia Tech last Saturday.

Bill Moore, Charlie Shaffer, and Gene Barwick are the injured Tar Heels who will not be available for service in this afternoon's game. Shaffer is rounding into form nicely, and if nothing happens he should be ready to go against Duke next Saturday.

Coach Snavely warned the team against taking the attitude that this afternoon's game will be a "set up." "Any team that can gain more yardage from scrimmage than Duke (as the Davidson team did) is far from being a slouchy team," Coach Snavely said.

Joyce Due for Service

Emmett Joyce is expected to see a greal deal more service at guard for Carolina beginning with today's game at Davidson. Late in reporting, the scrappy junior letterman has caught up with the rest of the squad and gave an exhibition against Georgia Tech last week on a par with that of the regular, Eddie Kahn.

Intramural Bowling Leagues Begin Play

The intramural bowling leagues got underway last week in Graham Memorial with all but one match being run off as scheduled. Several of the clubs entered have not yet seen action but will do so probably next week.

In the fraternity league Lambda Chi Alpha led the way, getting a 3-0 shutout over Chi Psi. In the other two games Phi Delta Theta whipped A. T. O., 2-1 and Chi Phi downed Sigma Chi, 2-1.

The "3 Aces" led the way in the dorm loop setting Manly back, 3-0. In the only other contest played the "3 W's" beat Aycock B, 2-1. "Ace, King, Jack" got the lone forfeit over Aycock A.

Moore Last Year's Ace

George Moore, reserve Carolina fullback, showed lots of drive the few minutes he played against Georgia Tech last week, and is looked to to see more and more service beginning with today's game at Davidson. George is the boy who punched the line for the one touchdown that beat Davidson 6-0 last year.

LAWYERS DEFEAT SWAIN HALL, 6-0

ner's defense tightened and held for downs.

The following statistics will show clearly the even battle that the two teams waged:

	L.	S.
Score	6	0
First downs	4	5
First downs earned	2	3
Passes	21	22
Completed passes	9	5
Number of penalties	3	6
Yards penalized	35	36

Z. B. T. and Lambda Chi Alpha also put up a fine exhibition of defensive play as each was only able to garner two first downs apiece. The lone six-pointer of the game came when Blood intercepted an enemy aerial and ran 20 yards for the score.

Facts and Guesses

alarm fire, up spoke Governor Talmadge: "For God's sake, won't somebody please stop those Tar Heels . . . if nobody can . . . I'll . . . well, I'll call out the state militia . . . yes, I will!"

Contrary to common supposition by many expectant blue and white fans, the Tar Heels will not try to run wild against Davidson. If the first team can get in there and score two markers in the first period . . . they'll be replaced by reserves whose duty it will be to hold down the Davidson offense. We can't afford to show too much offensive tricks to the Duke scouts who will be all too anxious to gobble up any plays Coach "Tot" Snavely will be willing for them to observe.

We are not worried with the outcome of today's tiff with the Wildcats . . . they ain't as wild as they have been in times past. But those Presbyterians will fight for every yard today. They will gamble with all the abandon of a professional gamester . . . all their cards will be on the table. They want to sweep the table clear of the stakes . . . U. N. C. Nothing would give them greater pleasure than an upset.

But if we are not far off our guess . . . the house will win again, although Mackorell and Verble will be hard to stop on Richardson field. If Harry Montgomery, the alma mater's cagiest field general in many moons, starts the game . . . we will lay a safe bet that Carolina will get a pair of markers in the first quarter, just as we did against Georgia Tech.

Today's games present quite a few problems, but here is our own pickins: in the south: Duke over Wake Forest; Mississippi over Florida; Auburn over Georgia Tech; Maryland over V. M. I.; and N. C. State over V. P. I.

In the east: Army over Harvard; Bowdoin over Maine; Holy Cross over Manhattan; Penn State over Penn; and Washington and Jefferson over Bucknell.

Mid-west: Minnesota over Indiana; Ohio State over Chicago; Purdue over Iowa; Wisconsin over Michigan; Illinois over Northwestern; Iowa State over Oklahoma; and Kansas over Missouri.

Southwest: Southern Methodist over Texas A. & M.; Texas over Baylor; Centennary over Tulsa; and Rice over Arkansas.

Intersectional: Georgia over Yale; Notre Dame over Navy; Pitt over Nebraska; Colgate over Tulane; Syracuse over Michigan State; and Fordham over West Virginia.

And on the Pacific coast: Stanford over Washington; Southern California over California; and St. Mary's over U. C. L. A. (a game which will be played Monday).

TAR BABIES END WORK FOR GAME

On the basis of past records the Tiger Cubs stand slight favorites to hand Carolina a licking in a close battle but the Babies have been clicking of late and as both aggregations will be playing on foreign territory, the game should be as tight as the proverbial Scotchman.

The Tar Baby eleven which will most likely start the game will consist of: Bershak and Wolfe, ends; Bartos and Keeney, tackles; Smith and Ax, guards; Avery, center; Walbern, blocking back; Oliver and Bricklemyer, halfbacks; and Burnette at fullback.

Aside from the above mentioned the following men will make the trip to Asheville: Dixon, Scherer, Hinkle, Gaydos, Maffitt, Juliper, Meroney, Partin, Henderson, Hoffer, Thomas, Graves, and Ditt.

Liners Show Power In Whipping Virginia

Although it used nearly three full teams in defeating Virginia last week the University of Maryland gained 313 yards on 62 running plays and 92 on 10 of 17 passes it completed to run its total yardage for the last four contests, against Navy, Virginia Tech, Florida and the Cavaliers, to 1,251.

KINGFISH SEES FOOTBALL STAR ELECTED SOLON

Huey Also Provides for Debt Moratorium in Accomplishments of Week-end.

MASS MEETING AT L. S. U.

Baton Rouge, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Huey Long today arranged to abolish all old debts in Louisiana for the period of a two-year moratorium.

The Kingfish planned to crack his whip over the heads of his legislators and assemble them immediately to make his proposal law.

"Poor people need relief an' I'm goin' to give it to 'em," quoth Huey. "All they have to do is prove they can't pay their debts, and we'll give 'em reprieves."

Mickal For Senate

In the meantime, he called a mass meeting of "all able-bodied, red-blooded, unterrified voters of East Baton Rouge parish," and induced them to elect Abe Mickal, Louisiana State football player, to the state senate.

Mickal's home is not in Louisiana, but in McComb, Mississippi, but that didn't matter to the gridiron-enthusiast, Kingfish.

A mass meeting was held in the Greek theatre on the L. S. U. campus immediately following the broadcast of the Louisiana State-George Washington game. About 600 students and townsfolk attended and cheered. All of them voted unanimously for Mickal by raising their hands in response to the Kingfish's loud-mouthed commands.

When the election was over, Long announced that "Senator" Mickal would take his seat when the legislature convenes in special session Monday night.

Ill

Six Rhodes Scholarship Candidates Chosen

Will Represent University in Regional Competition.

Six men were selected yesterday to represent the University as candidates for the Rhodes scholarship.

The representatives are: Frank P. Abernethy, Peter W. Hairston, Granvil C. Kyker, Charles A. Poe, Joseph J. Sugarman and Herbert H. Taylor.

These men will go to Duke for the selection of a group to represent this section at the regional meeting to be held in Atlanta.

The faculty committee that selected the Rhodes scholarship group consisted of A. W. Hobbs, chairman, and the following members: George Howe, R. W. Bost, T. J. Wilson, Jr., E. E. Ericson, R. J. M. Hobbs, F. F. Bradshaw, Edwin Lanier.

COMER RECEIVES VACATION LEAVE

Lanier to Take over Duties of General "Y" Secretary During Two Months' Leave.

Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., will begin a two months' leave of absence this week, it was announced by "Y" authorities yesterday.

Edwin S. Lanier, head of the self-help bureau, will be left in charge of the Y. M. C. A. during Comer's absence. He will be assisted in his added duties by the officers of the "Y" and the Y. M. C. A. board of directors.

Will Go to Texas

Comer will spend a large part of his leave on a western ranch near Mason, Texas, in order to fully recuperate from a recent attack of influenza and Devil's grip. Mrs. Comer will accompany her husband on his vacation.

The administration and Y. M. C. A. board of directors, on learning of the doctor's orders for Comer to take a vacation, immediately voted him the leave of absence.

Comer is expected to resume his duties at the University some time after Christmas.

Mrs. Susan Drake House Dies

Mrs. Susan Drake House, mother of Dean R. B. House, died at her home in Thelma yesterday afternoon shortly after 12:00 o'clock. Mrs. House was 79 years old, and her death came following a long period of illness.

She was stricken with paralysis last Tuesday. Since then Dean House has been at her bedside in Thelma.

Funeral services will be conducted for Mrs. House today at 4:00 o'clock. A number of Chapel Hill people, including Dean and Mrs. F. F. Bradshaw, are expected to attend.

Mrs. House, a highly respected citizen of her community, was a life-long resident of Thelma. She is survived by eight children: Mrs. Mary Buerborn, Miss Sue House; and six sons, Joseph, John, Henry, Arthur, Ernest, and Robert House.

GREEN WILL READ NEW NEGRO PLAY

Playwright Will Interpret "Roll Sweet Chariot" Tonight in Playmakers Theatre.

Paul Green will read his "Roll Sweet Chariot" tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre.

"Roll Sweet Chariot," Green's latest New York production which opened in September, is a Negro symphony play, with a distinctive idea coupled with an impressive musical score.

"Stirring Drama"

"In 'Roll Sweet Chariot'," according to Brooks Atkinson, dramatic critic of the New York Times, "Mr. Green tried to imprison the whole saga of the Negro race in America and to adumbrate his faith in the Negro future." Atkinson, in his lengthy article on the play for the Times, called Green's play a "stirring drama."

Green is an alumnus of the University and an associate professor of philosophy here. For the past year he has been on a leave of absence from the University writing scenarios for Hollywood movie producers. He has written the screen plays for several outstanding film successes including "Voltaire," "Doctor Bull," "Cabin in the Cotton," and for the forthcoming "Anthony Adverse."

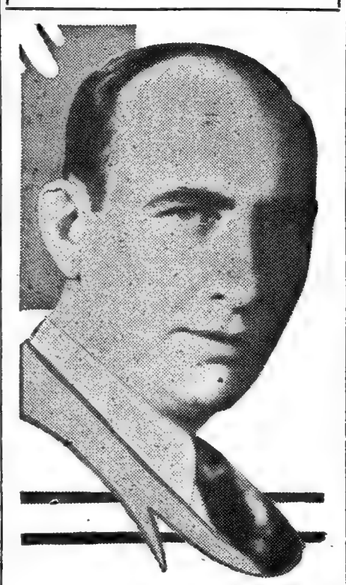
Stage Work

Green's most famous work to date has been done on the American stage. His "In Abraham's Bosom" was a Pulitzer prize winner several years ago. Other successes include "The House of Connelly," "The Cabin in the Cotton" and recently "Roll Sweet Chariot." His "House of Connelly" was filmed under the name of "Carolina."

The author has returned to Chapel Hill and is now completing the music and script for "Shroud My Body Down" which will be presented by the Carolina Playmakers December 5-7.

High Point Club

Dean F. F. Bradshaw will address the High Point club at a smoker from 8:00 to 8:45 o'clock tomorrow night in 209 Graham Memorial.



He will discuss the student's problem of choosing a vocation after graduation.

This will be the second meeting of the club after reorganization at the beginning of the quarter.

STUDENT LEAGUE

The National Student league will conduct an open forum meeting on "The Anti-War Conference and After" at 8:00 o'clock tonight in 214 Graham Memorial.

RED CROSS DRIVE LAUNCHED TODAY

Lee Greer to Lead Student Canvass; Prizes Are Offered for Most Subscriptions.

The Chapel Hill chapter of the American Red Cross will institute its annual membership and roll call drive today.

The drive for membership among the students will be under the direction of Lee Greer, campus chairman, and will last through next Sunday.

The freshman and sophomore Y. M. C. A. cabinets will do the actual dormitory convassing. Two boys will be selected to work each dormitory.

Council to Aid

Fraternity canvassing will be under the supervision of the Inter-Fraternity council and will be on the same general plan as that used in the dormitories.

To each of the three boys who are most successful in obtaining memberships in the dormitories, and the two boys who do the best work among the fraternities, two theatre passes will be given.

The total quota which the Chapel Hill Red Cross has as its goal is $600, of which $300 is considered the student quota. In past years, however, very little of this quota has been collected from the students.

Booths will be placed in the Y. M. C. A. building and in the Post Office in order to contact those students who live in rooming houses and to reach members of the faculty. Pi Phi sorority will sponsor the Y. M. C. A. booth and Chi Omega, the Post Office stand.

Dr. Reynolds Is Named N. C. Health Officer

Raleigh, Nov. 10.— (UP) — The state board of health today selected Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, 62, of Asheville as acting state health officer succeeding Dr. James M. Parrott, who was buried yesterday in Kinston, his home.

Dr. Reynolds fills the unexpired term of office which ends in June, 1935. Governor Ehringhaus gave his approval to the appointment of the board.

Dr. Reynolds has been a practicing physician in Asheville for 39 years.

JAMES STEPHENS WILL READ TODAY

Noted Irish Poet to Read Selections from His Works Today In Graham Memorial.

James Stephens, famous Irish poet, novelist and critic, will read selections from his outstanding literary works at 4:30 o'clock today in Graham Memorial.

He will lecture on "The Irish Renaissance" at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night in Gerrard hall.

Little Known Here

Stephens, though rated among the greatest modern literary figures, is personally little known in America and his tour will bring him closer to Americans. Though until recently he confined his writings to his beloved Ireland, his latest works show the effects of English and American travels.

Among the most famous of Stephens' writings is "The Crock of Gold," which early found favor with American readers.

Since "The Crock of Gold," other of the Irishman's works which have received distinctive recognition include "Deidre," "In the Land of Youth," "Etched in Moonlight," "Little Things," and "Green Branches." Several publications of Stephens' collected verse have appeared.

As an interesting conversationalist Stephens is said to be unequaled.

RELATIONS GROUP HEAD ANNOUNCES COMMITTEE MEN

Seven Bodies Are Set Up to Take Care of Preparations for Relations Institute.

SPEAKERS BEING CHOSEN

Charles Poe, new chairman of the Human Relations Institute, yesterday announced his appointments to the various committees in charge of the Institute which will convene here April 7-12.

Poe has withheld the announcement of the appointments for the last several days waiting until organization plans began to take shape.

Speakers Considered

At a meeting Wednesday night, a group of interested persons selected a list of key men from various fields of study in this country to be invited to participate in the Institute. This list has been presenfed to the program committee for confirmation.

Several foundations are considering the proposals made by the local Y. M. C. A. for financing the Institute.

Committees

The committees, as announced by Poe, are:

Conservation committee: Paul Mickey, chairman; Dr. E. L. Mackie, Eben Alexander, Don McKee. Program committee: Albert Ellis, chairman; Dean R. B. House, Dean D. D. Carroll, Harry F. Comer, Jack Pool, J. D. Winslow, Charles Poe. Entertainment committee: Agnew Bahnson, chairman; Dean R. B. House, J. Maryon Saunders, Albert Ellis, Herb Taylor.

Publicity committee: Jack Pool, chairman; Dean F. F. Bradshaw, J. Maryon Saunders, Lonnie Dill, Phil Hammer. Exhibit committee: Joe Sugarman, chairman; Professor Harold D. Meyer, Phil Hammer, Lewis Skinner, Don McKee. House committee: Jack Pool, chairman; Harry F. Comer, as general secretary of the University Y. M. C. A. is executive secretary of the Institute.

Seventeen Jones Boys Think Band Leader Is Grandest Guy In World

Musicians Overlook Various Individual Accomplishments in Admiration for Isham Jones; to Play Here Friday, Saturday.

When you talk to any of the 17 human elements which compose the Isham Jones ensemble, you notice a certain unanimous feeling of loyal solidarity. The boys believe that "Ish" is the grandest guy in the world to work for and seem prouder of being parts of the Isham Jones orchestra than of any special accomplishments they may possess as individual artists.

To toot their own horns for them, briefly: Maynard Mansfield is spoken of by those who know as one of the keenest tenor sax players in the country; John "Sax" Langsford is the tallest one of his trade in the United States, unless some newcomer wishes to challenge his title—he's six-foot-ten; George Thaw, the hot trumpet player, is a graduate of Harvard.

Versatility

The busiest man in the outfit would seem to be Eddie Stone, who used to play football for Wabash and Purdue, and who looks so much like a younger edition of Clark Gable that it's uncanny. It's his first job but he has held it for five years now. He plays the violin, stooges for Isham whenever the conductor isn't wielding the baton, sings all the song hits except the "sweet" ballads (Joe Martin's speciality) and helps think up things for the well-dressed band to wear.

The band has recently been playing in Cleveland, at the Commodore's English Grill, and broadcasting over the Columbia network.

The campus will have an opportunity to see and hear these boys display their wares next week-end when Jones brings his organization here to play for the fall German club dances Friday and Saturday.

Tickets are now on sale for the set and may be procured from officers or executive committee members of the German club.

Love Of Dogs Lures Irish Poet-Novelist To America

"Sort of Honorary Dog Myself," Says James Stephens, Who Should Be Pleased with Chapel Hill Canidae.

James Stephens, the noted Irish poet and philosopher, who will read his poetry this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial, and who will lecture in Gerrard hall Tuesday evening on "The Irish Renaissance," will come to Chapel Hill from Columbia, S. C., where he has been lecturing this week.

A great lover of dogs, it is probable that the author of "The Crock of Gold" will find himself in congenial company on the campus and on the streets where, muzzled and unmuzzled, grizzled and frizzled, dogs have free reign.

When Stephens' publishers, the American Book Company, tried to persuade him to come to this country, he was slow about deciding until he heard that a fancier over here had a number of especially fine Eskimo dogs. Mr. Stephens is especially fond of Eskimo dogs, and wrote at once that he would come.

When he disembarked from the steamer in New York the usual newspaper reporters were on hand to ask him what he expected to find in America on his first visit. Mr. Stephens gave the reporters, expecting a statement on our tall buildings, our machinery, or our folk-lore and our jazz, rather a shock. "The reason I came to America," he said, "is to see some dogs." He told them of his fondness for dogs. "You see," he added, "I'm a sort of honorary dog myself."

Not only an Irishman and an honorary dog, Mr. Stephens is a novelist and poet, the author of "The Crock of Gold" and "Deidre." "The Crock of Gold" won the Polignac Prize in 1912, and "Deidre" won the Tailltean Gold Medal. For a while Stephens was a lawyer, only to become a poet and an Irish patriot, deeply versed in Gaelic art and literature. He speaks, reads, and writes the ancient tongue of Ireland.

PARAGRAPHICS

"Faculty Adds Howe to Greater University Council." And Howe, eh?

Things are looking up for the Republican party. It's flat on its back.

Ad on the "Y" bulletin board: "Room for Rent—To Young Lady with Heat—Close Up—Pittsboro St." How close?

A Sure Defense

"There seems to be a gradual increasing trend toward the abolishment of 'Honor Systems' in colleges and schools all over the country," comments the Davidsonian in a recent editorial. Davidson's student paper further reminds us that the honor system was abolished two years ago at Georgia Tech, a few weeks ago at a division of Tulane University, and quite recently at State College. Its editors are correct in their statement that the honor principle is undergoing a crisis.

Fortunately for this University, however, the honor system has weathered the storm, as it has at Davidson, whose students, like ours, take pride in the structure that they have built through the years. Indeed, it is this pride and "selves"-respect that are the keystone of the span. So long as Carolina maintains them, the honor system here is impregnable from the assaults of the few who unthinkingly would destroy it.

Change in Nomenclature

Nobody deplores more than the DAILY TAR HEEL the practically enforced custom of calling the three divisions of the Greater University "units."

To those who are used to referring to the University as just that or as "Carolina," the new name which consolidation has christened us with seems distasteful in a good many ways. There is no more insipid word than "unit" when applied to the social organism that is the University. It is cold and impersonal, belonging more to the objectivity of scientific terms than to the personality of this institution. Any change, almost, would be an improvement.

The DAILY TAR HEEL has had occasion to refer before to the apparent inappropriateness of the name. Writers throughout the state have humorously commented on the lack of feeling that the "unit" would produce in a school song. If it is ridiculous, then, to suppose that the word would be fitting in a school song, it is no less important that the phrase be discouraged altogether. If it will dampen the ardor of football enthusiasts, then it certainly will not be conducive to warming the feelings of alumni toward the University.

We are taking a step toward discouraging it by forbidding the use of "Chapel Hill unit" when the University is named in connection with the Greater University. From now on the DAILY TAR HEEL will observe this change in style—tentatively, at least—substituting the phrase "the University at Chapel Hill" for wherever the former was heretofore used.

The anti-war conference has ended. From the generalizations and the analyses we have emerged with a more intense desire to attack the problem of war, instead of a depreciated enthusiasm in the question.

And why? Because what we heard on both sides (politically speaking) of the war attack has offered the specific channels for further study and analysis. Realizing that war is not determined by the people's will, that political policies are the nation's policies, that war under the present system seems almost inevitable despite what the people think, we are all the more eager to take the special phases and work the problem out, not only that we may oppose war in the next crisis but also that we may be fit to remedy the faults allowing war when our turn comes.

The Foreign Policy league will proceed on these lines. The New Deal tariff policy, the Nye investigations, the traditions and traits of national racial groups, the political intrigue involved in munitions—these and many other factors which affect the war problem will be taken separately and given thorough treatment.

Thus, although the conference was a re-hash in many instances and extremely enlightening in others, its greatest contribution to the Carolina campus has been its instigation of student inquisitiveness into the details of a complex situation.

From Those Affected

The selection of a query for high school debating has always offered the debating union a difficult problem, because the topic must not imply too many complex and advanced aspects but must at the same time be a topic of general importance and constructively educational.

Resolved, that the United States should adopt the policy of extending federal aid to general public education, is the topic selected for state high schoolers this year. It is the most appropriate and the most important subject which could possibly have been chosen for North Carolina secondaries.

High school debaters are members of a system to which the state offers less financial aid than any other state in the union except one; a system to which federal aid will not be granted except in the indirect method of helping unemployed teachers; a system to which over 50 per cent of state appropriations are applied and insufficient state income determines this quota as a dreadfully meagre allowance; a system which county and local units must support but are unable to; a system which is grossly inadequate for student training because of this financial condition.

Federal aid must be granted if the secondary school standard is to be raised or at least maintained. The state is giving more than it can afford, which cuts into the budgets of other state appropriations; the local and county units, when only seven of them voted to raise their financial support, manifested that they were unable to help; the budgets on every side are pared to the bone. If federal aid does not come to the rescue, the state's already low standard of public school education will become lower or at any rate not improve.

What the high schoolers have to say will be important; when the affected speak, the affect is enlightening.

Give Us More Time

It was the idea of the joint faculty and student committee for the student-faculty exposition that the exhibitions of departments and schools would be continued for fully a week so that the student body and other interested spectators would have the chance of viewing the whole program of University activity.

The reason, naturally, was that one day would be insufficient for the purpose of getting the students together with the faculty in the common interest of the University. In this connection, we would like to go further.

Whereas Wednesday, February 20, will actually be the day set for the exposition, the fact that the expositions will continue impresses the need of a few days or a week following the day being set aside in a general "open house" on the campus. Wednesday, of course, will be a holiday; there is no need for further holidays but the spirit of friendship between faculty members and the students must continue on an informal basis if the affair is going to be a success.

Therefore, we suggest "open house" by fraternities and dormitories for a short period. There can be hours set aside for this practice, or the groups themselves can, by invitation, decide the most suitable times for the get-togethers.

In other words, whereas the University serves as the common medium for getting the University folk together, a common bond of friendship should be the understanding for a complete informal social contact. In this way, both the administrative and social education of the faculty and the students can be effected.

Camel Caravan Gets First Place In Poll For Favorite Radio Hour

Guy Lombardo Ranks Second, Hal Kemp and Bing Crosby Tie for Third in Votes Received Among 100 Students Questioned.

Of 100 students asked at random to name their favorite radio program, 24 chose the Camel Caravan, with Glen Gray's Casa Loma orchestra. Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians ranked next with 14, Hal Kemp and Bing Crosby tied for third place, and the New York Philharmonic symphony was fourth with eight votes.

The results of this survey do not necessarily represent campus opinion as a whole, because of the limited number of students questioned; but the inquiry was conducted without regard to creed, race, sex, or political affiliation in an effort to get opinions from 100 representative students.

Penner Listed

The programs listed above were most popular, accounting for 70 of the votes. Other favorites received only a few votes each. Waring's Pennsylvanians tied with Town Hall Tonight for fifth place with five votes each. Jan Garber and Joe Penner were next with three each. Eddie Cantor, Wayne King, Will Rogers, Ben Bernie and George Hall took seventh place with two each, and those receiving only one vote were Frank Porter, Nino Martini, Paul Whiteman, and the Boston Symphony.

From Carolina students, more loyalty to the alumni might have been expected. Hal Kemp was third, and Kay Kyser — who plays the Alma Mater and the pep song he wrote for Carolina last year every Friday evening on his football medley—was not even mentioned.

Many Unmentioned

Many once-popular favorites seem to have faded from the horizon. Isham Jones, scheduled to play here for the Fall Germans, was not mentioned. Paul Whiteman, long a favorite, stood at the bottom of the list. Suave Rudy Vallee, once America's boy-friend, was ignored. Eddie Duchin, who continues to pack them in at the Central Park Casino, and who brought his famous piano to Chapel Hill for finals two years ago, was completely overlooked. Bert Lown, who provided lugubrious music for the junior-seniors the same year, and Emerson Gill, who played here last year for an enthusiastic German club crowd, seem to have been forgotten. Jan Garber, last year's finalist, ranked seventh, sharing that honor with idiotic Joe Penner.

Very few personalities were chosen. Bing Crosby, the only individual star to place in the first five, received ten of his twelve votes from co-eds. Other individual performers ranked very low.

Like Variety

"Wayne King?" sneered one student. "He hasn't got anything but music." Asked what he meant, the student explained that he preferred variety in a program, rather than just straight music. As several gave this as their reason for preferring Glen Gray, it may be assumed that the secret of radio success is not only good music, but skits, special features and unusual songs. To this also may be attributed the downfall of the once-popular Joe Penner.

"This time last year," said a student, "my vote would have gone to Joe. But now I know exactly what he's going to say, and how, before he says it."

DENVER PLAYERS ENTER 2ND YEAR

Colorado Playmakers Were Organized by Students of Koch.

The Colorado Playmakers, step-child organization of the Carolina Playmakers, announced plans this week for organizing its second year's work in Denver.

The organization meeting, to take place in Denver soon, will be attended by the governor of Colorado, the mayor of Denver and managers of radio stations KOA and KLZ.

The Colorado dramatists were organized a year ago by students in Professor Frederick H. Koch's playwriting course at the University of Colorado summer school.

Concluding a successful year this fall, they re-elected as president Adrienne Wormington.

While teaching at the 1933 writers' conference, Koch presented to the Denver Authors' club the idea of developing folk-drama in Colorado. As a result the Colorado Playmakers were organized. At the coming meeting plays written under Koch's instruction will be presented to illustrate the possibilities of folk-drama there.

Vanderbilt Has Line Averaging 205 Pounds

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 9.—Checking the advance of the Vanderbilt Commodore forewall in any of its future games of the current season will mean resisting the impulse of three-quarters of a ton of man-power.

The total poundage of the seven men in the Vanderbilt line is 1,438—quite a bit greater than that of any other line in the south and enough to give each member an average weight of 205 pounds.

The regulars stack up like this: center—Strayhorn, 215; guards—Guffee, 179, and Dickison, 190; tackles—Brown, 221, and Thorgmorton, 220; ends—Plasman, 210, and Geny, 185.

Carolina Whips Davidson, 12-2, On Rain-Soaked Field

'Cats Score Safety For Early Lead; Hutchins And Jackson Tally On Drives

Barclay and Buck Also Star Before Homecoming Crowd.

Richardson Field, Davidson, N. C., Nov. 10.—Coach Carl Snavely's fighting Tar Heels defeated the Davidson Wildcats, 12-2, in a game played during a steady downpour of rain before an audience of 8,000 Homecoming Day spectators.

The Tar Heels were far more superior than the score indicates. They made 18 first downs to three for the Wildcats. Davidson did not make a first and ten during the first half.

The Wildcat ends came down fast under punts, limiting the Carolina safety man to short returns. Morgan, who was at the left flank position for Davidson, demonstrated his ability as an all-state player.

'Cats Score First

The scoring started early in the second period when "Big Six" Johnston, Wildcat tackle, downed Don Jackson behind the Carolina goal line for a safety. Jackson had fumbled a bad pass from center.

With nine minutes left to play in the first half, Carolina scored her first touchdown by a long march down the field after Jackson had intercepted Mackorell's pass on his own 26-yard line.

A series of plays, including a long pass from Jackson to Buck, gave the Tar Heels a first down on Davidson's 10-yard

Eight Clubs Have Clean Slates In Mural Grid Play

Important Contests Face Leaders This Week; Law-Lewis, Phi Alpha-Chi Psi Feature.

With the list of undefeated teams narrowed down to eight the race for intramural tag football honors enters the home stretch tomorrow afternoon as the sixth week of play begins.

This group is certain to be diminished by two after the four days as Kappa Alpha faces Chi Psi and Lewis opposes Law in the feature attractions. Ruffin will also endanger its inviolate record as it meets up with the strong Swain Hall combine, and Sigma Nu may find a tartar in one of its two games.

From earliest indications those who are doing the advance picking tend to select Beta Theta Pi and Law School or Lewis as finalists in the championship encounter. However, the unexpected happens all too frequently and even teams now holding one loss may break through.

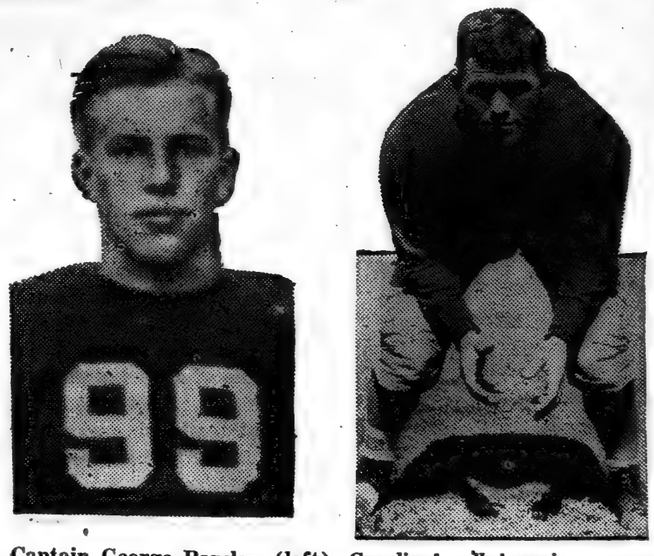
HIGH GRID RACES NEAR FINAL TILTS

Greensboro Only Sure Club for One of Championship Games.

State high school grid teams entered the final stages of the race leading toward the annual championship class 'A' and 'B' struggles which will be played here in Kenan stadium on November 30 and December 1st respectively.

Greensboro assured itself of a class 'A' play-off position as it annexed the western championship with an exciting 12-9 victory over Winston Salem Friday afternoon. Representing the eastern conference will be the winner of the Durham-Raleigh battle at Durham this week. The former kept its slate clean with a 29-6 win over Wilmington on Thursday.



The class 'B' situation is a little more complicated as there are at present four undefeated teams in the eastern bracket. An elimination will be played to pick an opponent for the winner of the Mount Airy-Reidsville clash in the finals.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY WILL CONVENE TUESDAY NIGHT

The 355th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell scientific society will take place in 206 Phillips hall at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

Dr. E. W. McChesney, secretary-treasurer, announced that a paper will be read by Dr. H. M. Burlage, professor of pharmacy, on "The Official Sulfur Ointments and Their Assay," and that Walter Gordy, graduate student in physics, will discuss "The Infra-Red Absorption of Basic Solutions."

GEORGE AND GEORGE STAR

Captain George Barclay (left), Carolina's all-American guard, performed brilliantly in the Tar Heel forward wall as his team defeated Davidson 12-2 yesterday.

George Wingfield (right), Wildcat backfield ace, was the spearhead in Davidson's running attack.

Yearling Grid Club Meets Tiger Frosh At Asheville Tomorrow

Tar Babies Leave on Trip This Morning; Clemson Offers Real Test for Freshmen.

MUCH PASSING EXPECTED

Although Underdogs, Tar Babies Look Much Improved Since Loss to Wolfpack Frosh.

The Tar Babies will hop a bus for Greensboro this morning at 9:30 o'clock, where they will board a train en route for Asheville to engage the Clemson Tiger Cubs tomorrow afternoon in what should turn out to be one of the outstanding freshman grid brawls of the year.

To many this will be a test as to whether the Carolina frosh will remain in the select group. To a great number of underlings this encounter will determine their chances in participating in the forthcoming Duke battle.

Passes May Dominate

Due to the strength of the opposing line it is likely that the Babies will have to resort to their aerial game in order to score, and as Clemson's attack is built mostly around the forward pass, the spectators will probably witness a sight resembling to some degree the annual aviation meets.

The Jamesmen will once again enter the game as the underdogs, but this time they are considered to have more of a chance of emerging victorious than they have had in their previous games. They have come along fast since their uneventful defeat at the hands of State, and it seems about time for them to come out of the lethorgy which slowed up their game after they took Wake Forest into camp with so much ease.

The Tar Baby eleven which will most likely start the game will consist of: Bershak and Wolfe, ends; Bartos and Keeney, tackles; Smith and Ax, guards; Avery, center; Walborn, blocking back; Oliver and Bricklemyer, halfbacks; and Burnette at fullback.

Aside from the above mentioned the following men will make the trip to Asheville: Dixon, Scherer, Hinkle, Gaydos, Maffitt, Juliper, Meroney, Partin, Henderson, Hoffer, Thomas, Graves, and Ditt.

Football Tickets

Persons who have reserved tickets for the Duke-Carolina football game may secure them at the Athletic association office in Graham Memorial by calling between 9:00 and 5:00 o'clock any day this week.

Ruffin It Up

In the bag—yet up a tree at the same time. That was the condition of some of Ruffin's laundry the other night.

The sacks were intended for the laundry agent, but some practical jokester took a few of them and tied them to the trees and lamp posts of the upper quadrangle.

An unsubstantiated rumor has it that said practical jokester rooms in Mangum. But who can tell?

Frosh Harriers Win

Davidson, Nov. 10.—Carolina's yearling cross country team opened its season here today with an easy 19-41 victory over the first-year harriers from Davidson.

Joe Rivers, cake race champion of the Tar Babies, led the way to the tape, completing the two-mile course in 10 minutes 16.4 seconds. The Carolina ace was followed by Parcell of the Wildkittens.

Close behind the Davidson number one man came six more Tar Heel freshmen, resulting in the low score. The summary of the meet follows: Rivers (NC), Parcell (Dav.), Bronitsky (NC), Anderson (NC), Garland (NC), Rowley (NC), Davidson (NC), D'Ascensio (Unoff. NC), Dowdle (Dav.), Gulks (Dav.), Garland (NC), Flynt (Unoff. NC), Gilbert (Dav.), and Rainey (Dav.).

POWERFUL DEVIL ELEVEN SMASHES DEACS WITH EASE

First Duke Team Looks Impressive, Counting Three Times in First Half; Score, 28-7.

KITCHIN IS BIG DEAC STAR

Duke Stadium, Nov. 10.—Duke's football machine smashed its way to an impressive 28-7 victory over a sluggish Wake Forest eleven here this afternoon. The Blue Devils need only to take the Carolina hurdle next Saturday to repeat their Big Five championship of last year.

Coach Wallace Wade sent his second string in to face the Deacons and a little later the visitors, led by Kitchins and Edens, soph backs, drove to Duke's 10-yard line. Here the first Blue Devil club was rushed into the fray and it immediately took charge, receiving the ball on downs.

The Duke first team showed tremendous power behind great blocking on offense plus a stonewall on defense throughout the first half, scoring three markers with ease.

Cornelius Tallies

The opening score came in the first quarter after Ace Parker, Duke back, intercepted Kitchin's pass and dashed 36 yards to the Wake Forest 25. On the third play Corky Cornelius went over his weak side left tackle on a reverse for 24 yards and crossed the goal line standing up. Cornelius also booted the extra point from placement.

In the second quarter the Blue Devil running attack and Parker's long punts pushed Wake Forest back to its 7-yard marker. From here Edens punted out to the Deacon 37 where Duke started a drive for the second score.

Parker got seven yards in two

TAR HEELS, DUKE BEGIN WORK FOR IMPORTANT TILT

Record Breaking Crowd Expected When Snavely and Wade Match Wits First Time.

STARS BACK IN ACTION

With all indications pointing to the greatest crowd ever to turn out for a football game in this state, the football mighties of Carolina and Duke will begin now to gird themselves for the battle here Saturday which has come to be known as the "game of the year" in this section.

Bringing together for the first time Duke's old master, Wallace Wade, and Carolina's new miracle worker, Carl Snavely, and matching two teams whose records are so similar the 1934 renewal is expected to transcend all past battles in the dogged and colorful 46-year rivalry.

Advance Sale Big

The advance sale of tickets has been the largest of any game in history here, G. E. Shepard at the ticket office said yesterday. Athletic officials are expecting a record crowd as a result and are arranging to install extra bleachers at both ends of the 24,000 capacity stadium to take care of the throng expected.

The three greatest football crowds in the state previously were those which turned out for the Carolina-Duke game last year and for Carolina's Thanksgiving games with Virginia in 1927 and 1929. Unoffical estimates on the three ran as high as 30,000, but the official figures were lower. Unless officials here misinterpret the signs, the crowd for this year's game may reach 30,000 official count.

Much At Stake

The top ranking in both the Big Five and Southern Conference will be at stake when the arch-rivals stage their annual classic this year. And likewise the all-state and southern ambitions and hopes of the long line of stars on both sides.

Two of them, Captain George Barclay, Carolina's powerhouse at guard, and Corky Cornelius, Duke's great halfback, are leading candidates for all-American. Others like Durner, Wentz, and the Dunlap brothers of Duke and Shaffer, Tatum, Kahn, Snyder, and Buck of Carolina rank with the finest performers in the history of the two schools and are candidates for all-southern. Several of these boys are seniors who will be playing their last Carolina-Duke game.

Records Almost Equal

Except for Carolina's 7-7 tie by State, the records of the two teams are almost identical. Each is unbeaten except by Tennessee. Duke held the mighty Vols to one less touchdown, 6-14, but Carolina gained the more ground against them. Up until yesterday Georgia Tech was the only other team in common on their schedules. Duke beat the Tor-

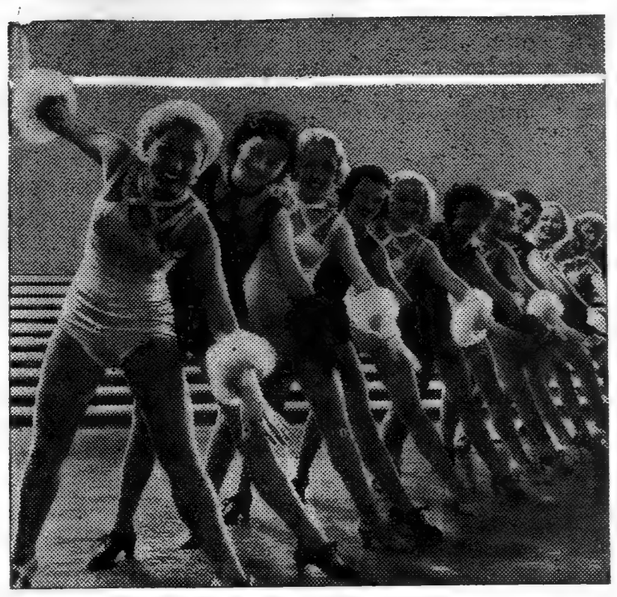
CAST IS CHOSEN FOR GREEN PLAY

Paul Green's New Play, "Shroud My Body Down," Will Be Produced December 5-7.

A tentative cast for Paul Green's "Shroud My Body Down," to be staged December 5-7, was announced yesterday.

Author Green changed the title from "Shroud Me Down" because he saw a conflict between the inanimate "shroud" and the animate "me."

Tentative Cast



The tentative cast follows:

Lora, the child-like, dreamy daughter of a landlord farmer, Annie Lee McCauley; Julie, the wise and silent wife of the farmer, Patsy McMullan; Tommy, the mischievous little Negro field sprite, Dan Hamilton; Marshburn, the country preacher, D. D. McCachren.

Tapley, an old hired man and country soothsayer, Harold Baumstone; Old Mand, and accordian player, Robert du Four; Lady Jane, the deserted lover of Graham, Sammie Ruth Bell; Graham, the proud and embittered farmer, Alton Williams; Colin, the young hired man, Robert Nachtmann.

Other members of the cast who have roles as neighbors and soldiers are Louise McGuire, Hazel Beacham, Mildred Moore, Ruth Joyce Satre, Nancy Hawes, Ellen Deppe, Jane Cover, Channing Fries, Wilbur Leach, George Stoney, Edmund Austin, Dwight Brown, and David Richardson.

"GAY DIVORCEE"

Here are some of the ladies who will introduce the "Continental," successor to the "Carioca," in the musical-dancing spectacle, "The Gay Divorcee," playing at the Carolina theatre today and tomorrow. Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, stars in "Flying Down to Rio," take the leading roles.

tries, then Jack Alexander broke through center for eight more and a first on the 22. Alexander got five and Parker two on line smashes. A lateral, Ward to Parker, placed the ball on the 9-yard line. Cornelius tried a reverse around right end but was thrown for a 3-yard loss by Kitchin. Alexander crashed the line for five and then four yards to the two. From here Parker took another lateral from Ward and crossed the zero line with ease. Cornelius kicked the point, making the score 14-0.

Alexander Loose

The rest of the first half was rather listless with Wake Forest holding the Blue Devils on even terms mainly through the efforts of Kitchin who got off several beautiful runs. However, not long before the whistle Alexander intercepted one of Kitchin's heaves on his own 37 and ran the entire 63 yards for the marker. Cornelius turned in his third successful try for extra point.

Midway in the fourth period Johnson, reserve Duke back, took a punt from Eden on his own 34 and raced through the entire Deacon club 66 yards for the last Blue Devil touchdown. McAninch kicked to make the count, 28-0.

Deacons Score

The lone Wake Forest tally came not long before the end of the contest when Kitchin's passes began finding their marks. The first toss to Edens gained 15 yards and then a second throw to Warren was good for 34 yards putting the ball on Duke's 6. A third pass, this time to Clark, resulted in the 6-pointer. Edens place-kicked the extra point.

The consistent smashes for gains by Alexander and the occasional spectacular dashes by Cornelius featured in the Blue Devil power attack. Parker continued his fine punting, while Wentz, end, and Power, tackle, were the stars in the line.

Kitchin was the big gun both on offense and defense for the losers, backing up the line in excellent fashion, making most of the gain on the ground, and always threatening with his fine passing arm.

stripe. Two line plays netted six yards, and then Hutchins went over left tackle to score standing up. Jackson's placement for the extra point was wide. The half ended a few minutes later.

Davidson elected to kick-off at the beginning of the second half, and Mackorell's short boot was recovered by Cathey, a Wildcat end, on Carolina's 45-yard line. This was one of the Wildcat's tricks that worked perfectly.

After Mackorell punted out of bounds on Carolina's 14-yard marker, big Jim Hutchins broke loose on a reverse for a 30-yard run before he was finally hauled down by a Davidson back.

On the next play Carolina was ruled off-side after Jackson had carried the ball for a 32-yard gain.

Hutchins and Jackson carried the ball for two consecutive first downs to make it first and goal to go on Davidson's 5-yard line. Hutchins made a two foot gain through the line, and then Jackson scored the Tar Heels' second touchdown on a reverse around right end. Babe Daniel's kick for extra point was blocked by "Big Six" Johnston.

Coach Snavely sent in several substitutes during the final quarter. Neither team threatened to score.

The game ended with Davidson in possession of the ball on her own 25-yard line.

The running of Jim Hutchins and the clever generalship of Harry Montgomery stood out in the Carolina backfield, while Hump Snyder contributed his usual fine play on offense and defense. Mackorell and Wingfield starred for the losers. However, since the game was played in a heavy downpour of rain, the backfield men did not have a chance to show their mettle.

nado 21-0. Carolina's margin was one touchdown more, 26-0.

Charlie Shaffer, star back, and Bill Moore, letter end, who were held out of the Davidson game due to injuries, are expected to resume their places in the Carolina lineup next week. Captain Jack Dunlap, Elmer Tarrall, and Jule Ward, the three Duke stars who have been slowed up with injuries recently, are likewise expected to be back in shape, so that both teams will be packing close to top strength.

Carolina and Duke have been battling on the gridiron since 1888, although no games were played between 1894 and 1922. A total of 18 games have been played with Carolina scoring 11 victories and two ties. However, the up-and-coming Blue Devils, who are now a power in the grid world, have won the last two games and fought the Tar Heels to scoreless ties in 1930 and 1931.

PAINTING EXHIBIT TO OPEN NOV. 17

Rosamond Niles' Works Will Be Displayed in Music Hall.

A public exhibition of paintings by Rosamond Niles, including portraits, etchings, and water colors, will be opened here Saturday afternoon in Hill Music hall immediately after the Carolina-Duke game and will continue for a week.

Miss Niles and her sister, Mrs. Joseph G. Walker of Woodberry Forest, will accompany the exhibit to Chapel Hill. They will be honored at a tea in the Hill Music hall Saturday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock, to which a number of art patrons throughout the state have been extended invitations.

The exhibit is being brought to Chapel Hill through the generosity of William L. Hunt.

Miss Niles makes her home in Old Lyme, Conn., but spends a considerable portion of her time in Woodberry Forest. She is the daughter of the late Rear Admiral N. E. Niles, U.S.N.

She has exhibited in the National Academy of Design in New York, in the Paris Salon, in the Southern States Art League exhibitions, and in other centers throughout the country.

Miss Niles has membership in the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors, in the National Arts club, and in the Southern States Art League.

The names of all professors who keep their classes overtime are published regularly at the University of Kansas.

HEER WILL SPEAK ON REVENUE PLAN

North Carolina Club to Hear Professor Tomorrow Night.

Dr. Clarence Heer, professor of taxation at the University, will speak on "Co-ordination of Federal and State Revenues" at a meeting of the North Carolina club tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the rural social economics room in the library.

Dr. Heer will review the revenue system of North Carolina, outlining some difficulties of administration. He will discuss a method that could be used by the federal government to relieve some of the administrative problems by collecting revenues on a national basis and distributing funds to the states.

He is recognized as one of the outstanding students of taxation in the United States and has recently returned to the University from a leave of absence during which he was employed by the interstate commission on conflicting taxation which has been trying to harmonize state and federal taxation by eliminating tax conflicts.

Advance Sale for Game Makes New Record

Reduced General Admission Tickets Not Eliminated.

Contrary to reports, Carolina will not eliminate the sale of general admission tickets at reduced prices to the game with Duke here Saturday, athletic officials said last night.

Although the advance sale, heaviest on record here, indicates a sell-out, officials said that provisions were being made for two general admission sections seating approximately 4,500 people.

The whole of the north (visitors) side will be reserved, but extra bleachers are being installed at the west end of the field, supplementing the 2,500 seats in the general admission section on the south (Carolina) side.

To avoid congestion, the 2,500 seats in the general admission section in the south stands, although they will be sold at the reduced price, will be numbered, thus assuring the purchaser a specific seat.

PROUTY, PANTON TO BE SPEAKERS

Faculty Men Will Address Elizabeth City Convention.

Dr. W. F. Prouty, head of the University geology department, and H. D. Panton, North Carolina chief engineer of water resources and member of the Greater University department of conservation and development, will speak at the annual convention of the American Water Works association in Elizabeth City tomorrow.

Dr. Prouty will speak on the geological formation of North Carolina's coastal plain. Panton will outline the association's plan for the next two years.

Geologists from all sections of the country will attend the convention to participate in lectures, tours and receptions to be conducted November 12-14.

Austrian Police Arrest Hundred in Uprising

Propagandists Incite Populace to Demand Plebiscite.

Vienna, Nov. 10.— (UP) — Police and troops, alert for weeks against the possibility of an uprising, today broke up anti-government demonstrations throughout Austria.

It is estimated that 100 communists and socialists were arrested this afternoon and this evening here in an effort to halt the distribution of thousands of pamphlets summoning the population to a demonstration Monday for "a plebiscite" to determine the balance of power between leftist elements and the Austrian fascist government.

DELTA TAU DELTA TO HOLD BANQUET

Carolina and Duke Chapters to Hold Conclave Saturday.

The annual Delta Tau Delta banquet, which will bring together the active chapters of Carolina and Duke, the pledges of those groups, and their alumni, will be held here Saturday, following the Duke-Carolina football game. This will be the fifth meeting of the two groups.

The banquet will be held in Graham Memorial at 6:00 o'clock. It is expected there will be from 150 to 200 persons present. Delts from all over this section have been invited. The actives and pledges from Duke will be the guests of the actives and pledges of North Carolina.

The program will include a welcome from the president of the Carolina chapter, V. J. Lee of Baltimore, Md., and response from President Williams of the Duke University chapter, Delt songs, and a few special stunts.

The chief speaker will be Harold Tharp, national president of Delta Tau Delta. He will give an address on Delta Tau Delta as a national fraternity. There will be a brief address by Dean R. B. House of the University. Professor Harold D. Meyer will serve as toastmaster.

Asst. Archivist

Miss Marjory Terrell, secretary to Robert D. W. Connor, former head of the history department, during his 11 years at the University, left for Washington yesterday where she will assist him in his new duties as Federal Archivist.

Miss Terrell has been working with Dr. Connor "for more years than she cares to admit" and has been his only secretary. She will take up permanent residence in Washington.

Commander Parker To Speak Here Today On Foreign Policies

Foreign Policy League Will Sponsor Address

Parker Will Speak on the Attitude of America Towards the League of Nations.

MEETING IS OPEN TO ALL

Commander Thomas Drayton Parker of Charleston, S. C., will speak at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in Gerrard hall under the auspices of the Foreign Policy league.

Commander Parker will speak on America's attitude toward the League of Nation as an element of world peace.

The speaker, who saw active duty in the World War and who has been an interested advocate of peace, attended the original meeting of the League of Nations in 1920 as an observer.

First of Series

The presentation of Commander Parker is the first of a series of programs to be sponsored by the Foreign Policy league. The league plans to bring to Chapel Hill authorities on world problems of current interest this year.

The purpose of the league in securing these speakers is to inform the campus in matters of international importance and to stimulate student interest in the foreign policies of the nation, according to Agnew Bahnson, new president.

Commander Parker will address his remarks primarily to the members of the league, who in turn invite the general public to attend.

IRISHMAN TO END THREE DAY VISIT

"Irish Renaissance" Is Topic for Stephens' Lecture Tonight In Gerrard Hall.

Concluding a three day visit to the University, James Stephens, Irish poet, novelist, and critic, will lecture in Gerrard hall at 8:30 o'clock tonight on "The Irish Renaissance."

Stephens appeared in Graham Memorial Sunday afternoon, where he read selections from his literary works.

"The Irish Renaissance" is strictly a subject within Stephens' field, for the poet is at his best when writing or talking about his native land, since it was only recently that the writer left Ireland for his source material.

Goodwill Tour

Stephens, though rated as one of the greatest modern literary figures, is personally little known to the majority in this country and his present tour will bring him closer to Americans.

Stephens first won recognition with the American reading public with the appearance of his "Crock of Gold."

Ruark Speaks Tomorrow

Dr. Arthur E. Ruark of the physics department will address the mathematics seminar tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. His subject will be "Discrete and Continuous Theories in Physics.

Blackwell Pledges

Crist W. Blackwell pledged Phi Delta Theta, the office of the dean of students announced yesterday.

UNIVERSITY CLUB

The University club will hold a very important meeting tonight at 7:00 o'clock in Graham Memorial, Frank Willingham, president of the organization, announced yesterday. Plans for the Duke weekend will be taken up.

SCOUT SEMINAR OPENS THURSDAY

Dr. Harold D. Myer Will Direct Three-Day Session for Executives.

The Boy Scout seminar for the fall term will be held here Thursday, Friday, and Saturday under the auspices of the University and the Boy Scouts of America.

Professor Harold D. Meyer of the sociology department will direct the program of the conference.

Executives from all over the state will meet and discuss the Boy Scout jamboree which will be held here April 26 and 27. The spring affair will coincide with the annual Dogwood Festival and will serve as North Carolina's recognition of the 25th anniversary of scouting.

Henderson to Talk

Thursday, Dr. Archibald Henderson will speak to the institute on "Daniel Boone," and Professor E. J. Woodhouse will talk on "The Present Political Picture" at 4:30 o'clock.

Friday at 9:00 o'clock, Dr. W. B. Saunders will make an address on "Modern Trends in Juvenile Delinquency." "Children's Reading," will be the subject of a talk after lunch by Dr. A. M. Jordan, and Dr. H. R. Totten will discuss "Trees and Vines of North Carolina" at 3:00 o'clock.

Dr. E. K. Plyler will speak on "Some New Experiments in Physics" Saturday morning.

Noted Archaeologist Speaks This Morning

Students Invited to Hear Elihu Grant Talk in Murphey Hall.

Dr. Elihu Grant of the American School of Oriental Research at Jerusalem and of Haverford College will give an illustrated talk this morning at 9:30 o'clock in room 111 Murphey on "Digging up Biblical History in the Holy Land."

Dr. Grant will make his address in the archaeology class of Dr. J. P. Harland, but all student and faculty members interested are invited to attend.

The visiting archaeologist is the guest of Dean A. W. Hobbs, and he is desirous of meeting Haverford alumni here on the campus.

Dr. Grant excavated Beth Shemesh, an important site in Palestine, south of Jerusalem. He has produced a monumental work in three volumes on his excavations in the holy land and has written other books and numerous articles dealing with Biblical history and archaeology.

HOBBS SPEAKS TODAY

Dean A. W. Hobbs of the college of liberal arts will speak today at 10:30 o'clock in freshman assembly. His subject will be "Making the Most of Educational Opportunities."

DI WILL CONTINUE LABOR DISCUSSION

Senate Members to Make Final Plans for Di-Phi Dance.

The Dialectic senate will meet tonight at 7:00 o'clock in New West to discuss two bills.

The bill: Resolved, that a strong industrial union, organized on a national basis, can not be successful in the United States, will be discussed for the last time tonight when a final vote on the subject will be taken.

The other bill on the calendar is: Resolved, that the present class schedule should be changed to begin at 9:00 o'clock, thereby abolishing freshman assembly and allowing call meetings at 8:30 o'clock.

There will be committee reports on finances, ways and means, and the freshman Di-Phi debate.

Final plans will be made at this meeting for the Di-Phi dance which will be held Friday night, November 23.

Eddie Doesn't Play Here Any More

Elmer Says Isham Jones Will Appear Here Minus Vocalist Stone.

We want to apologize to Elmer.

Who is Elmer?

We don't know.

Well, what has Elmer got to do with this story?

Elmer is the guy that wrote us a note yesterday in regard to the Isham Jones story in Sunday's paper.

Elmer says, if he may contradict our esteemed paper, that the lovers of unusual dance music may be interested in knowing that Eddie Stone will not be with Isham Jones when he appears here Friday and Saturday to play for the fall German club dances.

Eddie only left the band about two months ago and the DAILY TAR HEEL would not know about it at this time. According to Elmer a new addition to the outfit is trying very hard to take his place and is doing a pretty fair job, althought it is a difficult task to replace such a vocalist as Stone.

However, says Elmer, we still have "Ish" and the smoothest dance music there is.

Thanks for the note, Elmer, and the correction. We might explain that the source from which we obtained our information was a publicity story sent us by the Columbia Broadcasting System. Apparently, they forgot that Eddie is no longer with the orchestra.

However, we agree with our unknown friend that the campus will have the opportunity to hear some of the smoothest dance music there is, regardless of the fact that Stone will be missing.

Write us again sometime, Elmer.

DIRECTORY DISTRIBUTION

Persons living outside of Chapel Hill who are due to receive a copy of the student directory should call for it at the Y. M. C. A., announced Helen Hodges, "Y" secretary, yesterday.

The freshmen are still delivering the directories through town, she stated. They will not be asked to carry the books beyond walking distance.

LIBRARIES SWAP CARD CATALOGUES

Exchange Made Between Duke University and Carolina.

The exchange of library card catalogues between the University library and Duke University library, which was made possible by a grant from the general educational board last spring, has been completed, R. B. Downs, University librarian, announced yesterday.

The duplication of cards was done by Remington Rand, Inc., who used the lexigraphing process, a photographic means of copying. This system was developed by Remington Rand while reproducing the card indices at the Library of Congress and at the Yale library.

The Duke library catalogue has been set up on the second floor of the University library in the west hall near the main reading room.

All books received currently by the two libraries are recorded in the catalogues, so that they may be kept up to date.

Burlage Talks Tonight To Scientific Society

The 335th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell society, scientific organization, will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock in Phillip's hall.

H. M. Burlage of the pharmacy school will speak on "The Official Sulphur Ointments and Their Assay." A talk on "The Infra-Red Absorption of Basic Solutions" will be presented by Walter Gordy.

Receipts from Sale Of Christmas Seals To Benefit Students

Money from Sales to Be Used for Tuberculosis Prevention.

Funds collected from the sale of Chrismas seals among University students this year in the annual drive sponsored by the local finance committee of the turberculosis association will be used for the fighting of tuberculosis on the campus.

Receipts from the sale of the stamps will be spent for tuberculosis preventative work and examinations among University students who can not possibly pay for treatment.

This new policy of the local finance committee of the tuberculosis association was announced yesterday by Mrs. A. M. Jordan, chairman of publicity of the group.

Need for such a fund to aid individuals in the University was indicated this year when Dr. W. R. Berryhill, University physician, asked the local committee to pay for X-ray examinations given to 15 students.

Officials of the committee expressed the hope yesterday that students will buy as generously as possible this year because of the new policy of disbursing the funds raised.

Soph Executives to Meet

There will be a special meeting of all members of the sophomore class executive committee this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Tau Beta Pi Meets Today

There will be a business meeting of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in 214 Phillips hall.

Graham Heads New Board To Help Federal Council Devise Security Program

FOOTBALL PASSBOOKS

All University students who attended the Carolina-Davidson game Saturday may obtain their passbooks at the Athletic association office in Graham Memorial.

DUKE PROFESSOR DENOUNCES WAR

Dr. Russell Tells "Y" Cabinets To Prepare for Peace and Not for War.

"Some substitute must be found for those conditions from which wars grow," said Dean Elbert Russell, head of the department of religion at Duke, speaking on the subject "A Warless World" before a joint meeting of the "Y" last night.

"The principal system which shall restrain war is one that will adjust international relations and remove all of the elementary strife between nations."

Dean Russell denounced war as a method for solving international difficulties and stated that the entire world should be so united that none of this strife would exist.

Prepare with Peace

"In order to implement the peace agreements of nation," said Dean Russell, "there must be a system of gradual disarmament, because preparedness limits the chance of peace. In order to have peace we must prepare for peace."

Russell stated that if we are to have a warless world we must have a warless people. "As long as there is that quality in the peoples of the world which tends toward war, there will be war," he said. The economic situations of the various governments must be adjusted so that any trade trouble will be impossible.

In conclusion Dean Russell stated that "the Christian teaching of brotherhood is the only ultimate guarantee of a warless world."

PHI WILL DISCUSS INDUSTRY TONIGHT

New Constitution to Be Ready For Ratification by Assembly.

When the Phi assembly meets tonight at 7:15 o'clock in New East, the question to be discussed will be: Resolved, that the federal government take over the ownership of our basic industries.

The resolution passed last week: Resolved, that the current issue of the Finjan be condemned as a humorous publication, will also be open for further discussion.

The long deferred report of the constitutional committee is expected to be presented at this meeting, and a new constitution will be ready for ratification.

Occupying the "efficiency expert's" chair tonight will be representative Winthrop Durfee.

Feature Board Meets Today

The weekly meeting of the feature board of the DAILY TAR HEEL will be held this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in room 209 Graham Memorial. All members are required to be present.

PRESIDENT LEAVES FOR WASHINGTON

Nineteen Economic Thinkers Are Named by Roosevelt on Graham's Committee.

BOARD NAMED SATURDAY

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, president of the Greater University of North Carolina, has been appointed head of the new advisory council to act as an aid to the federal committee on economic security.

Dr. Graham left last night for Washington, where he will spend a week conferring with government officials to find out what his new duties will be.

Other Members

The advisory council, named Saturday by President Roosevelt, is composed of 19 prominent men and women and includes such leading economic thinkers as Raymond Moley, William Green, and Governor John Winant of New Hampshire.

The economic security committee, made up of four cabinet officers and Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, is working on a ten-point federal relief program which will be presented to the president before December 1.

Program of Committee

Unemployment insurance and old age pensions, the chief points in the program for social security, will probably come before the newly-elected Congress at its first session. Upon the effect of these two points will depend the fate of the other phases of the program.

Dr. Graham's new government job is the second that President Roosevelt has intrusted to him. He has been for a year vice-chairman of the national consumers' advisory board of the NRA.

STATE WILL TAX REYNOLDS' CHILD

Revenue Collector to Levy Inheritance Tax on $1,000,000 Left Anne Reynolds II.

Winston-Salem, Nov. 12.—(UP)—Judge P. A. McElroy of the Forsyth county superior court today set the hearing of the Reynolds case for next Friday, instead of November 28, as previously scheduled.

The state of North Carolina began its litigation today when McElroy signed an order allowing A. J. Maxwell, commissioner of revenue, to intervene to collect the inheritance tax which hasn't been paid from the estate of the deceased Zachary Smith Reynolds.

Millions Not Enough

In the meantime, the Cabarrus Bank and Trust Co., guardians for Anne Cannon Reynolds, II, will seek to have the million dollar trust fund which the state plans to tax set aside so that the child can share in the full estate of R. J. Reynolds, her grandfather.

The trust fund which is the bone of contention was set up by Smith Reynolds, deceased heir to the Reynolds tobacco millions, as a settlement on his first wife and their daughter, Anne II.

PARAGRAPHICS

It's not too much to ask that the Devils remain the only party who'll be blue next Saturday.

"Shroud" inanimate, Paul? We'd say rather it was more closely associated with the dead.

Huey Long's philosophy: nothing secedes like success.

Another Tribute

President Frank Porter Graham has again answered the call of the national administration. This time, accepting the chairmanship of the advisory council which will aid the committee on economic security, President Graham throws his abundant energies to a task for which he is better fitted than any previous capacity in which he has been asked to serve.

With such a background embracing civil, social and educational service, President Graham carries into his latest field of public affairs the very finest qualities which will come as a relief to those to whom the presence of wishy-washy economic theorists in Washington has been distasteful.

Another honor has thus been conferred on President Graham in particular and the state in general. The eyes of the nation are always resting upon the Old North State in searching for the men to assume the tremendous responsibilities of national administration. Of all of President Graham's many distinctive offices, this latest, it is felt, is the one in which he will be the most efficient, the one to which he is best suited. A friend of the people, a dynamo of sympathetic understanding, a believer in the role of confidence in administration, President Graham will blaze new trails in the name of his country.

And in accepting, North Carolina's busiest man becomes busier—the penalty for greatness.

So's Your Grammar

There is undoubtedly a better reason for his changing the name of his play than Paul Green gave to the DAILY TAR HEEL. The title was revised from "Shroud Me Down" to "Shroud My Body Down," and the information that we acquired from Professor Koch seemed to indicate that the noted playwright made the change to conform to the song, "Shroud My Body Down," which figures so prominently in his play.

We would prefer any reason for the change other than that given the DAILY TAR HEEL. Green was quoted as saying that the revision was made because he saw a conflict between the inanimate "shroud" and the animate "me."

Now, we intend to remain neutral on any question of grammar as she is writ, using "ain't" with the greatest abandon and otherwise siding with the cult which takes delight in a well-placed comma fault, but if Belletrist Green has founded his reasons for making the change on the propriety of grammar, or the abstractness of inanimacy, then we deplore the result as a decadent influence on what picturesque irregularities remain in this uncouth Anglo-Saxon tongue.

Record Breaker

With all indications pointing toward the largest attendance in history, the Duke-Carolina football game here this week-end bids fair to go down in the history of football and intercollegiate competition by the spirit represented in inter-school relations of Duke and Carolina.

All year we have heard and participated in a movement to better relations between these institutions, not so much because they were on particularly thin ice, but more because they should be on the thickest ice possible. There is no reason for our relations to be otherwise; this week's gathering will determine just how far our efforts throughout the fall have gone toward cementing the friendliest of feelings and cooperation.

Both teams have great records and both schools are anxious to win at the other's expense. The situation presents an ideal background for the annual get-together; relations should not become forcedly stiff and formal but the spirit of friendship should prevail. Here's to you, Duke!

Recognizing Liberalism

Following the lead of the University of North Carolina, recognized as the most liberal state university, Albert Hume, chancellor of the University of Mississippi, said recently that "Freedom of thought and of expression are indispensable to progress. . . . Rather than resort to censorship, I would much prefer to see our publications suspended or surpressed. We can get along without a paper or a yearbook, but we cannot live and prosper without mutual confidence and respect."

The tendency in recent years in colleges and universities throughout the country has been a swinging away from the old idea of strict administrative supervision of student, with a movement toward liberal attitudes in student problems. Deep thinking educators have for some time recognized that confidence and respect for student opinions are necessary to create that sense of responsibility which a proper regard for liberty imposes on prospective citizens.

We here are more fortunate in being allowed our freedom of expression and thought than most university students, though the fact is not generally appreciated by Carolina students. When such liberal policies are inculcated in the spirit of all the great universities of this country, national education will have taken a great step forward.

Child Is The Father . . .

According to the Daily Illini of the University of Illinois, the person who is a "big shot" in campus affairs is foredoomed to failure in after life.

"This type of person," says this publication, "will spend several years after graduation trying to adjust himself. It will require that length of time for him to achieve any set of actual values. Cheap student flattery will protect him from any real intellectual stimulus."

We agree absolutely with the first statement. The "big shot" does require several years to adjust himself—but who doesn't? Who ever stepped from the artificial life of a university, be he politician, athlete, socialite, rounder, or the most inconsequential member of the senior class, into the grim struggle of a business or profession, without a wrench?

Your "big shot" is rather clay-footed, naturally. "Cheap student flattery" is likely to make him a demi-god in his own eyes. Conditions, however, may make for differences in the individual. A perusal of the records of the men who have left Carolina to "make good," as we say in after life, shows that a good majority of them were prominent campus figures when in school. An old boy by the name of Wordsworth made a statement about the child being the father of the man which, so far as we know, has never been successfully refuted.

Question Of Names

History, according to George Fort Milton, historian, author, and editor of the Chattanooga News, is not the result of the inevitable but the outcome of chance. Lecturing at the University club in Nashville on "The Ifs of History," Milton gave as basic examples of his theory the following posers:

"Where would England be now if there hadn't been a furious off-shore wind blowing when the Spanish Armada sailed on England and Drake's fleet went out to meet it, and won one of the greatest sea victories of all time as the result?

"If Richard Cromwell, son of Oliver Cromwell, had been a man instead of one diseased and not capable of succeeding his father?

"If a great rainstorm had not drenched the battlefield the day before Waterloo?"

Mr. Milton's questions are admittedly riddles that give rise to interesting arm-chair speculation. But is it altogether chance—or a Divinity that shapes our ends? Call it what we may.

Magazine Inaugurates FERA Essay Contest

The National Student Mirror magazine is conducting a contest open to all enrolled undergraduates, graduate students, and faculty members in which $50.00 in cash prizes will be offered.

The best essay submitted on a research or survey which might be made by students holding part-time FERA jobs will win a prize of $25.00. Second prize will win $15.00, and there will be five $2.00 prizes.

The essays will be judged by a committee of World Peace foundation executives, whose selection will be final. Originality, construction, and practicable suggestions will be the points which receiving the most attention.

The essay will not necessarily be confined to a project or research in which FERA students might participate. Study classes, discussion groups, and other surveys which would benefit a community could furnish material for an essay.

The suggested word limit is 600 to 1,200 words. All entries must be mailed to the National Student Mirror at 8 West 40th St., New York City, before midnight, December 1.

Koch to Make Talk At Festival Friday

Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, will open the annual original play festival at Seaboard Friday afternoon.

Koch will speak on the "Phases of Native Dramas."

Other persons from Chapel Hill who will attend the Seaboard festival will include: Mrs. Irene Fussler, secretary of the Carolina Dramatic association, and John Parker of the extension department of community drama.

According to Professor Koch, Seaboard has won more prizes in playwriting at the annual dramatic festival, held here each year at the Playmakers theatre under the sponsorship of the state-wide Carolina Dramatic association, than any other town in the state.

Red Cross Roll Call Started Last Night

The Red Cross roll call on the campus began last night when members of the freshman and sophomore cabinets of the "Y" and representatives of the Interfraternity council received instructions and materials, after which they made their initial canvass of dormitories and fraternities.

Lee Greer, chairman of the campus section of the roll call, and J. D. Winslow, president of the "Y," are directing the activities of the 35 students doing the canvassing. The goal of their efforts is 300 student memberships.

The Pi Beta Phi sorority will be in charge of a Red Cross booth in the "Y" building today and tomorrow. This booth will be open today from 10:30 to 12:00 o'clock in the morning and from 2:00 to 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Hours tomorrow afternoon will be the same, but the booth will be open in the morning only during assembly period.

E. C. Smith, manager of the Carolina theatre, is publicity chairman for the local chapter of the Red Cross and is showing all this week a special Red Cross reel.

LOVERS OF DRAMA

. . . Have Awaited This Picture for Three Decades!

Thirty years ago, Alice Hegan Rice wrote the story which is destined to remain forever in the hearts of American people . . . a classic drama whose courage, pathos and great humanity make it a thing of ageless beauty.

NOW, this precious story is one of the most important pictures of this or any year . . . being the finest attraction offered to Chapel Hill since the Carolina played "Little Women." In the title role is Pauline Lord, famous stage star, of "Strange Interlude," who purposely delayed her screen career to appear first as Mrs. Wiggs.

W. C. Fields shines in the role of C. Chesterfield Stubbins, while Zasu Pitts plays the fluttery Miss Hazy. As Lucy Olcott and Bob Redding, Evelyn Venable and Kent Taylor are a handsome pair of lovers.

The great beauty of this story is its simplicity and truth. With equal simplicity and truth, we publish this unusual advertisement for everyone in Chapel Hill.

"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH"

is one of the finest pictures we have ever offered. We endorse it gladly, heartily, completely, as an exalting dramatic experience for everyone in Chapel Hill.

Sincerely,
E. Carrington Smith, Mgr.

Tar Baby Gridsters Lick Clemson Frosh Club, 15-0

Bershak Causes Safety; Avery Makes Long Dash to Count.

Asheville, Nov. 12.—(UP)—The freshman teams of Carolina and Clemson gave 1,500 fans a great exhibition of football here this afternoon, the Tar Babies winning 15-0 in the Armistice Day celebration.

Carolina's fine yearling team was hard pushed throughout the first three quarters but finally opened up in the final period to run across two quick touchdowns for the wide margin.

Bershak Provides Score

Andy Bershak, excellent Tar Baby right end, was responsible for the first score in the second quarter when he pulled Sam Page, Tiger Cub back, down in the Clemson end zone. It was a safety and gave the Carolina eleven a 2-0 lead.

Pete Avery, hefty Baby center, turned in the outstanding run of the fray, during the fourth quarter scoring. He intercepted a Clemson pass and then dashed 40 yards through a broken field for a touchdown.

The other marker for the Carolina first year team came after a steady drive. Ditt, fullback, crossed the zero line on a plunge. Walborn added the only extra point of the contest with a place-kick.

HERMAN SNYDER LEADS RACE FOR BLOCKING AWARD

Carolina Ace Has Put Up Great Exhibition in Every Game So Far This Season.

SNAVELY PRAISES HIM

Herman Snyder, of Carolina, has served notice with a fine exhibition in every game of the season that he is out to win the trophy which H. A. Millis, High Point manufacturer and sportsman, is offering for the State's best blocking back.

"Forgotten man" of the Carolina backfield, the junior from Monroe has nevertheless been one of the most valuable members. He is the unsung hero who clears the way for the ball carriers who get into the headlines.

One of the finest tributes to come his way was that of his own coach, Carl Snavely. "Snyder can be counted on to do his job, which is one of the most difficult on the team, as well as any other player on the team."

Barclay's Aid

Snyder, who weighs 175 pounds and who combines great drive with a rare fighting spirit, also helps Captain Barclay back up the Carolina line. Here, too, he has been a standout in every game, and in the upset of Georgia it was he who got credit for stopping the Bulldogs' 200-pound fullback, Buck Chapman.

For the latter performance Snyder "made" the "Hero of the Day" page in the next issue of the Carolina football program.

Snyder won his letter at fullback as a sophomore, breaking into the lineup in the Georgia Tech game due to his ability at busting the line on offense and backing it up on defense.

There were two or three good fullbacks on hand when Coach Snavely took over the reins at Carolina but no one to handle the difficult job of blocking back. Snyder stepped into the breach and has come through in splendid fashion.

The "Monroe mauler" played a particularly splendid game against Duke last year and will be out, in the revival of the ancient feud here Saturday, to out-block Ward of Duke, who is one of his chief rivals for the Millis trophy, and at the same time, to outdo all his past performances.

Virginia Plays Old Foes, Carolina And VPI, In Final Tilts

University, Va., Nov. 12.—Virginia's last two football games of the 1934 season are against rivals that the Cavaliers have been playing for 40 years or more. V. P. I. is to be met next Saturday in Blacksburg. Then the Virginians close the season against North Carolina in Scott stadium on Thanksgiving.

V. P. I. was first played in 1895 and the meeting on November 17 will be the 21st between the two rivals. Virginia has been eleven times the victor, Tech has won seven games, and two have been tied.

Played Carolina in 1892

Carolina and Virginia began playing football back in 1892, just three years after both schools had taken up the gridiron sport in an organized way. Since 1910 this contest has been a Thanksgiving Day fixture, and now the series ranks as the oldest unbroken gridiron rivalry in all of Dixie. The Tar Heels' invasion of Scott stadium will be the 39th game between the two teams.

V. P. I. did not take up intercollegiate football until 1892, the year of the first Virginia-Carolina game. None of the colleges in the Shenandoah Valley or the western section of the state began the grid game until that year.

Last November, in Scott stadium, Cavaliers and Techmen played a 6-6 tie. Virginia scored on the last play of the first half on a 38-yard pass from Tommy Johnson to Red Fryberger. V. P. I. came back to count on the next to last play of the game when Jim Ottoway bucked over from the five-yard stripe. Neither team was able to add the extra point.

Virginia and Carolina freshman teams get a jump on the varsity elevens, for the two first year teams play next Friday afternoon in Chapel Hill.

RINGSTERS BEGIN PRACTICING FOR MURAL TOURNEY

Varsity Boxers Also Take Workout Under Direction of Rowe.

With a coolness in the air at the Tin Can yesterday afternoon, the merciless flailing of gloves against bodies brought forth many loud outbursts. The pugilists set out with new aspirations as the tinge of winter in the air caused their nostrils to seemingly fill with odors to resin.

Heavyweight Alderman, Lightweight O'Flaherty, Middleweight Giddens, and Welterweight Fisher all took long peppy spasms of bag punching and actual ring workouts.

At present, Coach Rowe is centering his thoughts on the forecoming intramural tournament. Coach Rowe is in high hopes of developing many of the boys entering the mit tourney. It is advisable that all planning an entrance into mural competition start their workouts immediately. The dates for the tournament are close at hand, being tentatively set for the week following the Thanksgiving holidays.

SIGMA NU WINS OVER PHI ALPHA

Snakes Keep Record Clean with 15-2 Victory; No Other Tag Grid Games Played.

There was little activity in the race for intramural tag football honors yesterday afternoon as the sole contest saw the undefeated Sigma Nu team gain its fifth victory at the expense of Phi Alpha, 15-2.

Both teams were able to catch the opposition with their backs to the wall and scored safeties in the opening half. Sigma Nu went ahead as Edwards carried the oval across and Whitaker converted for a 9-2 lead at intermission.

Bost "put the game on ice"—and from the coldness of the weather, the term might be interpreted figuratively — as he took a pass for the only six-pointer in the second half. The winners led seven to two in first downs.

Today's schedule finds Sigma Nu playing its second consecutive game of the week as it faces the strong Delta Tau Delta combine, which may prove a tartar for the green jersey clad boys.

The complete schedule:

3:30—(1) Manly vs. Aycock, (2) Phi Kappa Sigma vs. Sigma Chi.

4:30—(1) Sigma Nu vs. Delta Tau Delta, (2) Z. B. T. vs. Pi Kappa Alpha, (3) Zeta Psi vs. A. T. O.

TEN NET COURTS READY FOR USE

New Asphalt Surfaced Tennis Courts Will Be in Shape to Play Upon Today.

Tennis-hungry students will have their craving satisfied for the remainder of the fall playing season, with the grand opening of ten asphalt courts this afternoon.

The continued complaints of the student body as to the congestion of the tennis courts will die into a mere mumbling with the opening of these additional courts.

These courts will provide a near perfect surface for play. The courts have a thin covering of sand, and this will have to be worked into the asphalt before perfect playing conditions will be available.

Fully Equipped

The courts will be fully equipped and will be lined daily, having the same care that is given to the ones being used by the varsity. Six singles and four doubles playing fields will come into the reach of the student body through their inauguration.

The courts are situated behind the varsity courts and to the left. This was the former haven of the handball and tennis backboard playing fields and it will now resound to the pounding of the tennis ball.

Tar Heel Cross Country Outfit Runs Duke At Durham Saturday

Race Is Between Two Leading Harrier Teams in Conference; First Real Test for Both.

DUKE HAS FINE RECORD

This Saturday in Durham the cross country meet between the undefeated aggregations of Duke and North Carolina will be a sort of unofficial race for the Southern Conference title.

These two North State squads present the leading harrier outfits in the conference and whoever wins out this week will more than likely repeat next week for the conference title.

Duke has a cross country record of three years without tasting defeat and this year has a good team which is based largely on sophomores. They have taken into camp Davidson, V. M. I., and Navy. They beat Navy this past week-end, 18-37, showing just how well-balanced their team is.

Carolina Record

The Ranson runners in turn have handed in quite an enviable series of wins to date, having allowed only one opposing man to finish before the complete scoring team had crossed the line. That one man was conference Champ Dunaj of W. and L. Perfect races were run against N. C. State and V. M. I.

The Blue Devil hill and dale team is built around Morse, Ferris, Heritage, and George. Morse, one of the star sophomores, has shown up particularly well over the longer distances and promises to develop into one of Dixie's leading harriers.

Part of the Carolina team will take a workout over the Duke course this afternoon to get the feeling of the Durham paths, while the rest of the team will take heavy work over the local courses.

Maryland Wins Again

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 12.—(UP) — Maryland's football team scored its third straight Southern Conference football triumph here today, whipping V.M.I., 23-0, before 10,000 spectators.

Important High Tilts Scheduled This Week

Important high school football games this week-end will decide the champions of the eastern class 'A' and of the west class 'B' conferences. The eastern class 'B' semi-final battles will be fought out Friday in Fayetteville, where Lumberton meets Garner, and in Rocky Mount, the scene of the Edenton-New Bern fray.

Raleigh plays Durham Friday in Durham to decide the eastern 'A' titlist, which will meet Greensboro, the western winner, in the state championship game in Kenan stadium, December 1.

Mt. Airy and Reidsville will play in Reidsville Friday to determine the winner of the western 'B' title.

Yackety Yack Committee

The following members of the Yackety Yack activities committee will meet at 3:00 o'clock this afternoon in Graham Memorial: Dave Thorpe, Bob Howison, Bryan Caldwell, T. Daniel, and Margaret McCauley.

Carolina Football Club Takes Snappy Workout, Preparing For Important Contest With Devils

Quinlan Believes Everyone Will Be in Shape; Tatum, Montgomery Slightly Injured.

TAKE OFFENSIVE DRILL

Second and Third Clubs Have Short Scrimmage with Bill Moore, End, Starring.

Carolina's football team began the last week preparations yesterday in Kenan stadium for the all important battle with Duke this Saturday.

Despite it being the coldest day so far this season, the Tar Heels were all pep and determination and under the direction of Coach Snavely took a short, light practice.

Harry Montgomery, heady halfback, and Jim Tatum, big tackle, were the only injuries reported as a result of the Davidson game. Trainer Quinlan stated that both, along with the entire squad, should be in shape by Saturday.

Looks for Real Battle

Coach Snavely had little to say about either the Davidson or Duke contests. He said that he believed the Blue Devils had a little the better team, but that the Tar Heels would be in there fighting every minute and there wouldn't be any walkaway.

The Carolina mentor stated that he would probably give only light drills this week in order not to take further chances on injuries. "The boys are driving themselves plenty fast as it is."

Yesterday the squad spent most of its time polishing the offense but also worked a short while on defense. Punting and going down under kicks were stressed by the coach; Don Jackson got off several nice boots.

Charlie Shaffer, still limping slightly as a result of his bad knee, worked in the first string backfield, alternating with Montgomery at the right half post. The rest of the eleven remained the same that has started the past two games.

Bill Moore Shines

The second and third outfits concluded the practice with a short scrimmage. Bill Moore, end, returned to hard action and was the feature of the scrimmage, snagging two passes and blocking in fine style. Dick Dashiell, reserve back, also did some nice running for the second club.

The Carolina seniors, Captain Barclay, Tatum, Eddie Kahn, and Shaffer, are especially pointing to the battle with the Blue Devils. These boys have gone down twice before the Wade-coached elevens, losing in 1932, 7-0, and last year, 21-0.

Elwell Tops Fast In Ladder Battle; Bloom Whips Berg

Despite a biting wind, four of Carolina's best in the freshman tennis ranking traded strokes yesterday afternoon in another attempt to settle the perpetual ladder disputes. When the dust of battle had cleared, Al Elwell and Jimmy Boom had emerged victors by decisive scores over challenging opponents.

In the opening match, Elwell made fast work of Fast, setting him down in short order by 6-2 scores in a straight set victory. Elwell, defending his fifth position for the first time, was clearly the superior throughout and displayed a sound stroking game of tennis, as he waded through his opponent.

Fast, although outplayed, also had his shots under control, and caused Elwell trouble in many instances. These outbursts were not sufficient to disturb the brilliant play of the victor and the contest proved to be one-sided.

Bloom Tops Berg

Bloom, in his conquest over Randy Berg, chalked up his fourth consecutive victory in ladder play, by the counts of 8-6, 6-0. This victory advanced the stepping Bloom three notches

WRESTLERS DRILL FOR TOURNAMENT

Mac Auman Instructs Candidates For Intramural Tourney.

In preparation for the Intramural matches which will take place on November 21 and 22 a squad of about 30 matmen worked out in the Tin Can yesterday.

Mac Auman was in charge of the men and, aided by members of last year's varsity, instructed them in the use of the "lever lock," the "break down lock," and the "sitting through" position.

Herman Schnell, director of intramural athletics, announced that men who were on the squad last year and competed in matches, or who had won either numerals or a letter, would not be allowed to compete in the meet.

Teams which have not as yet registered with the manager of wrestling are requested to do so before Monday in order to comply with the required number of workouts and to facilitate the matching of the men.

Workouts will be held every day this week at 4:30 o'clock in the Tin Can.

SPEAKER PRAISES RED CROSS WORK

Nelson Howard, representative of the National Red Cross and member of the class of '29, spoke to the freshman class at the regular assembly program yesterday in connection with the 18th annual Red Cross roll call.

R. M. Grumman, head of the local extension division and chairman of the Red Cross, introduced the speaker as "Shine" Howard, star football tackle in 1926, '27, and '28. He cited the aim of the drive at 600 or more members. The local chairman told of the numbers who are working on the campus, extending the invitation to join.

"The Red Cross is not connected with the national government; it is a self-supporting organization," Howard began. Recalling the disaster in Cameron county last year, he said, "The Red Cross was not only there whe nthe storm struck, but it was ready and waiting with supplies."

Highway Deaths

"Last month in North Carolina, 108 people were killed on the highways. From 40 to 60 per cent of these bled to death. The American Red Cross is planning to institute a program to put a first aid man in every filling station."

Since the Red Cross has introduced its life saving program, the number of drownings has been reduced 1,000 a year, the speaker said.

Howard concluded by telling of Carolina's victory over Duke in 1929 and expressed the belief that she would repeat that victory again this year.

Copy for Magazine Will Be Due Friday

Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, announced that all copy for the December issue of the magazine will be due Friday.

Copy can be mailed to the magazine box 710, brought to the office, 108 Graham Memorial, or brought to T. E. P. house.

Anyone wishing to see the editor will be able to do so between the hours of 3:00 to 5:00 o'clock on week days, and 11:30 to 1:00 o'clock on Saturdays..

The Magazine will be delivered directly to students living in town and to the dormitory stores. Co-eds living in Spencer and Graham can secure their copies from the housemother. Byron Abels will distribute the Magazine to graduate students.

Faculty members who have not received their November copy can get it from the secretary of their department.

Chemical Engineers Will Meet Tonight

There will be a meeting of the American Institute of chemical engineers tonight at 7:30 o'clock in 206 Venable hall.

A short business session, during which the proposed budget for the coming year and programs for the rest of the quarter will be discussed, will precede the main part of the program.

Featured on the program is the sophomore award presented annually to the second-year student in chemical engineering who makes the highest grades during his freshman year. Dr. A. M. White will make the presentation.

Following the award, Dr. A. E. Ruark will speak on "A Brief Survey of the Application of X-Rays in Chemical Industry."

TICKETS GOING FAST

Tickets to the Duke game today may be secured in Chapel Hill at the Athletic association office in Graham Memorial, at the Co-op clothing store, and the Book Exchange, athletic officials announced yesterday.

Reserved seat tickets can also be bought at the following places throughout the state: Durham, Durham Men's Shop; Raleigh, Wake Drug Co.; Greensboro, Crutchfield-Squire; Winston-Salem, Owen Drug Co.; Charlotte, J. B. Ivey's; Asheville, Covington Sport Shop.

The price of reserved tickets is $2.50. General admission is $1.25. High school students will be admitted for 50c. The Athletic association requests that all reserved tickets be taken up by tomorrow.

Officials stated yesterday that the stadium would be sold out long before the game. Bleachers are being installed at the west end of the field to accommodate the overflow. All of the visitors' side will be reserved. The 2,500 seats in the general admission section on the south side will be numbered to assure the purchaser a specific seat.

Elwell Tops Fast In Ladder Battle

and he is now firmly entrenched in seventh place.

Berg found holes in Bloom's defense at the start of the match and was off to a flying start as he gained a 5-1 lead in the first set. Bloom rallied and tied it at 5-all and continued his splurge, taking the set at 8-6. That completely finished his opponent and Bloom rode through the last set with comparative ease.

Immediately following his victory, Bloom challenged Elwell for the honor of holding down the fifth rung and these two victors will clash tomorrow in what promises to be a bitter encounter.

Men ain't nothin' but just little boys that got too big for their clothes an' growed beards.

Bull's Head Auction Scheduled for Today

The annual Bull's Head book auction is scheduled for 10:30 o'clock this morning in the bookshop, announced Elizabeth Johnson, director of the Bull's Head, yesterday.

Carl Thompson, member of the senior class, will act as auctioneer this morning.

Most of the books on the shelves will be marked down to a minimum bid from which price auctioning will begin.

Mayne Albright will be auctioneer tomorrow.

FIFTEEN CONFINED

Meares Harris, University student who accidently shot himself in the foot with a 22 calibre rifle, is now confined in the University infirmary. He was carried to Durham after the accident to have the bullet removed by surgeons at Watts Hospital.

Other students confined in the infirmary yesterday were: Tom Jimmerson, M. E. Smith, James Hunt, F. L. Bowen, C. A. Evans, Helen Rosser, Tom Burnett, Lee Richardson, Pryor McFadden, John Munyan, James Hackney, Felix Hamerick, Thomas Long, and Carl Huth.

THIEF GETS SIX DOLLARS

The brothers who live downstairs at the Chi Psi house are poorer to the extent of six dollars today as the result of a daring daylight robbery yesterday.

At 7:15 o'clock yesterday morning, an unknown individual made his appearance at the Chi Psi house. He was met as he entered by the Negro servant and asked to speak with Howard Beebe who lay asleep upstairs.

While the servant went upstairs to get Beebe, the intruder effected an entrance into two downstairs rooms, pocketed six dollars in cash and made for the door.

Meanwhile Beebe had been awakened and caught sight of the bandit as he disappeared through the threshold.

Another report yesterday afternoon was made that a man answering to the same description and using the same method was thwarted in his attempt to rob the sleeping brothers of St. Anthony hall. The Negro janitor and a hastily-awakened student routed him.

Three Review Books Today at Bull's Head

The regular Bull's Head lecture program, scheduled for 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the bookshop, will feature several book reviews by University library students.

The principal speakers for the program are: J. E. Greenaway, Miss Nancy McDaniel and Miss Catherine Cline. They will review the recent biographies entitled "Lust for Life," "Nijinsky," and "Twenty Years of Growing."

"Lust for Life" is the life story of Van Gogh by Irving Stone. The biography of a famous ballet dancer is told in "Nijinsky," the dancer's wife, Romola, acting as the author. "Twenty Years of Growing" is another life story.

Cashier Distributes FERA Checks Today

FERA checks for October will be ready for distribution this afternoon at the University business office, announced Cashier T. H. Evans, yesterday.

It will be necessary for all students who are to receive checks to call at the business office today or tomorrow, according to Evans.

Due to the fact that the quota for October was exceeded by the student workers, all the checks will be limited to $15.00 each, explained Ed Lanier, self-help secretary. Students who have earned more than this amount will have their balance carried forward into November.

Total amount earned by student workers in October was $4,335, according to Lanier "This same amount will be available for November," he added.

Fair enough_

WE tell you that Chesterfield Cigarettes are made of mild, ripe tobaccos. We've told you about the paper—that it's pure and burns right, without taste or odor.

We have said that Chesterfields are made right. The tobaccos are aged, then blended and cross-blended, and cut into shreds the right width and length to smoke right.

These things are done to make what people want—a cigarette that's milder, a cigarette that tastes better—a cigarette that satisfies.

You can prove what we tell you about Chesterfield. May we ask you to try them—that would seem to be fair enough.

UNIVERSITY CLUB COMPLETES PLAN FOR CHEER RALLY

Tomorrow's Freshman Assembly To Be Devoted to Practice Of Cheers and Songs.

NAME SPONSORS' ESCORTS

At a meeting of the University club in Graham Memorial last night plans were formulated for a pep demonstration next Friday night, and a program between the halves of the Duke game.

The freshman assembly tomorrow will be devoted to songs and yells conducted by the cheerleaders. On Friday night there will be a torchlight parade, bonfire, and snake dance. The club is trying to make arrangements with the American Legion to have the streets lined with flags next Saturday.

Between the Halves

Between the halves of the game the Duke and Carolina cheerleaders will swap sides for several yells. Streamered balloons will be released, fireworks will be set off, and the bands of the two schools will put on an exhibition.

Sponsors of the Order of the Grail, the Golden Fleece, and the University club will be presented to the spectators.

Frank Abernathy, president of the Golden Fleece and the Order of the Grail, will escort the sponsor for these two organizations, while Frank Willingham, president of the University club, will escort the sponsor for that group.

ENGINEER GROUP TAPS TOMORROW

Tau Beta Pi Will Hear Zimmermann Speak on "Value of Economics to Engineer."

Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, will conduct its fall tapping tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Dr. E. W. Zimmermann of the commerce school will be the guest speaker, using as his subject "The Value of Economics to the Engineer," Jack Crutchfield, president of the fraternity, announced yesterday.

Impressive Ceremony

An impressive tapping ceremony will follow the address. Only those men whose scholarship record places them in the upper eighth of the junior class or in the upper quarter of the senior class of the engineering school are eligible for election into Tau Beta Pi. At the fall tapping, only three juniors can be accepted for membership while all eligible seniors can be elected.

The meeting tomorrow night will be held as a joint meeting of Tau Beta Pi and the four engineering societies, the A.S.C.E., A.S.M.E., A.I.E.E., and the A.I.Ch.E.

DEUTSCHER VEREIN MEETS

The newly formed German language club, "Deutscher Verein," will meet tonight in 215 Graham Memorial at 7:30 o'clock. Dr. Metzenthin of the German department will give "Intimate Impressions of a Nine Weeks Trip Through Germany," and business will include the election of a president. Dr. Meno Spann is adviser to the group.

Priestly Receives Scholarship Award

The regular meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers was held last night in Venable hall.

Featured on the program was a talk by Dr. A. E. Ruark and the annual award to the sophomore making the highest grades during the preceding year.

The award, consisting of a certificate and membership badge given by the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, was presented by Professor A. M. White to William Priestly.

Dr. Ruark spoke on "A Brief Survey of the Application of X-rays in Industrial Chemistry."

PHI RECOMMENDS CONTROL OF ARMS

Jimmy Fuller to Play for Dance Scheduled for Night Before Sophomore Hop.

After a stormy session, the Phi assembly passed by a vote of 26 to 14 the bill: Resolved, that all munitions factories in the United States be owned and operated by the government.

Representatives Seymore Moskowitz and Charles Poe gave the affirmative viewpoints, while representatives James Van Hecke and A. B. Umstead supported the negative side of the question.

Formal Dance Tentative

When the representatives voted whether the Di-Phi dance be informal or formal, four votes were needed to decide the issue. A tentative decision in favor of a formal affair was rendered, with the question tabled for discussion at the next meeting.

Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra have been secured for the dance, which will be held on the night of the Friday preceding the sophomore hop.

The new revised constitution was adopted and will be published immediately.

Debate Tryouts

Try-outs for the Mary D. Wright debate will be held one week from tonight at 8:00 o'clock in New East. The subject for this debate is: Resolved, that the federal government take over the ownership of our basic industries.

Representative Winthrop Durfee, acting as efficiency expert, tendered a brief report at the conclusion of the discussion of the main bill.

The bill for discussion at next meeting is: Resolved, that the Phi assembly condemn the new Finjan as a humorous publication.

Pharmacist Speaks To Science Society

H. M. Burlage of the pharmacy school addressed the 335th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell society last night in Phillips hall.

Using as his subject "The Official Sulphur Ointments and Their Assay," Burlage commented on the official ointments and their compounds as recognized by the United States pharmacopoeia and national formulary. He also discussed the uses of the ointments and methods of determining the compounds in terms of sulphur.

Walter Gordy also spoke to the society on the subject "The Infra-Red Absorption of Basic Solutions."

MEMBERS URGED TO BUY BIDS FOR DANCE SET NOW

Invitations May Be Secured from Officers or Executive Committee of German Club.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED

Members of the German club who are planning to attend the fall set of dances here Friday and Saturday are requested to obtain their bids as soon as possible before Friday afternoon.

Bids may be secured now from officers of the organization and members of the executive committee. The officers of the club are: Joe Webb, Zeta Psi, president; Bruce Old, Sigma Nu, vice president; Chapin Litten, Sigma Chi, secretary-treasurer; and Charlie Edwards, Kappa Sigma, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Executive Committee

The executive committee is composed of Mark Dunn, Beta Theta Pi; John Hershey, Phi Delta Theta; L. C. Bruce, Phi Gamma Delta; Erwin Laxton, Zeta Psi; Charlie Shaffer, Delta Kappa Epsilon; and Claude Freeman, Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Litten also announced that he may be reached at his fraternity house today from 1:00 to 2:00 o'clock, tomorrow and Friday from 1:00 to 3:00 o'clock, and any evening at 6:00 o'clock.

Due to the large crowd expected here for the Carolina-Duke football game and the fact that Isham Jones and his orchestra have been engaged, officials of the club expect the Tin Can to be filled to capacity for the dances and urge all members to buy their bids now and avoid any congestion at the door.

Albright to Auction Bull's Head's Books

Mayne Albright, former president of the student body, will act as auctioneer at this morning's sale of books in the Bull's Head bookshop, according to Elizabeth Johnson, director of the bookshop.

The auction sales began yesterday and will continue through tomorrow, at 10:30 o'clock each morning.

Miss Johnson said yesterday that several outstanding volumes would be offered on today's sale, including "Penguin Island" by Anatole France, "The Rise of Silas Lapman" by William Dean Howells, "Finch's Fortune" by Mazo de la Roche, "The Bird of Dawning" by John Masefield and a collection of Edgar Allen Poe's prose tales.

RED CROSS DRIVE PLANS DISCUSSED

Recruiters Selected for Dormitories and Fraternities.

The Inter-fraternity council held a short meeting last night and discussed plans for the Red Cross drive in the dormitories and fraternity houses of the University.

The members of the council will conduct the campaign in their respective houses. The following boys were selected to recruit members in the dormitories: Ruffin, Jack Jage; Grimes, Bob Magill; Manly, Drew Martin.

Battle, Vance, and Pettigrew, Billy Yandell; Mangum, Wilson Exem; Everett, David Thorpe; Lewis, Bob McInnis; Carr, Jack Tate and Alec Grover; Aycock, J. D. Winslow.

Old East, Bob Baker; Old West, Gile Winstead; Steele, Francis Rasberry.

"Women Are Not Good At Poetry," Says James Stephens, Irish Poet

Ruth Pitter Is Author's Sole Exception to This Rule; Feels That America Has Had Overdose of Poetry and Is Now Tending Toward Prose; England's Position Is Opposite.

According to James Stephens, "the little giant of Irish poetry" who lectured last night in Gerrard hall on the Irish Renaissance, "American literature today is tending toward prose, while the trend in English literature is toward poetry."

This, he says, is due to the fact that America has had an overdose of poetry during recent years, while at the same time England has had more than her share of prose. Thus the literature of both countries is taking a turn in opposite directions.

Former Sinn Feiner

Talking easily and freely to his interviewer, the former Sinn Feiner said that at present American prose writers are much more promising than those of England. "In the last decade"—and he paused to inhale deeply his American-made cigarette—"American writers have taken great steps in mastering the technique of writing prose."

He added that before American writers can achieve true greatness they must get out of their own back yards, so to speak, and choose more universal subjects on which to write. Some Americans of talent become the victims of sectional writing, he thinks, and deal with problems more contemporary than universal in nature. He lists William Faulkner and Erskine Caldwell, both Southerners, as the leading American writers of prose living today.

America's Prose Supreme

The Irishman thinks that while America's supremacy in prose writing can hardly be questioned, England has decidedly the upper hand in poetry. Several English poets, he believes, are turning out truly great poetry. Included in this group is Ruth Pitter, the only woman Stephens considers a real poet. "There is only one thing which a young woman is not good at," says the author of "The Crock of Gold," "and that is poetry." Ruth Pitter is his sole living exception to this rule.

"The Irish are the only people today, aside from the Greeks," he says, "who have a real mythology." America is too young, he thinks, to have developed fully the pseudo-historical background for poetry. "We cannot go back very far before we run into primitiveness," said Stephens in analyzing the American subject-matter of poetry.

"But as a Class . . ."

He does not think that political poems, generally speaking, are real poetry. "Of course, there are some good ones, but as a class—" He ground out his cigarette in the ash-tray, and changed the subject.

"The principal difference between Irish and English poetry

Parker Discusses Membership Of U. S. In League Of Nations

SOPHOMORES TO MEET

The sophomore class will convene today at 10:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall, president of the class John Rainey announced yesterday.

T. P. Yateman will give a five minute devotional, and then Dean F. F. Bradshaw will deliver a talk on the subject "Ethics."

WIFE ATTEMPTS TO CLEAR MATE

Tells U. S. Court Her Preacher-Husband "Never Demanded Any Money from Her."

Raleigh, Nov. 13— (UP) — The 48-year-old wife of 28-year-old Ralph H. Askew, disciple of Aimee Semple McPherson, testified here today that her husband cannot possibly be guilty of an attempt to extort $25,000 ransom money from her.

She told the United States district court and jury that young Askew never demanded any money from her and that she believed him guilty of the violation of no law.

Askew pleaded not guilty before Judge I. M. Meekins this afternoon.

A jury of eight free will Baptists and four Methodists will try him.

Defense Case

The defense did not complete its case before the district court today.

T. N. Stapleton, special agent of the United States department of justice, said that Askew told him that he went on a vacation and devised the kidnap idea to deceive his flock so that he might hold their devotion and continued support and so they might not desert him and join another church.

Askew is charged with using the mails, telegraph, and telephone in attempts to get ransom. His trial will be resumed tomorrow morning at 9:00 o'clock.

SENATE ACCEPTS BILL TO CHANGE CLASS SCHEDULE

Three New Members Accepted By Society at Meeting.

The Dialectic senate at its regular meeting last night passed the bill: Resolved, that the present class schedule should be changed to begin at 9:00 o'clock, thereby abolishing freshman assembly and allowing call meetings at 8:30 o'clock.

A labor bill: Resolved, that a strong industrial union, organized on a national basis, cannot be successful in the United States, failed to meet sanction by the senate.

Reports were given by the dance, ways and means, and financial committees. Special orders changing the meeting time to 7:00 o'clock for the remainder of the quarter, and making the annual dance a formal affair were passed. A motion to send Mason Gibbes, president of the society, to the anti-war conference this evening in Memorial hall as an observer for the senate was approved.

John McRare, Bob Baker, and Bob McKinnis were accepted as new members into the organization at the meeting.

Stresses Importance Of Nation's Entrance

Says Chief Barriers to This Are Internal Politics and Misconceptions of True Facts.

Urging his audience to aid him n securing the eventual entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, Commander Thomas D. Parker, U. S. Navy, retired, spoke to the members of the Foreign Policy league and several other students in Gerrard hall yesterday afternoon.

Commander Parker, who holds a master of arts degree from Harvard as well as being a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, is a representative of the League of Nations association, an organization that includes Newton D. Baker and other notables.

League Is Step

"The League of Nations," said Commander Parker, "is a step in the evolution of a more perfect body for the settlement of international differences and for securing co-operation among the nations of the world."

The three agencies of the League, the secretariat, the council, and the assembly, were described by Commander Parker who told of the funcion of each.

"The two most important duties of the League," explained Commander Parker, "is to solve peace-time international problems and to stamp out war."

Successful Arbitration

"I readily admit that the League has failed in some of the more dangerous war threats," said Commander Parker, "but in many minor instances, notably in the hostilities between Bulgaria and Greece a few years ago, arbitration by the League has been successful."

Commander Parker told the students and faculty that the peace-time activities of the League were largely overlooked by the public because they "did not make good headlines."

"The chief barriers in the path of United States membership in the League is the policy of internal politics and misconceptions of the true facts concerning it," he said.

The League of Nations association, which Commander Parker represents, is circulating a petition, to be presented to the next congress, which will make possible the entrance of the U. S. on its own terms.

Yearbook Discount

The 10 per cent discount on Yackety Yack bills holds good only until tomorrow, November 15. All organizations which desire to take advantage of this discount will please turn their checks into the Yackety Yack office or see Agnew Bahnson at the S. A. E. house.

All freshmen and sophomores who desire to have their pictures in the fraternity section of the annual must have then taken before the Thanksgiving holidays. All fraternity heads are requested to check their freshmen and sophomores on this matter immediately.

Freshman Chapel

Dean D. D. Carroll will speak to the commerce freshmen in Memorial hall today at assembly period. No other schools will meet.

PARAGRAPHICS

After viewing the new asphalt courts we'd say tennis prospects look pretty good on the surface.

The only trouble with the Phi's discussion next week will be that none of the industrialists will get to first basic.

Maybe by the time all the directories are given out, we won't have any appropriations and there won't be any school.

Give Him A Chance

President Frank Porter Graham will be in Washington this week, working out plans with the national executive and the new economic security administration. Dr. Graham is the busiest man in this state, perhaps one of the most over-worked individuals in this country.

With the added burden of the Consolidated University, with his Washington responsibilities, with the sapping session of appropriations-granting legislature coming up, our President is carrying too much work. Time and time again his friends and supporters have urged him to turn over some of his duties to someone else, to lighten his load. The national administration asked the state for a leave of absence for Graham so that he could work full time for the consumers' advisory board, but the state refused, because the situation at home was too crucial for his absence.

This time he must be granted such a leave and he must be forced to take it. He is too valuable a man to sacrifice to the demon Work. His health must be considered as of prime importance. Now that consolidation plans have passed through the preliminary stages, the burdens of local administration can be placed on other shoulders. Let Dr. Graham serve his nation with all of his efficient expertness, unharried by too much work. Let him have a chance to produce under the most favorable conditions. Not only let him, but MAKE him.

He has pulled this institution through the most desperate years of its existence, through sheer power of tenacity and brilliant action. He saved this University more than once when pared budgets threatened total extinction. We cannot say that we will not miss him, but we would rather sacrifice his presence than his health and his capacity as a national public servant.

If we must depend on President Graham for this University's life before the budget makers this winter, which we assuredly must do, we must insist, for purely selfish reasons, that he appear at his best when he battles for the University in the harrowing legislative session. If he must go to Washington, which he by all rights must do, then he must be relieved of duties here during that time of national participation.

Not only do we suggest, but demand, that President Frank Porter Graham be granted and be forced to take a several months leave from University duties. It is our duty to him, to the school, and to the people whom he serves to see that this is done.

Kingfish Reformers

Senator Norris of Nebraska can be called a Kingfish in the sense that he is Der Fuerher, no two ways about it, of the people of his state. While we run the risk of his admirers' displeasure for calling him a name that has a decidedly unpleasant connotation, it is to be recalled that even the appellation of "political boss" can designate a salutary influence on state politics. "Kingfish" in Senator Norris' case is a complimentary title.

For this reason. With the posssible exception of our fabulous forefathers, no leader in American politics has acquired a reputation of being freer in his personal convictions and more concerned with public welfare above party principles and outside the dictates of private interests than the gentleman from Nebraska. Yet, with all his independence, he has been able to keep his electorate under his sway. They have not shied away from the schemes that he has dared espouse, and these schemes are often of a sort that not even the most strongly entrenched politician would dare advocate. Hence, the uncanny "Kingfish" leadership that we apply as a personal tribute to Senator Norris.

His latest proof of the regard Nebraska's voters have for him is their ratification of an amendment to the state constitution providing for a one-house legislature, by an 85,000 majority.

* * * *

There are a number of reasons why the two-house legislature is no longer needed. Norris calls it an "historical accident." On the basis of class representation, the upper house is entirely out-moded. Furthermore, the principle that a second house is a check on hasty legislation often actually prevents the passage of emergency legislation and complicates needlessly the legislative procedure. Benjamin Franklin, in advocating that the one-house legislature of Pennsylvania be retained, recited a little fable which illustrates one of the prime weaknesses of the bicameral legislature. Once upon a time, began Poor Richard, there was a snake who had two heads and only one body. "She was going to a brook to drink, and on her way was to pass through a hedge, a twig of which opposed her direct course; one head chose to go on the right side of the twig, and the other on the left; so that time was spent in the contest, and, before the decision was completed, the poor snake died with thirst."

A number of evils arise from the two-house system. The most obvious of these, pointed out by the Senator, is that it enables the representatives of the people to evade passing legislation which their constituents demand without assuming the responsibility for not passing it. It makes it possible, in other words, for them to pass the buck from one house to the other, when the one in which a law originated does not feel entirely disposed to it. And the second house of the legislature has often been used for the passage of a bill to counteract valuable legislation passed by the first. In short, it fosters what Elihu Root called "invisible government," the government not by the people but by bossism. The unicameral legislature, says Senator Norris, "makes of the state a business institution, making it impossible for corrupt lobbyists to enable legislators to pass the buck, shift responsibility; and compels the legislature to perform all its acts in the spotlight of publicity."

One of the greatest arguments in favor of the Nebraska plan is that it will save the tax-payers money. A smaller, single chamber will cost less to maintain than two houses of the size of the average state's. The budget of North Carolina provides the sum of $300,000 for a session of the legislature, to take this state as an example. How much less would this figure be if only one house were to be provided for? Furthermore, there is the question of the pay of legislators. While John Public raises a howl on mention of higher pay for assemblymen, the fact is that we could do with legislators who were less dependent on their law practices or businesses and could afford to make representation of the people their prime business instead of, financially, an activity incidental to the sessions of the legislature. With a one-house legislature and the increase in pay which Senator Norris anticipates, it would not be unreasonable to suppose that Nebraska will be able to pay its legislators more than the average state and at the same time save money.

* * * *

Any comparison with North Carolina in this matter is only a comparison with the states excepting Nebraska in the union. But that North Carolina can profit from any such example towards simplified government is just as true as it is of any other state in the union. Fewer counties and cheaper county government, a one-house legislature and cheaper state government are both recognized as highly desirable improvements in the efficient government of this state. But until North Carolina produces a Kingfish of Senator Norris' type, it is doubtful that these reforms would be undertaken by the voters.

Koch to Open Fete

Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, will open the annual original play festival at Seaboard Friday. He will speak on "Phases of Native Dramas."

Professor Koch says that Seaboard has won more prizes than any other town in the state-wide Carolina Dramatic association.

Others attending the Seaboard festival will include: Mrs. Irene Fussler, secretary of the Carolina Dramatic association, and John Parker of the extension department of community drama.

RIGGS ANNOUNCES DATE OF NEGRO CHARITY GAME

The annual charity football game, sponsored by the local Y. M. C. A., is scheduled for Saturday, November 24, it was announced yesterday by Harry Riggs of the University "Y."

Chatham county high school will clash with Orange county training school, Riggs announced. The gate receipts will go toward a fund for employing a nurse to work among the Negroes in the community.

The two Negro football teams are among the most outstanding in the state. Student authorities yesterday stated that two of Orange county training school's backs were selected for several all-American teams last season.

Snavelymen Drill Long To Tighten Defense Play

Shaffer andMontgomery Alternate at Half; Skirmish Today.

Wallace Wade Gives Blue Devils Hard Workout.

Carolina's grid squad got down to hard practice yesterday, working until long after dark on the lighted Emerson field in preparation for the clash with the Blue Devils Saturday.

Coach Carl Snavely was far from satisfied with the work of the squad as a whole; the blocking was not everything to be expected, while some of the plays in dummy scrimmage were run a little raggedly.

The Tar Heels spent a long time on pass defense, especially drilling in breaking up the long heaves which Ace Parker has used to such good advantage so far this season.

Shaffer Works

Most of the afternoon was again used in polishing up the offense. Charlie Shaffer took turns with Harry Montgomery in the dummy scrimmage but was still not in top shape for hard work.

The two first strings also took a defensive practice against a freshman eleven, using Duke plays, before quitting for the night.

Coach Snavely may send the squad through a real scrimmage this afternoon in an effort to get it functioning in the proper fashion. The Carolina mentor believes that the Devils are the tougher of the two clubs and only a great deal of fight and determination will put the Tar Heels on the same level Saturday.

Jackson Shines

Don Jackson, triple-threat back, showed an improvement yesterday in his punting which may be a valuable factor in deciding the battle. As yet it is not a certain fact that Shaffer will be able to stay in the game

JOHN DOWD AGAIN RANKED SEVENTH ON NET VARSITY

Henderson Is Dropped from Ladder; Hagey Replaces Parker on Frosh Squad.

NO MATCHES YESTERDAY

Ladder play has, for the initial time in its short existence, come to a standstill. However, although there was no actual play, two changes were recorded. Archie Henderson, who has been hopping about on the varsity rungs with no apparent destination, has again been dropped from the first ten.

Henderson, who recently defeated Dowd in an understood ladder match, was situated at seventh; but after considerable discussion, it was discovered that his encounter with Dowd had not been regarded as an official meeting. Hence, the lower half again has Whitaker in sixth, followed by Dowd, Abels, Goodes and Johnston. The last mentioned, Jimmy Johnston, has passed from the squad and back again without lifting a racquet.

The other change was Bob Hagey's rise from nowhere to tenth spot in the freshman ranking. Having challenged Stewart Parker a few days ago, and receiving no response, Parker has been lowered to allow Hagey's entrance into the big ten.

The weather yesterday prevented ladder play, but today will probably find a continuance of the civil war, with many a struggle being contested.

Tennis

Disregarding yesterday's frigid gale, a moderate turnout responded to the opportunity of getting in some uninterrupted tennis play, and trekked their way to the newly prepared asphalt courts for the grand opening.

What had before proven to be a barren territory, assumed the characteristics of a populated section and a continued procession of singing tennis balls was seen clearing the newly erected nets. Future Tildens have now access to a sufficient number of courts and will be able to bat the ball to their heart's content.

As a matter of fact, it will be to the content of everyone, if the courts are in constant use. With the working in of the sand surface, the courts will soon become perfectly conditioned and will be on a par with the present varsity courts. The motto has become "Play now, and better play is just around the corner," for with every day of steady tennis the courts will come one notch closer to attaining the goal of standard playing conditions. As they are, the courts provide a near perfect surface for play, and Coach Kenfield promises that they will yet become better with consistent use . . .

The doubles tourney has approached the state of oblivion. The sudden winter blast has caused postponements and frozen fingers, but to all appearances, the nigh forgotten semi-final yet to be played, will become a reality today.

The four participants have made it their express determination to fight it out this afternoon and therefore Johnny Foreman and Gene Robinson will finally come to actual blows with the pair of Harvey Harris and Byron Abels. The winners will have the doubtful honor of mixing it up with Walter Levitan and Eddy De Gray in the final.

There is doubt expressed if the bombardment of Foreman's combined with the clever stroking of Robinson, carries enough power to eliminate Harris and Abels. The former combination has been seeded above Harris and Abels, but yet the remarkable co-ordination of the experienced varsity team causes one to expect a Harris-Abels win.

Stopping Levitan and De Gray takes on the proportions of a gigantic nightmare, but there will be two brilliant teams anxious to make the attempt, and today's semi-final will provide plenty of action before the remaining finalist emerges.

Bowling Schedule

The schedule for the bowling contests today are as follows:

3:00—Chi Psi vs. Sigma Chi.

5:00—Phi Delta Theta vs. Lambda Chi Alpha.

8:00—A. T. O. vs. Chi Phi.

STUDENT GROUP TO MEET

The National Student league will meet at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. building.

The subject to be discussed is "Students and the Anti-War Movement." Everyone interested in the topic is invited to attend the meeting.

Co-ed Gym

Freshman co-eds are asked to report for physical education in Bynum gymnasium tonight at 7:00 o'clock. This class will replace the usual afternoon class.

SIGMA NU TAKES SIXTH STRAIGHT MURAL GRID WIN

Sigma Chi, Zeta Psi, and Pikas Get Close Wins; Manly Gets Forfeit.

SWAIN vs. RUFFIN TODAY

Sigma Nu came through with its second consecutive victory in two days as it kept its slate clean with six wins by defeating Delta Tau Delta, 20-3, in the feature contest on yesterday's intramural tag football program.

Three other encounters showed closer competition as Sigma Chi eked out a 6-0 win over Phi Kappa Sigma, Zeta Psi took a 19-12 session from A. T. O., and the Pikas shut out Z. B. T., 12-0. Manly won its game from Aycock via the forfeit route.

The green clad boys of Sigma Nu were expected to receive some stiff opposition from the Delta Tau Delta gridsters, but disproved this assumption as they pushed over two tallies before the watch had ticked off seven minutes.

Snakes Run Wild

Whitaker, as usual, was the spark-plug in the victor's offense, his work being partially responsible for every point. He first passed to Lytle, then to J. Bost, and again to Lytle for the three touchdowns, and made good on place kicks after the

FROSH HARRIERS PREP FOR RACE WITH BLUE IMPS

Meet Duke Yearlings at Durham Saturday Just Before Varsity Run.

RUN HIGH POINT HI NEXT

Along with their elder brothers, the freshman cross countrymen are preparing for their meet with the Blue Imps at Duke this Saturday.

A time trial will be run this afternoon at 4:15 to determine who will run Saturday. This meet and the one next Saturday with High Point high school should give each individual on the squad a chance to run, as 14 men will be used in each meet. The 14 entries will be divided into two teams, an "A" squad and a "B" squad.

As yet, the frosh have had but one meet. Their race with the Davidson Wildkittens ended with the scoring end in the Babies' favor. The freshmen are anxious to make a good showing and know that a win over the Duke frosh will render them a successful season.

Coach Ranson is working the yearlings hard and they seem to be in fairly good condition. The leading runners to date in practice and the Davidson run are Rivers, Bronitsky, Anderson, Garland, Rowley, Davison, D'Ascensio, and Flynt.

Yearling Gridders Start Work For Virginia And Duke Games

Babes Play Good Ball Against Clemson; Stage Rally in Last Quarter.

TO PLAY VA. HERE FRIDAY

The Tar Babies returned jubilant over their 15-0 upset of the favored Clemson Tiger Cubs at Asheville on Monday, and raced through a short snappy warm-up and grass drill yesterday on the freshman practice field.

With only Virginia on next Friday and Duke on the following week-end as their remaining obstacles, the yearlings seem determined to play their best football of the season when they meet these traditional foes.

The alert football they played in the Clemson encounter showed that they had at last reached a point close to their peak, and the Duke Blue Imps should find the Babies the hardest barrier to hurdle on their way to the state championship.

Outplayed Clemson

Clemson was completely overpowered by the crushing power plays of the Carolina frosh, who repeatedly carried the pigskin down the field only to be halted on the very shadows of the goal-posts due to an obvious lack of scoring punch. The Babies led only 2-0 until the final period.

But despite this fault, they did manage to keep wide awake and capitalize on the biggest break of the day when Dixon crashed the offensive line and tackled the passer who, in his hurry to get rid of the ball, threw it into the hands of Pete Avery whose long legs carried him 30 yards to a touchdown.

Ditt showed that he had regained his former form when he consistently bucked through the line for large and valuable gains.

Track-Basketball

The University News Bureau received a telegram yesterday stating that a photographer from the Washington Herald would be here today in order to get pictures of the Carolina track and basketball players. The members of these two squads are asked to get in uniform as soon as possible after dinner and report to Emerson field for further instructions.

Eutsler Calls Meeting

The executive committee of the junior class will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in 209 Graham Memorial, according to an announcement yesterday by Ernest Eutsler.

Math Seminar

"Discreet and Continuous Theories in Physics" will be Dr. Arthur E. Ruark's subject in a mathematics seminar this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. Dr. Ruark is in the physics department.

Pete Hoffer blossomed forth as a new star deserving of recognition as he made some beautiful run-backs of punts, while playing the safety position.

Bershak, Keeney, Bartos, and Dixon played a great game in the line and along with the rest of the forward wall they opened up holes large enough to drive a wagon through.

Bartos received a slight concussion, while Thomas, Gaydos, and Ax aggragated their old wounds and will probably be forced to spend a few days on the sidelines.

Dalers Make Final Preparations For Hard Dual Run With Duke

Cavaliers Work For More Power In Prep For VPI

Veteran End, Leys, Is Only Major Casualty Among Gus Tebell's Grid Charges.

University, Va., Nov. 13.—Gus Tebell, Virginia head coach of football, is working with his charges to develop a better drive on attack as well as more stubborn resistence in the primary defense as a preparation for playing Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg on Saturday and North Carolina here Thanksgiving afternoon.

V. P. I. last Saturday drove through N. C. State from the first kickoff to a touchdown on running plays. This powerful sort of offense is what the Cavaliers will have to stop in Blacksburg, and Coach Tebell, with the assistance of "Butch" Slaughter, line coach, is trying to develop the necessary defense.

Star End Out

The Cavaliers will have to go against V. P. I. without the services of John Leys, the veteran end whose play has been notable all fall. Leys hurt his leg in the W. and L. game and he may be lost to the squad for the remainder of the season.

Virginia's linemen, strangely enough, fall into two weight classes. Most of them are either between 170 and 175 pounders, or between 200 and 210. Only a few, Ed Andrews, Bob Spaulding, and one or two more, weigh anywhere in between.

In recent games the lightweights have had somewhat of an edge over the big fellows, but Line Coach Slaughter believes that these heavyweights are developing gradually and will come through in these final games.

Both Blue Devils and Tar Heels Boast Undefeated Records So Far This Year.

BIRD WILL PROBABLY RUN

Southern Conference Cross Country Meet To Be Here Next Saturday Morning.

With only three more days left to round into shape for their last dual meet of the year prior to the Southern conference run, the Blue and White harriers are striving hard to put the finishing touches on their training in preparation for Duke's fine cross country team this Saturday.

This race will decide the state title and since both teams are considered the two strongest squads in the south, the winner will be favored to win the conference crown next Saturday here on the Carolina five-mile course.

Fast Race

The contest this week bears all the ear marks of being the fastest dual meet ever to be run in Dixie and also one of the closest. Duke will be striving to uphold a three year record of no defeats and the Tar Heels have a near perfect record for this season to uphold.

The Blue Devils are led by Morse, Heritage, Farris, and George. There is also a strong possibility that Bob Bird, one of the south's finest distance runners, will also run in the meet.

Coach Dale Ranson's well-balanced harrier team is led by Ed McRae, who showed up so well in a long time trial held last week and who is the head-on favorite to cop first place this week. He will have to fight for every inch, however, if Bird is in the fray; and, if not, the less experienced Duke men will push him for the lead.

Ed Waldrop is another star runner who will be right up with

N. C. ENROLLMENT INCREASES BY 93

New York Leads Out-of-State Registration with 178; New Jersey Is Second.

According to fall quarter registration figures recently compiled by Ben Husbands, associate registrar, there are at the University this year 93 more North Carolina students and three more out of state students than were enrolled during the whole of last year, the total increase making the registration this quarter 2,706, as compared with 2,610 last year.

New York led the out of state registration with 178, followed by New Jersey with 113, Pennsylvania with 55, and Connecticut with 45. A total of 32 states, the District of Columbia, the dependency Puerto Rico, and six foreign countries, is represented in the University this year.

Comparative Figures

Comparative figures for the two leading schools show that the school of commerce is rapidly overtaking the school of liberal arts. Last year the school of commerce had little more than half as many students as its rival. This year commerce has over two-thirds as many as arts. In the freshman class there are 271 liberal arts first-year men and 228 commerce beginners.

Of the states that are adjacent with North Carolina, Georgia sent 39 students to the University, South Carolina 35, Virginia 20, and Tennessee 14.

Orange, with 214 students, was at the head of the list of counties. Guilford with 131, Mecklenburg with 111, and Wake with 90 followed. The only counties not represented are Clay, Graham, and Mitchell.

A religious preference was indicated by 98 per cent of the students, with the 625 Methodists being most numerous. Other leading denominations and religions in order are: Baptist, 518; Episcopal, 444; Presbyterian, 439; Jewish, 169; and Catholic, 127.

There are 22 various religious beliefs represented. One student designated himself as a "pagan."

The sons of farmers led the sons of merchants for the first time in three years. Fathers of students represent 130 fairly clearly defined occupations and professions.

Freshman statistics show an increase in registration of more than 135 over last year, a total of 710 being enrolled as college students for the first time. New York, with 54, and New Jersey, with 45, led the out of state list. Canada and China each sent one student. Orange, followed by Mecklenburg, led the counties.

is that the Irish is more intimate than the English, and more personal." By this statement he does not mean to imply the Irish is better, necessarily. The difference he attributes to the difference in the temperament of the two peoples.

Environment, according to the short, slightly-built Irishman, has little to do with the writing of poetry. This is contrary to the belief that a poet's best work is incidental to his Bohemian, half-starved garret existence. Stephens has no patience with Bohemianism. "After all, a poet can," he said in conclusion, "lead a normal life, even though the rest of the world may not give him credit for doing so."

long; this may leave the burden of the kicking on Jackson's toe.

The varsity worked quite a bit on kicking the extra point, with Babe Daniel as usual trying to convert from placement. For the last couple of games the Tar Heels have had little success in getting the one-pointer which may have an important bearing on Saturday's tilt. Against Wake Forest the Devils were successful after all four touchdowns, Corky Cornelius making good on the first three tries.

G. E. Shepard, assistant director of athletics, stated last night that only 6,000 reserved seats remained for sale, 3,500 on the north side and 2,500 on the south side. These of course are in addition to the general admission seats which go on sale Saturday.

Coach Wallace Wade, Blue Devil director, continued to give his charges some of the hardest work they have had all year. Although his first eleven clicked like a machine last Saturday, the Duke mentor still does not believe that it has reached its peak. The spectacular backfield of Cornelius, Jack Alexander, Ace Parker, and Ward was in top shape and ran intact.

last two. Shores provided the only Delta score and the sensation of the game as he made a 30-yard drop kick from a difficult angle just as the first half ended.

Despite the fact that it was outplayed during the major portion of the contest Sigma Chi was able to annex a one touchdown win from Phi Kappa Sigma. The lone tally came when Neal took a long pass in midfield and dashed the remainder to score in the first half. The losers held a four to one margin in first downs.

Close Game

Zeta Psi and A. T. O. furnished the highest scoring game of the program as the former won out, 19-12. A. T. O. garnered six first downs to a single for the winners, but was behind by one touchdown at the intermission, and this margin proved to be the winning difference.

Carlyle, Clark, and Harrison accounted for the winner's six-pointers, with the latter also converting an extra, while Spencer took passes to score both touchdowns for A. T. O.

Touchdowns by Neal and Spiers brought Pi Kappa Alpha back on the victory trail as it scored a 12-0 triumph over Z. B. T. The winners also had the lead in first downs four to two, and held a six-point advantage at half time.

Today's three game session, starting at 4:30 o'clock, has four undefeated teams in action. The St. Anthony-Chi Phi game has been awarded to the latter as St. Anthony has already had an excessive number of forfeits. The lineup is as follows:

4:30—(1) Kappa Alpha vs. Chi Psi, (2) Swain Hall vs. Ruffin, (3) S. A. E. vs. T. E. P.

FIND CHILD'S BODY IN SHALLOW GRAVE

Officials Fail to Make Identification; Sex Undetermined.

Nashville, Nov. 13.—(UP)—The badly decomposed body of a child was found near the Davidson county tuberculosis hospital tonight.

The body was lying in a shallow grave. Attorney General Carlton Loser ordered the body brought to the mortuary for immediate examination.

The child was apparently about four feet tall and chestnut haired. It was not determined immediately whether the body was that of a boy or of a girl.

The grave is six miles from the home of Dorothy Ann Distelhurst, six-year-old girl who disappeared September 19.

Her father was in New York tonight awaiting contact with the supposed kidnapers of the child.

House Speaks

Dean R. B. House continued his series of lectures on the "Intellectual Life" in freshman chapel yesterday with a talk on "Concentration."

Dean House stressed the fact that in order to succeed one must have the will power to concentrate on what he is doing, or supposed to do.

He also stated that one should vary his interests a good bit. The student should concentrate not for a long period, but for a few minutes, he stated.

Bank Commissioner Issues Liquidation

Raleigh, Nov. 13.— (UP) — The state banking department has completed liquidation in 53 of 183 banks which have closed since the first part of 1927, according to an announcement today by Gurney P. Hood, state commissioner of banking.

Assets collected during that period totalled $7,192,266.99, representing 84 per cent of the total assets of the liquidated banks.

An average of 81 per cent of all claims have been paid in full; 26 of the 53 liquidated banks paid depositors and creditors in full.

Eleven banks of this number have re-opened and are operating unrestricted and insured.

KOCH CALLS MEETING FOR DRAMA MAJORS

Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, will meet all of the students majoring in drama tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in 113 Murphey, it was announced yesterday.

Koch is conducting this meeting for the purpose of planning the students' courses for the winter quarter.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Women's Glee club of the University will have its second meeting in the choral room of Hill Music hall this afternoon from 5:00 to 6:00 o'clock. The first meeting was very successful, promising much for the future.

Other first-rate Ranson runners who should be among the top-notchers in both the Duke and conference meets are Haywood Curlee and Fab Haywood, both of whom looked good on the recent Virginia trip; Captain Williamson, Marvin Allen, Bob Gardiner, Jack Bower, and Marcus Aderholt.

VENABLE SERVICE TO BE HELD HERE

Speakers for Saturday Night Program Announced.

Memorial services in honor of the late Dr. Francis Preston Venable, noted chemist and a former president of the University, will be held here Saturday at 8:00 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Dr. Venable died last spring and, since Saturday would have been his birthday, a commemorative program has been prepared for that date.

The speakers for the occasion were announced yesterday by Dr. H. M. Wagstaff, chairman of the committee in charge of the program.

Dr. Charles H. Herty of New York, a former member of the University faculty, will present Dr. Venable as a scientist in an address on "The Enduring Satisfaction of Research."

Dr. Henry V. Wilson of the University faculty will recall him as a colleague and as president of the University in an address, "Dr. Venable As I Knew Him."

The committee in charge of the program is composed of Dr. H. M. Wagstaff, chairman, Dr. H. V. Wilson, Dr. J. M. Booker, Dr. W. C. Coker and Dr. A. S. Wheeler.

There will be a meeting of the Yackety Yack staff at 2:00 o'clock today in Graham Memorial. All men who are absent without an excuse will be dropped from the staff.

PROFESSOR KOCH VISITS FT. BRAGG

Playmaker Director Speaks on Extension Series.

As the third in a series of extension speakers to visit Ft. Bragg from the University, Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, spoke there last night.

Koch discussed "Adventures in Playmaking" before a group of students in the University extension drama class there. John Parker, the extension instructor in community drama, was in charge of the class that heard Koch's lecture.

Koch's appearance on this series of extension lectures was preceded by the respective appearances of Archibald Henderson, head of the University department of mathematics, and E. J. Woodhouse of the University government department.

According to R. M. Grumman, extension director, two other University faculty members are scheduled to appear on this Ft. Bragg series in the near future.

MEASURES TAKEN BY GERMAN CLUB TO END CRASHING

Door List of Members to Be Prepared; Abernathy Will Check Ticket Purchase.

DUKE VISITORS ADMITTED

Contrary to rumors circulated about the campus in the past several days, undergraduate students not members of the German club will not be able to purchase bids to the fall set of dances here Friday and Saturday at the door, it was announced yesterday by Chapin Litten, secretary-treasurer of the organization.

No undergraduates except those who are members of the German club will be admitted to the dances. In order to prevent any "crashing" there will be at the door besides the usual doorkeepers, Frank Abernathy, vice-president of the Student Council, who will check up on all students buying bids at the door.

To Have Door List

Members of the club who are now selling bids are taking the names of the purchasers and preparing a door list. Only those students whose names are on this list will be admitted.

As in the past several years, graduate students, alumni, and for this occasion, Duke visitors, may purchase bids at the door. These bids will sell for $1 tomorrow afternoon, $2 tomorrow night, $1.50 Saturday afternoon, and $2.50 Saturday night.

An exception will be made for members of the football squad, who will be able to attend only the Saturday dances. Their bids may also be purchased at the door.

Fees Due

Initiation fee into the German club for all undergraduates except seniors is $5. Initiation fee for seniors is $1. Dues for this quarter are $4 and the assessment to each member of the club for this set of dances is $5, making a total cost of $14 to undergraduates who have not yet paid their initiation fee and $10 to seniors who have not paid their initiation fee.

FERGER EXPLAINS ECONOMICS MATH

Professor Presents Pro and Con At Economics Seminar.

Dr. W. F. Ferger of the commerce faculty addressed the economics seminar last night in Bingham hall, speaking on "The Contributions and Limitations of Mathematics in Economics."

Ferger said that there has recently been renewed interest in the application of mathematical methods to the problems of economic theory. He explained that mathematical economics uses symbols, equations, and charts to represent abstract economic relationships and phenomena, in contrast to statistical methods which are always applied to concrete numerical data.

He said that mathematics gives training in clearcut, concise thought and exposition, and contributes the idea of mutual dependence between two or more phenomena.

Ferger pointed out, however, that pure mathematics is too sharp a tool for use in economics except in the most simple cases of analysis.

Griffin Will Lead Discussion on Nye Investigation.

The Foreign Policy League will meet at 8:00 o'clock tonight in Graham Memorial, Agnew Bahnson announced yesterday.

Discussion tonight will be on the Nye investigation into the affairs of international munition makers. Ezra Griffin, chairman of the program committee, will lead the discussion.

Further plans will be laid for taking action on the suggestions made by Commander T. D. Parker during his visit here.

Action will be taken regarding a possible broadcast from radio station WBT, Charlotte.

BOWER RELEASES SOPH HOP PLANS

Les Brown and Orchestra to Furnish Music; Leaders and Those In Figure Are Announced.

Jack Bower, secretary of the sophomore class, yesterday announced plans as they now stand for the sophomore dance to be held in the Tin Can Saturday, November 24.

Les Brown and his orchestra will furnish the music. Brown is from Duke and has taken over the greater part of Nick Laney's old orchestra.

Leaders for the dance will be the class officers and assistants elected at a meeting of the entire class last week. Officers are: John Rainey, president, who will lead the figure; Bunn Hearn, vice-president; Jack Bower, secretary; George MacFarland, treasurer; and Marvin Allen, student council representative.

Assistants

The six assistant leaders elected by the class are: Jim Finlay, Jack Cay, Tracy Spencer, Billy Lamm, Ben Carlisle, Jim Poindexter.

The remainder of the figure will be made up of the class executive committee. This committee has been reduced in number since the appointment of members last spring.

The list, as released by the secretary of the clas yesterday, includes the following: Reed Sarratt, chairman, Julien Warren, James Bingham, John Kendrick, George Underwood, William Priestley, Jerry Kisner, Phil Kind.

E. G. Goodman, John Framer, Wilborn Davis, Eli Joyner, Ed Herring, Julian Bobbitt, William Credle, Herbert Osterheld, Bill Daniel, Charles Daniel, Henry Lewis, Joe Grier.

President Opposes Dole, High Industry Taxes

Says First Task Is to Make Economic System Function.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.— (UP) — President Roosevelt gave assurance tonight that he would not support any proposals for the dole or sharply increased taxes on industry in the forthcoming legislation.

Speaking to the group of social workers, labor leaders and industrialists summoned by him to aid in preparing social legislation, the president said that there can be no security in the midst of insecurity.

The first task, he said, is to get the economic system to function so there will be greater general security.

TRIO OF NEGROES MUST DIE TODAY

Governor Refuses Clemency; to Be First Triple Execution by Electric Chair in State.

Raleigh, Nov. 14.— (UP) — Governor Ehringhaus refused clemency late today to the three Sampson county Negroes who are scheduled to die in the electric chair tomorrow for the murder of Howard Jernigan, filling station operator in the same county, last December 21.

The state Supreme court had previously refused appeal of the Negroes last October, automatically setting the date of execution for tomorrow.

The death of the Negroes tomorrow will mark the first triple execution in the 25-year history of the electric chair in North Carolina.

Playmakers to Present "Traficante" Today

Experimental Was Written by Student at Northwestern.

On their 24th series of experimental productions, the Carolina Playmakers will present "Traficante" by Maxeda von Hesse in the Playmakers theatre at 4:30 o'clock today.

The cast for the experimental production, as announced yesterday, included the following students: Fred Howard, Philip Parker, Louise McGuire, Danny Hamilton, Ellen Deppe, Douglas Hume, Harry Coble, and Walter Terry.

The play will be directed by Douglas Hume, with Alton Williams and Rene Prud'hommeaux as stage managers. John Dacy will be chief electrician.

"Traficante," written by Maxeda von Hesse while a student in the playwriting course at Northwestern University last summer, is a story of Spanish Florida. The action of play takes place off the Florida Keys on one of the islands' Spanish lighthouses.

T. B. SEAL FUNDS AID LOCAL RELIEF

Mrs. A. M. Jordan Explains Use Of Money Obtained by Sale Of Christmas Seals.

In a letter to the DAILY TAR HEEL, Mrs. A. M. Jordan, who is in charge of the publicity for the Tuberculosis Seal sale, explains the use of the money which is being gathered in Chapel Hill by the sale of the seals.

Mrs. Jordan also states that the goal this year is $400, and she calls on the students and residents in Chapel Hill to support the campaign.

Excerpts from Mrs. Jordan's letter follow:

"Five cents of each dollar collected goes to the national organization; 20 cents to the state sanatorium. The remainder is used here in Chapel Hill for the prevention and relief of tuberculosis.

Health Nurse Compton

"Part of this money which remains in Chapel Hill goes to pay one-third of the salary of Public Health Nurse Compton, who is our greatest source of help in these matters.

"This year the committee furnished milk and codliver oil to one incipient case all year, maintained one case in the sanatorium for four months, and paid for examinations and X-rays for eight cases.

"There are now two sick white children, three and five years old, who can be cured if sent to the sanitorium. We must find the money.

"The students and residents of Chapel Hill have always been most generous according to their means. We know they will not fail the cause this year."

Phi Meets Tonight

A special meeting of the Phi Assembly has been called by Speaker Smithwick for 7:30 o'clock tonight in New East.

The meeting will last only a short time, as discussion will be limited to whether or not the Di-Phi dance will be formal.

Smithwick requests the attendance of all members who expect to attend the dance.

Campus Opinions Differ As To New Honor Pledge

Seven of Ten Student Leaders Believe Proposed Addition to Present Pledge Would Be Effective If Adopted by Students.

Seven out of ten campus leaders recently interviewed by the DAILY TAR HEEL favor the proposed addition to the honor pledge. The change from "I have neither given nor received aid on this quiz" would read, "I have neither given nor received aid on this quiz and have seen no violation of the honor code."

Harold Bennett, president of the Inter-fraternity Council, states: "I think the proposed change in the honor pledge has a practical value in that if it is called to the class's attention that there has been cheating, it will serve as a warning to the offender and will restrain him since he will know that his actions are under observation by members of the class.

Would Empower System

"Although this ruling is a departure from the generally accepted idea of a perfect system, it seems to me that it will supply the needed force to rejuvenate our system."

The president of Old East, Albert Ellis, thinks that "the proposed addition to the pledge is a good thing if it works. It is a definite increase in liability with a probable increase in assets."

Joe Sugarman, editor of the Magazine, says: "Although reporting cheating cases is implied in any honor system, the chief weakness of the Carolina system has been failure of students to co-operate with the council in this respect. The present proposal, while it actually does not alter the system a jot, does call to the students' minds a function frequently neglected. I would rather have the pledge read, 'I have taken this quiz under the full requirements of the honor system.'"

Weathers Pro

The president of the student body, Virgil Weathers, has the following view: "I think the proposed addition to the pledge

PHI BETA KAPPA INITIATES TONIGHT

Business Session Will Precede Annual Fall Initiation; Dr. Knight to Speak.

The North Carolina Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa will hold its annual fall initiation tonight at 8:00 o'clock in 214 Graham Memorial.

A business meeting will precede the initiation and it is important that every member attend. Several matters of policy and future projects will be discussed. The secretary for the year 1934-1935 will be elected at this meeting.

All student and graduate members are requested to attend, particularly those who were inducted last spring.

Requirement

The initiates are members of the class of 1935 whose averages have totaled 92.5 since the spring initiation.

Rituals will be conducted by Lawrence S. Thompson, president; Joe Sugarman, vice-president; and T. J. Wilson, Jr., corresponding secretary.

Dr. Edgar W. Knight will deliver the address of the evening.

AUCTIONEERS END BOOK SALE TODAY

Outstanding Works to Pass Under Hammer at 10:30 O'clock.

The last day of the Bull's Head bookshop auction will see Mayne Albright and Carl Thompson, veteran salesmen, auctioning in the "Y" lobby at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Both Albright and Thompson have acted as auctioneers during this sale.

Elizabeth Johnson, director of the bookshop, announced yesterday that several outstanding works would be sold at this morning's auction, including "Ah! Wilderness" and "Days Without End" by Eugene O'Neill, also an autographed copy of Hebert Ravenel Sass' "Look Back to Glory."

TAU BETA PI WILL TAP NEW MEMBERS TONIGHT

The fall tapping of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, will be conducted at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Gerrard hall.

Dr. E. W. Zimmermann of the commerce school will speak on "The Value of Economics to the Engineer."

Senior Smoker

There will be a senior class smoker in Swain hall at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

The affair will be the first of a series to be given by the senior class, one during each quarter.

CAROLINA MEETS GEORGIA TONIGHT IN PEACE DEBATE

Durfee and Fairley of University Take Negative of "Peace Is Impossible Under Capitalism."

GEORGIA MEN ON TOUR

Francis Fairley and Winthrop Durfee, Carolina debaters, will meet the debate team from the University of Georgia tonight at 8:00 o'clock in the Di Senate hall on the third floor of New West.

Ben Anderson and Walter Wise, outstanding Georgia students, will uphold the affirmative of the query: Resolved, That peace is impossible under capitalism.

Anderson and Wise are returning to Athens, Ga., after a six-day northern tour which included a visit to Yale to see the Yale-Georgia football game Saturday.

Northern Debates

En route, they debated teams from Columbia University, New York University, Yale and Swarthmore.

Professor Connelly of the Georgia faculty is accompanying the debaters, according to Professor W. A. Olsen, adviser to the Carolina debaters.

A special invitation to attend the debate tonight has been extended to members of the National Student League and the Foreign Policy League. Both these organizations have been discussing the question of peace for the past few weeks. Members of the Di and Phi literary societies are planning to attend.

Debaters

Fairley and Durfee, the Carolina debaters, have been active in debating activities at the University for the last two years. Both men are juniors and officers in the Philanthropic Assembly.

Anderson is a graduate student at Georgia, having received his A.B. degree last June from Emory University where he was outstanding in campus activities.

Wise is a sophomore at Georgia and has distinguished himself already as a campus leader. Last year, he ranked in the upper five per cent of his class scholastically.

WEST COAST MEN THREATEN STRIKE

Second Walkout Promised Unless Government Intervenes.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 14. — (UP) — Threat of another general walkout among waterfront employees, similar to the one that caused the heavy loss of life and tremendous property damage last summer, was voiced here tonight.

In a telegram sent to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, the International Longshoremen's labor relations committee warned that only immediate government action could forestall another paralyzing San Francisco strike.

PHOTOGRAPHS TOMORROW

All members of the freshman class are to meet on the South building steps at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning for Yackety Yack group pictures.

Members of the law school will meet on the steps of Manning hall at 10:30 o'clock for photographs.

PARAGRAPHICS

We understand the honorary engineers will tap today. Starting the week-end early, what?

The Phi, says the headline, recommends control of arms. And the man, adds the co-ed.

"Wife attempts to clear mate." Just another morning after.

Something
Must Be Done

The DAILY TAR HEEL has had occasion to refer before to the declining out-of-state enrollment that the University draws from southern states. Figures released by Ben Husbands, assistant registrar, afford an illuminating comparison between the number of students from northern states and the number of students from southern states that are attracted to the University. Ranked according to the number of students they send, northern states and states adjacent to North Carolina appear as follows:

New York	178	Georgia	39
New Jersey	118	South Carolina	35
Pennsylvania	55	Virginia	20
Connecticut	45	Tennessee	14

Notice that the four leading northern states are all seaboard states, where there is little or no state-supported higher education available. On the other hand, without a single exception the southern states have state-supported universities. We pass over the pitiful inadequacy of the number of southern out-of-state students compared with those from the north as being too obvious to require comment.

This much must be said, however. The reason that southern enrollment is not more numerous is our policy of a uniform tuition differential for out-of-state students. Regardless of where our student hails from, he is charged $100 so long as he is not a state resident. No account is taken of the cost of education in the north compared with the cost in the south. No thought is given to the difference in standards of living. Many students, both from adjacent states and from the south at large, realize the advantages of Carolina over other southern universities but find this tuition differential prohibitive. Our southern enrollment does not keep pace with our northern, and no wonder.

The University is proud both of its place in the north and its place in the nation. But when the state of New York alone sends more students than all states adjacent to North Carolina put together, it is time that Carolina looked to her reputation as a southern school. The situation can be remedied, and action is needed at the earliest possible moment.

Reconciling
Ancient Rivals

The astute minds of the University Club are again hard at work figuring out ways and means of snapping that much-maligned individual, the Average Student, out of his lethargy when the Big Team trots out on the field. The Duke-Carolina set-to, according to the advance publicity, will be a combination of a county horse fair, a Holy Rollers' meeting, and (we hope) the Southern Conference track meet, with Carolina making most of the tracks.

The annual encounter is rapidly becoming an institution, equally as much as the Virginia-Carolina melee. Nobody seems to care so much about the outcome of the latter as about the chance to meet old friends and talk over the latest dirt about the tariff and the farm bloc. The outcome of the game is usually a foregone conclusion. This is football as it should be—pure sport.

The plans of the University Club are designed to foster a spirit of friendliness and good-will between two institutions which, a few years ago, seemed irreconciliably at swords' points. Friendly rivalry is essential, but not the bitter hatred which at one time characterized the relations between Duke and Carolina. It is to be hoped that this is an indication of an era wherein we can meet on a footing of mutual co-operation and good fellowship.

Good Citizens
And Libraries

Alas for the South, her books have grown fewer.
She never was much given to literature.
—Coogler.

The Citizens' Library Movement met at the Carolina Inn, we take it, to further their program of acquiring greater library facilities for North Carolina. Than which there is no more worthy purpose, in our estimation.

The actual situation in regard to the state's library facilities would astonish the average North Carolinian. We who have been brought up in the pride of good roads and North Carolina progressiveness find it hard to face the fact that in 1925 this state led the nation with the fewest public library volumes per inhabitant of any other state. William T. Polk of Warrenton, chairman of the Library Movement's meeting, stated Tuesday night that only 40 per cent of the people of the state have access to a public library. That is in all likelihood a conservative estimate. S. H. Hobbs, in his valuable book, "North Carolina: Economic and Social," estimates that only 21.7 per cent of the population have access to a public library.

The relationship between public libraries and a state of high social standards is apparent. Not only does the lack of them retard southern literature, as the afore-fixed jingle would lead one to believe, but it has been shown to be inseparably connected with illiteracy and reading habits. Adequate and wide-spread libraries would help to decrease illiteracy and would improve reading habits in North Carolina, where, again in 1925, there was only one copy of a daily newspaper for every 9.4 inhabitants.

It is true that North Carolina has progressed in recent years toward the goal of improved library facilities. Three counties now have book rucks—rolling public libraries—and one of these, from Guilford county, was exhibited at Tuesday night's meeting. The new library of this University, second in the south only to the library at the University of Texas, helps a great deal toward pulling up North Carolina's library standards. But the state still has a long way to go toward promoting reading in our rural regions and small towns.

The definite correlation between a good citizenry and a reading population makes any money or time spent in this direction a profitable activity.

Let's
All Shout

We remember an incident of last week bringing to mind the old precept about mob psychology which holds that it doesn't take much to get a crowd all "het up" about something.

Toward the end of a short feature of college songs in the local movie emporium, the scene changed to Georgia Tech's ivory covered library and strains of "Ramblin' Wreck" came floating to our ears.

A thundering volley of boos and impromptu "buzzes" greeted the scene and the music. Curious, we sat through the entire show again to wait for the short to appear and when "I'm a ramblin' wreck" pealed forth again, we started vigorously applauding. The whole audience joined in without hesitation; it was a marvelous demonstration.

We daresay serious feuds between rival institutions have begun and continued by such trivial reasons as "who got the first jump." It shows that college men, when they go in for spirit, do not particularly care which side they take, just so the Alma Mater is unsullied and everybody has a good time.

It would be decidedly to our advantage if our students became more thoughtful and conscious about such matters. But human nature and mob psychology are funny things; they seem to make Ramblin' Wrecks out of us all.

MEASURES TAKEN BY GERMAN CLUB

Both seniors and other undergraduates who have already paid their initiation fee may obtain bids at a total cost of $9.

Graduate students may obtain an entire set of bids for $5.

Begin Tomorrow

The fall Germans will begin tomorrow afternoon in the Tin Can with a tea dance from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock. It will be followed tomorrow night with a formal dance from 9:00 to 1:00 o'clock.

The Saturday afternoon tea dance after the football game will start at 5:00 and end at 7:00 o'clock. The final formal dance will last from 9:00 to 12:00 o'clock Saturday night.

Isham Jones and his orchestra will furnish the music for all four dances.

Bids are now being sold by officers and members of the executive committee of the German Club.

Snavely Seeks Offensive Strength For Duke Game

Jackson Kicks Nicely; Bill Moore Stars At Flank Post.

Freshmen Run Duke Formations Against Reserves.

With the opportunity of only one more heavy practice before the all-important clash with Duke at Kenan stadium Saturday, Coach Snavely pushed his charges through a tag scrimmage yesterday in an effort to strengthen the Tar Heels' offensive attack.

The first stringers sought to improve their blocking, passing, and punting in yesterday's clash with the second team on Emerson field.

Triple-threat Jackson was cast in the passing role, while Snyder, Buck, and Montgomery looked good on the receiving end of his heaves.

Punting Improves

Jackson is steadily improving as a kicker. He got off several beautiful boots against the second team in yesterday's scrimmage.

Bill Moore, who has been on the injured list since the Georgia game, held down one of the flank positions on the second team. Frequently he broke through the interference to spill the first string backs for losses.

Charlie Shaffer ran in the second string backfield for a short while yesterday and was confined to light work for the remainder of the afternoon. Although he will not be in top shape, Shaffer will be sure to see some action in the game against the Blue Devils Saturday.

Coach Bob Fetzer directed a tag scrimmage with a freshman eleven running Duke plays against a varsity reserve team. The Blue Devil plays, as executed by the first-year men, proved to be somewhat deceptive to the defensive team.

With the possible exception of Shaffer, Trainer Quinlan promises to have the entire Tar Heel squad in top shape for the battle royal in Kenan stadium Saturday.

Two Tackles Meet

Jim Tatum, who has been performing brilliantly at tackle for Carolina, will meet one of his chief rivals for All-Southern, Gus Durner of Duke, here Saturday. Tatum, who was injured in the Davidson game, is back in shape now and is looked to for another game such as he played against the Blue Devils last year.

Big Mural Tilt

The largest crowd to witness an intramural football contest this season is expected to be on hand this afternoon when the Law School and Lewis dormitory face off at 4:30 o'clock on Field No. 1. Both teams hold inviolate records with five wins each. Lewis has scored 71 points to the Lawyers' 40.

Band Rehearsal

The University band will conduct its regular rehearsal in the Tin Can tonight at 7:00 o'clock, announced John Fields, secretary of the organization.

Wrestling Notice

All candidates for the intramural wrestling tournament should meet at the Tin Can this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock. Also all freshman and sophomore candidates for manager of the wrestling team should report at the same time.

Norm's Kids Win But Norm Loses In A Hair-Raiser

Ex-U. N. C. Star Catcher Takes On Fatherly Aspects as Football Coach.

Kinston, Nov. 14.— Norman McCaskill, star catcher for the University baseball team last year and now coach at Grainger high school, is fast developing a set of whiskers that should make him eligible for the House of David.

Norm hasn't shaved in five days. Thereby hangs a beard—and a tale.

It all happened this way. He made an agreement with his football proteges that if they beat La Grange high school last Friday, he wouldn't put razor to face for a week. Grainger won, and a proud football team is dogging his steps to see that he keeps his promise.

Another side to the agreement was that if Grainger lost, the players would do likewise. "But," says Norm, "they would not have anything to lose. Some of 'em shave only once in three months."

SEYMOUR SCORES IN FINAL MINUTE TO WIN FOR K. A.

Interception and 50-Yard Run Brings Victory; S. A. E. Beats T. E. P., 13-0.

RUFFIN DEFEATS SWAIN

Sid Seymour, flashy Kappa Alpha halfback, intercepted an enemy forward pass and dashed 50 yards for a touchdown in the final minute of play to bring his team a 7-0 victory over Chi Psi yesterday afternoon. This game between the two previously undefeated elevens was the most evenly battled contest of the 1934 intramural season.

The Ruffin dormitory combine also came through in grand fashion to keep its slate unblemished as it triumphed over Swain Hall, 12-6, and the undefeated S. A. E. team received little opposition in downing T. E. P., 13-0, in the only other games on the program.

K. A.'s Come Back to Win

Chi Psi held the upper hand almost to the finish, leading three to nothing in first downs at the intermission, but a barrage of successful passes by the K. A.'s gave the latter a five to four lead with but little time remaining. Chi Psi evened matters again, but its desperate attempt to break the deadlock brought disaster as Seymour repeated his performance of a previous game to snag the win. Shriver received a pass for the

Yearling Footballers Get Ready For Virginia Game Tomorrow

Four Teams Take Separate Workout; Third Squad Uses Duke Plays.

CAVALIERS FAIRLY STRONG

Tar Babies Attempt "Iron Man Stunt" of Two Games In Five Days.

Four Tar Baby elevens took their workouts on three different gridirons yesterday afternoon, and they all acquitted themselves capably in their respective drills.

The yearling first and second aggregations romped through a spirited touch scrimmage, both elevens running the pigskin up and down the freshman practice field, brushing up on the fundamentals in preparation for the forthcoming traditional battle against the Virginia frosh tomorrow.

The Little Cavaliers are reported to have a fair team and at present have been resting up for two weeks in preparation for the trek here to Chapel Hill. The Babies have succeeded in beating the Charlottesville yearlings for three consecutive years, and the Dominion frosh are set on breaking up this winning streak.

Only Light Work

Due to the fact that there are only three days between the past Clemson game and the Virginia encounter, Coach James cannot afford to send his charges through more than a brief warm-up drill each day.

FROSH DALERS TAKE TRIAL RUN

Final Selection of Yearling Team Which Will Meet Duke Saturday Has Been Made.

Fresh from its easy win over the Davidson Wildkittens, the Tar Baby harriers will attempt to make it two straight this week-end when they race the Duke yearlings over the latter's course.

Little is known of the Blue Imps' strength over the hill and dale, but it is expected that the Durham mentors will place a fairly strong cross country team against the Ranson freshmen.

Positions Decided

A three-mile time trial was run yesterday by most of the Babies to determine who will compose the squad running Saturday. The first five positions have already been decided by the performances in the Davidson meet and consist of Rivers, Bronitsky, Anderson, Gove and Rowley.

By their showing yesterday, the remaining three men on the team will be Davison, D'Ascensio, and Garland, with Jones filling in if need be. The time set in the trial was fairly good.

Next week-end the frosh will run the strong High Point high school team, which is without a doubt the strongest secondary school team in the state.

VARSITY HARRIERS TAKE HARD WORK FOR DUKE CONTEST

Race with Blue Devils Will Be "Natural"; Both Teams Evenly Balanced.

USE LONG DUKE COURSE

The varsity dalers are in the process of making the final preparations for their hardest dual meet of the season, the encounter with Duke on the Blue Devils' course Saturday.

Due to weather conditions, the majority of the squad worked indoors yesterday, taking no chances of developing colds. All the hard workouts have been completed and for the next two days the team will just jog around to keep in shape.

This race will be the fastest and closest cross country dual ever run in Dixie. The two teams possess the strongest harrier outfits south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Scrap for First

Either Ed McRae or Ed Waldrop or both are favored to cop the first place. Provided Bob Bird, Duke ace, is in the race, the pre-doping for first becomes a three-way affair, as each of the trio is capable of coming through.

Among other prospects who look very promising are Louis Conte, Graham Gammon, Haywood Curlee, and Fab Haywood. All of these men have been in the thick of every race this year,

BODY IDENTIFIED BY DENTAL WORK

Federal and State Police Muster Forces to Search for Kidnaper-Murderer.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 14.—(UP)—All forces of the law organized tonight to pick up the cold trail of the fiend who murdered 6-year-old Dorothy Ann Distelhurst nearly two months ago.

The partially decomposed body found last night in a shallow grave in a remote corner of Davidson county (Tennessee) was positively identified today.

The identification was accomplished by examining the remains of a tooth filling, which a dentist stated corresponded to the record of Dorothy's dental work.

Dorothy had been missing since September 19. She is thought to have been kidnaped while walking home from a nearby kindergarten.

SEYMOUR SCORES TO WIN FOR K. A.

extra point.

Though Swain Hall outgained Ruffin seven to three in first downs, "Little Dave" Oglesby proved to be a bit too much and crossed the double stripe on two occasions to lead Ruffin to a 12-6 victory. The game brought Ruffin its sixth straight and definitely eliminated the waiters from title consideration.

Oglesby Tallies

Ruffin dented the scoring column about mid-way through the opening setto as Stutts passed over the double stripe to Oglesby for the only points of the half. Oglesby tallied his second touchdown after skirting his own left end for 20 yards. Swain's only marker followed a 40-yard gallop by Aitken.

S. A. E.'s gridsters did not experience any too great trouble in marching on to their sixth straight win at the expense of T. E. P. by a 13-0 score. The victors exhibited several tricky laterals that had the opposition wondering where the pigskin was on several occasions, and succeeded in garnering eight first downs to a single for T. E. P. Fred Bahnson and Patterson accounted for touchdowns and Harris converted the sole extra point.

Today's schedule:

3:30—(1) A. T. O. vs. Theta Chi, (2) Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Phi Gamma Delta.

4:30—(1) Lewis vs. Law School, (2) Phi Delta Theta vs. Kappa Sigma, (3) Y. M. C. A. vs. Everett.

and Coach Ranson is depending on these men to give Morse, Heritage, George and Farris plenty of keen competition over the five-mile hill and dale path at Duke this week-end.

Other men who are pressing hard for placements on the team are Marvin Allen, Bob Gardiner, Jack Bower and Marcus Aderholt. If these men continue to exhibit the form they have been, Coach Dale Ranson may be forced to make some changes in his lineup before the race.

If you're startin' late in this marryin' business, be best for you to begin on one that's a mite tame an' wore down.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" will be shown today at the Carolina theatre.

Yearlings Get Ready For Virginia Game

The lines and backfields of both teams were slightly mixed, but the day of the game will probably find the same team that faced Clemson answering the opening whistle. Hoffer and Tyson were the two new additions to the first team, and both have shown enough good football in the past to merit their present standings.

The frosh third team on Emerson field ran the Duke plays against a varsity squad, which managed to break up practically every play tried.

Last but not least of the first year teams, the scrappy fourth eleven, was tucked away in a corner of the main Emerson gridiron, going through a snappy dummy drill in order to improve their blocking.

Junior Executives

Committee Discusses Budget But Takes No Action.

The junior executive committee met in Graham Memorial last night, passed several motions regarding the committee and discussed the class budget.

It was decided that any member of the committee who is absent without excuse from two meetings will be automatically suspended.

The committee also voted to meet once a month, with one more meeting before the Christmas holidays. The class budget was discussed but no definite action taken.

Co-eds' Glee Club

The University co-eds' Glee Club elected officers for the year at its second meeting yesterday.

The new officers are: Margaret McCauley, president; Margaret Jordan, vice-president; Juanita Green, treasurer; Mary Virginia Copeland, secretary; Hester Campbell, librarian; and Harriet Taylor, business manager.

Drama Majors

Majors in the University drama courses will meet this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in 113 Murphey hall, announced Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers.

Koch is conducting this meeting for the purpose of planning the students' courses for the winter quarter.

Campus Opinions Differ On New Honor Pledge

is fine and personally think it might add much to our honor system if the student body is willing to accept it."

J. D. Winslow, president of the Y. M. C. A., says: "I am in favor of the proposed addition to the pledge. If the really reputable students desire the honor system and wish to see it operate satisfactorily, they must accept responsibility for the conduct of their fellow students."

"I am very much in favor of the addition as strengthening to the present pledge and system," says Frank Abernathy, vice-president of the Student Council.

George Barclay, captain of the football team, decided as follows: "I think the new addition to the pledge is a great asset if the student body will accept it. But without the whole-hearted support of the student body it is bound to be a failure."

"Honor, Not System"

The president of the senior class, Jack Pool, holds an opinion quite different from the foregoing. "The end of our honor system," he states, "is not primarily to abolish cheating but to develop the integrity and sense of honor of the individual. Nearly every student in the University has a different concept of the honor system and as to how he should act when he sees a violation of the honor code, and I can see no reason for forcing the student body to act in a way that is displeasing to it.

"It is time we thought more of honor and less of system. Let's stress the importance of every student's acting when he sees a violation of the honor code regardless of what action he takes and then the system will take care of itself. Because this is my concept of the honor system I am decidedly against the addition to the pledge. In fact, I am against any form of pledge."

Agnew Bahnson, business manager of the Yackety Yack, says: "I am heartily in favor of any move to aid the functioning of the honor system, but I do not think this technical change will be of any value. Unless the pledge is signed in sincerity it can be of no use. As the pledge is now, it can be conscientiously signed by the great majority of students, but with the proposed addition, I think the pledge would be signed by many as a mere formality and the true significance would be lost."

Says Phil Hammer, chairman of the editorial board of the DAILY TAR HEEL: "I favor neither the proposed addition to the honor pledge nor the pledge itself. Making a student sign a pledge to certify he has not cheated is making the poorest kind of a proctor system out of our set-up. I favor a strong proctor system."

LAW CONFERENCES

Dean M. T. Van Hecke, F. B. McCall, and R. H. Wettach of the law school faculty will receive first year law students for conferences today from 2:00 to 4:00 o'clock in their offices.

Students may consult these instructors concerning their schedules of work in the law school.

McCuistion is executive agent for the association, which has headquarters in Nashville. He is well known for his studies of Negro education in the south.

CRANE SPEAKS

Dr. Harry W. Crane of the department of psychology spoke last night to the Edgecombe-Nash medical society at Rocky Mount, on the topic, "A State-Wide Program for the Mentally Deficient" with particular emphasis on the use of sterilization in connection with the program.

Tonight, Dr. Crane will talk to the Negro Parent-Teachers organization in Wilson on the subject "Why We Are What We Are."

N. S. L. MEETS TONIGHT

The National Student League will meet tonight at 8:30 o'clock on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. building.

Athletic Passbooks

Athletic Association officials announced yesterday that today is the last day that passbooks taken up at the Davidson game will be returned.

The office staff wishes to return all the books as soon as possible since they are rushed selling tickets to the Duke game.

All students are requested to go to the game early Saturday to relieve the congestion and to be certain of getting seats.

Phi Bete President To Resign; Sugarman Will Assume Post

Local Chapter Taps Twelve as Members

Lonnie Dill to Become Vice-President; Poe and Dr. Wilson Also Get Positions.

At the meeting last night of the North Carolina Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, Lawrence Thompson resigned the office of chapter president, the resignation to be effective at the end of this quarter, at which time he will go to the University of Chicago to take graduate work.

He will be succeeded as president by Joe Sugarman, the present vice-president. A. T. Dill, by virtue of his scholastic standing, automatically becomes vice-president.

New Members

The following students were initiated into Phi Beta Kappa last night; Agnew Hunter Bahnson, Jr., William Sterry Branning, Henry Clark Bridgers, Jr., Edmond Krasner Edelson, John Lawrence Hodges, Richard LeRoy Huber.

Edward Watts Martin, Herman Manley Parker, William Layton Ridenhour, Thomas Moorman Simkins, John Frederick Webb, Jr., and Frances S. White. These students have averaged 92.5 or better for eight quarters.

Wilson Re-elected

Charles A. Poe was elected chapter secretary at the business session, and Dr. T. J. Wilson was re-elected corresponding secretary, a position he has held for a number of years.

Dr. Wilson announced the impending installation of a section of the North Carolina Alpha chapter at the Women's College in Greensboro.

Addressing the meeting, Dr. Edgar W. Knight warned the Phi Beta Kappas against the danger of acquiring or developing the "academic mind." He also asserted that scholarship has obligations greater than those it owes to itself.

"One of the most important obligations of the scholar," said Dr. Knight, "is to humanize his learning and to emancipate it from the suspicions with which it is often beset."

Reynolds' Millions

Winston-Salem, Nov. 15.—(UP) — Christopher Smith Reynolds, second child of the late Zachary Smith Reynolds and Libby Holman, asked today, through attorneys, that he be awarded the entire twenty-five million dollar estate left by his father.

The interplea, which was filed by Robert C. Vaughn acting as an "ex-friend" through attorneys Benet Polikoff and William Graves, caused the indefinite postponement of the hearing scheduled for tomorrow to decide the final disposition of the Smith Reynolds estate.

The attorneys who filed the petition also served as counsel for Libby Holman during the investigation of her husband's death.

FIVE MEN TAKEN INTO TAU BETA PI

Dr. E. W. Zimmermann Addresses Group at Impressive Ceremony Last Night.

Two seniors and three juniors of the engineering school were tapped last night by Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, in an impressive ceremony in Gerrard hall.

The men in order of their tapping are: W. S. Harney, senior; W. H. McNairy, senior; R. M. Neel, junior; E. E. Eutsler, junior; and H. J. Allison, junior. Only three juniors can be accepted for membership at the fall tapping while all eligible seniors can be elected.

Zimmermann Speaks

Dr. E. W. Zimmermann of the commerce school addressed the group, using as his subject "The Value of Economics to the Engineer."

The fraternity requires that only those men whose scholarship record places them in the upper eighth of the junior class or the upper quarter of the senior class be eligible for election.

The meeting was held as a joint session of Tau Beta Pi and the four engineering societies, the A.S.C.E., A.S.M.E., A.I.E.E., and the A.I.Ch.E.

OVER 3 SECTIONS NOT YET FILLED FOR DUKE GAME

Six Thousand General Admission Tickets Go on Sale at 12:00 O'clock Tomorrow.

OVER 27,000 ARE EXPECTED

Only 3,500 reserved seats for the Duke-Carolina game remained open for sale last night, announced "Bo" Shepard, assistant athletic director. Including the student sections, 18,000 reserved seats have been taken.

Shepard stated that 6,000 general admission tickets, including seats in the bleachers and end sections of the stadium, would be placed on sale Saturday at 12:00 o'clock.

Athletic officials announced that only three full sections of Kenan stadium remained unreserved or unsold. Each section will seat approximately 1,000 persons.

Three Not Full

Parts of three more sections have not been completely sold. Section 24 on the south (Carolina) side, the section nearest the field house, and the lower part of section 23 have not been disposed of.

On the Duke side, sections 1 and 12, both end sections, are still unsold, with parts of 2 and 11 remaining.

Bleachers will be erected at each end of the field, supplementing the stadium with about 2,700 seats. After the general admission section has been sold out the bleachers on the west end of the field will accommodate the overflow.

When questioned as to the grounds for a rumor that is being circulated to the effect that standing room tickets have been printed, Coach "Bo" Shepard refused to commit himself, saying, "If it becomes necessary to sell standing room tickets they will be available."

All evidence points to a capacity crowd next Saturday. Athletic officials estimate the fans to number between 27,000 and 30,000.

Manufacture, Sale Of Arms Discussed

The Foreign Policy League convened in its regular meeting in Graham Memorial last night to discuss the Nye investigation of munitions manufacture now going on in Washington.

Don Becker opened the discussion with facts of the Nye investigation as have been given to the public through the newspapers.

Joe Barnett showed that a treaty passed by the League of Nations in 1925 was almost directly responsible for the investigation, together with facts and incidents leading up to it.

John Scholz explained the British reaction to the investigation from personal experience gained by a stay in England this past summer.

After a general discussion the league passed the motion: Resolved, That the Foreign Policy League approve of government regulation and control of manufacture-sale of munitions if the Nye investigation show them to be a primary cause of war.

Band

The band will meet at 8:00 o'clock tonight in front of Swain hall to play for pep rally.

WOODHOUSE AND HENDERSON TALK TO SCOUT GROUP

Scout Executives to Hold Two Conferences Today.

The fall 1934 Boy Scout executive seminar of region six opened its program yesterday at noon wtih a luncheon in Graham Memorial.

O. B. Gorman, executive of Cherokee council, is acting as chairman of the seminar; and Dr. Harold D. Meyer of the sociology department of the University is the dean.

Yesterday afternoon the scout executives heard Dr. Archibald Henderson speak on "A Biography of Daniel Boone" and Dr. E. J. Woodhouse on "The Present Political Picture."

The first of the four round table studies scheduled for this seminar was held after supper last night. There will be two of these round table studies today and on tomorrow morning.

Besides presenting a program in assembly today and taking part in the round table discussions, the executives will hear addresses by Dr. Wiley B. Sanders, Dr. A. M. Jordan, and Dr. H. R. Totten.

The feature of tomorow's program is a talk by Dr. E. K. Plyler. The Carolina-Duke football game will conclude the seminar.

Annual Fall German Set To Begin This Afternoon

To Investigate A. T. & T.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—(UP)—The Federal Communications Commission ordered the investigation tonight of the world's wealthiest corporation and greatest monopoly—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The investigation will involve the entire Bell Telephone system whose assets, in their last annual statements, were given at $4,907,676,603.

The rates paid by the millions of the nation's telephone users will be studied.

The entire corporate history of the corporation, together with equipment-manufacturing subsidiaries, will come under the scrutiny of the eagle-eyed experts to be employed by the government.

Commuting Students

All students who commute to and from Chapel Hill are requested to see George Underwood, circulation manager, in 204 Graham Memorial today at assembly period or between 4:00 and 5:00 o'clock about delivery of the Finjan and the Carolina Magazine in the future.

JONES ORCHESTRA TO FURNISH MUSIC

Formal Sophomore German Ball Tonight; Two Dances Tomorrow Will Complete Series.

The annual fall German Club dances will open this afternoon with a tea dance from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock in the Tin Can.

Isham Jones and his orchestra, whom the organization has secured to furnish the music, will make their debut on the campus in this set of dances.

Tea Dance

The dance this afternoon will be followed by the formal sophomore German ball tonight from 9:00 to 1:00 o'clock in the Tin Can.

The tea dance tomororw afternoon after the Duke game will continue from 5:00 to 7:00 o'clock. The final formal dance starts tomorrow night at 9:00 and ends at 12:00 o'clock.

Leaders

Leading the dance tomorrow night will be: Bob Drane, Zeta Psi, leader, accompanied by Miss Margaret Lewis, Durham; Garvin May, Kappa Sigma, assistant leader, accompanied by Miss Celeste Moore, Athens, Ga.; and Alec Hanes, Delta Kappa Epsilon, assistant leader, accompanied by Miss Jane Hess Weaver, High Point.

Bids for graduate students, alumni and Duke visitors will be on sale at the door at each dance. Precautions will be taken to see that undergraduates not members of the German Club do not gain admittance to the dances.

Duke Leaders Will Be Present At Mammoth Pep Rally Tonight

OSTROW SPEAKS TODAY ON WDNC

Lowe Will Also Speak on University Club Program.

The University Club goes on the air from WDNC, Durham, at 5:00 o'clock this afternoon for a half hour of music, speeches and entertainment.

Les Ostrow will tell about "Cheering at Carolina This Year," and Jack Lowe will give some pre-game information on tomorrow's Duke-Carolina tilt.

Featured on the list of phonograph records which will furnish the music for the program is Hal Kemp's arrangement of "Hark the Sound."

"You're Not the Only Oyster in my Stew," and "It's Dark on Observatory Hill," as recorded by Ozzie Nelson, will also be heard.

Recordings by Ray Noble's orchestra, Benny Goodman's orchestra and the Boswell Sisters will complete the musical program.

League Sets Quota

At the meeting of the National Student League last night it was decided to set $8 as a quota for their share of the $175 necessary to send a delegate to Geneva. Two dollars has already been pledged.

The meeting was adjourned in order that members might attend the Georgia debate.

There will be another meeting of the organization next Wednesday in Graham Memorial at 8:00 o'clock.

Rooms for Visitors

Students wishing to reserve rooms in Graham dormitory for visiting friends may do so through Mrs. Holt, social director of the dormitory.

Reservations cannot be made later than 5:00 o'clock on the day that the room is to be occupied.

Speeches Are Part Of Friendship Drive

Carolina Representatives Attend Duke Pre-Game Rally in Durham Last Night.

The University Club, according to its president, Frank Willingham, is sponsoring tonight what is expected to be the loudest and peppiest of all the pep rallies that have been held here this year. The rally will start at 8:00 o'clock in front of Swain hall.

The rally will begin with a torchlight parade through the campus to Emerson field, where, as before the Kentucky game, a large bonfire will be built.

Several student leaders from Duke University will be present to speak at tonight's demonstration. Last night three Carolina campus celebrities addressed a Duke gathering and were received cordially.

The reciprocal speech-making is a part of a program instituted by both schools to better the relations between the rival universities. The Duke students will appear tonight in a spirit of good fellowship before the year's biggest football game.

Free Torches

Free torches will be distributed before the parade. At Emerson field there will be fireworks, and Rameses III and the cheerleaders will be present.

The Cheerio section at the game will be reserved until 1:15 o'clock. New cheerio slips will be given out to members before the game.

Before the start of the game the combined Duke and Carolina bands will put on a demonstration headed by representatives of the American Red Cross. The combined bands will make a total of 140 pieces.

At the half sponsors of the Grail, Golden Fleece, and University Club will be presented. A parade by the Duke and Carolina bands separately will follow.

ANDREWS VICTOR IN GAINING BONUS

'34 Yackety Yack Editor's Petition Granted by Board when Compromise Is Reached.

Alec Andrews, last year's editor of the Yackety Yack, won a moral victory yesterday when the Publications Union Board reached a compromise and gave him half of a $20 bonus for which he had petitioned.

The yearbook editor receives a salary of $100 plus three possible bonuses of $20 each. The bonus for which Andrews asked is the one which is given for getting the annual distributed before the end of school.

Defective Method

Although the yearbook was not released before school closed, due to the editor's desire to include several of the late spring dances, the board ruled that he was not entirely responsible for the delay and that the method of awarding the particular bonus is defective and open to criticism.

As a result, the board will adopt a different procedure in awarding the bonus in question, probably stating that in the future the editor will have to sign some schedule for handing his copy to the printer in order that the responsibility for the Yackety Yack's appearing on time will be spread among all parties.

Thompson To Go To Geneva

Will Attend Anti-War Conference under Sponsorship of Anti-War Group on Campus; Organization Withdraws Red Cross Support Due to Alleged Use of Funds to Encourage War.

Carl Thompson, outstanding Carolina senior, was elected last night to represent the University at the Anti-War Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, in December.

Thompson was chosen by a group of leaders representing all the campus organizations. This group assembled at the invitation of the continuations committee of the local Anti-War Conference.

Last night's meeting decided to raise expense money for the delegate from individual contributions, campus organization assessments, and from contributions of local merchants.

Yesterday, $28 was pledged without any solicitation whatsoever. All contributions are to be placed in the hands of Arnold Williams, treasurer, at 101 Saunders or 303 Smith.

Phillips Russell, junior, was elected Thompson's alternate.

At the conference in Geneva, Thompson will be one of many delegates representing educational institutions all over the world.

Withdraw Red Cross Support

A motion was made from the floor that the group go on record as withdrawing their support from the Red Cross until it answered incriminating charges brought against it in a current issue of the American Mercury.

The article in question accuses the Red Cross of misappropriating funds to finance the activities of the white army in Russia, and in general of being closely allied with war interests.

Feeling uninformed on the subject of these charges and wishing to secure substantiation of them, the members present voted to table the motion until the next meeting. The group will undertake private personal investigation of the charges.

PARAGRAPHICS

We're glad Carolina and Georgia finally met in a peace debate. After the last fracas they had down in Athens, the Georgians were due to win, too.

Trouble with most pacifists, says Pete Ivey, is they usually want to cut throats to keep peace.

And it's irony, we calls it, when "Pop" Albright leaves his personal property class to auction off other people's at the Bull's Head.

Tonic for Campus Honor

In attempting to secure student opinion on the Student Council's proposed revision of the honor system pledge, the DAILY TAR HEEL found some differences in student conception of the technique that should be adopted to perpetuate this integral feature of the University. That seven out of the ten campus leaders interviewed expressed themselves as favoring the proposed amendment is an encouraging sign, but the apparent lack of thought given to the question of, How can the honor principle be strengthened? is a regrettable foreboding.

The tenor of opinion expressed by those not favoring the revision attempts to make the honor principle out a rigid formula. They resent the simple affirmation known as a pledge because it smacks to them of a "system." They deplore the the expression of the individual's responsibility to report cheating in writing. By some, the honor principle is thought to be a code of conduct that should be free from the necessity of a pledge. Herein lies the misconception of the means which we shall use to strengthen the honor system or principle. The honor system is not free from the necessity of a pledge any more than it will flourish if we do not keep it always before the eyes of the student body. The reason that it has declined is that the students are not mindful enough of it; to build it up requires a procedure that will leave no doubt in the minds of the students that there is an honor system here and that any efficient working of it requires them to be always cognizant of the responsibility, both to themselves and to their fellow students, that it involves. Lack of a pledge would defeat this.

We do not expect great things of the proposed amendment to the pledge, but we do think that any reform that will tend to bring the honor system more to the attention of the students and will help to correct the laxity with which pledge-signing has lately been observed, is a method that deserves a trial.

Pause That Refreshes

(From the News and Observer)

At the big Vickers armament works at Crayford, England, workers halted for two minutes on Sunday. In commemoration of Armistice Day, all employees observed the two minutes of silence. Then they returned to their benches, turning out machine guns, rifles, and poison gas projectors to provide the slaughter in the next war before the next armistice before they stop two minutes a year again to commemorate peace.

Who Pays?

The problem of modern educators has been in the effectual connection and integration of the secondary schools and the colleges and universities. At this university we are faced with a similar problem involving the institution's obligations to the state which supports both it and the secondary school system.

While there is no state law saying that the University must admit the graduates of state high schools, the duty of the institution, the prime function, is to cater to the state and its youth.

Most state high school graduates are not qualified to meet the University standard. The new eight-months state control plan does not help matters any. Where certain schools have increased their weekly hours to equal the previous nine-months' coverage, the system has not improved.

The University standard must, in view of the state obligation, consider the state graduates. The state obligation is not merely theoretical, but concretely financial. When the state appropriates $16,000,000 to public schools, it greatly reduces the University appropriations. Thus, not only must our standard be lowered by the secondary school system itself, but also by the direct effect of the state's program of solely supporting that system.

The state control brings about an amazing transformation in the secondary system. Whereas town and county units under the old plan could allot whatever amounts they wished to better their system, thus creating a competitive activity, under the present plan they are limited to a uniform eight-months plan.

Of course, state control raises some local secondary units to some degree, units in which adequate support was formerly lacking; but at the same time it destroys the competitive activity of units which tended to raise the general standard considerably. One's gain may be another's loss, but the University doesn't come out on the good end however the situation is viewed.

There is no evading the issue. The University's duty is to the state; the state has diminished its support to the University through decreased financial appropriations; the secondary schools are leveled off on a low standard by state eight-months term or vote extra appropriations which only seven of 139 units have seen fit to do. The issue, then, is that the University of North Carolina must sacrifice educational progress for its duty to the state which supports and patronizes it. We are not selfish but we are intensely proud.

Recent tests administered freshmen at State College in Raleigh evidenced a gross deficiency on the part of the state secondary graduates in elemental grammar and English mechanics. But we must bear this because we are the state's and the state can do no better. How about the local administrative units and their support? They have not taken the opportunity of voting extra taxes upon themselves because the burden would become unbearable.

It is a vicious circle which the University must regard with as much complacency as it can muster. Until people of this state aid by local support in the maintenance of the public schools, the University must lower its standard to accommodate the "hand which feeds it."

Breaking To the Front

One of the members of the faculty of Needham B. Broughton high school in Raleigh, Dr. Claiborne Hill, is quoted in the News and Observer as saying that education is "intelligent obedience." We disagree. Education can never be anything but intelligent *dis*obedience.

True, there is a certain amount of primary instruction necessary and prerequisite to any true and valuable education, in the acquiring of which definite laws and precepts must be followed and obeyed. When the student is ready for education, however, there are no limits on what his initiative may bring.

History is full of stories of intelligent disobedience where the harvest from fertile minds, prepared by a sufficient primary instruction, has led to remarkable discoveries. Columbus is one of our best and most courageous examples. In his discovery, he increased the knowledge, and therefore the education of the world a hundredfold. Benjamin Franklin was another member of the disobedient intelligentsia.

These are only a few of many possible examples of intelligent disobedience. They show that all useful advancement and information have come from knowing when and how to break away from established doctrines and hypotheses. No possible progress or education has ever been obtained from merely following the paths laid down by those who have preceded. The current generation must pick its paths. It is in this way that a people become educated and their education means something to them—not intelligent and passive obedience, but intelligent and active disobedience.

Alpha Kappa Delta Announces Initiates

The Alpha chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta, honorary sociological fraternity, announces the initiation of the following new members among the University students:

E. D. Hancock, Miss Myrtle Mizell, Miss Elizabeth Whitbeck, Miss Ellen Alice Murchison, Miss Margaret McDonald, R. N. Woodworth, Bruce Thomasom, Mrs. Ruth Y. Schiffman.

Dr. Horace C. Hamilton and Dr. Sanford Winston of State College; and Glenn Johnson and Miss Evelyn McNeil of W. C. U. N. C. at Greensboro were also initiated.

Alumni Office Issues Football Supplement

The Alumni Review football supplement carrying the story of Davidson's "characteristically stubborn resistance to Carolina" in last Saturday's 12-2 game was issued yesterday at the Alumni Association office.

Carolina, "extended to down Davidson," according to the headline of the supplement, was described as having displayed a "sample bag of good, mediocre, and bad football."

The story of the Tar Babies' 15-0 win over Clemson was also in the supplement, as well as two articles giving special attention to the Duke game.

FRANTZ TO COME HERE IN JANUARY

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia to Present Pianist in Concert.

Under the auspices of the local chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia fraternity, Daleis Frantz, distinguished young American pianist, will be presented here in a concert January 23.

Frantz will be making his first southern concert tour and his appearance in Memorial hall is expected to be the most outstanding musical attraction of the season.

During the past few years it has been the custom of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia fraternity to present an annual concert given by some distinguished artist.

These concerts have brought to this community such artists as Galli-Curci, Fritz Kreisler, and Josef Levinne.

Ticket sale for the concert will not formally open until December 1, but reservations may be made at the University music department office.

Infirmary

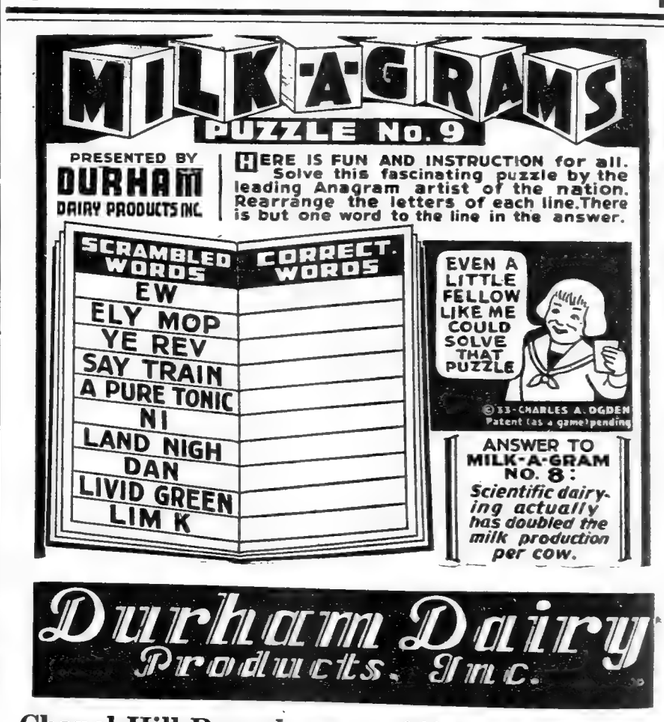
The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: Tom Jimison, Meares Harris, James Hunt, Joel McCurry, Felix Hamerick, Thomas Long, M. E. Smith, Reginald Wolfe, Paul Whitney, Helen Rosser, Emmaline Henderson, Lee Richardson, C. H. Thurman, J. C. Grantham, John Munyan, and Mary Potts.

New Books Now on Sale At Campus Bookshop

The Bull's Head bookshop announced yesterday that a two volume edition of "Anthony Adverse," Hervey Allen's outstanding success, had been added to the bookshop's shelves.

A new edition of Geoffrey Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," illustrated by Rockwell Kent, was also added this week, along with "Six Soviet Plays" compiled and edited by Eugene Lyons; "City Editor" by Stanley Walker; "Judgment Day" by Elmer Rice; "The Man With a Bull-Tongue-Plow," a book of verse by Jesse Stuart; "The House of Titans" by A. E. (George Russell), and the latest collection of "Bartlett's Familiar Quotations."

Artist Will Present Exhibit of Paintings



Miss Rosamond Niles, whose four-day public exhibition of paintings will open in the Hill Music hall Sunday afternoon, arrived in Chapel Hill last night. During her stay here she will be the guest of President and Mrs. Graham.

This exhibition of Miss Niles' paintings is being brought to Chapel Hill by William L. Hunt. She has exhibited in the National Academy of Design in New York, in the Paris Salon, in the Southern States Art League exhibitions, and in other art centers.

Tar Heel Football And Cross Country Teams Prepare For Battle With Duke

FIRST STRINGERS WORKOUT AGAINST DUKE FORMATIONS

Tag Scrimmage Features Preparation for Blue Devil Grid Contest Tomorrow.

SHAFFER MAY NOT PLAY

Coach Snavely ran his first string gridsters through a tag defensive scrimmage against Duke plays on Emerson field yesterday in preparation for the Blue Devils in Kenan stadium tomorrow.

The freshman team that executed the Blue Devil formations gave the varsity men a taste of the clever plays which they must stop if they expect to win tomorrow's game.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in a punting and passing scrimmage between the varsity first stringers and a reserve eleven.

Same Backfield

Harry Montgomery, Jim Hutchins, Herman Snyder, and Don Jackson are still Coach Snavely's first choice in the number one Tar Heel backfield. This is the same quartet that performed so brilliantly against Georgia Tech and Davidson in the last two games.

Charlie Shaffer's injury has slowed down his cruising speed to such a degree that it is doubtful if he will participate long in tomorrow's game. He may be called upon occasionally to do some punting if necessary.

Bill Moore is the other cas-

DARKNESS HALTS FINAL MATCH OF TENNIS DOUBLES

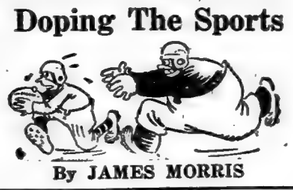
Levitan and De Gray Deadlocked with Harris and Abels At 5-All in Final Set.

TWO LADDER MATCHES

The doubles tournament verged upon completion late yesterday afternoon but darkness took command, and brought to a halt one of the best played doubles matches of the fall season with both finalists tangled in an absolute deadlock.

As nightfall descended and caused a cessation of play, the highly ranked team of Walter Levitan and Eddy De Gray were at death grips with the surprisingly strong pair of Harvey Harris and Byron Abels, the score reading 5-7, 7-5, and 5-all in the deciding set.

The match was brilliant in sheer interest and the display of powerful tennis by each player on the court. The play started fast and Levitan and De Gray, hitting with precision and accuracy, stroked through to a 5-0 lead in games. At this point Abels and Harris came back with an equal barrage of powerful shots and rushed through seven consecutive games to take the set from their dazed opponents.



Another Rally

Levitan and De Gray again stepped away into a commanding lead in the second set, and leading at 5-2, were again backed up against the wall as Harris and Abels alternated in driving their way through three games and knotting the set at 5-all. However, the top-seeded pair braced and evened the match, by taking the next two games and sets at 7-5.

The third set witnessed a rally by Harris and Abels be-

Doping The Sports

By JAMES MORRIS

Tomorrow will probably be the biggest day of the year as far as Carolina's sport fans are concerned and to many of the football followers in the state. This year the Carolina-Duke game looms even bigger than ever before since both outfits boost their elevens among the best in the history of their institutions. Anything and everything is likely to happen. Duke of course holds the odds in the betting world but there still remain some really great Tar Heel supporters. I have information about one man at Rocky Mount who put all his available cash on Carolina and gave the Duke bettors 15 points. I'm taking Coach Snavely and an inspired Tar Heel eleven also, but not to that extent.

Running a close second to the grid battle is the cross country meet between the same schools; it also is doped to be a thriller. Both racing clubs are strong, having won all their meets to date by handsome margins. The Duke harriers are on their way to a record, boosting of no defeats during the last three years. It was Duke that stopped a Carolina winning streak year before last and the Tar Heels are out to turn the tables.

Ed McRae, who by the way ran second on the last conference championship team back in 1931, has taken over the duties of leading the Carolina harriers in action, since Williamson has been forced out of the sport, and will be the boy to watch. The blond veteran is in a position to burn up all the conference records on hand and tomorrow should only be a warmup win for him before the real battle with Washington and Lee's Dunaj here next Saturday.

Captain George Barclay will have the biggest chance of his life to distinguish himself in tomorrow's grid classic. Duke has become one of the best known football teams in the United States and should Barclay lead Carolina to a victory it will put him on the front row when the All-American pickers get together. If Barclay repeats the same great performance of last year's Blue Devil contest, how in the world the board can miss him is beyond this column to understand. A great number of fans still claim, in spite of a lame knee, that George outplayed Duke's All-American Crawford during the Carolina-Duke battle at Durham.

Language Duo Whips History Pair in Golf

In the first of a series of golf matches between the Carolina history and Romance language departments yesterday afternoon, Loren McKinney and Cecil Johnson of the history group went down in defeat before Leon Wiley and Nicholson B. Adams, 5-up.

HARRIERS IN TOP SHAPE; END WORK WITH LIGHT DRILL

State Championship Depends on Outcome of Race at Durham.

In the face of a brisk wind the blue and white harriers took a light limbering up workout yesterday afternoon as their last practice before they face the strong Blue Devil outfit tomorrow morning at Durham.

The men who are slated to start are: Haywood Curlee, Louis Conte, Graham Gammon, Fab Haywood, Ed McRae, and Ed Waldrop. The balance of the team will be rounded out from the following men: Marvin Allen, Marcus Aderholt, Jack Bower and Bob Gardiner.

In Good Shape

The entire Carolina group seems to be in good physical condition. All of the boys realize that this race besides their hardest task of the season, has the State title at stake, and as a result are ready to give their utmost to bring the championship back to the Hill.

The team will leave Emerson stadium in the morning at 9:00 o'clock. The race will be run over a five mile course of which the majority of the route is paved road.

Red Cross Booth

Members of the Chi Omega sorority will be stationed again today in a booth in the post office building to receive Red Cross membership subscriptions. This booth was occupied by members of this sorority yesterday.

LAW GRIDSTERS DOWN LEWIS IN MURAL FEATURE

Takes Hard-Fought Battle with 7-2 First-Down Margin; Line Performance Excellent.

"Y" DEFEATS EVERETT 7-6

Rising to great heights and apparently outplaying themselves in almost every branch of the game, the gridiron stock of Law School hit a new high yesterday afternoon as it plowed through to a 7-2 first down victory over a fighting Lewis dormitory eleven.

The lawyers opened fast and when time was called at intermission their fine passing attack and brilliant defensive work had placed them in the van with a five to nothing first down lead. However, the Lewis team came back more determined than ever to consistently threaten the shyster's goal, but lacked the necessary punch to force over a tally.

Law Halts Drive

The encounter ended after Law had held for downs on its own two-yard line and Jones' kick from behind the double stripe was partially blocked by a barrage of hard charging Lewis linemen. Each team annexed a pair of first downs in the latter setto, while the work exhibited by both lines was the hardest and best seen in any game this year.

Three other contests were also played on the afternoon's program, with the Y.M.C.A. gridmen coming through with a 7-6 win over Everett in a close battle. The winners push-

Battle on Emerson Field Will Start at 3:00; Babies Favored.

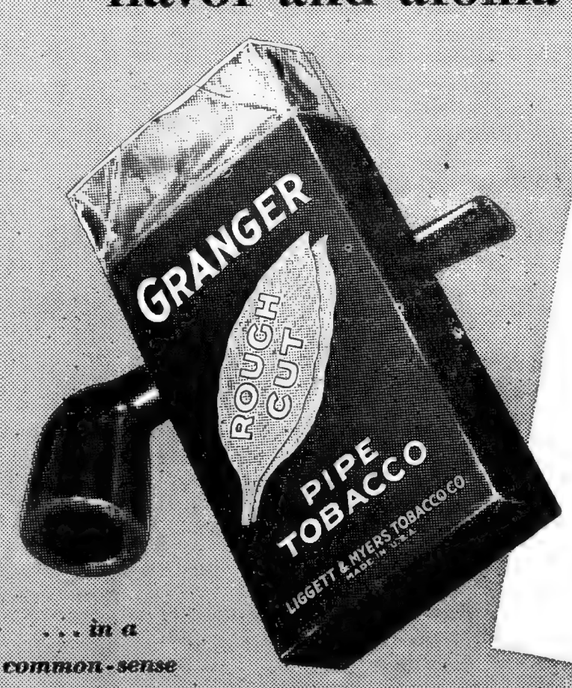
Coming down from the hills of Virginia is a group of determined Cavalier freshmen eager to break up the newly started winning streak of the Carolina Tar Babies, when they meet on Emerson field at 3:00 o'clock this afternoon.

The Chapel Hillians, despite the fact that they are still recuperating from the terrific struggle they waged against the Clemson Tiger Cubs, are entering this traditional battle as the favorites to emerge victorious.

May Be Upset

The Virginia frosh have been going through a rather luckless season, losing a good many of their contests by tight scores. They enter this encounter with nothing to lose and everything to gain and a team starting a game under such circumstances is to be feared, especially since the Carolina yearlings have been playing spotty football throughout the season.

The Babies have spent the last three days running through their formations, and recovering from the hurts suffered in Monday's victory.



It is impossible to give an accurate account of how the frosh shape up for today's gridiron affair, as their dire schedule has

FRESHMEN LEARN PEP RALLY PLANS

Willingham and Gardner Speak At Pep Meeting Held During Chapel Period Yesterday.

Freshmen cheered lustily at a pep meeting held yesterday morning during the regular chapel period.

Frank Willingham, president of the University Club, thanked the freshmen for this co-operation in past cheer rallies. He announced a torch-light parade to begin this evening in front of Swain hall and proceed to Emerson field.

Friendlier Relations

Stressing friendlier relations between Duke and Carolina, Willingham told of the exchange of representatives between the two schools; Jack Pool, president of the senior class, Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, and a football man going to Duke, while three Duke men will be present at the University rally.

Expressing regret for last year's action at Duke University "for which we are still apologizing," Ralph Gardner, varsity center, urged that the students save their energy until about 4:15 o'clock on Saturday when it will be needed most.

Lester Ostrow, head cheerleader, thanked the frosh for cheering support in past games and claimed that it had a lot to do with the victories. The cheerleaders led in several songs and yells.

prevented them from scrimmaging these past few afternoons. Coach James had to be content with sending them through brief warmup drills, which included some brisk passing and running against imaginary foes.

Several Stars Out

Thomas is back in uniform, but it is likely that Ax, Gaydos and Bartos will watch the game from the sidelines. The first three of the above mentioned have been the hard luck players of the year.

Thomas started the season as regular halfback and he showed great promise, but a stubborn injury, suffered in the Wake Forest opener, has refused to heal and consequently the aspiring backfield star has spent most of his time as a spectator.

Ax, the powerful guard, went into the Wake Forest game with both of his ankles badly sprained and after weeks of patient waiting it appeared that he was once more in form when along came old man jinx and left the unfortunate yearling with a chipped bone.

Gaydos, one of the outstanding linesmen in early season, emerged from the State game with only a pair of crutches to show for his spectacular playing and after hobbling around a bit he got into the Clemson brawl and aggravated his old wound.

The starting lineup should consist of : Bershak and Wolfe, ends; Keeney and Maffitt, tackles; Smith and Dixon, guards; Avery, center; Walborn, blocking back; Burnette and Hoffer, halfbacks, and Ditt at fullback.

The Virginia freshman arrived late yesterday afternoon and went through a short limbering-up drill.

Woofter to Speak

Dr. T. J. Woofter, Jr., of the department of sociology will deliver a talk this morning in Reidsville at a North Carolina-Virginia regional meeting of the commission on interracial cooperation.

These stars are appearing in "A Lost Lady," First National's dramatic picture now playing at the Carolina theatre.

K. A. FRATERNITY TO HAVE AFFAIR

Lodge Will Have Banquet Tonight; Mrs. Herman Schnell Will Be Chaperone.

The Kappa Alpha fraternity will give a house party this week-end during the fall German dances with Mrs. J. J. Skinner of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Herman Schnell of Chapel Hill acting as chaperones.

There will be a banquet tonight for members of the fraternity and their guests.

Guests

The local chapter has invited the following girls: Sarah Denny, High Point; Anna Boyce Rankin, Charlotte; Lila Tucker, Charlotte; Sally Hunter, Charlotte; Virginia Ezzard, Atlanta; Lucy Neal Brooks, Greensboro; Margaret Hill, Greensboro; Mary Lillian Correll, Chapel Hill.

Clara Margaret Grantham, Raleigh; Katherine Harris, Raleigh; Hortense Jones, Greensboro; Treva Wharton, Winston-Salem; Betty Sparks, Forest Hills, N. Y.; Louise Whitney, Washington, D. C.; Louise Ebner, Wilmington, Del.

fore they could battle to even terms. Trailing at 4-2, they managed to bring it to 5-all just as the shadows took possession of the court.

The contest was a splendid exhibition throughout and the finish will be awaited with considerable interest. It will be completed probably Monday, due to the football games today and tomorrow. As the final is a two out of three affair, they will probably resume play from the deuced scores of 7-5, 7-5 and replay the final set.

Wednesday, Harris and Abels eliminated the strong combination of Johnny Foreman and Gene Robinson, to earn their right to battle for the crown. They were forced to the limit but finally wore down their opposition in three sets by 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

In yesterday's ladder matches, Archie Henderson settled his claim to seventh position on the varsity by repeating over Johnny Dowd decisively, and taking that rung on the wings of a 6-2, 6-1 victory. Henderson took advantage of Dowd's inconsistency and scored at ease.

The other brawl witnessed Ricky Willis smother Larry Jones, in defense of his 3rd ranking, with his driving backhand and powerful play. He scored easily at 6-2, 6-2.

PHI ALPHA PLANS WEEK-END PARTY

Jimmy Fuller's Orchestra Will Play for Dances Tomorrow Night and Saturday.

In conjunction with the Carolina-Duke game here Saturday the Omega chapter of Phi Alpha fraternity will give a house party this week-end.

There will be an informal dance at the house tomorrow evening from 9:00 until 1:00 o'clock and a formal dance at the house from 9:00 until 12:00 o'clock on Saturday night. Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra will provide the music for both dances.

Milford Schwartz, national president of the fraternity, will present the Founders' Cup to the local chapter. The Founders' Cup is the highest award that any chapter of the fraternity may receive.

Guests

The guests are: Miss Helen N. Bane, Reidsville; Miss Sylvia F. Steinreich, Newark, N. J.; Miss Dora Samet, High Point; Miss Alberta Berger, Atlantic City, N. J.; Miss Julia Brown, Raleigh; Miss Mildred Tonkel, Miss.; Miss Melva Pigott, Raleigh; Miss Sylvia Samet, Mount Airy; Miss Estelle Popper, New York City; Miss Rose Munich, Durham; Miss Hecky Gordon, Durham; Miss Gladys Meyerowitz, Belle Haven; Miss Gladys Steinberg, Richmond, Va.; Miss Ruth Seglin, Arlington, N. J.; Miss Sarah Sherman, Richmond, Va.; Miss Mary Braswell, Montezuma; Miss Adrienne Wormser, New York City; and Miss Sarah Dave, Durham.

The chaperones for the affair will be: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lipman of Chapel Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Al Klein of Greensboro; and Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Wilson of Durham.

The date for the freshman class group pictures, scheduled for today, has been changed to Thursday of next week at 10:30 o'clock.

Members of the law school will meet, as previously announced, on the steps of Manning hall at 10:30 o'clock today for their photographs.

ualty who returned to heavy work this week. The Tar Heel star flankman will probably be out of tomorrow's starting lineup; however, he will certainly be called upon for relief duty before the game is over.

Carolina Has Weight

According to the program weights, the Carolina line will average 189 pounds to Duke's 185. The Duke backfield averages 171 .pounds, while the Carolina ball carriers will scale 178 with Shaffer or 173 with Montgomery opening at right half.

However, the Duke eleven more than makes up with its added experience the slight advantage Carolina has in weight. Duke's starting eleven lists five seniors, four juniors, and three sophomores.

Tomorrow's game will bring together some of the south's brightest stars, including Captain George Barclay, Carolina guard, and Corky Cornelius, Duke back, who are leading candidates for All-American, and Jack Dunlap of Duke, who like Barclay is ranked with the greatest defensive players in the country at backing up a line.

Punting to Feature

Among the feature duels will be those between the rival punters, Parker of Duke and Shaffer of Carolina, who have been averaging between 40 and 45 yards all season, and the opposing passers, Parker and Jackson.

The game will also mark the first meeting on the gridiron of Duke's "old master," Wallace Wade, who led three teams to the Rose Bowl while at Alabama, and Carl Snavely, Carolina's new "miracle worker," late of Bucknell.

Probable lineups were announced last night at follows: Duke—Wentz and Tarrell, ends; Durner and Power, tackles; Johnston and J. Dunlap, guards; E. Dunlap, center; Parker, quarter; Cornelius and Ward, half; and Alexander, fullback.

Carolina—Buck and McCarn, ends; Tatum and Evins, tackles; Barclay and Kahn, guards; Daniel, center; Snyder, quarter; Jackson and Montgomery, half; and Hutchins, fullback.

Methodist Forum

The program at the Methodist student forum meeting Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock will be presented by men and women students of Duke University, according to R. P. Russell, president of the forum.

After the program, a reception, with refreshments, will be held.

CARROLL VANITIES PLAYS IN DURHAM

Bevy of Beautiful Girls and Comedy Stars Appear in Latest Revue Tonight Only.

Ten singing, comedy and dancing stars blaze forth in the new sensation of Earl Carroll Vanities, the big revue which plays at the Carolina theatre in Durham tonight only.

First to be mentioned and certainly the first one to attract attention is Ken Murray, the witty wise cracker who acts as master of ceremonies and plays parts in various of the comedy sketches. Chaz Chase is outstanding as an eccentric dancer and general clown. The Three Samuels Brothers and The Four Rio Brothers contribute an amazing dancing routine.

Blackface Comedy

Moran and Casper, "The Two Black Crows," are responsible for a large share of the laughs with their droll and pithy black face comedy.

Ethel Torrence, Helen Charleston, Grace Dane, Rosie Moran, Buddy Doyle, Peggy Hoover, Milton Charleston and John Kelly supply liberal talent for the comedy sketches, song numbers and specialty dances.

Joyce Johnson, Evelyn Witt, Marie Warren, Vern Devine, Addie Martin, Frew Donald, Erin McKay, Edith Fleming and Rita Dugan are the featured beauties and the cast of a hundred people also includes the famous Earl Carroll Beauty Chorus of the Most Beautiful Girls in the World.

Have Own Orchestra

All the musicians in the orchestra are carried by the company and this department is under the direction of Ray Kavanaugh.

The scenic production is massive and the light effects and costuming are novel and elaborate.

ed over their tally in the first half and made good the free try, which later proved to be the margin of victory.

Phi Delts in Surprise

Phi Delta Theta surprised even its most ardent of rooters as it downed the Kappa Sigma team, 13-8. The victors led 7-2 at half time, but garnered only three first downs to the Kappa Sigs' seven. Tucker and Mosier scored the winner's touchdowns, with Frank Rogers converting the extra. Ison tallied the lone Kappa Sigma six-pointer.

The Phi Sigma Kappa team won a hard fought 13-0 battle over Phi Gamma Delta in the fourth game with Vick and Kaveny being responsible for the touchdowns and Mahoney for the extra pointer. The losers led five to four in first downs. The fine punting by both teams was outstanding.

ANNUAL GERMANS CONTINUE TODAY WITH TEA DANCE

Isham Jones' Orchestra Is Popular at Opening Affairs; Formal Dance Ends Set Tonight.

DANCE TO FOLLOW GAME

The annual fall German Club dances continue today after the Duke-Carolina football game with a tea dance from 5 to 7 o'clock in the Tin Can.

The final dance of the series, formal, begins tonight at 9 o'clock, ending at 12 o'clock.

Jones Makes Hit

Isham Jones, who, according to statements by some of those present, has one of the best bands ever to play on this campus, is furnishing the music for the dances.

The Tin Can has been attractively decorated for the occasion in red and black.

Tribute was paid to the popular orchestra yesterday afternoon when everybody sat down and listened for a while instead of dancing.

Leaders Tonight

Leading the dance tonight will be: Bob Drane, Zeta Psi, leader, accompanied by Miss Margaret Lewis, Durham; Garvin May, Kappa Sigma, assistant leader, accompanied by Miss Celeste Moore, Athens, Georgia; and Alec Hanes, Delta Kappa Epsilon, assistant leader, accompanied by Miss Jane Hess Weaver, High Point.

Bids for graduate students, alumni and Duke visitors will be on sale at the door.

The annual set opened yesterday afternoon with a tea dance from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock in the Tin Can.

Following the tea dance the formal sophomore German ball was held last night from 9 to 1 o'clock at the same place.

Heading the sophomore German last night were: Henry

Notables Expected At Game

Ehringhaus and Two Former Governors of North Carolina, Presidents of Rival Universities Will Head List of Visitors.

Two former governors of North Carolina, as well as the present chief executive, the Hon. J. C. B. Ehringhaus, are expected to be on hand this afternoon for the Duke-Carolina football game.

Hon. A. W. McLean of Lumberton, governor during 1924-28, and Hon. O. Max Gardner of Washington, D. C., governor from 1928-32, are among those who will occupy the guest box on the north side of Kenan stadium.

President W. P. Few of Duke University and President Frank P. Graham of the Greater University of North Carolina will probably see the game between their schools also from the guest box.

The deans of the two schools, Dean W. H. Wannamaker of Duke and Dean R. B. House of Carolina, are expected to be there, with Dean W. C. Jackson of the Woman's College in Greensboro and Dean J. W. Harrelson of the University at Raleigh.

Trustees

The Board of Trustees of the University will be represented by Col. J. F. Burton, chairman, of Wilson; and J. Sprunt Hill, of Durham. The recently appointed archivist for the United States, R. D. W. Connor, with Mrs. Connor, of Washington, D. C., will probably be present, as will Judge Walter P. Stacy of Raleigh, chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court and head of the recently created federal labor relations board.

RED CROSS PLANS PRE-GAME PARADE

Players, Legionnaires, Bands, Scouts and Co-ed to March.

Immediately before the opening kick-off of the Carolina-Duke game today the Chapel Hill chapter of the American Red Cross, with the assistance of the combined Duke and Carolina bands, will stage a parade across the playing field.

The American and state flags will lead the parade, with an American Legion color guard. Playing the part of a Red Cross nurse and accompanied by two small children, Miss Alta Mae Simms, a Carolina co-ed, will come next.

A huge Red Cross flag will follow, borne by 11 members of the freshman football team, wearing red jerseys with the Red Cross emblem on them.

A patrol of Boy Scouts, carrying stretchers, will march after the flag; and the Duke and Carolina bands will bring up the rear.

SERVICE TONIGHT HONORS VENABLE

Birthday of Late Francis Preston Venable Will Be Commemorated This Evening.

A commemorative program honoring the birthday of the late Dr. Francis Preston Venable, noted chemist and former president of the University, will be held this evening in Gerrard hall at 8 o'clock.

Dr. H. M. Wagstaff, chairman of the program committee for the memorial services, announced the speakers as Dr. Charles H. Herty of New York and Dr. Henry V. Wilson of the University faculty.

Associates to Speak

Dr. Herty, a former member of the teaching staff here, will present Dr. Venable as a scientist in an address on "The Enduring Satisfaction of Research." Dr. Wilson will recall the late president as a colleague speaking on "Dr. Venable as I Knew Him."

The memorial service committee is composed of Dr. Wagstaff, chairman, Dr. Wilson, Dr. J. M. Booker, Dr. W. C. Coker, and Dr. A. S. Wheeler.

Dr. Herty wishes to meet any old friends of Dr. Venable at the home of Dr. Wheeler at 714 East Franklin street after the program.

FOOTBALL CROWD TO BREAK RECORD

Shepard Expects 30,000; General Admissions Left.

Although the estimate of the Charlotte Observer for the crowd which will attend the Duke-Carolina game does not exactly agree with that released by athletic association officials, there will be a record number of people in Kenan stadium today.

The sale of reserved seats fell off somewhat yesterday. Approximately three sections of reserved seats remain unsold.

Coach "Bo" Shepard places the number of spectators at between 27,000 and 30,000.

Infirmary List

These students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: Meares Harris, Tom Jimison, Felix Hamrick, M. E. Smith, D. W. Frye, Paul Whitney, Helen Rosser, C. H. Thurman, John Munyan, C. W. Blackwell, J. C. Dillon, and F. W. Ashley.

SPONSORS NAMED FOR GAME TODAY

Virgil Weathers to Welcome Duke Visitors; Burke of Duke Will Make Reply.

Sponsors for the Duke-Carolina game were announced yesterday by Jake Snyder, chairman of the arrangements committee. The sponsors will be presented between the halves of today's game.

A welcome to the Duke student body will be extended by President Virgil Weathers at the same time on behalf of the University, and Bill Burke, president of the student body at Duke, will make a reply of acceptance.

Duke Sponsors

The following have been named as sponsors for Duke University: Miss Beatrix Tennis, Washington, D. C., with Bill Burke of Meriden, Conn.; Miss Sue Powell, Gastonia, with Sam Bell of Charlotte, who represents the O.D.K. fraternity and the Red Friars, the two highest honorary societies on the Duke campus.

Miss Anita Knox, Manhasset, L. I., president of the Duke Woman's Association, with Byron Hawks of New York City; and Miss Hazel Emery, Jacksonville, Fla., sponsor for the Duke football team, with Bill Siceloff of High Point.

Carolina Sponsors

Sponsors for North Carolina are: Miss Elizabeth Hewitt, Shelby, wih Virgil Weathers, Shelby; Miss Jane Crabtree, Greensboro, with Frank Abernethy, Greensboro, president of the Golden Fleece and the Order of the Grail.

Miss Lucy James, Greenville, N. C., with Frank Willingham, Winston-Salem, president of the University Club; Miss Maryellen Holbrook, Van Wert, Ohio, sponsor for the Carolina football team, with Frank Sisson, Potsdam, N. Y.

Flowers for the sponsors have been presented by Doyle, Florist, of Chapel Hill and Durham.

Louisiana Hails Huey I, King In "Land Of Free"

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 16.—(UP)—Realizing a life-long ambition, Huey Long put the finishing touches on his political masterpiece tonight and assumed the powers of a monarch over the two and one quarter million of his subjects in Louisiana.

Commenting on his victory, Huey pronounced it "the greatest triumph for human uplift and sober government this country has ever witnessed."

King Huey's Corpus Legis

The cause for this modest statement by "King Huey" came when his subservient state legislature obediently enacted no less than 44 new laws, extending Long's dictatorship over every village, farm, and cross-road in Louisiana.

The constables, police, public utility corporations, tax and election machinery, even down to the commissions which pick juries in New Orleans and the men who serve warrants for arrests, were placed at the end of the strings held by "Huey I."

"Share the wealth" is Huey's slogan. "Sock the rich, especially the big corporations, and give the little man a chance" is his creed.

Carolina Rooters Yell, Shout "Beat The Devil Out Of Duke"

SPONSORS' NOTICE

Sponsors for the Carolina-Duke game and their escorts will meet in the North Lounge of Graham Memorial this afternoon at 1 o'clock. It is imperative that they meet promptly to go to the stadium in a body.

Anti-war Group Did Not Condemn Red Cross

Motion to Withdraw Support Was Tabled, Not Passed.

The action taken Thursday night by the local anti-war group concerning the charges made against the American Red Cross in the November issue of the American Mercury has brought a response from R. M. Grumman, chairman of the Chapel Hill chapter of the Red Cross.

Mr. Grumman's statement reads: "Two of the headings of the anti-war group story appearing in the DAILY TAR HEEL yesterday are misleading in that the motion refered to was tabled rather than being passed, as the headings indicated.

"Because of recently published statements derogatory to the American Red Cross I wish to announce that the local chapter will be glad to make available to anyone interested factual information concerning the national organization."

The DAILY TAR HEEL acknowledges the mistake made by its deskmen in placing misleading headings on the story.

Notice: Red Cross

All students who solicited Red Cross memberships are asked to hand in their reports to the "Y" office immediately.

"Act Like Gentlemen" Asks Harper Barnes

Judge Reeves of Greensboro, Coach Bob Fetzer, and Virgil Weathers Other Speakers.

WEATHERS: "WE'LL WIN"

A bonfire-lit Emerson stadium filled with the enthusiasm of 1,500 loudly cheering students last evening gave vent to Carolina's hopes for a victory over arch-enemy Duke this afternoon.

Led by Head Cheerleader Ostrow and his assistants, the student pep meeting proved the noisiest and most successful of the year.

Coach Bob Fetzer, representing the coaching staff, claimed that Carolina's team will be fused into a unit pulling for Carolina against Duke. "There will be two games going on out there tomorrow," he said, "one out there on the gridiron and one in the stadium."

Happiest College in South

Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, urged that the students support the good playing of both teams with their cheering.

"If we beat Duke, there is no doubt that we will be the happiest college in the south," Weathers said. "It is my firm conviction that we are going to win tomorrow. So let's go out there and leave every bit of dignity we have up in our rooms," he concluded.

Judge "Scrubby" Rives, class of '22 and announced as cheerleader for four years, said that if Carolina plays tomorrow like she did against Tech, "we're going to upset the dope and beat the devil out of Duke."

Harper Barnes requested that Carolina students act like college men and not like a group of high school boys.

Relativity's Dr. Henderson Is Authority On Football

Einstein-Theorist Is Among Most Enthusiastic Followers of Great American Sport; Abandons Time-Space Calculations Each Week-end to Watch Activities of Country's Gridsters.

By LOUIS GRAVES, Editor The Chapel Hill Weekly

Just after nightfall on every Saturday evening at this season of the year a tall, slender man with an eager look is to be seen walking back and forth along the short stretch of sidewalk between the Sutton drugstore and the Gooch cafe. He looks up and down the street, and he has the air of impatiently waiting for somebody. All at once his face lights up with happiness.

The man is Archibald Henderson, and the reason he is happy is that he has heard the first shout of the newsboy bearing the Pink Edition of the Durham Sun. This is the edition that carries the reports of the afternoon's football games. When Mr. Henderson has bought his paper he takes a stand beside the nearest lit-up show-window and proceeds to read. For the next few minutes he is far away from Chapel Hill. He is a spectator in one grandstand after another—in the south, in California, in the middle west, in New York and New England—thrilled by the assaults upon the line, the sweeps around the end, the blocking and the tackling, the passes and the punts.

For a long time I have marveled at the vast volume of work that this man manages to get done, and the marvel grows now that I learn of the attention he gives to football. The session with the Pink Edition is only the beginning of the orgy. He reads the more detailed reports Sunday morning, in one of the North Carolina dailies; his Sunday New York Times arrives Monday and after the midday meal he buries himself in the football pages of that journal; and Tuesday he reads football again in the Sunday New York Herald Tribune which has been passed along to him by his sister, Mrs. Lyman Cotten. He reads not only the news of the matches, but the comments of sports editors—Jake Wade and Mitchell and Haney and McKevlin here in the state, and Kieran in New York, and I don't know how many more. And now and then I hear him mention having read some football article in a magazine.

From conversations with him,

Duke And Carolina Renew Rivalry Of Half Century

University and Trinity First Met on Gridiron in 1888; "Bandy" Or "Shinny" Only Game Corresponding to Football to Have Been Played Before Then; Sport Forbidden.

By DONOH HANKS

The ancient rivalry which will be renewed here today when the Duke Blue Devils meet the University of North Carolina eleven dates back 46 years, when Duke was Trinity College and spirit between Trinity and Carolina students flamed so high that football was forbidden at Chapel Hill.

The Trinity football team and the Tar Heels met for the first time in the winter of 1888.

Until then, football was played much as it is described in "Tom Brown at Rugby," with as many playing as were willing to engage in it. The custom of a limited number of men on each side was not at all common, and at Trinity and Carolina until about 1880 was unknown. The game, before the day of intercollegiate contests, was played on the campuses, two captains choosing up sides after matching a coin or tossing a stick for first choice.

The game was extremely rough, rivaling an older sport of bandy, or shinny, which was vigorous form of hockey adopted by students from Scottish highland immigrants in North Carolina. Football rapidly supplanted shinny and gave quite as much outlet for the collegiate desire to break a nose or an arm.

Carolina Defeated

The Trinity team soundly walloped Carolina in the first encounter. Neither team knew much about football, although the Trinity players had the advantage of having been coached by their college president, Dr. Crowell, who has a graduate of Yale and had played football there in his undergraduate days. The Trinity team was led by Captain Tom Daniels, former state commander of the American Legion.

The players at the University were accustomed to playing in interclass games at Chapel Hill, and had often chosen up sides for an afternoon of sport, but this was their first year of intercollegiate play.

The University team, before meeting Trinity, had already lost one game to Wake Forest. Carolina team members sent for printed rules of the game, and after two weeks of practice under the rules without a coach, met Trinity ingloriously. Captain Bragaw of the Carolina team was severely injured.

The need of a coach was seen

PARAGRAPHICS

As the Federal Communications Commission politely informed the A. T. & T.: "We've got your number, please!"

If all the late Smith Reynolds' silver dollars were laid end to end, what a swell time young Chris could have playing blocks.

The intramural wrestlers have to have a pull to get anywhere in the tournament.

Give 'Em A Hand

After last night's pep rally, we can say little to re-affirm the whole-hearted support that the students will give their team, at the most important game of the year, in Kenan stadium this afternoon. The whole school has demonstrated its confidence in the Carolina warriors, and every legitimate enthusiasm will be shown today by University stand-fans, from mental telepathy to mass exhortation. More of the latter, less of the former, however.

The members of the football team, to be sure, have their reward in victory and their disappointment in defeat. But the greatest satisfaction to them will come this afternoon when the final whistle has blown and they know they have done all in the power to make the team invincible. For giving all their strength and energy to a grinding contest, they deserve every bit of what support the students can give them from the stands.

The students are behind Coach Snavely and his team. And because of it, as The Duke Chronicle says, "people who take the Tar Heels lightly are barking up the wrong fire hydrant."

Picking A Bonus

The headlines blared forth that Alex Andrews, last year's Yackety Yack editor, won a moral victory over the Publications Union Board in obtaining half of a bonus he thought due him. The board, after "losing" the battle, admitted that the method of awarding bonuses was defective; this opinion is absolutely correct.

The rule states that if the editor gets the book out "on time," he receives a $20 bonus. But any publications man can tell you that "on time" is as much dependent on what the printers and engravers think about it as the editors. An editor can work at top speed and with great efficiency, as Andrews did, and still not achieve the "deadline for publication."

If the bonus must be awarded on the basis of editorial efficiency and dispatch, the arrangement must stipulate schedules agreed to by the editor and the printers and engravers. Then, if the editor follows his schedule faithfully and the book is still late, as Andrews claimed for the reason for last year's tardy appearance, then the editor deserves his bonus.

The other bonus requirements are valid enough and clear-cut, stipulating rules for adhering to the yearbook contracts. If the deadline bonus were as simply stated and as deliberate in requirement, the Publications Union Board would alleviate the annual tiffs with the editors who sweat and slave and still lose out.

Geneva And The Red Cross

After several years of comparative non-activity on the anti-war question, non-activity in that nobody did anything about what everybody agreed, students gathered Wednesday night and elected a delegate to represent the University at the Anti-War Conference in Geneva, Switzerland.

What the students from every corner of the globe do at this mass convention is of less importance and significance than the spirit which instigated their attendance. When the youth of the world become so conscious of a problem affecting the future of the world, when the future generation graduates from inquisitiveness to action and a course of procedure, then, we feel, the human values of the world are intact for another half-century or so.

Americans will join foreigners in a combined and co-operative movement not only to form the basis for opinion of the future but to act upon the policies of the incumbent internationalists. The world must heed what youth has to say, especially youth acting together in a serious and thoughtful concert of action.

* * * *

When the conference talked about withdrawing its support of the Red Cross until "it answered incriminating charges brought against it in a current issue of the American Mercury," it evidenced a sincere attitude involving action toward the goal of peace by refusing to support a supposedly militaristic organization.

We sympathize with the conference for its action in tabling the motion to withdraw the support even more than for questioning the Red Cross itself. The members had the right, of course, to question the organization, especially as the Mercury article's accusation was "down their alley" in the peace program. But to make publicly an issue against a group which has done so much for humanity, in actions we definitely are positive of, would have been a gross error; hence, their attitude of investigation rather than condemnation was praiseworthy.

We, too, are uninformed on the merits of the charge and we, too, shall make investigation. The point is that if the Red Cross is doing for the military what the charges incriminate, then that organization will not have the support of the youth of today which is making its stand for peace. And tomorrow's generation will not be drawn blindly into the support of a militant group acting under the guise of saviors of humanity. The Red Cross, then, must answer if it expects tomorrow's support.

It's Here Again

The second issue of the Carolina Finjan makes us feel greatly relieved, to say the least. Since our remarks in these columns on the appearance of the first edition, we have been subjected to much censure in our statement that the Finjan is a noble magazine, a turn to the better, and an acorn from which oak trees will spring. Most people didn't enjoy the first issue, but the second should come nearer to pleasing them all.

The Finjan must be given a chance. You can't educate a student body to a different type of humor overnight. Maybe there wasn't any humor in the first issue; but the point is, there was supposed to be, and clean humor, at that. The new edition HAS clean humor and if the students don't laugh, it is because they have not become accustomed to the new standards which the Finjan and the board of censors represent.

Incidently, we hope there's nothing significant in the "travel issue." If anything, we hope the Finjan stays on the same highway.

New Star On the Horizon

In bringing Dalies Frantz to this campus, Phi Mu Alpha has departed from its traditional policy of securing only artists of mature genius and established reputation. However, in this young pianist, the change seems a worthy one; for anybody who hears Frantz will hear an artist who is on his way to the top.

The career of Frantz reads like an episode from one of Horatio Alger's deathless tracts. By overcoming obstacles through sheer force of genius, he proved conclusively that the field of music is by no means closed to the beginner. Although he has only been out of school four years, he has appeared as soloist with the Detroit Symphony, the Philadelphia Symphony, and in a solo recital in New York City, winning the opportunity to make his appearance in each case by emerging victorious over 99 other opponents.

"The best technique since Liszt" is one of the phrases which critics have applied to him. Add to this the fact that Mr. Frantz is young, blond, and an athlete (having won several swimming championships while in school at Boston) and it would seem that the artist who is to appear here in January is one who, to borrow another phrase from the critics, "is destined for the most brilliant career ever achieved by an American-born pianist."

Duke And Carolina Renew Old Rivalry

at Carolina and Hector Cowan was chosen by the players for the position. Thus far the players at Carolina had managed the contests themselves.

"Disputes and bad blood," a Chapel Hill teacher said, "between the University students and those of other colleges in the state were engendered."

Not long after, when Trinity dropped a game to the University of Virginia, a Chapel Hill student paper took a sly poke at the Trinity team's explanation of the defeat. "It is the old canine story over again—'We would have whipped them, if—.' Yes, if they had not whipped you."

Trinity Game Forbidden

The faculty of the University thought it best to draw the reins, and in 1889 it was ordained that Carolina should not play Trinity or any other college, and that football should be allowed only on the college grounds. The following year the board of trustees officially forbade intercollegiate games altogether.

No such thing happened at Trinity. The Methodist boys continued their fine playing, piling up scores.

An air of gloom pervaded the Carolina campus, and it was not long before students were agitating for reinstatement of football. Trinity's games were followed with much interest, and baseball, which was not prohibited, did not let the spirit of rivalry decline between the neighboring schools.

Pleas for continuation of efforts to have football legalized appeared in the college publications, and early in 1891 George M. Graham, Alexander Stronach, and Sam M. Blount presented a petition which induced the trustees to rescind their order of prohibition.

At least 100 students at the University came out for football although there were hardly more than 300 men in school at that date.

One historian relates that no serious injury occurred during the first year of the football renascence, but at least one editorial squib in the Carolina paper belied it with enthusiasm.

Injuries Rife

"Hurrah for the football team!" the editor wrote. "Everybody hurt, some with broken noses and thumbs sprained and strained ankles, one with his arm broken and two cannot walk, owing to some strains of the muscles of the leg."

Carolina and Trinity did not meet again until the fall of 1892. This time the tables were turned. Trinity had lost its southern champions through graduation, and the Carolina team was prepared. The Tar Heels' rigid training had excited much comment.

"We wonder why M. H. has stopped smoking and eating dessert," it was remarked six months before the playing season. "He has taken upon himself the entirely new resolution to run a mile before breakfast and before supper."

The "M. H." was Michael Hoke, co-captain of the Carolina team of 1892, who is now an eminent surgeon in Atlanta. The rest of the team followed his example.

Trinity Defeated

For the first time the Tar Heels defeated Trinity. The score was 24-0.

The Carolina students who remained at the campus exuberantly welcomed their victorious team with a cheer of

"Raw! Raw! White
Raw! Raw! Blue
Hoopla! Hoopla! N. C. U."

Dr. Henderson Is Football Authority

I estimate that Mr. Henderson reads at least 40 columns of football news and comment every week, and probably more than that. Yet it doesn't seem to interfere with any of his multifold activities. One explanation of this is that he soaks the stuff in very rapidly and turns easily to something else.

Mr. Henderson would resent the landing of a foreign foe on the shores of the United States, but I can think of hardly anything, short of that, that would make him more indignant than he becomes when a fine performance of a University of North Carolina athletic team doesn't receive proper attention from the press. A year or so ago he wrote a letter to Mr. Kieran of the New York Times chiding him for not having given more notice to the fact that our tennis team had won the national intercollegiate championship. In his column in the Times Mr. Kieran spoofed the protest, intimating that Mr. Henderson attached undue importance to the record; but he printed the letter, and so Mr. Henderson attained his objective—that is, he acquainted the Times readers with the triumphs of the North Carolina tennis team.

SCOUT SEMINARS WILL END TODAY

Executives of Sixth Region to Adjourn after Game.

The fall 1934 Boy Scout executive seminar of region six will hold its last meetings this morning, and its members will return to their homes this afternoon after the football game.

The features of this morning's program are a round table study and an address by Dr. E. K. Plyler on "Some New Experiments in Physics."

Yesterday morning the group of scout executives heard talks by Dr. Wiley B. Sanders, and Dr. A. M. Jordan. The afternoon was spent in a discussion led by Dr. H. R. Totten on "Trees and Vines of North Carolina." Two round table studies were also conducted yesterday.

Alpha Psi Delta

Dr. A. G. Bayroff read a paper on "Some Experiments in Social Psychology of Animals" at the monthly session of Alpha Psi Delta, psychological fraternity, Wednesday night.

D. D. Wickens spoke on "Impressions of the American Psychological Association Meetings."

The following were elected to membership: Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Adams, Miss Lulu Davis, Miss Mildred Mendenhall, M. G. Heath, I. D. Suss, and S. M. Hines.

Oil Collection

Dr. A. S. Wheeler, acting head of the chemistry department, has received a collection of petroleum products for the organic chemistry museum.

The collection was secured with the aid of T. U. Johnson, member of the class in organic chemistry, from the Kendall Refining Company of Bradford, Pennsylvania.

There are 40 bottles in the collection. They include samples of various types of gasoline, kerosene, light and heavy machine oils, fuel oil, crude oil, vaseline and paraffin waxes.

Dr. Wheeler stated that there is also a particularly fine piece of oil charcoal.

With indications that the largest crowd ever to attend a football game in Kenan stadium will be on hand, Carolina and Duke are both set and on edge for the classic battle this afternoon. The opening whistle is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

The Tar Heels took a decided underdog position last night when Coach Carl Snavely announced that Charlie Shaffer, brilliant runner and punter, would definitely be kept out of the game. Shaffer's knee injury is in such a condition that a bad knock might disable him for several years.

Title to be Decided

Both teams finished a hard week of preparations yesterday afternoon with snappy drills. Besides being the most important game on each team's schedule, the contest will decide the championship of the Big Five and have an important bearing on the Southern Conference title race.

Coach Snavely chartered a special bus last night and took his squad away from Chapel Hill in order that it might rest without being bothered by the giant pep meeting and enthusiasm of the Carolina students.

With Shaffer out of the game, it is expected that Don Jackson, halfback, will play the most important role for the Tar Heels. Jackson will have to do all the punting and most of the passing besides doing his share in carrying the ball.

Parker is Feared

"Corky" Cornelius is supposedly the spearhead in Duke's attack with his sidewheeling, broken-field running, but Carolina fears Ace Parker, running mate for Cornelius, more. Parker has been kicking for an average between 40 and 45 yards and it is expected that his high boots will push the Tar Heels back

TAR BABIES RUN WILD TO DEFEAT VIRGINIANS, 33-0

Graves Tallies Twice; Burnette, Oliver, Thomas, and Walborn Also Score.

BERSHAK STARS IN LINE

A large crowd of 2,500 fans at Emerson field yesterday afternoon watched the powerful Tar Baby eleven as it swept a scrappy Virginia frosh aggregation mercilessly before it in winning an impressive victory by the one-sided score of 33-0.

George Graves was the star of the day due to his great open field running which accounted for one score and led to two others. He was followed closely by Ed Oliver who scored once on a forward and amassed the amazing average gain of five yards every time he carried the ball.

Polinski, a speedy ball toter, sprinted to long gains around the ends and established his reputation of being the fastest man on the squad. Burnette, Bricklemyer, Walborn, and Thomas played their usual fine game on the offense as well as the defense.

Bershak and Dixon Lead

Andy Bershak added another fine performance to his excellent record, making nearly half of the tackles and getting into every play. That dynamic little pepperpot, Paul Dixon, played heads-up ball at his new center position. His fine defensive tactics and his constant line of chatter stamped him as a coming leader.

Both teams were rather off on their pass offense and only two passes were completed, both by

Wrestling Tourney Entrants to Weigh In

The weighing in for all entrants in the intramural wrestling tournament will be held next Tuesday afternoon between the hours 4-6 o'clock, announced Herman Schnell yesterday. The annual "rasslin en masse" will take place Wednesday and Thursday of next week and all indications lead to quite a large number of competitors.

Names of all entrants must be handed to the manager previous to the weighing in. Any interested who have not signed up to date may do so by getting in touch with either of the managers, Chichester or Arrington, over the week-end at either 206 Old West or the Chi Psi house.

CAN THEY STOP THE DEVILS?

The above group is the array of stars which Coach Snavely will put on the field this afternoon to "carry on for dear old Carolina." Battling Wallace Wade's powerful Duke eleven in this season's "battle of the south," the Tar Heels will be up against the strongest opposition they have met this year.

CROSS COUNTRY CLUB TO RUN FAST DUKESTERS THERE

Race This Morning at 11 O'clock In "Natural"; Both Aggregations Are Strong.

YEARLINGS ALSO TO MEET

The two strongest cross country squads in Dixie meet on the Duke five-mile grind this morning at 11 o'clock when the undefeated harrier outfits from Duke and North Carolina lineup their forces.

The race will be a real "natural," the outcome being quite as uncertain as the Tar Heel-Blue Devil gridiron scrap. Each team is well-balanced and possesses a brilliant record which each will be fighting to uphold.

Freshman teams of the two schools will also run as a preliminary to the varsity contest.

Fight for First

There will not only be a fight for low score as a team but also a battle for the individual first place. Bob Bird will lead the Dukesters and is backed by such fine hill and dalers as Morse, Heritage, Farris, and George.

Opposing these men in their claim for the first honors are foremost, Ed McRae and Ed Waldrop from the Tar Heel ranks. Both Ranson runners are excellent harriers, well-experienced under the best fire and capable of outrunning anything the Devils may put on the course.

FOOTBALL FACTS AND GUESSES

By Bill Anderson

Thirty-seven years ago North Carolina was so worked up over the "Great Commoner," William Jennings Bryan, and his "free silver" presidential platform, that when Carolina and Duke (then Trinity College) met for the first time, only a handful of fans and students even knew about it . . . politics was too great a factor in the life of Tar Heels.

But today . . . it's another story. The Carolina-Duke game today headlines all athletic activity in Dixie, and for that matter, thousands of other interested fans, throughout the nation, will be waiting for the result of the contest.

Today Carolina will have five seniors who will be thirsting for a Carolina victory over the Methodists that has been denied them for the past four years. But these five Carolina stalwarts are not to be denied. Ask Captain George Barclay and Ed Kahn, "the ladies from hell"; or "Big Jim" Tatum, behemoth tackle; or for still further corroboration question Charlie Shaffer and Ed Martin, stellar backfield threats.

But that's merely the Carolina angle of the problem. . . .

DELT PRESIDENT TO TALK TONIGHT

Duke and Carolina Delta Tau Delta Will Hear Harold B. Tharp, National Head.

With Harold B. Tharp, national president of Delta Tau Delta, for their principal speaker, the Delts of Duke and Carolina will banquet tonight in Graham Memorial at 6 o'clock.

This will mark the fifth annual meeting of the brothers and pledges from the two state universities. Tonight's banquet is expected to draw from 150 to 200 persons, with the Carolina Delts as hosts.

House to Speak

Included on the program will be speeches by V. J. Lee, president of the Carolina chapter; President Williams of the Duke chapter; Dean R. B. House of the University; and Harold B. Tharp, national president of Delta Tau Delta. Professor Harold D. Meyer of the University sociology department will act as toastmaster for the occasion.

Harold B. Tharp, graduate of Butler University, was made president of Delta Tau Delta at the Chicago Karnea last year. His visit to the University is part of an inspection tour of the various southern Delta Tau Delta chapters. After his two-day stay here he will visit the Duke chapter.

Besides the scheduled speeches at tonight's banquet, special stunts and a Delt song program are being planned for the brothers, alumni and pledges.

more than one time.

Jackson has been able to get off some long kicks but not consistently. However, this week the Carolina back has shown some improvement and may be able to match Parker's distance, in which case the Tar Heels will have a much better chance of coming out ahead.

In addition to doing the kicking, Parker has been a threat all season with his long passes and running. Carolina will also need to watch Jack Alexander, fullback, who gained almost at will against Wake Forest and is a fine runner in a broken field.

Snyder an Advantage

Carolina's only sure advantage in the backfield is Hump Snyder, blocking back. Snyder has been both blocking and backing up the line perfectly and now looms as a threat in pass receiving.

Harry Montgomery, who has been doing an excellent signal-calling job during the last two games, and Jim Hutchins, sophomore line plunging expert, make up the rest of Carolina's backfield.

Captain George Barclay, All-American candidate at guard, will probably be the most watched player on the field. His work today in backing up the line and running interference will likely decide his chances of landing on the mythical eleven.

Tar Heel Seniors

Besides Barclay, two other linesmen on the Tar Heel club will be performing for the last time in Kenan stadium and against Duke, Jim Tatum, big tackle, and Eddie Kahn, guard.

Coach Snavely in summing up Carolina's chances for a victory slated that without a doubt Duke had the stronger outfit, showing a decided advantage in punting, punt returning, and passing. He said Carolina might possibly make more yardage on the ground, but that only an inspired bunch of Tar Heels playing their best game of the year will beat the Blue Devil machine.

Second Finjan Issue Will Be On Time "Following Policy"

According to Business Manager Bernard Soloman, "the Finjan, following its regular policy, is out on time." This policy has apparently been instituted with the second issue, since the first was several weeks late.

The format adopted with this issue is relatively permanent. Also the front plate, with different drawings, is here to stay.

Editor Gaskins wishes to call the attention of Finjan readers to the simplicity of style which characterizes this issue. Pete Ivey was heard to remark, at this point, "How could Pat Gaskins do anything that wasn't simple?"

Duke is just as determined to keep the Friendship Trophy which they have carted off to their trophy room during the last four seasons. One would think that the trophy had a special place over there, for the Methodists won't relinquish it any more readily than they will give up Bishop Cannon . . . and for no more reason.

And today will be the first meeting of a Snavely-coached eleven with that of Wallace Wade's warriors.

This column believes firmly that the decision of today's game will rest in the lap of the Fates on High Olympus.

And here are the win pickings for the contests throughout the nation: Dixie—Georgia over N. C. State; Davidson over V. M. I.; Tulane over Kentucky; L. S. U. over Mississippi; Tennessee over Vandy; and Richmond University over Wake Forest.

East—Dartmouth over Cornell; Holy Cross over Brown; Colgate over Syracuse; Princeton over Yale; Pitt over Navy; Fordham over Purdue; and Duquesne over Carnegie Tech.

Mid-West—Illinois over Wisconsin; Ohio State over Michigan; Notre Dame over Northwestern; Minnesota over Chicago; Nebraska over Kansas; and Oklahoma over Kansas State.

South-west—Southern Methodist over Arkansas; and Texas Christian over Texas University.

Pacific—Southern California over Oregon.

Tar Babies Run Wild Over Virginia, 33-0

Carolina. The fact that the Tar Babies led 16-2 in first downs showed not only that they had power on the offense but also that their defense is something that cannot be so easily discounted.

The Babies proved their potential strength early in the first quarter as they repeatedly marched to their opponent's goal line only to lose possession of the pigskin on fumbles.

Babies Score

The Tar Babies struck a decisive blow near the end of the first quarter when Bershak, who had been bothering the punter all during the first part of the game, broke through the offensive line, blocked the kick and fell on the ball on Virginia's 13-yard line. Pete Hoffer plunged to the 3-yard marker, and Burnette carried it over for the first touchdown of the afternoon. Burnette failed to convert the extra point and the score was Carolina 6, Virginia 0.

Thomas ran the kick-off back 30 yards to his own 35-yard line. Ditt picked up five yards off tackle and Oliver made six on the same type of play, but the Chapel Hillians were finally forced to punt, for the first time.

"Red" Meroney, speedy Carolina end, came down fast under the ball, and pounced on it when it slipped through the hands of King, Virginia safety man. Carolina started to move again but was suddenly halted when a pass from Graves was intercepted on Virginia's 10-yard stripe by Perry. McGrath was forced to punt to Oliver who stopped on the Virginia 35-yard marker after advancing the ball 10 yards. On successive plays, Oliver made seven yards around end, and Thomas slid off guard for three more and a first down.

Ditt caught the defense napping on the next play, when he faded back and threw a long 20-yard pass to Oliver who fell over the goal line with three members of the opposition clutching desparately at his flailing legs. Oliver's try for the extra point was unsuccessful and the Babies now led 12-0.

George Graves, star halfback, got loose when he caught a punt at midfield, and zig-zagged through a broken field for the most spectacular touchdown of the day. Walborn converted the point. At this point the third eleven entered the game, and under the inspired leadership of Bill Coughnenour kept the Virginians on the go till the end of the half.

A few minutes after the second half had got under way, Thomas sprinted 40 yards for another touchdown, on a tricky spinner which had the opposition as well as the spectators bewildered as to which man had the ball. Walborn again scored the extra point on a placement to put Carolina ahead by the lopsided score of 26-0.

The last score of the day came on a sustained drive with Burnette, Oliver, and Polinski leading the way to the 4-yard line where Graves plunged over for the final touchdown. Burnette completed the scoring for the day when he drop-kicked the extra point, running the score up to 33-0.

'Y' HEARS TALKS ON DISARMAMENT TOMORROW NIGHT

Frazer to Speak to Junior-Senior Cabinet; Kind to Lead Sophomore Discussion.

FROSH TO CONSIDER HONOR

K. C. Frazer, professor of government at the University, will be the principal speaker tomorrow night at the meeting of the junior-senior Y.M.C.A. cabinets at 7:15 o'clock in the "Y" building.

Professor Frazer will talk on "Disarmament," continuing the Y.M.C.A. program of war and peace discussions.

Frazer has visited many of the armament conferences in Geneva, Switzerland, and in his lecture tomorrow night he will review several of the disarmament meetings. He is adviser to the Foreign Policy League and was instrumental in founding it.

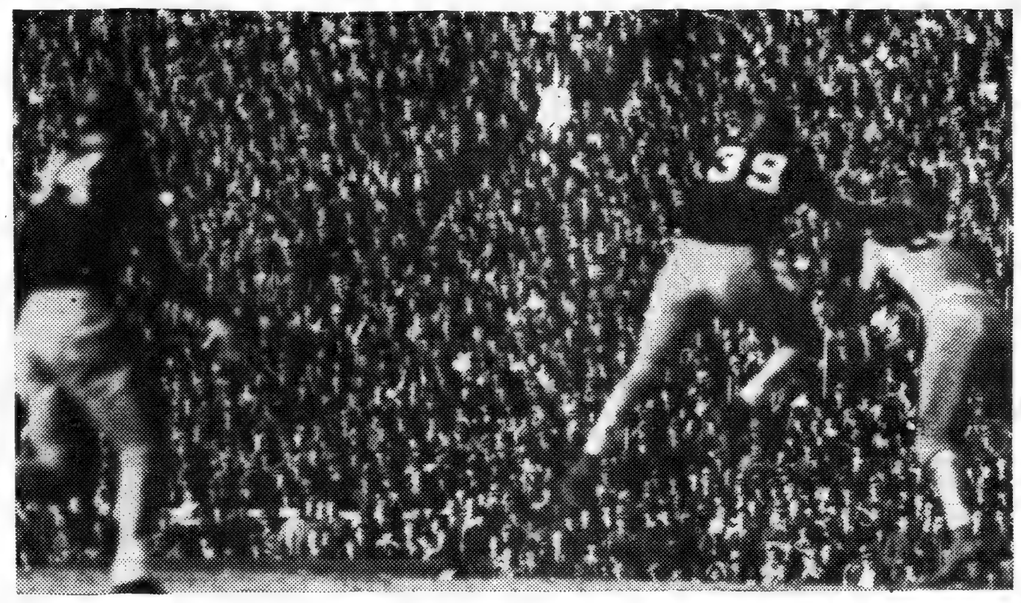
Kind to Talk

The sophomore cabinet will discuss some phase of disarmament at its meeting tomorrow night. Phil Kind, president of the sophomore cabinet, will conduct the discussion.

J. D. Winslow, president of the University Y.M.C.A., announced yesterday that the cabinets would make final arrangements for the Negro football game to be played here Saturday. The plans for the Thanksgiving student program, the visit of the Greensboro Sedalia Singers, and the plans for the WDNC radio broadcast will be discussed.

Freshman Group

The freshman council will meet tomorrow night in Gerrard hall at 7:15 o'clock to study the question of the honor system. A report of the results of the Red Cross drive that the freshmen conducted last week will be presented by Lee Greer, who was in charge of the campaign for the Y.M.C.A.



The discussions tomorrow night on the war and peace questions will be a continuation of the Y.M.C.A. fall quarter program. Similar discussions are scheduled for the remainder of of the quarter, ending with a joint meeting of all the cabinets December 10.

Armed Intervention

George G. Allen, Jr., of Kannapolis is scheduled to address the sophomore cabinet next Monday night. He will speak on the question, "Should the United States Give Up Her Policy of Armed Intervention." An outside speaker to lead the junior-senior cabinet meeting will be securd by the program authorities but as yet no announcement has been made as to who shall lead the program.

The sophomores on December 3 will hear Fred Henry Weaver of Aberdeen, who has spent much of the fall quarter preparing for a discussion on "International Cooperation." He will present the relations of the United States to the League of Nations, attempting to show America's present attitude toward the league.

TOUCHDOWN-MAKER IN ACTION

Dick Buck (87) who scored the lone marker in yesterday's Duke-Carolina classic, is shown here as he made a spectacular catch of a 20-yard pass from Don Jackson during the second quarter. Buck left the ground in a dive to take the pass, landing on ground with the ball safe in his arms. Corky Cornelius (39) is the Duke high jumper who failed to knock the pass down, while Ace Parker (34) is the other Blue Devil in the picture.

SCOUT OFFICIALS END CONFERENCE

Executives Make Plans For Another Seminar to be Held In February.

The fall 1934 Boy Scout executive seminar of region six came to a close yesterday, after the 11 executives had made plans for another seminar to be held February 1935 and worked out further details of the Boy Scout camporee and patrol leaders' training course to be held here in April in conjunction with the 1935 Dogwood Festival.

Over 1000 scouts are expected to take part in the Dogwood Festival. They will be divided into a mass camp and a camporee, where the scouts will take part in a camping contest.

Plyler Speaks

Dr. E. K. Plyler of the physics department, told the scout executives of "Some New Experiments in Physics" in one of the sessions yesterday morning. The program of the seminar officially ended with the Duke-Carolina game.

Attending the conference were chief executives from the different North Carolina Boy Scout councils and the rgional head, Kenneth Bentz of Atlanta, Ga. The scout seminar is held here every fall, sponsored by the University and the Boy Scouts of America.

German Club Closes Fall Dance Program

A brilliant set of German Club dances came to a close here last night with an unusually large crowd attending the series. Isham Jones and his celebrated orchestra furnished the music.

The annual fall series opened with a tea dance Friday afternoon and was followed by the sophomore ball Friday night. Another tea dance was given yesterday afternoon after the Carolina-Duke football game, and the dance last night ended the series.

VINSON WINS PRIZE

The prize of $5 offered by the Durham Men's Shop for the best advertisement submitted by students of marketing in the school of commerce has been won by W. G. Vinson, it was announced yesterday.

Second prize was won by S. H. Heist, who will receive his award in merchandise.

CO-EDS TO HOLD FIRST PLAY DAY

Athletes From Duke, Woman's College, Meredith, and Peace To Participate Here.

A "Play Day," with a program consisting of various sports, will be instituted here Friday with the University co-eds acting as hostesses to women of Duke University, Women's College of the University of North Carolina, Meredith College, and Peace Institute.

The games, including volley ball, captain ball, hat-pin ball, bat ball, tennis, archery, hockey, and tug-o'-war, will not be played to decide the supremacy of any one school as teams will be chosen from all the entrants. According to Mrs. J. G. Beard, director of women's athletics, the "Play Day" will be a gathering of women of North Carolina colleges primarily for the enjoyment of sport.

Chapel Hill Debut

The Play Day idea was begun in 1923 by the Women's Division of National Amateur Athletic Federation. Since that time athletic games have been instituted in nearly every women's college in the country. These meetings of schools are "for the purpose of playing with instead of against each other." This will be the first event of its kind in Chapel Hill.

Volley, captain, hat-pin, and bat ball will open the series of contests at 2:30 o'clock on Emerson field. Two teams composed of six players from each school will take part in these games.

LIBRARY OBTAINS MEDEIVAL BOOKS

Hunter Collection, Published in 15th Century, Purchased By University Friends.

The University library has acquired the entire Hunter collection of rare books and manuscripts, R. B. Downs, librarian announced yesterday.

This valuable library includes 58 books printed in the 15th century, within a few years after the invention of movable type, and over 800 manuscripts on parchment dating back to the ninth century.

There are also a number of manuscript books of the medeival period.

Collection Completed

A large part of the collection was bought by the University in 1929, but some of the rarer and more valuable pieces were retained by the collector.

The collection was made by the late Dr. A. B. Hunter of Raleigh who spent several years in Europe buying early examples of printing and writing.

The new material is to be added to the Hanes Foundation for the study of the origin and development of the book.

The purchase of the Hunter collection was made possible through the contributions of the following alumni and friends of the University: John Sprunt Hill, Laurence Sprunt, Burton Craige, Mrs. Julius Cone, J. E. Millis, K. P. Lewis, Agnew H. Bahnson, J. M. Moorehead, and J. E. Latham.

WILKERSON OVERRULES INSULL SURPRISE MOTIONS

Chicago, Nov. 17.— (UP) — Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today overruled the surprise motions for a directed verdict acquittal presented by the counsel for Samuel Insull and five of his sixteen co-defendants in the $143,000,000 mail fraud trial.

The court adjourned with 12 of the defendants waiting to present similar motions Monday.

Playmakers To Start 32nd Tour Tomorrow

Fifteen Members to Visit Seven North Carolina Towns, Virginia, and Maryland.

Fifteen members of the Carolina Playmakers will leave town tomorrow morning on the 32nd tour of the dramatic organization.

The itinerary as announced yesterday will include seven North Carolina towns, Frederick, Md., and Clifton Forge, Va. The ten-day trip will cover approximately 1,400 miles.

Bill of Plays

The bill of plays for the tour includes two plays by Paul Green, the Carolina Playmakers' foremost playwright, "Fixin's" and "Quare Medicine," and Wilkeson O'Connell's "The Loyal Venture."

Harry Davis, business manager of the Playmakers, arranged the tour and will direct "The Loyal Venture." Green's two plays are under the direction of Samuel Selden, associate director of the Playmakers. Selden and Alton Williams will be in charge of the Playmakers projects while KING HUEY LONG YELLS FOR L.S.U.

Dictators Orders Police to Shove Back Common Herd of His "Province of Mississippi."

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 17 — (UP)—"King" Huey Long I, emperor of Louisiana, turned rah-rah today and led the Louisiana State University cheering section in a few yells as his team defeated Mississippi.

Surrounded by four bodyguards leading a magnificent L.S.U. band and a section of the college rooters, "His Majesty" descended upon the capitol of "his Province of Mississippi."

Stops Traffic

Within an hour Huey had paralyzed traffic at the most important intersections. After serenading the offices of Senator-elect Theodore Bilbo, he hurried to the headquarters of the University of Mississippi football team. Rebuking a newspaperman for having a whiskey odor on his breath, the Bayou State's dictator dragged Governor Mike Connor out of the state mansion in order that he might join the parade.

Long gave the common herd a taste of Louisiana methods by ordering his eight motorcycle policemen to shove the crowd back for the royal procession.

RECORD-BREAKING CROWD SEES GAME

Tar Heels Clinch 1934 Big Five Championship And Win Friendship Trophy.

SCORE IN LAST QUARTER

Coach Snavely's inspired Tar Heels rose to their greatest heights in Kenan stadium yesterday afternoon when they outplayed and outscored a mighty Duke machine, 7-0, in one of the finest and hardest-fought grid battles ever staged anywhere.

A record-breaking crowd of something over 30,000 packed every bit of available space within looking distance of the ball game and not a person, whether Carolina or Blue Devil rooter, left the scene of play without being satisfied that he had witnessed a super-natural demonstration.

Take Championship

In winning, the Tar Heels clinched the Big Five championship of 1934, and for the first time in its history Carolina gained possession of the coveted Friendship trophy.

The combination of Dick Buck, sensational sophomore pass-receiving end, and Don Jackson, triple-threat halfback, produced the lone touchdown, during the latter part of the third and the first part of the fourth quarters, on three feature plays.

Jackson Starts Fireworks

Jackson started the quick, surprising scoring drive when, playing in the safety position, he raced back to take Ace Parker's 60-yard punt on the Carolina 20. Jackson side-stepped his way 20 yards with the kick to the 40-yard line before being tackled.

On the next play Jackson shot a bullet pass straight down the field to Buck who was standing on the Duke 40, his back to the goal line. With excellent interference from his mates, Buck then stepped off the prettiest run of the afternoon, slipping away from just about every Duke player on the field and only being downed by Earle Wentz on the 9-yard line because he was too exhausted to continue farther.

Buck Scores

Hutchins tried to buck center but failed as the third period ended. Openeing the last quarter, Jackson tried to skirt right end but was thrown on the 14 by Wentz. Then Jackson shot

PARAGRAPHICS

The attempt to compose a "Chapel Hill unit" battle song is as hopeless as putting the "good old Federal Emergency Relief" to "Yankee Doodle."

"Annual Germans Continue Today With Tea Dance." Wouldn't Hitler burn up if he saw that!

Now that the Duke game is safely over, we can continue our anti-war movement.

Hats Off, Blue Devils!

Carolina is jubilant! And no wonder. Coach Carl Snavely's great football team showed the world that it is the best grid organization in the state, taking a highly-vaunted fighting Duke eleven in its stride.

Not only did yesterday's great victory mark the team as being one of the greatest in all Carolina history, but it firmly established the Duke-Carolina relations as they should exist. As the afternoon wore on and Carolina was headed for victory, there was no evidence on either side of any hard feelings, such as have marked the interschool relations of the two schools in the past.

The Friendship Trophy is Carolina's for a year to come. It has taken a more significant meaning for its transfer from Durham to Chapel Hill was enacted on a bed of roses, with the "friendship" emphasized rather than the trophy signifying gridiron supremacy.

And as we realize that Duke-Carolina relations are now established on a firm basis of friendship, we acknowledge our Durham rivals as being the leaders in the drive this fall that terminated in this spirit. It was Duke's idea that speakers be presented from the rival schools before the assemblies of the other institution, and it was Duke's invitation that led to Carolina campus leaders addressing Duke's pre-game spirit rally. The Duke-Carolina tradition has at last become an institution which must be cherished by the students of both schools alike.

Congratulations, Blue Devils!

Hail To Thee Blythe Spirit

Worries of being under-appropriated disappear, scholastic burdens vanish, and campus politics fade into the dim background, as fall dances swing upon the campus in a merry cloudburst.

Visitors, male and female, from north, south, east and west, thronged to the campus Thursday and Friday and are with us yet, tapering off a week-end of fun, frolic, and friendship by sleeping lusciously this morning. A great institution, college dance week-ends.

When we consider that the name of this University is carried back on happy (though somewhat droopy) tongues, we realize that the dance spreads our fair name to as many homes as our liberal education and our athletic record. It is a different spirit, of course, but a hard-working student body which can play with as much enthusiasm as it can work, is a credit to any institution. Sing out, thy Muses, and crown our toes with bells even as thou adorn our brow with the laurel wreath.

Watch The Cogs

Under the auspices of the National Institution of Public Affairs, a plan has been set forth providing that colleges and universities will send selected groups of students, under the supervision of faculty members, to Washington for a short period to study the Federal Government.

The plan is similar to the one in which the institution co-operated with Yale University in providing for Yale students to visit the national capitol to study the various phases of national administration in the process of operation. The University of North Carolina has been approached on the possibility of sending delegates to do the same thing, and it would seem highly advisable that we investigate thoroughly the chances of our doing so.

The visit would last a week or more (in other universities it would be fitted to the reading periods). Students would do preliminary study so that the fullest measure of educational benefit could be obtained from the government observation. Then students would be asked to write on some phase of administrative process after returning to school.

If our administration here has no fund, it should, with the students' help, inaugurate the plan here on a co-operative basis with students and selected faculty men pooling together for the Washington sojourn.

We have constantly pointed out that our youth are too much in the dark when national government is concerned, and need training in the new interpretative features of modern federal affairs. The only logical method is actual study from observation of the new administration in action. We must train tomorrow's leaders in modern practical interpretations. The plan is to be much desired for this campus' action.

Bridge The Gap

There is in America today a national cleavage of great importance developing along brand new lines. Hitherto political divisions have been upon rather independent foundations. Sam Swingapick could vote for the same ticket as Will Whitecollar without compunction; the farmers were not afraid of being overwhelmed by the Wall Streeters; but today things are changed. The national fissure is one of an economic and social nature. Differences are being more sharply drawn along class and economic lines.

A recent evidence of this development is the formation of the American Liberty League by conservative leaders troubled by the apparent trend of events. The Left Wing is already filled with active and vigorous leaders, and the amalgamation of the prominent Right Wingers is a portentous indication of the width of our national differences.

To allow such a gap to widen unheeded and unobstructed is to lay ourselves open to national disaster. Differences of opinion should never be allowed to hinder national progress. To use more well-known and better chosen words—"A house divided against itself cannot stand."

There is one positive and urgent remedy for such a situation—mutual, friendly, and unselfish understanding. The laboring class cannot be blamed for organizing itself to protect its interests any more than the employing class can be disparaged for doing the same thing. Both are naturally interested in promoting their own welfare. But how much better it would be if both classes understood the actions of each other, and on such a basis could meet in friendly discussion to solve their common problems. How much more valuable to the entire country would be the products of such conferences than the hopelessly bitter haranguings with which we are now pelted.

If east could meet west on sympathetic grounds, and realize that all westerners are not cowboys, that all New Englanders do not eat apple pie for breakfast, that both have definite and sound reasons for their convictions, how much more peaceful would this nation be.

The time has come for animosities to be quieted, and for co-operation to take their place. There is no reason to give up our own convictions for the sake of others which are probably not as suitable, but there is obvious reason to cultivate a more accurate and tolerant understanding of the opinions of others and their reasons for thinking as they do.

Poop To Nuts

Huey Long is now dictator. This news does not deserve much space; he has been dictator for years, anyway.

What strikes us and everybody else as being mighty, mighty cute is the Kingfish's statement that his grasping of the reins is "the greatest triumph for human uplift and sober government this country has ever witnessed."

When Huey Long is anybody's triumph and when his regime is a sober government, we'll promise, on a wager, to swim up the Atlantic and drown ourself in the North Sea.

BIG DAY TODAY

We've long felt the need for a drinking song for Carolina, and today being one of the three big festive occasions of the year, we have managed to step into the breach with a beer song. We have it from Billy Weaver, who got in from Larry Schmuckler, a freshman from Hurleyville, N. Y., who says that the occasion of its composition doesn't fit the print. It's supposed to swing along to the Notre Dame song's tune, but, under the best (?) of conditions, it's our bet that it will go nicely to anything from "The Continental" to "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Here it is:

Let's have a beer for old Caroline
Let's have a cheer for old Caroline
Send some Senior out for gin—
Don't let a sober freshman in.
We stagger 'round but we never fall.
We sober up on wood alcohol.
So while we're here
Let's have a beer
For the glory of U. N. C.

DIRECTION

We got the new Chapel Hill telephone directory the other day, and looked it over carefully. Under the part labeled "Instructions for Using the Automatic Telephone" we found the following: "Consult new directory—all old numbers have been changed. First, remove receiver from hook, being careful not to 'jiggle' the hook while doing so. . . . Place receiver to the ear and listen for dial tone. . . . The dial tone is a humming sound, indication that the equipment is ready to receive your call, like operator saying 'number please.' (We have generally found that when the operator says 'number-please' to us that she means she is ready to receive a call—not necessarily ours, but any number she happens to think of.) Second, if the line is clear, and the number to be called, for example, is '3951,' place tip of the index finger of the right hand in the opening in the dial over the figure 3 and turn the dial around clockwise until the finger strikes the finger stop, and let it go . . . Third, place the same finger in the opening over the finger 9 . . . Fourth, perform the same operation with figures 5 and 1; then place the receiver to the ear and listen." We did exactly as we were told, and it turned out that "3951" is the number of the Student Loan Office, of which J. A. Williams is in charge. We think the 'phone company ought to be commended for the moral tone and highly righteous direction in which it sends its happy users.

CULTURE IN THE SOUTH

By actual count there were seventeen members of the faculty in Gerrard hall Tuesday night for James Stephens' lecture on the Irish Renaissance. In addition to the lecture there was the fun of watching Dr. Archibald Henderson jump whenever Shaw was mentioned. Dr. A. P. Hudson beamed several times at the mention of Wordsworth. One worthy pedagogue, whose specialty was apparently not touched on, went to sleep.

DRINK DEEP OR NOT AT ALL

It seems that the two bronze fountains on the main floor of the library—the gift of the Grail in 1931—have not worked this year. Pretty desperate after a number of unslaked efforts to get water therefrom, somebody wrenched the cap off one of the fountains. Then the water came gushing out, nearly two months' pent-up energy dousing everybody all over the place. There didn't seem to be any way to hold it in, and for awhile nobody could figure out exactly how to shut off the pipe. They finally got it fixed, though, and all but the thirsty people were satisfied. Now both fountains work so everybody ought to be happy.

Ed McRae Captures First As Harriers Break Duke's Three Year Win Streak

Waldrop, Curlee, Conte, Gammon Compose Scoring Team.

Durham, Nov. 17.—The University of North Carolina varsity cross country team continued its unbeaten streak here this morning as it humbled the strong Duke University harriers by a 25-36 score.

After trailing Captain Heritage and Morse of Duke by about fifty yards at the halfway mark, Ed McRae, 1934 Carolina track captain and leading performer of the current harrier season, stepped out to overtake the pair and break the tape more than 15 yards in the van. His time of 28 minutes, 10.7 seconds was one of the fastest ever for the Duke course.

Finishing in close succession were Heritage and Morse, who crossed the line approximately 75-yards ahead of Ed Waldrop and acting-captain Haywood Curlee, both of Carolina. George, of the Blue Devils, took sixth place, and Carolina's first five was completed as Louis Conte and Graham Gammon finished in order.

The summary:

1. McRae (C), 2. Heritage (D), 3. Morse (D), 4. Waldrop (C), 5. Curlee (C), 6. George (D), 7. Conte (C), 8. Gammon (C), 9. Aderholt (C), 10. Gardiner (C), 11. Haywood (C), 12. Dator (D), 13. Everhart (D), 14. Farris (D).

FROSH HARRIERS TOP DUKE 21-42

Joe Rivers Leads Babies in Fine Run; Rowley, Bronitsky Also Star.

Durham, Nov. 17. — Led by Joe Rivers the Carolina freshman cross country team scored its second triumph in as many starts as it defeated the Duke Imps, 21-42, over the two and one-half mile course here this morning.

Rivers, one of Carolina's best bids for future greatness in the hill and dale sport, again led the pack in the fine time of 14 minutes, 6.5 seconds. He finished well over 75-yards ahead of Duke's Koop, who was just able to hold out against the fine finishing spurt of Rowley, of Carolina, for the runner-up post.

Bronitsky crossed the line in fourth position for the Tar Babies, with Dubois of Duke sandwiched in between a four-way tie of Anderson, Davison, Garland, and Gove, all of Carolina, for sixth place.

The summary:

1. Rivers (C), 2. Koop (D), 3. Rowley (C), 4. Bronitsky (C), 5. Dubois (D), 6. Tie—Anderson (C), Davison (C), Garland (C), Gove (C), 10. Pearson (D), 11. D'Ascensio (C), 12. Quick (D), 13. Gould (D), 14. Sacmar (D), 15. Giles (D).

Play By Play Of The Game

Captains Barclay of Carolina and J. Dunlap of Duke meet on the center of the field and flip for choice. Every seat in the stadium is taken and thousands are standing all the way around the field. Something over 30,000 already here. Captain Barclay won the toss and Carolina will kickoff to Duke.

FIRST QUARTER

Jackson is holding while Tatum is kicking-off. The kick goes to the 11 and Wentz steps out on the 11. Parker punts back to Carolina 40 and Jackson tackled on Carolina's 36. Montgomery hit guard for four yards as Durner tackles. Hutchins hits the center for a yard but Duke offsides and Carolina makes five to 45. Hutchins made three yards through center for a first down on Carolina's 48. Montgomery went around left end for 2 yards. Hutchins crashes through tackle for 8 yards and another first down on Duke's 42. Hutchins off tackle for 5 yards, Ward making tackle. Carolina fumbled and Duke recovered but offsides so Duke penalized 5 yards to Duke's 32. Both teams offsides. Hutchins again cracks tackle for 3 yards through a great hole to Duke 29, another first. Hutchins off tackle again for 6 yards, interference is marvelous. Jackson stopped at line of scrimmage by Wentz. Jackson passed to Snyder for a half yard and it is fourth and five to go. Jackson passed to Buck and it was knocked down by Parker and ball goes over on Duke's 22. Parker kicked out of bounds on Carolina's 39. Montgomery on a reverse around left end for 11 yards, a first down. Hutchins hits same right tackle for five yards to Duke's 44. Time out for Duke—Powell goes in for Caldwell. Jackson lost a yard at center as J. Dunlap comes in fast. Montgomery skirts left end for 6 yards but fumbles in the air to Alexander who starts but Buck gets him on Duke's 41. TAR HEEL BACKS IN SPECIALTY ACTS

Top photo shows Don Jackson, Carolina's star triple-threat back, just as he lets loose a long pass during yesterday's fray. It was Jackson's passes to Dick Buck that gained 60 yards and the winning touchdown. Other white-jerseyed Tar Heels in the photo who are pulling out to give the receiver interference are, left to right, Eddie Kahn, Jim Tatum, Babe Daniel, and Buck McCarn.

Carolina Outfit Jubilant Over Win; Coach Snavely Praises Both Clubs

Coach Wallace Wade of Duke Congratulates Tar Heels on Victory; All Players Agree That It Was One of the Cleanest Ever Staged; Captain Barclay Says It Was Greatest Game.

By JAMES MORRIS

Without a doubt it was the happiest dressing room in the country down at Kenan Stadium yesterday after the Duke-Carolina game. The Tar Heel football team was attempting to change from the battle uniforms to more civilian clothes but was not doing a very good job of it. The gridsters could hardly realize Duke had been met and beaten.

For the first time since this correspondent has known Coach Carl Snavely, the Carolina mentor was ready to talk. In fact he was anxious to talk. He was above all proud of his players; he didn't have to say so, it was written all over his face.

Clean Game

In commenting on the battle Coach Snavely said, "Both teams fought hard, clean games and an inspired Carolina eleven just came through, that was all. Duke is a great team, no doubt about that, in fact it was a much better club against us than Tennessee. Tennessee never hit like those boys or gained as much ground through the center of our line. It was a marvelous victory."

Captain George Barclay then came in the field house, carrying the game's football and friendship trophy under one arm and guiding Coach Wallace Wade, famous mentor of the defeated Blue Devils, with the other arm.

Coach Wade, mighty sport that he is, congratulated the Carolina eleven on its victory saying it was the finest team he had met this season. He shook hands with several of the players before making his exit.

Captain Barclay was asked to say something. "It was the best game that has ever been played anywhere and I'm really happy. Those Duke boys hit plenty hard but are a fine, clean bunch."

Dick Buck, who made the winning touchdown with his pass snagging exhibition, was cornered and asked how he felt. "I don't know, just grand all over. It was wonderful." When asked about his amazing run after catching the pass that advanced the ball to the 9-yard line, Buck said, "Well I'm stiff far from being a backfield man."

Hump Snyder, brilliant blocking back and line backer-up was more ready to talk than any of the happy Tar Heels. Snyder said, "it was a hell-of-ah great game, as clean and hard-fought as I've ever been in. I think we both have great clubs and the hardest-fighting team won. Everything is okay now, we've beat Duke."

another pass to the steady Buck, who took the ball on the one and stepped over the zero line.

In spite of being forced to kick from the 7-yard line because his team drew a penalty for too much time in the huddle, Babe Daniel, Tar Heel center, made good on the extra point from placement giving Carolina the 7-0 margin.

Carolina's mighty, hard-charging line led an alert, heads-up backfield which outplayed the Blue Devils throughout the contest. The Tar Heels led in first downs, yards gained from scrimmage yards gained through passing, and in punt returning.

Parker Is Hot

It was booming punts of Ace Parker, Duke's sophomore halfback flash, which almost made the battle even. With Jim Hutchins, Carolina's fullback, heading the way with his consistent line smashing, the winners started several drives which looked as if they might end in touchdowns.

However, each time the Blue Devil forward would brace and then Parker would boot the ball He put Carolina in its worse hole back far into Carolina territory early in the game when his kick from midfield was downed on the 2-yard line.

Struggle For Renown Marks Life Of Dalies Frantz, Youthful Pianist

Artist to Appear Here January 23 Under Sponsorship of Phi Mu Alpha.

Dalies Frantz, brilliant young American pianist with an amazing record of success to his credit, will be heard here in concert January 23, in Memorial hall, under the auspices of the local chapter of Phi Mu Alpha, national music fraternity.

The story of his young life is one of endeavor. He met obstacles only to overcome them. Born in Denver, Colorado, the son of a business man, it was from his mother, a fine lieder singer, that he inherited his impelling musical bent. He began the study of piano at seven, was considered a wonder child at nine, and made concert appearance in Denver and adjacent points.

Studied Under Maier

Going on to Boston with his mother, Frantz resumed his general education at Huntington School. He earned his own way there as organist and conductor of a church choir, also making concert appearances with his mother. Most of his study of the piano was done with Guy Maier, of the well-known piano duo of Maier and Patterson, who were heard here in concert last year. His work with Maier was interrupted by brief periods of study in Europe with Artur Schnabel and Vladimir Horowitz.

Keen on sports in early boyhood, he became an expert in skiing, basketball, and swimming. During the busy Boston period, he confined himself to his favorite sport as captain of the Huntington School Swimming team, winning several championships.

Graduated at Michigan

Entering the University of Michigan, he again earned his own way with his music, graduating with highest honors.

From boyhood Frantz's dream was to become a concert pianist. Preceding his formidable triumphs, he entered a competition with 99 others for a solo appearance with the Detroit Symphony, under the direction of Ossip Gabrilowitsch. He won. Aiming at a New York recital appearance, he entered the Naumburg Foundation competing against 100 others, and won again. In the same manner, he won the right to two solo appearances with the Philadelphia Symphony, under the baton of Leopold Stokowski.

These first few appearances brought him nation-wide recognition and invitations to play with well-known orchestras throughout the country. Critics have been enthusiastic wherever he has played; his reputation is increasing daily. His concert here in January will form part of a tour of the South which he is making this year.

Tall, blond, handsome, and athletic, Frantz is of the upstanding American type. With his virility, there is a tempering poetic strain in his nature. Straightforward of speech, careful of other people's feelings, he knows how to restrain his own. Frantz speaks French and German; in reading he prefers biography and the works of contemporary writers.

This concert by Dalies Frantz will be the fourth of a series sponsored annually by Alpha Rho chapter of Phi Mu Alpha for the purpose of endowing a musical scholarship. The series was begun by Galli-Curci, who sang here in 1932, followed by Fritz Kreisler in 1933, and by Josef Lhevinne, who took the place of Sergei Rachmaninoff last year, the latter having been compelled by illness to cancel all his engagements.

Jackson skirts end for 2½ yards, Durner tackling him. West for Tarrall. Carolina takes time out. Montgomery on a reverse is tackled by Wentz for 2 yard loss. Montgomery gets 1 yard and is hit by J. Dunlap. Jackson punts to Cornelius on 26 and McCarn hits him on Duke's 30. Parker gets 1 yard and is hit by Tatum and Barclay. Tatum again partially blocks Parker's punt and Hutchins gets ball on Carolina's 42. Hutchins hits tackle for 5 yards and Durner gets him. Jackson passes to Buck for 13 yard gain to Duke's 42 and Ward hits him. Jackson to McCarn incomplete. Hutchins breaks through center for 15 yards to Duke's 30 and a first down. Hutchins goes through center for 2 yards, hit by Cardwell and Wentz. Hutchins trys center again and gets 1 yard when hit by J. Dunlap. Hutchins fails to gain as J. Dunlap in again, fourth and five to go. Tatum back to try for a place kick with Montgomery holding, it missed a few yards and Duke's ball on Duke's 20. It was from 34. Parker gets off a beautiful punt to Carolina's 20 and Jackson ran it back to Carolina's 40 on a beautiful play. Jackson heaves a straight pass to Buck on Duke's 40 and then with occasional fine interference Buck ran to Duke's 9 where Wentz got him. Time out for Buck to get a new jersey. It is Shaffer's 61 shirt. Carolina first and goal. Hutchins hit middle and no gain when E. Dunlap hit him. Third quarter comes to end with second down for Carolina and nine to go for a touchdown.

FOURTH QUARTER

Jackson loses 3 yards at right end when Wentz gets him. Jackson is injured. Moore goes in for McCarn. On 14 yard line Jackson passes to Buck on the one yard line, and Buck runs it over for the touchdown. On the try for extra point Carolina was penalized 5 yards to the 7 for too much time out. Daniel makes the extra point good with Montgomery holding. It is now Carolina 7, Duke 0.

Carolina kicking off. Tatum kicks to 12, and Cornelius runs it back to Duke's 34 where Barclay and Montgomery hit him. Parker passes to Cornelius who is hit by Hutchins for 2 yards.. Parker off tackle for 5 yards and hit by Montgomery and Snyder. On the double lateral to Parker he loses 3 as Snyder hits him. BRITT TAKES TEACHING POST AT GEORGIA TECH

H. H. Britt, for three years an instructor in the freshman history department in Carolina, has accepted an assistant professorship in Georgia Tech, it was announced yesterday.

No appointment has been made to fill his place in the department and his work will be divided among the faculty. Britt is a graduate of Emory University in Georgia.

SPEAKERS HONOR FRANCIS VENABLE

Dr. C. H. Herty and Dr. H. V. P. Wilson Talk at Services.

The University paid tribute with a memorial service last night to a departed friend and teacher, Dr. Francis Preston Venable, a former president of the University and a distinguished chemist, whose death occurred last March.

Dr. Charles Holmes Herty, a noted chemist and a former member of the University faculty, and Dr. Henry Van Peters Wilson, whose reputation as a zoologist is also international, delivered the memorial addresses.

Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the Greater University of North Carolina, one of Dr. Venable's prize students, presided over the exercises which were simple but notably impressive.

The occasion seemed especially fitting since today was Dr. Venable's birthday. He would have been 78.

Members of the Venable family and a large number of former colleagues and students were in attendance. Dr. Donald Stewart, pastor of the Presbyterian church, conducted the devotionals.

Dr. Wilson recalled Dr. Venable as he knew him as president of the University, while Dr. Herty presented him as the scientist, a pioneer in research.

Dr. Wilson, speaking from recollections of his forty-odd years association with Dr. Venable as a colleague, gave a picture of his career at the University from the time he became a professor of chemistry at 25 years of age, through the 19 years as a teacher, later as president of the University and then back again as a scholar conducting research of lasting value.

Playmakers to Tour

the tour is in progress.

Tragedy and Comedy

"Fixin's" is a tragedy of a tenant farm woman and "Quare Medicine," a comedy of a country quack doctor. O'Connell's "The Loyal Venture" is a play of Revolutionary times in North Carolina.

The company includes Professor Frederick H. Koch, head of the Playmakers and general director for the tour; five former troupers, Harry Davis, Mrs. Ora Mae Davis, Carl Thompson, Rene Prud'hommeaux, and David Lewis; nine new members, Kenneth Bartlett, Robert Barrett, Prior McFadden, John Walker, Lawrence Cheek, Mildred Howard, Spencer Fowler, George Pearson, and Fred Howard. The troupers will all play more than one part in the three productions, Carl Thompson taking the lead with three different roles.

After their opening night at E. C. T. C. in Greenville, the Playmakers will show in Nashville, Tuesday; Kinston, Wednesday; Oxford, Thursday; next at Hood College, Frederick, Md., and at Clifton Forge, Va.; Flora McDonald College, Red Springs, November 26; Campbell College, Buie's Creek, November 27.

Koch's 29th Year

This season's tour will mark Professor Koch's 29th year in the dramatic field here. He organized and conducted the first tour of the Playmakers here at Carolina in the spring of 1921. Under his leadership they have established a name for themselves over the United States, have played from Boston, Mass., to towns in southern Georgia, and have been received by dramatic organizations at Columbia University, Yale and various other schools in the country.

only threat to score early in the first quarter. Being forced to kick in his end zone because of Parker's long punt, Jackson booted the ball out to Carolina's 44. On a reverse-lateral, Alexander to Wentz to Parker, Duke advanced to the 31-yard line. On three successive plays Alexander drove to a first down and put the ball on Carolina's 9-yard line, with only a yard to go.

Threat Is Nipped

Here Captain Barclay and Jim Tatum cracked Alexander for a yard loss, making it fourth down. On an attempted reverse, Alexander fumbled in handing the ball to Cornelius, and Tatum dived on the pigskin stopping the threat.

Every man on both teams turned in his best performance this year, and as a result it is hard to say that any man was a star without mentioning the rest of the players who saw action.

Captain Barclay in leading his team to the victory, practically clinched all-American honors. He blocked and led interference in perfect form on offense and was in on about every play on defense. Almost matching Barclay on the other side of the line was Captain Jack Dunlap, who although backing up the line, charged many times in front of the forward wall to spill the Carolina runners.

Earle Wentz, end, was the other outstanding Duke lineman. Besides getting in on every play over his side of the line, Wentz also was a constant threat with his reverse runs on offense.

The entire starting Carolina eleven distinguished itself in one way or another. Evins, Kahn, and Tatum rushed Parker off his feet on passing attempts, several times spilling him for long losses. Tatum, McCarn, and Evins were down under punts fast, with McCarn getting tackle after tackle. Tatum twice broke through to partially block punts.

Cornelius was smothered every time he tried the ends by Buck and McCarn, while the whole line charged with the same determination and savageness of the Georgia and Georgia Tech games.

Jackson Plays Fine Game

In the Carolina backfield Jackson turned in the finest performance of his career. He kept up his punting very well and several times gave Duke scares as he outgained Cornelius in punt returning. Jackson also passed in excellent fashion, completing six for long gains.

Hump Snyder, Carolina, and Jule Ward, Duke, continued their battle for blocking honors with both boys turning in their usual fine games. Snyder also helped Barclay back up the line in perfect fashion.

Dramatic Magazine Features New Play

The Carolina Playbook, the official publication of the Carolina Playmakers and the North Carolina Dramatic Association, appeared yesterday.

The fall issue of the magazine is number three of the seventh year of the quarterly's publication.

Professor Frederick H. Koch, editor of the magazine, stated yesterday that a special feature of the new Playbook is an original play entitled "Sigrid" by Margaret Radcliff of the University of Colorado.

"Sigrid" was written and produced experimentally at the University of Colorado theatre last August while Miss Radcliff was a member of Professor Koch's playwriting class there. The story is a tragic account of the lonely life of a Dakota farm woman.

Several interesting arficles appear in the current issue, including features by Harry Davis, business manager of the Playmakers, Samuel Selden, associate director of the Playmakers, and Paul Green, outstanding American playwright and a former Playmaker. The cover and tailpiece for the magazine was prepared by Julius J. Lankes.

According to Darice Jackson, circulation manager of the Playbook, subscribers last year were listed from 30 American states and from various foreign countries including the Philippines, China, Porto Rico, England, Jamaica and others. Only this week the Playbook received a subscription from South Africa.

WORLD SECURITY BY ARBITRATION, FRAZER ADVISES

Professor Tells Combined Y. M. C. A. Cabinets That Nations Need Board of Control.

PRAISES LONDON TREATY

Only through the formation of some international board of control will nations of the world be guaranteed security and equality with each other, it was pointed out last night by Professor K. C. Frazer in a talk to the Y. M. C. A. cabinets in joint session.

Speaking on "Disarmament," the University government professor traced the history of attempts to limit armaments.

"Security vs. Equality"

"The chief problem of disarmament is to give each nation security and at the same time insure each nation's self-respect and equality," Frazer said.

Discussing the power of the League of Nations to act as an "international board of control," Frazer stated that it was the members of the League who gave power to the organization.

To illustrate what nations will do in attempts to maintain their security, the speaker said that "as soon as Germany turned over her destinies to an irresponsible man, the nations supporting France consolidated."

Reviews Treaty

Frazer discussed the Washington Naval Conference, the London Naval Treaty, and the Geneva Disarmament Conference, expressing his opinion that the London Naval Treaty was one of the most important treaties in the history of the human race.

Reports were presented at the business session of the meeting by Harry Riggs, who announced the Negro football game which will be played this Saturday; Lee Greer, who made a report on the Red Cross drive; and J. C. Grier, who announced musical features of a Thanksgiving program to be sponsored by the "Y" this month.

Sheiks Initiate Fifteen New Men into Order

Pleas for "Water" Gratified as Sophomores Enter Society.

The Order of Sheiks last night initiated 15 new members into the organization with cries of "Sahara" and pleas for "Water," which were gratified.

Those introduced to the order were: Stanley Winborne, Bill McClelland, John Parker, Jack Cay, John Rainey, Joe Grier, Ross Allen, James McKee, Boylan Carr, Sam Neveas, Yates Mason, Jim Finley, Sam Willard, Tracy Spencer, and Carl Jeffries.

After dousing the initiates with water, the members put all their shoes in a pile and forced the new members to scramble for them. The initiation was under the supervision of Ben Willis, Ben Skinner, and Joe Shull.

PHI TO COMPLETE PLANS FOR DANCE

Assembly Will Hear New Constitution Tonight; Expect to Simplify Procedure.

Plans for the annual Di-Phi dance will be completed tonight when the Phi Assembly meets in New West at 7 o'clock.

Jimmy Fuller has been engaged to play at the affair which will be given Friday night in the Tin Can. By arrangement with the sophomore executive council, the same decorations will be used for both the Di-Phi dance and sophomore hop.

A new constitution has been drawn for the group and will be submitted at tonight's meeting.

This new constitution eliminates many of the old and worn out technicalities formerly contained in the charter. Speaker Smithwick looks forward to an improvement in the routine functions of future meetings.

Several new bills will be presented for discussion tonight. Final plans for the freshman debate and the Mary D. Wright debate will be made.

STUDENTS LEAGUE TO DISCUSS NAZIS

Spann Will Lead Discussion of Hitler's Regime; Rev. Fletcher Will Speak Soon.

The National Students League will present a discussion on "Various Aspects of the Hitler Regime" at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in 214 Graham Memorial. Dr. Meno Spann will lead the discussion.

This is the second in a series of discussions on subjects of international interest in the world today.

Future Speakers

The National Students League will present in the near future discussions on various topics by the Reverend Fletcher of St. Mary's College, William Couch of the University Press, Professor Phillips Russell of the English department and others.

All students and faculty members interested in the subjects or in the National Students League are invited to attend.

DEBATE SQUAD MEETING

Resolved, That an international agreement be reached to control the activities of armament manufacturers, will be the topic for discussion at a meeting of the debate squad at 9 o'clock tonight in 209 Graham Memorial.

Feature Board

There will be a meeting of the feature board of the DAILY TAR HEEL in Graham Memorial at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

STUDENT CONDUCT LAUDED BY HOUSE

"Week-end Spirit Exceptionally Fine," Dean Tells Freshmen.

Congratulating the student body for its fine conduct throughout "an almost perfect week-end," Dean R. B. House spoke to the freshmen at the regular chapel period yesterday.

"The attitude throughout was perfect," he said. "The student body contributed almost as much as the team to the fine occasion." Charging that everything significant has not passed out until the winter quarter, Dean House urged the students to get down to work for the "big game" which comes off 20 days from now, and "I hope you all make a touchdown," he concluded.

Dean Bradshaw presided over the meeting with the Reverend R. B. Fischer, pastor of the Lutheran church, leading the devotionals.

Richberg Says to Leave New Deal Is Suicide

Government Not to Reduce Private Capital's Activity.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 19.—(UP)—Donald R. Richberg, one of the most powerful figures in the Roosevelt Administration, declared tonight that it was suicidal folly to abandon the New Deal and let nature take it's course.

He said, however, that the government is prepared to reduce steadily the volume of federal activities as private capital displays willingness and ability to reduce unemployment.

Dr. Graham Appoints Committee To Suggest Connor's Successor

TAR HEEL MEETINGS

There will be a meeting of all reporters on the DAILY TAR HEEL staff this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

City editors and desk men will meet at 3:30 o'clock.

Failure to attend these meetings will result in removal from the staff.

DI WILL DISCUSS BILL ON DIVORCE

Huey Long's Policies and Law For Old Age Pensions Will Be Other Topics Presented.

The Dialectic Senate will meet tonight in New West at 7 o'clock to discuss three bills, and to plan for the Di-Phi dance Friday.

The bills which will be discussed follow: Resolved, That divorce is a social asset; Resolved, That the policies of Huey Long are a menace to American democracy; and Resolved, That a law should be passed in North Carolina providing for old age pensions.

To Plan Debates

Final plans for the freshman and Di-Phi debates will be announced at this meeting. Bids to the Di-Phi dance will be given all members in good standing.

President Gibbes will report on the anti-war meeting which he attended last Tuesday as official delegate from the Di.

A special order will be brought up concerning the appointment of a committee to investigate the damage done to Dialectic Senate property during the past week.

The last initiation for this quarter will be held tonight. Those students who have been accepted and have not yet been initiated are urged to attend.

LIBRARY RECEIVES 200 VOLUME GIFT

Donation of B. H. Smith, '04, Includes Early Documents.

University Librarian Downs announced yesterday that a Charlotte alumnus, Burton H. Smith, '04, has presented the library with about 200 volumes of general literature. These books include several early items of North Carolina history which should prove valuable to historians.

Smith also presented the library with an old license to practice law issued by the state of North Carolina in 1807 to Alfred M. Burton, an ancestor of the donor.

This document is signed by the governor of the state at that time and is accompanied by a document certifying examination signed by two Superior Court judges. The license is interesting as a contrast to modern law examinations.

FINJAN AD MEN

There will be a meeting of the advertising staff of the Finjan at 2 o'clock today in the office of the comic publication. Tea will not be served.

Sophomores Meet Today

All members of the sophomore class are asked to meet today in front of South building at 10:30 o'clock for a Yackety Yack picture.

Leaves for Meeting Of Carnegie Trustees

Will Be in New York Through Tomorrow; to Represent University at Washington.

ODUM HEADS COMMITTEE

On the eve of his departure yesterday for New York City, President Frank P. Graham announced the appointment of a committee to study the needs of the history department of the University at Chapel Hill and to recommend to him a successor to R. D. W. Connor, who this fall resigned his position as head of the department to become first United States archivist.

The committee is headed by Dr. Howard W. Odum and includes J. G. deR. Hamilton, H. M. Wagstaff, E. W. Knight, D. D. Carroll, and M. T. Van Hecke.

On the basis of studies like those to be carried on by this committee, President Graham selected last year the new heads of the physics department, A. E. Ruark, and of the music department, Glen Haydon.

Meets Administrators

Yesterday afternoon President Graham met with the administrative council of the Consolidated University. The council discussed the administrative organization of the summer school.

The meeting of the board of trustees of the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching drew President Graham to New York City. He will be there today and tomorrow, then will go to Washington as representative of the University of North Carolina at the meeting of the Association of State Universities, where he will spend Thursday and Friday. Friday night he will return to the village, and Saturday morning he will meet with the advisory committee of the University faculty.

President Graham found time from his numerous duties to witness Carolina's 7-0 victory over Duke Saturday. He laughingly agreed that Carolina's victory was about the biggest news of the week-end. "I'm mighty proud of both institutions and both teams," he said.

Private Vaults Of Library Contain Thousands Of Priceless Documents

Enormous Task of Cataloging Southern Collection of Rare Letters And Diaries Is Now Being Carried On.

Down under the stacks in the library, guarded by "No Admittance" signs, is a room which the public rarely, if ever, penetrates. In this room is to be found overflowing the floors, the desks, and the files, the greater part of the Southern Collection, which consists of over 1,000,000,000 rare letters, books, state papers, and diaries covering that period of southern history extending from 1684 to 1920. In the fire-proof vaults of the library are kept the most precious documents and relics of the collection including letters and possessions of "Stonewall" Jackson, letters of Robert E. Lee, and of Jefferson Davis.

The difficult and interesting task of classifying and filing the Southern Collection is supervised by Mrs. L. A. Cotten, who has under her direction ten or twelve assistants. Some idea of the enormity of the task may be gained when one learns that the papers of one family may number 20,000. The twenty collections already classified, including the famous Pettigrew papers, the Pringle-Hill papers, and others, number collectively 400,000.

The purpose of the Southern Collection, according to Dr. J. G. deR. Hamilton, who has charge of it, is to gather in one place easily accessible to the student and investigator "every book or pamphlet of any kind on any subject written in the south or by a southerner, every one which deals in any way with the southern states, their people or their problems."

Most of the material which has poured in from the garrets, trunks, and chests of the south has been donated by people who believe that the Southern Collection will do for the south what the Bancroft Collection has done for the Pacific Coast and the Burton library for the Middle West. Some of the owners of private collections have been unwilling to donate their possessions outright but have been glad to loan them to the Southern Collection in return for the protection afforded by the library's vaults. A small amount of the material has of necessity been purchased.

Perhaps for most of us the tedious work of classifying the faded and sometimes scarcely legible manuscripts would be very dull. But not for Mrs. Cotten and her assistants. They get a thrill out of reading the war proclamation of North Carolina's Civil War governor, John W. Ellis; they are reminded of Robert E. Lee's real greatness when they read an until now unknown letter of condolence written by him to the widow of "Stonewall" Jackson. The discovery which probably affords Mrs. Cotten the most satisfaction, however, is of a unique correspondence between William Pettigrew and the Negro foreman of his plantation, a correspondence which will, she thinks, show up the master-slave relations prior to the Civil War in a new and more favorable light.

SIX WILL RECEIVE GLEE CLUB KEYS

Members Eligible for Awards Will Receive Them Soon, Announces Ezra Griffin.

Glee Club members who have proved their eligibility for membership keys will receive them shortly, Ezra Griffin announced yesterday.

Students who have served the club faithfully for five quarters are eligible. Part of the expense entailed by the purchase of the keys will be met by the recipients and the remainder will be paid from the regular 50 cent membership fee.

Candidates

The following men are eligible for keys: Jesse Parker, Tom Hicks, Ezra Griffin, Harold Gavin, John Barney, Walter Bateman.

The giving of keys to veteran members this quarter will institute a similar procedure in following quarters. Other members who wish to be considered eligible for their keys may tender their names to Ezra Griffin.

Village Once Fell Victim To State Iron Mining Craze

One of North Carolina's Numerous Defunct Iron Mines Is Located Northwest of Carrboro; Finally Proved Expensive Failure.

By W. M. COCHRANE

Chapel Hill, long famous as a center of learning, almost became famous in an entirely different way—iron mining. This industry, not in existence here today, was once very important in this state.

The mine which represented Chapel Hill's share of this vital industry was located several miles northwest of the village of Carrboro. It was in operation until a few years ago, but is now neglected. The operators of the mine found that the project was not a paying one, and they abandoned the site, leaving all the equipment behind. Today all that is left of this equipment are several rusty and broken pieces of machinery.

The ore that the mine produced was easy to transport to market. . The miners loaded the ore on little "gravity cars," and rolled the cars down the hill on tracks to Captain Smith's "Carrboro Special." The loaded cars going down pulled up the empty cars by means of cables, requiring no power. This efficient method of carrying the ore to the railroad saved much expense.

Judging from the size of the shafts still to be seen at the mine, a great amount of iron must have been extracted before the project was finally abandoned. The shafts are great yawning holes in the earth, the largest of which is some sixty feet in depth. There are a half dozen of smaller holes, located at various places around the main shaft. The many piles of rock lying about the shafts seem to contain much iron, because the rocks are reddish brown and heavy.

Although this mine was a failure and a costly one, it was only one of the many attempts made to utilize the valuable deposits of iron that we have. In the earlier days of the nation's history, North Carolina was a leader in this industry, but in recent years there have been few attempts to make use of our iron deposits.

PARAGRAPHICS

Would it be too much to say Corky was corked and Ace trumped?

And now Proff Koch can go ahead with his tour. The only play this campus was interested in last week-end was one whose cast included Messrs. Jackson and Buck.

It may be a shock to some of our utilities magnates to learn that even Chicago Sam has not proved insullated against the law.

Judges of Perfectness

An interesting comment on honor systems is to be found in the Richmond Times-Dispatch:

Reference was made in this place some weeks ago to the fact that Tulane University had abandoned the honor system in its school of arts and sciences. Now comes word that North Carolina State College has dropped the system from all its departments. A similar step was taken two years ago at Georgia Institute of Technology.

Just what is the meaning of all this? Does it signify that students in southern institutions of higher learning are losing their sense of decency? Can they no longer be depended on to respect a pledge when they have signed it?

We should be most reluctant to conclude that this is the case, and certainly no such charge could be sustained against the majority of southern institutions. On the other hand, the editor of the Virginia Tech, published at the Virginia Polytechnical Institute, says in the October 31 issue of that paper that there is a widespread dissatisfaction in the south with the operations of the honor system.

"In a conference at which practically all of the schools south of the Mason-Dixon line were represented," he writes, "we were interested to find that in hardly a single school did the students think the honor system was a success."

This is disquieting, to put it mildly. . . .

Not so disquieting, we think, as many alarmists would make it out. The Times-Dispatch goes on to point out that no Virginia institution has seriously threatened with assaults on the honor principle. We might add that it is successful also in Davidson, in this state, and in this University.

That brings us to the point of controversy which the V. P. I. editor has mentioned. Many students would call the DAILY TAR HEEL's opinion blind in the respect that we hold the honor system a success at this University. We realize that it functions imperfectly, but what agency involving 2,000 human beings does not function imperfectly?

Attempting to lay aside our personal prejudice against student conferences, at which the modicum of things accomplished would not overfill a thimble, we observe that their representatives are not fair and impartial judges of the honor system. Students are too prone to think of cynicism as a bright savoir faire. As to the imperfectness of our honor system, we can say with all assurance that for every student it puts on his own responsibility successfully, for every one that it teaches in some small respect a pride in his own self-control, for every one who learns the high value of his own integrity, the honor principle is fully justified. And that is not an unreasonable criterion.

Dozers' Paradise

Having long attempted to cast discredit on the common conception of a library as a place of ascetic severity and uncomfortable utility, the DAILY TAR HEEL finds new cause for rejoicing in learning that State College plans to have a "browsing room" in the D. H. Hill library there.

W. P. Kellam, head librarian, describes the proposed addition in terms of those in the libraries of other colleges. "The plan is already in vogue at many of the larger universities and colleges throughout the country," he says. (Princeton's new library, in fact, will have this sort of "browsing room," comfortably furnished with arm chairs and reading lamps for the convenience of students and faculty.) These rooms usually have shelves of light fiction and nonfiction, popular newspapers and periodicals.

In view of Mr. Kellam's former connection with the library of the University at Chapel Hill, how nice, how nice, would it be if he could transport some of the progressiveness that he plans to institute in State's library to this part of the University. Naturally, the main consideration in attempting to secure a room of the sort here would be financial. The dividends in such an investment would be paid off in increased student use of the library—which is as desirable an influence as we can think of at present.

The one drawback that we mention would be, because of so much comfort, a greater tendency to falling asleep. Comfortable chairs, though, would off-set even this disadvantage in the corresponding decline of cricks in the neck and other minor inconveniences.

Make the World Safe for DuPontcracy

Lamont Du Pont, president of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Company, made some interesting observations regarding munitions in a recent letter to Senator Gerald Nye, chairman of the Senate investigating committee, and the observations showed the munitions racketeers' usual tendency to leave profitable munitions trade a lot of loopholes.

"Adequate national defense must be assured," stated the president of one of the world's biggest munitions manufacturing concerns, but to this statement he hastened to add the usual generality that maintenance of peace "must be fostered and encouraged." "Adequate defense," as the Du Pont company's former actions have made evident, means to them enough munitions to set any one country to war against another, enough munitions to net them "a small profit." Mr. Du Pont safeguards the expectation of any "small profits" in the future by discreetly remarking that a government monopoly on munitions would be inadequate in war time, and if carried far enough, would cripple national defense. The Du Pont company, having only a few billions, undoubtedly operates its plants in war time at no profit whatsoever, yet it seems unduly alarmed at the thought of the United States government taking over its plants and operating them in a national crisis.

Du Pont showed his civic forethought (not possibly his own interests, oh Heavens no) by writing to Nye that "If the United States alone were to forbid the export of munitions, our national defense will be impaired. . . ." Evidently, according to Mr. Du Pont, our national defense is inextricably wound up in the sale of munitions to other nations, and especially with the sale of munitions to warring countries.

Panning Our Pans

For a single greenback and a piece of silver worth 25 cents in current American credit, campus profiles find their way into Yackety Yack photographs. If the yearbook editors had their way, approximately 82.7 per cent of the profiles-on-bronze-plates would be duly tossed in the waste basket, but faces are faces whether in a picture or on the campus, so in the book they go.

Now, lots of the college sheiks get ragingly upset when the result of Mr. Moulton's handiwork is handed to them. Sour visages stare them in the face, squinting eyes glare violently, and unruly hairs jut out at the most inopportune places.

It's all extremely sad. Here we have an undergraduate group of the handsomest boys in the western hemisphere and the best photographer available in this section of the state, and still the poor fellows find room for complaints about the way the "dumb picture takers spoil our pans." The sad part is that we have no purple robes and golden crowns and scepters for the felllows so that each one may sit mightily upon a throne and have the Wootten-Moulton delegation spend three or four hours apiece on each photograph.

The most plausible suggestion was offered the harried Yackety Yack business staffites yesterday, stipulating that mirrors be provided with every book and that in the individual copies, the picture of the recipient is omitted. Then, under "g," Mr. Gable, instead of gazing at a picture ruined by a mean old photographer, can look into the mirror and sigh with satisfaction.

Grisette to Leave Today For Davidson Session

Represents University at Inter-College Conference on Funds.

Acting as representative of the University, Felix A. Grisette, director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund, leaves today for Davidson College, where he will attend the conference Wednesday on "More and Better Wills."

Representatives from colleges of North and South Carolina will discuss the subject of raising money for colleges by means of wills and bequests. The conference is sponsored by the Association of American Colleges.

In charge of the conference will be F. L. Jackson, treasurer of Davidson College and chairman of the trust fund committee of the Association of American Colleges.

Negro Chorus Will Sing Here Next Sunday

Y. M. C. A. to Sponsor Musical Program by Sedalia Singers.

Y. M. C. A. authorities announced yesterday that the Sedalia Singers will present a musical program in Memorial hall Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The Sedalia Singers is a Negro chorus from the Alice Freeman Palmer school at Sedalia, near Greensboro. They have presented programs throughout the country, receiving wide recognition. They are especially famous for their versions of Negro spirituals.

The Y. M. C. A. committee sponsoring their appearance is headed by Harry Riggs.

Anne Reynolds Doubts Half-Brother's Claim

Challenges 3-Year-Old Christopher to Prove Legitimacy.

Winston-Salem, Nov. 19.—(UP)—In a motion filed in superior court here today, Zachary Smith Reynolds' daughter, Anne Cannon Reynolds, demanded proof of the legitimacy of the claim of her half-brother for a share in the Camel-stock millions.

Anne Cannon Reynolds II, through the Cabarrus Bank and Trust Co., answered the claim made by three-year old Christopher Smith Reynolds in which he demanded his father's entire estate.

Unless young Christopher can prove he is a legitimate child, the answer read, Anne is the sole surviving child, and therefore entitled to receive the whole of the Reynolds estate, both personal property and trust holdings.

Women's Delegates

A. A. U. W. Members Attend Dinner for President.

The local chapter of American Association of University Women sent delegates to a dinner given last Monday at the King Cotton Hotel to their national president, Miss Meta Glass, president of Sweetbriar. After the dinner Miss Glass addressed the delegates.

Local delegates were Miss Susan G. Akers, Miss Nora Buest, Miss Katharine Jocher, Miss Mary Cobb, Miss Evelyn Mullen, Dr. Hammond, and Mrs. Cornelia Love, president of the local chapter.

Tar Heel Gridders Begin Work Today For Va.; Rest Yesterday

John Trimpey Sprains Ankle in Duke Game and May Be Out of Battle with Cavaliers.

OTHERS IN GOOD SHAPE

Charlie Shaffer May Be Able to see Action in Tilt at Charlottesville Thanksgiving.

Coach Carl Snavely gave his grid warriors a day off yesterday as a reward for their great game against Duke. John Trimpey, sophomore tackle, was the only serious injury of Saturday's clash and as a result may be lost for the Virginia battle.

The 230-pounder, who serves as first sub for the regulars, Tatum and Evins at both tackle positions, suffered a sprained ankle late in the first half and had to be carried from the field.

The rest of the squad is in good shape and there is a possibility that Charlie Shaffer, who led the Tar Heels during the first part of the season with his running and kicking, will get back in action. Shaffer is a senior and it will be his last opportunity to perform for Carolina on the gridiron.

With the Duke game off their minds, the Carolina gridders today will begin nine days of intensive operations for their annual Thanksgiving battle with Virginia at Charlottesville.

The Tar Heel-Cavalier battle will revive the South's oldest continuous and most colorful Turkey Day rivalry. Teams of the two institutions have been fighting it out on the gridiron

Miracle Worker

Coach Carl G. Snavely of the Carolina football team. Snavely took over the duties this year of leading the Tar Heels back to the top in the grid world and has done a great job. In its first eight games Carolina has won six and lost one, beating Georgia Tech, Georgia, Kentucky, and, last Saturday, Duke. The victory over the Blue Devils was the first since 1929.

FROSH GRIDDERS WILL MEET DUKE IMPS AT DURHAM

Strong First Year Elevens Will Battle in Feature Contest Saturday Afternoon.

BLUE IMPS UNDEFEATED

With only the Duke Blue Imps standing between them and a successful season, the Carolina Tar Babies are determined to crush their powerful rivals when they meet next Saturday in the Duke Bowl.

Carolina has scored impressive victories over Wake Forest, Clemson, and Virginia, losing only to State which in turn was defeated by Duke. This should make the Durhamites favorites to win. But comparative scores have been the downfall of many would be experts, and so the student bodies of both institutions can look forward to a battle as closely contested and as hard fought as the spectacular game played in Kenan stadium last Saturday.

The Tar Babies have been coming along fast since their lone setback, and should be ready to display their best brand of football against the Duke freshmen.

Open Bag of Tricks

In whipping Virginia, the Babies used only straight football, with the off-tackle power plays dominating, but it is more than likely that the Dukesters will be treated to quite a few tricks from the Snavely bag of magic before the game is over.

With a quartet of yearling backs as capable as any in the state, the ultimate success of the Babies, in their final game, will depend on the blocking of the forward wall which heretofore has been spotty and inconsistent.

Duke on the other hand has a powerful aggregation which, although unbeaten, has been scored upon in almost every

K. A. TAKES SIXTH WITH 6-0 VICTORY

Outplays Zeta Psi Throughout Contest; S. A. E.-Betas and Law-"Y" Slated Today.

Kappa Alpha remained undefeated after yesterday's session in the intramural football competition as it bested Zeta Psi, 6-0, with a final minute touchdown in the feature game.

The two other contests saw D. K. E. win over Lambda Chi Alpha by an 8-7 margin and Chi Phi take Phi Alpha's measure 12-0. After receiving its last two wins by forfeits, Manly dormitory forgot to show up itself and lost on a forfeit to Everett.

Though it continually held the upper-hand in its game with the Zetas, Kappa Alpha pulled another last minute scoring stunt as Ben Skinner intercepted one of Bill Carr's passes on the Zeta 20-yard marker and was finally downed three yards from the double stripe. Seymour then passed across to Shriver for the lone tally.

Long First Down Lead

The winners were masters of the situation throughout most of the contest, piling up ten first downs to none for their opponents until the last three minutes of play. Bill Carr then completed three of his deadly aerials which netted a pair of first downs, but on the fourth attempt Skinner intercepted and paved the way for the score.

The K. A.'s kicked off and a long run by Carr and a pass from Carr to Harrison bought the oval to the K. A. two-yard line. However, the Zetas failed on an attempt to score and the game ended before the next play.

The D. K. E.-Lambda Chi Alpha game proved to be a comedy of errors, with the former squeezing through with an 8-7 victory. The Dekes tallied in the opening session as Pruden escorted the oval across.

L. C. A. Tallies,

Lambda Chi Alpha came back in the second stanza as the Deke safety man fumbled a punt behind his own goal and Marshall recovered for a touchdown. Blood made the extra point. However, the victory went to the Dekes when a Lambda player intentionally knocked the ball into the end zone for an automatic safety. The winners held a six to three first down margin.

HUTCHINS GIVEN MUCH PRAISE BY WALLACE WADE

Duke Coach Says Carolina Fullback Is Best Back He Has Seen Perform This Year.

LED RUNNERS SATURDAY

Jim Hutchins' brilliant performance in the Duke game has projected the driving 190-pound Carolina sophomore into the limelight among the candidates for All-State and All-Southern fullback.

No one was more surprised than Coach Wallace Wade of Duke. "I never dreamed he was that good a back," he said after the game. "Why, he is just about the best back I have seen this year." Which is taking in a lot of territory and which is quite a compliment considering the source.

The statistics give the best picture of the part the fiery linebuster played in Carolina's upset victory. Hutchins gained 75 yards and lost none in 20 tries. The net gain on running plays for the whole Carolina backfield was 106 and for Duke 41.

Real Line-Buster

Hutchins, who broke into the starting lineup the first game his sophomore year, has stood out in every Big Five and conference contest Carolina has played. He literally cut the Wake Forest, Davidson, and Duke lines to pieces. He did the same thing against Georgia Tech, and played another fine game against N. C. State.

If Hutchins continues his fine work in the final game with Virginia Thanksgiving, Tar Heel backers figure he will be a hard man for those who pick the mythical honor teams to overlook. For, in addition to being one of the finest line plungers ever to come up at Carolina, Hutchins has played a jam-up game in the blocking and in the defense, and also has done some of Carolina's passing this year.

CAVALIERS START HARD WORK FOR CAROLINA BATTLE

Tommy Johnson, Virginia Captain, Thinks His Team May Pull Upset Thanksgiving.

YET TO PLAY BEST TILT

University, Va., Nov. 19.—They are accusing Tommy Johnson, the Virginia gridiron captain and ace halfback, of whistling in the dark when he says he isn't afraid of the North Carolina team that comes to Scott Stadium to play the Cavaliers on Thanksgiving.

Captain Tommy won't talk much. When pressed for a further opinion he just smiles and says, "Wait and see."

Those who have watched the Virginians through the whole of the 1934 gridiron campaign believe that these charges of Coach Gus Tebell have one great game in their system, and they hope that the boys will be able to play it when they face the Tar Heels.

Fear for Worse

Since the Carolinians deposed Duke from leadership in the Southern Conference there have been many calamity howlers who say, "It is just going to be too bad for Virginia on Thanksgiving."

On the other hand there are as many more who remember how the Cavaliers threw a scare into the Tar Heels in 1931 and how they won a brilliant and unexpected victory in 1932. These hope for another exhibition of such inspired play on November 29.

Captain Tommy Johnson believes that the entire Virginia team may be able to turn in its best game against Carolina. This opinion is shared by many of Johnson's mates. But whether inspiration can lift this small and gallant band to the heights of equal competition against Carolina's great skill and strength is something that only the future can disclose.

Barclay Continues Making Strong Bid For Position On All-American

Carolina Captain Receives Praise from All Who Have Seen Him Play; Opposing Coaches Have Special Comment; George Has Led Tar Heels Successfully Through Hard Schedule.

George Barclay, the University's brilliant guard and captain and one of the nation's most versatile players, appears to be a standout among the candidates for All-American, according to opinions expressed by sports writers, coaches, officials, and other experts who have seen him play this season.

A great power in the North Carolina line since his sophomore year, Barclay apparently has reached his playing peak this season under Carl Snavely, Carolina's new wonder coach, who has produced the finest team to wear Tar Heel colors since 1929, when the squad coached by Chuck Collins won every game on a hard schedule except one with Georgia. Last season the Virginia team picked Barclay as the greatest player it faced, and Georgia named him the greatest opposing lineman.

Tough Schedule

This season, with a schedule probably as formidable as any they have ever played, the Tar Heels have lost only to Tennessee, 19-7, and should end the season with just that one defeat, for it is conceded that, barring

Wrestlers Weigh In

All entrants in the wrestling tournament must weigh in this afternoon at Emerson field between 4 and 6 o'clock.

Any men who have not signed up for the tourney and wish to do so may still participate in the tourney if they appear at the weighing-in and register with the managers there.

Carolina And Duke Are Favored In Southern Conference Race

Leads Cavaliers

Captain Tommy Johnson, halfback on the Virginia football eleven which meets the Tar Heels at Charlottesville Thanksgiving. Although his club has had a poor season so far, Johnson feels that it will come through in a great game against the old Carolina rivals. The Cavalier captain is the spearhead in Virginia's backfield and gave the Tar Heels plenty of trouble last year.

Duel Battle Also Expected Between McRae and Dunaj when Harriers Meet Saturday.

BIRD OF DUKE MAY RUN

Teams from V. M. I., W. and L., V. P. I., State, Duke, and Carolina Expected to Enter.

The Southern Conference championship cross country run Saturday over the local five-mile course will be the highlight among Dixie harrier circles.

The outcome of the title meet is quite uncertain. A battle for team honors should arise between the Duke and Carolina squads and a fight for individual first place honors between Captain Dunaj of W. and L. and McRae of Carolina.

By its victory this past weekend over the previously undefeated Blue Devils, the Tar Heels will enter the conference run as slight favorites. The Carolina and Duke teams had been recognized as the best-balanced teams in the south. Duke's failure to supply fast fourth and fifth runners cost it the win.

Real Duel Race

Without a doubt the two finest cross country runners in the conference are Dunaj and McRae. They have met once this season and Dunaj managed to beat the Tar Heel on that occasion. In the run over the General course, Dunaj set a new record, but McRae also broke the old mark. McRae will be running a familiar course Saturday and should reverse the tables on the General captain.

There is also the possibility that Bob Bird of Duke will run. He has not competed this season but has been working out with the Dukesters. It is remembered that this Bird gave Dunaj one great fight for the first position last year.

The Duke team will work out over the local course this afternoon to get acquainted with the hills and dales.

Entries are expected from V. M. I., Washington and Lee, Duke, N. C. State, and Carolina, with V. P. I. possibly coming in.

FAST, ELWELL GET NET LADDER WINS

Bartelman Forfeits to Fast After Two Sets of Even Play.

All ladder play yesterday was confined to the freshman ranking, and Seymore Fast stood out as he rode high into fourth place with two victories during the course of action. In the other encounter, Al Elwell downed Jimmy Bloom and retained his fifth ranking on the frosh list.

Fast opened the afternoon's fireworks by winning in a surprising manner from Ray Bartelman in two sets. The peculier fact is that he dropped one of these sets and the scores read 4-6, 8-6, when Bartelman simply walked off the court and defaulted for no apparent reason. This unorthodox procedure sent Fast into fourth spot from his former spot down on the sixth rung.

Immediately following his win over Bartelman, Fast stepped back upon the courts and rode Randy Berg's challenge right out of Chapel Hill, scoring over him by 6-2, 7-5 scores.

Elwell clearly outplayed Jimmy Bloom in his win in the battle for fifth. He counted at 6-4, 6-2 and this marked the first defeat for Bloom since the commencement of ladder play.

Frosh Gridsters

All freshman footballers are asked to report to Emerson field at 4 o'clock today for the group picture to be put in the Yackety Yack.

Freshman Basketball

Coach Walter Skidmore wants to meet all freshmen interested in trying out for basketball at the Tin Can tonight at 8:00 o'clock. No uniforms are necessary.

ROOSEVELT GOES TO WORK IN GA.

Wades Into Routine Duties; Appoints Freid Federal Ship Inspector; Budget Next.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 19. — (UP) — President Roosevelt swung into the routine affairs of state today, in the "Little White House" atop Pine Mountain here.

He began by disposing quickly of the mass administration detail including four days' accumulated mail.

Appoints Freid

The president topped off the day's program by appointing Captain George A. Freid, hero of the Vestris disaster and many other daring rescues on the high seas, as supervising head of Steamboat Inspection Service of the nation.

During his stay here, which is scheduled to last until December 4, the president plans to put considerable work on the 1935 budget as well as prepare the administration's legislative recommendations to Congress.

game. This is encouraging from a Carolina standpoint, since the Chapel Hillians, while amassing an excellent scoring average, have had their goal-line crossed but twice in their four encounters.

Beat Duke Again

With "Beat Duke Again" as their slogan, the first-year men are eager to get as much practice as possible, so that they might be at their peak both fundamentally and physically when the day of the big game arrives.

Assuming gigantic proportions in the past, the brawl this year should attract even more attention, as both schools are sporting strong elevens with outstanding records for the season's play.

The Carolina hopes received a severe jolt during practice yesterday afternoon on Emerson field, when George Graves, stellar backfield performer in the Virginia game, was the recipient of a terrific smack in the eye while scrimmaging. Graves, suffering from the blow, was rushed to the infirmary, but the seriousness of his case is not yet known.

easiest margin of any of the three as it pushed over two touchdowns and outgained Phi Alpha eight to two in first downs. Borne and Bithings accounted for the twelve points with a touchdown apiece.

Real Battles Today

Today's schedule finds the all-important contest between the Betas and S. A. E. as the feature. Both teams hold clean slates with six wins each and the outcome will determine the opponent to face the winner of the K. A.-Sigma Nu contest in Friday's play-off for the league championship. Law School opposes the Y. M. C. A. in another vital contest in the dormitory league. The program is as follows:

3:30—(1) Phi Kappa Sigma vs. Phi Gamma Delta.

4:30—(1) Beta Theta Pi vs. S. A. E. (2) Y. M. C. A. vs. Law School, (3) Kappa Sigma vs. Z. B. T.

Barclay Continues Making Strong Bid For All-American Post

a miraculous upset, they will take Virginia in the annual Turkey Day classic at Charlottesville Thanksgiving. This season the Tar Heels have played Wake Forest, Tennessee, Georgia, N. C. State, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Davidson, and Duke. There was a 7-7 tie with N. C. State. Only the Virginia game remains.

Captain Barclay gained wide publicity early in the season when one well known syndicate writer referred to him as a one-man team, due to his ability to call the signals, run interference, back up the line, and serve as snapper-back when the center is out of the line to try for extra points, in addition to his ability to convert blocked punts and intercepted passes into touchdowns. For Barclay, although a guard, scored more touchdowns last year than any back on the team save one.

Coaches Praise Him

A few comments from coaches of rival teams will serve to illustrate the high regard in which Barclay is held in the south:

Coach Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech, member of the All-American Board: "Barclay more than lived up to his All-American rating against us."

Coach Harry Mehre, Georgia Bulldogs, who beat Yale but were upset 14-0 by Carolina: "I need not elaborate on the ability of Howell, Mickal, and Barclay. All are of All-American calibre. Barclay rates top with every coach who has seen him perform. I don't think he has an equal in the nation."

Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt coach: "Barclay, North Carolina's great guard, captain, and leader, must not be overlooked when they make up the rolls of honor."

Coach Bob Neyland, Tennessee: "One of the best men ever to play against Tennessee. I have seen few who can equal him as a charging guard. He is in every play."

Coach Chet Wynne, Kentucky, late of Auburn: "That boy Barclay is All-American so far as I'm concerned. He certainly played a brilliant game against us."

Coach Hunk Anderson of N. C. State, formerly of Notre Dame: "Barclay is a fine player and a great leader. He has the spirit and the leadership that makes Carolina an almost unbeatable team as long as he is in the game, but when he went out because of an injury, the Carolina team fell apart and the Vols moved ahead."

Coach Wallace Wade, Duke: "The outstanding player in our game last year. And this year he stood out as he always does. He rates with the best."

Atlanta sport writers, including Morgan Blake, Ed Danforth, Jimmy Jones, and O. B. Keeler, almost ran out of adjectives in describing Barclay's brilliant play there.

Grantland Rice quoted his southern scout: "Barclay is undoubtedly one of the best guards of many seasons." . . . Barclay, a senior, stands 5 feet 11, weighs 183, comes from Natrona, Penn. He prepped at Kiski.

CO-ED TEA FRIDAY

The regular co-ed tea will be given this week from 5 to 6 o'clock Friday afternoon, instead of tomorrow, for the benefit of visiting women students from Meredith, Peace, Duke, and Woman's College, who will be here to participate in the "Play Day" contest.

Awake Sluggards!

More than one gay soul awoke yesterday morning following a happy but somewhat hazy week-end to be smacked in the face with the thought that there are now only 20 actual class days, including today, before that terrific grind commonly known as final exams descends upon us.

Thanksgiving holidays officially begin next Wednesday, November 28, 1 p. m., according to the University catalogue. Classes will be resumed the following Monday, December 3, at 8:30 a. m.

After the holidays there are left only two weeks of actual class work. Final examinations will start Monday, December 17, and continue through Thursday, December 20, at which time school is adjourned for the Christmas holidays.

Registration for the winter quarter of students enrolled in the University at the present time will start Tuesday, December 11 at 1. p. m., and continue through Thursday, December 20.

Tar Heel Gridders Begin Work For Va.

since 1892. A total of 38 games have been played with Carolina tieing three and winning 14 to Virginia's 21.

Like the Tar Heels, Virginia is on the warpath under a new coach. He is Gus Tebell who was at N. C. State for a number of years. The Cavaliers have been improving steadily since their suicidal schedule of early season games with Navy, Dartmouth, and other grid giants. They beat V.M.I. for the first time in four years And they are regarded as being still "on the make"

Carolina's victories over Georgia, Tech and Kentucky among the Southeastern Conference leaders and the high rank in which it finished in the Big Five makes the Tar Heels the favorites. But they will be very wary of their ancient and respected rivals.

Upsets in Past

Young alumni vividly remember the 14-7 upset Virginia handed Carolina in 1932. The veterans on the present team have good reason to remember last year, when a supposedly weaker Virginia eleven extended them the limit and held them scoreless until the last quarter. And the older alumni can never forget the long, lean years when Carolina made the annual trek to Virginia in vain.

The Tar Heels know that comparative scores mean little or nothing when their ancient and respected rivals from Virginia are the opponents, and are expecting another close game according to custom. So also their followers, and a great crowd is expected to make the trip up from North Carolina, by car and train, with all indicatins pointing to a fine game and joyous celebration.

Carl Snavely, the new Carolina coach, will lead a veteran team against the Cavalier stronghold this year. The Tar Heel squad numbers 17 of the 26 men who played and seven of the 11 men who started last year's game, including George Moore, fullback, and Captain George Barclay, brilliant guard, who scored Carolina's two touchdowns.

Other Tar Heels stars include Don Jackson, the expert passer; Jim Tatum and Eddie Kahn, who have been a power in Carolina's stout line for three years; Herman Snyder, blocking back; and Charlie Shaffer, the team's leading runner and punter, who has been slowed up with injuries for the past three weeks.

Symphony To Play In Winston-Salem

Winston-Salem, Nov. 19. — Plans for the symphony concert to be presented here during the week of December 10 were completed today. This festival, which will feature the North Carolina Symphony, is sponsored by the local civic clubs.

Music leaders from all over the nation are expected to attend. Invitations have already been sent Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins, and many other notables, including Lawrence Tibbett.

Many of the outstanding music critics have received invitations, including Olin Downes of the New York Times, Lawrence Gillman of the New York Herald Tribune, and George and Carl Fischer, music publishers.

TWO FROSH CLUBS RACE HIGH POINT TEAMS SATURDAY

First and Second Tar Baby Harrier Outfits to See Action in Preliminary to Run.

Coach Dale Ranson announced yesterday that as a preliminary to the Southern Conference cross country meet here Saturday morning, the Tar Baby 'A' and 'B' harrier teams will race a couple of teams from High Point high school.

This means that 16 members of this year's yearling cross country club will see action and Coach Ranson wants everybody who has been out for the team at all to report at Emerson field this afternoon.

Last year the high school runners upset Carolina's freshmen twice in a similar meet. This season High Point is reported as having another strong outfit, being undefeated to date.

The Tar Babies have one more meet after Saturday, taking on Duke's first-year club in a return battle here next Tuesday. In the first meeting at Durham the Carolina youngsters came out ahead by a wide margin.

Theta Chi's To Meet At Miami Convention

Members attending the 77th annual convention of Theta Chi will convene at the Miami Biltmore hotel in Miami, Florida, December 27-29. Approximately 400 members representing nearly 50 chapters will be present.

The fraternity gathering will come just before the annual national Olympic stars aquatic meet which will be held at the Miami Biltmore hotel from December 30 until January 1.

FRAZER TO HEAD CIVIC EDUCATORS

Political Science Instruction Committee Plans Meeting.

At the recent meeting of the Southern Political Science Association in co-operation with the American Political Science Association in Atlanta, Georgia, Keener C. Frazer, associate professor of government in the University, was appointed chairman of a committee for the furtherance and advancement of civic education.

It is planned to hold a meeting of this committee, with state superintendents of public instruction, in Chapel Hill sometime in the spring.

The general object held in view is to place instruction in political science in our public schools upon a more scientific and efficient basis.

ESQUIRE'S STAFF PRAISES GASKINS' CAROLINA FINJAN

Art Editor: "You've Got Something on the Ball"; Publisher: "Most Outstanding Yet."

GASKINS SAYS NOTHING

Pat Gaskins, editor of the ill-fated Buccaneer's successor, has been receiving a number of letters of congratulations ever since his first issue was released. Chief among the praisers of this issue are the officials of "Esquire," the magazine that the Finjan was parodying.

W. H. Weintraub, publisher of the magazine, writes: "I've just seen a copy of your version of 'Esquire,' and I want to congratulate you on the result. A number of college magazines have done something similar, but yours is by far the most outstanding I've seen."

Gron Joth, John Groth

John Groth, art editor of "Esquire," whose drawings were imitated in the issue over the name of Gron Joth, also wrote to Gaskins about the issue. His letter follows in part: "Your take-off on 'Esquire' was swell. And of course, I enjoyed particularly your center spread of drawings done by Gron Joth. I am sure the fellow, Gron Joth, is more like John Groth than John Groth is like himself.

ASSEMBLY TALK GIVEN BY MILLER

Freshmen Are Told a Few Facts In Regard to the Engineering Course Here.

Condensing "150 years of engineering work at this University into 10 minutes," Dean W. J. Miller of the engineering school gave freshmen at the regular chapel period yesterday a few facts in regard to this technical course.

According to Dean Miller, engineering fills a great space between the scientist and society. "The engineer," he said, "has the ability to take scientific discoveries and apply them in some way or other to society. Scientists knew long before its invention the technicalities of of the radio, but they had to be applied by an engineer before radio could be used."

Qualifications

"Who should go into engineering?" Dean Miller asked. "A surveyor, an electrician, a mechanic, or a man who runs a locomotive are not engineers. They are used by engineers in carrying out their work." As an answer to his query, he said, "A man who will make good in engineering is the one who made an "A " grade in mathematics and Latin. A foundation in physics is also a help."

"Ordinarily, the curriculum doesn't get into basic engineering until the junior year. It is more or less a specialized bachelor of arts course. The engineer student is required to take something like three-fourths of the A. B. degree subjects. This is done that the student when graduated will have something on which to build," Dean Miller said.

Rev. R. B. Fischer of the Lutheran church conducted the devotionals. Dean Bradshaw had charge of the program.

NSL Meets Tonight

There will be a meeting of the National Students League tonight at 8 o'clock in 214 Graham Memorial.

Dr. Meno Spann will lead the discussion on "Various Aspects of the Hitler Regime."

This is the second in a series of discussions on subjects of international interest in the world today.

All students and faculty members interested in the National Students League are invited to attend.

Eyes Center On Geneva; Arms League Meets

German Delegation Goes to Rome For Discussion with French on Saar Plebiscite.

By UNITED PRESS

The convening of a new session of the British Parliament, the League Assembly at Geneva, and the Arms Conference Steering Committee concentrated world attention on the tottering naval arms limitation efforts.

Geneva, the United States, and Russia clashed over the Washington arms traffic control program at the Steering Committee session, with Great Britain supporting the United States.

Austria Demands Equality

With Austria demanding arms equality, came a rejection by Paraguay of the league committee's recommendations for an arms embargo unless Bolivia stopped the Gran-Chaco war.

A cancellation by Great Britain of the 1935 World Naval Conference seemed certain as coolness developed with the United States and Japan over the 5-5-3 naval ratio. Ramsey MacDonald told Commons that "certain developments" in the last 26 hours made it impossible for him to make any public statements on naval talks at the moment.

The German Berlin delegation was on its way to Rome in an attempt to seek an agreement with France for financing the return of Saar mines to Germany as the Rhine valley plebiscite neared a climax. The vote is scheduled for January 18.

To Curb Labor's Power

Washington, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Administration officials received confidential advices this evening that steel, textile, and automobile managers made a gentlemen's agreement to unite in curbing the power of organized labor, the United Press was informed.

The reports cast a shadow over steadily improving business conditions and present a threat to Roosevelt's hope for an industrial peace.

SEDALIA SINGERS TO APPEAR HERE

Nationally Known Greensboro Negro Chorus to Give Performance Here Sunday.

The Sedalia Singers, famous Negro chorus from Greensboro, are scheduled to appear in Memorial hall Sunday at 3:30 p. m., according to Harry Riggs of the University Y.M.C.A.

The program is being sponsored by the local "Y" committee headed by Riggs. He announced yesterday that no admission fee would be charged for the program, but a free-will offering will be taken during the performance.

Started at Negro School

The Sedalia Singers were organized several years ago at a colored school near Greensboro and at present the organization is being directed by Miss Amy P. Bailey. Dr. C. Hawkins Brown is manager of the group.

Several tours have been conducted by the Negro chorus in the last few years. Their appearances in New York and Boston attracted wide attention and the group gained rapid recognition throughout the country.

The New York Times praised the singers' quartette as one of the best ever to appear in New York City. Their appearance in Symphony hall, Boston, brought favorable comments from the Boston newspapers, including The Boston Evening Transcript, The Boston Herald, and The Boston Globe.

Alma Gluck and Frieda Hempel, famous concert singers, were very free with their praise of the Sedalia Singers with their famous versions of Negro spirituals.

PHI-MEN CENSURE ANTI-WAR PARLEY

Unruly Members Hurl Verbal Rebuffs as Discussion Waxes Warm; Objectors Fined.

By the close vote of 25 to 23, the Phi Assembly passed, at their meeting last night the bill: Resolved, That the Phi Assembly condemn the work of the Anti-war Conference.

The bill concerning the status of the Finjan was suspended indefinitely.

Heated Discussion

Representatives Wylie Parker, Charles Poe, James Martin, and Winthrop took part in the rather heated discussion of the bill. The words "communist organization" and "red meeting" were heard frequently.

The motion that the Phi Assembly help the Anti-War conferees in sending a delegate to Geneva was smothered amid a storm of objections. It was this motion that led to the action taken by the Phi condemning the work of the recent conference.

New Members

Three new members were introduced at tonight's meeting and eight men were initiated and added to the roll.

A final vote was taken on the question of whether or not to hold a formal dance. The concensus of opinion in both the Di and Phi favored an informal affair.

Tryouts for the Mary D. Wright debate will be held tonight in New East at 7 o'clock.

The bill for discussion at next week's meeting is: Resolved, That all laws prohibiting the sale and advertisement of contraceptives be abolished.

Rickenbacker Predicts Transoceanic Flights With Co-operation Of European Powers

"I Think We'll See Trans-Atlantic and Trans-Pacific Service in Three Years," Says American Flying Ace; Says Engineers Will Stimulate Flying Business Beyond Conception.

New York, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American war ace who recently completed a flight from Los Angeles to New York, 3,111 miles, in 12 hours and four minutes, predicted a trans-oceanic air service in the near future. His average speed was 215 miles per hour. The distance between London and New York, by water, is 3,334 miles.

"With proper co-operation from the English and French," he said, "I think we'll see trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific service in three years. I predict that the success of American engineers will stimulate long range airplane service to Europe and the Orient, beyond their conception. In Europe, they have just awakened to the progress we are making here."

"America Way Ahead"

America, Rickenbacker asserted, is "way ahead of Europe" in the manufacture of airplane engines and equipment, with the possible exception of the manufacture of large engines, of 1,500 horsepower, or more, which are mainly produced in the British Isles, and used for large "flying boats."

What American engineers and manufacturers actually have done, in speeding up airplane motors used in transport planes, the United Press was told, is to "move California east, to a point corresponding with Pittsburgh, and Miami to a point far closer to New York than before."

European countries, Rickenbacker observed, should feel that they must keep up with America in the development of air equipment and facilities, so that distances may be shortened, improving international relations.

"Such co-operation from Europe would eliminate petty intrigue and selfishness," said Rickenbacker, "and insure peace."

No "Stunt"

Rickenbacker observed that his recently completed flight from New York to Miami and return was not staged for "stunt" purposes, but "to prove that you don't have to have a racing plane to show phenomenal speed."

"The flight proves, further," he continued, "that we can get speedy service in from New York to Miami, from New York to New Orleans, and Chicago to Miami. In a year, we'll jump the speed of air transportation and mail service 100 per cent. The speed of transport plane engines has been boosted from 120 miles to 200 miles an hour, knitting the country closer together. The people will appreciate that as time goes on."

He expressed "surprise" at the apparent failure of British fliers to establish remarkable records in the recent flight from London to Australia. This race,

Student Recital

The University Music department will present in recital, Wednesday at 4 p. m., in Hill Music hall, several of the more advanced students, it was announced yesterday.

The program will include Palmgren's "May Night," Chopin's "Waltz C sharp," and Widor's "Second Symphony Pastorale" among others.

Students participating will be pianists Catherine Hodges, William Bracy, Jane Forgrave, Lee Sistare, and violinist Jane Ross.

SEVEN ENROLLED FOR PH.D. DEGREE

Five Graduate Students from State College in Raleigh Take Courses Here.

Seven candidates for the degree of doctor of philosophy are enrolled in the graduate school of the Consolidated University of North Carolina this year, W. W. Pierson, dean of the graduate school of the University at Chapel Hill, announced yesterday.

A graduate student in the Consolidated University is one who takes courses in more than one of the three institutions in the consolidation.

Seven Interchange

This year five graduates from State College in Raleigh have classes in the University at Chapel Hill, and two of the students here take courses in Raleigh.

Dean Pierson regards this increase as "a significant point in the experiment in mobility of students and faculty and the effort to mobilize the teaching and research power of the University system without duplication of those resources."

As Dean Pierson's statement indicated, this mobility is not confined to students. Dr. H. T. Lefler of the history department of State College is in Chapel Hill this quarter teaching a course on the American colonies.

DI SENATE VOTES FAVORS PENSION

Group Decides to Have Informal Dance with Phi Assembly.

The Dialectic Senate met last night to discuss final plans for the Di-Phi dance. President Gibbes re-opened the bill which last week was voted in favor of a dance to be formal. After a battery of discussion it was decided that the dance be informal.

The freshman debate was postponed till next quarter. Those trying out for the Mary D. Wright debate next Tuesday night are Senators Mullen, Kendrick, Ward, and Weaver.

The bill: Resolved, That divorce is a social asset, was tabled till the next meeting. The bill: Resolved, That a law should be passed in the United States' Senate providing for old age pension, was discussed and passed.

Reports were given by Senators Russell on finances, Eagles on the dance, and Weaver on the ways and means which held a meeting after the regular senate meeting.

Bids were distributed at this meeting. The chaperones for the dance will be announced soon.

Those initiated into the Dialectic Senate last night were Charles Manning, Joe Young, Jr., Henry Clark, Jr., John McRae, Jr., and Robert Baker, Jr.

FASCIST PUTSCH INVESTIGATED BY FEDERAL PROBE

General Smedley D. Butler Asked To Head Brown Shirt Activities in U. S. Is Report.

POST PRINTS STATEMENT

New York, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Following an alleged statement by Major-General Smedley D. Butler that he had been asked by a group of wealthy New Yorkers to lead a right wing Fascist movement in this country designed to set up a dictatorship in Washington, a congressional probe was ordered.

Thorough Investigation

The committee in charge promised a thorough investigation of all Fascist activities in the United States and claimed that enough evidence of Brown Shirt movements here had been uncovered to justify such an act as followed the inspection of the alleged subversive movements specified by the ex-marine.

The committee in executive session this afternoon began its probe by questioning Butler and Paul C. French, the reporter who recorded the Butler statements for the New York Post. Other witnesses also appeared before the congressional board.

FRANK R. M'NINCH TO LECTURE HERE

School of Commerce to Bring Federal Power Commission Chairman Here Dec. 5.

Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, will deliver a lecture here December 5 sponsored by the University school of commerce.

McNinch will discuss the purpose and duties of the Federal Power Commission with regard to the regulation of the electric utilities.

Several Lectures

A number of lectures on topics of current interest and importance in the field of economic affairs are being planned for the winter quarter by the school of commerce.

David Lillienthal, director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, and Dr. C. T. Murchison, on leave of absence from the University faculty, now director of the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, have promised to deliver lectures here during the year.

Correspondence is being carried on with several other noted leaders and experts with a view to their appearance here.

F.D.R. Confers with Southeast Governors

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 20.—(UP) — Governors of several southeastern states converged on the Little White House tonight for an informal discussion with President Roosevelt.

The heads of Georgia, Alabama, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia came here from Atlanta where they were in session in connection with a meeting of the Southeastern Development Board.

The visit was short and primarily social, although interrelated problems of the states and federal government were briefly touched on, it was understood.

PARAGRAPHICS

And just because the Phi gives a dance it's no sign the members will want to be recognized from the floor.

If the Di WILL Discuss Divorce Bill, they'll find, speaking of alimony, it still is an expensive proposition.

Mutual dependence: the literary societies on the activities of Huey Long, and the paragraphing trade on both.

The South Is Not Represented

Additional statistical analysis of enrollment, furnished by the registrar's office, corroborates the DAILY TAR HEEL's position that a readjustment of tuition charges for out-of-state students is sorely needed in the very near future.

Compiled by Assistant Registrar Ben Husbands, the following table represents the increasing percentage of our enrollment that is coming from other states. The greater number of out-of-state students that is flowing into the University at present compared with that of even so short a time as five years ago is readily apparent from this table:

1928-29	16.76 per cent
1930-31	25.09 per cent
1932-33	27.09 per cent

While the 1932-33 percentage of out-of-state students is probably an all-time high, the percentage for this quarter is 25.92. This means that already this year one-fourth of the student body is made up of non-residents.

Now, where do these non-residents come from? We pointed out in these columns previously that the states of New York and New Jersey each send more students to Carolina than the entire number of circumjacent states put together. The following figures bring out this fact even more forcibly. They show the declining percentage of non-residents from the states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

1925-26	81.74 per cent
1928-29	54.20 per cent
1932-33	33.82 per cent

And for the fall quarter this year, the percentage of out-of-state students coming from the above southern states has declined another 9 per cent, to 24.59.

What, then, does this rather complex mass of figures mean? It means that our out-of-state enrollment has been increasing by leaps and bounds, but that it is being recruited from the northern states. The southern states are no longer keeping pace with those above the Mason-Dixon line in the number of students they send.

The question is by no means one of restricting the enrollment from the northern states. The University is fully as anxious to keep the number of students that northern states are sending as it is to secure an addition to its enrollment from the southern states. But it is also very anxious to see that we attract a fair proportion of out-of-state students from the south. The reason that this is not being done is clearly because of the policy of a uniform tuition differential. The sooner that is readjusted, the better.

Internal Reform In the Y. M. C. A.

In an attempt to solve some of the problems which have beset the organization since the first days of this quarter, the leaders of the respective cabinets met under the leadership of J. D. Winslow, president of the University Y. M. C. A., and decided on a rather radical change of policy.

Up to this time the meetings have been held, not as separate units, but with the group as a whole meeting together. All three groups have several times prepared programs, but when the hour for the meetings came it was decided that due to the lack of attendance, it would be more advisable to meet at one group. In this way the three groups have lost a great deal of their unity.

At the meeting yesterday the group decided that henceforth the three cabinets would meet separately, regardless of the number present at each. It was also decided that parliamentary procedure would be strictly adhered to for the purpose of giving some sense of a closely knit group to the cabinet meetings.

Attendance at the meetings has been large only on few occasions—when elections are held and when banquets, smokers, and other entertainments are given, for instance. In spite of this, students who attend only at these opportune times clamor loudly when their names are mentioned as not being eligible for publication in the annual as bona fide members. In an attempt to rectify this, the group yesterday decided that two consecutive unexcused absences would automatically be grounds for dropping members from the cabinets. Beginning next Monday night rolls of members present will be drawn up, and from those lists the memberships in the cabinets will be determined. Committees will be formed, and the three cabinets will be molded into strong, organized groups with membership limited to those who demonstrate their interest by attendance.

Now at last the Y. M. C. A. cabinets are off on the right foot. Perhaps the meetings at times will not be as large as they have in the past, but at least the cabinets will be sure that those who attend are working for the welfare of the organizations. This forward step, with the progressive policy adopted last spring, should provide that definiteness of organization which the Y. M. C. A. has long needed.

He Wouldn't Fall in Line

The dismissal of Dr. Ralph E. Turner from the University of Pittsburgh has become more a teapot tempest than Chancellor John Bowman ever intended at the time the professor was ousted. Besides the chancellor, the American Association of University Professors have embroiled themselves, and the Pennsylvania Security League is demanding a senate investigation.

Two divergent views are held as the reason for Turner's dismissal, according to the Pittsburgh Post: one, "because of his religious attitude," and the other, "because of his liberal views." No substantiation for either has come from the University itself, but it seems very unlikely that religion is anything like the primary cause. There is sufficient evidence that his "liberal views" may be interpreted as opposition to the Democratic party, since David Lawrence, state chairman of the Security League, claimed that a sustaining of the charges would undoubtedly mean that the Democratic members of the legislature would not vote to appropriate a penny for the institution.

It's the same old stone wall that nearly all state institutions have to fight. Either the academicians run the schools according to the political concepts of those in power at the time, or out they go. There will never be a danger of state universities becoming hotbeds of liberalism as long as state legislatures hold the purse-strings.

Merrily We Roll Along

In the midst of numerous predictions of the return of prosperity to the nation, and especially to North Carolina, a dispatch comes from Kinston to reveal the first bit of actual evidence. Tobacco growers around Kinston have received more for their 1934 tobacco crop than for any in the past, heads of the tobacco board of trade stated yesterday. By the time the season ends, they will have received between eleven and twelve millions, it appears, besides hundreds of thousands of dollars additional coming to them in rental and agricultural adjustment administration in Washington. Fifty per cent of the Lenoir county farmers have marketed all their 1934 tobacco.

These figures present a tangible proof to the people in the state that we are coming out of the depression, for the price of tobacco goes hand in hand with prosperity in North Carolina. Yet only through the confidence of the people in going ahead will this advance become anything other than temporary.

SPEAKING the CAMPUS MIND

TO THE EDITOR:

Carolina's 1935 football schedule has been announced and Carolina's supporters have set in with all their fury. The University athletic officials have picked up V. M. I. and Maryland as replacements for Kentucky and Georgia.

Some may not see much difference in the pair to be played and the pair played this year. The Cadets of the Virginia Military Institute can boast quite a record this season, having won probably one game. The Old Liners possess a corking good team, but not up to the standard of either Kentucky or Georgia.

This season the Tar Heels were playing a suicide schedule and so possibly next year they are planning a let up. But certain games with Old North State schools furnish that breather effect.

What the students and the alumni and the Tar Heel supporters elsewhere want is a big intersectional game for Coach Snavely's fighting eleven. The team has shown it has got what it takes to compete with the best in any section. A scheduled battle with any large northern school, such as Pennsylvania, Columbia, Yale, or Princeton, would not be any breather for the northern team.

The University needs the publicity which it would gain through a big football game. The gridiron is one of the leading drawing cards for any institution so why not let North Carolina capitalize on it? Barclay would be more than assured of an All-American berth this season if we had tackled some big university in some other section of the country.

We realize that it takes several years to get a contract with one of these large schools. Next year Georgia is breaking its contract with Yale. Why not try, at least, to get Carolina to fill in the opening? The officials should start working now for some big intersectional games for the Tar Heels; and if the higher officials do not wish to sign up Carolina with some big school, it is up to the students and alumni to see that something is done about it. —ELMER he asserted, was a "demonstration of the lack of effectiveness," he said.

America, Rickenbacker said, has developed, in its airplane research, a "peace-time industry" that can be utilized for purposes of war in an emergency. This country, he pointed out, is in a position to produce many planes on short notice, capable of doing great damage in times of war.

Bermuda and the Azores are considered by Rickenbacker as the "focal points" of future trans-Atlantic air service. He envisioned regular service between Los Angeles and Hawaii, San Francisco and Hawaii, and Portland, Ore. and Hawaii. The Hawaiian Islands would be the center for movements of transport ships to New Zealand, Australia, Japan, and the Philippines, he predicted.

Hamp to Play in Raleigh

Johnny Hamp and his orchestra have been engaged to play for the "1934 Gridiron Ball" in the Raleigh Memorial auditorium Wednesday night, November 28, from 9:30 until 2 o'clock.

The dance will be informal and script.

DUKE ORCHESTRA TO PLAY FOR HOP

Sophomore Officers, Executive Committee, and Six Assistant Leaders to Be in Figure.

The sophomore class has scheduled the annual sophomore hop for Saturday evening in the Tin Can from 9 until 12 o'clock.

Lee Brown, who succeeds Nick Laney, the "Crooning Halfback," as the leader of the Duke Collegians, will furnish music for the affair.

At a meeting of the class last week assistant leaders for the dance were elected who, together with the class officers and the executive committee, will make up the personnel of the figure.

John Rainey, president, will lead the figure; Bunn Hearn, Jr., vice-president; Jack Bower, secretary; George MacFarland, treasurer; and Marvin Allen, student council representative, will be the other leaders.

Assistant Leaders

The six assistant leaders are as follows: Jim Finlay, Jack Cay, Tracy Spencer, Billy Lamm, Ben Carlisle, and Jim Poindexter.

The men who now constitute the executive committee were released recently by the class secretary. These men are: Reed Sarratt, chairman, Julian Warren, James Bingham, John Kendrick, George Underwood, William Priestly, Jerry Kisner, Phil Kind.

E. G. Goodman, John Framer, Wilborn Davis, Eli Joyner, Ed Herring, Julian Bobbitt, William Credle, Herbert Osterheld, Bill Daniel, Charles Daniel, Henry Lewis, and Joe Grier.

Editor Gaskins would make no statement to the press.

Economics Comprehensives

Seniors planning to take comprehensives in economics or commerce this quarter will meet tomorrow morning at assembly period in 216 Bingham hall.

Women's Glee Club

The weekly meeting of the Women's Glee Club will take place this afternoon in Hill Music hall, from 5 to 6 o'clock. Attendance will be checked.

Freshman Photo

All members of the freshman class are to meet in front of Manning hall at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning for the Yackety Yack pictures.

Commerce Freshmen

Dean Carroll will meet freshmen of the commerce school in Memorial hall this morning at the regular chapel hour.

Reserves And Frosh Team Fight Hard In Scrimmage

Moore and Dunham Run Hard for Reserves In Close Scrap.

Shaffer Is Expected to Be Ready For Virginia Game.

A scrimmage between the freshmen and varsity reserves featured yesterday's grid practice in Kenan stadium.

Wally Dunham, reserve quarterback, broke through the frosh line on a spectacular 70-yard dash for the first score. Martin kicked the extra point from placement.

The first year men tallied a few minutes later when a frosh lineman intercepted Martin's pass and ran 60 yards behind perfect interference. Burnette sent a beautiful dropkick between the uprights for the extra point.

Last Tally

The final touchdown of the scrimmage came after George Moore, reserve back, made a long run to put the ball in scoring position. The yearlings put up a stubborn defense; however, Bell was able to score on a line buck from the one-yard marker on fourth down.

Coach Snavely's first string team which brought Carolina the state championship last Saturday watched the reserves battle the frosh from the sidelines. Captain Barclay, "Hump" Snyder, and Jim Tatum acted as

At 6:30 tonight a list of the semi-finalists and those drawing byes will be posted at Emerson field announcing the matches for tonight. The program for this evening will take place in the Tin Can starting at 8 o'clock.

Today's bouts will be eight minutes in length and decisions will be rendered for a fall, time advantage of at least 30 seconds, or a referee's decision. No overtimes will be allowed in any bout.

Betas And Law Gain Play-Offs On Mural Grid

S. A. E. and "Y" Eliminated From Title Consideration; Important Tilts Today.

The grid teams of Beta Theta Pi and the Law School gained positions in the play-offs of their respective leagues in yesterday's intramural football competition as the former defeated S. A. E. 12-0 and the lawyers romped to a 19-0 win over the Y. M. C. A. Phi Gamma Delta and Kappa Sigma also came through with wins to complete the session.

The S. A. E. offensive attempted to advance the ball early by a series of passes, but after completing one, Charley Rose intercepted the second on the 25-yard line and behind quickly - formed interference raced for a touchdown.

Betas Score

The Betas also scored their other touchdown in the first half as Rose again paved the way for the score by intercepting an enemy aerial on his own 15-yard marker. On the next play Tennille dropped back and sent a 35-yard pass into the arms of "Trip" Rand, who dashed the remaining 20 yards for the tally. Both attempts at the extra point failed.

The losers outgained their opponents six first downs to three, lost 45 yards on penalties to the Betas' 10, and completed 11 out of 35 passes to 5 out of 18 for the victors.

Law School successively hurdled its last stepping stone before the play-off by easily subduing the "Y" eleven with a three touchdown margin.

Both teams garnered three first downs. The victors went

FRESHMAN LADDER PLAY IS POSTPONED

No Play Until After Thanksgiving Due to Use of Tennis Courts by Varsity.

Ladder play came to a dead halt yesterday and will not get underway again until after Thanksgiving Day. Due to the necessity of intensive varsity practice as they prime for the tussle with the Virginia netmen, all ladder play has been postponed.

This refers directly to the freshman ranking, but there will probably be no play in the varsity list either, as they will be all tangled up in the struggle for varsity berths on the coming trip.

This unexpected turn of affairs has left the freshman squad in a rather unstable state, and there are many who will await the renewal of ladder disputes with anxiety. The first three, namely, De Gray, Robinson and Foreman, seem comfortably settled; but the arguments burst anew for the positions of fourth and down.

However, it appears that all will be quiet on the tennis front for the next week, no matter the demands of the battling frosh.

HARRIER S.I.C. RUN HERE TO FEATURE BIG COMPETITION

Close Fight Expected for Top Team Honors as Well as Individual Honors.

STARTS SATURDAY, 11 A. M.

Having the best chance of any team within the past two years to wrest the Southern Conference harrier title from the Duke squad, the Tar Heel runners are working hard to get into their best condition.

Since 1931 the Blue Devils have had their own way along the longer distance courses. Last year the Tar Heels gave the men from Durham a fight for first honors, but were not quite strong enough.

Tar Heels Have Edge

This year, the Ransoners have defeated the Devils in their dual meet for the first dual loss of the Dukesters in three years. And this year, the Tar Heels look as if they will annex the conference crown.

This year will mark an introduction of a rotating trophy. Permanent possession will be awarded the first team to win it three times.

Besides the Duke and Carolina teams, the race this year will feature teams from W. & L., V. M. I., N. C. State, and possibly V. P. I.

The meet which is scheduled to start at Emerson Saturday morning at 11 o'clock will again feature a close race for individual honors, this time between Dunaj and McRae.

As a preliminary to the varsity run, the Carolina frosh and High Point high school will run, two teams from each racing.

Jamesmen Begin Strenuous Work For Battle With Undefeated Imps

Yearlings Scrimmage with Varsity Reserves and Tally One Touchdown.

TO PLAY IN DUKE STADIUM

Little Devils Are Classed as Favorites in Important Big Five Frosh Contest.

Coach James sent his yearling charges through a scrimmage with the varsity reserves yesterday afternoon and the Tar Babies did quite well by themselves.

Holding the Snavelymen to two touchdowns, one on a long run, the Babies turned on their own heat and tallied once. Burnette converted the point after touchdown via dropkick.

The yearlings have shown no ill effects from their 33-0 victory over the Virginians, and are now pointing for their big game of the year against the undefeated Duke Blue Imps, to be held next Saturday afternoon in the Duke stadium.

Great Battle

Built up through these past few years as the freshman grid classic of the Carolinas, the game this fall takes on an even greater importance, since the Duke yearlings will enter this brawl in an attempt to salvage at least one victory from the early season athletic competition between the two universities. On the other hand the Babies are determined to follow in the footsteps of their bigger brothers and keep the slate clean.

A standout feature of the past few drills has been the vastly improved work of the second team, which, by virtue of its persistent playing in the scrim-

CAVALIER CAMP HIT BY INJURIES

Numerous Regulars Are Out But Are Expected to Be Back Before Thanksgiving.

University, Va., Nov. 20.—After a day of rest, the Cavalier football squad will start upon an intense program of training for the Carolina battle here Thanksgiving Day.

The Virginia list of cripples is now at its peak. Although many of the injured will be able to play in the Turkey Day affair, there will be several of the regular first stringers who will be on the bench.

Only Hallett, veteran center, and the three tackles who have been taking turns as regulars, Andrews, Haskell, and Trell, would be able to participate in a scrimmage if called on tomorrow.

Leys, star left end, and Seccombe, regular guard, did not even make the trip to Blacksburg last week. Garnett, regular quarter, suffering with a bad leg, sat on the bench until he had to go in for Captain Johnson who was hurt in the second half.

Other injuries include Berger, fullback, and Cardwell, halfback, who may be out of the Tar Heel game; Wilkin and Morton, ends, and Zimmer, guard, who are suffering from slight injuries and within all probabilities will be in shape for the Carolna game.

NETTERS START PREPARATION FOR VIRGINIA CONTEST

Two Positions Yet Undecided on Team That Will Play at Charlottesville.

ROUND-ROBIN IS STARTED

With visions of stalking Cavalier tenniseers, the Tar Heel varsity plunged into intensive preparation yesterday afternoon for their forthcoming Thanksgiving Day battle with the Virginia netmen.

Coach Kenfield, not in the least too optimistic about the prospects of a victory, is planning upon invading Charlottesville with six players, and is at present attempting to determine which men shall make the trip. A round-robin among the varsity players has taken possession of the courts and will continue throughout the week.

Battle for Positions

This round-robin, although it will not have a final say in the matter, will bear weight in the selection of the final two boys to leave with the varsity. The four top ranking varsity stars are virtually assured of going and there are but two disputed positions that will have to be decided during the coming week.

Walter Levitan, captain and the outstanding player on the squad, will be one of the group to entrain for Virginia; and will be accompanied by Harvey Harris, Ricky Willis and Larry Jones. These four form the nucleus of the team and are expected to pull Carolina through to a victory.

CO-EDS WILL BE 'PLAY DAY' HOSTS

To Have Competition in Many Sports; Will Not Attempt Inter-School Rivalry.

University co-eds will be hosts to the women of Duke University, Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Meredith College and Peace College at athletic games or "Play Day" to be instituted here Friday.

Twelve women of each college will represent their respective schools in various sports, including volley ball, captain ball, hat pin ball, bat ball, tennis, archery and tug-o-war.

Non-Competitive Nature

Instead of particular groups from each school competing as a team against the other schools, sides will be chosen, and the sport will be of a non-competitive nature in so far as the supremacy of any one institution is concerned.

Spencer hall and the Chi Omega and Pi Phi sororities will be hosts to the visitors during their stay here.

The first event, taking place at 2:30 p. m. on the freshman field, will be volley, captain, hat pin and bat ball. Two teams at a time, six players from each school, will take part in these games.

Meanwhile, four of the best tennis players from each school will draw partners and engage each other at the varsity tennis courts. The tennis and archery contest will be the only sports in which the winners will be officially recognized, the nature of the two games calling for recognition of individual prowess. In the archery contests, two women will compete from each school.

A hockey game on the freshman field between co-eds of Duke and the women of Meredith will be at 4 o'clock, following which all 72 of the women athletes will engage in a tug-o-war.

Following the field events Spencerites will honor the visitors at tea. Scores will be read and comic prizes awarded the contestants.

Co-eds at Chapel Hill are at present having elimination contests to determine who will represent Carolina.

Over $40 Is Pledged For Peace Delegate

Over $40 is reported pledged for the representation of the University at the Anti-War Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, next month. Carl Thompson, University senior, was selected last Thursday as the delegate from this institution.

At the conference in Geneva, Thompson will be among the many representatives from educational institutions the world over. Phillips Russell, junior, will act as Thompson's alternate.

Thompson was chosen by a group of leaders representing all the campus organizations. The group assembled at the invitation of the continuations committee of the local Anti-War Conference.

All contributions are to be given Arnold Williams, treasurer, at 101 Saunders or 303 Smith.

UNC 1935 Schedule

Carolina's 1934 Grid Schedule has been announced and includes games with V. M. I. and Maryland replacing battles with Kentucky and Georgia. The rest of the list remains intact as this year.

This schedule is only a tentative lineup.

BETAS AND LAW GAIN PLAY-OFFS ON MURAL GRID

into a 13-0 lead at half time after Kuykendall and Williams had each carried the oval across and Alexander had made good on the free try after the second six-pointer.

The Law School scored its third touchdown shortly after the intermission on a play no less than "spectacular squared." With the ball resting on Law's own 20-yard marker Jones received the ball from center, lateralled to Kuykendall, who lateralled to Markham, who likewise sent it to Sewell, who forward passed to Virgil Weathers for a touchdown.

Phi Gamma Delta added another to its win column as an intercepted pass plus a 10-yard jaunt by Keel in the first half brought them a 6-0 victory over Phi Kappa Sigma. The winners outplayed the Phi Kappas by a wide margin, garnering seven first downs to a single.

Two touchdowns by Ison and Steele, one in each half, ended the Kappa Sigma 1934 season with a 12-0 win over Z. B. T. The winners also took first down honors seven to four.

Today's schedule finds plenty of action on tap. . Lewis faces Ruffin, which game should find the Law gridsters very interested spectators, and the undefeated elevens of Sigma Nu and Kappa Alpha meet for the play-off position against Beta Theta Pi in the league championship game on Friday.

The schedule is as follows:

3:30—(1) Theta Chi vs. Chi Psi, (2) Phi Delta Theta vs. Chi Phi.

4:30—(1) Lewis vs. Ruffin, (2) Kappa Alpha vs. Sigma Nu, (3) Swain Hall vs. Old East.

ENGINEERS' PUBLICATION WILL APPEAR NEXT WEEK

The first issue of this year's Carolina Engineer, campus engineering publication, will appear just before the Thanksgiving holidays, it was announced yesterday by Walter King, editor.

The staff will include Monroe Evans, business manager; Jack Crutchfield, associate editor; Luther Britt, feature editor; Ed Gaskill, activities editor; Wyatt McNary, alumni editor; Tom Gordy, art editor; and Robert Van Sleen, exchange editor.

Featured in the first issue will be an article by Tsu-Yuan Koo, Chinese student. Articles pertaining to engineering, especially in this state, will be included.

House, Saunders Return

Dean R. B. House and J. Maryon Saunders returned yesterday from Wilmington, where Dean House made the keynote address Monday night at the first meeting this year of the annual Y.M.C.A. finance campaign.

SOPHOMORE PHOTOS

The sophomore pictures for the Yackety Yack scheduled for yesterday were not taken because of the few members of the class on hand.

The pictures will be taken in the front of South building Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock. All members of the class who want to have their pictures included must be there at this time.

Graham Will Appear At Women's College

President Frank Porter Graham of the Greater University and Rev. Donald Stewart of the University Presbyterian church are scheduled to appear at a meeting of the old and new members of the Y.W.C.A. of the Woman's College in Greensboro Saturday at 6:30 p. m.

Invited to represent the two other universities of the Greater University include E. S. King, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. at Raleigh, Horace Cotton, president of the State "Y," and J. D. Winslow, president of the Chapel Hill "Y."

Carter Williams, president of the Y.M.C.A. cabinets in North Carolina, will also be present at the Greensboro meeting.

the remaining positions, were opened yesterday by Sid Weinstein, the Bronx racqueteer, when he scored a surprising win over Jimmy Johnston in three sets. Weinstein, by consistent plugging, launched his campaign for a varsity berth with a sparkling victory over his experienced opponent.

The other six that are in the do-or-die competition are Mark Lynch, Gene Goodes, Byron Abels, Johnny Dowd, Archie Henderson, and Myers Whitaker. They will go at it again today in hopes of making a good enough showing to warrant departure with the team.

What will have a great deal of influence, probably more than the round-robin, is the consideration of doubles teams. The match with the Cavaliers will consist of six singles and three doubles, and therefore Coach Kenfield has to provide for powerful combinations in that department as well as strength in singles.

With that end in view, it appears that Whitaker who pairs with Jones, Henderson who teams with Willis, and Abels who plays alongside of Harris, have the inside track in the final choice. However, this will likewise not prove the final word in the decision and play this week will be watched carefully.

Wright Debate Tryouts

Tryouts for the Mary D. Wright debate will be held at 7 o'clock tonight in the Phi hall in New East.

The subject of this debate between the Phi and the Di will be: Resolved, That the federal government take over the ownership of our basic industries.

Artillery Troop School

The next session of the 316th Field Artillery Troop School will be held tomorrow in Davie hall at 7:30 p. m.

The subject for this class will be "Instructions and Training of C.M.T.C."

Finjans

Students who did not receive copies of the last Finjan should see George Underwood this afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock in the DAILY TAR HEEL business office.

SELDEN CHANGES NEW DRAMA CAST

Miss McCauley's Illness Necessitates Substitution in Role.

Samuel Selden, director of "Shroud My Body Down," the new Playmakers' production scheduled for December 6, 7, and 8, announced yesterday that Miss Fowler Spencer will replace Miss Annie Lee McCauley in the cast.

Miss McCauley underwent an operation for appendicitis last week and will be unable to continue with the part. She was cast in the important role of the 17-year-old daughter, Lora.

Miss Spencer, who is taking the part, was scheduled to make the Playmaker tour that is being conducted this week. Her part in "The Loyal Venture" was taken by Ellen Deppe, who left Monday morning with the troupe.

mages, has caused the first eleven no end of trouble.

The forward wall composed of Pfeiffer and Meroney, ends; Juliper and Maffitt, tackles; Coffey and Scherer, guards; and Dixon at center, has been playing a hard charging game on the defense enabling it to stop many of the varsity plays before they get under way.

The stellar second team backfield has Graves at quarterback, Henderson and Polinsky at the halfback positions, and Partin at fullback. Every one of these boys resembles a streak of lightning when given the pigskin. Henderson and Polinsky are two of the fastest players on the squad.

Pre-Med Aptitude Test Offered December 7

Test Is Required of Applicants to Enter Medical Schools.

A general aptitude test will be given all pre-medical students by the Association of American Medical Colleges on December 7.

All students who expect of apply for entrance to a medical school by the fall of 1935 are urged to take the examination. The test has been adopted by the association as one of the normal requirements for admittance.

Applications should be made with Dr. R. W. Bost, dean of the School of Applied Science. A fee of $1.00 will be charged each student.

officials for the scrimmage.

The entire Tar Heel squad ran intact yesterday with the exception of John Trimpey who suffered a sprained ankle in the Duke game. Marvin Ray and Lex Moser are being groomed to take his place.

Charlie Shaffer is expected to be in top shape for the traditional Thanksgiving Day clash with Virginia at Charlottesville.

Dormitory Council

A special meeting of the Dormitory Council will be conducted at 9:30 o'clock tonight in Graham Memorial, it was announced by authorities yesterday.

It is urgent that all members be present at this meeting.

Debate Squad

The debate squad met last night to discuss the question: Resolved, That an international agreement be reached to control the activities of armament manufacturers.

Council Decisions

The Student Council in a meeting Monday night heard charges against five students accused of dormitory disturbances.

One of the students was put on general conduct probation for the rest of the fall quarter by the council's action. The other four were place on general conduct probation for the remainder of the fall quarter and for the winter quarter.

The council has received many reports of mis-conduct in some of the dormitories in the quadrangles and asks the co-operation of the residents of these dormitories in maintaining order.

Old Liners Score

College Park, Md., Nov. 20.—The Old Liners have scored 118 points this season and eleven men have figured in the scoring, testifying to the diversity of the Terp attack. Nine backfield men and two linesmen share in the counting.

The Terps meet the Georgetown eleven this Saturday for the first modern clash between the two schools. Again on Thanksgiving Day the Liners have a battle, this time with Johns Hopkins. The affair with Hopkins will be the last of a series of gridiron battles which began back in 1892.

Graduate Students

The reading knowledge of Spanish examination for candidates for the master's degree will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in Murphey hall. Any students wishing to register for the examination should report to the graduate office Wednesday.

MILLER WILL AID COMMITTEE JUDGE ENGINEER PAPERS

Engineering Students in A.I.E.E. To Write in Contest.

Dean W. J. Miller of the engineering school has been named to a committee for the selection of the best branch paper from engineering students in the 18 chapters in the southern division of the A.I.E.E. to be read at the Southern Geographical District convention to be held at V.P.I. in Blacksburg, Va., on April 5 and 6.

Professor S. R. Rhodes, as chairman, of Clemson and Professor J. M. Roberts of the University of Louisville were also appointed to the group. Any engineering student may compete with a paper based on undergraduate work for the certificate of award and a $25 prize given by the national Institute at the annual convention.

The committee will judge the papers for this district. The author must be a student branch member. The date for submission of papers has not been set, but according to Dean Miller it probably will be during the first of March.

Last year W. L. Ridenhour of this University won third place in the competition.

Infirmary

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: George Graves, Tom Jimison, C. L. Stutts, Felix Hamrick, M. E. Smith, John Trimpey, Branch Fields, Paul Whitney, Margaret Ross, Mrs. Raymond Adams, W. D. Wall, Romayne Howard, and John Munyan.

EXTENSION WORK SHOWS INCREASE IN REGISTRATION

Division Enrolls 278 More Students This Quarter Than in Fall Period Last Year.

45 CLASSES ARE ENROLLED

The total registration in 45 extension classes for the fall semester this year is 1,197, Russell M. Grumman, director of the extension division, announced yesterday.

This represents an increase of 278 over last year's fall semester. The individual registration is 676, an increase of 172.

45 Classes

All of the 45 classes except one at Chapel Hill in accounting and one each in Greensboro and Durham for social workers are given primarily for public school teachers.

Tht program of this "in-service teacher training" is to provide for the continuance of the professional growth of teachers, according to Grumman.

Co-operation

In the 42 classes for teachers this year a special effort is being made to co-operate with the state department of education and with the county units in the study and improvement of the public school curriculum. Extension classes fit in especially well with the study program being carried on by the department of education and by the schools.

The bulk of the extension teaching is being done by the five full-time extension instructors in 14 towns selected as centers of instruction. Nine University professors teach classes in eight centers, and one class is taught by Professor John S. Bradway of Duke University. A total of fifteen instructors teach 45 classes in 23 centers.

REVIEW FEATURES UNIVERSITY'S WIN OVER DUKE TEAM

Football Supplement Is Devoted Entirely to Recent Victory.

The tale of Carolina's 7-0 victory over Duke's Blue Devils is set forth in this week's football edition of the Alumni Review.

"Carolina Performs Brilliantly to Crush Duke" reads the headline, and a front page picture shows Buck receiving the touchdown pass from Don Jackson, who does not appear in the photograph.

In the regular column "Quarterbacking Alumni" appears the statement: "Duke supporters made no alibis." In several other places throughout the supplement the decisiveness of the hard-fought victory is emphasized.

Besides the touchdown picture a good action photo of a Jackson-around-end play illustrates the efficiency of the Carolina blocking against the Devils.

So much space is given to discussing the varsity game that the freshman win over Virginia is almost crowded out.

The football supplement to the review is issued regularly every week following Carolina football matches and is edited by J. Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary.

Emory Will Address Geology Fraternity

S. T. Emory of the University department of geology will address the members of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national honorary geological fraternity, tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Emory will speak on "Indian Country," giving the habits, customs and environmental conditions of the Cree Indians, a tribe living in the region just south of Hudson Bay, Canada.

Students and members of the staff of the geology department are asked to attend.

U. S. AGENTS NAB COUNTERFEITERS

Operatives Seize $75,000 in Bogus Cash; Three Members Of Alleged Ring Held.

Tenafly, N. J., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Federal agents walked into the ramshackle home of an artist here today and seized $75,000 in counterfeit currency, machinery, and presses, and arrested two men and a woman.

The raid by department of justice men is the first blow struck at what is described as a wide-spread ring of counterfeiters engaging in activities throughout the east and with headquarters at Newark, N. J., and New York City.

Gideo Giardi, 50, self-asserted sculptor and artist, Arthur Giazano, 22, and Mrs. Mary Pitti were held for questioning.

Robert Godby, head of the special squad that raided the house, said that the federal agents had seized front and back plates used in the manufacture of bogus five, ten, fifty, and hundred-dollar bills.

PHI SELECTS TEAM TO DEBATE SENATE

Winthrop Durfee and Albert McAnally will represent the Phi Assembly in the Mary D. Wright debate to be held the first week in December, Speaker Robert Smithwick announced last night.

Men trying out in the Phi hall last night were Albert McAnally, Francis Fairley and Winthrop Durfee.

Judges were Harry McMullen, Dr. C. B. Robson, and Professor E. J. Woodhouse.

The Phi Assembly will uphold the negative side of the question: Resolved, That the federal government take over the ownership of our basic industries.

Tryouts for the debate with the Asheville Normal School on the munitions question will be held next Tuesday night. One man will be selected to represent each side of the question. The final debate will be held here on December 6.

LIBERAL ARTS SENIORS

All liberal arts college seniors whose last names begin with the letters E through H are asked to report today at the office of the dean of the college of liberal arts to make applications for their degrees and to check their records.

SOPHOMORE CLASS PHOTOS

Sophomore pictures for the Yackety Yack will be taken on the front steps of South building tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. This will absolutely be the last time that an attempt will be made to get pictures of the class.

WARREN DEPICTS SCHOOLS' NEEDS

Secretary of State Educational Association Talks to Local Parent-Teacher Group.

Jule B. Warren of Raleigh, secretary of the North Carolina Educational Association, was the principal speaker Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the Chapel Hill Parent-Teacher Association.

The local P. T. A. organization will co-operate with other state clubs in attempting to influence the incoming legislature to impove the school conditions over the state.

Grave Danger

"Unless the thinking people of North Carolina who are seriously interested in the future welfare of their children get busy right now, there is grave danger that the great investment already made in our schools will be allowed to disintegrate," Warren declared.

He estimated that already this year more than 1,000 teachers have left the profession because of poor pay. A survey is being made to determine the exact number.

"The legislature is going to give the schools and the institutions just what the people demand and no more," he said. "It is up to the people back home to get busy and see that their representatives are correctly informed about the situation. It was pressure from back home that broke the Cherry-Bowie bloc and its $10,000,000 proposal in the last legislature."

He said the school program to be placed before the legislature would include a demand for continuation of the minimum eight months; an increased appropriation, probably around $25,000,000; liberalization of laws regarding supplementary budgets, and protection of the professional qualifications of teachers.

UNIVERSITY CLUB

The University Club will not meet tonight, it was announced yesterday.

Frank Willingham, president of the organization, will appoint a special club committee to entertain the cross country teams which will be visiting Carolina this Saturday.

It was announced yesterday that there will probably be one more session of the club before Thanksgiving holidays.

SEAL DRIVE SET FOR NEXT MONTH

Christmas Tuberculosis Stamps To Go on Sale December 10; Goal Is Set at $400.

The local drive to sell Christmas tuberculosis seals will begin December 10, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. A. M. Jordan, who is in charge of the publicity for the sale.

The goal this year is $400, and 75 cents out of every dollar collected will be used in Chapel Hill for the prevention and relief of tuberculosis.

"In Chapel Hill and its environs are, right now, between 50 and 60 active cases of tuberculosis among people who can't meet their own expenses," Mrs. Jordan said.

Vaccination Ineffective

Against this dreaded disease there is no effective vaccination, and isolation and general methods of hygiene are the only protection physicians can give.

"X-rays to determine its existance," states Mrs. Jordan, "sanitorium treatment for those who can be cured, permanent removal of cases from crowded homes so that infection will not spread, instruction as to the proper measures for protection when cases must stay at home—all this costs money.

"When you are asked to buy these stamps, ask yourself, 'How would you like to have tuberculosis'."

Southern Scene Figures In Four Best-Sellers At Local Bookshop

"Look Homeward Angel" by Thomas Wolfe, Rebecca Cushman's "Swing Your Mountain Gal," Carl Carmer's "Stars Fell on Alabama," and Adams' "America's Tragedy" on List.

Four of the five best-sellers in the Bull's Head, the bookshop next to the book-exchange in the Y.M.C.A., are books on the south or southerners, past or present. "Look Homeward, Angel," by Thomas Wolfe; Rebecca Cushman's "Swing Your Mountain Gal"; "Stars Fell on Alabama," by Carl Carmer; Alexander Woollcott's "While Rome Burns," and James Truslow Adams' "America's Tragedy" comprise the list.

Recently reprinted in a new, inexpensive edition as a Modern Library giant, "Look Homeward, Angel" deals in part with life here at the University during the World War, and is laid principally in Asheville, which accounts to some extent for its popularity here. The author, Thomas Wolfe, is a graduate of the University.

Swing 'em

Rebecca Cushman, the author of "Swing Your Mountain Gal," a book of folk-verse, has been living in and around Chapel Hill for several years, and is widely known in University intellectual circles. Now a resident of Hillsboro, she makes frequent visits to the University.

"Stars Fell on Alabama" is a study of that state by a Yankee professor at the state University, which topped the best-seller lists everywhere throughout the country during the summer and this fall, along with "While Rome Burns," a series of anecdotes and sketches from the pen of Alexander Woollcott, sophisticate and raconteur extraordinary. "America's Tragedy" is James Truslow Adams' contribution to the history of the Civil War.

Rentals

Among the books on the rental shelf which circulate the most widely, "So Red The Rose," a new novel by Stark Young on Mississippi life during the Civil War, is the most popular. Three copies are in nearly constant circulation. Nearly as popular is the Pulitzer Prize novel for last year, Caroline Miller's "Lamb in His Bossom," another southern work. "Stars Fell on Alabama" and "While Rome Burns" are in steady demand

Spann Talks to NSL On Hitler's Regime

Bill Levitt opened the meeting of the National Students League last night by stating that the purpose of the group was to discuss subjects of international importance.

Dr. Meno Spann led the discussion on "Various Aspects of the Hitler Regime."

In his talk, Dr. Spann stated that German fascism was much older, deeper, and wider than Hitler. "To understand the Hitler regime," he said, "one must go back into history, beneath the surface aspects of Germany's condition today."

Following Dr. Spann's lecture donations for sending a delegate to Geneva were received. The donation consisted of $5.12, bringing the amount already collected by the National Students League to $7.12 with a quota of $8.

No speaker has been definitely secured for the next meeting of this organization.

DANCES TO FETE CHIEF EXECUTIVE

President Authorizes Use of Name in Drive Against Paralysis; Affair January 30.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 21.—(UP)—President Roosevelt announced today that he had authorized the use of his birthday, next January 30, for a second series of birthday balls to be given throughout the nation to raise funds to combat infantile paralysis.

The money raised at these affairs will be allocated to certain organizations in specific localities and to research work.

Progress in Fight

Much progress was made in the fight against this dread disease with the funds obtained at the last series of birthday balls.

Reports from all over the nation show that the president's campaign will receive vigorous support. Plans will be devised to have dances held all over the country.

Last winter the birthday balls for President Roosevelt proved to be a great success. All the money raised from the entertainments held all over the United States was donated to for work in one of the south's institutions for the treatment of infantile paralysis.

Craftsmen to Exhibit Glassware Tomorrow

The Venetian Glass Blowers of Columbia, S. C. will exhibit their craftsmanship at the Chapel Hill high school tomorrow at 10 a. m.

These glass blowers have been touring the country with their exhibit for several years and have put on demonstrations before schools, colleges, civic organizations, and the like.

A lecturer will tell of the manufacture of glass both in ancient and modern times, how the different colors are obtained, and the value of glass to the arts, sciences and industries.

Everyone is invited to attend this demonstration. Admission will be 10 cents.

Spanish Reading Tests

Spanish reading tests for candidates for the master's degree will be given at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in Murphey hall.

FOREIGN LEAGUE TO TAKE ACTION ON ARMS PARLEY

Club to Discuss League of Nations' Disarmament Conference in Geneva.

TO DISCUSS LEAGUE'S AIM

The League of Nations' Disarmament Conference to be held in Geneva will be the subject for discussion by the Foreign Policy League tonight at 8 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

A survey of the machinery and purpose of the league will be reviewed before the main topic is brought forward.

Aim to Spread Interest

The group here is endeavoring to interest similar organizations in some of the larger southern universities in a concerted discussion of the problems of foreign relations.

Letters will be sent to most of the important colleges as a means of contact. Thus the league at the University hopes to become the leader of a general movement in the south for the crystalization of student opinion regarding matters of the foreign policy of the United States.

President Agnew Bahnson invites the general public to the meeting tonight. The time for the session will be limited to one hour.

REPORTS INDICATE RED CROSS DRIVE TO REACH QUOTA

Stevenson Announces Subscriptions Amount to $375.

That the quota of 600 members assigned the local chapter of the American Red Cross will be reached this year was indicated by reports handed in yesterday by about 60 per cent of the roll call workers in Chapel Hill and on the campus.

Subscriptions amounted to $375, W. B. Stevenson, executive secretary of the chapter, announced yesterday.

With reports available from four dormitories out of 11 and four fraternities out of 20, Stevenson announced the total received so far from the student body to be $25.30.

Canvassing is being done by six groups. About 40 woman volunteers are conducting a house to house campaign in the town, and the uptown district is being canvassed by the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs.

On the campus the dormitories are being worked by the Freshman Friendship Council. Inter-fraternity Council representatives are campaigning in the fraternities, and office secretaries are soliciting faculty members in the office buildings.

The Carolina Theatre is giving two passes each to the three dormitory workers and the two fraternity workers collecting the largest sums of money.

LEAR AND VAN SLEEN WILL TALK TO A. I. E. E.

The University branch of the A. I. E. E. will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in 214 Phillips hall.

Professor J. E. Lear of the electrical engineering department will discuss sewage disposal at the session. Robert Van Sleen will talk on radio station W4WE.

PARAGRAPHICS

We imagine the 1934 Gridiron Ball will roll better if everyone keeps well-oiled.

It seems as if the fraternity winners in the intramurals are liable to become mixed up with the Law.

After their grand slam last season, it looks like Breadon has dealt the Cards to Wentz.

As Regards Intersectionalism

The replacement of Georgia and Kentucky by Maryland and V. M. I. on the 1935 grid schedule for the Tar Heels has brought forth some adverse comment, the basis of the attack on the change being that North Carolina deserves a more varied schedule including a big intersectional rival.

Students, taking the brilliant 1934 season as a criterion for judging future gridiron capacity, clamor for the hide of Princeton or Dartmouth. In their demand is a definite trace of condemnation of the policy of the Athletic Association which, they think, does not embrace an effort to secure intersectional games of headline importance.

Football schedules are made two or three years in advance. At the close of a victorious season, students clamor for an intersectional schedule for the next year. Then, if the next year is a failure with the same schedule they make noises and grumble about the "tough set-up" which caused the team's inability to come through.

For eight years the Athletic Association has tried to secure big eastern rivals. Trips have been made to New York and New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The reasons for wanting the games were more than financial; they were prompted by the natural enthusiasm of the student body for becoming known and making contacts. The "press agent" idea has had its virtues in this respect.

These intersectional games could not be obtained. The big teams, which had most of their schedules made up years in advance, considered North Carolina too good for a "breather" and not strong enough at the box-office for a featured contest.

The advice of famous football coaches when approached by the University representatives is "stick to your locality." North Carolina can not get a decent guarantee unless it goes to the Rose Bowl, it cannot act as more than a "breather" nor can it become a permanent fixture in the northern schedules because those schools have nothing to gain by relinquishing their set-ups or their traditional tilts.

Some lesser known schools such as Manhattan or Temple could be signed up for games, but the psychology behind intersectional games necessarily embraces more than "making friends at Manhattan." It involves both financial success and publicity. If the University can not get a big rival, then there is no use in engaging a lesser light.

By No Means Philanthropic

Under the impression from those members of the Phi Assembly who have stomach enough to be nauseated at the revolting spectacle of a deliberative body passing such a motion as it did Tuesday night, that the assembly will retract or amend its stand against the anti-war conference, we can only observe that the less said about that ill-fated congregation the better for its own repute on the campus.

Refusing To Be Fools

To avert disorder and possible bloodshed, authorities of the College of the City of New York yesterday allowed to burn the president of the college in effigy at the foot of the college flagpole. The effigy bore a second head—that of Premier Mussolini.

This demonstration, coming as it did as an outgrowth of the expulsion a month ago of 21 undergraduates who staged an anti-Fascist demonstration during the visit of Italian students, on a good-will mission to this country, is significant of a trend of student thought which is making itself felt in a good many quarters. More and more the trend of the college thinker is toward condemning the idea of a dictator.

In the liberal press, in the journals and periodicals conducted by and for college men, the idea keeps cropping up time after time: Down with Mussolini, down with Hitler. In a recent issue of Student Opinion, a college writer condemned the practice, prevalent in Germany and Italy, of arming the youth. He was especially indignant about Nazi Germany, where all the Storm Troopers carry guns, all the youths have six-inch daggers, inscribed Blut und Ehre.

This is encouraging. Can it be that we are now in the midst of a generation of students who refuse to be fooled, who will not allow propaganda to pull the wool over their eyes—who, in short, when the desire for profits becomes irresistible to Europe's nations, and when call to arms is sounded, will calmly think who is paying for the drums and bugles and the shiny uniforms and the brazen-throated orators, will think of that generation which heeded the last call, and will answer: "None for me, thanks?"

Standing Room Only

The Southern Conference, in its annual meeting December 7 and 8, will discuss as one of the topics the conference's attitude toward admittance of new members, a topic which has been in the offing for the past several years. At least one school has asked that the conference take some definite stand, either declaring itself willing to take new members or declaring the gates closed for a definite period.

It is vitally necessary that the conference take some stand on the matter. Several schools have been applying for admittance for some time, and the conference has been more or less non-committal and inactive about making a decision.

President Fletcher has personally announced himself in favor of keeping the conference as it stands. The reason for this attitute is apparent when one remembers that the old Southern Conference was split into the present Southern Conference and the Southeastern Conference because of the unwieldiness of the former organization. While it is unfortunate that several colleges are being left out in the cold, to admit more members to the present conference would be only to defeat the purpose of the recent split, and return the present organization to its former state of unwieldiness.

Overly Emphasized?

(From the Greensboro News)

Now that sports writers have had their say about the Duke-Carolina football game at Chapel Hill last week, two preliminary incidents, one from each of the institutions of higher learning involved, which were lost amongst the headlines and the excitement of the gridiron spectacle itself, may at least get that momentary place in the sun to which they appear to be entitled.

On the eve of the encounter—the biggest game on the schedule, mind you, and with the stakes of victory recognized accordingly—Coach Carl Snavely, speaking to the senior class smoker anent the status of his brightest star, gave this manifestation of relative values:

> Shaffer cannot play, understand that right now; a football game isn't worth the risk in sending him into the game. I think the first time he is tackled he would be hurt, maybe permanently.

Almost at the same time on the neighboring Duke campus, where final preparations were under way for the Chapel Hill invasion and one would expect interest to be at its height, the Associated Press reports from Durham that "less than 300 members of the student body attended the final pep meeting for the game tonight."

The dual exhibition is merely cited and left for special consideration of those Tar Heels who have been perturbed over the emphasis upon football and avowedly feared that other and higher qualities and purposes for which universities are supposed to stand were forgotten or subordinated under the frenzied urge for gridiron glory.

by renters as well as buyers.

"The Postman Always Rings Twice," an acid, pointless novel by James M. Cain, is in fairly constant demand, as well as Ruth Suckow's novel of the middle west, "The Folks." James Hilton's sentimental, whimsical novelette, "Goodby, Mr. Chips" is also popular among those who would rather buy than read.

The quiet seclusion of academic retirement is atoned for by vicarious grimy experiences in the detective stories, always popular with the more intellectual of the professors. Leading this list is S. S. Van Dine's "Casino Murder Case," with R. C. Woodthorpe's "Death Wears a Purple Shirt" running a close second. Other thrillers and chillers of professorial spines are: "A Girl Died Laughing," by Viola Paradise, "Hearken to the Evidence," by H. R. Wakefield, "For the Defense: Dr. Thorndyke" by R. Austin Freeman, and the Dorothy L. Sayers Omnibus.

Unusual this year is the fact that three classes in "Investigations in Teaching" are limited in their enrollment to high school and elementary school principals.

Besides the strictly education courses classes are being given in music, English, history, accounting, sociology, historical geography, and economics.

MEYER MAKES SPEECH TO FORT BRAGG GROUP

Dr. Harold D. Meyer of the sociology department of the University, addressed officers and their wives of the Fort Bragg army post last Tuesday on "Social Problems and the Changing Pattern."

Dr. Meyer's talk was the fourth of a series being conducted this fall at Fort Bragg under the sponsorship of the University extension division. Dr. A. P. Hudson of the English department will go to Fort Bragg December 4 to talk on "Our Homespun Heritage."

GASKINS CALLS MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Finjan staff at 7:15 o'clock tonight in the office in Graham Memorial to discuss plans for the third and final issue of the publication for the quarter.

All members not attending will be dropped from the staff. If anyone is unable to attend, he is to tell Pat Gaskins or Bob Ruark before tonight or leave a written excuse under the door of the office.

ADVERTISING SCALE IS SET FOR PUBLICATION

The Publications Union Board voted yesterday to accept a temporary scale of advertising rates for the Carolina Magazine and the Finjan which was presented by the business managers of the two publications.

The new arrangement, which calls for certain reductions to advertisers signing contracts for several issues, will be in force through March.

Bradshaw Speaks Tonight

The senior class committee on freshman orientation and the Everett dormitory councilors are invited to a banquet tonight at 6:15 o'clock in Graham Memorial. Dean Francis F. Bradshaw will speak on further orientation activities and plans for next year will be taken up.

Les Brown, as leader of a Duke orchestra, will play for the annual sophomore hop Saturday night in the Tin Can.

Bids will be distributed to members of the sophomore class this afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock in the "Y" building, John Rainey announced last night.

Class officers, the executive committee and assistant leaders will make up the personnel of the figure.

John Rainey, Asheville, president, will lead the affair. Other leaders are: Bunn Hearn, Jr., of Wilson, vice-president; Jack Bower of Lexington, secretary; George MacFarland of Charlotte, treasurer; and Marvin Allen of Wilmington, student council representative.

Members of the class executive committee will also take part in the figure.

Band Meets Tonight

The University band will conduct its regular rehearsal tonight at 7 o'clock in the Tin Can, it was announced yesterday.

Only two regular practices remain before the trip to Charlottesville next week to play for the Carolina-Virginia football game.

Earl Slocum, conductor of the band, is anxious to find out definitely who is planning to make the Thanksgiving trip in order that adequate arrangements may be made for transportation. He stated that he would like to carry the full 75 piece organization on the trip.

FERA TO MAKE EQUAL RELIEF COSTS IN STATES

Washington, Nov. 21.—(UP)—The FERA announced the preparation today of a model cost accounting system, designed to abolish inequalities in administrative relief costs between various states.

The system was designed in answer to demands for congressional investigation. FERA officials said that approximately 11.3 per cent of the money they distribute for relief goes for administrative costs.

CAROLINA THEATRE TO SHOW SPANISH PICTURE

"Una Vida par Otra," Spanish speaking picture, directed by Rafael A. Frias, will be presented at the Carolina theatre Sunday night at 9 o'clock.

The picture was produced by a Mexican company with a Mexican cast.

The cast includes Nancy Torres, Gloria Iturbe, and Julio Villarreal.

This is the first Spanish picture to be presented here this year.

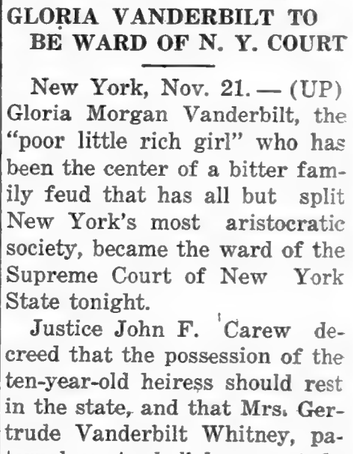
GLORIA VANDERBILT TO BE WARD OF N. Y. COURT

New York, Nov. 21. — (UP) Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, the "poor little rich girl" who has been the center of a bitter family feud that has all but split New York's most aristocratic society, became the ward of the Supreme Court of New York State tonight.



Justice John F. Carew decreed that the possession of the ten-year-old heiress should rest in the state, and that Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, paternal aunt, shall have custody of the child as the representative of the state.

The child may be allowed to spend week-ends with her mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt.

Nathan Burkan, attorney for Mrs. Vanderbilt, announced an immediate appeal to the court of appeals.

Varsity Starts Hard Work Today For Cavalier Tilt

Sub Tackles Groomed To Fill Up Injured Trimpey's Post.

Coach Says First Stringers Must Put Out to Play.

Carolina's football squad took it easy again yesterday spending all afternoon in a tag game and running signals, but will get down to harder work today in preparation for the battle with Virginia Thanksgiving.

The Tar Heels may still not be in condition because of the fast game with Duke last week. Anyway they looked listless and slow in yesterday's drill. However, the reserves continued to show drive, indicating that some are looking forward to action in the Cavalier contest.

Coach Snavely has already told the first eleven that those who don't play real ball will spend most of their time on the bench at Charlottesville. The entire second and third strings are putting on steam and went through a short spirited scrimmage yesterday under the lights at Emerson field.

Shaffer Gets in Shape

Charlie Shaffer took his work along with the rest of the varsity club, alternating in the first backfield with Don Jackson and Harry Montgomery. Shaffer showed signs of returning to form as he got off several nice punts, but his running game was still slowed up by the injured knee.

With Trimpey definitely out of the Virginia game the reserve tackles are already putting on a battle for the first substitute position when Tatum or Evins leaves the game. Marvin Ray and Lex Moser are the leading candidates at present.

Hard Work Ahead

Coach Snavely stated yesterday that the work would get a little harder this afternoon and that tomorrow the first club would get in a tough scrimmage. The reserves will again see ac-

VIRGINIANS SET ON BEATING TAR HEELS THANKSGIVING DAY

Tebell Says Cavaliers Are Possessed with Magical Inspiration to Defeat UNC.

INJURED MEN IN SHAPE

University, Va., Nov. 21.—Virginia's football coaches are coming to believe that there is something almost magical that is inspiring the Virginia Cavaliers as they prepare to play their Thanksgiving Day game against North Carolina's Tar Heels.

Until last Saturday the Virginians regarded the Carolina contest as just another game. But the news that the North Carolinians defeated Duke seems to have gotten under their skins and infected them with a collective ambition to lick the team that licked Duke.

No practice was called for Monday and only a brief workout was held yesterday. But despite a slow start and threatening weather the Cavaliers who reported today appeared to be keen to get ready to turn in their best game when they face the Tar Heels.

Willard Quarles has gone into Berger's place at fullback and is running on the first team with Captain Tommy Johnson, Griff Dodson and Randy Garnett. Vincent Cardwell, who hurt his leg at Blacksburg, will probably be back in action before the week is over.

Mural Groaners Go Into Tourney Finals Tonight

Semi-Finals This Afternoon in Tin Can; Finals at 8 O'clock.

The grunt and groaners began their competition yesterday afternoon in the Tin Can. Instead of the usual moans often heard in wrestling, the hardy matmen only showed in some cases facial expressions of pain. The matches held yesterday afternoon consisted of preliminary bouts for the quarter finals last night. This afternoon will witness the semi-finals with the finals being held tonight at 8 o'clock.

In the quarter-finals held last night the following men were victors: 135-lb class—Finkelstein and Kephart; 145-lb class—Ford, Smith, Ross, Bass, James, O'Connell; 155-lb class—Claypoole, Northcross; 165-lb class—Meyers, Schulman; and in the heavies, Macphee, Sniscak.

Preliminaries

Yesterday afternoon in the preliminaries Finkelstein, Lewis rushed Crowell, A. T. O. off his feet right at the start and downed him in the remarkably short time of 29 seconds. The extreme of Finkelstein's quick work was seen in the match between Claypoole, Beta, and Barker, Everett. In this event, Claypoole floored Barker almost as soon as the men met, but for the remainder of the match he was unable to pin his opponent and won with a time advantage of 7 minutes 50 seconds.

Among the other matches in the 126-lb class, Ehringhaus, Dekes, went the limit with his opponent, Stanford, Ruffin; and at the finish upon consulting the time keepers it was found that Ehringhaus won with a 48 second time advantage or just 18 seconds winning margin. In the same class Tankersley was also a victor.

Among the 135-pounders Finkelstein, Hoyt, Walker and Kephart were all winners by virtue of falls. In the 145-lb class, Ford and Smith won on falls and McDevitt won on a forfeit. James, Claypoole, O'Con-

DOLAN TO SCRAP AT CHARLOTTE

Norm Quarles Also on Pug Program Next Monday Night; Special UNC Tickets.

Swinging into action for the first time since his invasion of Dixie territory, Waterbury Eddie Dolan meets Jimmie Lundy in Charlotte, Monday night, November 26. Dolan will enter the squared circle with 101 consecutive victories in his cap. Most of these wins have been taken via the kayo route. The bout, a ten rounder, is only one of the main scraps.

Fighting in the other star bout will be the former blonde Carolina terror, Hendersonville's Norment Quarles. The ex-collegian is slated to go 10 rounds with one Pete Sumpter.

Through the efforts of Coach Rowe, who is the present mentor of the southpaw Dolan, the Carolina students wishing to attend the evening of six bouts may purchase tickets at half price. "Aggie" Thomas of the Carolina Goody Shoppe is handling the tickets, and those students planning to see the bouts should secure their tickets from Thomas.

FROSH GRIDSTERS SCRIMMAGE FOR BLUE IMP BATTLE

"Dynamite" Dixon Sparkles at Center in Snappy Drill; Forward Passing Stressed.

GRAVES BACK ON FIELD

The first and second yearling teams went through a brief but snappy drill yesterday afternoon on the freshman practice field, with the regular eleven on the offensive throughout the scrimmaging. The first eleven spent most of their time on perfecting their passing plays and punting.

George Graves completed some beautiful flat passes to Walborn, who cut out from behind center and took the forwards while going full speed. "Bunny" Burnette and Ed Oliver also got off a few to blocking back Walborn. On a whole the passing attack showed vast improvement over that displayed in Monday's scrimmage.

Dixon Breaks Through

"Dynamite" Dixon, the scrappiest little center seen around these parts in quite some years, turned in quite a miraculous performance, when he repeatedly broke through the line to block punts, until it was necessary to have the entire center of the first string forward wall to gang up on him.

It was quite humorous to watch his bulky opponents attempt in vain to stop this 150-pound streak of lightning as he shot through the offensive line, like a bullet out of a gun, almost giving the punter a nervous breakdown.

Branch Fields and Graves have recovered from their injuries, taking an active part in the day's workout.

Sigma Nu Gains Play-Off Post; Lewis Blasts Ruffin's Chances

Six to Five First Down Margin Sends Snakes into Title Game with Betas.

LAW WINS DORM LEAGUE

Shysters Aspire to Crown as Lewis Conquers Ruffin in Final Minute of Tilt.

Sigma Nu gained the right to meet Beta Theta Pi for the championship of the fraternity league in the intramural football competition as it eliminated Kappa Alpha by virtue of six first downs to five in a hotly contested game yesterday afternoon.

The other feature of the session saw the Lewis dormitory eleven knock Ruffin out of the title picture with a four to three first down win and thereby leave Law School unchallenged at the top of the league.

Games Hard Fought

Both games were hard played battles from beginning to end and attracted a fair turnout—with the members of the Law School grid team as most interested spectators. In the only other game played Phi Delta Theta scored a 2-0 win over Chi Phi by virtue of a first-half safety. Chi Psi won on a forfeit from Theta Chi, and Swain Hall and Old East incurred double forfeits.

Co-ed Netters Chosen To Represent School

Each of the first four on the ladder, as it now stands, is to report to the main table at the freshman field at 2:30 p. m. Friday to draw lots for her afternoon match. According to the ladder results, these four are, at present: Margaret Jordan, Sophie Stevens, Ruth Covington, and Margaret McCauley.

Big Negro Gridiron Game To Be Played Here This Saturday

Ace Colored Forces from Orange And Chatham to Meet Here.

George Barclay and Don Jackson of the Carolina varsity will officiate at Saturday's annual colored charity football game, it was announced yesterday.

The gridiron classic this year will feature the darkening tornadoes from Chatham county high and the Orange county training school in what is looked to as a real "natural."

The local colored eleven has within its ranks such outstanding flashes as Slim Jones, slashing pivot man; Dalton Whitted and Captain Buddy Stroud, ace hip-swinging and driving backs.

The invaders from over Chatham way are bringing with them several crack backfield stars, who are reported by proper authorities as having made numerous Negro All-American teams last season.

The gate receipts from the game will go toward a fund for employing a nurse to work among the Negroes in the community. The University Y. M. C. A. is making the plans for the game, with Harry Riggs as leader and Billy Yandell and Paul McKee assisting. Admission will be only one quarter.

Weinstein Tops Goodes

The fight for the trip to Virginia is on, and Sid Weinstein seems to have gotten off to a truly flying start. Having stopped Johnston Tuesday, Sid again scored yesterday at the expense of Gene Goodes by 7-5, 6-1 scores to keep his record intact.

Snavely Places Six Tar Heels On His All-Conference Eleven

Quartet of Carolina's Famous Forward Wall Receive Honor; Three Of Dixie's Sophomore Stars Rank; W. and L.'s Smart Field General, Mattox, Is Only Non-North Stater on Pick.

COACH SNAVELY'S CHOICE

PLAYER	Pos.	SCHOOL
Buck	l.e.	Carolina
Tatum	l.t.	Carolina
Barclay	l.g.	Carolina
J. Dunlap	c.	Duke
Kahn	r.g.	Carolina
Isaacs	r.t.	State
Wentz	r.e.	Duke
Mattox	q.b.	W. and L.
Parker	l.h.	Duke
Shaffer	r.h.	Carolina
Hutchins	f.b.	Carolina

Coach Carl G. Snavely yesterday looked over his own club for a while, scratched his head a couple of times, and then picked out what he thought was the best eleven in the Southern Conference.

The new Tar Heel mentor must have been thinking mostly of Carolina's brilliant 7-0 victory over Duke last Saturday as he named six Carolina boys and three Blue Devils on the honor outfit.

Four of the seven linemen are members of the Tar Heel forward wall which turned back Duke, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, and Kentucky without a score. Two more Carolinians rounded out the first backfield.

Barclay and Tatum Lead

Captain George Barclay and Jim Tatum, guard and tackle, respectively, were easy choices for their coach. Captain Barclay is on his way to All-American because of his great work backing up the line, blocking on offense, and leading his outfit to a successful season. Tatum has also been a standout all season with his mighty charging and tackling.

Dick Buck, sophomore end, and Eddie Kahn, senior guard, were the two other Tar Heel linemen on the club. Buck looks on his way to big things with his pass-snagging specialty acts. He won both the Duke and Kentucky games by scores after taking heaves. Eddie Kahn is one of the steadiest men in the conference, turning in a fine performance in every contest.

Other Linemen

The three other players in the forward wall were the boys who gave Coach Snavely's team most trouble during the season. Captain Jack Dunlap, Blue Devil guard and roving center, got the call at center; he slashed through the Tar Heel line time after time to stop the backs before they got started. Earle Wentz, Duke's star end, also distinguished himself with his tackling behind the line of scrimmage, besides being a constant threat on offense with his reverse runs. Isaacs, big State tackle, was named at the remaining post because he was the main item in stopping Carolina's running attack against the Wolfpack.

Charlie Shaffer, Carolina senior back, was the first man to get the call in the backfield. Although he has been out for the past three games, Coach Snavely considers him the finest runner in the state, besides being a great punter and a dependable defensive man.

Jim Hutchins, who along with Buck are the regular sophomores on the Tar Heel eleven, made the fullback position because of

VARSITY DALERS END HARD WORK FOR TITLE MEET

Entire Squad in Fine Condition For Conference Run Here Saturday Morning.

CLOSE RACE IS EXPECTED

Coach Dale Ranson gave his hill and dalers their last hard workout yesterday afternoon by sending them over the five-mile route over which the conference race will be run this Saturday.

The entire squad seems to be in good physical condition and the members are keeping themselves in the right morale as they hope to bring back the Southern Conference title to the Blue and White. The squad has so far turned in an undefeated season, gaining victories over N. C. State, W. and L., V. M. I., and the strong Duke aggregation.

Individual Battle

The Carolinians are slightly favored because of their win over the Blue Devils last Saturday. The Ranson runners will of course have their obstacle, Dunaj of W. and L. Waldrop outsprinted him to the finish in the S. I. C. two-mile run last season, but the General defeated both Carolina aces, Waldrop and McRae, when the trio met in Lexington early in the season. This week-end the "Eds" will be running a familiar course and should give Captain Dunaj plenty of competition. If Bird of Duke participates in the meet he should also worry the General's captain to some degree.

Frosh Basketeers

About 80 freshmen answered Coach Skidmore's call and took their initial basketball workout in the Tin Can at 8 o'clock last night. The men will practice in the future at the same time every night.

SIGMA NU GAINS PLAY-OFF POST

Lewis opened fast, chalking up two first downs before the Ruffin team had seemingly awakened to the fact that they were to be in for a busy afternoon's work. The eventual winners held this margin at half time, and added another at the start of the second before Ruffin began to threaten seriously.

About mid-way through the period the upper quadrangle team began to click and gained two successive first downs, and shortly after another as Ogelsby shot off tackle for a first and ten to even matters. Both teams then fought bitterly, awaiting a break, but it was not until 30 seconds remained to play that Efland completed a short pass over the line to Ferral to give Lewis its fourth down and the win.

Lewis completed 4 out of 24 passes to 3 out of 25 for Ruffin, had five passes intercepted to four for the losers, and was penalized 10 yards on two occasions to 25 yards on three for Ruffin.

The battle between the undefeated teams of K. A. and Sigma Nu presented more fine play, with the tide of advantage seesawing back and forth throughout the entire contest. In Seymour and Whitaker the respective teams had two fine passers, with the former completing 10 out of 22 for the losers and the latter 10 out of 21 attempts for Sigma Nu.

Both teams put on very definite drives to score, but each attempt was repulsed by the stiffening of the opposition's defense. Shortly before the half, Sigma Nu tried a dropkick from the side, but the oval went wide to keep matters scoreless. The victors were penalized a total of 20 yards on a pair of penalties to 5 yards on a single for the losers.

Today's Schedule

3:30—(1) Grimes vs. Kluttz, (2) Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Sigma Chi.

4:30—(1) Z. B. T. vs. T. E. P., (2) Delta Tau Delta vs. Lambda Chi Alpha, (3) Phi Alpha vs. Phi Gamma Delta.

his smashing drives for constant gains over Georgia Tech, Davidson, and Duke. Coach Wallace Wade said, "He is one of the best backs we have played against this season."

Duke's third man on the club was Ace Parker, sophomore back, who put Carolina in trouble time after time with his long punts and passes. He is also a dangerous man when running with the ball.

The only out-of-state player to make the All-Southern Conference eleven was Mattox, brilliant quarterback on Washington and Lee's grid team. Mattox is by far the star of the Generals, who are leading the Southern Conference race for championship honors with a perfect record.

tion this afternoon as Coach Snavely attempts to determine the best men for work against the Cavaliers.

The veteran Carolinians still can recall the tough game a supposedly weak bunch of Cavaliers put up last year. The Tar Heels were unable to tally until the final quarter when the dependable George Moore drove over center. Captain Barclay added the other touchdown a few moments later when he intercepted a pass and ran some 40 yards.

Captain Barclay was picked by the Virginia team as the outstanding player they faced all last year. That included the Rose Bowl champion outfit, Columbia, and Ohio State, a prominent mid-western eleven.

With the state championship already tucked under its belt as a result of the 7-0 victory over Duke, Carolina is looking forward to a possibility of taking the Southern Conference title. Washington and Lee is the only other club undefeated and it must still get by South Carolina before the season closes. At present the Generals hold a slight lead over the Tar Heels because of Carolina's 7-7 tie with State.

PLAYMAKER STAFF SEEKS ACCORDIAN

Instrument Is Needed in "Shroud My Body Down."

Samuel Selden, technical director of the Carolina Playmakers' next bill, Paul Green's "Shroud My Body Down," is on the search for an accordian.

Selden stated that the rare instrument will be used by a colorful old man, one of the outstanding characters in "Shroud My Body Down." The production staff is anxious to communicate with any one who knows the whereabouts of an accordian.

Playmaker authorities admitted that the problem was a hard one for only one accordian has been known to visit Chapel Hill in the last several months. The instrument's rareness compares with the unusualness of the play in which it is to be used, "Shroud My Body Down."

Green's play is different from any of his former plays. One of the most important scenes will show several rooms of the same house with action taking place in each room simultaneously.

NEGROES TO HEAR SEDALIA SINGERS

Y. M. C. A. Has Special Section In Memorial Hall Reserved For Negroes for Concert.

Y. M. C. A. authorities announced yesterday that a special section of Memorial hall would be reserved for Negroes Sunday when the Sedalia Singers of Greensboro appear here.

The singers, a colored chorus from a Greensboro school, will present their program at 3:30 p. m., according to Harry Riggs of the University Y. M. C. A. who is arranging for the occasion.

Good Record

Having sung in numerous cities throughout the country, the Sedalia Singers have established an admirable record. Their performances in New York City and Boston received a great deal of praise from the northern metropolitan newspapers.

The chorus will be under the direction of Miss Amy P. Bailey. Miss Bailey is also an outstanding soloist with the troupe. Dr. C. Hawkins Brown is manager of the organization.

Especially famous is the work of the Sedalia Singers' quartet which was accredited with being one of the best ever to appear in New York. The chorus' versions of popular Negro spirituals account for much of their present wide favor.

Dr. Hudson to Address English Teachers

Will Compare Freshmen Trained In and Out of State.

Dr. A. P. Hudson, chairman of freshman English in the University, will address the English teachers of the southeastern district of the North Carolina Education Association today in Fayetteville.

He will discuss the preparation for, and the performance in, freshman English at the University of North Carolina and will compare the preparation of North Carolina trained freshmen and out-of-state trained freshmen.

He will also give suggestions on the co-operation of high school teachers with freshman English professors, and will present a program for an English curriculum.

Troops Expensive

Raleigh, Nov. 22.—(UP)—The use of state troops during the textile strike in September proved a huge drain on North Carolina's emergency and contingency fund.

The council of the state today approved an allotment of $400,000 from the fund to meet the costs incurred in maintaining guardsmen at the various strike areas.

The exact cost is still unknown. Adjutant General John Van Buren Metts said today that not quite all of the allotment has been spent yet, but that all the expenses have not been paid either.

COUNCIL DECIDES ON DORM AWARD

Point System Presented as Means of Making Grail Award To Best Dormitory.

The Interdormitory Council met Wednesday night to pass on resolutions determining how the Grail award for the best-regulated dormitory should be presented.

Bernard Solomon gave the report of the committee on the point system of making the award. In substance the report was:

Each dormitory shall be allotted 500 points. For each case upon which the Student Council has to act 25 points shall be deducted from that dormitory's number.

Interdorm Disturbance

In a case where one dormitory is found guilty of being responsible for poor conduct in another dormitory 100 points shall be deducted. Points shall be awarded to dorms on a sliding scale for teams entered in intramural athletic contests.

These rules may be found in the Handbook of Intramural Athletics. For the final awarding, a committee of five people, three from the Interdormitory Council and two from the Grail, shall, as it sees fit, award a bonus of up to 100 points to a dormitory with an exceptional record.

YMCA, GLEE CLUB ANNOUNCE PLANS

Thanksgiving Program Includes Songs at Tuesday Assembly; Recital That Night.

The University Glee Club and Y.M.C.A. announced plans yesterday for the special Thanksgiving week program that begins Tuesday morning at freshman assembly.

The Glee Club, under the direction of Grady Miller, will present a special song program in assembly Tuesday morning. Rev. Watt Cooper, assistant pastor of the University Presbyterian church, will lead the devotional.

Organ, Glee Club

The most important part of the week's program is scheduled for 5 p. m. Tuesday in Hill Music hall where a special organ and Glee Club recital will be heard. Rev. O. T. Binkley of the First Baptist church has been asked to conduct the devotional service.

The Glee Club's selections, as announced yesterday, include "Grant Us To Do With Zeal" by Bach; "Hymn of the Pilgrims" by MacDowell, and "All Praise To God" from Wagner's "Lohengrin."

Program New

This special Thanksgiving week program is a departure from past Thanksgiving services conducted here during the holidays. The new program has been arranged largely by Grady Miller of the University Glee Club and J. C. Grier of the local Y.M.C.A.

An attempt was made to secure the University Symphony orchestra to take part in the program but Earl A. Slocum, director of the orchestra, stated that the orchestra would probably not make a public appearance before its regular concert program sometime after Christmas.

LEAGUE SUBJECT OF POLICY GROUP

Work on Nye Investigation Commended; Frazer Speaks on Disarmament Conference.

The Foreign Policy League met last evening in Graham Memorial in discussion of the League of Nations.

President Agnew Bahnson opened the meeting with Ezra Griffin, secretary, presenting the subject before the group.

Don Becker offered a resolution commending the work of the Nye Investigation and a motion was passed to send a resolution to that effect to Senator Nye.

Niles Bond outlined the organization and functions of the league in a brief discussion. Joe Barnett then told of the situation over the world today in connection with the international organization.

Professor K. C. Frazer spoke on the Disarmament Conference. A brief discussion followed.

PARAGUAY TROOPS BATTER BOLIVIANS

Capture of Canadian Area Leaves Bolivia Scant Holdings.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Nov. 22.—(UP) — Paraguayan forces drove their military wedge deeper into Bolivian territory tonight with the capture of Canada, Bolivia's strongest area.

The capture resulted from the fall of Fort Beatriz which controlled the Canadian district. This, with two other smashing Paraguayan victories today, left the Bolivians only a precarious footing in the southern Gran Chaco.

At Geneva, Switzerland, yesterday the Paraguay delegation at the opening of the League Assembly rejected the committee's recommendation for an arms embargo unless Bolivia stopped the Gran-Chaco war.

CO-ED TEA TODAY

University co-eds will give a tea from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock today in Spencer hall for the benefit of visiting women students from Meredith, Duke, Peace Institute, St. Mary's, and the Woman's College at Greensboro.

SOPHOMORE HOP BIDS

Sophomores may obtain bids to the sophomore hop at chapel period and from 5 to 6 o'clock today in the Y. M. C. A. lobby.

There will be no other opportunity to secure the bids.

Train To Make Run For Thanksgiving Game

Special Leaves Pittsboro Street At 7:45 p. m. Wednesday.

A special train will be run from here to Charlottesville for the Carolina-Virginia football game on Thanksgiving Day, it was announced yesterday.

The train will leave here from Pittsboro street at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday and will arrive in Charlottesville Thursday at 3 a. m. After the game the special will leave Charlottesville Friday at 1:30 a. m. and arrive back here the same morning at 8 o'clock.

Train Parked

The train will be parked at Charlottesville from the time it arrives there until it leaves. Tourist pullmans can be occupied while the special is parked until 8 a. m. and after 9 p. m. Standard pullmans will be parked for occupancy during the entire day.

Tickets good in coaches only with a 30-day limit are selling for $5.66 round trip. Tickets permitting passengers to ride anywhere on the train with a 15-day limit are selling for $7.55 round trip.

Students wishing to buy pullmans may price them at the Book Exchange where all tickets are now on sale.

University, Va., Nov. 22.—The Student Union of the University of Virginia will sponsor its second dance of the session on the night of November 29, after the Thanksgiving football game between North Carolina and Virginia.

The dance, which will be an informal affair, will be held in the auditorium of Madison Hall, beginning at 10 o'clock. Bill Morrison and his orchestra from Staunton, which has played several times recently in Charlottesville, will furnish the music.

W. P. Mangum Collection In Library Composed Of Many Queer Specimens

Collection Made by Willie Person Mangum While Consul to China Presented to University by His Wife in 1895.

Grotesque statuettes of angry, leering gods, oddly shaped vases and incense burners, fans and shell belts, queer trinket boxes and sets of porcelain ware crowd the shelves of the Mangum Collection in the University Library.

Visitors to the library come across this oriental display and wonder how Willie Person Mangum came to possess such a collection. The library force knows nothing of its history except that it was presented to the University in 1895 by Mrs. W. P. Mangum in memory of her husband and they are unable to estimate its value.

U. S. Consul

In 1861 Willie P. Mangum, scion of an illustrious Carolina family, was appointed United States Consul at Ningpo, China, and it was from Ningpo, China, many of the delicate wood carvings in the collection come. He arrived at his post two days after Ningpo was captured by the T'aip'ng rebels.

The services Mangum rendered during the chaotic period following the capture of Ningpo earned for him the gratitude of the Chinese people and they presented him with an umbrella, like that borne before mandarians of the first rank. The important part of the collection, however, was acquired in 1868 when Mangum was Vice-Consul-General of China and Japan.

Rare Gifts

The Japanese Prince of Hizen invited Mangum and a Rev. Guido Verbeck to visit his capital at Saga. They accepted the invitation and were the first white men to visit Saga. The Prince of Hizen became the firm friend of Mangum and present-

CO-EDS TO HAVE FIELD DAY HERE THIS AFTERNOON

Duke, W. C. U. N. C., Meredith, Peace, St. Mary's, and U. N. C. Meet at 2:30 O'clock.

EVENTS FOR SPORT ONLY

Athletic preparations on Emerson field have been completed for a co-ed Play Day to begin at 2:30 p. m. with representatives of Duke University, Women's College at Greensboro, Meredith College, Peace Institute, St. Mary's, and the University entering in the events.

The day will begin with volley ball, captain ball, hat-pin ball, and bat ball games. Two teams of six players from each institution will participate in the opening events which will be operated on a non-competitive basis.

No Victors

The tournaments will not decide the supremacy of any one institution, according to announcement of Mrs. J. G. Beard, director of women's athletics. The Play Day will act as a gathering of women of North Carolina colleges for the enjoyment of sport.

After drawing partners, four players from each school will meet each other in tennis on the varsity courts. Only in tennis and archery contests will the winners be officially recognized by the group. The women from each chool will compete for the archery championship.

At 4 p. m. the co-eds of Duke and Meredith will meet in a hockey game on the freshman field. After this event, all 72 of the women athletes will engage in a tug-o-war.

Tea for Visitors

The University co-eds, who are acting as hostesses to the group, will entertain the visitors at a tea immediately following the field events. At that time scores will be made known and several comic prizes will be awarded the victors. Each school is sending 12 girls to the Uni-

U. N. C. GETS GIFT OF REFRIGERATOR

Chemistry Department Receives Electrolux Refrigerator.

Dr. A. S. Wheeler, acting head of the chemistry department, announced yesterday that the chemistry department had received a very welcome addition in the form of an Electrolux refrigerator.

The refrigerator, a product of Servel, Incorporated, was given free of charge.

It has been placed on the second floor to be used by the research students of that floor. This floor has until now been without a refrigerator.

A large wall chart in colors illustrates the mechanism.

Somewhat larger than ordinary household refrigerators, this one is operated by a small gas jet using kerosene for fuel.

The electrical refrigerator on the first floor was installed by the chemistry department and the cold chamber is large enough for a man to stand upright within.

Recently a student had to carry out an experiment in this chamber, Dr. Wheeler stated. The second floor research students will not be able to do this with theirs, however.

Fable of The Turnip

"The legislature is going to give the schools and the institutions just what the people demand and no more," stated Jule B. Warren Tuesday night. "It is up to the people back home to get busy and see that their representatives are correctly informed about the situation."

Mr. Warren is an optimist to say the least. If the legislature had given the people "just what they demand," the institutions of higher learning would not be in their present state of financial debasement. The University's demand was not only ignored, but after the budget bureau, with no discretion under the law save to balance the budget, got through slicing the quarterly payments to the University, it looks like it had never been heard.

As far as the public schools are concerned, the state is already giving $16,000,000 a year for their support, but it is estimated that at least $4,000,000 more is needed. And there is nothing in sight to make us believe that the state can get that money without totally abolishing appropriations to other state departments. The bare fact is that there is not enough state revenue.

The sales tax jumped the revenue up about $9,000,000 but the Turlington act deprived the state of enough income to make up for the difference incurred when the public school system upped the expenses over $10,000,000 annually. We repeat what we have emphasized in these columns before: local units must vote supplements to take the burden off the state even if it necessitates a complete re-organization of these units to allow for less administrative costs and consequently more available receipts from taxes.

Yes, Mr. Warren, we must ask for what we need and we must advise our representatives of the situation. But we'd better tell them to reorganize the inefficient local units and get more revenue before we try to squeeze out something that's not there.

Student Reflex

President A. C. Reynolds' refusal to allow a projected student dance to continue at Biltmore Junior College brought to a head a boil of resentment, long dormant, between the students of the school and the president. The result of the conflict was a strike in which one-third of the student body participated, demanding Reynolds' resignation.

The reasons for this strike go deeper than the president's most recent action. According to Biltmore alumni, the president's "forcing his reactionary conservatism down Biltmore's throat" at every occasion was the main grounds for disagreement. Furthermore, the alumni say, his conservatism went so far as to make him attempt to segregate co-eds and male students in the college. The alumni state that this week's strike was a natural and logical conclusion of the latent feeling of resentment on the students' part.

Biltmore, a rather young institution, is situated in the seat of Buncombe county, a section long regarded as a center of die-hard conservatism. Reynolds was Buncombe county's dry leader in last year's prohibition referendum. This makes any revolt, any self-declaration, an unusual and a courageous thing.

What the Biltmore students are revolting against is intellectual tyranny, or what they feel to be intellectual tyranny. Right or wrong, their protest appeals to us as a symbol of youth's determination to express itself for what it feels is right. It is one of the most heartening signs of this whole autumn that students in our state can feel wronged and still protest.

Tar Heels of Chapel Hill can give thanks that no exact parallel to the Biltmore situation exists on their campus, that they enjoy a freedom unmarred with animosity between the administration and themselves. And at the same time they can congratulate their fellow-students of Buncombe county who know enough to scratch when bitten by insidious fleas.

Liberalism or Mugwumpery?

On Wednesday, November 21, the Durham Sun printed an editorial in favor of the establishment of a new armory for the local machine gun company, setting forth at some length its excellent reasons for advocating this move—notable among which was the fact that "we may need machine gunners one of these days." This fact is all the more interesting because the Sun had printed another editorial the day before, in which it flayed the brothers DuPont for fostering a spirit of competitive armament.

It may be that, with our limited comprehension of internation affairs, we have misunderstood, that the Sun has merely chosen two ways of saying the same thing; that they have a definite stand on the question of armament, and are following it consistently.

However, it certainly seems to us that the Sun has adopted the convenient policy of talking first out of one and then out of another corner of its mouth—thus providing a sop to pacifists, while pacifying the jingoists. Most difficult it is to reconcile the two viewpoints, which, as they stand, leave the Sun open to the charge of mugwumpery of the sort that newspaper readers don't appreciate.

Browsing Room For the Library

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

In view of the fact that you published an editorial on Tuesday, November 20, concerning the possibility of a browsing room for the library, it might be of interest to the students of the University to know that the class in book selection of the school of library science 1934-35 has taken a definite step towards securing such a feature.

In a communication of October 26 to Mr. Downs, the class suggested "that a better reading interest could be fostered through the establishment of a browsing room at the University library. Such rooms have already been inaugurated at Wesleyan, Dartmouth, Harvard, and other universities. To provide a room that is comfortable and pleasant—one that is in a most accessible location—is essential. This would stimulate a recreational reading interest which is not now apparent at the University.

"May we call your attention to the fact that there are not now such rooms in the dormitories—thus indicating that such a need could and should be provided for by the library?"

Mr. Downs was very receptive to the idea and replied that "the proposal to start a browsing room in the University library is an interesting one and I am grateful for the suggestion. The idea has often been discussed in connection with the present building but, unfortunately, no provision for it was made when the library was opened in 1929. At present we lack any suitable space which could be used for browsing room purposes. There is also the matter of expense, undoubtedly amounting to a considerable sum, for comfortable furniture and attractive books for recreational reading.

"Any action in the near future is contingent upon an appropriation which we are asking from the next state legislature for additional stack equipment. If this is granted, we may be able to transfer material from some room now in use and, with outside help, equip a browsing room. In any case your recommendation will be one of the library's objectives for the future."

As a result of these communications, a committee from the school of library science has met with Mr. Downs and at that meeting various items in connection with a browsing room were discussed, such as whether or not to allow smoking and talking, the type of book to be placed in the browsing room, and also the furnishings to be used for such a room.

Further investigations on the part of the school of library science are now being carried on, for the members are in direct communication with those universities which have already established browsing rooms.

Fast Conference Race Expected Here Tomorrow

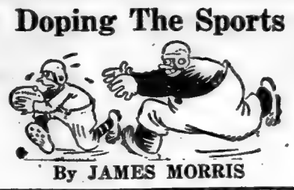
Many Stars to Compete For First in Title Harrier Meet.

The Southern Conference cross country run tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock has all the possibilities of being the fastest race ever staged by the conference and the final results as to team and individual winners appear most uncertain.

The five-mile course record set by Galen Elliott back in 1928 at 26 minutes 26 seconds appears to be much in danger as the list of crack harriers entered are among the fastest the south has ever produced.

The outstanding highlight of the conference gruel will be the fight for the first place honor. Two previous winners will be in the battle along with a number of other able runners. The pair of champs are Dunaj of W. & L. and Bird of Duke. Year before last Bird was first to the finish tape and last year the General beat Bird to the finish in a brilliant last moment spurt which the Blue Devil could not match.

McRae Leads Carolina



McRae of Carolina will be the leading man to compete with either of the above two. This Tar Heel lost to Dunaj this season but only after pushing the Virginian the whole distance.

Waldrop also of Carolina has beaten both Dunaj and Bird in the conference two-mile run last spring. Curlee is the third Tar Heel who has shown this season that he can run and will be among the leaders in the Saturday race.

Heritage and Morse of Duke complete the list of men who

Doping The Sports

By JAMES MORRIS

ANOTHER big Saturday is in store for Carolina's sport fans, beginning in the morning at 11 o'clock. The University will have a chance to see the Tar Baby cross country outfit in action for the first time this season when the yearlings take on a couple of High Point high teams.

Following the frosh-high run, the annual Southern Conference cross country championship meet will be held, finishing on the Emerson field track. This should result in one of the best individual races the south has known, with Ed McRae, Carolina ace, out to avenge his defeat by Washington and Lee's Dunaj in a duel race a couple of weeks ago. Both Dunaj and McRae broke the General course record and both are in top condition to go after a conference record over the Carolina course. Besides these favored boys a number of dark horses may pop up. Bird, former Blue Devil star distance man, may get in action, although he hasn't run any so far this season, while Morse and Heritage, Duke, weren't far behind McRae in the Duke-Carolina meet last Saturday. Ed Waldrop, conqueror of Bird and Dunaj in the conference two-mile run last spring, is another threat along with many other boys on all the teams entered.

SPORT writers all over the state have been commenting quite a bit on the Carolina-Duke freshman football game at Durham tomorrow afternoon as a fitting dessert to the terrific varsity battle served before a record crowd last week in Kenan stadium. Both schools rate their yearling outfits among the best ever, with a number of players that might develop into capable men for Coaches Snavely and Wade's future grid machines. The Tar Babies lost their only game to the State first-year team in a night tilt, while the Blue Imps have a perfect record, including a victory over the same Wolflets. The contest should be a thriller and worth going quite a ways to see.

THE thrill and comment has still not died down since the

WILLIS TOPPLES WALTER LEVITAN IN NET CONTEST

Levitan Turns Aside Ten Match Points Before Bowing to Brilliant Ricky for Top Rank.

CLASH AGAIN AT 3 TODAY

The Carolina tennis world looks up at a new head today with Ricky Willis perched upon the top of the varsity ladder, due to his sparkling victory yesterday over Walter Levitan, the former king.

Willis finally accomplished what he came so close to doing the other week and toppled Levitan with a dazzling display of control in a three-set affair that provided thrill upon thrill during every moment of the encounter. Willis rode to fame on the crest of 6-2, 8-10, 6-4 scores, but a battling opponent turned back ten match points before Willis could score the final counter.

The first set was all Willis as he waded through Levitan with a powerful backhand and a likewise remarkable forehand, dropping only two games. Willis continued to step at the same pace and rushed into a 5-3 lead in the second set, as Levitan tried vainly to stem the tide.

Levitan Rallies

It was during the next game that Levitan started his remarkable performance as he smothered four set points in succession and went on to even the set at 5-all. Willis captured the next game, and leading 6-5 again came one point from victory only to have Levitan pass him and knot the set again.

They divided the following two games and in desperation Willis slashed his way to the fore and held his sixth match point at 8-7. Levitan once again rose to

FROSH HARRIERS WORK FOR MEET WITH HIGH POINT

Two Yearling Clubs Will Meet High School Bunch in Distance Run Tomorrow.

The Tar Baby harrier team will meet the High Point high school tomorrow morning in a pair of dual races. Both schools will enter two teams, an 'A' group and a 'B' group.

The high schoolers possess the strongest secondary cross country team in the state. It is remembered that last year both teams from High Point high emerged victors over the Tar Babies.

Fresh from wins over Davidson and Duke, the little Ransoners will be favorites to cop this meet. Joe Rivers who has won the two meets to date will be pushed to the utmost for the first position but looks good to win out.

Other Tar Baby leaders are: Bronitsky, Anderson, Rowley, Davison, Garland, D'Ascensio, and Gove.

INTRAMURAL MAT TITLE IS WON BY RUFFIN FIGHTERS

Champions Get 150 Points with Two Firsts and a Second; Lewis Finishes Second.

DEKES LEAD FRAT CLUBS

Two winners in the finals and a second place helped give Ruffin the Intramural Mat Championship last night in the Tin Can with 150 points. Lewis with one winner in the finals and two second-placers gained second place with 120 points. The Dekes secured third place with 80 points and were followed up by Sigma Chi with 60 and the Betas and A. T. O.'s who had 50 points each.

In the first bout between Page, Mangum, and Patrick, Ruffin, after five minutes and 50 seconds of struggling Patrick managed to pin his opponent for the 118 lb. championship. In the 126-lb class Ehringhaus, D. K. E., managed by a great comeback to earn a 50-second time advantage over Tankersley, Sigma Chi.

Close Finish

In this match neither man was down at the end of two minutes and Tankersley won the advantage; in the struggle that lasted the next three minutes Ehringhaus was underneath for all but 50 seconds. At the end of this three minute-period, Ehringhaus received the referee's hold and held his opponent underneath for the remainder of the match.

Ford, Ruffin, pinned his opponent, Ross, Beta, in 1:42, the quickest fall of the evening. The

Tar Babies Take Snappy Drill For Football Contest With Imps

Two Strong Freshman Elevens Meet at Durham Tomorrow; Carolina in Top Shape.

STAR IN BLOCKING DRILL

With only one day of practice remaining before their final game against the Blue Imps tomorrow afternoon in the Duke stadium, the Tar Babies appeared yesterday on Emerson field to be at top form and ready to give their best in the forthcoming climax battle.

The first and second stringers romped through their snappiest workout to date. Coach James kept them on the go for two hours, passing and blocking, in which drills the freshmen responded exceptionally well.

Show Improvement

Bob Smith, "Swede" Ax, Al Gaydos, "Pete" Avery, Bob Keeney, "Hen" Bartos, "Birch" Bershak, and "Reggie" Wolfe are the first string linemen who have shown a vast improvement over their past play. As a matter of fact the entire squad has stepped up the pace a notch, and are beginning to resemble a well-drilled yearling football machine.

The second eleven, undaunted by the first string's blocking exhibition, struck back in the passing scrimmage when they repeatedly completed forwards. At the same time they intercepted and knocked down the majority of passes tried by the regular team.

"Bunny" Burnette and Ed Oliver were on the throwing end for the second stringers and completed numerous forwards to "Red" Meroney and "Shag" Thomas. "Birch" Bershak, stellar first team end, snagged a few passes thrown by George Graves, but on a whole, the second team defense was too strong for their opponents.

Bill Tilden Not To Perform Here This Thanksgiving

Long Delayed Doubles Tourney Yet Unfinished; Final Probably after Thanksgiving.

Contrary to annual records, it appears that Carolina will not have the opportunity of witnessing Bill Tilden in action this Thanksgiving. Big Bill has been a yearly feature at Chapel Hill, and his absence will be felt keenly by the tennis fanatics.

There is the barest possibility of other professionals performing and for the first time in the history of pro tennis, there is a choice field for selection.

The recent decisions of Vines, Lott and Stoefen to play for pay has swelled the pro ranks tremendously in prestige and tennis power.

Doubles Postponed

The doubles final, which is resting precariously upon the peak of uncertainty, has been indefinitely postponed and the chances run high that no two players will ever wear this fall's doubles crown.

There is a surprising similarity in the finals of the recently completed singles play and the present one in the doubles tournament. Whereas the darkness halted the singles at 5-all in the final set, the doubles tourney provided a similar anti-climax in a thrilling contest that was also stopped at the same breathless moment.

Whitaker and Dowd staged the first masterpiece when they battled three hours to a deadlock, which Whitaker finally broke the following day to annex the upperclass title. Now

Buck, Star End, Forced To Miss Grid Drill Because Of Hurt Knee

Trainer Quinlan Believes Sophomore Will Be All Right for Game with Virginia.

SQUAD GETS TOUGH WORK

Dick Buck, star flankman of the first string Tar Heel eleven, missed practice yesterday due to an injured knee.

According to Trainer Quinlan's diagnosis, Buck's knee injury is an infected patella which suddenly became inflamed following a bruise sustained in practice several weeks ago. The injury is not believed to be of a serious nature, and "Quinnie" thinks Buck will be ready for action within the next few days.

John Trimpey, who suffered a sprained ankle, will probably be out for the remainder of the season. Marvin Ray and Lex Moser are being groomed to fill the injured tackle's post.

Get Hard Work

Yesterday Coach Snavely pushed his charges through a stiff workout in preparation for the Turkey Day classic with the Virginia Cavaliers at Charlottesville.

Coaches Snavely and Reed worked with the linemen in an effort to improve their blocking and tackling, while Coach Skidmore conducted a passing and pass defense session featuring the backs and ends.

The reserve linemen showed remarkable strength in stopping the offensive thrusts of the first string's forward wall. Charlie McIver and Murray Kanner were outstanding on the reserve team's defense.

Coach Snavely laid emphasis on the fact that there will be an extra lineman to dispose of when the Tar Heels clash with Virginia Thanksgiving. Gus Tebell's Cavalier aggregation plays a seven man line on defense instead of using a roving center to back up the forward wall.

The Tar Heels still are not showing the form needed to take Virginia as they go through their drills in a slow, uninteresting manner. However, Coach Snavely will know better after this afternoon in what condition his charges really are; he plans to give them a tough practice game.

MURAL OUTFITS GET CLOSE WINS

Phi Gams, Delta Tau Delta, Phi Sigma Kappa, T. E. P., and Grimes Get Victories.

A sort of anti-climax program dotted the boards in the intramural football play yesterday afternoon as Phi Gamma Delta, Delta Tau Delta, Phi Sigma Kappa, T. E. P., and Grimes won contests that were all fairly close.

The Grimes-Kluttz battle ended in a 6-6 deadlock, but an advantage of seven first downs to four gave the victory to the former. Passes paved the way for both six-pointers, with B. Swain snagging one for Grimes and Bearn going over for the losers.

Phi Gams Win Again

Phi Gamma Delta gridsters won their second game of the week by downing Phi Alpha 15-7. Goldman made the lone score for Phi Alpha with Toperbaum converting the extra point, while Hodges and Keel registered touchdowns and Johnston an extra for the winner's total.

Though outplayed eight to four in first downs, Phi Sigma Kappa annexed a 6-0 win over the Sigma Chi eleven as Paul Kaveny went over the double stripe in the first half for the only touchdown of the game. The Sigma Chi's came back strong in the later half to score a safety, but could not succeed in adding a touchdown.

The gridmen of T. E. P. met and defeated one of their traditional rivals when a pass from Eisenberg to Ellisberg brought a 6-0 win over Z. B. T. The lone score came in the opening half.

Delta Tau Delta and Lambda Chi Alpha ended their respective seasons with the former coming through to a 7-0 win by virtue of a touchdown and extra point in the first half. McCollom went over for the tally and Shores converted the free try. The losers outgained the Deltas five to two in first downs.

Today's games:

3:30—(1) Phi Delta Theta vs. Chi Psi.

4:30—(1) Fraternity League championship: Beta Theta Pi vs. Sigma Nu.

LOCAL CHILDREN FORM ART CLASS

Drawing and Modeling Class to Meet Tomorrow; Lena Alice Tuttle to Be Instructor.

Lena Alice Tuttle is organizing a class in drawing and modeling for children between the ages of 5 and 10 years who have a natural gift for expressing themselves through drawing or modeling.

Parents of children who wish them to take this instruction under Miss Tuttle are requested to see her in room 123 Peabody this afternoon or tomorrow morning, or telephone her at 6886.

First Class Tomorrow

The first class will be held tomorrow afternoon. Children between the ages of five and seven will be taken from 2 to 3 p. m. and those between eight and 10 will come from 3:30 to 5 p. m.

There will be no laws or methods by which the children will be taught. No check will be placed on the spontaneous expressions of their interests. It is planned to form a class after Christmas of those pupils who show exceptional ability along these lines.

There will be a fee of $1.00 for the three or four classes which are planned before Christmas to cover the cost of materials.

Miss Tuttle, a professional portrait painter, has had much experience along this line.

mighty Big Five championship contest here last Saturday. A number of things made it a grid classic besides the play of the inspired elevens on the field. Both clubs had been coached and scouted several weeks in advance for the contest and neither coach was greatly surprised at the way the game progressed. Coach Snavely had said before hand that he feared Parker's punts but believed Carolina would do most of the ground gaining, while Coach Wade attempted to drill his boys to knock down the deadly pass to Dick Buck and was on edge every time Don Jackson put his arm back to let a heave go.

Another thing that contributed to the nigh perfect play was the quarterbacking and leadership on the field. Harry Montgomery, especially, didn't miss a trick, mixing his running plays nicely and calling passes at the most surprising times. If the touchdown pass on third down had failed the Tar Heels would most likely have won the game with a field goal on the next play. Coach Snavely had already sent Bill Moore in to center the ball back for Babe Daniel to boot.

IT WOULD not be a good idea for Carolina fans and also players to lose sight of the fact that things might be pretty tough up at Charlottesville when the Tar Heels clash with the Cavaliers. Virginia never has been a push-over for any Carolina team and this time will probably be no exception. Year before last a highly favored Tar Heel eleven lost at Charlottesville while last season the Cavaliers battled on even terms for three quarters before finally going down in the final period. A fine example of the result of taking it too easy is the Princeton-Yale tilt last Saturday. The Tigers were spotted some three or four touchdowns before the battle but what a surprise when the Bulldogs tallied in the opening period and then held the lead the rest of the way for a 7-0 win.

PHARMACY EXAMINATIONS

The State Pharmacy Board held its annual examinations at the University pharmacy school Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. These examinations are given to all graduate pharmacy students of this state who desire to receive license to practice.

the occasion and halted Willis on the threshold of victory and continued on to take the set at 10-8.

The final set was a repetition of the others and Willis, hitting hard and true, ran into a 5-2 lead. On his own service, Levitan dropped a 40-15 lead and fell behind at another match point. Defeat again stared him in the face but he continued his deliberate dropping of the ball in the deep court and won the game after stopping an additional match point. Levitan then proceeded to break Willis' service and brought the games to 5-4 with his own offerings coming up.

A tense gathering watched Willis snatch the first three points and go into a 40-0 lead, one point from that elusive victory. Levitan outvolleyed Ricky to do away with two set points but the strain proved too much and Willis followed his drive to the net and forced Levitan to net the ball off his backhand to bring a brilliant contest to a thrilling finish.

Willis, king of the pack, has sportingly consented to defend his position against Levitan, and the two will clash again today in a battle for first. If today's match approaches the calibre of their other battles, it is worth trekking a good distance to witness.

RHYTHM PLUS

Here are just six of the ladies of the ensemble from LeRoy Prinz's chorus of more than a hundred in Paramount's "College Rhythm," coming today to the Carolina theatre. Since, as Prinz says, Hollywood has the most beautiful showgirls in the world and he selects only the most beautiful of those for his film chorus, "College Rhythm's" chorus girls really do represent the cream of the crop. Norman Taurog directed the film which features Joe Penner, Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie, Helen Mack, and Mary Brian.

versity Play Day.

In 1923 the Women's Division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation instituted the Play Day idea. Nearly every women's college in the country has fostered athletic competition for the women since that time. The plan sets the purpose as an athletic competition of playing with instead of against each other.

The following co-eds represent Carolina:

In games — Nancy Lawler, Harriet Taylor, Jean Bush, June Bush, Frances Caffey, Frances Johnston, Blanche Bullock, Jo Oettinger, Jane Ross, T. Daniels, Kate Quigley, Elsie Lawrence, and Evelyn Barker.

Tennis — Margaret Jordan, Margaret McCauley, Sophie Stephens, and Ruth Covington.

Archery—Vivian Grisette and Ida Winstead.

The only information available about the collection is to be found in a sketch of Willie Person Mangum by Stephen Weeks which is based upon an article which appeared in the Carolina Magazine in 1890. Parts of the collection are scattered over the library due to lack of space. Doubtless when the museum is completed the Mangum Collection will go there to join the Westminister gargoyles.

ROBSON TO TALK TO 'Y' CABINETS ON INTERVENTION

Government Professor Will Address Junior-Senior Group Monday Night.

GEORGE ALLEN TO SPEAK

Dr. C. B. Robson of the University government department will address the meeting of the junior-senior Y.M.C.A. cabinet Monday night at 7:15 o'clock in the "Y" building.

Dr. Robson will talk on "Should the United States Give Up Her Policy of Armed Intervention," continuing the war and peace discussion series that the Y.M.C.A. is sponsoring this quarter.

Allen to Speak

George G. Allen, Jr., Carolina sophomore, will lead the discussion on the same topic at the meeting of the second-year cabinet.

Monday night's meeting will be the last before the Thanksgiving holidays, and announcements will be made concerning the Thanksgiving week program that the "Y" is sponsoring jointly with the University Glee Club.

J. D. Winslow, president of the University Y.M.C.A., announced yesterday that the cabinets would begin forming a definite list of cabinet members at the session.

War and Peace

The discussions Monday night by Robson and Allen will be a continuation of the Y.M.C.A. program for war and peace discussions. Don McKee of the sophomore cabinet has been instrumental in arranging the complete program for the fall quarter.

HUSE WILL TALK AT BULL'S HEAD

Romance Language Professor to Speak on Anatole France Next Tuesday.

Dr. H. R. Huse of the romance language department of the University will be the principal speaker on the Bull's Head lecture program Tuesday at 4:30 p. m. in the bookshop, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Huse will discuss "Anatole France and the American Scene," presenting the writer's radical social theories and showing how they have anticipated and influenced contemporary thought.

Social Critic

In his talk Huse will consider France as a social critic, comparing his work to that of H. L. Mencken, former editor of The American Mercury and a noted iconoclast in contemporary American writing.

Dr. Huse will base his lecture on material which he has gathered for a forthcoming book on the author.

As a Bull's Head lecturer, Huse appeared last winter to discuss Jame Joyce's sensational "Ulysses." In his career here at the University, Dr. Huse has written and edited several outstanding books, including "The Illiteracy of the Literate" and others.

Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, will introduce the speaker.

Colored Institutions Will Battle For Title In Charity Game Today

Orange County Training School Will Play Chatham High School This Afternoon at 2 O'clock on Emerson Field in Charity Tilt Sponsored by University Y. M. C. A.

The two teams for this afternoon's championship football scrap between the colored institutions of Chatham High School and Orange County Training School were in tip-top shape last night, according to authorities.

Today's duel, scheduled for 2 p. m. at Emerson field, will see the two outstanding Negro schools of this section meeting in the annual Negro charity football game, sponsored by the University Y. M. C. A.

All-American

The squad from Chatham, which has been sweeping in its foes this fall, brings with it several contenders for second year All-American honors. The local eleven features the offensive threats of Dalton Whitted and Captain Buddy Stroud, crack ball carriers. Slashing Slim Jones at the pivot position is Orange county's bulwark of defense.

Coach Caldwell of the Orange county eleven has brought his team through a hard schedule with an admirable record and today's game marks the climax of his efforts.

Don Jackson and Captain George Barclay of the Carolina varsity will officiate at the classic.

Janitors on the campus have been working at a terrific pace all week, selling tickets for the game. Reserved seats are priced at 25 cents each.

Gate receipts from the game will go toward a fund for employing a nurse to work among the Negroes in the community. The University "Y" has appointed a committee, headed by Harry Riggs, Bill Yandell, and Paul McKee, to arrange for the affair.

John Clark, janitor in South building, was bubbling with praise for the local team yesterday. He vowed "that nothing could stop 'em—that the Orange county bunch is going to take that ball down the field no less than one hundred times!"

FRANCO-RUSSIAN PACT IS HINTED

French Chamber of Deputies Hears Official Say Pre-War Agreement Is Resumed.

Paris, Nov. 23.—(Copyrighted by United Press)—Plans for the resumption of a pre-war Franco-Russian alliance with the Soviet union promising to put troops in the field to aid the French in case of war were mentioned during a Chamber of Deputies debate today.

The alliance came into the open when Leon Archimbaud, reporter on the war budget, declared in the chamber that the understanding was an accomplished fact. The statement caused a sensation in the parliament.

It was in line with similar broad assertions concerning the armaments and security pacts made by French statesmen in the past week, prior to the debate on the huge 1935 war appropriations.

Di and Phi Societies Hold Annual Dance

Beneath a blue and white canopy, members of the Di Senate and Phi Assembly enjoyed their annual dance held jointly last night in the Tin Can.

Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra furnished the music for the affair which was led by Speaker Robert Smithwick of the Phi, and Mason Gibbes, president of the Di.

The event lasted from 9 until 1 o'clock. The blue and white decorations will be used for the soph hop tonight.

PI BETA PHI SPONSORS DANCE AT CAROLINA INN

The Pi Beta Phi sorority was the sponsor of a dance at the Carolina Inn last night from 9:30 until 1 o'clock. Jimmy Poyner and his State Collegians furnished the music.

The sorority held a banquet before the dance. At intermission the pledges for this year were introduced. The dance was formal.

DUKE CO-ED WINS ARCHERY CONTEST

Six Institutions Represented in Play Day Events Held in University Tin Can.

In spite of the bad weather yesterday the co-ed Play Day got under way at about 3 o'clock in the Tin Can.

The archery contest, the only affair held yesterday in which the winner was recognized, was won by Edith Snook of Duke. The University team was second with a score of 206 points to Duke's 284 points.

It was necessary to call off the tennis, tug-o-war, and hockey matches.

Program

The program began with bat ball and archery, followed by volley ball, captain ball, and hit-pin ball.

Schools represented in these contests were Duke University, Women's College at Greensboro, Meredith College, Peace Institute, St. Mary's and the University at Chapel Hill.

A highlight of the contests was the impromptu cheering of Carolina students present indulging in a few of the Carolina yells.

A tea, with the University co-eds playing hostess to the visiting girls, immediately followed the games. At this tea, scores were made known and several comic prizes awarded.

The idea of Play Day was instituted in 1923 by the Women's Division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation. Nearly every women's college in the country has fostered athletic competition since that time. The plan sets the purpose as an athletic competition of playing with instead of against each other.

Representing Carolina were the following co-eds:

In games: Nancy Lawler, Harriet Taylor, Jean Bush, June Bush, Frances Caffey, Frances Johnston, Blanche Bullock, Jo Oettinger, Jane Ross, T. Daniels, Kate Quigley, Kathrine Collins, Elsie Lawrence, and Evelyn Barker. In archery: Vivian Grisette and Ida Winstead.

SOPHOMORE HOP SET FOR TONIGHT

Les Brown and His Duke "Blue Devils" Will Play for Annual Sophomore Affair.

The annual sophomore hop will take place at 9 o'clock tonight in the Tin Can with Les Brown and his Duke "Blue Devils" furnishing the music.

All sophomores who are in the figure for tonight's dance will meet at 5 p. m. with their dates in the Tin Can for rehearsal.

It was announced yesterday that all sophomores who had not secured their bids by last night would have no further chance to get them.

At a meeting of the class last week the assistant leaders for the figure were selected, who, together with the class officers, will complete it.

John Rainey, president, will lead the figures. The other leaders will be Bunn Hearn, secretary; George MacFarland, treasurer; and Marvin Allen, student council representative.

The six assistant leaders are as follows: Jim Finlay, Jack Cay, Tracy Spencer, Billy Lamm, Ben Carlisle, and Jim Poindexter.

The sophomore dance completes a week-end of dances almost rivaling in number those of last week-end. Other hops for this week-end were the Di-Phi and Pi Beta Phi dances last night.

John Duncan of Texas Is Oldest Alumnus

Ninety-Six Year Old Graduate Succeeds William G. Candler.

Younger men are taking their places among the alumni of the University.

Early this month the title of "oldest living alumnus" changed hands, with the death of William G. Candler, 100, who was a law student here 1854-55. John Duncan, Columbus, Texas, who is 96 years of age, now is the oldest graduate. Duncan, a native of Texas, came to Chapel Hill and was graduated with the class of 1859.

Writing to the alumni office here this week, Duncan reports that he is enjoying good health.

"I have just walked half a mile from my home and will walk back," he wrote. "I feel favored and thankful to learn that I am the oldest member of my University alumni."

NO PROGRAM PLANNED FOR SUNDAY AT UNION

Due to the scheduled appearance of the Sedalia Singers in Memorial hall, there will be no entertainment program in Graham Memorial tomorrow afternoon.

Harper Barnes stated that plans had been made to present the Glee Club but they had been canceled in favor of the program in Memorial hall at the same time.

BUSINESS CLAIMS LONG STRANGLING PRIVATE INDUSTRY

Kingfish, on Second Honeymoon, Totally Oblivious to Charges.

New Orleans, Nov. 23.—(UP) Louisiana's business men appealed to the federal government today to smash King Huey Long's dictatorship, which they said was strangling private industry with illegal taxes.

Newspapers, power interests, and sulphur companies entered the federal court seeking injunctions against the state taxes while New Orleanians met to ask a PWA release of $14,000,000 for Louisiana which is being held up for an investigation of Long's new laws.

The Kingfish is on a second honeymoon in Arkansas, oblivious to all. His majesty set out for the woods this afternoon to show the natives how to chop wood.

BROOKS TO PROBE MAGAZINE SALES

All persons on the campus who gave new or renewal subscriptions to magazines to a Miss G. Young about the middle of September have been requested to get in touch with Dr. Lee M. Brooks or Miss Sybille Berwanger in the Alumni building.

Miss Young was at the time soliciting subscriptions in order to get funds with which to enter High Point College.

Dr. Brooks said that if he could hear from these people, it would facilitate the straightening out of a little tangle which seems to have developed in connection with her transactions here.

The request is that subscribers through Miss Young call Miss Berwanger at 3406 or send an interoffice mail note or postcard.

Russian Gold May Bring U.S. Charge Account

Shipments of Gold to America May Establish Russian Credit.

New York, Nov. 23.—(Copyrighted UP)—The prospects appeared brighter tonight that the stream of Russian raw gold from the rich Siberian mines may make available American credits and permit a huge sale of heavy industry products to the Soviet Union.

Shiploads of gold-bearing ore have been dispatched from Leningrad to Tacoma, Washington, in order to build up a reserve of "hard money" for the purchase of American goods.

Through a special process available only in Tacoma, the gold can be refined and sold to the United States government for cash.

ALPHA EPSILON PI INSTALLS PLEDGE CHAPTER ON HILL

New Local Fraternity Elects Officers; Expects to Be Nationalized by June.

MEMBERSHIP NOW IS 17

The newest addition to fraternal organizations at the University has been installed on the campus as Alpha Epsilon, pledge chapter of the national fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Pi.

Organization of the local chapter was begun early in November. The membership has increased from seven, at the time of organization, to 17.

By the permission of Dean F. F. Bradshaw the chapter has become local and needs only the sanction of the Interfraternity Council to become national.

To Occupy House

The entire membership will move to the fraternity house on McCauley street early in February. The following are the officers of the Alpha Epsilon chapter who were elected at the last meeting:

Philip E. Gordon, president; Alex Mark, vice-president; Sidney Gordon, secretary; and Morton Singer, treasurer. Other members of the fraternity include: Morton Feldman, Norman Roth, Laurence Frank, Lee Turk, Edward Horowitz, Robert Mehlman, Herman Steingrup, and Melvin W. Jacobs.

22 Chapters

Twenty-two chapters are included in Alpha Epsilon Pi, with representations at the universities of Cornell, Illinois, Georgia, Virginia, New York, and Pennsylvania.

The local chapter has been assisted since last week in organization by George S. Tole of Washington, D. C. "I expect Alpha Epsilon to become nationalized by June if conditions remain normal," he stated at the last meeting of the chapter.

HEDGPETH GIVES LECTURE ON DIET

Infirmary Doctor Tells Freshmen Appetite Is Best Guide to Tissue Building.

Dr. Hedgpeth of the University infirmary continued the regular Friday series on health and hygiene at freshman chapel yesterday speaking on "Diet and Nutrition."

Dr. Hedgpeth claimed that in the past few years medicine has become preventive instead of a curing practice. Telling of diet and the various diet forms, the infirmary doctor said that as long as we keep in mind that nature is our best guide as to what to eat, the better we will be.

"Diet functions primarily in building tissue," Dr. Hedgpeth said. "As a rule your appetite is the best guide to this," he continued.

Greatest Danger

Claiming that eating too much is the greatest danger, he went on to describe what the normal diet consists of.

"Proteins, carbohydrates, inorganic salts, fats, and the vitamins are most important. We are also most concerned with the A, B, C, and D vitamins. The so called A vitamin tends to prevent infection, B has to do

PARAGRAPHICS

One hundred women take part in Co-ed Play Day Contests. Would we call that a century of progress?

"Train to Make Run for Thanksgiving Game." And what, pray tell, is the hurry?

But if the Chi Psi, Pi Phi, and Di-Phi dances were all laid end to end, we'd be a lot nearer the five-day week.

The Sales Tax Must Stay On

The general sales tax levied on all purchases made in North Carolina is forming a major portion of the discussion prior to the 1935 meeting of the general assembly in January. Members of various state departments point out that at the time of the levying of the three per cent tax the state was in the doldrums of depression, and that the statute has on numerous occasions saved the credit of the state, which is now at the highest peak in many years.

Opponents of the tax, however, maintain that conditions have changed materially since that time, prices on various state products, especially tobacco and cotton, having risen a hundred per cent above what the products were selling for when the sales tax was enacted. These men are demanding that, conditions being improved, the tax be completely abolished or at least reduced to a two per cent level.

Reductions on any tax at the present time would be ruinous to state institutions. Those people who clamor for tax reductions at the first sign of an upturn in business do not realize that the state now is operating on a dangerously low budget total. When the state of North Carolina spends 57 per cent of its total revenue income on state education, yet still ranks second from the bottom in state education appropriations, exceeding only Mississippi, then that is no time for state appropriations to be cut. Nor do these people realize that University appropriations have been cut over 50 per cent in the last five years, the result of an inadequate budget.

The sales tax has been our life blood. Deprive us of it and we weaken. If we weaken much more, we fail.

The Higher Abdication

When invited to play Florida on Christmas Day at Miami Beach, with the offer of a festival in their honor and further promise of the keys to the city, V. P. I. rejected the proposal, saying with true monastic zeal that they could not tear themselves away from their books long enough to play Florida or, rather, that they had to study.

We extend the hair-shirt and the barbed wire bathing suit to the boys, that they may further mortify their stubborn spirits. Evidently they are ecclesiastical enough to believe that anybody who can rule his spirit to the extent of giving up a holiday in Florida is mightier than he who is given the keys to a city, and are bent on so conquering the old will.

No finer spirit moved Erasmus, Zwingli, Luther, Calvin, and the Jesuit fathers. We congratulate V. P. I. on a noble stand, and expect to see them marching along in cawls and sandals, shaven-pated, most any day now.

Play Day For the Co-eds

Charles I had his Cromwell, Caesar his Brutus, Sweet Briar its May Day, and now Carolina co-eds have their Play Day. For one magic afternoon, the air of Chapel Hill rang with sweet girlish laughter; as on the brilliant greensward the co-eds passed the time away with games of all sorts. Laughter and jollity reigned (rained).

In spite of the fact, however, that Jupiter Pluvius was turning the water plugs on Mount Amphibious, as the saying goes, the Play Day was a splendid idea. To bring the feminine element of this campus into closer contact with those from nearby schools, to foster a spirit of friendly rivalry among these institutions, to enable the co-eds to get a breath of the out-of-doors—surely these were worth striving after.

For too long, the co-ed element on this campus has been denied a voice, or at best, only granted a passive one in campus affairs. While this is not a dissertation on pragmatic sanction of woman suffrage, we nevertheless hail the humanizing influence of co-eds on a still somewhat barbarous campus, and are glad that the rain did not dampen enthusiasm.

Huey Long and College Voters

Huey Long, our well-known and otherwise infamous friend from Louisiana, now proposes to seek the presidency of these United States in 1936. In a recent editorial appearing in the Durham Herald which commented on the matter, the author of the piece said that he was confident the people of this country were "on" to the Senator. They are on to him at least to the extent that they will never take his proposed candidacy as anything other than a highly seasoned joke. Further, that if Long succeeds to any degree, it will be through his influence over the collegiate vote. But, concludes the Herald editorialist, "Huey is riding to a great fall if he is counting on the votes of the college youths to lift him to the White House."

We hasten to agree in the assumptions behind this statement inasmuch as we feel confident that nowhere except in Louisiana is there a group of college students who are so under the spell of the Kingfish as to cast a vote for his highly objectionable personality. "Highly objectionable personality" in spite of the magnetism which it is reputed to hold for his audiences.

The first reaction of the college graduate to Long is a skeptical interest in his clowning, which the Kingfish Senator can certainly capitalize upon. The realization that the wearer of the cap and bells is supposed to hold the officious post of a member of Congress brings no little delight to our collegiate observer, but in the end, with his instinctive conservatism, the student is liable to turn away from the Long personality with a sense of having been entertained, but little else gotten out of it in the way of satisfaction. Or, if the student leans socialistically toward something similar to Long's sharing-the-wealth ballyhoo, he nevertheless prefers his pink doctrines expounded in a dignified manner, at least not by a bulbous-nosed lover of camembert cheese. Finally, if the student's interest in Louisiana holds out consistently, he may read enough about what Huey did as former governor of the state—his improvements in education and roads—to conceive even a certain respect for the Kingfish. But that is as far as the college student goes in his penchant for Huey. And Huey goes farther, to the point of endangering what attraction he may have for the masses—in which, of course, the college student is often found.

"Quiet, shy Abe Mickal, studious Syrian star of Louisiana State's football team," to quote from the United Press, "has been placed in the toughest spot of any football player in the country today" on account of Long's insistent election of him to the Louisiana legislature. Mickal is a good example of the finale of Huey Long's pranks, the result of his practical jokes, for Mickal, who was conspicuously absent from the Louisiana session, refused to take Huey's joke in the spirit that Huey probably wished. The result is that Mickal by now has no enthusiasm for the Kingfish's pranks, being on the receiving end of such a razzing for his specious senatorship.

If it proves anything, this goes to show that Huey, in the mind of the college students, carries his clowning too far for their respect of any of the Kingfish ideals. As for his presidential campaign, the enfranchised college student, imbued with the seriousness of 21 and a voice in the nation's affairs, would hardly forsake his Jeffersonian democracy as taught by American history textbooks to "stick one in" for the Kingfish.

Wait And See

The Tar-Mags will beat the Yackety-(now)-Fins so badly in the annual game that it won't be funny.

The other team won last year but they played dirty. Just wait!

WHY LAWYERS GET GREY

The thoughtful, pre-occupied expressions of many of our incipient barristers has from time to time worried us a good deal. But Francis Anderson, one of them, has come through with a case citation which, if typical, does much to explain it. "Cal" stands for California, as in Upton Sinclair, and we don't know what the numbers mean: "People vs. Vereneseckockkockhoff 129, Cal. 497."

HAVE A SEAT

So much attention was called to the fact that a record crowd of over 30 thousand was jammed into Kenan stadium last Saturday for the game that we decided to find out how many people the other assembly-places in Chapel Hill hold. We discovered that Emerson field, formerly the University's main athletic ground, holds five thousand people in the concrete stands, 2,500 to a section. Memorial hall is next with 1,860 people, which seems like a conservative estimate of the number who were jammed in for "The Green Pastures." The Carolina Theatre can—and frequently does—seat 780 people at a time. The Sunday afternoon showing of "The Gay Divorcee" two weeks ago was the last time we saw it packed. The Hill Music hall runs the Carolina a close third with 780 seats, all of which were taken for the concert Henri Deering, the pianist, gave during the first session of summer school this year. The Forest Theatre will hold about the same number, according to Mr. Sam Selden's rough guess. There must have been nearly that many people there the first night of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" several years ago. The Playmakers Theatre seats in its nice soft leather chairs only 345, but there were more people than that in there during the Festival of the Carolina Dramatic Association last April. Gerrard hall seats 543 people and has, we imagine, been full at more or less regular intervals ever since it was built. The Chapel Hill Graded School auditorium has 500 seats—Commencement every year is their big day.

Among the churches, the Baptist has the largest capacity, with seats for about 1,200 people. The Methodist can place 850 on Easter Sunday or whenever else occasion demands, and the Presbyterian seats 300. We couldn't get the Reverend Mr. Lawrence on the phone yesterday, but the janitor at the Parish house estimates 300 as the capacity of the Chapel of the Cross, which seemed to us a pretty low figure. Be that as it may, it's still true that only one person at a time can get into any phone booth in Chapel Hill.

GLORY BE

Now that being thankful is in season, our own nominations of things to be thankful for include: (1) The football team, and the "miracle man" behind it; (2) The fact that exams are still nearly a month off; (3) Thanksgiving vacation — we hope you have a big time.

scheduled to talk on "International Co-operation" at the December 3 meeting of the sophomore cabinet. The speaker for the junior-senior meeting has not yet been announced.

The last meeting of the fall quarter will be held December 10 at which time the cabinets will meet jointly. Plans are being made for this meeting to be in the form of a social affair, probably a supper, "Y" authorities stated yesterday.

Winter Series

For the winter quarter, a complete set of programs on the subject of "Social Disorganization" is being planned. Dr. Harold D. Meyer of the sociology department helped "Y" authorities in arranging the new set of programs. The cabinets will study crime and other forms of anti-social trends.

Plans are being made for the cabinets to make a trip to the state penitentiary in Raleigh. Authorities are also planning to bring a jail warden and a prisoner to one of the cabinet meetings in order that the members may make direct contacts with the subject which they are studying.

Presbyterians Plan Real Turkey Dinner

Church Also to Conduct Bazaar December 5 and 6.

If you are forehanded enough to get your reservation in early enough to Mrs. G. R. MacCarthy or Mrs. M. S. Breckinridge, you will be among those enjoying a real turkey dinner at the Presbyterian church on December 5 at 6:30 p. m.

The price of participation at this gala affair is only 75 cents. Downstairs there will be on display all sorts of food and alluring items that are easier bought than made.

At the flower shop two dazzling damsels will offer peoney plants, bulbs, tubers, rhizones and such from Chapel Hill's select gardens.

On the day following the dinner, you can get your much needed relaxation by sending the children to the grab-bag at the Presbyterian church at 3:30 p. m.

Remember these important events at the Presbyterian church on December 5 and 6.

PILOTS WILL GIVE AIR SHOW SUNDAY

Featured on Program Will Be Parachute Jumping.

An air show, sponsored by C. N. Pickell, local pilot, and Tommy Moore, parachute jumper and pilot, will be held at the Chapel Hill airport tomorrow afternoon.

Featured on the program will be parachute jumping, stunts, and passenger flights.

Tommy Moore, who performed before a Chapel Hill audience last spring, will make another of his delayed drops Sunday. Last spring Moore fell from a height of about 8,000 feet to about 3,000 feet before opening his parachute.

C. N. Pickell, well known among aviation enthusiasts of this community, will do the stunt flying. His bag of tricks includes spins, loops, dives, and other stunts.

Wheeler and Woolsey Star in Show Today

"Kentucky Kernels" Records Family Feud in Banesville.

Antics resulting from their guardianship of a glass-breaking youngster named "Spanky" make up the latest cinematic splurge of Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey, who come to the Carolina Theatre today in "Kentucky Kernels."

Down-and-out vaudeville actors entrusted with the care of "Spanky," Bert and Bob find their job a pretty hard task, and "Spanky" a definite liability — until a couple of lawyers break the news that their ward has inherited the Milford Homestead, way down in Banesville, Kentucky.

The Milford Homestead looks to the boys like a place on Easy street, so they carry "Spanky" into his home and into a feud between the Milfords and their century-old enemies, the Wakefields.

But family feuds are not to the liking of Bert and Bob, and they undertake to bring about a reconciliation between the factions. "Spanky," of course, has to break up the first armistice, and the boys are at it again.

"Kentucky Kernels" introduces "One Little Kiss," a new song; garden party sequences offer a nice set of good-looking girls in new dances. Included in the cast are Mary Carlisle and Noah Beery.

Fast SIC Harrier Run Today

Carolina, Duke To Battle For Team Championship; Starts On Emerson, 11:30

Dunaj, Bird, and McRae Lead Flashy Field; Four Teams Run.

Fastest Group Ever Entered; Record May Topple.

The annual Southern Conference cross country five-mile trot will be run this morning, starting at 11:30 o'clock on Emerson field and finishing at the same place.

Only four teams are entering this year, but the competition will be the keenest ever witnessed in the Dixie harrier record. Two teams will fight on quite even terms to win the conference championship and annex the first leg in the S. I. C. rotating trophy.

Seven stars will lineup for the starting gun, each having an equal chance of breaking the finishing tape first. This group of ace runners is the cream of the crop in Dixie, each man having turned in remarkable records this and past seasons.

Duke vs. Carolina

Duke and Carolina are furnishing the big fight for group honors. The Blue Devils will be defending the conference crown which they have worn for two years without interruption. The Tar Heels are favored to topple the Dukesters from their throne, but pre-dopesters call the outcome a real toss-up.

Carolina downed Duke in the dual meet last week, due to the failure of the Devil fourth and fifth men to come through. But today the Durhamites will have Bob Bird back in their ranks and their hopes double and treble.

Individual Stars

The individual scuffle will be led by Washington and Lee's Dunaj, Duke's Bird, and Carolina's McRae. This trio holds the inside ticket to lead the whole field. Dunaj won the grind last

Cavalier-Tar Heel Rivalry Longest On SIC Gridiron

UNC Holds Chance at Conference Title This Year If South Carolina Wins.

Of all the continuous gridiron rivalries between Southern Conference members the most ancient is that between Virginia and Carolina which will be renewed for the 39th time on Thanksgiving afternoon at 2 o'clock when Cavaliers and Tar Heels do battle in Scott stadium at Charlottesville.

The conference championship is the prize that may be hanging in the balance when this game is played, for the North Carolinians are one of the four teams that have a chance to win or to gain a tie for gridiron leadership in the upper Dixie loop.

If W. and L. Is Upset

Carolina can win the title by defeating Virginia if at the same time Washington and Lee is conquered by South Carolina in a game to be played in Columbia. But if Virginia is victor here next Thursday the Tar Heels will drop below W. & L., Maryland and Duke in conference standings.

A Virginia victory would come as a decided surprise. But far stranger things have happened in this football series that dates back to 1892 and which has been played every Thanksgiving since 1910 save during the war years of 1917 and 1918.

Of the 38 games that have been played between Cavaliers and Tar Heels 21 have been victories for Virginia, 14 for Carolina, with three ties. The Carolinians won last year, 14-0 with a last minute drive, but the Virginians were victorious, 14-7 in 1932 when the game was played in Scott stadium.

Scores for the series are as follows:

1892	Virginia	30, Carolina	18.
	Carolina	26, Virginia	0.
1893	Virginia	16, Carolina	0.
1894	Virginia	34, Carolina	0.
1895	Virginia	6, Carolina	0.
1896	Virginia	48, Carolina	0.
1897	Virginia	12, Carolina	0.
1898	Carolina	6, Virginia	2.
1900	Virginia	17, Carolina	5.
1901	Virginia	23, Carolina	6.
1902	Virginia	12, Carolina	12.
1903	Carolina	16, Virginia	0.
1904	Virginia	12, Carolina	11.
1905	Carolina	17, Virginia	0.
1907	Virginia	9, Carolina	4.
1908	Virginia	31, Carolina	0.
1910	Virginia	7, Carolina	0.
1911	Virginia	28, Carolina	0.
1912	Virginia	66, Carolina	0.
1913	Virginia	26, Carolina	7.
1914	Virginia	20, Carolina	3.
1915	Virginia	14, Carolina	0.
1916	Carolina	7, Virginia	0.
1917-18	War years, no teams.
1919	Carolina	6, Virginia	0.
1920	Virginia	14, Carolina	0.
1921	Carolina	7, Virginia	3.
1922	Carolina	10, Virginia	7.
1923	Carolina	0, Virginia	0.
1924	Virginia	7, Carolina	0.
1925	Virginia	3, Carolina	3.
1926	Virginia	3, Carolina	0.

1928	Carolina	24, Virginia	20.
1929	Carolina	41, Virginia	7.
1930	Carolina	41, Virginia	0.
1931	Carolina	13, Virginia	6.
1932	Virginia	14, Carolina	7.
1933	Carolina	14, Virginia	0.

The little Blue Devils are quite large in size. The forward wall tops the scales at 200 pounds per Devilet while the fast backfield hits 185 as an average.

JOHNSON SHIFTS TO FULLBACK AS BERGER IS HURT

Cavalier Captain Rounds Out First-Class Backfield; Dodson Takes Half Post.

TEBELL GIVES REST TODAY

University, Va., Nov. 23.— Captain Tommy Johnson of Virginia has been shifted to fullback for the North Carolina game on Thanksgiving afternoon. Thus Captain Tommy completes the round of backfield posts for the final grid game of his college career.

When he started with the Virginia varsity Johnson was a fullback. Later he was called on to the quarterback post and he gave the plays through most of the 1933 campaign. This season, with Randy Garnett serving as field general, Johnson has played halfback.

Spencer Berger, regular fullback through the last two falls, had his shoulder dislocated in the V. P. I. contest and won't be one of those in the lineup against the Tar Heels. Coach Gus Tebell first planned to use Griff Dodson, then changed his mind and assigned the team captain to the fullback job.

Johnson Great Back

During the whole of this season, or through as much of it as he was able to play, Johnson has gained ground with more regularity than any of the other Cavalier backs. He has been doing much of the passing and considerably more than his share of the pass receiving. And all along most of the punting has been done by him.

Johnson and Berger are the two lads who scored touchdowns for the Cavaliers to win 14-7 in 1932 when the Tar Heels last performed in Scott stadium. Berger had been looking forward to his third and last op-

WOLFLETS WHIP DAVIDSON FROSH ON MUDDY FIELD

Collegians Win 46-0; Run Wild In First Half But Stopped By Rain in Second.

HOLD CHANCE AT TITLE

Raleigh, Nov. 23.— (UP) — Jupiter Pluvius proved more effective against the offensive attack of the State College yearlings than did the full strength of the Davidson Wildkittens here today as the Wolflets rolled out a 46-0 victory.

The completely outclassed Presbyterian frosh were split to mere threads during the first half as the collegians romped wild in tallying 20 points in each of the quarters.

But with the opening of the second half, rain commenced and the Wolflet drive was dampened to such an extent that they were held to only one touchdown, that coming in the final setto.

"Fish" Hoek, State fullback quite at home in the weather, was the star of the game. Berlinsky and Gadd, in the State backfield, and Helms, in the line, were the leaders in the power drive which the Raleigh team exercised at their own desire.

Although beaten from near the very beginning, the Wildkittens scrapped valiantly the whole 60 minutes. Lafferty and Dennis were the spark-plugs for the Davidson eleven.

This victory gave State a share in the tie which will exist if Carolina succeeds in upsetting the Duke yearlings tomorrow in the Duke stadium. If Duke submerges winner, State will take the runner-up honors.

Murals Postponed

The intramural fraternity league championship game was postponed until Monday afternoon. The other game listed for yesterday at 3:30 will also be played on Monday.

Tar Baby Eleven Battles Powerful Duke Blue Imps In Durham Today At 2:30

FACTS AND GUESSES
By
Bill Anderson

Last week's inspired Duke game practically decided the question once and for all time concerning the sports scribes' choices for mythical teams. And so this column takes this opportunity to name its All-State football team.

End to end, we believe the line to be the strongest ever assembled on Tar Heel soil. The backfield will cause plenty of murmurings, but in trying to establish a well-rounded backfield, one must have, besides a brilliant set of triple-threat men, a toughie who will gladly pave the way for the ground gaining.

The ends, Earl Wentz, Duke, and Dick Buck, Carolina, seem to be the unanimous choices for the flanks. The tackles, Jim Tatum, Carolina, and Pat Swan, Wake Forest, are another pair of stalwarts who would warm the heart of any coach in the nation. Swan may be a surprise choice for this berth, but he is a steady player—hard to take out on the defense, and a real bull when his club is going down the field with the ball . . . remember last year, Pat played rings around All-American Freddie Crawford.

As for the center of the line, if humanly possible, we believe it is even stronger than Carolina's championship setup. Our choice for guards: Barclay, Carolina, and Stanko, N. C. State. Stanko, as a sophmore, clinched All-State, and again looks good for a position. The center is a tossup between Daniel, Carolina, and E. B. Dunlap, Duke; we pick Daniel because he has played sterling ball all year.

At quarterback, we nominate "Ace" Parker who will undoubtedly be heard from nationally before he leaves Duke. This boy has all the necessary attributes of a field-general: he's smart; he can block; he can pass and kick exceptionally well; he can run well in smart company; he's a steady defensive back.

For the halfbacks: Johnny Mackorell, Davidson's shining star, gets one place. He's looked swell whether he was playing against Army or Catawba, and the sports fans are still singing the praises of the Wildcats' best offensive light.

Charlie Shaffer, Carolina, is our choice over Cornelius, for Mackorell's running mate. Shaffer is a triple-threat man who was a thorn in our adversaries' sides all season; that is until he was out with injuries.

Herman Snyder, Carolina, gets our vote for fullback. Besides being adept at ripping the enemies' lines to shreds, Hump was a blocking and tackling gem. He should carry off the state trophy to the best blocking back in a walk . . . when he hits a man, he stays hit.

* * *

Today's Army-Notre Dame contest is the national "headliner." The outcome of the contest should give all enthusiasts a real line on the Army-Navy tilt at Franklin field, Philadelphia, next Saturday.

Although the Irish are due for a great game and are still victory-hungry for a "big time" ball club, we pick the Army.

Jamesmen Attempting To Break Up Duke's Unbeaten Record.

Battle Will Determine Big Five Championship Race.

The day of the most spectacular feature freshman brawl of the year is on hand. This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the beautiful Duke stadium, two of the greatest first-year elevens in the history of the state will face each other on the field of battle, each equally determined and equally confident of winning.

The Duke Blue Imps, unbeaten and untied to date, are favored to emerge victorious over Carolina Tar Babies but only after a hard fought and closely contested game.

Duke this fall has presented a freshman football team which has defeated the outstanding first-year teams in the Carolinas. The Blue Imps are a formidable eleven, who combine a world of speed, power, and trickery on the offense, with a highly developed stonewall defense.

Great Duke Crew

Despite their unblemished record, the fact remains that the Imps have been an in and out team throughout the season. Their first game against Oak Ridge resulted in an easy victory. They did not fare so well in the Wake Forest brawl, being forced to score two touchdowns in the final five minutes of play to win 14-9 over the same team which the Tar Babies had previously beaten to the tune of 33-7.

However, in their next encounter they made a strong comeback to beat the much heralded State frosh, which had just taken the Babies for a ride the week before. In their last battle, they had to extend themselves to the limit to eke out a win over a supposedly weaker Davidson aggregation.

Carolina on the other hand has been a fairly consistent team running up large scores in all its game, with the exception of the game against State, in which they suffered their only set-back of the season.

Carolina Ready

The Babies have shown themselves to be a hard-hitting, scrappy team with limitless capabilities. They have been brought along slowly under the tutelage of Freshman Mentor George James, and the opening whistle should find them fundamentally and physically ready to play far better than they have at any time this fall.

Tom Burnette, Carolina fullback, will be opposing Elmer

FROSH HARRIERS RUN FAST CLUB FROM HIGH POINT

Teams Will Meet This Morning Just Before Start of Varsity Run on Emerson.

HIGH SCHOOLERS STRONG

The Tar Baby harriers will meet the toughest competition of the season this morning when they lineup against the fast-stepping high schoolers from High Point on Emerson field at 11:25 o'clock.

The race will be begun just five minutes prior to the varsity conference start. The yearlings and high schoolers will run the two-and-a-half mile course.

High Point Strong

The High Pointers bring a strong aggregation to Chapel Hill. Last year both an 'A' and a 'B' team outran the Carolina frosh. This year two teams from each are also participating.

The Babies will be trying to continue their undefeated record for the year, having downed Davidson and Duke. Their only remaining dual meet is with Duke next Tuesday here.

The men who will run today are: Anderson, Bronitsky, Eichorn, Braxton, Brown, Chaitken, Darden, D'Ascensio, Davison, Flynt, Garland, Gove, McLean, Jones, Manning, Mazur, Rabb, Rivers, Rowley, and White.

Rain And Wet Field Delay Scrimmage; Work Lightly

Week's Work Finished as Team Takes Today Off; Practice Aerial Defense.

HARD WORK NEXT WEEK

Coach Carl Snavely's plans to give his grid charges a scrimmage yesterday fell through as rain and a wet field made playing conditions dangerous. However, the Tar Heels took a short workout in Kenan stadium, finishing this week's practice for the annual Thanksgiving Day battle with Virginia.

The Carolina squad spent most of the afternoon in a defensive drill against the unorthodox system, which the Tar Heels scouts believe the Cavaliers will use Thursday.

Aerial Defense

A defense against a possible passing attack was especially stressed as Coach Snavely believes his line capable of stoping any kind of running attack. The second string managed to complete several heaves with Jim McCachren on the receiving end of most of them.

The condition of Dick Buck, sophomore end, has still not changed and it is not a sure fact yet that the pass-snagger will be able to see action. Chilly Childers was again moved up to the first string and is being groomed to fill Buck's position if necessary.

Jim Tatum, senior tackle, took it easy with an old injury and since John Trimpey is already definitely out as a result of his sprained ankle, Lax Moser worked in the first string line.

Backfield Uncertain

The first backfield remained a toss-up as Charlie Shaffer continues to show improvement both in running and kicking. The senior ace alternated with Don Jackson and Harry Montgomery. Jim Hutchins and Hump Snyder filled out the rest of the backfield.

Coach Snavely will give his boys another day off this afternoon in order that they might have a chance to see the yearling football game. The squad will return for work Monday, starting the final days of this year's practice.

While the Tar Heels are taking it easy in the anticipation of an easy victory, Coach Tebell continues to put his boys through hard inspired drills in preparation for a possible upset.

Although their record has been spotty to date, reports from the Virginia camp state that the Cavaliers have at least one good game in their systems and are on edge to spring it on Carolina.

Looking over the past records fans are certain that most anything might happen when Carolina and Virginia meet. The contest has in the vast majority of times been close with each team having turned in many surprise wins.

VA. COURT CARD WILL OPEN SOON

Cavaliers Start Basketball Season in Two Weeks; Journey To Chapel Hill Jan. 15.

University, Va., Nov. 23.—Virginia's basketball season will open in just two weeks, and the Cavalier schedule tentatively includes 20 games, two of which are to be played before the Christmas recess, according to James G. Driver, the University athletic director.

Bridgewater College will come here to start the play on the night of December 7, and on December 22, after the first term examinations, the Cavaliers go to play the University of Richmond.

Virginia's basketball team for the coming season will be built around seven veterans from last year's squad, Henry Sturm, captain, Orlin Rogers, Lucian Cox, and Ned Booker, forwards; Davis Marrett and Harold Gist, guards; and Roy Smith, center.

Already Much Work

Court practice has been in progress for six weeks, and while Gus Tebell, head coach, has been giving most of his attention to the football squad, Reggie Hudson, former varsity center and first year coach, has been training the basketeers.

The complete tentative card follows:

Dec. 7: Bridgewater at home.
Dec. 22: Richmond at Richmond.
Jan. 5: South Carolina at home.
Jan. 7: Richmond at home.
Jan. 10: William and Mary at home.
Jan. 12: Washington and Lee in Lexington.
Jan. 14: Duke in Durham.
Jan. 15: North Carolina in Chapel Hill.
Jan. 18: V. M. I. in Lexington.
Jan. 23: V. P. I. in Blacksburg.
Jan. 29: Randolph-Macon at home.
Feb. 2: Maryland in College Park.
Feb. 6: Navy in Annapolis.
Feb. 8: Roanoke at home.
Feb. 11: William and Mary in Williamsburg.
Feb. 13: V. M. I. at home.
Feb. 15: W. & L. at home.
Feb. 18: V. P. I. at home.
Feb. 20: Maryland at home.
Feb. 26: W. & L. at Lynchburg.
March 1, 2, 4, 5: Southern Conference tournament.

Tar's Sloppy Joe Is Rarin' To Go!

Tar-Mag-Yackety-Fin Gridiron Masterpiece Comes Off Wednesday, December 5.

By AMBROSE

Chapel Hill, N. C., November 74.—(PU)—Coach William Xavius McDade, rip-snorting old mentor of the peerless straight-eight Tar-Mags football outfit, announced today that Sloppy Joe Sugarman, cripple-threat halfsack, will be in shape for the colossal Tar-Mag-Yackety-Fin gridiron masterpiece to be held on Emerson field Wednesday afternoon, December 5.

Uncle Billy, one of the most colorful and janitory old football figures that ever passed out at a football game, was jubilant that his Newark Nocker would be on the field, in togs. "There's nothing like a short tog," commented Uncle Billy.

Dorsal Out

News from the Yackety-Fin camp reported that Wilbur Dorsal, the biggest Fin on the team, was laid up with Playmakers cramp. Last year Dorsal played a bang-up game at mud-guard, slinging it high, wide, and handsome.

Out for blood, slashing, growling, snarling, biting, barking, sneering, the vicious Tar-Mag Cobras are waiting sullenly for the game, anxious beyond all description to avenge the dirty, underhand playing of the Yackety-(then)Buc snakes of last year. It was six to nothing, but the Tar-Mags were by far the best team, garnering 89302938 first downs to the dirty Yackety-(then)Buc's 258.

Dilly Til Hill

Pickle Dill, stellar left-out, Stony Barrier, money-back, and Last Page, bone-crushing fishing-tackle, are all in the pink of condition. The rest of the team are well-red, also.

Agnew S.A.E.F.F. Bahnson, who got honor-system mention on the all-Room 209 Graham Memorial team last year, will get his face crushed in the opening stages of the encounter, rumor has it. Coach Cow Barnes, of the Yackety-(now)Fins, says he'll be lucky if he isn't killed by the Tar-Mag business staff. "It's a dirty Webb," he snarled.

year, barely nosing out Bird, who had won it the year before. McRae has developed into one of the south's outstanding distance men. He was beaten by Dunaj early this season but not before forcing the General to really step and break the record for the course they were running. McRae also surpassed the existing record.

Four other aces stand out as possible "dark horses" in this meet today. Each of the quartet is likely to cop the first honors. Two Blue Devils, Heritage and Morse, and a pair of Tar Heels, Waldrop and Curlee, are these men who have shown this season that they can run and may climax their fall record by taking the S. I. C. race. Waldrop has beaten both Bird and Dunaj, in the two-mile run last spring in the conference track meet.

Fast Time

Whoever captures the first position will have to set a fast pace to win. The record set by Galen Elliott of Carolina in 1928 at 26 minutes 26 seconds is in great danger of being shattered this morning when this particularly fast field lines up.

This meet will mark the introduction of a rotating trophy, which will become the permanent possession of the school who captures the title race three times first. Medals will also be given to the first fifteen men to finish and silver track shoes to the winning team.

The complete list of the men entered are as follows: Washington and Lee—Dunaj, Kingsbury, Williams, Carl, Pettigrew, Ballard, Massangale; N. C. State—Fallon, Hines, Womble, Curry, Davis, Bishop, Burnour, Estes; Duke — Heritage, Bird, Morse, George, Ferris, Dator, Ford, Everhart, Webb, Womble; Carolina—Allen, Aderholt, Bower, Curlee, Conte, Gammon, Gardiner, Haywood, McRae, Waldrop.

"Service To Students Is Objective Of UNC Laundry," Says Humphrey

Collecting and washing six thousand shirts a week and returning them to their owners is only a small part of the work of the University laundry. All kind of clothes are sent to it and they must all be given the proper treatment.

Woolens, for example, are washed with a special oil soap to keep them soft, and bath towels are dried in a special hot air machine to preserve their nap. Attention to details such as these is what makes the business of rejuvenating the soiled clothes of Chapel Hill one which requires the employment of more than 90 workers and the use of complicated machinery.

Object Is Service

"The University laundry," according to J. W. Humphreys, its new superintendent, in his first interview with the DAILY TAR HEEL, "has for its primary objective service to the student body. It is governed by the trustees of the University and all profits from it go to the University."

Humphreys succeeded "Dean" G. H. Paulsen last March as superintendent of the laundry. Paulsen, who was found dead in a room over the garage at his home on Vance street July 17, had been superintendent of the laundry for 12 years.

Humphreys pointed out that all laundry fees are determined by the trustees and are relatively stable. He discountenanced the rumor that they vary from week to week subject to the whims of the administration.

When asked to reply the accusation that the laundry has been withholding price lists from the students, Humphreys explained that this is not true.

Price Lists Distributed

"We have distributed price lists to most of our dormitory agents; they are supposed to give them to the students," he said. "The reason that we have not had more of them printed and given to the students is that we believe the cost of printing these lists exceeds the demand for them. Many students receive price lists and never read them."

The laundry was established in 1921. At that time it was located where the Building department is now. Need for more space and the fact that the nearby coal chute soiled clothes made it necessary to move the laundry in 1925.

Humphreys answered the question asked by so many people: "Why was the new laundry built so far from the campus?" by saying that it was put upon the best piece of University land available, so as not to be close enough to be objectionable and at the same time convenient to both customer and employee.

"We are here to serve the student body. If anything we do is not understood, all anyone has to do is call us and we will gladly help him," concluded Humpheys.

Stillman and Clifford will pave the way for the "Texas Jack-Rabbit" Buckler, All-American back from last year. The boys from Indiana will try to match this combination with Robertson, center, and Elser and Melinkovich behind the line. The club which shows the greatest concentration and mobility of strength at the psychic moment should carry off the victory laurels.

Tar Baby Eleven Battles Strong Duke Blue Imps

Hackney, Duke quarterback once more, but this time in a greater light. Both were standouts on their respective North Carolina high school teams, and it is quite a pleasant coincident that these two boys turned out to be the star backs on their college frosh elevens.

Andy Bershak, Art Ditt, and George Graves are the Tar Babies who have shone in the past and who should do some spectacular playing in today's game, while Woody Lipscomb, Ike Eakins, and Sam Gardiner are the Duke yearlings who are bound to play the major role for their team.

Over at Duke as well as at Carolina this battle has taken on a major aspect. The Duke band will be on hand to blare forth the school songs of both universities, and the field amplifying system will be going full blast to describe just what is happening on the gridiron.

The starting lineup for the Carolina frosh will have Bershak and Wolfe at ends; Bartos and Keeney at tackles; Ax and Smith at guards; Avery at center; Walborn at blocking back; Oliver and Bricklemyer in the halfback positions, and Burnette at fullback.

Gertrude Stein to Talk At U. of Virginia

Gertrude Stein, the noted American author and dramatist who has recently returned to her native land after an absence of 30 years, is to lecture at the University of Virginia Tuesday night, January 8.

POLICE OFFICIALS TO MAKE PROBE OF LAW EVASION

City Manager Will Not Reveal Plan for Investigation of Football Card Gambling.

SUSPECT PROMOTERS HERE

Chapel Hill police are immediately beginning an investigation of "football card" gambling, stated City Manager J. L. Caldwell yesterday.

Mr. Caldwell made it known that the investigation would be conducted quietly according to ordinary police procedure, but he refused to divulge along just what lines the inquiry would proceed.

Law Violation

"The sale of football cards," he said, "is the promotion of gambling, which is in violation of the North Carolina law. The city of Chapel Hill intends to use every means in its power to find out about the operation of this sort of gambling, which cannot be tolerated as it comes in conflict with student welfare."

The city manager stated that he had good reason to believe that some of the cards were being printed and distributed by local promoters.

"We have been curious for a long time about this so-called football card racket," declared Mr. Caldwell, "and the town authorities are determined to protect the students here from any form of racket which comes into Chapel Hill to strip them of their money."

The football card organizations, known as the "A.B.C."

SYMPHONY WEEK PLANS RELEASED

Week of December 10 Is Set as Date; N. C. Symphony to Appear Five Times.

Lamar Stringfield announced yesterday that plans have been completed for presenting the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, of which he is director, in five concerts during the North Carolina Symphony Festival which is to be held in Winston-Salem during the week of December 10.

Stringfield said that the festival week will open with the presentation of the symphony orchestra and a chorus of 150 voices in "The Inimitable Lovers," a composition by Dr. Charles G. Vardell, Jr., dean of music at Salem College.

A children's concert will be held Tuesday afternoon and plans have already been made to take care of at least 3,000 children at this event.

Composers' Night

American composers' night will be held Wednesday with the compositions of Americans featured at the concert to be given by the full symphony. Only numbers created by Americans will be played during this concert.

Thursday afternoon and evening the orchestra will appear in concerts at High Point to give those attending the festival an idea of an audience reaction different from that received in the city where the festival is being held.

The final concert will be held Friday night with a chorus of

PIERSON SPEAKS AT CELEBRATION

Gives Principal Address at Homecoming Celebration of Ala. State Teachers College.

Troy, Ala., Nov. 24.—Delivering the principal address here today at a homecoming celebration of the State Teachers College, with faculty, alumni and students participating, Dr. W. W. Pierson, dean of the graduate school of the University of North Carolina, pictured three adjustments which he described as being urgently needed in modern education.

"Education has become detached from politics. Getting education out of politics was a painful achievement of our predecessors. It will be, perhaps, an equally painful job to get it usefully back into politics; but that must surely come," he declared.

Specious Conflict

"A specious conflict between education and business has been imagined. The interests of the two are not inimical, and the conflict promoted by the enemies of both might be fatal to each. Artificial barriers to the communication of the two have been subtly erected, but a sane common sense may prevail. It is of first rate importance that these relations be clarified," he continued.

"The teacher is without effective organization, when organization and collective bargaining are accepted ways and means of common action."

Dr. Pierson pointed out that in previous depressions expenditures for education had been increased, not decreased, as now.

"I shall not attempt to explain why the country has not seen fit during the last five years to follow these precedents or why teachers and youth today are the last to receive attention in recovery programs," he said. "It is possible that the public has merely delayed its action. Whatever the future, immediate or ultimate, may have in store, the present plight of education, as I have indicated, gives pause to all who love learning and youth."

INSULL ACQUITTED OF FRAUD CHARGE

Sixteen Co-Defendants Freed; Jury Deliberates Two Hours.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—(UP) — Samuel Insull, who built the world's greatest utilities empire in the American midwest, only to see it collapse under pressure in the panic of 1930, was acquitted today of swindling the thousands of investors in his enterprises.

Brought back to the United States after a flight that carried him into Greece and Turkey in a futile race against extradition Insull was tried with 16 fellow financiers on charges of persuading investors to buy stocks in companies which were already insolvent.

The actual indictment alleged that he used the mails to defraud. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, after over two hours of deliberation.

Insull's 16 co-defendants were also absolved from guilt. Had the verdict been guilty, Insull could have been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary and fined five thousand dollars.

Bookshop Features Book by G. H. Soule

"The Coming American Revolution" by George Henry Soule, Jr., is now being featured at the Bull's Head, announced Elizabeth Johnson, director of the bookshop, yesterday.

Soule, author of the book, is scheduled to make the Weil lectures at the University next spring in connection with the Human Relations Institute.

Other new books recently added to the shelves of the Bull's Head include: "Within the Gates" by Sean O'Casey, "February Hill" by Victoria Lincoln, "Maria Chapdelain" by Louis Hemon (recently added to the Modern Library), and several outstanding juvenile books.

'Y' MEN TO HEAR DR. C. B. ROBSON

Both Y. M. C. A. Cabinets Will Discuss U. S. Policy of Intervention Tomorrow.

The junior-senior cabinet of the Y.M.C.A. will hear an address by Dr. C. B. Robson of the University government department at its regular meeting tomorrow night at 7:15 in the 'Y' building.

"Should the United States Give Up Her Policy of Armed Intervention" will be the subject for Dr. Robson's lecture. Tomorrow night's discussion will be a continuation of the Y.M.C.A. war and peace study being conducted during the entire fall quarter.

Soph Cabinet

The sophomore cabinet will hear George G. Allen, Jr., Carolina sophomore, who will discuss the same topic.

The first year men will hold their friendship council meeting in Gerrard hall at 7:15 o'clock.

The meetings tomorrow night will be the last before the Thanksgiving holidays and announcements will be made concerning the Thanksgiving week program that the "Y" is sponsoring jointly with the University Glee Club.

J. D. Winslow, president of the University Y.M.C.A., stated that the cabinet members would be listed tomorrow night and that the use of the roll call would be initiated.

Fred Weaver, a sophomore from Aberdeen, will discuss "International Co-operation" at the December 3 meeting of the second year cabinet. The speaker for the junior-senior meeting has not yet been announced.

The last meeting of the fall quarter will be held December 10 at which time the cabinets will meet jointly. 'Y' leaders are planning to make this meeting a social occasion, probably a supper for the group.

A.B. SENIORS

All liberal arts college seniors whose last names begin with letters from I through M will report tomorrow at the office of the dean of the college of liberal arts to make applications for their degrees and to check their records.

Infirmary

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: Bill Reid, June Grimes, R. A. Miller, John Calvert, M. E. Smith, Andy Bershak, Eleanor Hammond, Louise Tunstall, Henry Allison, J. R. Raper, John Munyan, and Tempe Newsom.

MANY INCIDENTS MENACE PEACE

French Government Officially Denies New Franco-Russian Military Alliance.

By UNITED PRESS

The outlook for international peace was considerably dimmed by events taking place Saturday.

The belief that the Franco-Russian military alliance was being re-arranged and strengthened in the face of German rearmament spread consternation in Europe. The French government officially denied the alliance, but the deputy who made the original declaration insisted that he was correct.

Italian Decree

The Italian government issued a drastic decree sealing the lips of citizens on all subjects pertaining to national defense. The decree is in accordance with Premier Mussolini's plan for making Italy spy-proof.

Italy also came to the support of Hungary in a demand for immediate hearing of Jugoslavia's charges placing the responsibility for assassination of King Alexander.

The Chaco Committee of the League of Nations, baffled by the refusal of Bolivia and Paraguay to settle the Gran-Chaco war, invited the United States and Brazil to join international effort to bring about peace.

At the London Naval Conference, Japan remained adamant in her demand for naval equality. At the same time, Japan's huge military budget for the coming year was formally approved at Tokyo.

SEDALIA SINGERS TO APPEAR HERE THIS AFTERNOON

Y. M. C. A. Will Sponsor Appearance of Negro Chorus.

The appearance of the Sedalia Singers, Greensboro Negro chorus, is set for 3:30 p. m. today in Memorial hall, announced Y.M.C.A. authorities yesterday.

A special section of the auditorium will be reserved for Negroes, according to Harry Riggs of the Y.M.C.A. No admission fee will be charged for the singers' performance but a free-will offering will be taken during the program.

The singers, organized several years ago at a colored school near Greensboro, are under the managership of Dr. C. Hawkins Brown. Dr. Brown at present is in New York and will be unable to accompany the chorus on its Chapel Hill visit. Miss Amy P. Bailey directs the Sedalia Singers and is also an outstanding soloist in the troupe.

Their tour throughout the country has brought much praise to the Sedalia Singers. Northern metropolitan newspapers especially commended their appearances in New York and Boston. The New York Times rated the singers' quartet as one of the best ever to sing in New York. The chorus' versions of popular Negro spirituals account for much of their present wide favor.

"Una Vida par Otra," Spanish speaking picture filmed in Mexico with a Mexican cast, will be presented tonight at the Carolina theatre at 9 o'clock.

MEDICAL MEN CONFER WITH PRESIDENT GRAHAM

Three men prominent in North Carolina medicine were "callers on" President Graham yesterday afternoon in his office. They were Drs. John B. Wright, Ben J. Lawrence, and L. B. McBrayer, all of the North Carolina Medical Society. Dr. McBrayer is secretary of the society.

The three medical men were in informal conference with President Graham over his work in Washington.

Both Dr. Wright and Dr. Lawrence are from Raleigh, while Dr. McBrayer is from Southern Pines. They drove back to Raleigh yesterday afternoon immediately after the interview.

HUSE TO DISCUSS ANATOLE FRANCE

Professor Will Speak on Regular Tuesday Afternoon Program At Bull's Head Bookshop.

The Bull's Head lecture program, scheduled for 4:30 p. m. in the bookshop Tuesday, will feature a discussion of "Anatole France and the American Scene."

Dr. H. R. Huse of the romance language department of the University will conduct the discussion, presenting France's radical social theories and showing how they have anticipated and influenced contemporary life and letters.

To Write Book

In his talk Huse will consider the famous French writer as a social critic. He will base his lecture on material which he has gathered for a forthcoming book on Anatole France.

Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, will present Dr. Huse.

The Bull's Head program for December 4, as announced yesterday, will feature Miss Nora Beust of the library school. She will speak on "New Approved Children's Books." Juvenile fiction will be sponsored by the bookshop during that week.

Miss Rebecca Cushman, author of "Swing Your Mountain Gal," will give a reading from her book on the regular Bull's Head program December 11. "Swing Your Mountain Gal" is a book of sketches in verse of life in the southern highlands.

Chemistry Students Start Carbon Club

The Carbon Club has been reorganized by graduate students in organic chemistry, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. A. S. Wheeler, speaking on his "First Researches with Para-Cymene," addressed the first meeting of the club.

In his talk Dr. Wheeler told that the first study was the development of a method of converting para-cymene into toluene, a chemical needed in the late war for making the explosive T.N.T. He further explained that the para-cymene was obtained from spruce turpentine which is a waste product in the manufacture of spruce wood pulp for paper.

The spruce turpentine was obtained from the paper mills at Canton, N. C.

PROBABLE DATES ARE APRIL 4, 5, 6

To Be Part of Human Relations Institute; Will Mark 20th Year of Lectureship.

George Henry Soule, Jr., editor of The New Republic, will deliver the Weil lectures as a part of the Human Relations Institute to be held here in April, it was announced yesterday by Charles Poe, chairman of the institute.

Soule is scheduled to give three lectures during the institute, probably on April 4, 5, 6. The seven day session of the institute will begin March 31.

The appearance of the noted writer and American leader on the institute program has been arranged by the Weil Lecture Fund Committee, headed by Dean D. D. Carroll of the University school of commerce.

Editor Since 1924

Soule has been editor of The New Republic since 1924 and has written several outstanding books including "The New Unionism in the Clothing Industry" (with J. M. Budish), "Wage Arbitration," "The Useful Art of Economics," "A Planned Society," "The Coming American Revolution," and various reports, scientific papers and articles.

He is graduate of Yale and has been connected with The New Republic since 1914. In 1927 he was made special adviser to the Secretary of the Interior on reclamation and rural development in the south. He was recently director-at-large of the National Bureau of Economic Research. During the war, Soule held several high offices and rendered outstanding service.

Soule's appearance marks the 20th year of the Weil lectureship, begun in 1914-15 as an endowed program to discuss American Citizenship. Ex-President William Howard Taft was the incumbent. Since that time the foundation, called the Weil Lectures on American Citizenship, has been permanently established through the contributions of the families of Messrs. Sol and Henry Weil of Goldsboro.

Since the organization of the Human Relations Institute in 1927, the Weil Lecture Fund Committee has co-operated with the institute by presenting its lecturer on the regular program.

At the meeting of the institute in 1931, Professor Harold J. Laski, Professor of Political Science, London school of economics (then visiting Professor at Yale University), represented the Weil foundation. The series for 1932-33 was delivered by Dr. Charles A. Beard, eminent writer and historian.

A. I. Ch. E. Meeting

Dr. C. W. Borgman of the chemistry department will give an experimental lecture on "Properties of Polarized Light" at the meeting Tuesday night of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

PARAGRAPHICS

Now that Siberian gold is coming into the United States, we'll have to give Russia credit for a good idea.

"Service to Students Is Objective of UNC Laundry," says Humphreys. "Objection" you mean, Mr. Humphreys?

Extension Work Goes Forward

The effectiveness of the work of R. M. Grumman and the extension division of the University is clearly evident in the figures on extension work released Thursday, which showed an increase of 278 students over the same period last year. These classes, which are primarily for public school teachers, are scattered throughout North Carolina. The greater part of the teaching is done by five full-time extension instructors located in fourteen towns selected as centers of instruction. These instructors are aided by nine University professors and one from Duke.

The greater part of this increase is accounted for by the fact that the extension division is making a special effort to co-operate with the state department of education and the county units in the study and improvement of their curriculum. Since the revision of education in the state, whereby the state takes over all educational units in order to guarantee a more general level of educational excellence, the extension division has included classes which go hand and hand with the study program carried on by the department of education and the schools.

A significant feature in this year's work of the extension department is the co-operation of Duke University in making Professor J. S. Bradway available for extension work. While he is teaching only one class, it is the beginning of co-operative extension work between the two universities, by which the two extension departments hope to enlarge their field of activity.

With the revision of state education, teachers in some of the smaller communities are working on an increased salary, enabling them to enroll in extension classes, for which a regular $15 fee is charged. While this money was available last year, the fact that the extension division has constructed its classes to fit in with the state education program has undoubtedly persuaded a comparatively large number of these teachers in the small communities to enroll in classes.

At present, the extension division is reaching mainly secondary school teachers, the emphasis having been placed in this direction for several years. Mr. Grumman and his staff are serving a definite purpose in providing for the professional growth of teachers, endeavoring to reach and improve those teachers now working in state schools by providing an "in-service teacher training." However, of the 45 classes offered, only three are not constructed for teachers; the ratio seems top-heavy. The program seems to be submerged in teaching teachers.

When a greater share of the emphasis is placed on enrolling others than teachers, then the extension division will be performing a more generally far reaching work.

A Lay Contest

Whether Beta beats Snake to meet Law, or Snake beats Beta, one thing is certain: the winner of the final in the intramural football league is going to be a stellar grid aggregation, judging from the standard of play in the dormitory and fraternity loops this fall.

We hear that over in Duke they have some crack tag footballers in their intramural competition. What could be more logical, as a continuation of healthy relations with our Durham rival, than a tilt between the championship teams of both schools, or, to make it twice as good, a double-header between the respective dormitory and fraternity winners?

The mammoth tennis meets between the two schools were an immense success; such campus-to-campus competition fosters the finest type of good feelings. This fall the trend has definitely swung toward better feelings even in the heat of the annual Duke-Carolina football game. Nothing could more firmly cement these relations than an undergraduate "lay contest" between the gridsters of the two institutions.

Exemptions or Examinations?

Seniors at State College this week adopted a resolution to petition the Faculty Council to exempt all seniors with a B average from all quarterly examinations. This move is being advocated by student leaders who feel that it will be effective in raising the scholastic average by encouraging them to raise their daily grades.

The exemption plan has several aspects, which present both sides of the question. On the surface it would seem that exemptions might serve as an incentive to students to keep their daily averages up to the required exemption standard; however, in those places in which the plan has been tried with subsequent failure, it is claimed that the average student is so constituted that he believes in letting matters slide as long as possible. This obviously denies the tenet that holding up the plum of exemption greatly influences the student. Furthermore, professors claim the real purpose of examinations is to furnish the student an adequate review of the course and to fix its essentials in his mind.

On the other hand, students who have prepared their work and assimilated it as it was presented to them that some reward is due them, that examinations are an unnecessary burden. They claim that examinations frequently destroy a whole quarter's work by catching the student in an off day, or by the inclusion of obscure questions.

Students and governing bodies will always be at odds on this problem. The adoption of either system will present certain disadvantages.

Hearst and The Boys

The answer of William Randolph Hearst to an open letter sent him by the Association of College Editors was a most farcical generalization evading every specific issue set forth in the nine questions which the college editors set down. It was a generalization such as most eminent international authorities spout forth, with the result that nobody understands nor gives a continental what the big fellows are talking about.

But college men the nation over in this instance care a great deal about Hearst's evasions, because they were such gross examples of misplacement of the faith of our people. Theorizing in platitudinous generalizations, Mr. Hearst did a noble job of saying absolutely nothing in a great many words on international policy.

Hearst, the man with the newspapers, is a menace to those "people who think" to whom he claims he appeals. His dodging of the issues places him on the "pedestal" as America's False God Number One.

Private Diplomacy

George Herman Ruth is a private diplomat of the first rank. The big Bambino, Sultan of Swat, invades foreign territory with a hefty bat and an unbeatable grin, and men, hero-worshipers and sports lovers that they are, fall at his feet.

A recent photograph by the United Press pictures the mighty Ruth standing and waving his hat from an automobile to a wildly cheering crowd on the streets of Tokyo. Small American flags are seen in the hands of some of the Japs in the foreground. Whether consciously or unconsciously, the Babe is doing a great job of improving relations between the two nations, for he represents America personified to most of the frantic mob that comes to see him swat the onion.

We become interested in the comparison of the Bambino's work on the Jap's good feelings and the ambassadors' efforts to keep things under control between the two nations. Whereas the diplomats with the white collars are technicians, the big Babe is an informal, straight-from-the-shoulder appeal artist. What Jap can care whether his fatherland is allowed a ten thousand ton battleship or not, when he's watching the Sultan of Swat swing the wood? We wager he'd be just as satisfied with a canoe.

and the "D.D.D.," offer chances to the local townspeople and students at odds ranging from 7 to 1, to 50 to 1, on picking the winners of football games. The price of a card is from 25 cents "on up." The buyer makes his selections from the list of eight games on the card, the more games picked the greater the odds received if all the teams win their games on the following Saturday.

All the teams picked must win, however, or the buyer loses his chance. Ties, unless predicted, are considered losses for the buyer.

Tar Heel Harriers Win Conference Run

Ed McRae Captures First; Carolina Scores 31 While Duke Gets 2nd With 52

Waldrop Finishes Third; Gammon, Conte, and Curlee Score.

Before the spirited performance of an undefeated University of North Carolina team, the defending champions of Duke University were dropped to second place in the 1934 Southern Intercollegiate Conference cross country run here yesterday morning. The final rating follow:

North Carolina 31; Duke 52; N. C. State 58; W. & L. 96.

Participating in his last meet as a wearer of the Blue and White, Ed McRae breezed through to the individual title by breaking the tape over 150 yards in the van of Morse of Duke. His time of 26 minutes, 41.6 seconds was just 15 seconds short of equalling Galen Elliott's record of 1928.

McRae Gets Revenge

McRae's victory was a fitting climax to a great career at Carolina, but it was made even sweeter in view of his completely outclassing Capt. Dunaj of Washington and Lee, who was the only hill and daler to take his measure this season. Dunaj was the defending titlist, but dropped far down to seventh place.

Ed Waldrop, Tar Heel conference two-mile champion, scored a pleasant surprise as he crossed the finish line shortly after Morse and over 20 yards ahead of Heritage, the Blue Devil leader, who had bested him in the dual competition last week at Durham. N. C. State took the fifth and sixth place posts as Fallon and Davis followed in order.

Leaders in Fast Start

Shortly after the start at freshman field the first seven finishers stepped away from the remainder of the pack by about 100 yards and stayed together, with Morse and Heritage as the pacemakers, until the three-mile mark. At this point McRae came up and went into the lead which he easily held until he broke the tape amid a thunderous applause on Emerson field.

The third Carolina man to finish was Graham Gammon, who scored eighth, and the victorious five man team was completed as Curlee and Conte crossed the line in ninth and tenth place respectively. Allen and Aderholt showed up the well-balanced power of the winners more convincingly as they tied for 11th.

Before this meet the Tar Heels had annexed the state

HIGH POINT WINS TWO OVER FROSH HILL AND DALERS

Ellington Surprises by Defeating Joe Rivers as Visitors Live Up to Reputation.

RABB WINS SECOND RACE

Heralded as one of the south's outstanding scholastic cross country teams, the state championship hill and dalers of High Point high school gave fine proof of their reputation here yesterday morning as they humbled the first and second Carolina freshman teams by scores of 25-30 and 24-32 respectively.

Most startling, however, was the defeat of the Tar Babies' ace performer, Joe Rivers, by Wallace Ellington of the visitors. Rivers entered the track on Emerson field about two-yards ahead and held the advantage to the beginning of the home stretch. Here Ellington stepped out ahead to hold a 20-yard margin as he broke the tape in 13 minutes, one second.

Rowley Finishes Third

Close behind the leading pair was Rowley of Carolina. Chas-

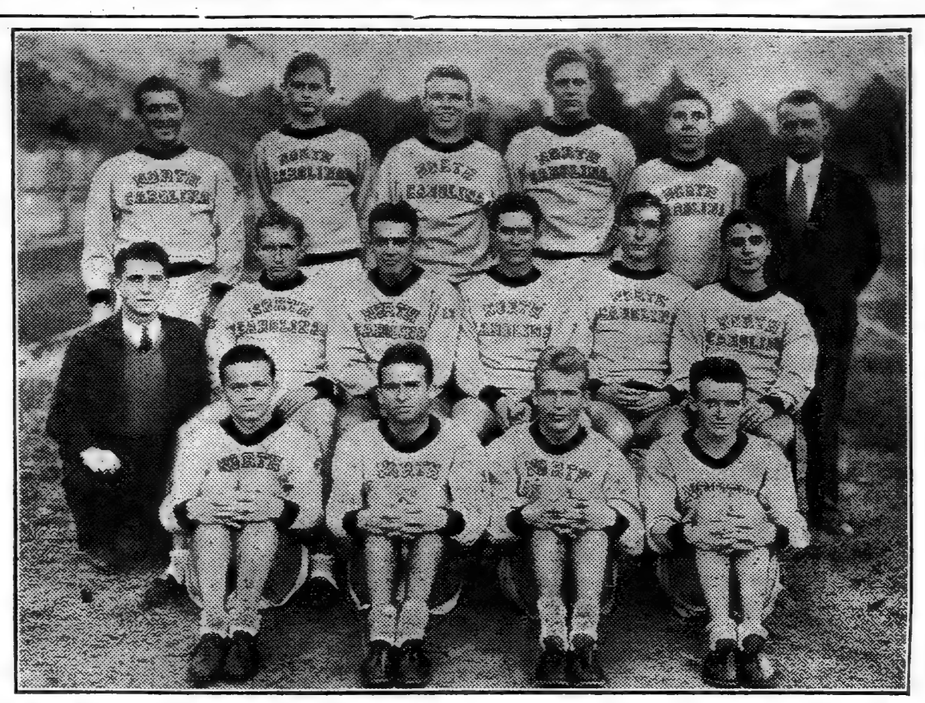
Orange Gridsters Defeat Chatham To Win Crown

Upset Victory May Place Several On All-American Coloreds; Famous Cheer Heard.

Taking their football as seriously as would any other championship contenders, the gridiron combines of Chatham high school and Orange county training school met yesterday afternoon in the annual Negro charity championship game on Emerson field.



After the dust of a hard fought battle had settled Captain Buddy "Loose-Hips" Stroud's eleven from Orange had gained the title trophy by virtue of an astounding 19-0 triumph. The win for the locals was considered a real upset and may tend to place several members of Coach Caldwell's team on the All-American colored selections.

Orange Team Inspired

Despite the fact that the Chatham team had been sweeping all opposition aside, the orange-clad gridsters went onto the field highly inspired and by straight football pushed over a score in the opening period to lead at half-time, 6-0. A wide end run of 30 yards brought the second tally in the third quarter, and a sleeping end play accounted for the last in the final.

Both teams had large delegations of supporters, while several hundred University students also took in the 1934 classic. Despite the fact that it never really threatened, the followers of the Chatham team cheered it on with their famous yell, "We've bett 'em befo', we can bett 'em some mo'."

CAROLINA'S UNDEFEATED CHAMPIONS

New Big Five and Southern Conference cross country champions. After sweeping through an undefeated dual meet season, the Carolina hill and dale squad, coached by Dale Ranson, climaxed its performance by outdistancing the field in the annual Southern Conference run here yesterday. The members of the victorious Carolina squad pictured above are: front row (left to right): Bower, Allen, Gammon, and Aderholt; second row: Manager Rorison, McRae, Waldrop, Curlee, Haywood, and Conte; back row: Captain Williamson, Lynch, Gardiner, Gabori, Waters, Coach Ranson.

Tar Babies Drop Tough Battle To Blue Imps, 21-18

Carolina Freshman Grid Team Loses Final Game of Year by Margin of Extra Points.

DUKESTERS COUNT EARLY

Bricklemyer Leads Tar Babies While Hackney Is Star for Winning Outfit.

Before a cheering mob of 5,000, yesterday afternoon in Duke stadium, the Tar Babies sang their swan song to freshman football when they succombed to the mighty Blue Imps 21-18 after putting up a gallant battle.

Bricklemyer, Carolina's steady halfback, came to the fore and shared ground-gaining honors with Elmer Hackney, Duke quarterback. Playing heads-up ball and fighting for every inch that he gained, "Brick" displayed the best brand of football that he has shown this year.

Ditt Also Stars

Art Ditt's playing reached new heights when he took the pigskin on three successive downs and finally tore through the Duke line for a score.

Burnette and Walborn, fullback and blocking back respectively, gave their all in a futile attempt to wrest the victory from the fighting Dukesters, and the latter played the last quarter while out on his feet from sheer exhaustion.

Elmer Hackney, Duke's stellar back, merits all the superlatives in the dictionary, for with his consistent gains he blazed the way for a Duke victory. Smith, Hackney's running mate, was the high scorer of the day, and his fine play both on the offense and the defense was a constant annoyance to the Tar Babies.

Carolina outscored Duke in first downs, getting nine to the victor's seven. The Babies completed five of the ten passes they attempted, while Duke was able to complete only one out of the five tried.

Early in the first quarter, a 20-yard pass from Clark to Hartness placed the Imps in a scor-

VARSITY GRIDDERS TAKE 2-DAY REST; WORK TOMORROW

Start Final Drills of Year in Preparing for Turkey Day Battle with Cavaliers.

CHANCE TO GET TITLE

The Carolina football squad took a good rest over the week-end prior to beginning the big push tomorrow for its annual Thanksgiving classic at Virginia.

The Tar Heels, who upset Duke, 7-0, last week and who have a clean record in the conference save for a tie by N. C. State, have an added incentive to be at their best for their traditional rivals. A victory would give them the conference championship if South Carolina should beat Washington and Lee.

John Trimpey, first reserve at tackle, is definitely out of the picture with a sprained ankle. However, Dick Buck, who was injured in practice this week, is expected to be ready. Likewise Charlie Shaffer, ace back, who has been laid up for three weeks now.

Fear Over-Confidence

Although the Tar Heels have been suffering from a let-down since their signal triumph over Duke, Coach Snavely, who has issued several warnings against overconfidence and complacency, expects the intense rivalry of their traditional battle to bring them to their peak.

Like Carolina, Virginia is reported to have several men on the injured list, but all except one or two are expected to be ready next week. And Carolina is disregarding comparative scores and expecting the usual tough struggle the Cavaliers always put up.

If Shaffer rounds into shape

SOPHOMORE HOP ENDS WEEK-END

Officers of Class, Executive Committee, and Assistant Leaders Make Up Figure.

The annual sophomore hop was held last night in the Tin Can beginning at 9 p. m. Les Brown and his Duke "Blue Devils" furnished the music.

John Rainey, president of the class, led the figure with Miss Clara Roberson of Durham. Assisting him as leader were the officers of the class.

Bunn Hearn, vice-president, escorted Miss Ethel McDonald of Wilson; Jack Bower, secretary, escorted Miss Nan Norman of Hickory. With George MacFarland, treasurer, was Miss Jane Ross of Charlotte. With Marvin Allen, student council representative, was Miss Marguerite Dewey of Goldsboro.

Assistant Leaders

The assistant leaders and those girls who appeared with them in the figure are as follows: Jim Finlay with Miss Esther Mebane of Chapel Hill, Tracy Spencer with Miss Mary Louise Means of Concord, Billy Lamm with Miss Emily Ward of Tarboro.

Others in the figure were members of the class executive committee: Bill Priestly with Miss "T" Daniels of Chapel Hill, Henry Lewis with Miss Ruth Long of Raleigh, Ed Herring with Miss Martha Louise Croom of Winston-Salem, William Daniel with Miss Dorothy Thermon of Raleigh.

John Kendrick with Miss Sallie Page of Chapel Hill, Herbert Osterheld with Miss Ida Winstead of Chapel Hill, Julien Warren with Miss Nancy Clark of Tarboro, Joe Grier with Miss Sue Richmond of South Boston, Va., Wilborne Davis with Miss Martha Davis of Goldsboro, and George Underwood with Miss Mary Frances Sutton of Greensboro.

as expected, Carolina will be able to start the sparkling halfback combination of Jackson and Shaffer, Coach Snavely's first choice in early practice, for the first time this season.

Jackson was injured during much of the early season, and when he rounded into shape to resume his post, Shaffer went down. Tar Heel fans, who have seen the two stars "carry the mail" separately, are anxious to see what they will do together.

Shaffer ranks top as a kicker and Jackson as a passer. Both are fine broken field runners. With Herman Snyder, the blocker, and Jim Hutchins, the driving fullback, they round out what is expected to be an unusually strong backfield.

Line Is Strong

The Tar Heel line, led by the brilliant Captain George Barclay, has also done some excellent work this year. Only two teams, Tennessee and State, have been able to go through or around it for a touchdown.

The forwards have another job cut out for them Thanksgiving. Virginia has a host of dangerous backs, including three of last year's regulars, Johnson, Berger, and Fryberger. Johnson is regarded as one of the best backs in the Southern Conference.

A special train is being run from this section, and indications are that a large number of students, alumni, and other supporters will follow the team and band to see the game and take part in the Thanksgiving celebration it will climax.

ing position. From that point Smith took the ball on four successive downs and smashed his way to the 6-yard marker, where Hackney picked up 4 yards on an end sweep. On the next play Smith bucked the center of the line for a touchdown. Gardiner place-kicked the extra point and Duke led 7-0.

Near the close of the half, Eakins recovered a Carolina fumble on its 30-yard stripe from where Duke started a concentrative drive down the field which culminated in a score as Smith carried the pigskin over from the one-yard marker. Gardiner converted the extra and Carolina was 14 points to the bad.

Carolina Rallies

Carolina led up to its first score of the day in the third quarter when it executed one of the finest and most precision-like plays of the game. Oliver faded back and threw a 10-yard pass to Bershak who wheeled and tossed a lateral to Ditt, who was stopped after gaining 17 precious yards. Two plays later Ditt plunged over from the two-yard stripe. Walborn failed to convert and the score was Carolina 6, Duke 14.

The Babies scored again when Bershak blocked Hackney's punt and fell on it on Duke's 2-yard line; Ditt, after two unsuccessful tries, split the defensive forward wall for Carolina's second score. Burnette's drop-kick was blocked and Carolina was but two points behind.

A few minutes later, Hartness blocked Burnette's kick on Carolina's 10-yard line. On the next play Hackney went off tackle and crossed the goal line standing up. Gardiner again converted and Duke led 21-12.

Fighting desperately in the final stanza, the Tar Babies scored by virtue of a long 30-yard pass from Oliver to Bricklemyer, followed quickly by a 17-yard forward down the center alley, from Burnette to Oliver who ran across unmolested. Bricklemyer failed to convert, and the final whistle blew a few seconds later with Carolina at the short end of a 21-18 score.

tain, Davis, and Bolton, all of the High Point team, finished in order for the next three places, and the annexing of ninth by Hedrick brought the visitors the win.

The second team match was even more decisive, but Carolina gained some consolation as Stuart Rabb crossed the line in first position. Roach and Wagner, both of High Point, finished second and third respectively with White, of Carolina, close behind for fourth. Hubbard took fifth, Thompson sixth, and Lee eighth to complete the victorious team.

The summary:

First teams: won by Ellington (HP) 2, Rivers (C) 3, Rowley (C) 4, Chastain (HP) 5, Davis (HP) 6, Bolton (HP) 7, Bronitsky (C) 8, Anderson (C) 9, Hedrick (HP) 10, triple tie, D'Ascensio (C), Garland (C) and Gove (C) 13, Cooke (HP) 14, Davison (C) 15, Dennis (HP).

PORTABLE STUDIO WILL COME HERE

M-G-M "Studio-on-Wheels" Will Be Open for Public Inspection December 7.

Arrangements have just been completed by E. Carrington Smith, manager of the Carolina Theatre, to have the elaborate Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer traveling motion picture studio visit Chapel Hill on its extensive goodwill exhibition tour of the world.

The "studio on wheels" will arrive here December 7 and will be open to public inspection from 12 to 1:30 o'clock in front of the local theatre.

It will appear soon in Raleigh where it is being sponsored by the State Theatre, and in Durham.

Cost $150,000

The studio, constructed at a cost of $150,000 and bearing $60,000 worth of intricate recording and projection equipment, has traveled across the continent from the M-G-M studios at Culver City, California.

An M-G-M director heads a complete staff of technicians and make-up experts that compose the personnel of the outfit, but motion pictures will not be filmed in Chapel Hill.

The stop-over is purely to permit film fans to inspect the equipment, to learn how talking pictures are filmed, recorded, and projected. The motion picture technicians will be available to answer questions about their work while they are here. The public is invited to enter the studio during the hours that it is open, and visitors will be escorted by the motion picture

MARTINELLI GIVES CONCERT TUESDAY

Metropolitan Company's Leading Tenor to Appear at Duke.

Giovanni Martinelli, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear in concert at Duke University Tuesday.

Martinelli, the eldest of fourteen children of a cabinet maker in Italy, originally was a cabinet-maker training to take over his father's work. However, while serving his time in the army his vocal talents were discovered by an officer, who encouraged him to train for opera.

He soon attracted public notice, and by 1912 he made his London debut. In 1913 he came to America to join the Metropolitan Opera Company. He has toured Latin America, Europe, and the United States, as both a concert artist and as opera singer.

'Y' GROUP HEARS ROBSON DISCUSS U. S. ARMS POLICY

Government Department Professor Denounces Armed Intervention in Talk to Cabinet.

NO LAW ENFORCEMENT

"There are three questions which arise when we consider armed intervention," said Dr. C. B. Robson of the University government department speaking last night to the members of the junior-senior cabinet of the Y.M.C.A. on the subject "Should the United States Give Up Her Policy of Armed Intervention?"

These three questions are: What is armed intervention? Does the United States have a policy of armed intervention? If the United States does have a policy, what is it and how should we go about abandoning it?

International Law

Discussing the first question, Dr. Robson stated that "although there are international laws, there is no agency to enforce them." As a result the nations of the world resort to other methods of self-help and protection.

One of these methods is armed intervention, and often such intervention becomes involved and results in a war.

"I believe that such interventions as the interventions of the nations in the Boxer Rebellion, and that of the United States in Cuba, both for the protection of life and property, will continue

MARTIN TO LEAD BAND AT VIRGINIA

Substitution of Drum Major Is First Step in Preparing Four Men for Next Year.

Planning for next year's University band season, Director Earl A. Slocum announced yesterday that C. C. Martin, Charlotte boy, would perform the twirling feats as Carolina's drum major for Thursday's football game with Virginia.

Clarence Courtney, veteran drum major, will accompany the band on the trip, playing in the saxophone section. Courtney measures over six feet four inches and has been drum major here for the past two years. He received his band training in the Lenoir high school band at Lenoir.

Business Manager

Martin has played with the band for several years and now holds the office of business manager. Schedule conflicts this season have prevented his working in the new role before now.

Plans are being made for Carolina to have a drum major corps of four or five fast spinners next year to march at the head of the band. Martin's appearance Thursday will be the beginning of this new arrangement. Other drum majors are in training and are scheduled to appear next fall.

BAGBY SPEAKS

Dr. English Bagby of the University psychology department addressed the Current Events Club of Rocky Mount yesterday.

This club is one of the oldest organizations in the state. Dr. Bagby's subject was "Psychology Personalities."

Caldwell Starts Drive To End Sale Of Football Cards Here

City Manager Starts Action to Find Violators of North Carolina Law.

By STUART RABB

When City Manager J. L. Caldwell stated that, "The sale of football cards is the promotion of gambling, which is in violation of the North Carolina law," his remarks were based on fact.

Manager Caldwell stated yesterday that the clean-up drive had already begun. "The search for evidence," he said, "is now in progress, and when evidence is found, the actual clean-up will follow."

N. C. Law

In "The 1933 code of North Carolina Law," under the caption of "lotteries" may be found: "If any person shall open, set on foot, carry on, promote, make, or draw, publicly or privately, a lottery . . . he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not in excess of $2,000 and imprisoned not more than six months."

Also, the assistants in the schemes may be involved by the statement in the same code: "Any person who shall have in his possession any ticket, certificates, or orders used in the operation of any lottery shall be held liable under this section and such tickets shall be prima facie evidence of the violation of this law."

Definition Given

And to clinch the case that the state might have against any alleged violation of this statute, Ballentine's "Law Dictionary" defines a lottery as "all schemes for the distribution of prizes by chance."

The elements necessary for conviction are "consideration," which may be defined as corresponding to the price for a football ticket; "prize," which might be any reward; and "chance," of which there is no lack in the card racket.

DI WILL DISCUSS DIVORCE TONIGHT

Senators Russell and Eagles Will Give Business Reports.

The Dialectic Senate will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in New West for its next to the last regular session of the quarter.

Bills on the calendar for discussion at this meeting are as follows: Resolved, That divorce is a social asset; Resolved, That the policies of Huey Long are a menace to American democracy, and Resolved, That the 19th amendment be repealed.

Reports will be made by Senator Russell on finance and Senator Eagles on the Di-Phi dance of the past week-end.

Try-outs for the Mary D. Wright debate, scheduled for December 4, will be held tonight.

ENGINEERS' PUBLICATION TO APPEAR TOMORROW

The Carolina Engineer, official publication of the engineering department, will be distributed tomorrow during chapel period at Phillips and Venable halls, it was announced yesterday.

On the cover is a picture of the Yadkin river bridge near Salisbury. The frontispiece is a picture of Memorial hall.

There will be a meeting of the Carolina Engineer editorial staff at Phillips hall tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock.

UNIVERSITY CLUB

The University Club will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in 209 Graham Memorial.

Agnew Bahnson will make a short talk to the group. President Frank Willingham announced that all members will be expected to have their Yackety Yack fee payments made at this meeting.

UNIVERSITY GETS RESEARCH GRANT

Storage Cell Study Made Possible Here by United States Naval Research Laboratory.

The United States Naval Research Laboratory of the Navy department at Washington has made available to the chemistry department a grant of money to carry on fundamental research on the thermodynamics of the lead-sulphuric acid storage cell.

The work will be under the direction of H. D. Crockford, associate professor of physical chemistry. He will be assisted in the experimental work by W. G. Sink, who holds a fellowship made possible by these funds. Sink, a graduate of Catawba College, has been a teaching assistant in the chemistry department.

Thesis Material

The results of this research will be used by the holder of the fellowship for thesis material towards an advanced degree.

At the present time the Navy department is maintaining three research fellowships: one at Columbia University, one at the University of Illinois, and one here.

A fellowship was also maintained at the University during 1932-33. This fellowship was held by D. J. Brawley, now with Merck and Company, Rahway, N. J.

Dr. Crockford has been employed by the United States Naval Research Laboratory at Washington for the past five years in connection with storage battery research.

Huse Will Lecture At Bookshop Today

Dr. H. R. Huse of the University romance language department will lead the discussion of "Anatole France" at the Bull's Head program this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Huse will consider "Anatole France and the American Scene," discussing the French writer's radical social theories. He will attempt to show how they have anticipated and influenced contemporary life and letters.

Dr. Huse will study France as a social critic, comparing his work to that of H. L. Mencken, former editor of The American Mercury and a noted iconoclast in contemporary writing.

Material for the lecture has been gathered by Huse for a forthcoming book on the Frenchman.

Finjan Copy Due Today

The deadline for all editorial copy for the last Finjan is due this evening at 6 o'clock. If there is no one in the Graham Memorial office, the copy is to be slipped under the door.

Four Injured as Cars Crash Near Here

None from Chapel Hill in Durham Road Collision Yesterday.

Four persons suffered minor cuts and bruises in an auto collision five miles out from Chapel Hill on the Durham road yesterday. None of the four were students or residents of Chapel Hill.

The injured were: Miss Lucille Davis, who sustained the more serious injuries of the group, and who is still confined to Watts hospital in Durham; Otis Matthews, Mrs. Louise Jones, and Mrs. Gladys Greenhill.

The last trio were released from the hospital soon after their arrival when their injuries were diagnosed as not serious.

The injured were en route to Chapel Hill from Durham in a Ford V-8 sedan. The crash occurred when their car came into violent contact with an Essex coach.

HOUSE CONTINUES ASSEMBLY TALKS

Administrative Dean Discusses Aspects of College Courses and Reviews.

Dean R. B. House continued his series of talks on the "Intellectual Life" at freshman assembly yesterday by discussing the permanent and immediate aspects of college courses.

Concerning the time aspects of courses, Dean House stated that some subjects which are not intended for study later must be looked on as "immediate." He then added, "The immediate task that lies before you now is the successful completion of the fall quarter's work."

Purpose of Review

Describing review as "stimulating the mind as to what has gone before," Dean House suggested that the student get alone and think over the intellectual content of his subjects.

"Begin your review in your mind," he said, "Then take your notes and your text book and continue the review."

The Reverend Watt Cooper, assistant pastor of the Presbyterian church, conducted the devotionals. Dean Bradshaw presided over the program.

Tuberculosis Seals

Part of every dollar spent for Tuberculosis Seals in the coming drive here will go to the national organization to help prevent tuberculosis in large centers of population.

Recent surveys have shown that from 50 to 100 per cent of the people living in cities show signs of having or having had this disease at some time or another.

"People who live in the less crowded areas," states Mrs. A. M. Jordan of the sales' publicity committee, "show a much smaller percentage of infection, but let them move to the cities and they are much more likely to become infected than are those who have always been city dwellers."

The local seal drive will begin December 10, and the goal is $400.

Taff Pledges

Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity has pledged D. T. Taff, the dean of students announced yesterday.

FRESHMEN WILL HEAR UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB

The University Glee Club will make its first appearance to the student body in freshman assembly this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The program will consist of popular and entertaining songs. Seventy-six members of the organization will be present.

The Glee Club will also present a program tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Hill Music hall.

BARNES TO SPEAK AT PHI ASSEMBLY

Campus Leader Will Discuss Last Week's Action on Anti-War Conference

Harper Barnes will speak and answer questions in regard to the bill to be introduced at the Phi Assembly tonight for the repeal of the last week's action by the group in condemning work of the Anti-war Conference.

The representatives of the Phi voted 25 to 23 in favor of the bill: Resolved, That the Phi Assembly condemn the work of the Anti-war Conference.

Annual Pictures

Pictures for the Yackety Yack will be made at the meeting tonight, and Speaker Smithwick urges all members to attend. There will also be a report from the dance committee concerning the Di-Phi dance which was held last Friday evening.

Winthrop Durfee of the constitution committee announced that he will push action for the printing of the new constitution in the form of a small booklet, one of which may be given to each member.

Another bill for dicussion tonight is: Resolved, That all laws prohibiting the spread of birth-control literature be repealed.

Drama Group In Again; Out Again

Touring Troupe Will Play at Campbell College Tonight.

The Carolina Playmakers' touring troupe rolled into town Sunday night by special bus and rolled out again yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, headed for the last lap of their current tour season.

They were scheduled to play at Flora McDonald College at Red Springs last night and at Campbell College, Buie's Creek, tonight.

Eat Dust

The troupe appearance Sunday night was marked by tired faces and sore throats. Professor Koch and his gang had just eaten all the dust from Kinston to Frederick, Md., and back again, sleeping, eating and rehearsing en route.

Their special bus, covered with trappings and set pieces, had pulled through the first half of the tour successfully and still showed signs of being able to finish the course.

The troupe will return after the holidays in time for the Playmakers' production of Paul Green's "Shroud My Body Down" scheduled to play at the Playmakers Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. None of the cast for "Shroud My Body Down" made the tour, remaining here for rehearsals under the direction of Samuel Selden.

GRAHAM, MANNING WILL GIVE TALKS ON DUKE PROGRAM

Celebration of Anniversary of Duke Endowment to Take Place December 11.

EHRINGHAUS WILL SPEAK

President Frank P. Graham will introduce Dr. W. A. Jessup of New York during the evening program at the celebration of the anniversary of the Duke Endowment December 11 in Raleigh.

Many leading educators and other notables of the two Carolinas will be present at this celebration. Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus will deliver the address of welcome.

Cocke to Talk

Speaking with Dr. Jessup during the evening program will be Norman A. Cocke of Charlotte, vice-chairman of the Duke Endowment Board of Trustees, who will deliver the principal address.

Invitations have been issued to all full professors at the University. The evening program will begin at 7:30 p. m., and will be presided over by Frank Page of Raleigh. Copies of the detailed program may be had by applying to Charlotte headquarters of the Duke Foundation.

At the meeting of the hospital group at 2:30 p. m. in the Sir Walter Raleigh hotel, Dr. I. H. Manning of Chapel Hill will speak. The theme at this meeting will be "Group Payment For Hospital Care."

CAST IS CHOSEN FOR GREEN'S PLAY

"Shroud My Body Down" Is Scheduled for Production December 6, 7, and 8.

The complete cast for "Shroud My Body Down," Paul Green's new play which is to be presented by the Playmakers December 6, 7, and 8, was announced yesterday.

Professor Sam Selden, who recently directed "R. U. R.," is in charge of the play, and together with Wilbur Dorsett, is planning and executing the sets.

The principal actors are: Harold Baumstone, Mary Fowler Spencer, Sammie Ruth Bell, Patsy McMullan, Alton Williams, Robert Natchman, Robert du Four, and David McCachren.

The Cast

Baumstone, who has previously been cast in one-act plays, will take the part of Tapley, the old soothsayer, in the new play.

Fowler Spencer, who will be seen as Lora, the child-like daughter of Farmer Graham, played the title role at the last performance of "Agatha."

Taking her second part in public productions as Lady Jane in "Shroud My Body Down," will be Sammie Ruth Bell.

Patsy McMullan, who took part in every Playmaker regular production of last season, plays the part of Julie, the silent wife of Graham.

The role of Farmer Graham in the new play will be handled by Alton Williams, who formerly served as a member of the St. Louis Tour Company.

Robert Natchman, who plays Colin in the December production, makes his first appearance

PARAGRAPHICS

And if it's an intersectional game we're wanting, why not team up our 'mural champs with Knox College?

So Gertrude Stein is going to speak at the University of Virginia. A talk is a talk is a meal ticket, eh Gertie?

Ten thousand more illiterates are in Alabama now than there were two years ago, says a news story. Here's wondering if Mr. Carmer would say they "fell on" too?

"Give No Quarter"

City Manager J. L. Caldwell and his boys are going on the warpath against "football card" gambling, holding steadfastly to the tenet that what is contrary to North Carolina law is not compatible with the township statutes (by cracky!).

Two months late, the city manager stated that he had good reason to believe that some of the cards were being printed and distributed by local promoters. So the local constabulary will "proceed quietly" according to "ordinary police procedure."

We don't know who prints the neat little cards nor do we exactly understand the term "ordinary police procedure," but we must give Mr. Caldwell credit for doing his duty. Under the law, he and his fellow-city-administrators have no choice save efficiently to carry out the law.

But we must strike a pessimistic note and remark that the project will probably end up just as the prosecution for the violation of another well-known state statute has. The enforcement of the Turlington act, involving the control of human passions, makes us laugh outright and not particularly up our sleeve. Incidentally, we will wager that students will still be placing quarters on gridiron contests by the "ABC" and "DDD" methods next fall.

Although Mr. Caldwell's actions are, in his own words, "to protect the students here from any form of racket which comes into Chapel Hill to strip them of their money," we are of the opinion that those students do not appreciate nor desire his efforts because they feel that they alone are capable of judging what is good or bad for them. After all, they seem to get paid if they win and it's their own quarter that goes when they lose.

Our Question

Samuel Insull places his name on the soiled list of individuals whose pecuniary health pulled them through the disease of justice. With Al Capone, the Teapot Dome scions, and many other figures of national headline importance, Mr. Insull now becomes just another magnate whose money rather than whose character has pulled him through a run-in with the law.

We, as representative of the up-and-coming generation, wrinkle our brow and wonder just what it's all about. If it's money and not honesty that we need to become a success in life, or rather to evade the pitfalls of the way, then the Insull case stamps in cold, hard letters the fact upon us that our entire educational system is heading in the wrong direction.

They're Trying To Duck Him

Another Tweedledum and Tweedledee battle is being waged on the field of education, this time between the president of Georgetown College and the Kentucky Baptists General Association. Being a sectarian school, namely Baptist, and under the aegis of the above General Association, Georgetown is being hard put to it to retain its president, Dr. Henry M. Sherwood. The reason for desiring his dismissal is, according to the Baptists, that he is "an educator whose baptism is irregular."

What they mean by an "irregular" baptism is not readily apparent from the facts in the case. Dr. Sherwood, a native of Indiana, joined the Baptist church in that state after having been a member of the Christian church. When he was elected by the trustees to the position of president of Georgetown College, he declined to be baptized again. That all may know, his latest statement, in connection with his pending ousting, is one that indicates forcibly that he will neither resign nor permit himself to be inundated again.

Good for the good doctor. One baptism is enough in any man's life. Such an experience, which is supposed to transcend all others, might be anti-climactic if repeated, or even bothersome. But herein lies a principle, not an inconvenience, and neither the association nor Dr. Sherwood is willing to sacrifice it for a mere college presidency. Sectarian schools, unfortunately, run the risk of intervention in their private lives, even as Dr. Sherwood, on the part of the denominations to which they owe their allegiance. That often such intervention is neither pertinent to the education of students in that faith nor clothed with dignity in the eyes of other educators, has been proved in countless incidents of the sort. Georgetown is but another link in the chain, and Dr. Sherwood one more example. Whether or not he can maintain his position, Kentucky being more numerous in Baptists than any other denomination, is doubtful.

Resources Enough to Burn

Down in Currituck county, someone got the idea that it would be a good investment for the state to drain lonely, six-by-sixteen mile Lake Mattamuskeet for farm-land. With the investment of a million dollars or so, thought these astute minds, a farming country could be produced which would have few peers and no equals.

It looked fine for a while. Bumper crops were produced without fertilizer there in the abandoned lake-bed, four feet below sea-level. Then the canal-walls began to break down, the huge pumps were no longer equal to the task of keeping the lake dry, and soon the lake was back where it had been before. Undaunted, fresh money was secured, until in all about $15,000,000 had been dumped into the black waters of Lake Mattamuskeet—with the result that now the lake is exactly where it was, flowing quietly over what was once intended to be a model farm community.

Aside from the enormous waste in state and private capital which took place during the financing of this fiasco, it seems to us that to attempt to destroy the state's largest natural lake, considered the greatest concentration point for her migratory waterfowl on the Atlantic seaboard, and the greatest breeding place for black bass in the eastern United States, is little short of criminal folly.

This summer's dust-storms in the middle west gave ample evidence of what can follow as a result of wholesale drainage of natural reservoirs. The results of destroying a haven for wild life are too obvious to need further mention. For a century, this state has pursued a policy of attempting to destroy as many of its natural resources as possible; yet some of our resources persist in spite of the law-makers. They blithely sit astride the limb, sawing on the side nearest the tree; yet in spite of their efforts, the limb grows faster than they can saw.

Not to mention the state's poor budget.

Keeping the Weils Going Around

George Henry Soule, Jr., is a worthy personality to perpetuate the outstanding quality of the Weil lecture series. The editor of the New Republic has had a brilliant public career and his opinions as they appear through the pages of his progressive magazine are highly valued as being economically and socially sound.

With such brilliant immediate predecessors in the role of Weil speakers as Professor Harold J. Laski and Dr. Charles A. Beard, Mr. Soule will have the honor and the task of upholding one of the noblest traditions on this campus when he appears in Gerrard hall. Since the fusion of the series into the program of the quadriennial Human Relations Institute, the lectures will take on added importance as they will represent not only individual expression but also will form a part of a chain of thought as embraced in the institute's program.

SPEAKING the CAMPUS MIND

Editor the DAILY TAR HEEL:

Hazing, under state law, is a shipping offense at the University of North Carolina. At least, that's what is stated in the booklet presented to the students here by the Student Council.

Sunday night was a cold and bitter one, we will all agree. Official weather reports of this locality state that between 7 and 10:30 p. m. the thermometer reading averaged, per half hour, 34½ degrees.

So what? An organization on this campus held initiation last Sunday night. Most of the neophytes were attired in "gym suits" with a sheet draped about their shoulders. After the usual amount of public paddling and horseplay, the members of the organization sent the initiates under the dorm windows with the appeal for "water!" The weather was cold. The water came, drenching the white clad boys.

We stop to wonder what the campus as a whole thinks of this sort of thing, especially under the prevailing conditions.

'Y' GROUP HEARS ROBSON DISCUSS U. S. ARMS POLICY

until an agency is found that has the power to settle such disturbances," Dr. Robson said.

Cuba Affair

Continuing his talk on the aspects of the second question, Dr. Robson stated that the United States' policy of intervention began with her going into Cuba.

At the close of the Spanish-American War, the policy of the United States consisted in the right to intervene for the purpose of backing the Monroe Doctrine, and to govern small nations that were incapable of governing themselves.

Following the various Carribean interventions, the United States adopted a policy of "dollar diplomacy," intervention for the protection of the American dollar.

Not Disease

"Armed intervention is a symptom rather than a disease itself," concluded Dr. Robson. "When wishing to destroy war the entire basic structure, composed of many symptoms, must be destroyed."

At the business meeting before the program, J. D. Winslow, president of the Y.M.C.A. appointed Tom Bost, Bert Smith, and Billy Yandell to serve on a committee in charge of the joint social meeting of all of the "Y" cabinets to be held December 5.

George Allen led a discussion at the meeting of the sophomore cabinet similar to the one led by Dr. Robson.

Plans for the coming quarter were discussed by the members of the freshman council at their regular business meeting.

MUNYAN RELEASED

John Munyan, who was confined to the infirmary about a month ago with scarlet fever, left the infirmary yesterday.

These students were confined in the hospital yesterday: June Grimes, Bill Reid, Walter Albee, M. E. Smith, Carl Pfeiffer, Andy Bershak, Eleanor Hammond, J. R. Raper, G. S. Ford, Paul Kiker, J. E. Cope, B. C. Williams, and D. R. Barbano.

Finjan Censor Board

There will be a meeting of the Finjan censor board at the Finjan office in Graham Memorial at 8 o'clock tonight.

Casa Loma Musicians Unusually Organized

Glen Gray and the Casa Loma orchestra, which holds the record for appearances at college and university functions, present new ideas in band organization as well as popular dance rhythms.

Glen Gray is president of the Casa Loma Corporation in which members of the band are stockholders, drawing quarterly dividends from the profits as well as regular salaries.

New members are added to the band only after they have been passed on by a board of directors on the basis not only of musical ability but congeniality and personality.

Firm Frat

This procedure has led to the saying in musical circles that Casa Loma is organized like a business firm and run like a college fraternity.

Originality may be the keynote in their popularity. Casa Loma set a record by playing for more than 70 collegiate affairs in 40 states in three seasons.

The band is now on the air with the Camel Caravan, co-featured with Walter O'Keefe and Annette Hanshaw, and broadcasts over the Columbia network every Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Barclay Makes NEA All-American; UP All-Southern

Tar Heel Star Receives Unanimous Vote Of Large Board Of Famous Coaches

Howell Also Gets Rank; Stanford Has Pair On First Team.

Larson of Minnesota Only Other Unanimous Choice.

The Tar Heels' famed captain, George Barclay, is one step nearer official recognition as No. 1 All-American guard today as a result of his unanimous selection for this post by the NEA board of coaches.

Barclay and Frank Larson of Minnesota were the only unanimous choices for the NEA first string All-American team chosen yesterday by the leading football coaches in the country.

Out of a list of 224 candidates, these two captains and stars of their respective teams received unanimous laudations from all sections of the country which landed them so securely on this first mythical eleven.

Outstanding Coaches Select

The board of coaches which selected the men included Sutherland of Pitt, Mehre of Georgia, Spaulding of U. C. L. A., Morrison of Southern Methodist, Blaik of Dartmouth, Little of Columbia, Thornhill of Stanford, Ingram of California, Hamilton of Navy, Spears of Wisconsin, Crowley of Fordham, Meehan of Manhattan, Madijan of St. Mary's, and Red Grange.

The complete first team is as follows: ends— Jim Moscrip of Stanford and Frank Larson of Minnesota; tackles — Cassins Gentry of Oklahoma and Slade Cutter of Navy; guards—George Barclay of North Carolina and Regis Monaham of Ohio State; center—Elmer Ward of Utah State; quarterback — Bobby Grayson of Stanford; halfbacks —Bobby Wilson of Southern Methodist and Millard Howell of Alabama; fullback—Ozzie Weinstock of Pittsburgh.

Besides Barclay, two men from North Carolina received recognition by the board. Wentz and Cornelius of Duke received honorable mention.

CAROLINA NETMEN DEPART TONIGHT FOR VA. CONTEST

Meet Cavaliers in Annual Fall Encounter at Charlottesville Tomorrow Afternoon.

SEVEN NETTERS TO LEAVE

With high hopes for a victory over a weakened Virginia team, the Carolina varsity pulls out of Chapel Hill tonight, headed for Charlottesville and their opening match of the coming 1935 tennis season.

Coach Kenfield has finally selected the seven players who will make the trip. Archie Henderson, Byron Abels and Myers Whitaker are the final three selections for the team. The other four are Ricky Willis, Walter Levitan, Harvey Harris, and Larry Jones, the four leading players of the varsity ladder.

These four are all last year varsity players and it is there that Carolina seems to have its advantage over the Cavalier squad. The Virginia team has only two veterans playing this fall and will be forced to throw a set of last year's freshmen against Carolina's experienced team.

As only six singles will be contested, there is yet a question

FOOTBALL SQUAD HAS HARD WORK; TACKLES INJURED

Barclay Tries Hand at Tackle Post Left Vacant by Tatum, Trimpey, and Ray.

FROSH USE VIRGINIA PLAYS

Coach Snavely pushed his charges through a hard workout in Kenan stadium yesterday in preparation for the annual Thanksgiving grid classic with the University of Virginia to be played at Charlottesville day after tomorrow.

The first team engaged in an offensive scrimmage against the second stringers while the reserves looked-in on Virginia plays as executed by Coach James' freshman outfit.

Snyder, Montgomery, Jackson, and Hutchins, the quartet that started Carolina's last three games, ran in the first string backfield yesterday.

Tackles Short

With Trimpey definitely out of the Turkey Day battle and Tatum and Ray on the casualty list with minor injuries, the Tar Heel forward wall is short of tackle material.

Captain George Barclay is being groomed to play a tackle position in case he is needed Thursday. Tatum's ailment, which was thought at first to be appendicitis, has turned out to be only a sore muscle in his side. Marvin Ray has an injured nerve in his arm which will slow him down considerably.

Dick Buck is the recent Tar Heel casualty who is expected to be sufficiently recovered from his injury in time to gain a starting lineup berth against the Cavaliers.

Charlie Shaffer, who has been out since mid-season, will probably return to action Thanksgiving. With Shaffer in his old position, and Jackson at the half, fans will see for the first time this season the combination which Snavely first worked out. Jackson was hurt at the first of the year and Shaffer carried the brunt of the attack. Then Shaffer was injured and Jackson came in. Now both are ready and everyone is looking forward to see just what both stars can do together.

CAVALIERS MISS STAR VETERANS

Berger and Hallett Not to Play In Thanksgiving Tilt; Tebell Works Team Hard.

University, Va., Nov. 26.—Virginia's veteran line backers-up, Spencer Berger, fullback, and Horace Hallett, center, are going to be sorely missed when the Cavaliers line up on defense against the slashing attack of North Carolina's Tar Heels in Scott stadium on Thanksgiving afternoon.

Injuries sustained in the V. P. I. game have cut short the gridiron careers of these two defensive aces. Berger came out with a dislocated shoulder while Hallett is having to take strict care of an injured eye.

Two backfield men, Captain Tommy Johnson and one other yet to be selected, will probably be called upon by Coach Gus Tebell to fill the key posts in the secondary defense.

OUR CAPTAIN

Coach Snavely's star—the Tar Heels' captain—the University's pride of the gridiron—the South's best, that's this man above. George Barclay of the 1934 "Flying Tar Heel eleven." Who would ask for a better versatile football player than this man? Defense or offense—he's always as good as only the best are. All-State, All-Southern, All-American, All-Anything—that's George Barclay.

Whitaker Leads Sigma Nu To 10-0 Win Over Betas

VICTORY BRINGS DIVISION CROWN

Winners Completely Rout Opponents as Star Quarterback Scores All Team's Points.

Completely outplaying the opposition in every department of the game, the gridsters of Sigma Nu bowled over what little opposition the Beta Theta Pi combine presented to win the intramural fraternity league title by a 10-0 score yesterday afternoon. The win also gained them a place in the campus championship game against Law School next Tuesday.

It was Myers "Whit" Whitaker who personally accounted for all the scoring by booting a field goal, racing for a touchdown, and converting the extra point. However, at all times he had ten other men with him, and it was the fine playing of these ten that enabled him to capitalize on opportunities when presented.

First Score

The first score came on the very last play of the first half when Whitaker made a fine placement kick from the side to give his team a 3-0 lead. The Snakes also held a margin of five first downs to a single for the half which was featured by Whitaker's kick and a punting duel between Blythe and Whitaker.

The Betas kicked off to open the second half and Sigma Nu drove straight down the field to a first down on the Beta 24-yard line. This threat was stopped when Rose intercepted an enemy aerial and Blythe kicked out of danger.

FROSH HARRIERS RUN DUKE TODAY

Meet Starts at 4:15 O'clock This Afternoon; Tar Babies Won First Race.

The yearling harriers meet Duke frosh this afternoon over the local course in a return race, the other being won by the Tar Babies.

Starting on Emerson at 4:15 o'clock, the run will be over a three-mile grind.

The Tar Babies will be running their last race of the season. To date they have outrun Davidson and Duke and were barely nosed out by the strong outfit from High Point high.

Joe Rivers, who has won two of the three races, will be favored to cop the first honors as he did in the other Blue Imp scuffle. John Rowley and Irv Bronitsky have shown up well in every meet and will likely be near the front this afternoon.

The remaining men who will run are: D'Ascensio, Garland, Gove, Anderson, Davison, Rabb, and White.

EDENTON TO PLAY REIDSVILLE TEAM FOR STATE TITLE

High School Elevens Meet in Kenan This Week-end.

Henry House, Carolina fullback of 1928, '29, and '30, will bring his Edenton high school team to Chapel Hill Friday to play Reidsville in Kenan stadium for the state class 'B' title. Reidsville, coached by L. J. Perry, won the title in 1930, '31, and '32.

Durham and Greensboro will meet in the stadium the following day for the state class 'A' title. Durham is coached by Dwight Stuessy of Illinois, and Greensboro by Robert Jamieson of Guilford. Durham won the title in 1931 and 1933.

Laude Simons (Tulane)	f.b.	Joe Demyanovich (Ala.)

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 26.—(UP)—The University of North Carolina placed three men on the United Press first two All-Southern football elevens today, with George Barclay leading the whole field of Dixie stars.

Besides Barclay placing on the first lineup with unanimous choice from all quarters of the Southland, Dick Buck, star sophomore end, and Jim Tatum, brilliant senior tackle, rated positions on the second string.

Barclay and Millard "Dixie" Howell of Alabama were the leaders among the flashy array of southern stars and strengthened their aspirations for berths on the official All-American selection. Both men have shown during the season the best football played in this section in many years.

Duke Places Wentz

Duke University likewise put a trio of men on the first two selections. Earl Wentz took first place honors as a flankman while the scrapping Blue Devil captain, Jack Dunlap, at guard and Corky Cornelius at half ranked on the second team.

Steve Sabol of N. C. State received the pivot position on the second team.

Alabama led the whole field of schools by placing four men on the first choice lineup and a fifth on the second team. The Crimson Tide, in making a strong bid for an invitation to the Rose Bowl this season, placed Howell, Hutson, Lee, and Marr on the first string and fullback Demyanovich on the second. The whole left side of the first string line was Alabama's.

Huey Long's slashing L. S. U. crew and Tulane's Green Wave sent two stars each to the first choice team, while Tennessee, North Carolina, and Duke placed one each. Auburn, Georgia Tech, and Kentucky also placed men on the second team.

Va. Racqueteers Boast Only Two Veteran Players

Rohmann and Taylor Are Only Men from Last Year's SIC Champ Team.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 26.—With but two veterans remaining from last spring's championship tennis team, Virginia will clash with the Carolina netmen Wednesday afternoon, on the eve of the annual Thanksgiving football classic.

Only Carl Rohmann and Stuart Taylor have returned to the net warfare for the Cavaliers and an otherwise new varsity will be on hand to give battle to the Tar Heels. Rohmann is the outstanding threat and is at present holding down the title of Southern Conference champion, having won last year's conference singles crown.

Taylor has played for the past two seasons but may not play in second position in this encounter, as budding talent will probably replace him. The rest of the squad is made up of Arnold Sloan, Fred Barclay, Al Williams and Junius Fishburne.

The Cavalier netters won 15 dual matches during the past season, while losing only three, and are hoping to continue their winning ways in their initial dual match.

KYSER SENDS GREETING

Kay Kyser, nationally-known orchestra director and leader in 1926 of the famous Carolina Cheerios, was among the many Carolina alumni who, although physically absent from Chapel Hill on the fateful afternoon of November 17, were heart and soul in Kenan stadium pulling for the Tar Heels against the Blue Devils.

Here is an extract from a letter written by Kay to Roy Wilder: ". . . I went to the Northwestern-Notre Dame game but couldn't enjoy it for wondering what Carolina and Duke were doing. I'm surely glad that we won."

Neophyte Bulls Get Bum Steer To Dormitories

Shivering Initiates Are Drenched With Water Furnished by Old East Occupants.

Sunday night, one of the coldest this fall, was chosen for the annual water-dousing initiation of the sophomoric Order of the Minotaurs.

Dressed in sweat clothes and draped with sheets, about a dozen neophytes were soundly paddled and then paraded beneath the windows of Old East, Old West, and Steele dormitories, whose occupants drenched them with water.

Wastebasketsful were poured on the shivering initiates. A more effective means of soaking them was introduced when Old East students on the third floor of the building contrived a stream of water from a hose, playing it on them each time they passed beneath the dormitory windows.

CAROLINA NETMEN DEPART TONIGHT

of who will line up for Carolina when they match shots tomorrow. It lies between Abels and Whitaker to play in the sixth spot and there will probably be no decision until the team reaches Charlottesville.

There is doubt as to whether Levitan or Willis will play first singles for Carolina due to Willis' recent rise to the top position; but whoever has the honor, he will be faced with downing the Southern Conference champion in the personage of Carl Rohmann, captain and star of the Virginia netmen.

Willis repeated his victory over Levitan yesterday to definitely establish his position at the head of the ladder. Dropping the first set he went on to beat Levitan again, playing as steadily as he has done in the past few weeks to win 1-6, 6-2, 6-3.

The doubles combinations appear rather definite with Levitan pairing up with Larry Jones as Carolina's first team. Harvey Harris will be alongside Abels, and much is expected from this team due to their recent showing in the school tournament. The third pair is Ricky Willis and Archie Henderson. This seems to indicate that Whitaker will get an opportunity to get into the singles warfare, as he is not expected to see action in doubles.

Carolina is slight favorite but trouble is expected from the Virginia squad, which made such a fine showing in last year's play.

STRIKE NEAR END

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26.—(UP)—The violent street railway employees strike here seemed near an end tonight, although sirens still screamed through the city heralding continued guerrilla warfare between strikers and vehicle operators.

Representatives of both sides tentatively agreed to appointment of a fact-finding committee to seek the basis of a settlement.

Mayor Frank L. Shaw prevailed upon the belligerents to attend the peace meeting. The plan advocated by the mayor would terminate the three-day strike at once.

MUSIC AUTHORITY TO LECTURE HERE

English Clergyman to Lead Discussion on Mediaeval Tunes.

The Reverend Dom Anselm Hughes of Nashdom Abbey, England, will deliver a lecture on the "History and Practice of Mediaeval Music" this evening at 8:30 o'clock in Hill Music hall, it was announced yesterday from the offices of the department of music.

The Reverend Hughes is secretary and treasurer of the Plainsong and Mediaeval Music Society and is one of the leading English authorities on the subject of mediaeval music.

His lecture will be fully supplemented with phonograph records, some of which were made in Nashdom Abbey under his personal supervision.

The Reverend Hughes has contributed articles on mediaeval music to the new edition of "Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians." In the new edition of the "Oxford History of Music" he has contributed the section on mediaeval music theory.

There will be no admission charge for this lecture.

MEDICAL GROUP HEARS PUBLIC HEALTH OFFICIAL

Dr. L. L. Williams of the United States Public Health Service, director of the division on the control of malaria, gave a lecture before the medical students yesterday at 2 o'clock in Caldwell hall.

Dr. Williams chose as his subject the prevention and control of malaria. Due to his personal experience along these lines, an interesting and illuminating lecture was heard.

Walker at Meeting

Dr. N. W. Walker, head of the department of education, attended a meeting of the state high school text book committee which was held in Raleigh yesterday.

UNIVERSITY BAND TO HOLD PRACTICE

Organization Will Rehearse Tomorrow for Virginia Trip.

A special band rehearsal for all members making the Virginia trip is scheduled for 4 p. m. tomorrow, announced Walter King, president of the organization.

Practice will be conducted at Emerson field with no instruments.

Earl Slocum, director of the band, requests that all members who are not going to make the trip turn in their band coats and music at the band office in Hill Music hall, immediately.

The band members will leave with the team from Pittsboro street, 7:45 p. m. tomorrow night. Pullmans have been secured to accommodate the group.

NEW CHURCH DIRECTORY IS READY FOR "Y" LOBBY

The new church directory has been built by the University buildings department and will be placed in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. building this week, it was announced yesterday.

The wood placard has sockets for eight small posters which will be used to list the various church services. The University Y. M C. A. is sponsoring the service in connection with the "student-church" council.

NEGRO FOOTBALL GAME IS FINANCIAL SUCCESS

Approximately $140 worth of football fans poured into Emerson field Saturday to witness the annual Negro football classic sponsored by the "Y," announced Harry Riggs yesterday.

Of this sum, the Chatham county team received a $25 guarantee while $10 went for the cost of ticket printing and advertising.

The remainder of the gate receipts, $105, was used to boost the fund for a Negro nurse to work in the community.

WHITAKER LEADS SIGMA NU TO WIN

Shortly after, the Snakes opened up again, sustaining a drive that brought them first down on their opponents' 4-yard marker, after Glace nabbed a long pass from Whitaker. An offside penalized them five yards, two incompleted passes, and Coan's breaking through gave the Snakes last down on the 19-yard line. Whitaker attempted another field goal, but the oval went wide and the ball went to the Betas.

For the greater part of the half the Betas resorted to a kicking game, hoping for a break that would place them in a position for a score. However, none developed and they launched a desperate passing attack that might have produced had not Rand juggled two long heaves.

With only 20 seconds of play remaining, the Snakes came into possession of the pigskin on the Beta 27-yard line. Whitaker received the ball, and it was apparently evident that he was going to hold the ball until the time expired.

Instead, he cut off right tackle, reversed his field, saw a mass of Betas coming at him, reversed his field again, and cut down the right side to cross the double stripe unmolested. His place kick for the extra point went straight between the uprights.

The winners annexed a total of nine first downs to a pair for the Betas, completed six out of 21 passes to four out of 19 for the losers, and were penalized 30 on four occasions to 20 on two for the opposition.

Though in the scoring Carl Huth receives no credit, he certainly merits some fine praise for the magnificent blocking game he played. It was he who continually held out the opposition, permitting Whitaker to get set for his passes, and often opened holes for interference before finally leaving the game with a slight injury. Rose, McCachren, Rand, and Blythe starred for the Betas, while the entire winning combination played fine.

The only other game of the day saw Chi Psi defeat Phi Delta Theta 7-6. Foreman pushed over a six-pointer and Manley converted the extra point to give the eventual winners a 7-0 lead at half time. Rainey tallied for the Phi Delta Theta combine late in the game, but failure to get the extra point cost them a chance at victory.

MARTINELLI WILL SING AT DUKE UNIVERSITY

Giovanni Martinelli, former cabinet-maker and now leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing tonight before a Duke University audience.

The vocal talents of Martinelli, who is a native of Italy, were discovered by an officer in the regiment in which Martinelli was serving an enlistment.

Martinelli joined the Metropolitan Opera in 1913 and has been with it ever since.

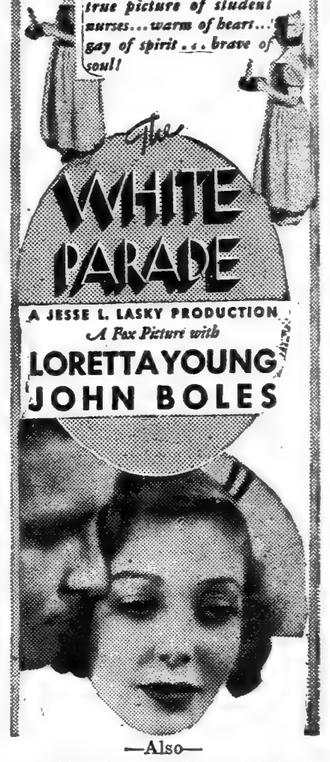
A. S. M. E. MEETS TONIGHT TO HEAR KARL FUSSLER

The regular meeting of the student branch of the A. S. M. E. will be held tonight at 7 o'clock in 206 Phillips hall.

Dr. Karl H. Fussler of the physics department will talk on "Modern Methods of Measuring Radioactive and Cosmic Rays." His talk will be illustrated with lantern slides and a cosmic ray demonstration.

ROYALTY DINE

London, Nov. 26.—(UP)—For the first time since before the world war, three European kings and their queens dined together in Buckingham Palace today in the first big formal function of the royal wedding week.



King George V and Queen Mary entertained 98 guests in the palace at a dinner party. All of the important nobles of the realm were on hand.

ROOSEVELT OUTLINES LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 26.—(UP)—President Roosevelt outlined a safe and sane legislative program today for 1935, as he sat in conference with Senators Joe T. Robinson, majority leader, and Pat Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

The program is designed to keep normal government expenditures within the income. The president required more than four hours to set forth his plans before his chief congressional leaders.

Noted Violinist Will Appear Here On Entertainment Series

Zimbalist Will Give Concert December 6

Musician Also Composer; Born In Russia But Is Now American Citizen.

HAS VARIETY OF INTERESTS

Efrem Zimbalist, one of the most famous violinists in the musical world today, will appear here in a concert December 6.

His appearance will be the second entertainment sponsored by the Student Entertainment Committee this quarter.

Although Russian by birth, Zimbalist is in many respects an American artist. He is an American citizen, makes his winter home in New York City and his summer home in Connecticut and has two children born in this country.

Debut in 1911

Zimbalist made his American debut on October 27, 1911, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. On this occasion he played the Glazounow Concerto in A minor for the first time in America.

Since his debut he has also established himself as a composer. His most recent composition is a symphonic poem called "Daphnis and Chloe," which was given its world premiere by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under Stokowski.

With all his passionate devotion to music, he has many other interests. His collection of rare editions of old books is considered remarkable by connoisseurs.

His prize is a dingy paper-covered book that looks ready for the waste basket. The storekeeper in a little shop in Adelaide, West Australia, remarked when Zimbalist asked him about it, "What, that old thing? You can have it for a shilling."

Zimbalist paid the shilling and left the shop. The book was a first edition of "Tales of a Grandfather" by Sir Walter Scott.

Musician

Efrem Zimbalist, noted Russian violinist, who will appear here December 6 on the second program sponsored this quarter by the Student Entertainment Committee.

MUSIC COMPOSED FOR GREEN PLAY

Lamar Stringfield Writes New Musical Score for Playmakers' "Shroud My Body Down."

The production of Paul Green's "Shroud My Body Down" by the Carolina Playmakers next week will feature a new musical score by Lamar Stringfield, noted composer and director of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

Stringfield has combined his original work with a number of old folk songs collected by Green into a very effective score, according to the production staff for the new play.

Admirably Suited

"The new music is admirably suited to the marionette-like action of several group scenes and adds much to the stylistic action throughout the play," stated Playmaker authorities.

The Carolina Concert orchestra, under the direction of Earl A. Slocum, will play the scores for the production from the theatre pit. Phoebe Barr is directing the dancing and ensemble movements.

Stringfield assisted Green with the musical scores for "Tread the Green Grass" which was produced elaborately at the University of Iowa several years ago.

Harvard Refuses Mellon Donation

University Feels That German Traveling Scholarship Linked With That of Hanfstaengl.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 27.—(UP)—Harvard University has rejected a $1,500 German traveling scholarship offered by Matthew T. Mellon, Harvard divinity school student and nephew of former Secretary of Treasury Andrew Mellon, because the offer was linked with one made last summer by Dr. Ernst F. S. Hanfstaengl, Hitler aide.

The Hanfstengl scholarship was rejected several months ago because of the connection of Hanfstaengl, Harvard '09, with a regime which has "struck at principles we believe to be fundamental to universities throughout the world."

Mellon, according to a statement by Secretary Jerome D. Green of the Harvard Corporation, "freely chose to identify his intentions so explicitly with those of Dr. Hanfstaengl . . . . that the corporation felt compelled, after the most deliberate consideration and with every desire to do justice to Dr. Mellon, to decline the offer made by him."

The Harvard Crimson, which revealed the incident in a copyrighted story today, said it found in an October 11 issue of the "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung," a German newspaper, a printed cable sent by Mellon to Hanfstaengl reading: "As an American citizen, I should like to place my services at your disposal so that your good intentions will be acknowledged in America."

Mellon, Princeton graduate and holder of a Ph.D. from the University of Friedburg, plans to offer his scholarship again "with absolutely no strings attached," the Crimson says. He is already the donor of a $5,000 gift to the Harvard philosophy department.

"Christmas Carol"

Professor Frederick H. Koch is scheduled to go over the hundred mark this week when he reads again Dicken's memorable "A Christmas Carol."

Koch will appear four times this week-end at various towns in North Carolina. His annual reading at the University is scheduled for December 12, in the theatre.

You're Welcome

With this morning's issue the Daily Tar Heel discontinues publication during the Thanksgiving holidays (God bless 'em). Work will be resumed Monday and the next issue of this popular campus publication will appear Tuesday morning. Thank you.

PHI HAS ANOTHER STORMY MEETING

Assembly Rescinds Bill to Condemn Anti-War Conference; Will Not Aid Delegate.

In another stormy session last night, the Philanthropic Assembly voted down by a count of 22 to 16 the re-opened bill: Resolved, That the Phi Assembly condemn the work of the local Anti-war Conference.

Fines were levied right and left by Speaker Robert Smithwick, who stood fast in his opinion that the authority of the chair should not be questioned.

Illuminating Comments

The fact that communists were among those in membership of the local conference was again the basis for argument by proponents of the bill. "The communist plan calls for revolution," stated Representative Wylie Parker, "and that always calls for bloodshed."

Members enjoyed a good laugh when Speaker Smithwick referred to Representative Winthrop Durfee as "representative Dirtee." Other tidbits of repartee included: Representative Drew Martin: "The best boys on the campus belong to the Phi Assembly."

The assembly defeated by a vote of 24 to 21 a motion to aid financially in sending a delegate to Geneva as a representative of the University.

Pictures for the Yackety Yack were taken by Wootten-Moulton. Harper Barnes answered innumberable questions in regard to the Anti-war meeting, explaining that the Red Cross had never been condemned.

United States Relief Bill Is $7,500,000,000

Washington, Nov. 27.—(UP)—Relief and recovery have cost the United States government more than $7,500,000,000 to date, the treasury figures showed tonight.

More than half this sum, however, treasury officials said, would ultimately be recovered when the various recovery agencies had liquidated.

The total monetary cost of the depression to the United States government exclusive of lost tax revenues, was set by treasury experts at $7,523,928,063. However, $4,123,915,017 of this sum was listed by the treasury as "recoverable."

League Conciliation

Berlin, Germany, Nov. 27.—(UP)—A new conciliatory attitude and a willingness to return to the League of Nations seemed apparent in Nazi headquarters today, on the consideration that France and other allied World War powers overlook the Reich's re-armament.

Joachin von Ribbentrop, Hitler's special envoy, is returning from London this week in order to go to Paris next week to confer with Foreign Minister Laval concerning the matter.

TRAIN FOR GAME LEAVES TONIGHT

Special Will Return Here from Charlottesville at 8 O'clock Friday Morning.

A special train will leave Pittsboro street tonight at 7:45 o'clock for Charlottesville, Va., arriving there at 3 a. m. After the game the train will leave Charlottesville at 1:30 a. m. and arrive here the same morning at 8 o'clock.

The train will be parked at Charlottesville from the time it arrives until it leaves. Tourist Pullmans can be occupied while the special is parked until 8 a. m. and after 9 p. m. Standard Pullmans can be occupied any time during the entire day.

Tickets $5.66 Up

Tickets good in coaches only, with a 30-day limit, are selling for $5.66 for the round trip. Tickets permitting passengers to ride anywhere on the train are selling for $7.55 for the round trip.

Students wishing to buy Pullman tickets may price them at the Book Exchange, where they are on sale.

The Student Union of the University of Virginia is sponsoring a dance tomorrow night after the game in Madison hall, beginning at 10 o'clock. Bill Morrison and his orchestra will furnish the music. Carolina students are cordially invited.

ACTION BY POLICE HELD AS UNJUST BY MRS. O'BERRY

Asheville Arrest of 54 Transients Condemned by Relief Head.

Raleigh, Nov. 27.—(UP)—Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, state relief administrator, this evening protested the arrest of 54 men who were staying at the Asheville transient home earlier in the day.

Police gave as the cause of the arrest repeated hold-ups in the vicinity of the transient bureau. All were fingerprinted.

W. J. Everett, Asheville chief of police, said, "We will hold the men until we hear from Washington as to the results of the fingerprints."

Mrs. O'Berry feels that the wholesale arrest was unjustified and outrageous. She said that she would protest to authorities against the police's entering the transient home without search and seizure warrants, and for illegally taking fingerprints of men charged with no specific crime.

Class Schedules

Class schedules showing the winter quarter, 1934-35, course offerings are expected to be available for unrestricted distribution in room 101, South building, during the week beginning December 3.

Every student is urged to come in and secure a copy of this course scheme so that he may be assisted in determining for himself the best possible course outline for the approaching quarter. Catalogues will be available for reference purposes at the same office.

Self-help students in particular can gain advantage from careful study of the schedule, adjusting their courses to suit their needs from the standpoint of outside work.

Fairley Heads Committee To Inspect Service Plants

GROUP APPOINTED BY STUDENT HEAD

Begin with Investigation of Laundry; Hammer and Winslow Also on Committee.

With a tour through the University laundry, a student committe, appointed by Virgil Weathers, student body president, and headed by Francis Fairley, began an inspection of the entire University Consolidated Service yesterday.

The committee, which, in addition to Fairley, includes Phil Hammer and J. D. Winslow, was appointed upon the recommendation of the administration, and is to investigate the operation of plants, the method of procedure in bookkeeping and accounting, and the personnel of all branches of the Consolidated set-up.

Purpose

The purpose of the investigation, as outlined by Fairley last night, is to aid the students in gaining an unbiased viewpoint as to the aims and services of the Consolidated by means of this committee.

During the investigation, Fairley said, the student body will be kept informed of the progress through the medium of the DAILY TAR HEEL, and at the conclusion of the tours, a complete report will be made and published, whether it is favorable to the present set-up or not.

"After gaining a working knowledge of how the set-up works," said Fairley last night, "we are to make any recommendations we see fit."

Chairman Fairley welcomes the suggestion of any student who may desire to have certain phases of the Consolidated Service investigated.

The investigation will be resumed after the holidays Tuesday. Members of the committee will meet with Fairley at 2 o'clock on that day.

Gridgraph Tomorrow

There will be a gridgraph of the Carolina-Virginia game in Memorial hall at 2 o'clock tomorrow, for the benefit of students remaining on the Hill during the holidays. A direct wire has been arranged to the Virginia stadium, and the progress of the game will be depicted on the gridgraph, play by play, a few seconds after each play has been run. Admission will be 25 cents.

Felix Grisette Said To Be Responsible For Securing Coach

Article by Louis Graves Tells How Grisette Became Familiar with Snavely's Work.

"It is not generally known, but Felix Grisette is probably more responsible than any other one person for Carl Snavely's being here," says Louis Graves in the current issue of the Chapel Hill Weekly.

Editor Graves points out that Mr. Grisette, now director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund, who became well acquainted with Coach Snavely while working on a Pittsburgh newspaper, was the first person to suggest the new coach's name to members of the University Athletic Council. From then on, according to the Weekly's story, Mr. Grisette played a prominent part in the negotiations that led to the three-year contract which Coach Snavely signed.

Reporter

"When he (Grisette) was a reporter for the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, about seven years ago, the team of Bellefonte Academy, undefeated through two seasons, won national fame in school football circles. In the Christmas holidays it went on a tour of the southwest, and Grisette's paper sent him along.

"The Bellefonte coach was Carl Snavely. The correspondent shared a room with him at every stop on the tour, and they became close friends. They kept up their friendship after Snavely went from Bellefonte Academy to Bucknell College.

"Grisette made no move to bring Snavely here until it was settled that there was to be a new coach. Then he urged the selection of Snavely with all the persuasive powers at his command. The public was informed that Snavely came here to confer with the committee, but it did not know that this was his second visit to Chapel Hill. He had made a visit a little while before, at his friend's invitation.

Detailed Information

"In the weeks that preceded the final decision, Grisette not only told the committeemen what he had observed of the Bucknell coach, but he saw to it that they received all the detailed information about his record.

"Therefore I should say that, when the final whistle blew in the Kenan stadium last Saturday, a small dark-haired spectator, whose name was never heard through the amplifiers, and who was unknown to most of the throng, had good reason to feel a personal pride in the result."

MANY FEATURES IN NEW ENGINEER

Current Issue of Carolina Engineer Will Be Distributed During Chapel Today.

The Carolina Engineer, magazine of the University engineering school, will be distributed during chapel period this morning in the halls of Venable and Phillips buildings and in the senior electrical room during the day.

Included in the issue will be articles on soil erosion, by Tom Gordy; a discussion of the activities of the water resources and engineering division of the department of conservation, by W. C. Morrison; a feature on a cotton mill that operates its own power plant entitled "Who Said It Will Not Pay?" by Dan Field.

Floating Road

The floating road, which is being constructed near Elizabeth City, by Jack Pruden; and civil engineering progress in China by Tsu-Yuan Koo, a Chinese student here, are also among the articles in this issue.

The magazine will also contain an editorial on engineering work and an activities section of the various engineering societies.

PARAGRAPHICS

Somebody ought to print a gambling card on Mr. Caldwell's chances against the football betting racket.

Its being a Puritan holiday maybe has something to do with the fact that the Cavaliers haven't a chance on Thanksgiving.

"Barclay Tries Hand at Tackle Post Left Vacant by Tatum, Trimpey, and Ray." And if he used the other hand, there'd be no need for the right side of the line?

Utilities
Vs. Education

The federal trade commission presented its third section of a report on its six-year utilities investigation to the senate Monday, the substance of this division of the report dealing with the propagandization of education by the utilities.

"The utility program for educators and schools," went the report, "from kindergarten to university was designed to mould the thoughts and beliefs of the present and future generations in conformity with the utility interests."

The commission stated that almost a million and a half dollars has been expended by the utilities for "good-will campaigns." Getting at the "pupils in the schools," they are directing their efforts toward shaping the attitude of the future leaders in line with their policies.

This method of advertising is psychologically most clever and efficient. If the utilities wish to spend their money in their own interests, it is their own business. The objection rests in their capitalization of the ignorance and innocence of youth by presenting only the utilities' side of the question.

However, in campaigns like the "national home lighting contest" the benefits to the school children are probably as great as the detriments. Children learn to care for their eyes, to improve their methods of study. The check, then, on the utilities should be on the rate-charging so these admittedly good features of the utilities' service would not be gained to the detriment of the pocketbook.

Their innocence, then, is capitalized on only in the shaping of the immature opinions to the tenet that utilities, because of their services, are working for their good at any cost. Otherwise, we can see no significance in the fact that they spend large sums of money to propagandize the United States schools. There will always be utilities, so the program as affecting the future generation is in the control of their rate-charges and not their services.

No Censorship,
Say L. S. Ueys

The staff of the Reveille, student newspaper at Louisiana State University, quit cold Monday when Huey Long tried to add another field to his dictatorial possessions by attempting to censure the current issue. That's really what happened, but the staff resignation came when the deans of the various colleges met and urged Dr. J. M. Smith, L. S. U. president, to appoint a faculty supervisor over the paper.

It seems the whole thing started two weeks ago when D. R. Norman, a sophomore, sent a letter to the Reveille which was anything but complimentary to Long for having elected (Huey always elects, he never places in office) Abe Mickal, star halfback, to the state senate at a burlesque mass meeting. Long stopped publication of the letter just as the paper was going to press, and had the letter thrown out and the edition reprinted.

The deans based their request for censorship on the argument that the Reveille voiced the official opinions of the university. That means, naturally, that the paper voices Huey Long's opinions, since the Kingfish has a vicelike grip on everything in the state through his legislative henchmen.

The boys might as well give up. Huey is now patron and star rooter for the football team, and swears he will take it to the Rose Bowl; he is self-appointed leader of the 140-piece band; he is the dominating influence on the campus; that the editorship of the Reveille will be his next stepping stone is a foregone conclusion. However, one boy, sports editor Cal Abraham, was plenty smart, and remained on the job. Meet Cal Abraham, next governor of Louisiana.

Man-Power
And Militarism

Learning from a news item that the lightest man in the freshman class at State College had been exempted from R. O. T. C. training because of his deficiency, we are enticed into a little rumination regarding the declining relation of man-power militarism.

The student in question weighed only 88 pounds, which is clearly below the physical par of cannon fodder. No army on the face of the earth would admit this 88-pound mannikin to its ranks. But for all the practicality of physical standards for military service, their actual importance seems to be growing out of place in the picture of modern warfare.

It is truism to say that the dashing days of cavalry and saber are over. Our 88-pound fellow student, indeed, might become fatigued on the march, and he could hardly be expected to ride down the enemy, or vanquish his man in hand-to-hand combat. But could not the mere crook of his finger wipe out a city of women and children, or a battalion of men far stronger than himself, by scattering in their midst a ton of high explosive? He needn't choke off an assailant's breath by the strength of his arm if science gives him the means to do it with poison gas. He needn't kill with the bayonet if he can murder on a wholesale scale by polluting a source of water supply. He needn't betray his enemy by the strength of self-sacrifice if he can do it by telegraph.

Where is the ennobling war of strength when the weakling is a match for the strong?

Social Ideals
Are Changing

Are the social ideals and institutions which we have considered for so many years as sacred and essential to success, really worth the consideration they receive? This question is set forth by Mr. Robert Herrick in his review, in a recent issue of the New Republic, of some of the new proletarian literature.

In this new literature, according to Mr. Herrick, these young authors have accurately reflected the lack of faith of the underlings in several of our most ancient institutions. The much-vaunted superiority of the American standard of living, as it affects the great majority of the people, is looked upon as a grand superstition of little value or meaning. Another exploded doctrine is that of the inalienable right and opportunity of every man in this great democratic state to climb to the top of the heap, there to find, supposedly, an intellectual and spiritual freedom hitherto unattainable. The lives of the bosses, however, are certainly fraught with worry and discouragement, as well as being totally uninteresting and banal.

These new attitudes, apparently a part of the new literature, have a two-fold significance. First, they show the utter worthlessness to the present generation of the ideals of the successful business man, which have hitherto been considered beyond reproach. These ideals are now antiquated, and no longer offer any tangible comfort or encouragement to the common laborer. He can no longer put his faith in the theory of "American individualism," because he realizes, with startling vividness, its present inefficacy, and is more thoroughly aware than any member of any other class of the need for new and up-to-date ideals.

Secondly, these new attitudes, as expressed through a literature of the labor problem, are significant in their prophecy. The literature itself shows the need for reform, and its very existence shows the feeling of revolt growing among the laboring class. While no definite cause for alarm seems immediately imminent, these aspects of the labor problem reflect comprehensively the trends in the present social set-up.

Vested Interests Oppose Extension Of TVA Program

Coal Industry Given Most Blame for Halting Drive to Distribute Cheap Electric Power Through Communities in Tennessee And Alabama Under Plans of President Roosevelt.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 27.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's revival of a war-time white elephant, Muscle Shoals, has prompted a fight by vested interests against the powerful Tennessee Valley Authority in the two states which would benefit most by the TVA's power program.

With the coal industry given the most blame for halting plans to distribute in Tennessee and Alabama cheap electric power whose cost would serve as a "yardstick" in other parts of the nation, David E. Lilienthal, TVA power director, flung down the gauntlet against criticism with these words:

"It is just as intelligent for the coal industry to shake its fist at hydro-electric power as it was for the livery stable keeper to shake his fist at the first automobile when it first appeared.

"The coal industry can employ twice as many lawyers, each to be twice as clever and receive twice the fees, and still the situation will remain exactly as it was before—an economic problem," Lilienthal said in referring to the numerous court fights against the TVA. "TVA will not fight the coal industry, and no amount of goading will change our course. This is not a duel or a debate."

One State Accedes

The TVA has succeeded in launching its power program in only one state without interference. This is in Mississippi, where the city of Tupelo operates a municipal power plant distributing cheap TVA current from Muscle Shoals. Tupelo officials say individuals have increased their consumption of power but their bills have been cut nearly in half.

Very similar to the fight against TVA acquiring property in the Knoxville area is the court action brought in Alabama to prevent transfer of the $2,200,000 worth of Alabama Power Company property to TVA in 14 north Alabama cities.

The Alabama ice and coal companies also are opposing the approval of the Alabama Public Service commission to the sale. At a hearing opening before the commission the week of Nov. 5, Forney Johnston, attorney who represented the Tennessee companies in the Knoxville fight, appeared as counsel for the Alabama opponents.

The ice and coal companies challenge the constitutionality of the TVA program and claim the "Santa Claus" rates for TVA current to operate electric refrigerators, stoves and heaters sold at low prices by a TVA subsidiary, and to run industrial machinery, threaten destruction of the ice and coal industries.

They charge that Congress had no authority to authorize TVA to engage in utility distribution or to sell so-called surplus energy to customers. They further charge is that the "yardstick" rates set up by the TVA in 20-year contracts with cities are subnormal and do not reimburse the federal government for the actual cost of production. These rates are called "Santa Claus rates — donations to subsidize public ownership of utilities."

BAND REHEARSAL

The University band will meet this afternoon at Emerson field at 4 p. m. for a special drill rehearsal.

The band is scheduled to leave at 7:45 from Pittsboro street with the football team for Virginia. Pullmans have been provided to accommodate the number.

For the Virginia classic at Charlottesville, C. C. Martin will head the band as Carolina's drum major. Veteran Clarence Courtney will accompany the band, playing in the saxophone section.

During the half the Carolina band will put on a special show for the Thanksgiving title. The University of Virginia does not have a band but will probably invite a neighboring band to play for the game as their representative.

University Glee Club

The University Glee Club presented a musical program at freshman chapel yesterday morning under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A.

Songs rendered by the group were "What Shall We Do With a Drunken Sailor?" and a Russian melody, "The Song of the Cudgel," with Jesse Parker singing the solo part.

After a presentation of two sea chanties, "Eight Bells," and "Away to Rio," the Glee Club closed the program with "Hark the Sound."

BOOKSHOP TO STAY OPEN

The Bull's Head bookshop will remain open in the afternoon during the holidays, announced Elizabeth Johnson, director of the shop, yesterday.

Ned White will be in charge of the bookstore, according to Miss Johnson.

Dillinger Lieutenant Kills Federal Agent

Barrington, Ill., Nov. 27.—(UP)—Another chapter in Dillinger gang history was written in letters of lead today when one Justice Department agent was killed and another critically wounded as they trailed an automobile carrying George "Babyface" Nelson, long sought Dillinger aide and Public Enemy No. 1.

H. E. Hollis, 30-year-old federal agent attached to the Chicago office, was killed with a bullet through the head. Samuel P. Cowley, in charge of the detail of seven agents, received wounds in the stomach and chest, close to the heart, as the occupants of the fleeing car turned shot guns and machine guns on him.

Geology Trip

A party of four geologists from the University will conduct a tour of the coast of North Carolina to study the coastal plain.

Dr. J. W. Huddle, a member of the University geology department will head the group; other members of the group are Bob Copeland, curator of the University geology museum, G. E. Murray, and Bette Stovi.

The geology survey group will start tomorrow morning and will return from the field trip late Sunday.

Infirmary

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: J. E. Cope, Bill Reid, June Grimes, Paul Kiker, Walter Albee, S. R. Barbano, M. E. Smith, Eleanor Hammond, J. R. Raper, G. C. Ford, V. C. Williams, and H. J. Tait.

Carolina Football Team Will Leave Tonight For Tilt With Va. Tomorrow

Take Hard Workout for Final Game of Year On Thanksgiving.

With spirits high as a kite, Carolina's grid squad took its last hard workout of the season yesterday afternoon on Emerson field. After a short drill here this afternoon the entire squad will take a special train to Charlottesville where the Tar Heels battle Virginia in the annual Thanksgiving Day classic tomorrow.

The Carolina football team will against the Cavaliers conclude its first season under Coach Snavely. The new mentor has already given the Tar Heels a successful season as a result of victories over Duke, Georgia Tech, Georgia, Kentucky, Wake Forest, and Davidson. And now a win over Virginia will make the year one of the best in the history of the University.

Virginia, as usual during the past few years, will be in the underdog position but is still more than likely to pull at least a surprise if not an upset triumph.

Pointing to Carolina

Despite a poor season the Cavaliers have long been pointing toward the classic with the Tar Heels and can be counted on to play inspired football in an effort to make their season at least partly successful.

By annexing another win the Tar Heels will have a chance to add the Southern Conference title to their Big Five championship. Washington and Lee is the only undefeated eleven besides Carolina and the Generals must get by the South Carolina tilt tomorrow. The only mark on the Tar Heel conference record is a tie game against State.

Take Hard Work

Coach Snavely sent his charges through a hard workout yesterday, stressing both defense and offense. For the first time since the Duke tilt the Tar Heels showed some of the great form that whipped the Blue Devils.

Charlie Shaffer, brilliant half-

FROSH RUNNERS TOP IMPS, 17-46

Joe Rivers Again Leads Tar Baby Cross Country Club in Second Win over Duke.

The Carolina freshman cross country team closed its season here yesterday afternoon with a very impressive 17-46 victory over Duke. This was the Blue Imps' second set-back by the Tar Babies, the previous being by a 21-42 score ten days ago over the Duke course.

Again it was Joe Rivers who led the Blue and White, breaking the tape at the end of the two and one-half miles in 12:57.8. The time was four seconds faster than for the High Point meet in which Rivers received his sole reverse of the year, participating after being sick the evening before.

Rowley Is Second

John Rowley came through in fine order to take the runner-up post, maintaining an even pace with Koop of Duke, who had bettered him in the meet at Durham, to about the last mile when he easily pulled away and finished 150 yards behind Rivers. About the same margin behind was Davison, who had sprinted in the final 880 yards to leave Koop, winning by 25 yards at the tape.

Garland and Gove completed the yearling's victorious quintet as they crossed the finish tied for fifth. The remaining contestants finished as follows:

Bromitsky (C), Pearson (D), D'Ascensio (C), Dubois (D), Gould (D), Sackman (D), McGarity (D), Moore (D), Hutchins (D), Eichhorn (C), and Jones (D).

HIGHS WILL PLAY HERE THIS WEEK FOR STATE TITLES

Edenton and Reidsville Meet in Kenan Friday; Greensboro to Play Durham Saturday.

Edenton and Reidsville, which were crowned Class 'B' champions of the east and west last week, clash in Kenan stadium here Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the first of two annual state championship high school battles.

Durham and Greensboro high elevens will meet on the same field at the same hour Saturday for the Class 'A' title.

The Edenton eleven, which is coached by Henry House, a former Carolina fullback, defeated Garner, 13-0, in the eastern finals. Cates and the Spencer brothers, Paul and Worth, led the attack, and featured along with Layton and Spruill in the line.

Reidsville won the western play-off with Mount Airy, 12-7. The two teams had previously fought a scoreless tie. Thompson raced 50 yards for the first touchdown, while Cook hit the line for the winning marker.

Coach "Hap" Perry, who is one of the few coaches in the state who are also school superintendents, led the Reidsville team to the championship for three years running, 1930-32.

Both Rival Coaches Ending First Season

University, Va., Nov. 27.—Both coaches in the Virginia-Carolina football classic on Thanksgiving are serving their first seasons as head grid tutors of the squads they supervise.

Carl Snavely, head coach at North Carolina, came to Chapel Hill from Bucknell University where he had been turning out fine teams for several years.

Gus Tebell, Virginia's head coach, has been in the Southern Conference for ten years. He went to N. C. State in 1924 and remained there until 1930 when he came to Virginia as football assistant and head coach of basket ball and baseball.

Montgomery Has Big Reputation to Uphold

University, Va., Nov. 27.—If there is one North Carolina halfback whose name inspires more respect on the part of Virginia players than any other that man is Harry Montgomery, brother of the famed Cliff Montgomery, Columbia star and hero of the last Rose Bowl tilt.

FEATURE IN THANKSGIVING BATTLE

Above are the rival coaches and a few of the grid stars who are scheduled to shine in tomorrow's classic at Charlottesville. The two mentors are guiding their clubs this year for the first time. Among the Tar Heels pictured are Charlie Shaffer and Captain George Barclay, both already on several All-Southern teams, who will be finishing their careers for Carolina. Other Tar Heels are Jackson and Montgomery, backfield aces, Buck, pass-snagging end, and Daniel, fine center. For Virginia Captain Johnson will also be singing his swan song.

Six Carolina Football Stars Sing Swan Song In Tomorrow's Battle

Captain George Barclay, Eddie Kahn, Charlie Shaffer, Jim Tatum, Eddie Martin, and Ralph Gardner Will All Play Last Games For Tar Heels at Charlottesville Tomorrow.

Six men will hear "Hark the Sound" for the last time as Carolina football players tomorrow when the Tar Heels exchange greetings with the Virginia Cavaliers in their 39th annual Turkey Day classic.

This sextet includes: Captain George Barclay, Jim Tatum, Eddie Kahn, Charlie Shaffer, Ralph Gardner, and Ed Martin. Four regular stars and two valuable subs—that sums up the loss inflicted by graduation this year.

It will be hard indeed to replace such consistent performers as Barclay, Tatum, Kahn, and Shaffer. The center of the line, with the exception of the pivot man, will be missing next fall. This part of the forward wall has played admirably the entire season, putting up such impregnable defenses within the shadows of the goal post that neither Georgia, Kentucky, Georgia Tech, nor Duke could push across a score. The last of this group was the spark-plug of the backfield play.

Barclay Most Valuable

George Barclay has been chosen by his own team mates the most valuable man on the squad for two years. Outside, he is recognized as one of the outstanding guards in the country and at present holds the inside track on official first string All-American honors. Fast on offense and death on defense, this man is also a smart field general and a diagnostician-deluxe of enemy plays.

Jim Tatum is the biggest man on the squad, and the best tackle in the conference. When he is at his tackle post, few plays come over his side of the line. He is particularly fast in going down under punts and is a dead tackler.

Eddie Kahn is the worthy partner of Barclay in one of the best guards pairs on any team in the country. Few teams can boast such a combination. Kahn, more than once in every game, plows low through the enemy line and nags the runner long before he gains the line of scrimmage. All the praises available should be heaped on this man

Freshmen Turn In Fairly Good Football Year

Tar Babies Play Fine Ball at Times but Lack Consistency; Best Against Baby Deacs.

With their loss to Duke Saturday, the first of the new order of Tar Babies brought to a close a fairly successful season which was notable for the thrills, spills, and hard fought football contests that it supplied.

The records show it to be a good team. However, the Tar Babies lacked consistency and without that a team cannot rank high no matter what the sport. The Tar Babies probably never once played the brand of football that they were capable of playing, with the exception of their first encounter.

Big, Strong Bunch

The squad this year had for its nucleus a bunch of strong armed boys, muscular, broad, and carrying plenty of weight. Some were good, some were just mediocre, and still others merited praise only for their effort.

"Bunny" Burnette and George Graves were the touchdown twins, making spectacular dash-

VARSITY NETTERS TO TANGLE WITH CAVALIERS TODAY

Tar Heels Depend Upon Levitan, Willis and Harris in Encounters with Virginia Stars.

CAROLINA FAVORED TO WIN

The tennis varsity, flying the Tar Heel colors, invades Charlottesville this afternoon with high hopes for a victory over Virginia in its sole match of the fall season.

The Carolina team has a distinct advantage, having an experienced squad to throw against the practically sophomore Cavalier netmen. During the last seven years of annual Thanksgiving classics, Carolina has scored five times while dropping two to the Virginia foes. Last year a powerful team crushed the Virginians by an 8-1 count and it is out to repeat today with three of last year's players back to face the Cavaliers.

Three Veterans

Walter Levitan, Ricky Willis and Harvey Harris were the ones to see action last year and are back to do battle again. Levitan bowed to Wallace and is out for revenge in the present match. He will probably face Carl Rohmann, Southern Conference champion, and is a slight favorite due to his marked improvement during the past year.

Rohmann likewise was defeated last year, losing to Harris by 6-3, 7-9, 6-2 scores and will also be on the warpath. The second encounter may possibly see Willis trade strokes with Fred Barclay, an up and coming young player on the Virginia squad. Barclay made a grand showing in the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate championships this last month and will be a serious threat, whomever he faces.

Fine Doubles Team

Barclay teamed with Rohmann in the doubles, and that brilliant combination went to the final, where they were barely halted by Levitan and Har-

SIX VA. PLAYERS FINISH CAREERS

Half-Dozen Cavalier Stars Perform in Final College Grid Game with Tar Heels.

University, Va., Nov. 27.—Six Virginia veteran lettermen will be ending their careers in intercollegiate football when the final game of the 1934 season is played against North Carolina at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in Scott stadium.

These men are: Captain Tommy Johnson of Norfolk, Va.; Spencer Berger of Flint, Mich.; Vincent Cardwell of Hampton, Va.; and Philip Fryberger of Duluth, Minn., all backfield regulars, and Horace Hallett of Newport News, Va., center, and Billy Zimmer of Petersburg, Va., guard.

Only Two Will Start

Captain Johnson and Zimmer are the only two of these six regulars who will be in the starting lineup against the Tar Heels, for injuries received in the VPI game will keep both Berger and Hallett out of the contest and may force Cardwell to remain on the bench through most of the game.

Tommy Johnson has been one of Virginia's backfield aces although his three seasons of varsity competition. He is one of the best punters ever to do the booting for the Cavaliers. In addition he is an accurate passer, a fine pass receiver, a really

LANGUAGE GROUP TO MEET FRIDAY

Five of Faculty to Attend Meeting of South Atlantic Modern Language Association.

Five members of the University faculty will attend the seventh annual meeting of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association at the College of Charleston at Charleston, S. C. The meeting will be held Friday and Saturday.

G. R. Coffman and A. P. Hudson will represent the English department and S. E. Leavitt, Hugo Giduz, and S. A. Stoudemire will represent the Romance language department.

Executive Committee

Among the members of the executive committee of this association are G. R. Coffman, retiring president, and S. E. Leavitt.

Friday's program will include talks by two of the representatives of this University.

Professor Giduz will speak on "More Speed and Less Haste," and Dr. Stoudemire on "Placing the High School Student in the Proper Spanish Course in College."

Reports of the standing committees will include reports by Dr. Hudson, Dr. Leavitt, and Dr. Coffman.

Dr. Leavitt will also give a talk Saturday on "A Chamber of Horrors from the Drama of the Siglo de Oro."

States represented in this association are as follows: Florida, Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina, North Carolina, and Tennessee.

The meeting was held last year at Duke.

FRESHMEN TURN IN FAIRLY GOOD FOOTBALL YEAR

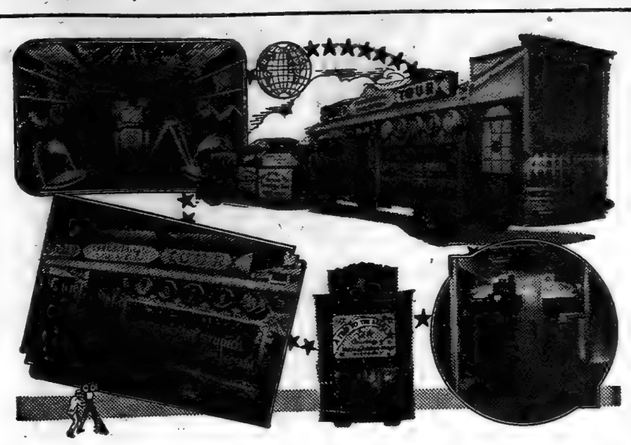
es in most every game, and keeping the opposition on the go continually with their accurate passing and punting.

Art Ditt and Ed Oliver, fullback and halfback respectively, were without doubt the most consistent offensive stars on the team. Ed Walborn, for all his fine blocking, was the most unrecognized player on the squad. Gene Bricklemyer, by his spectacular running against Duke, proved himself to be the yearling who has shown the greatest improvement since the beginning of the year.

Bershak Leads Line



Andy Bershak, stellar end, was without a peer on the defense. The hard-luck boys of the year were "Shag" Thomas, "Swede" Ax, and Al Gaydos. These freshmen kept on the side-lines quite a bit due to their injuries, played the few games they got into with their wounds not fully healed and consequently could not play at their best.

The honor of being the most colorful player and the pepper-pot of the squad, goes uncontested to "Dynamite" Dixon, erstwhile guard and alternate center. "Kelly" Polinski gets all the votes for being the fastest man on the squad, although he was followed closely by Speedy Henderson.

On the first-string line "Hen" Bartos, Bob Smith, Pete Avery, Bob Keeney, and "Reggie" Wolfe played hard and clean in their respective positions. Although they received little glory for their work, they were in every play and were responsible for the gains made by the backfield stars.

Ed Juliper, Ben Maffit, Eddie Palmer, Bud Hinkle, Bert Finberg, "Baggy" Pfeiffer, Fred Scherer, and "Red" Meroney were the reserve linemen who showed great promise.

Interior of Traveling Studio

Pictured above is the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer traveling motion picture studio which will arrive in Chapel Hill Friday, December 7, at 12 o'clock. It will be parked in front of the Carolina theatre from 12 to 1:30.

(Center) Screen and rear projector system. (Right) Glass enclosed projection room showing latest projector and Western Electric reproducer set.

Traveling Movie Studio Called "Eighth Wonder Of The World"

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer traveling studio which will pay a short visit to Chapel Hill under the auspices of the Carolina theatre has acquired, in its travels about the country, the title, "The Eighth Wonder of the World."

Painted a colorful red, trimmed with gold, the studio measures over 70 feet long and is 9 feet wide. It is hauled by a huge trackless locomotive, an interesting sight itself.

Projection Booth

Perhaps the feature which has attracted more interest than anything else is the ultra-modern projection booth, which has regulation projection and sound equipment, and one of the few rear projection screens in the country.

It is designed so that the public may pass through it to view the projection equipment at one end, and the sound recording studio at the other.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, which is the largest motion picture producing organization in the world, is sending this elaborate studio around the world, to visit virtually every city of importance in the United States and Europe.

It is expected that this traveling studio will serve not only to enlighten the movie-going public with the secrets of motion picture projection and recording but it is expected that this world tour will effect a consolidation with educational and industrial leaders, promoting the advance of visual education.

At the same time this studio affords the M-G-M company a splendid medium of searching for new screen talent.

Accompanying the studio on its world tour is a special camera car, fully equipped for Hearst Metrotone News-reel work, and two specially-built pilot cars which carry the official Hollywood party making up the studio's personnel.

who plays such bang-up ball for the Tar Heels every moment he is in the game.

The backfield will miss Charlie Shaffer. Punter, passer, blocker, tackler, runner — all these titles apply to Shaffer in a big way. His punting has been his outstanding feat of the year, averaging 43 yards against the best competition the south could offer. As a runner who can really slide through a hole in the line and then step through a broken field, Shaffer is practically unequalled in Dixie. Coaches who have seen him play praise his blocking and tackling. Quite an all-around backfield man!

Ralph Gardner is the leading reserve for the pivot post and has at all times given the regular center a push for the first string job. Ed Martin has seen service this season at halfback while last year he made his letter at quarter.. Martin is quite a nice punter and passer.

The loss of this group of stars will hit Coach Snavely's squad hard, but it is hoped that they can be made up with fair success. Fine football players — each and every one. Playing their last for Carolina tomorrow, they will sing their swan song with the words: Beat Virginia.

great defensive player, and a blocker who knows how to clear the way for teammates.

Starred in 1932 Win

Carolina supporters will remember well how Johnson and Berger counted touchdowns to bring Virginia a 14-7 victory when last the Tar Heels invaded Scott stadium in 1932. Johnson will be on hand for the Thanksgiving battle, but Berger is still nursing a dislocation.

Fryberger played two seasons on Virginia's scrub eleven as a probationary period, but he was something of a sensation last fall when he broke loose for many flashing runs to touchdowns. He'll be in law school next year and might round out a third season with the varsity did not the "five year rule" make him ineligible.

Horace Hallett has been a steady lineman who has alternated as guard or center, playing ably wherever he has been most needed. He will be sorely missed in the Carolina game, for he and Berger have been backing up the line all the season.

Zimmer is to be started against the Tar Heels at left guard where he has played through most of the season. Cardwell will be on the bench when the game begins, but is almost certain to be called into action if his twisted leg will permit him to play.

No Trouble to Tell Rival Captains Apart

University, Va., Nov. 27.—Fans in the stands will do well to watch the play of the rival captains, George Barclay of North Carolina and Tommy Johnson of Virginia, when the Tar Heels and Cavaliers lineup for their 39th annual grid game in Scott stadium on Thanksgiving.

Captain Barclay plays in the line, where he has been winning All-American recognition. Captain Johnson is the shining light of the Virginians' backfield.

Spectators won't have any difficulty telling them apart. For Johnson, the Virginia leader, will have a big figure "1" on his jersey, fore and aft, while Barclay, the Carolinian sports a "99."

back, took some hard work for the first time since his injury and his knee held up in excellent fashion. With the All-Southern star in shape Coach Snavely will have a real five-man backfield for the first time this season.

Since Shaffer was forced out both Don Jackson and Harry Montgomery have taken their places in the first backfield and both have turned in fine play. Shaffer is expected to alternate with these two boys during most of the Turkey Day battle.

Standbys Ready

Along with the three ace halfbacks, Coach Snavely will have his two standbys, Hump Snyder and Jim Hutchins, blocking back and fullback, ready. These two boys are the only backs who have started every game.

Dick Buck, injured end, also returned to action although he was forced to take it easy. The sophomore star will probably be ready to go, however, by tomorrow.

This leaves Trimpey, soph tackle, the only man definitely out of the contest. With Jim Tatum and Marvin Ray also bothered a little with hurts Coach Snavely has been grooming the mighty Captain Barclay, already selected on several All-Americans at guard, to take over a tackle post if it becomes necessary.

Drill on Blocking

In yesterday's drill the linesmen and wing backs went through a lengthy blocking practice while the rest of the backs held a tag game. Then the squad worked a long time on defense against the Cavalier plays run by the freshmen and coaches. The work was concluded with a fast tag game between the first two elevens.

Although many injuries have been reported the Cavaliers will likely start the game with a veteran outfit. Captain Tommy Johnson, halfback, will probably be the biggest Virginia threat, being a triple-threat man and especially adept at carrying the ball.

Carolina and Virginia have been playing each other since 1892 in the oldest and most colorful of the south's rivalries. The Cavaliers still lead the series with 21 wins and three ties out of 38 games.

Directory Error

Y. M. C. A. authorities announced yesterday that the student directory should read: A. S. Wheeler, acting-head of the department of chemistry instead of R. W. Bost.

Professors Move Offices

Professors J. C. Russell and C. C. Crittenden have moved their offices in Saunders from rooms 214 to 204, and from 204 to 205 respectively.

Several Old Bells In Chapel Hill Still Used After Years Of Service

Chapel of the Cross and Old South Have Bells Over a Century Old; Many Former Students Risked Lives and Incurred Faculty's Displeasure to Steal Clapper to Old South's Bell.

Old and layered inside with dust and cobwebs, the belfry of the little Chapel of the Cross can only be reached after a precarious climb up several frail and time-worn ladders. In it hangs the oldest bell in Chapel Hill.

The bell itself dates back more than a hundred years, to 1831, but it was not brought to its present location until the church was built, about 1850. Before then it served in the Christ church at Raleigh. It was cast by the I. A. Spainwall concern in Albany, N. Y.

Old South Bell

Of nearly equal age is our own bell in Old South. It had long called students to classes and celebrated many a notable event before it was cracked in 1923. It was recast the following year by a foundry in Troy, N. Y. Even in the short time that has elapsed since that date the clapper is already showing signs of considerable wear, but there is little chance of its becoming unserviceable for a long time yet. Unless, perhaps, some students take up the habit of alumni who used to steal the clapper when they were in school.

It is recorded in Battle's "History of the University of North Carolina" how on one occasion a boy risked what might have been serious body injuries when he escaped the eager hands of a member of the faculty by recklessly sliding down the drain pipe.

To reach the bell in the Methodist church it is necessary to shinny up a tall plank into the belfry and climb from there up several rickety ladders. For all this, the bell only dates back to 1890, when first it called men in high collars and narrow pants and women in bustles and big floppy hats to worship.

In comparison with the other bells in this vicinity, those in the Presbyterian and United Christian-Congregation churches are quite recent.

No one seems to know much about the bell in the Baptist church. The building itself was erected in 1854 and evidently the bell was installed at that time, in which case it is the third oldest one in Chapel Hill. When the congregation moved to their new church several years ago they left the old bell so it now serves the Masonic Order which meets there twice each month.

On November 26, 1931, the Morehead-Patterson Memorial tower, one of the most beautiful bell towers in the south, was dedicated. These bells are the ones that are perhaps best known and loved by the students. What true Carolina student will ever forget the Saturday afternoon after the Carolina-Duke football game when these chimes played "Hark the Sound"? There are 12 bells in all and on them are engraved the names of the Morehead and Patterson families who have been identified with the University. They are of varying sizes, from 300 to 3,000 pounds in weight, and total well over seven tons. A foundry in Troy, N. Y. also cast them.

VARSITY NETTERS PLAY CAVALIERS

ris. They extended the Carolina pair to the full five sets, losing 6-4, 2-6, 6-0, 4-6, 6-0.

In the singles, Barclay traveled to the semi-final before being stopped by Harvey Harris. Here also he forced Harris to the limit before yielding by 4-6, 9-7, 6-2 scores.

Stuart Taylor, diminutive Virginia veteran, will also be a possible win for Virginia. He is opening his third season on the varsity and has already participated against Carolina in two Thanksgiving events.

For Carolina, the remaining three singles players will be Larry Jones, Archie Henderson and probably Myers Whitaker. Byron Abels may see action in the place of Whitaker but neither should encounter much opposition in their match.

Deans to Meet Freshmen

Dean Bost will meet the freshmen in the school of applied science in Venable hall at 10:30 this morning. At the same time Dean Carroll will speak to the school of commerce men in Memorial hall.

HIGHS WILL PLAY HERE THIS WEEK

The two teams appear to be well matched on the basis of comparative scores. Indications are for a close, hard-fought game, with large delegations of supporters expected from the towns of the two rival schools.

In its previous conference games Reidsville downed Burlington 13-6, Spencer 48-6, and Thomasville 19-6. Edenton tied Roanoke Rapids, 12-12, and defeated Elizabeth City 20-0 and New Bern 7-0. Roanoke Rapids won the title last year.

The Durham-Greensboro battle on Saturday for the Class 'A' title promises to be another thriller. Durham, which won the championship in 1931 and 1933, was undefeated, scoring 127 points to its opponents' 26 in nine games. Greensboro was likewise undefeated in the western conference but suffered a tie by High Point in its last game.

Engineers to Meet

Washington, Dec. 3.— The United States Supreme Court held today that any student attending a land grant college must take military training, or seek higher education elsewhere.

The two young Methodists from the University of California whose case they were deciding, read the decree, must drill. Their religious objections, the court held, were not sufficient.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 3.— Twenty-two of the 26 suspended students at Louisiana State University signed an apology to Dr. James M. Smith, president. The apology will be published tomorrow.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The alleged activities of the munition makers at disarmament conferences will be investigated tomorrow when the Senate World-wide Arms Traffic Committee resumes its probe.

Rome, Italy, Dec. 3.—France and Germany joined in a far reaching agreement today on the Saar valley plebescite. Should the people vote in January to return as part of Germany, Germany will pay France nine hundred million francs for the Saar mines.

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 3.—Captain T. P. Ulm and his two companions soared away from Oakland at 3:43 p. m. today for Autralia on the trail blazing flight for trans-Pacific passenger and mail service.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Republican Chairman Henry P. Fletcher challenged Senator Wm. Borah and the other insurgents to a showdown today. He announced that he would not resign.

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 3— Proposals for continuation of the generous public works program until private capital can "take up the slack" was laid before the president today by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

Ickes' views were projected in a most significant discussion. With him were Rexford Tugwell, Harry Hopkins, Henry Morganthau, and other "ground floor" new dealers.

DEAN GIVES TALK ON EXAMINATIONS

House Tells Freshmen Confidence Is Basis for Good Work.

Reviewing the discussions of the past quarter in freshman chapel, Dean House yesterday morning advised the class on studying for examinations.

Pointing out self-confidence and effort as the basis of good work, Dean House asked the freshmen to further their intellectual life along these lines.

Dean House asserted that confidence was based primarily on integrity, and that honesty is one of the most important things to keep in mind.

C. P. Harry, member of the board of education of the United Lutheran church, led the devotionals.

Freshman Assembly

Dean Francis F. Bradshaw will speak at freshman assembly today at 10:30 a. m.

Dr. Collier Cobb

For 40 years head of the University department of geology, Dr. Collier Cobb, who died at his home here Wednesday, was internationally known as a geologist and author. His death at the age of 72 followed a long period of ill health.

DR. COLLIER COBB DIES WEDNESDAY

Former Head of Geology Department Was Widely Known Personally and as Author.

Dr. Collier Cobb, founder and for 40 years head of the geology department, died here at his home on Franklin street last Wednesday morning. Almost 73 years old, Dr. Cobb had been confined to his home since he suffered a slight stroke 18 months ago.

Dr. Cobb, who two years ago resigned as head of his department and retired from active teaching in order that he might begin work on his memoirs, had been appointed Kenan professor emeritus this fall, along with Dr. A. C. McIntosh and Dr. M. C. S. Noble.

Was Extensive Traveler

An extensive world traveler, Dr. Cobb had led a rich and varied life, and was loved and respected by people throughout the United States and in many foreign countries.

He worked his way through Harvard University as a newspaper correspondent, taught there and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology before coming here, frequently contributed to magazines, and wrote several well-known books.

Nora Beust Will Discuss Books for Children

Bull's Head Sponsors Juvenile Fiction Week.

The Bull's Head lecture program, scheduled for 4:30 p. m. in the bookshop today, will feature a discussion of "New Approved Children's Books."

Miss Nora Beust of the library school of the University will be the principal speaker on the program.

New juvenile fiction will be sponsored by the Bull's Head during this week, according to Elizabeth Johnson, director of the bookshop.

Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, will introduce Miss Beust.

English Majors

There will be an important meeting of all English majors in room 201 Murphey hall tomorrow at assembly period. This includes juniors as well as seniors.

Bolshevik Leaders Arrest 71 Suspected Of Aiding Czarists

DI WILL DISCUSS DIVORCE TONIGHT

Gibbes, Russell and Weaver Will Make Reports.

The Dialectic Senate will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in New West for its last regular session of this year.

Bills for discussion at this meeting follow: Resolved, That divorce is a social asset; Resolved, That the policies of Huey Long are a menace to the democracy of the American people, and Resolved, That the time for the inter-school football championship series should be changed.

There will be a number of reports given at this meeting by Senators Russell and Weaver and President Gibbes. One of these reports will have as its subject matter an interview with President Frank Graham.

The next session of the Di will be an executive session at which final reports from all committees appointed during the quarter will be given. Officials who are absent from the executive session are subject to a heavy fine by the president.

GRAHAM, DEANS APPROVE GENEVA PEACE DELEGATE

Bradshaw Endorses Representatives After Hearing Report Of Educational Bureau.

METHODISTS FAVOR MOVE

Last week just before the holidays, President Frank Graham gave his hearty approval and personal contribution to the sending of delegates from the University to the World Student Anti-War Conference to convene in Geneva the last of December.

At the same time, Dean Francis Bradshaw, Dean R. B. House, and Dean A. W. Hobbs gave their approval and promise for support of the delegates.

Dean Bradshaw, in order to re-assure himself as to the worth of this venture, wired the International Educational Bureau for their information and opinion on the congress. After receiving their reply, he approved the sending of delegates from the University and endorsed the one selected, Carl Thompson, a senior, and his alternate, Phillips Russell, a junior.

At the recent state-wide Methodist Student Conference in Raleigh a resolution was passed supporting the sending of delegates.

More Money Needed

The continuations committee of the local anti-war conference met last night to discuss plans to raise more money for the delegate. It was decided to try to reach as many people personally as could be done in the short time remaining and to ask that every one who has an interest in having the University represented by a delegate at this World Conference aid by making a contribution at the director's office in Graham Memorial.

The Woman's College at Greensboro has evinced interest in the move and there is a drive on at this college to contribute to the delegation funds.

Stalin Leads Drive Aimed at Assassins

Assassination of Soviet Official Kirov Brings Machinery of Red Terror into Action.

EIGHT OFFICERS REMOVED

Leningrad, Dec. 3.—(UP)—Striking swiftly, Bolshevik authorities arrested 39 persons here tonight and 32 in Moscow. The arrested were charged with participating in White Guard (Czarist) activities by organizing terrorist crimes.

Josef Stalin is personally in charge of the drive which follows the assassination last Saturday of Sergei Maronovick Kirov, high soviet official.

To Punish Suspects

The roundups followed Stalin's orders putting the harsh machinery of Red Terror into motion to punish the persons suspected of complicity in the assassination of Kirov.

Soviet authorities announced that F. D. Medved, police chief at Leningrad, and seven others had been removed from office for failure to guard the safety of the state.

Kirov was shot and killed last Saturday afternoon in the chambers of the Leningrad committee of the Communist party, which are situated in the former Smolny Institute, revolution headquarters. With him died two other high Soviet officials, Moisei Volodarsky, and Mikhail Uritsky.

ZIMBALIST NOTED FOR VERSATILITY

Violinist Who Will Play Here Thursday Is Known Also for Lack of Affectation.

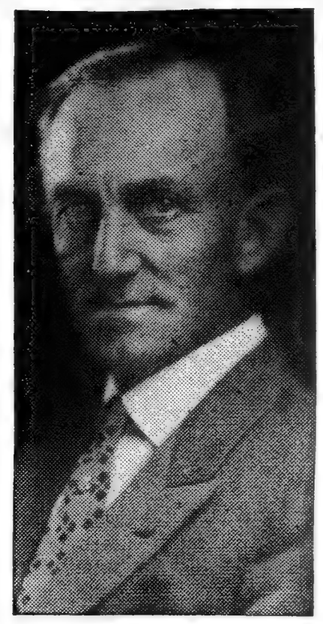
Efrem Zimbalist, world famous violinist who is scheduled to play here Thursday night under the sponsorship of the Student Entertainment Committee, believes that the old time eccentric, temperamental musician has passed from the concert stage.

He has been quoted as saying that, "The violinists of fiction undoubtedly had a basis in fact, but fact has grown faster than fiction and I don't believe you will find many of this variety on the concert platforms today."

Likes Simplicity

Zimbalist is noted for his lack of affectation, and the so-called "artistic temperament," except as shown in his music.

The violinist is noted for his ability to play any musical instrument at sight. From the most primitive of African instrument to the complicated music making machines of the east, he plays them all with equal ability.



A.B. "C"niors to Report

All liberal arts seniors whose last names begin with a letter from "A" to "G" will report today at the office of the dean of the school of liberal arts to check their records and to make application for their degrees.

Senior Co-eds

Senior co-eds will meet at 10:30 a. m. today in the woman's reception room at Graham Memorial, it was announced last night.

Power Commissioner

Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, will speak here tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall. McNinch stands high in the counsels of the present Roosevelt administration.

LITERARY GROUP TO HEAR GRAHAM

University President Will Talk To State Literary and Historical Society Tonight.

Dr. Frank P. Graham will make an address at the opening session tonight of the State Literary and Historical Society, which will meet in Raleigh. Dr. Graham is president of the society.

At the closing meeting of the society tomorrow night, the Mayflower Cup will be presented. This cup is awarded each year by the North Carolina Mayflower Society to the native North Carolinian who writes the best original book during the preceding year.

Books from Press

This year five books printed by the University Press are among those entered in competition for the cup. The press books are: "Culture in the South," edited by W. T. Couch; "Trees of the Southeastern States," by W. C. Coker and H. R. Totten; "Birds of the South," by Charlotte H. Green; "The Story of the South," by A. M. Arnett with the collaboration of W. C. Jackson; and "Lynching and the Law," by J. H. Chadbourn.

The cup was won last year by Dr. Rupert B. Vance of this University.

Paul Green's New Play To Open Friday Night

Thursday Performance Would Conflict with Concert.

The Carolina Playmakers' world premiere of Paul Green's play, "Shroud My Body Down," will not be given Thursday evening, announced authorities yesterday.

Productions are scheduled for Friday and Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock and Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Thursday night's presentation was canceled in order that the members of the Carolina Concert orchestra, a student organization which plays the musical score for the Playmakers' production, may attend the Zimbalist concert on the student entertainment bill, scheduled for Thursday evening in Memorial hall.

FEDERAL POWER BOARD CHAIRMAN WILL SPEAK HERE

Frank McNinch to Tell Work of Power Commission Tomorrow Night in Gerrard Hall.

STUDIED AT UNIVERSITY

Frank R. McNinch, who, as chairman of the Federal Power Commission and head of other important governmental agencies, stands high in the counsels of the Roosevelt administration, will tell of the work of the Power Commission in his address tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

McNinch, who will be introduced by Dean D. D. Carroll, has risen rapidly since the Democratic landslide of 1932. Appointed as one of the two Democratic members of the Federal Power Commission in 1930, after the re-organization of that body, he became chairman in July, 1933, when President Roosevelt designated him to succeed Dr. George Otis Smith.

Present Projects

Last June, McNinch was reappointed by the President to continue as head of the commission for a five-year term. The commission is now engaged in carrying on three nation-wide undertakings — the national power survey, the electrical rate survey, and an inquiry into the cost of electrical consumption in the United States.

In addition to holding the position of chairman of the Power Commission, McNinch is also a member of the National Power Policy Committee, and the National Emergency Council.

McNinch studied law at the University before beginning practice in Charlotte in 1900. He will speak here under the auspices of the school of commerce.

BIRTH CONTROL IS ASSEMBLY'S TOPIC

PARAGRAPHICS

Note on the progress of administrative consolidation: it's now Mr. and Mrs. Lanier.

And if you go in for anagrams, it's not such a long way from "exams" to "Xmas."

Bright thought for the week: "Revolution," says Representative Wylie Parker, "always calls for bloodshed."

Correct Approach

The purpose of the investigating committee appointed by Virgil Weathers was announced: "to aid the students in gaining an unbiased viewpoint as to the aims and services of the Consolidated by means of this committee." But we would suggest that the group go farther than that in its objects.

Student committees can get an "unbiased viewpoint" of the workings of the laundry, for instance, by merely watching the whirling tubs and then looking over a few columns of figures and finally pronouncing the whole system a marvelously efficient and serviceable institution. But if the committee approaches the laundry with the realization in mind that the state annually counts on so much profit from the whirling tubs and columns of figures and if the committee undertakes an investigation of how much the state it making out of the monopolistic enterprise, then we daresay its report will be more valuable and of extreme importance.

The committee was appointed, we understand, by the student body president upon the recommendation of the administration to investigate the operation of plants, the method of procedure in bookkeeping and accounting, and the personnel of all branches of the set-up. But this purpose will avail nothing, positively nothing, if the results are not in the form of a contribution to our knowledge of just exactly how much the state makes out of servicing its University students and just exactly what happens to the profit once Raleigh gets the receipts.

It is getting too close to the vacation for the investigation to bear much fruit before then, but it is imperative that the investigation be completed by "appropriations-making time" in February. Then we will be able to see in just what light the legislature and the budget committees view the estimated receipts from the pet Chapel Hill service plants.

Sport and The Headlines

With Captain George Barclay receiving the acclaim the nation over as "All-American guard," the Tar Heels end a glorious season under the inaugural regime of Coach Carl Snavely. Now, of course, there are those who clamor for intersectional games and more All-Americans, but the clear-sighted Carolina student can look at the football spectacle without shouting.

Without the taint of professionalism, without fighting for the headlines, Carolina can and does maintain a football spirit for the sport's sake. If we have All-Americans, we thrill to their accomplishments, but let us under no circumstances sacrifice the sport of the game and the fall festivities for the glamor of the headlines and the score-board.

The passing of Dr. Collier Cobb snatches from our midst an educational leader whose personality and achievements reached into the far corners of the earth. A friend of youth, an outstanding figure in the field of his science, a man of amazing versatility, Dr. Cobb was one of the most famous of the traditionally great group of teachers whose devoted service to the University has marked it for nearly a half century.

His brilliant career was impelled by industry, sympathy, and responsibility. Throughout the country his greatness has been felt in the field of geology, in the field of education, in the field of personal honor. His loss deprives the University of one of its greatest friends as well as outstanding educators, one of the greatest influences which have moulded the lives of its students while at Chapel Hill and after.

The Phi and Its Bugaboos

The stand taken by the Phi Assembly Tuesday night on the anti-war conference sadly reflects on the caliber of college thinking in such a deliberative session. More's the pity from the DAILY TAR HEEL's point of view, this paper being under the naive impression that college is supposed to rid the boys of their hay-seeds and for at least one period in their young lives give them a chance to correct themselves of the habit of shying every time their next neighbor says, "Communism—boo!"

Tuesday night's word-fest would have disappointed a stronger faith than ours were it not for the comforting thought that the infantile remarks made during the session pretty well indicated that the Phi made no pretensions to being a group which desires the respect of the campus. It seems more bent on feeding a misplaced zealotry with sophomoric oratory and playing on popular prejudice to the tune of hearsay, than on contributing anything worthwhile to campus opinion.

But for all that, we would be willing to let the Phi have its damfoolishness and would be only too glad to accord its denunciation of the anti-war conference the respect that it supposedly should command, if that collection of uninformed individuals had taken the trouble to make any sort of inquiry into the organization which they were condemning. In the first place, the anti-war conference at its very inception is a representative enough organization, striving for a worthy aim.

In the second place, the Phi might have taken the trouble to weigh the relative merits of the anti-war conference against the connection that it may have with communism through the fact that a few of its members profess adherence to the Communist party. Our particular bone of contention with the Phi Assembly is that it has adopted the very unreasonable attitude of going whole hog or none.

But, there again, that is the Phi's privilege. For the privilege of being led to make a spectacle of the organization by the wood-winding of a few of the more narrow members, however, the Phi sacrifices the good-will of a liberal majority on the campus. We cannot understand, nor are we trying mightily to fathom, the reiterated stand of the Phi after the wave of disapproval that greeted its first denunciation of the conference.

Grammar Gone to Seed

"Eight hundred teachers of English started conventioning here today," according to a recently-released story by the United Press, "and before you could split an infinitive they were up to their old tricks of denouncing Hollywood." It seems that the worthy English teachers denounced Hollywood until they couldn't think of anything else to denounce and then started pouring it on Gertrude Stein. (You know Gertie; she is "the lady who writes that stuff that goes 'Rose is a rose is a rose lily is as lily lily does.'")

Well, they sort of got together and gave Gertie the works, and denounced Gertie and all the members of her school, and then the light of truth kind of broke over the assembled multitude, and they summed up the whole denunciation in one awful, soul-searching, all-engulfing, platitudinous blast of rhetoric:

"Literary impinges on the social order, but its real nature follows the way of the arts."

Impinges. Mm-m—Kind of a sockdolager, as you might say, ain't it? Hey? Well, let's examine this. Verb—yep, it's there all right. Balance—beautifully balanced, true as a hair. Assonance and dissonance—it's got them both, by cracky, and resonance too.

As to what it means, if anything, we'll let the critics worry about that. The main thing is, these English teachers got together, and held a convention, and denounced everything in sight, including hoss operas and sin in a penthouse, and then evolved a swell statement like the aforementioned. It's great, looks fine in the papers, and gives the minute-book an air of bloated aristocracy.

The purpose of the delegate will be to represent, as far as possible, the feelings of this campus as a whole and as represented in the local anti-war conference, but chiefly to gather ideas and opinions from the World Conference in Geneva and deliver what he gained from the conference to the students of North Carolina on his return.

There is only a short time remaining for the contributing of funds. An attempt will be made to have them all in by December 10. Asheville has been active in collecting funds to send the alternate, Phillips Russell, and Southern Pines has started a campaign to aid Carl Thompson as much as possible.

However, most of the funds are expected to be collected from Chapel Hill and the University as most of the work of the delegates when they return will be concentrated in this vicinity.

Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, gave his personal opinion on the sending of delegates, stating that he believed it a worthy move. The project was discussed by the Student Council as a whole last night.

Alabama Medical Dean Visits University

Dr. Stuart Graves Inspects University Medical School.

Dr. Stuart Graves, dean of the medical school of the University of Alabama, paid a visit to the University medical school yesterday morning.

Graves is making a tour through most of the two-year medical schools in the south.

Accompanied by Dr. Charles S. Mangum, dean of the medical school, Dr. Graves inspected the entire medical set-up here. He was favorably impressed by the laboratories and the various accommodations for students.

Dr. Graves and Dr. Mangum left yesterday afternoon for Wake Forest College to visit the medical institution there.

A. I. Ch. E.

There will be a meeting of the A. I. Ch. E. at 7:30 o'clock tonight in 206 Venable, R. L. Huber, president announced yesterday.

One of the members will deliver an illustrated lecture on Dopp equipment. The lecture will be illustrated by 50 slides, which will show the construction and uses of Dopp equipment in heating, cooling, and mixing processes.

The club invites all chemistry students as well as students of engineering to attend.

OVERSTUFFED

The following students, who were confined even during the Thanksgiving holidays, or else as a result of overdoses of turkey and rainy football, took up their residence at the infirmary when they returned, were "at home" yesterday in the University infirmary: M. E. Smith, J. R. Raper, W. N. Everett, G. E. Turkenville, R. M. Barnes, and Ed Bricklemyer.

Philological Club

There will be a meeting of the Philological Club this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the lounge of the Graduate Club. Dr. S. E. Leavitt will speak on "A Chamber of Horrors from the Drama of the Siglo de Oro."

This afternoon at 4 o'clock Law School and Sigma Nu will clash on the intramural field in the annual campus football championship tussle.

Both teams have come through with inviolate records of seven wins to take their respective league championships, although Sigma Nu was forced to better the Betas in a play-off for the fraternity title.

The game tomorrow will be the first time in four years that either has gained the finals. Sigma Nu lost out four years ago to Best House, while the Lawyers' last title appearance came about seven years back.

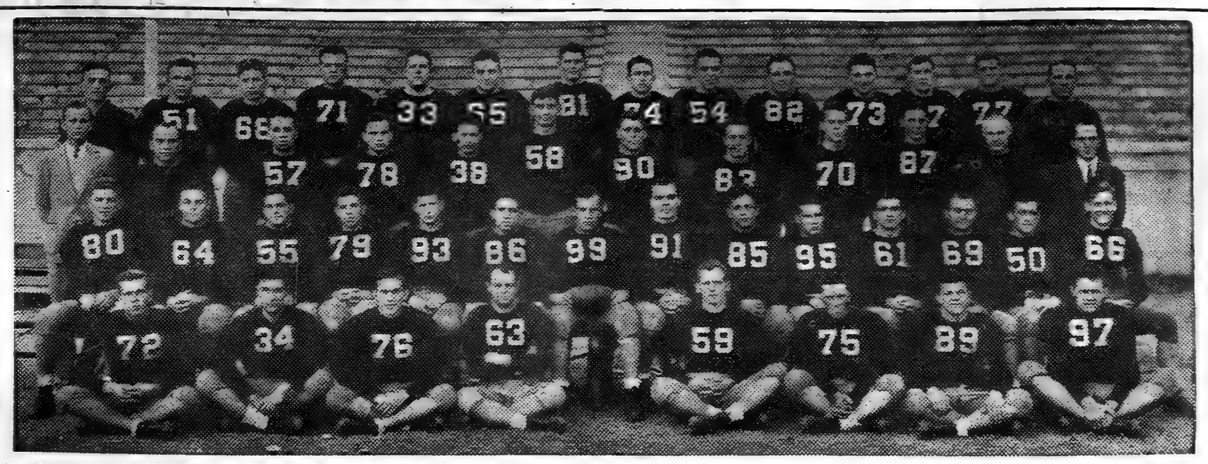
Tar Heels Place Four Players On All-State Team

Barclay, Tatum, Shaffer, Hutchins Make Official Eleven; Barclay Unanimous Choice.

A quartet of North Carolina gridders were on the first string eleven chosen among Big Five circles by the recognized official All-State board. The Tar Heels were led by their All-American captain and guard, George Barclay, who polled the only unanimous vote.

The other Snavelymen to place on the first team were Jim Tatum at tackle, Charlie Shaffer at half, and Jim Hutchins at full. On the second squad three men placed, as follows: Dick Buck at end, Eddie Kahn at guard, and Don Jackson at half.



The All-Big Five choice was made by the ten leading sports writers in the state who have seen each team in action at least once during the fall. The pick is recognized as the official All-State choice.

Four men lacked one vote of turning in perfect cards, these being Tatum, Earl Wentz of Duke, Jack Dunlap of Duke, and Johnnie Mackorell of Davidson.

The first string lineup is as follows: ends, Wentz and Morgan of Davidson; tackles, Tatum and P. Swan of Wake Forest; guards, Barclay and J. Dunlap; center, Sabol of State; quarter, Parker of Duke; halfbacks, Mackorell and Shaffer; full, Hutchins.

The second team lists, in the line from end to end: Redding of State, Isaacs of State, Kahn, E. Dunlap of Duke, Stanko of State, Durner of Duke, and Buck; and in the backfield: Kitchin of Wake Forest, Cornelius of Duke, Jackson, and Alexander of Duke.

COACH SNAVELY'S BIG FIVE CHAMPS

Here is the first group picture that has been taken of the University football squad, which in its first year under Coach Carl Snavely has made the finest record of any Tar Heel eleven since 1929, and which closed the season with a 25-6 victory in the annual Thanksgiving classic at Virginia.

Beaten only by Tennessee and tied only by N. C. State, the Tar Heels captured the state title by a brilliant 7-0 victory over Duke.

Third row: Manager Blucher Ehringhaus, Raleigh; Assistant Coach W. D. Skidmore; Bobbie Stewart, Freeport, Pa.; James Mizelle, Newport; Milton Kogan, Newark, N. J.; Murray Kanner, Sanford, Fla.; Elmer Wrenn, Greensboro; George Moore and Bill Moore, Wheeling, W. Va.; Dick Buck, Brackenridge, Pa.; Head Coach Carl Snavely; Manager Dick Lewis, Oxford.

BASKETEERS TAKE LIGHT SCRIMMAGE

Tar Heel Quint Is Slowly Rounding into Shape; Schedule Still Not Complete.

The Tar Heel basketeers are in the midst of their pre-season training session, gradually rounding into shape as individuals and as a team. A light scrimmage featured yesterday afternoon's workout in the Tin Can.

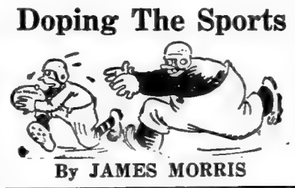
To date the schedule is not complete as Coach Bo Shepard is trying to obtain several early season games to get the team in condition for the heavy grind already booked. The season will open either just before the Christmas holidays or just following.

Yesterday's practice started with the usual warming up exercises and a drill on breaking into the goal for shots. Then the squad held a scrimmage with last year's varsity regulars, reserves and rising sophs participating.

This year Coach Shepard will miss two of the outstanding stars from the 1934 fast stepping White Phantom quintet, Virgil Weathers and Dave McCachren. This leaves Captain Snooks Aitken, Jim McCachren, and Jason Glace to take the part of the foundation for this season's hopes.

The remaining two positions will more than likely be filled by Ben Blood at guard and Mel Nelson at forward. Also a fine bunch of sophomores, from a quite successful frosh outfit, will give the favored men a fight for the posts. These sophs include Rainey, Ramsey, Derickson, Bullard, and Easter.

Meet Same Rivals



Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 3.—(UP)—There is little likelihood that Auburn and Alabama will resume at an early date the athletic relations they severed in 1906, but 1935 will provide an excellent opportunity for a comparison of their gridiron merits.

Each will engage Tennessee, Kentucky, Georgia Tech and Georgia.

Wrestling Notice

Coach Chuck Quinlan wants all varsity and freshman wrestlers to report to the Tin Can at 4 o'clock. It will be the first regular mat practice for the 1935 season.

Doping The Sports

By JAMES MORRIS

COACH Carl Snavely polished things off last Thursday as a first year football director at Carolina when his Tar Heels had an easy time romping over Virginia, 25-6. The season was all Snavely's as far as Carolina is concerned. Fans expected the new mentor to make only an average team with the material on hand, depending on him to gain fame from the elevens that he might build in two or three years. But Coach Snavely crossed even the members of his own squad up, putting a winning eleven on the field from the very first day. He rightfully deserves being called the biggest miracle coach of the year and should receive a mighty handshake from Captain George Barclay. If you'll just notice, members of losing grid teams don't have much chance to make All-American.

ALTHOUGH many believed that the Cavaliers would give Carolina trouble, as a result of over-confiidence, nothing of the sort happened last Thanksgiving. The Tar Heels counted three touchdowns so fast that the spectators didn't have time to cheer thoroughly for the first marker before the score had mounted to 19-0. It was then that the Tar Heels started having a good time in their final tilt; even Coach Snavely joined in the fun by sending in everybody on the bench except the managers and waterboy.

AT CHARLOTTESVILLE Captain Barclay returned to the old scoring ways which brought him a bit of fame last year; Captain George intercepted a pass on his own 45-yard line and then showed folks that he might also rate the All-American backfield when he sidestepped his way 55 yards for the opening tally. Don Jackson, triple-threat back, put on the next starring exhibition by gathering in a punt and dashing 47 yards to the 8-yard line before being halted. Jackson soon stepped off the rest of the way to the goal line for a second touchdown.

THE same Jackson started the third march for a Carolina marker, intercepting a pass and carrying the ball to Virginia's 32-yard line. Big Jim Hutchins continued his farming tactics as he ploughed through the middle of the line for 22 yards. Harry Montgomery counted, making the necessary 10 after receiving a lateral pass from Hutchins.

Dick Buck, great sophomore end and hero of the Duke game, furnished the final Carolina touchdown thrill in the third period, proving for certain that his spectacular run against the Blue Devils was no lucky break. Buck received a short toss from Jackson, dodged a couple of Cavaliers, and then dashed 45 yards to tally standing up.

ANOTHER Johnson popped up to irritate the Tar Heel gridders, this time not "Man-O-War" but Tommy, captain and brilliant back for Virginia. Johnson worried Carolina all afternoon and then made the lone

All-American Barclay

Captain George Barclay, great guard on the Tar Heel football team for the past three years, continues on his way to All-American fame despite a group of excellent guards all over the country. So far Barclay has made the first All-American strings of the AP and NEA and the second eleven of the UP, besides making everybody's All-State, All-Southern and All-Southern Conference clubs. The only thing Barclay needs to make things perfect is to get on the team picked by the official board of writers and coaches. The most-coveted club is expected to be made known some time this week.

RAIN WASHES OUT VARSITY NET PLAY

Annual Clash Not to Be Staged This Fall as Varsity Play Ends.

The varsity tennis match with Virginia, scheduled for last Wednesday at Charlottesville, was called off due to the continued downpour that drenched the state. The contest will not be played this year, marking the first break in this annual fall encounter between the two universities.

There will be very little play for the varsity from now until the spring quarter rolls around. The winter will find them pounding the ball in the Tin Can, but there will be no real play until intercollegiate competition starts in early April. The same holds true for the frosh racqueteers.

BOXERS RESUME FAST WORKOUTS

Ringsters Look Good Despite Thanksgiving Layoff; O'Flaherty Stars in 4 Rounds.

RAY WILL REPORT TODAY

In view of the fact that many of Coach Rowe's leather pushers were feeling the effects of the long layoff from last Wednesday until yesterday afternoon, the Southern Conference aspirants gave one of their fastest exhibitions of the current year.

Tommy O'Flaherty stepped four fast cantos with some of the heavier men. One of O'Flaherty's sparring mates was Bert Ressler, holder of last year's 165 pound intramural crown. Ressler went two of the four rounds as a polisher for the defense of his title next week.

Alderman Improves

Lammie Alderman, brilliant sophomore heavyweight prospect, jabbed and hooked his way through three rounds with one of the candidates for the yearling aggregation. Alderman has shown much improvement here of late and should see plenty of action with his big guns this coming season.

Since the curtain has fallen on the football season, Marvin Ray, powerful light-heavyweight of last year's varsity, is scheduled to report for workouts starting this afternoon. Ray is a valuable addition to the present squad.

CAPITAL WRITER PRAISES CAPTAIN GEORGE BARCLAY

Dr. R. D. W. Connor Sends Washington Times Article; Thinks Barclay All-American.

LIKES RUNNING OF STAR

[Editor's note: The following article, written by Harry Costello, well-known Washington sports writer, was sent to the DAILY TAR HEEL by Dr. R. D. W. Connor. Dr. Connor, who was appointed first federal archivist and is now living in Washington, has shown a keen interest in Barclay's All-American candidacy.]

By HARRY COSTELLO
In The Washington Times

Well, yesterday we got our first glimpse of Captain George Barclay, of North Carolina University's Tar Heel eleven.

We now can understand why North Carolina offers Barclay as its All-America candidate.

Barclay is the goods—all wool and a yard wide. He can play guard with the best of them. Unquestionably, he is of All-America caliber.

Carolina throughout the Virginia game yesterday (won by Carolina, 25 to 6) played a 6-2-2-1 defense. Barclay backed up the line on the right side, but he was all over the field.

Barclay Scores

Barclay at one time or another must have been a backfield man. He plays his defensive position with all the instinctive perfection of a backfield man. Barclay scored Carolina's first touchdown.

Around about Virginia's 40-yard line the Cavaliers undertook a forward heave. Barclay, sensing the play, faded back and intercepted the ball. He sprinted some 50 yards for the touchdown.

On that run, Barclay ran like an All-America back. He had speed. He had elusiveness. He had a thinker, as he proved when he permitted one of his mates to clean out a Virginia unit for him when it appeared that this Virginia unit would tackle Barclay.

Throughout the game, as much as we could, we watched Barclay. He is a finished performer. He wastes no energy. He has the fire and verve which go with a good football player. He is an ideal captain, as he proved yesterday.

Speed Is Factor

Barclay is rather short — I would say around 5 feet 10 inches, perhaps a bit less. He weighs about 185 pounds. His speed is something to behold. However, his extraordinary cleverness on the field of play constitutes his greatest virtue as a gridder.

Truly, Barclay is an All-America man.

CONTEST OPENED BY 'MANUSCRIPT'

College Students Are Eligible for Short Story Contest Offering Prize of $50.

College short story writers will get a chance to prove their talents in a $50 prize contest to be conducted by the editors of Manuscript, a bi-monthly magazine.

All entries must be mailed to Manuscript, 17 West Washington street, Athens, Ohio, before May 1, 1935, and may be any length up to 7,000 words.

The contest is open to all registered students of colleges and universities in the United States, and each entrant must enclose a statement from a faculty member attesting to his eligibility.

All stories must be accompanied with self-addressed stamped envelopes, but only two stories may be submitted by any one entrant. The best story will then be printed in the Manuscript appearing August, 1935.

The editors, Mary Lawhead and John Rood, will be glad to give advice and helpful criticism to the authors in cases where they show unusual ability.

Edwin S. Lanier Marries Miss Nancy Herndon

Couple United at Home of Dean Robert House Thursday.

Miss Nancy Herndon, popular secretary of Dean R. B. House, and Edwin S. Lanier, secretary of the University self-help bureau, were married here last Thursday night at the home of Dean and Mrs. House in the presence of a few close friends. The Reverend O. T. Binkley officiated.

The couple left immediately for a brief wedding trip and will be at home after December 15.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. J. A. Herndon and Mrs. Herndon of Durham. Lanier is a graduate of the University in the class of 1925 and taught school for several years before returning here in 1930 to manage the self-help bureau.

HUDSON WILL ADDRESS FORT BRAGG OFFICERS

Dr. A. P. Hudson, chairman of freshman English in the University, will address the Officers' Service Club at Fort Bragg tonight. He will be the fifth of a series of speakers to address the club, as arranged by R. M. Grumman of the extension division.

Dr. Hudson will illustrate the different types of folk-lore in the south.

Traveling Movie Studio To Reveal Filming Details

Studio on Wheels to Visit Chapel Hill About Noon Friday.

Public demonstrations of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's famous traveling motion picture studio are scheduled to take place between 12 and 1:30 p. m., in front of the Carolina theatre Friday.

The studio on wheels comes to Chapel Hill after crossing the continent from Culver City, California, the home of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Visitors to the studio will learn the details of making talking pictures from the experts themselves who are accompanying the studio troupe.

The $150,000 traveling studio has visited more than 5,000 towns and cities already and has entertained millions of people. Plans are being made to carry it to Europe and the Far East after the completion of the present American tour.

Fraternity Photos

Men who wish to have their pictures in the fraternity section of the Yackety Yack are asked to have them taken before December 15. This section will be closed on that date and absolutely no pictures will be admitted thereafter.

All organizations which have not paid their space fee are reminded that the 10 per cent discount will be discontinued on December 15.

Pierson to Return

Dr. W. W. Pierson, dean of the graduate school, will return today from a trip to Atlanta to the conference of deans of southern graduate schools, where he read a paper.

The meeting ended Saturday, and Dean Pierson has been occupied since, at President Graham's representative, with University business.

and John Bost and Edwards for the Snakes, will bear scrutiny. Bost, it will be remembered, gained second place for the season in both the fraternity and campus individual scoring by accounting for nine touchdowns.

Playing directly opposite the Snakes' high scorer will be Virgil Weathers, who, despite the fact that he has participated in only three games, has displayed fine form each time. It was he who snagged the pass that eliminated the strong Swain Hall team, and is the boy on the end of the shysters' triple lateral and forward pass play.

Besides the ends both teams have fine lines, hard charging, splendid on the defense, and good interference makers for the talented sets of opposing backs. The two field generals, Whitaker of Sigma Nu and Jones of Law, will undoubtedly call for plenty of strategical plays against the enemy.

Should it be a matter of extra points deciding the issue, each has fine point converters in Whitaker and Morgan. Whitaker was the boy who sent the Beta aggregation toppling from the heights with a personal 10-0 triumph in which, he tallied a six-pointer, made the extra, and sent a field goal straight between the uprights on the last play of the opening half.

We'd like every pipe Smoker to read this statement

In the manufacture of Granger Rough Cut Pipe Tobacco the Wellman Process is used.

The Wellman Process is different from any other process or method and we believe it gives more enjoyment to pipe smokers.

... it gives the tobacco an extra flavor and aroma
... it makes the tobacco act right in a pipe — burn slower and smoke cooler
... it makes the tobacco milder
... it leaves a clean dry ash — no soggy residue or heel in the pipe bowl

We wish, in some way, we could get every man who smokes a pipe to try Granger.

NOTED VIOLINIST TO APPEAR HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

Zimbalist to Play Here After 50,000 Mile Tour; Concert on Entertainment Program.

PLAYS ANY INSTRUMENT

After traveling 50,000 miles on his last tour, Efrem Zimbalist, internationally famous violinist, will appear here in a concert tomorrow evening under the sponsorship of the Student Entertainment Committee.

Scarcely a city in the world has not heard the strains of his violin; nor is there a symphony orchestra of any importance that has not frequently featured him as a soloist. Zimbalist is accorded the distinction of being the only artist having five reengagements in the Orient, favoring music lovers there time and again.

Debut in 1911

Playing in Australia, New Zealand, India, China, Japan, Hawaii and throughout Europe, Zimbalist made his American debut in 1911 with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Since that time he has become an American citizen and now makes his home in New York City.

Not only is the famous artist proficient in the violin, but also in any musical instrument from a prehistoric African tom-tom to the most complicated of wind instruments. After a few moments' inspection, Zimbalist can play them all.

His collection of rare books is world famous, as is his love for Chinese art. Even golf receives a share of attention from the ace of violinists who claims seven as a record on any one hole.

DI SENATE HELPS GENEVA DELEGATE

Senators Mullen and Kendrick Named for Wright Debate.

The Dialectic Senate met last night in its last regular session of the year and decided that it would contribute the amount of four dollars to the delegates who are going to the Anti-war Conference in Geneva.

The bill was made a special order. Senator Weaver introduced the bill and was followed by a great number of speakers among whom were the following senators: Blackwell, Rancke, Taff, Williams, Stein, and Bell.

The bill: Resolved, That divorce is a social asset, was passed, as was also the bill: Resolved, That the policies of Huey Long are a menace to the democracy of the American people.

The president announced that Senators Mullen and Kendrick had been selected as the Mary D. Wright debaters from the senate. He also stated that all members were required to attend the executive session of December 11, subject to a heavy fine.

ANNUAL STAFF TO MEET

The following men are requested to attend an important meeting of the Yackety Yack staff this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Graham Memorial:

Graham Andrews, Harry Stovall, Bernard Davis, Drew Martin, Newton Craig, David Allen, Bud Brown, Charles Manning, Roy Percy, Jack Tate and Robert Sosnick.

Louisiana's Kingfish Laments Fate As "His" Team Goes Down In Defeat

Woman Public Enemy

Chicago, Dec. 4.— (UP) — Mrs. Helen Gillis, woman Public Enemy No. 1 and 20-year-old widow of "Baby Face" Nelson, is in custody of the Department of Justice here, it was announced today.

She was captured at 10 p. m. Thanksgiving Day, two days after it was unofficially reported that she had surrendered in fear she would meet the same fate as "Baby Face."

The widow of the late criminal has been questioned relentlessly and secretly. The Department of Justice is considering charging her with complicity in the murder of two department agents several days ago.

Huey Says He Knows What It Is Now to Get "Hell Beat" Out of Him.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 4.— (UP)—Senator Huey P. Long lamented today "I know what it is now to get the hell beat out of you!"

The Louisiana Kingfish's remarks were made as he read over the telegrams razzing him because his Louisiana State University football eleven was defeated by Tulane Saturday, 13 to 12.

"Out of the 1,000 telegrams that I received, all of them razzed me. Not one was sympathetic," he bemoaned. "It looks like somebody ought to feel sorry about this beating.

"And," he added, "most of the telegrams came collect.

"The vultures are gnawing at my vitals, not the lions."

"Adopted" Child

You remember Senator Long was the one who "adopted" the Louisiana football team. He boasted about its prowess, of what it would do to the various teams throughout the country; of how it could beat Minnesota and Alabama both in the same day.

But when the Kingfish wanted it to deliver the most, his team failed. The team that beat it, Tulane University of New Orleans, is its most ancient and bitter football rival. For 32 years they have been playing, and the one that wins considers any season successful.

No Trip Saturday

Louisiana plays Tennessee at Knoxville Saturday, but the Kingfish isn't going to take a group of Louisiana students up there to see the game.

"No," he shook his head vigorously, "our trip to Nashville for the Vanderbilt game was perfect. It couldn't be improved upon. I am not going to Knoxville."

GREEN PLAY SETS TO BE DIFFERENT

Playmaker Shop Preparing Scenery That Will Reflect "Style of Marionette Show."

Something entirely different has been the theme song of the Carolina Playmakers' scene shop in preparing the new sets for the Playmakers production of Paul Green's "Shroud My Body Down" set for Friday and Saturday night and Saturday afternoon.

Samuel Selden, technical director of the Playmakers, and Wilbur Dorsett, member of the scene-makers' staff, have combined efforts to carry out Paul Green's instructions for the building of scenery that will reflect the "style of a marionette show." The new settings suggest the marionette idea enlarged.

Two Scenes

The two different scenes for "Shroud My Body Down" show the edge of a wide tobacco field and the front yard and inside of the Graham farm house.

In the first scene, the action takes place around an old grave in the corner of the foreground and the story is enacted by the passers-by.

The second set promises to be one of the outstanding productions of the Playmakers scene shop. The setting shows the yard of the Graham farmhouse with the bunkhouse in one corner and the house in the other. The walls of the house have been cut away so as to show the inside, including the dining-room, kitchen, Lora's bedroom, Mr. Graham's room and the front porch. Selden and his cohorts admitted that it was a big problem to build such a setting for a stage with only 18 feet for an opening.

Plans are being made for the setting for the second scene to be placed on rollers and those in charge announced yesterday that the change in the settings would be made in one minute exactly.

ULM LOST NEAR HAWAIIAN GROUP

Can Stay Afloat Two Days, Radio Message Reveals.

Honolulu, Dec. 4.— (UP) — Their flight transformed suddenly into a desperate failure, Captain Charles T. P. Ulm and two companions, co-pilot George Litlejohn and navigator-radio operator Leon Skilling, huddled in a cold airplane tonight, lost somewhere in a haze-covered sea near the Hawaiian Island.

Two coast guard cutters, three navy seaplanes, and a squadron of army amphibians cruised fan wise from Honolulu seeking the aviators.

Twenty navy seaplanes are searching a wide area northeast of Honolulu as experts believed Ulm landed somewhere in this region, although fliers messages indicated a belief they are south of the Hawaiian capitol.

The navy is exerting all facilities to effect a prompt rescue. Weak, sputtering messages from the plane indicated it was afloat and that the three fliers were uninjured. Ulm estimated that the plane, Star of Australia, could remain afloat about two days.

The French Club will meet tonight at 7:15 o'clock in the parish house of the Episcopal church.

EXHIBIT APPEARS HERE JANUARY 5

First in Series of Programs Is Work of Distinguished American Artists.

From the Grand Central Galleries of New York City an exhibition of 24 paintings by distinguished American artists will come here January 5 as the first item of a program of exhibitions, lectures, and conferences offered in North Carolina during 1935 by the Southern Art Projects.

The purpose and program of this organization, which is supported by a Carnegie Corporation grant and sponsored by the Universities of North Carolina and Virginia and the Telfair Academy of Arts and Sciences of Savannah, Ga., were explained Monday night in an address made before the North Carolina State Art Society by Dr. Frank P. Graham, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Art Projects.

Many Events Here

Most of the events on the organization's North Carolina program will take place in Chapel Hill. Acting as an assistant to Dr. Graham and the faculty committee on fine arts, Russell M. Grumman is working out the details of the program in this state.

January 7, Dean Everett V. Meeks of the Yale school of fine arts will deliver a lecture on architecture.

SMITHWICK FINES ALL PHI MEMBERS

Assembly Votes Against Distribution of Birth Control Literature; Has Lethargic Session.

The Phi Assembly relapsed into lethargy at the regular meeting last night, after two previous explosive sessions.

The principal bill for discussion: Resolved, That all laws prohibiting the spread and distribution of birth control literature be repealed, was defeated by a count of 14-13.

An amendment to the constitution providing that all bills, instead of being introduced directly to the floor, must first have the sanction of the speaker or the ways and means committee was brought forward by Representative Stuart Rabb. After two vote-counts, the necessary two thirds majority was obtained and the amendment was passed by a vote of 22-11.

Yes? No? Maybe?

Speaker Robert Smithwick first held that the motion had been defeated. He then announced that it had passed, only to state again a moment later that it had been defeated. The final tally, however, made the vote certain. Said Speaker Smithwick at the conclusion of the discussion: "I fine you all ten cents."

Representative Rabb explained during the discussion that the new amendment would prevent the discussion on the floor of the Phi Assembly of bills which might, regardless of the vote, reflect the ill-will of the campus on the assembly.

Speaker Smithwick announced that there will be an election for the new officers of the Phi Assembly at next Tuesday's meeting. There will also be an initiation for all prospective members.

McNinch To Speak This Evening On Power Plans And Problems

Debate Teams

The Carolina debate teams which will meet the Asheville Normal school here tomorrow were given a Socratic examination at a meeting in Graham Memorial last night.

Norman Kellar and A. L. Kaplan will take the affirmative of the query: Resolved, That the nations of the world agree to prevent the international shipment of arms. This debate is scheduled to take place tomorrow morning at 10:45 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Robert Maynard and Winthrop Durfee will support the negative of the same query with another team of the Asheville Normal school tomorrow night.

Plans of Speaker Are Authoritative

Talk Will Concern Work of Federal Power Commission and Other Power Development.

LECTURER U.N.C. ALUMNUS

Using "Power Plans and Problems" as his subject, Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, will speak in Gerrard hall this evening at 8 o'clock.

Standing in the inner circle of national affairs, McNinch will speak directly from the administration. His plans in power development are considered as authoritative since the important duties entrusted to him have carried him into every phase of national power.

His talk this evening will embrace several aspects of the work of the Federal Power Commission and other governmental power development.

Surveys

The commission is now conducting three surveys, the National Power Survey, the Electric Rate Survey, and an inquiry into the cost of electrical distribution. McNinch as head of the commission was also directed to suggest a program of public works.

After studying law at the University before beginning practice in Charlotte in 1900, McNinch was elected to the Legislature and acted as war-time mayor of Charlotte, serving two terms from 1917 to 1921. He has wide experience in public affairs in North Carolina as well as the nation at large.

He was appointed to the Federal Power Commission in 1930 when that body was organized and was designated by the President as chairman upon the resignation of Dr. George Otis Smith in 1933.

Traveling Fiddler Enchants Audience

Irvin Rouse, Trouper, Plays For Students on Streets.

Play, fiddle, play, and earn me a living.

That is the philosophy of little Irvin Rouse, and with it he has traveled the entire Atlantic Seaboard from Florida to Canada, last night including Chapel Hill in his tour as he played in front of Pritchard-Lloyd pharmacy.

For Irvin Rouse is a trouper, and a trouper plays whenever there is an audience. He would take his fiddle and play anything you wished, for this violinist played by ear. No music, never even a lesson, he "just picked it up." And so for five years he has wandered from his home in New Bern, playing as Kreisler never played.

Positions

Starting in conventional violin style, Irvin would change his fiddle position from under his arm to over his head, behind his back, below his knees, anywhere in fact; and all in the twinkling of an eye. Thrusting the bow into the hands of an astonished listener, he would continue playing without missing a note, running his violin up and down the bow that anyone could hold.

Then the bow would switch to Irvin's mouth, then drop to his knees, and with a click would lay at his feet, almost trained. Never once did the fiddle screech a misnote. Nor did Irvin ever refuse to play a request. And the shower of nickles and dimes repaid him for his efforts.

ROOSEVELT ASKS HELP FOR "LITTLE FELLOWS"

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 4.— (UP)—President Roosevelt announced tonight that he would ask Congress to lift restrictions on 600,000 "little fellows" who are now subject to the terms of the Bankhead Cotton Control act.

At the same time, however, Roosevelt reiterated that production control as a whole would be continued as a definite government policy, in hopes that after three crops or so the cotton surplus would be reduced to the prewar level of approximately 4,000,000 bales.

Band Equipment

All members of the University band are requested to turn in their music and band coats immediately, announced Earl Slocum, director of the band, yesterday.

COUNCIL FAVORS ANTI-WAR ACTION

Sending Representative to National Council Approved.

At the meeting of the Student Council in Graham Memorial Monday night the motion was made and passed that the council favor the sending of Carl Thompson or Phillips Russell to the Geneva Anti-war Conference.

Another motion passed was that a delegate from the University be sent to represent the campus publications at the National Student Council to be held in Boston, Mass., from December 28 to January 1. Virgil Weathers was selected to represent the Student Council and also to be the official representative of the University.

The action of the council in sanctioning the sending of delegates to the Anti-War Conference has no official bearing on those plans. It merely signifies that the council approves of this action of the local anti-war conference.

Freshman Meetings

Dean Hobbs will meet freshmen of the liberal arts school this morning during the regular chapel period in Gerrard hall.

Commerce school freshmen will convene with Dean Carroll in Memorial hall at the same time.

PARAGRAPHICS

We know a freshman who thinks he's going to hear Violinist play the zimbal tomorrow night.

Di discussed divorce, Phi discussed birth control, and Nora Beust talked about books for children. What's a guy to do, anyway?

Chairman McNinch's talk, if we read the subject aright, will be a powerful one, at any rate.

Contributions Are Needed, Now!

Following as it does the Phi assembly's denunciation of the anti-war conference, the approval given by Deans House, Bradshaw, and Hobbs to that group's efforts to send delegates to Geneva makes the literary society's stand look a trifle pale around the gills. President Graham's personal contribution toward sending the delegates does even more. It leaves a serious doubt in the minds of many on the campus as to just how representative the Phi is.

But, leaving the assinine intent of the Phi to discourage the anti-war conference, we point out the need of the organization for funds, if Delegates Carl Thompson and Phillips Russell are to journey to Geneva. The time is short between now and the deadline for contributions, which has been set for December 10, and with exams not far in the offing, solicitation of contributions is going to work a hardship on those who are working to raise the money. It would help them if, instead of waiting to be asked personally to contribute, students interested in giving Carolina a representation at Geneva, would leave their contributions at the office of the director of Graham Memorial.

Good Word For Snyder

Learning that the interference trophy given by William P. Jacobs of Clinton, S. C., to the best blocker in the Southern Conference will be awarded December 15, we are prompted to insert a little beforehand word in favor of "Hump" Snyder, Carolina's dependable path-clearer.

Mr. Jacobs, donor of the award, was evidently a football fan who appreciated the hard task and partial obscurity that the interferer must undergo to do his job of opening up the way for a team's ground-gainers. And now that Carolina has placed a goodly number of players on the mythical elevens in the south, to say nothing of the All-American recognition of Barclay, it would be a fitting tribute to Snyder's consistent work if he were boosted for the trophy.

Making Known A New Sphere

While it has been more or less generally known to Chapel Hillians, President Graham's announcement before the North Carolina State Art Society that the University will have a museum of art in Person hall must have been news to the state at large. What the reaction will be we wonder; but if the worthiness of the project is at all taken into consideration, we feel sure our citizens will voice approval. The encouragement of painting is as much within the sphere of University activity as is the work that is already being done here in music and the drama.

Science Vs. Society

The United States has long prided herself on her almost perfect isolation. Bounded on two sides by the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, neighbored on the north by Canada, traditionally a friend, and on the south by Mexico, a fickle friend, and a not too formidable enemy, she has enjoyed boundless freedom and expansion. She has never been worried by jealous neighbors always ready to invade and take possession, nor has she been a country completely cut off from communication with other nations. Indeed her position has been almost ideal.

Three days ago Captain Charles Ulm and two other airmen took off from Oakland, Cal., on a hop to Honolulu and Australia, in an effort to chart a new air route from Australia to Hawaii. It is expected that regular service will be inaugurated within two years. Similar steps to span the Atlantic are being planned, and should reach fruition along with those being taken on the Pacific.

The establishment of these lines is the realization of the dreams of many a patron saint of aviation. The carrying of passengers across the oceans has long been looked forward to as an inevitable advance in the history of aviation and transportation. It is certainly true that such an advance would mean a great deal in increased understanding and sympathy among people of foreign nations. It would help commerce extensively, and might possibly even aid diplomatic relations.

While these advantages are supposedly accruing to all those concerned, however, the American isolation is being destroyed. The American front is no longer bounded by the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, but extends as far as its airships can reach. Japan, France, and Germany, formerly distant acquaintances, are now our next-door neighbors. While it is undoubtedly nice to have our friends and acquaintances living close enough to us so that we can more easily carry on friendly relations with them, matters are somewhat complicated when misunderstanding arises. While we do not attempt to disclaim the obvious advantages obtained from improved transportation facilities, we at the same time wonder if we have yet reached that Utopian stage where we can fully realize these advantages.

We are inclined to believe that our scientific advance is outrunning our social and political progress, and wonder if such feats as that of Captain Ulm are as valuable to us as would be some serious and well-placed education in understanding of the acts of foreign countries.

Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

(Editor's note: The following letter was written before the writer read the DAILY TAR HEEL'S editorial of November 20 regarding a browsing room and the open forum letter of September 23 from the class in book selection in the school of library science in further reference to the possibility of such a room. It presents a new slant on the reading room question.)

More About a Browsing Room

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

It may smack of heresy to say that there is not a real reading room in all the University, such a one as would tempt a fellow to read; where there are shelves of books that beckon and say, "Come close, take a look, touch me, pull me down, open me, read me"; where comfy chairs pull at the would-be reader under soft and adequate lights; where there are no red tape and restraining rules.

What about the big reading rooms in our up-to-date University library. Both are workshops, adapted especially for class routine reading and the machinery of acquiring specific knowledge. The upper room is so vast, its stores of knowledge ponderous and classified for purposes of research, its furniture forbidding and uncomfortable, its atmosphere that of a workshop not leisure, hushed whispers, no smoking, it gives a bad taste to even a bright red detective story or enticing magazine article, drives the would-be reader out into the fresh air or back to his unsociable room with a vague want and an unexpressed question, which I am now trying to put into words.

I have a suggestion: let the University library keep a collection of books in the Graham Memorial reading room (main hall) on shelves free of access, under the care of a specially appointed caretaker. No red tape or charging system of any kind—except that the books may not be taken from the room. For such a privilege the Graham Memorial should gladly pay its caretaker or librarian.

What sort of books? Oh, a most general collection, such as one finds to the east of the charging desk in the delivery lobby of the central library, or more varied, and changing slowly but constantly—books that tempt varied tastes, books to read, not to study. Perhaps some books will be injured, some disappear. That is a small consideration in comparison with the general good accomplished and pleasure rendered. Such reading might mean for John Henry a broad and valuable education, a delight and solace in life, instead of, or in addition to a specialized vocation to acquire simply dollars.

I am not now suggesting details, or conjuring up difficulties on the part of administrative officers. The content of a library is more important than its machinery. But I'm just now trying to get the above idea into the heads of the students, knowing that such a demand voiced emphatically by them will get results far quicker than any appeal by the writer to headquarters, wherever those may be.

I know that this thing can be done easily and should be done. It's a trained librarian (rather "back number") who is writing this, one who believes, however, that "reading maketh a full man" in the true Baconian sense.

Beginning March 25, Eliot O'Hara of Washington, D. C., will conduct a three weeks' course in water-color painting. During this period he will exhibit some of his own water colors.

Lee Simonson of the Theatre Guild, New York City, will present an illustrated lecture March 27 on "Stage Settings from the 17th Century to the Present."

During the annual state dramatic festival, March 27 to 30, an exhibit of 300 photographs of stage sets from the International Exhibition at the Gallery of Modern Art in New York City, will be shown.

There will be sent throughout the state traveling exhibits of the work of North Carolina professional artists, prints, and small collections of oil paintings, water colors, and other mediums.

Conferences and institutes on art and art appreciation for public school teachers and others interested in art education will be held during the year.

A summer conference on creative arts is also proposed.

Finjan Staff Meeting

There will be an important meeting of the advertising staff of the Carolina Finjan in the office of the publication this afternoon at 2 o'clock. All members must attend.

Glee Club to Meet

The Women's Glee Club of the University will hold their usual weekly meeting this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Hill Music hall.

Tuberculosis Seals To Pay Public Nurse

Part of the salary of the local public health nurse who works among the colored people in the community will be paid from returns from the Chapel Hill Tuberculosis Seal drive which will start this week.

The nurse is employed to watch for suspected cases of tuberculosis, to isolate proved cases, and to educate against the spread of the disease.

The finance committee of the National Tuberculosis Association urges the students to buy generously of these stamps for self-protection.

Dormitory Council

All members of the dormitory council are requested to meet in Graham Memorial this evening at 9:30 o'clock for an important session.

Law School Annexes 1934 Mural Grid Championship By Beating Sigma Nu, 7-3

Bryan Crosses Line on Sleeping End Play In First Half.

Whitaker Registers the Losers' Points with Field Goal.

A successful sleeping end play midway through the opening half brought the Law School a 7-3 triumph over Sigma Nu and the 1934 campus intramural football championship yesterday afternoon. It was the Lawyers' first title in a decade.

All scorings were made early in the game as Whitaker sent the Snakes into a 3-0 lead with a placement from the 15-yard mark, and Markham passed to Bryan for what proved to be Law's winning score. Markham also place-kicked for the extra point.

Breaks played an important part in the contest, but it was the lawyers' ability to capitalize on their one big chance that captured the victory. Sigma Nu struck often, but its offense lacked the finesse it showed in previous encounters that led them to the fraternity leadership.

Snakes Get First Chance

The first scoring opportunity came before the watch had ticked off a single minute. The Snakes recovered Jones' fumble of Whitaker's punt for a first down on the Law 18-yard marker. However, an intercepted pass behind the double stripe gave the oval to the opposition.

A few minutes later Sigma Nu struck again as a pass from Whitaker to Glace made it first down on the Law School 5-yard line. Two runs lost three and two yards successively, but the oval was right in the middle of the field and Whitaker gave the Snakes a 3-0 lead with a perfect placement.

On the next exchange of punts Sigma Nu fumbled on its own 3-yard line, and when the pile-up was untangled it was Law's

Kahn On Jewish All-America First String Selection

Team Chosen by Boston Jewish Newspaper; Three Southerners on Team.

Eddie Kahn, brilliant Tar Heel guard and stand-by in the center of the most powerful line in Dixie, was chosen on the All-Jewish All-America first string football eleven, selected by The Jewish Advocate of Boston.

Three men from the south made the selection. The other two are Plassman of Vanderbilt and Mints of Tulane.

The team possesses stars which have been proclaimed among the best in the nation, such as Weinstock of Pitt and Smukler of Temple. Incidentally Pop Warner at Temple proclaims Smukler as the best sophomore fullback he has seen in 40 years. Both Weinstock and the Temple flash were choices on the first AP All-Eastern.

The team is as follows: ends, Plassman (Vanderbilt), and Bell (Marquette); tackles, Fox (Tufts) and Goodman (Dusquesne); guards, Kahn (North Carolina) and Kaplan (Western Maryland); center, Lipsky (Western Maryland); quarter, Cooper (C. C. N. Y.); halves, Smukler (Temple) and Mints (Tulane); full, Weinstock (Pittsburgh).

All-Campus Team

Tomorrow's edition of the Daily Tar Heel will announce the 1934 All-Campus intramural football team. The selections will be made by Intramural Director Herman Schnell, Newman A. Townsend, Fletcher W. Ferguson, George S. Leight, and William S. Markham. These men all officiated during the season.

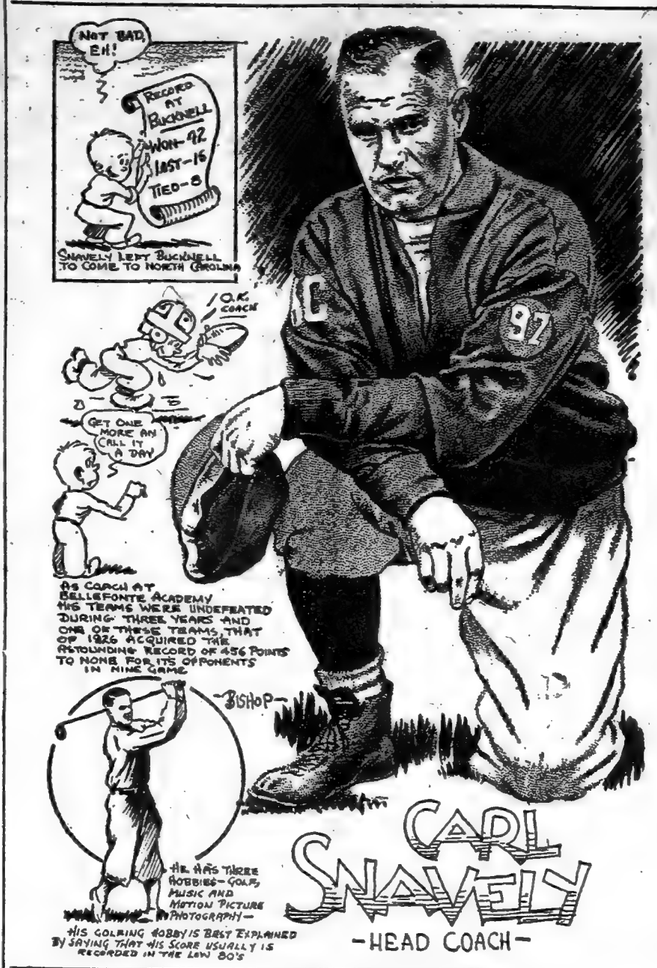
SIXTY FROSH OUT FOR BASKETBALL AT EARLY DRILL

Coach Skidmore Pleased with Present Turn-out; Work on Fundamentals at Present.

FULL SCHEDULE READY

A well-balanced group of 60 aspiring frosh candidates opened their second week of intensive basketball practice last night and seem well on their way to perfecting a successful team.



Coach Skidmore, who is making his initial appearance at Carolina, expressed satisfaction with the showing the squad has made to date, and has his eye on quite a few outstanding hoopsters, who seem destined for a first team berth.

As yet, the players have been drilling mainly upon dropping the ball in and passing. They will continue this, thrown in with the usual limbering up, until squads are selected.

A long schedule looms before the ambitious Tar Babies, totaling close to 14 games. They will run head-on into their first encounter soon after the opening of next quarter. The complete schedule will be released tomorrow, but the opening clash will probably find the freshmen squaring off against Wake Forest on January 8.

The majority of the frosh contests will be played as preliminaries to the varsity games.

HATS OFF!!

Highly Successful Season Here Added To List Of Achievements

Conceded Little Chance of 50-50 Session His First Year, This Brilliant Mentor Has Worked Wonders to Win Big Five Title and Runner-up Honors in Conference.

December—and another gridiron year has passed by. But this season has been more significant to Chapel Hillians than any one since possibly 1929. Why? The Tar Heel eleven has gone places and each time has brought home the bacon.

To one man is largely due most of the credit for such a successful regime. Coach Carl Snavely has worked wonders with the Tar Heels in his initial year, and every indication points to many brilliant seasons ahead.

Coach Snavely came to North Carolina this fall with four things: a highly successful record as coach at Bucknell behind him, only fair material to work with, a suicide schedule to battle, and a prayer. Now he has his Bucknell record, a near-perfect debut season at Carolina, and laudations from everywhere.

Hard Work Ahead

Snavely was possessed with the remnants of last year's mediocre team at the beginning of September practice. Each experienced man had been drilled in the Notre Dame system for two or three years. The team as a whole was downhearted. Pre-dopesters had picked the bunch to finish far down the list even in the state.

The old Bison mind went to work and feathers really flew. The modified Warner system was installed. Fundamentals were emphasized first and foremost. Blocking and tackling were drilled and drilled. At last the Tar Heel camp began to take on a finished form; the men were beginning to work as a unit.

The initial game was with Wake Forest. The Deacons, with the best material in many seasons, were picked to win by several touchdowns. After the game the Snavelymen had come through in fine style to score a 21-0 victory. People began to talk.

The powerful Tennessee Vols came to the Hill next. Major Neyland was coaching his last edition of the Tennesseeans, and he had a strong eleven, ranked among the leaders in the Southeast. Carolina led 7-6 at the half, but lack of Tar Heel reserve strength placed the victory

Yearling Harriers To Continue Work

The Tar Baby cross country team, which turned in a season of three wins to a lone defeat, will continue working out during the winter. Practice will be held on Tuesdays and Fridays at 4:15 o'clock.

All men who came out for the distance sport during the regular session are urged to join in the winter drills and keep in shape for the spring outdoor track work.

Also any men who did not work with the regular freshman team but who are interested in now working are asked to report on Emerson field at one of the appointed times. Coach Dale Ranson will supervise the drills.

These winter drills are important to the men if they wish to stay in condition. Much improvement can also be obtained by continual working under Coach Ranson's instructions.

ROWE URGES ALL FROSH PUGS OUT FOR RING SQUAD

Intramurals to Open Monday; Entrants to Report to Tin Can for Training.

SQUAD TURNOUT SMALL

Freshman boxing is once more in our midst as Coach Rowe sends his small yearling squad through their paces under the arc lights in the Tin Can.

Coach Rowe is sorely disappointed in the limited number of men who have turned out for the frosh team, and he is waiting for more candidates before beginning intensive practice for the coming meets.

In an interview with the DAILY TAR HEEL reporter, Rowe firmly stated that all berths on the first-year team were still vacant, and at present he was letting the squad get into shape. He also added that all students wishing to try for the squad should report to the Tin Can any day this week at 4 o'clock.

Murals Next Week

Intramural boxing begins this coming Monday, and those holding the intention of entering these bouts should report to the Tin Can and start training immediately. Many are of the opinion that training will not be necessary for the intramurals, but the boys with that idea in mind will feel quite differently towards that when the bell rings for the close of the first round.

Boxing equipment is on hand daily at the Tin Can for all to use, and Coach Rowe is always willing to give helpful hints to those interested in the ring game. Practice will continue tomorrow at 4 o'clock and all newcomers will be welcomed.

Work Out of Doors Until Bad Weather

Officials Seek Participation in Large New York Track And Field Games.

BIG S. I. C. MEET PLANNED

Winter track practice will begin in earnest this week, with the men working out of doors as long as possible and then taking to the hardwoods of the Tin Can in preparation for the Southern Conference indoor carnival early in March.

Coach Dale Ranson will be in charge of the early drills, getting the men in the necessary condition for heavier workouts later in the winter.

As usual the climax of the indoor season will be the gala affair sponsored by the S. I. C. This is always the big attraction just following the basketball season. The outstanding athletes of the conference gather and turn in a day of thrilling competition.

Northern Competition

This year as an added feature the athletic authorities are trying to get invitations for some of the leading Tar Heel performers to the outstanding track and field meets in the north. These northern meets include the K. of C., Millrose, and N. Y. A. C. games, held during January and February.

The Tar Heels are defending champs for the indoor track, nosing out Virginia by a fraction of a point last March. Ed McRae set a new conference record for the hardwood mile last year and is back this year to try to better that mark.

Sixteen lettermen will form the strong nucleus this season. They are led by co-captains Tom Hawthorne and Charlie Hubbard. The rest of the men are all stars of last spring's state and conference crown winners, a team which set 14 individual records during the rampage.

BRADSHAW TALKS AT FROSH CHAPEL

Dean Discusses Various Phases of Honor System; McKee Conducts Devotionals.

Dean Bradshaw answered a series of questions in connection with the honor system in freshman chapel yesterday.

Presenting the query and then answering it, Dean Bradshaw first asked, "What is the honor system? It is a promise, a pledge that we have taken with the college indicating that in our work in Chapel Hill we will play fairly.

Why?

"Why have an honor system?" Dean Bradshaw continued. "It is necessary to have leaders of integrity somewhere along the line, otherwise we would go back to the jungle. Where students are being trained for governmental and business positions it is necessary to practice this phase of self-government."

As to the test of a successful honor system, Dean Bradshaw said, "it is the development of honesty in the individual. If a senior is more honest than he was as a freshman, then the system has succeeded."

Telling of the success of the honor system in West Point, Annapolis, and Virginia, Dean Bradshaw claimed that the University was as well suited as any of these for its usage.

Don McKee conducted the devotionals, reading Longfellow's "Song of Life."

Students Attending Meeting in Indiana

Harper Barnes, director of Graham Memorial, and Jack Pool, president of the senior class, left Chapel Hill yesterday for Bloomington, Ind., where they will attend a three-day conference of the Association of College Unions, beginning session on Thursday.

The conference, to which delegates from all over the country are being sent, will discuss problems arising in connection with the operation of student unions. Bloomington, where they will convene, is the town at which the University of Indiana is located.

Barnes is being sent in his capacity as director of the University student union, while Pool is to represent the University as student delegate. They are expected to return here on Sunday.

Auction! Auction!

"Auction! Auction! Who's got the auction?" asked Mrs. J. P. Harland, coming into the DAILY TAR HEEL office yesterday. "The Presbyterian church," she answered.

"Tonight, from 7:30 on," she said, "a scintillating gentleman will auction importations from every port. I mean it, for we were asked to bring something from our various vacations. After that you may shop at the booths below while the festive spirit is on. If you don't finish, you'll find more things the next morning from 10 o'clock on.

"The tickets for the dinner," Mrs. Harland continued, "were sold out 11 days ahead! See you there at 6:30 tonight."

Troop School

The next session of the 316th Field Artillery troop school will be held tomorrow night in Davie hall.

In view of the fact that this regiment will train the C. M. T. C. during the next training period, these classes are devoted to the necessary training which will be required of reserve officers during that period.

FILM BUNDLING HIT

"The Pursuit of Happiness," Broadway's "bundling hit," has been filmed by Paramount, and comes today to the Carolina theatre, starring Francis Lederer, with Joan Bennett, Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland in the featured roles. It is a comedy of Colonial times written about quaint courtship customs of the 1770's and was directed by Alexander Hall.

on the Vols' side. People continued to talk and began to wonder.

Through Georgia

Snavely made his first invasion of Georgia and was chosen by all prophets to lose to the quite strong Bulldog eleven from the University. A nip-and-tuck battle followed but Carolina was master the whole 60 minutes. Georgia lost 0-14. The Atlanta sports writers joined in the talking, and people began doing a little praising.

Kentucky came to North Carolina and went back with a 6-0 loss pinned on its back. The Carolinians had shown swell playing. People made their praising louder.

N. C. State came over the next week and played way over their heads to tie the Snavelymen after a great fight. People just laughed and scored State with an upset.

Again Carolina went south to the Land of Peaches, this time checking Georgia Tech's favored Tornado and going wild themselves to win 26-0. Shaffer, star to date, could not play in this game because of injuries, but other stars came to light. Local Georgians begged "Give us Sherman, but please keep Snavely," and people started boasting.

Davidson held the Heels to a close score but were completely outplayed. People rubbed their hands together, smiled, and made plans for the next week.

The climax — Duke versus Carolina. Thirty-three thousand and yelling fans packed Kenan and not a single one went away that day disappointed. They had seen a perfect football classic. Duke, ranked No. 1 in the south, came over to the Hill, and Duke, now ranked No. 2, went away. Carolina had beaten her arch rival for the first time in four years. People now cheered and shouted and boasted—and laughed for they know all the time that Carolina could do it.

Virginia was beaten 25-6, but that was just an aftermath. Yet people were more satisfied.

Coach Snavely had piloted Carolina through the most dangerous reefs the south could offer. He had developed his men to suit his system and had made his system to suit his men. He had taught them to block and tackle so that they were unequalled by any of their opposition. He had brought out qualities in men which heretofore had gone concealed. He had made Carolina football.

Garner to Speak at Seminar

L. L. Garner of the mathematics department will speak at a mathematics seminar this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

CLAIM HOOVER MET WITH ARMS MAKERS

Washington, Dec. 4.— (UP) —The Senate munitions inquiry resumed its hearings today with the disclosure that Herbert Hooyer had invited American arms manufacturers to a Washington meeting in 1925 to discuss the forthcoming Geneva Conference on arms control.

The invitation was issued while Hoover was secretary of commerce. Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the investigating committee read a telegram from Hoover to the Winchester Repeating Arms Company of New Haven, Conn.

The telegram climaxed the session at which it was charged that American arms manufacturers anticipated by six years the outbreak of the World War and had organized European sales forces to solicit business.

JENKINS TO DISCUSS SLAVERY ARGUMENTS

Professor W. S. Jenkins will address the annual meeting of the State Literary and Historical Association tonight in Raleigh on the "Ethnological Argument in Justification of the Institution of Domestic Slavery."

He will deal with theories that developed in the old south as a part of the pro-slavery argument, to prove that the Negro race was a distinct type of mankind and that it was mentally and structurally fitted for slavery due to a specific and separate creation by God.

FERA Workers to Meet

All FERA workers assigned to the Athletic Department are requested to report at the Emerson field office at 5 p. m., announced E. E. McRae yesterday.

GERMAN PSYCHOLOGIST GIVES LECTURE AT DUKE

Dr. Wilhelm Stern, a German emigre from the University of Hamburg, spoke last night at Duke University to psychology students and teachers of Duke and the University of North Carolina. His subject was the psychology of personality from the Gestalt point of view.

Dr. Stern, one of the leaders in the Gestalt psychology movement, has written many volumes on the psychology of the child, legal testimony, and personality organization. This year he is visiting lecturer at Duke.

ball. With the Sigma Nu defense apparently asleep at a most decisive moment, Dan Bryan slipped out to the side line unnoticed and took a pass from Markham for the six-pointer. Markham then converted to complete the scoring for the day.

With but a few minutes remaining in the half the Lawyers threatened again as interference was ruled on an intended pass to Bryan and the Shysters had first down on the Sigma Nu 2-yard line. Jones lost two yards on a smash at center, but the scare was ended when Glace intercepted a pass.

The second half saw the winners holding the upper hand almost continually, but failing to add to their score after several opportunities had presented themselves. The best chance came about midway through the session when Kuykendall knocked an enemy aerial to Markham on the Snakes' 15-yard line and he advanced it five more yards.

Williams took a short pass for an additional six yards, but an incompleted pass and a loss of 8 yards on an end run gave Law last down on the 12-yard stripe. Morgan entered the game and attempted a field goal, but his kick went short.

The losers' only serious threat for the half came shortly before the end when a Law fumble was recovered on the 2'-yard line. Four incompleted passes, however, sent the pigskin over to the Lawyers, who held it almost continually until the final whistle.

Art Exhibit at Duke

Students of the University are invited to visit the exhibition in the Woman's College library at Duke University entitled "A Brief Survey of Modern Painting in Color Reproduction." This exhibition, sent out by the Museum of Modern Art, in New York City, will be shown for ten days beginning today.

Actress

Lenore Ulric, dynamic stage star, will appear in "Pagan Lady" at the Carolina theatre in Durham Friday night for one night only.

No Economics Seminar

The economics seminar scheduled for tonight has been called off so that those who attend the regular meetings may attend the lecture being given tonight at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall by Frank R. McNinch on "Power Plans and Problems."

Soviets Convict, Shoot Down 66 Prisoners For Terrorist Plots

Only Seven Out of 71 Arrested Are Spared

Military Court Quickly Pronounces Sentence; Execution Follows Immediately.

LAW: TRIAL IN TEN DAYS

Moscow, Dec. 6 (Thursday)—(UP)—Sixty-six persons were sentenced to death and immediately shot early after conviction by the Military Collegium of the Soviet Supreme Court. They were convicted of having plotted terroristic acts against high Soviet officials.

The wholesale execution included 37 prisoners rounded up in Leningrad and 29 from the vicinity of Moscow. Only seven of the 71 whom the police held were spared their lives.

Speedy Trial

The martially-conducted court heard the charges against the accused briefly and in record time found them guilty. They were taken directly to the military barracks and mowed down by a firing squad.

Within five days after the assassination of Sergei Kiroff, high Soviet official, the alleged perpetrators of the act have been executed. It was required that investigations of this nature be completed within 10 days after the crime. Soviet law also calls for trial of offenders of this type to be tried without prosecuting or defense attorneys.

ZIMMERMANN IS GIVEN STATE CUP

Society Honors Professor for "Best Book of Year by North Carolinian."

Dr. Erich Walter Zimmermann, professor of economics in the University, who was awarded the Mayflower Cup at the meeting of the State Literary and Historical Association last night for "the best book of the year by a resident North Carolinian," has been a member of the University faculty since 1921.

"World Resources and Industries," published by Harper and Brothers of New York and London, is the title of the volume which won the award. The book is already in its third printing and has enjoyed a wide sale in this country and abroad.

Here Since 1921

A member of the faculty in the school of commerce since 1921, Dr. Zimmermann is regarded as one of the University's most influential professors.

In addition to the volume which won the Mayflower Award, Dr. Zimmermann is the author of four other books which have been accorded favorable comment. They are "British Export Trade in Coal" (1911), "Foreign Trade and Shipping" (1917), "Ocean Shipping" (1921), and "Porto Rico and Its Problems" (1933). He has also contributed to a number of magazines.

As a Kenan traveling professor he spent six months in Europe in 1930 and while there delivered a number of lectures on American social and economic conditions under the auspices of the Institute for World Economics at Kiel.

Although a native of Mainz, Germany, where he was born in 1888, Dr. Zimmermann has long been a naturalized American.

MAGAZINE STARS BUDGET ARTICLE

Short Story, Poems and Reviews Are Other Attractions.

The second issue of the Carolina Magazine appeared yesterday. This issue, made up in the same form as last month's release which was received so favorably by the campus, contains eight articles, one short story, two poems, book reviews, and stage reviews, in addition to the editorial comment by Joe Sugarman.

Editor Sugarman uses for his lead article an explanation and prediction of the budget system by Phil Hammer. Other contributors were: Pete Ivey, Jim Daniel, John F. Butler, Paul Selby, Nick Read, Elmer D. Johnson, Frank W. Ashley, Fleeta Martin, and "Gracie."

McNINCH STATES POWER BECOMES VITAL PROBLEM

Roosevelt Has Begun Definite Program with Progressive Policy, Says Commissioner.

LECTURE ONE OF SERIES

"Since the bold, clear, constructive and epoch-making declaration of his power policies by Mr. Roosevelt at Portland, Oregon, in September 1932, America has become aggressively power-minded," declared Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, in an address last night on "Power Plans and Problems."

McNinch spoke in Gerrard hall under the auspices of the University department of commerce. A committee headed by Dr. Wirth Ferger arranged the lecture as one of a series to be presented during the winter by authorities on topics of current interest and importance in the field of economics.

Praised by Carroll

Dr. Dudley D. Carroll, dean of the school of commerce, introducing McNinch, paid tribute to the bold, constructive manner in which the chairman had administered the work of the Federal Power Commission.

In his preliminary remarks McNinch recalled his student days at Chapel Hil, complimented President Graham, and commended the progress made by the University in recent years.

Quoting the President's advocating abundant current for American industry and homes, development of water powers by private capital as well as governmental enterprise, and the right of the people to operate their own power business where it is essential, McNinch said:

Program Launched

"These declarations of a progressive national power policy have been, in part, already transformed into a definite program of action by President Roosevelt. The effect has been that power, whether publicly or privately produced, pulses with a new spirit of enterprise and service and is moving toward the fulfillment of its social and economic functions as the universal servant of the people."

"The national power objective," he said, "is toward a more abundant life for the people by

BISHOP TO SPEAK HERE TOMORROW AT 'Y' INVITATION

Francis John McConnell, Leading New York Churchman, Will Deliver Two Addresses.

CONVOCATION TO BE HELD

Bishop Francis John McConnell of New York City, one of the leading churchmen of the world, will make two appearances here tomorrow, appearing on the University Y. M. C. A. program of securing outstanding churchmen to visit Carolina.

Bishop McConnell wired this week that he would use as a topic for his discussions, "The Voices of Times."

Student Body to Attend

The entire University student body will assemble in Memorial hall tomorrow at 10:15 a. m., to hear Bishop McConnell's first address. The regular assembly hour will be extended, according to R. B. House, dean of administration.

The evening appearance of the noted churchman is set for 8 o'clock in Memorial hall.

McConnell holds the reputation of being a very effective speaker and an authority on present day conceptions of theology. University officials have made several attempts to bring him here in the past and were very much pleased to learn this week that he had accepted the invitation of the Y. M. C. A.

McConnell was elected bishop in the Methodist Episcopal church in 1912 and since that time has held positions as president of the Religious Educational Association and president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

He has written several outstanding religious books including, "The Diviner Immanence," "Religious Certainty," "Christian Focus," "The Increase of Faith," "Democratic Christianity," "The Christlike God," and others.

CAROLINA MEETS WOMEN'S SQUAD IN DEBATE TODAY

Will Argue on Question of Suppressing International Shipment of Armaments.

TO SUPPORT BOTH SIDES

The University debating squad will meet the girls' debating team of the Asheville Normal and Teachers College in two contests which will be held here this morning and tonight.

The query for both discussions will be: Resolved, That the nations of the world should agree to prevent the international shipment of arms.

The first debate will be held at 11 a. m. in Gerrard hall before Professor Olsen's public speaking class and anyone else able to be present at that hour.

At this time, Al Kaplan and Norman Kellar will take the affirmative side against a negative team from Asheville.

To Swap Sides

Winthrop Durfee and Robert Maynard will defend the negative side of the same question in the evening debate which will be held in the same place at 7 o'clock. This session will be adjourned in time for the audience to hear the Zimbalist recital at Memorial hall.

The particular question of imposing restrictions on the international shipment of arms has provoked much dissension at the recent meetings of the debate team. Since opinion has been so evenly divided it was decided to have two debates in order that both sides might have an opportunity to put forth their views.

This is the first time that the University has debated the Asheville Normal in Chapel Hill, although the institutions met in Asheville last spring.

The Asheville Normal debaters are at the present making a tour of the southeast. Last night they appeared at State College.

Advisory Committee Explained

(Editor's note: The following explanation of the recently-appointed Student Advisory Committee was written by a member of that group and gives the details of the committee's being, plans, purposes, and functions.)

The new business administration of the University at Chapel Hill is endeavoring to improve the business set-up by instigating a plan of centralized control and decentralized detail.

This means that the business office in South building will have direct control of all the service plants, with the actual details of operation being left to the plants themselves.

In order to gain student opinion and advice on the system and suggestions for better service methods, L. B. Rogerson, assistant comptroller, invited the student administration to appoint a committee of students for these purposes. Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, appointed a group consisting of Francis Fairley, chairman, Phil Hammer, secretary, and J. D. Winslow.

The committee does not serve as an investigating body except to the extent that investigations give them a basis for suggestions for improvements. It serves in the advisory capacity in the same manner as does another committee composed of the heads of the various service plants, which group meets every few weeks to discuss the service system and progress.

The student committee is now engaged in studying the physical set-up of the service system, perusing carefully the methods of service dispensation and the actual procedures embraced in this process. It will follow this study, which will include every unit of the Consolidated University, with an investigation of the personnel records, the financial connections as concerned with the University business administration, and the question of rate-charges.

It is believed by the business administration that the student committee can serve a definite purpose in expressing student opinion and offering criticisms and advice as an aid to management. The report of the group which will be made at the conclusion of the first general study will include suggestions as well as the facts concerning the present system.

The student committee welcomes suggestions and advice from members of the student

Thompson Resigns As Delegate To Geneva Anti-War Conference

Plays Here Tonight

Efrem Zimbalist, versatile violinist of international fame, will appear here in a concert tonight as a feature of the Student Entertainment Series. Since playing in a grand opera orchestra at the age of nine, Zimbalist has played the world over.

EFREM ZIMBALIST PRESENTS VIOLIN CONCERT TONIGHT

Recital by Russian Musician Is Second Feature of Student Entertainment Series.

UNIQUE SUCCESS IN EAST

Musician Efrem Zimbalist, internationally famous concert violinist, will appear in Gerrard hall at 8 o'clock this evening under the sponsorship of the Student Entertainment Committee.

His tours taking him into the four corners of the earth, Zimbalist has played before audiences in every important city, and has been featured by symphony orchestras both here and abroad. So great was the admiration of Oriental peoples for his concerts that he was accorded the distinction of being the only artist having five re-engagements in the East.

Debut in 1911

In 1911 Zimbalist made his debut to American music lovers from the pit of the Boston Symphony orchestra. Since that time he has been heralded as one of the world's outstanding violinists.

Russian by birth, Zimbalist makes his winter home in New York and is an American citizen. The 45-year-old musician considers his father, an orchestra leader, as his first teacher. Showing such extraordinary talents, he became first violinist in a grand opera orchestra at the age of nine.

Since that time he has traveled the world over until his name became synonymous with great violin music. He now stands at the pinnacle of the musical ladder both in popularity and prestige. Yet Zimbalist remains the same unassuming, extremely modest artist that he was when he made his first appearance.

Added to his genius as a musician is an ability of composition. Among his most recent works are a poem, "Daphnis and Chloe," an operetta, "Honeydew." and a sonata for violin and piano, "Three Slavic Dances." The symphonic poem was given its world premiere by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under Stokowski.

Phillips Russell Is New Representative

Conducting Drive for Funds and Acting as Delegate Interfere With Work, Thompson Says.

HEARTILY ENDORSES PLAN

Carl Thompson announced yesterday his resignation as the delegate to the World Anti-War Conference in Geneva, yielding to his alternate, Phillips Russell of Asheville.

Thompson resigned after long deliberation and consideration with the majority of the Continuations Committee of the local Anti-War Conference.

At a meeting of the Continuations Committee last Monday night, it was submitted that Thompson head the campaign for funds to send a delegate from this campus and that an immediate drive be made to reach the required amount.

"Too Much Work"

When questioned as to the reasons for his resignation, Thompson stated that he did not feel that he could conduct a drive for funds and continue as a delegate simultaneously, for such a doubling of work would not permit keeping up with University work in preparation for the trip.

"I still heartily endorse the movement and will do everything I can in the short time remaining to aid in the collection of funds to send Phillips Russell." Thompson said.

Supports Plan

"The University should take advantage of the opportunity to send a delegate to the conference, and I believe that Russell will make a worthy delegate and should be fully supported. The

PARAGRAPHICS

It is rumored that the Supreme Court is publishing a new book called "Arms and the Land."

"Tuberculosis Seals to Pay Public Nurses." Are they trained?

Seven days before examinations make one weak.

Needed And Also Wanted

Interest in favor of a comfortably furnished reading room for the library has existed on the campus for some time. The letter to the DAILY TAR HEEL by a class in library science revealed some time ago that Librarian Downs had been written as to the need for this feature, and just two days ago Dr. W. S. Bernard, himself a former librarian, expressed the same feeling, also in a letter to this paper.

We understand that the class in library science has in mind the renovating of some part of the University library to make a reading or "browsing" room. Dr. Bernard, on the other hand, has suggested that space in Graham Memorial be fitted out to meet this need.

Both are essentially in agreement. The important thing is to secure an attractive place with comfortable chairs and reading lamps where students and faculty may read and smoke, and be perfectly at ease to entertain themselves with light fiction, popular periodicals and other enjoyable reading.

If the browsing room were to be located in the library, that room on the first floor which was formerly used as the education library and which is now being used only for storage could be fitted out very well for the purpose. Those books that are now in the old education library would have to be transferred to the stacks, and considerable expense would be involved, of course, in furnishing the room. Light fiction, which is now kept on the second floor by the circulation desk, would probably be arranged on the shelves in the room on the first floor to make the browsing room complete. The advantage of having such a room at the library would be that space is already available for it. Furthermore, it would provide a much-needed place where students could go to smoke instead of having to do so outside.

Dr. Bernard's suggestion also has merit. If the room were located in Graham Memorial it would probably attract more students, since the student union is naturally the place where they congregate. It would have the advantage of being free from the restrictions that a library must necessarily maintain. In regard to this, however, we would say that it is a prime requisite of any plan for such a room; whether it is located at the library or the student union, the browsing room must be unfettered by what Dr. Bernard calls "red tape." If the library is unwilling to allow smoking in the room, then it would probably be more advisable to locate it at Graham Memorial. On the other hand, the space for a browsing room at the library is already available, provided the plan goes through.

We do not attempt to say which would be best. The important thing is the need for such a room, and the interest that has already been shown in it.

War on Lethargy

The resignation of Carl Thompson as delegate to the Geneva Anti-War Conference reveals the rather startling fact that the continuations committee, which so staunchly backed his candidacy, has rather failed to live up to its name.

That Thompson was forced, in the absence of volunteers, to direct the entire collections procedure to raise enough money for his trip does not put the committee in an especially favorable light. It seems that the traditional disease has overcome what we thought was an immune organization, that disease rendering one enthusiastic as to vocal support but flat on his back when effort to accomplish something is concerned.

The personal ability of the alternate, who now becomes the only delegate, is unquestioned. It is extremely unfair, however, to make this student direct his fund-raising campaign, such direction likely embracing the efforts of a one-man committee doing all the work.

If the continuations committee will snap out of it and support Russell, there is no reason for the University's representation at Geneva not being a successful reality. The campus is virtually unapproached as regards solicitation. Time is growing short. Let's see some action.

The Arms Traffic

R. R. Clark, in the Greensboro Daily News, calls our attention to an affair which for sheer wanton destruction of natural resource and private property seems without parallel. It seems that Rockingham's Jess Ratcliff was signaling for a left turn when along came a large truck, and, as Mr. Clark put it, "took the arm that was signaling of the purpose to turn, and cast it into the road."

We are sorely in need of a traffic code revision. Where is the old knightly code? Suppose you were asked "Where's your ethics?" Would you be forced to reply evasively, "Oh, I traded it in for a Chrysler," or could you look your interrogator squarely in the eye? Drive carefully.

Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

Thompson On Geneva

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

I should like to submit through your columns my resignation as official delegate from the local Anti-War Conference to the World Conference in Geneva.

My resignation in no way withdraws my support of the move to send a delegate but has come about primarily because of the lack of sufficient co-operation in collecting funds. At a recent meeting, the continuations committee suggested that I supervise the collecting of funds for the trip—of which I was to be delegate. I was perfectly willing to solicit funds for what I deem a worthy purpose but, as delegate, felt that I could not do so. There being no volunteers (I, in fact, did not volunteer) for this task, I accepted the responsibility of trying to raise funds and at the same time planned my resignation.

Not only would it place me in a rather difficult—to say the least—position to collect funds for my own trip, but the time taken in both collecting funds and then acting as delegate would have resulted in my being unable to complete my college courses this—my last—year.

Phillips Russell will go to Geneva to represent the University. As yet there are not sufficient funds to send him, but I am confident that there must be enough interest on this campus in the move to raise at least one hundred dollars. This will have to be done, for the most part, through unsolicited contributions; for it seems that many of those interested in the work have suddenly discovered that they have reams of work which they must complete before the end of the quarter and as a result will not be able to aid in the soliciting.

Harper Barnes has co-operated to a great extent and has offered the use of the manager's office in Graham Memorial as the center of the contributions. It will be impossible for all those interested to be seen personally; for there is not time for a re-organization of a campaign; a check or cash contribution sent to or left at this office would show that the University is not utterly devoid of interest in such world affairs. Sometimes I doubt it.

Our appeal is made both to students and faculty; although the presence of one communist and two socialists on a committee of twelve or fourteen seems to have given the students the impression that the whole project is an effort to set up terrorism on the campus. I am afraid that such a fear is unfounded.

There is no party affiliation with our Anti-War movement. The purpose of the delegate is to participate in and report on the discussions and resolutions and talks and conditions which he will meet in Geneva.—CARL G. THOMPSON.

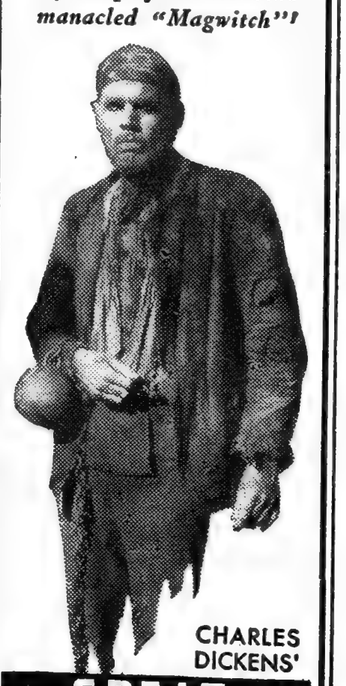
greatly extending and expanding the use of electricity in factory, mine, commerce, on the farm and in the home.

This will follow upon the primary principle that consumption of a commodity increases as the price decreases. Numerous experiments by privately and publicly owned power plants have demonstrated the practicability of this plan.

"I have noted with great interest the appointment by Governor Ehringhaus of a special committee on rural electrification and that something like 700 North Carolina communities have indicated their desire for electric service. I earnestly hope some practicable plan may be worked out by which this need may be met, and I congratulate the Governor and Commissioner Winborne and all who are cooperating in this project."

Art Classes

Lena Alice Tuttle's art classes for children began recently with 15 pupils enrolled. The following is the schedule for future classes: Children aged 7, 8, and 9 years meet Tuesday from 3:15 to 5 p. m.; ages 5 and 6 years meet Wednesday, 1:30 to 3 p. m.; ages 10, 11, and 12 meet Wednesday, 3:15 to 5 p. m.



If for any reason the child cannot come with the proper age group he may come with the group nearest his age.

It is Miss Tuttle's hope to discover and preserve the natural talent of the child for drawing and modeling. The children will be encouraged to give individual expression to their experiences and imaginations.

The classes meet in Miss Tuttle's studio in Peabody building. Her house telephone number is 6886.

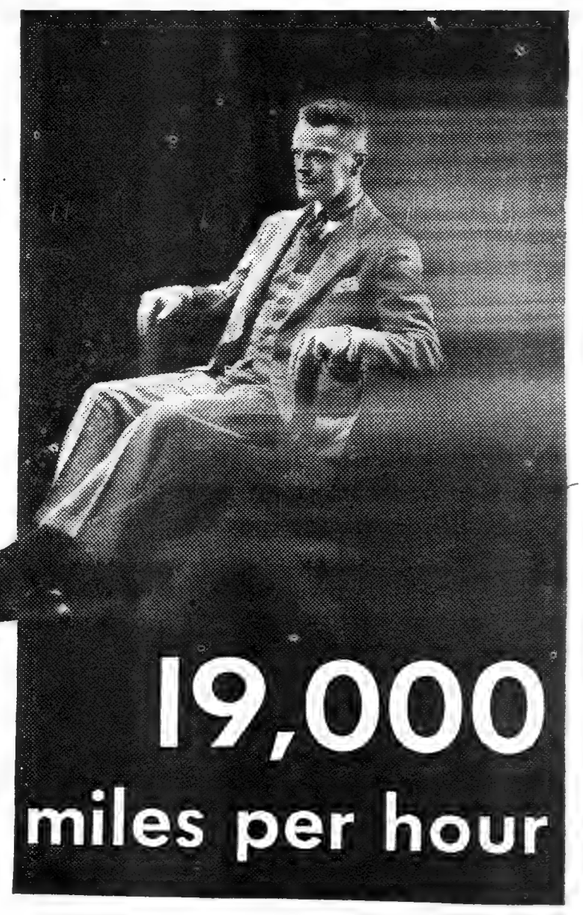
only reason for my resignation is the interference of too much work with my last year at the University."



Since the new official delegate is Phillips Russell, who has already received considerable backing from Asheville citizens, an attempt will be made to collect enough funds from the University to send him.

There have been no volunteers to aid in the personal collecting of funds and it has been asked that all those who are interested at all in having the University represented, send their check to or leave a cash contribution at the manager's office in Graham Memorial.

Barclay On All-Southern Picked By Bill Alexander Of All-American Board

Carolina Captain Given Special Praise by Ga. Tech Coach.

Captain George Barclay, Carolina's senior guard, continued strong on his way to making the official All-American eleven; this week he was placed on the first southern team picked by Bill Alexander, member of the All-American board. The choice of Barclay is important as Alexander's selection covers the Southern, Southeastern, and Southwestern Conferences, an area from Maryland to Texas.

The article by the Georgia Tech coach appeared in the Washington Herald, Barclay receiving more comment than any other player named. Alexander's opinion of the Carolina captain follows:

"The guards, Barclay, of North Carolina, and Wetsel, of Southern Methodist University, seem to be outstanding this year. Barclay, 185 pounds, is without a weakness at blocking, swinging out into interference or dropping back to protect a passer. On defense, he backs up the line and if any lineman is having trouble Barclay can take his place and often has done so. He is a wizard at diagnosing plays and has broken up passes far back down the field. His value to his team is emphasized by the fact that he calls signals on offense in the huddle and in this respect is a first-class field general."

Other Tar Heels Mentioned

Barclay was the only Southern Conference player making the team, although Alexander had special mention for several others. The Tar Heels receiving special mention were: Dick Buck and Buck McCarn, ends; Jim Tatum, tackle; Babe Daniel, center; Charlie Shaffer and Don Jackson, halfbacks; and Jim Hutchins, fullback.

In speaking of the ends, the Tech mentor said, "the best pair observed this year are Buck and McCarn, of North Carolina." He also rated Tatum among the top tackles in his section and Shaffer far above the general run of backs.

Still on Way

Captain George Barclay who finished his career as a Carolina grid player this year is still climbing toward the top goal of college football, the official All-American. He has now received special mention from Bill Alexander, southern member of the famous board.

ELLISBERG STARS IN BOXING DRILL

Diehl, Carruth, and Medynski Also Turn in Good Performances During Workouts.

Returning to action for the first time this year, Morty Ellisberg, dynamic 165 pound veteran of last year's pugilistic aggregation, jabbed and hooked his way through two fast rounds with one of the candidates for the yearling squad. Ellisburg showed up well, in spite of his long absence from the ring, and should be in good shape within the next few weeks.

"Party Boy" Diehl, bantamweight flash, boxed two fast rounds with Eddie Dolan, and one with Pete Austin. Diehl is beginning to find himself after a slow start and is anxiously awaiting the sound of the gong for his first bout.

Jimmie "Killer" Carruth worked a few rounds with Alderman, and, at no time during his career has Carruth looked better. He repeatedly threw long rights and lefts to the head and body of his rangy opponent.

BARCLAY STARS BEFORE CAMERA

Newsreel Shots of Captain to Be Shown on Screen Monday.

George Barclay, the University of North Carolina's versatile guard, who has been named on most leading All-America selections announced to date, says he is candidate for a coaching job, but he may get bid from the movies as the result of incidental screen tests made of him this week.

Tye Sanders, cameraman for the Universal Newsreel, made a special trip from Atlanta to get shots of Barclay in his football togs.

He shot the Tar Heel captain from all sorts of positions and angles—running, kicking, catching the pigskin, smiling, laughing, and whathaveyou.

The Barclay reel will be released next Monday and will be shown all over the country along with action shots of other members of leading All-America selections.

The scenes will be accompanied by a talk by Graham McNamee who will cite the high spots of Barclay's gridiron accomplishments.

WILL MISS STARS IN BUILDING 1935 BASKETBALL CLUB

Loss of Virgil Weathers and Dave McCachren, All-Southern Cagers, to Be Felt.

Coach Bo Shepard is confronted with the problem of replacing two All-Southern cagers as basketball practice gets underway.

Virgil Weathers, who made All-Southern his sophomore year, and Dave McCachren, who made the same mythical team his junior year, will be missing from the Tar Heel lineup this season.

The varsity quintet this year will be built around a nucleus of three regulars from last year's state championship team. This trio is composed of Captain Stuart Aitken, speedy little forward, Jason Glace, lanky center, and Jim McCachren, All-Southern performer last season.

Two Other Lettermen

Two other lettermen, Ben Blood and Melvin Nelson, will probably see plenty of action with the first string outfit this season.

Paul Kaveny, a reserve, will be in the running for a forward position. Frank Ramsey is the most promising forward to come up from last year's freshman team. Ed Bullard, Jim Hutchins, John Rainey and Joe Derickson are the other sophomore hopefuls.

The basketeers who missed early practice due to football are: Jim McCachren, regular guard last year, Bill Moore, reserve, and Bobbie Stuart, Buck McCarn, and Spencer Folger, sophomores.

Earle Beale, George Brandt, and Morrie Long were the dependable second string lettermen lost by graduation last year.

FROSH HOOPSTERS OPEN JANUARY 8

Tar Babies Clash with All Members of Yearling Big Five In 14-Game Schedule.

The freshman basketball squad plunged more earnestly into its training last night with the release of the 1935 schedule, which runs through the months of January and February.

The thirteen scheduled games contain many a headache for the frosh loopsters, as each team is of unknown ability and may be of championship calibre.

The Babies will make their annual swing about the Big Five circuit and carry the Carolina colors onto the court against Duke, N. C. State, Wake Forest and Davidson in advance of the varsity hoopsters.

Two contests have been arranged with Oak Ridge Acadamy and Belmont. The remaining contests will be single encounters against Durham High and Presbyterian Jr. College. The Durham battle's not definite but will remain on the schedule until further notice.

As yet, there is an open date on January 25, which will probably be filled before the campaign gets underway. The schedule follows:

Jan. 8—Wake Forest, here.
Jan. 11—Durham High, here.
Jan. 15—Oak Ridge, here.
Jan. 24—Oak Ridge, there.
Jan. 25—Open.
Jan. 26—Belmont, there.
Jan. 30—N. C. State, here.
Feb. 1—Belmont, here.
Feb. 2—Wake Forest, there.
Feb. 5—Duke, there.
Feb. 12—Davidson, here.
Feb. 16—Duke, here.
Feb. 19—N. C. State, there.
Feb. 21—Presbyterian Jr., here.

Champion Lawyers Place Three On All-Campus Mural Grid Team

Betas Get Two on Mythical Eleven Selected by Officials; Parsons of Law School Named Captain; Wiggins, Lewis, Makes Top Team for Third Year in a Row.

The championship Law School team and Beta Theta Pi, fraternity runners-up, dominated the selections of the 1934 All-Campus intramural football team, placing three and two men respectively on the mythical combine.

Lewis, Swain Hall, Sigma Nu, Kappa Alpha, Delta Tau Delta, and S. A. E. each had a man on the campus aggregation, with the fraternity group holding six places to five for the dormitory—an exact reversal of last season.

The combinations as listed were arrived at after much arbitration by a board that consisted of Intramural Director Herman Schnell, Newman A. Townsend, Fletcher W. Ferguson, William S. Markham, and George S. Leight. All of these officiated during the season.

Parsons Named Captain

Chosen as leader of the mythical team was Tom Parsons, hard-charging shyster tackle. His fine ability as a player and excellent work in keeping his teammates continually going at top speed made him the logical man for the honor.

Only three members of this year's All-Campus team had ever received rating on previous selections, either from the fraternity or dormitory leagues. The outstanding member, however, is John Wiggins of Lewis, a senior, who makes the All-Campus team for his third consecutive year.

Charley Rose, of the Betas, is a repeater at the pivot post from the 1933 All-Fraternity eleven and from the 1932 All-Campus choices. The third member of the trio is "Snooks" Aitken, of Swain Hall, who made All-Campus in 1932 and All-Dormitory last season.

Ends Strong

The ends on this combine are exceptionally strong. "Trip" Rand led all scoring for the season with 84 points, and Dan Bryan, who had tallied thrice beside playing a sterling brand of ball throughout, was on the receiving end of a "sleeper pass" that brought his team the crown.

Parsons and Wiggins at the tackles, with McLean and Binder, at the guards, and Rose, at center, complete an excellent line, one that would be hard to stop on the offense and almost impossible on defense.

"Dick" Harris made a fine man for the quarterback post as his fine generalship brought an otherwise unbrilliant S. A. E.

BOXING TOURNEY GETS UNDER WAY HERE NEXT WEEK

Three-Round Bouts for Titles Will Begin Monday; Finals To Be Held Tuesday.

ENTRIES STILL POSSIBLE

This coming Monday afternoon the boxing intramurals will get underway in the Tin Can. The three round bouts will be fought in the afternoon and at night with the finals to be contested on Tuesday evening.

This pugilistic show has been watched with a great amount of interest in the past, and the scraps should be even more exciting this year due to the excellence of the present crop of fighters. The winners of the various divisions are to be rewarded for their victories, and also will be candidates for places on the present boxing squad.

In the past the winners and runners-up have, on a whole, been developed into top-notch scrappers under the guiding hand of Coach Rowe. Boxing has not been taken seriously enough by recent intramuralists, and many of the exhibitions have been characterized by loss of wind due to lack of proper training.

Should Begin Work Now

This year the boxing equipment in the Tin Can will be open to all and Coach Rowe is always glad to help those who show an interest in his sport. Those who wish to enter the intramurals should file their entrance applications with Herman Schnell, director of intramural activities.

Candidates for the boxing squad are still welcome to come down to the Tin Can any day at 4 o'clock and start going through the practice sessions with the present pugilistic aspirants.

Glee Club Key Men

All members of the Glee Club who have applied for keys are requested to see Ezra Griffin, manager, in the Glee Club office before regular practice this afternoon.

Jim Tatum Makes All-American Club Because Of Beauty

Co-ed Likes Suave Man-of-the-World Appearance.

Jim Tatum, the University of North Carolina's tall, handsome tackle, who has landed on all official All-Southern Conference selections this year, has fallen victim to a bit of good-natured kidding by his campus associates, as the result of being named recently on an All-Handsome All-American team picked by a University of Southern California co-ed acting for a day as sports editor of the Daily Trojan.

The selection was syndicated all over the country by the Newspaper Enterprise Association and Big Jim has been getting fan mail ever since. He was named because of his "suave, man-of-the-world appearance."

Although a South Carolinian, from McColl, Big Jim has many Tar Heel connections other than football. He is a nephew of W. D. Carmichael, a former Durham resident, now president of the Liggett-Myers Tobacco Company of New York City.

"Yea, Jim, but an Arrow collar keeps its shape."

You'll cut a neat figure in Arrow's new Mitoga: Its wedge-shaped proportions are really masculine: Broad shoulders and narrow waist—no bulging blouse effects—no wrinkling over bosom—it's actually shaped and tailored to fit your body. Remember, only Arrow Shirts have Arrow collars. $2 and up

FERA IS SUBJECT OF SESSION HERE

Delegates from State Colleges Discuss Administration of Federal Aid to Students.

For the purpose of exchanging ideas to better the FERA policy in North Carolina schools, a number of representatives from colleges and universities receiving federal aid met here yesterday for an all day session.

C. E. McIntosh, educational director for the FERA in North Carolina, presided at yesterday's meeting, which was one of three such regional meetings to have been held in the state this week.

Discussions Heard

Various representatives told of their experiences with the work, and the discussions that followed gave the members of the assembly an opportunity to adopt new ideas for improving their usage of federal aid funds in their respective institutions.

Dean Francis F. Bradshaw attended the session and gave a report from a recent FERA educational meeting in Washington, D. C., in which the future of federal aid for college students was discussed.

Must Show Need

The meeting yesterday decided that clearly established financial need was a prerequisite for securing aid funds. Any show of living extravagance will henceforth cause an FERA student to become disqualified.

The minimum of 30 cents per hour which had been established by national authorities was removed with the consent of FERA officials. Local students are still receiving 30 cents for their work here for the FERA but local officials are now privileged to reduce that wage. Regular University self-help students at present are receiving only 25 cents for their work.

University Club

The University Club will hold its last meeting for the fall quarter tonight at 7 o'clock in the club room in Graham Memorial.

Frank Willingham, president, urges all members to attend this last meeting for 1934. Plans will be made to complete the work for the fall quarter and arrangements made for holiday activities of the club.

team through to a good season. He led the after touchdown point converters with seven.

Whitaker and Aitken line up well together at the halfback posts. Both are good passers, receivers, and runners, also possessing excellent generalship ability. Whitaker shared with Shores, of Delta Tau Delta, the leadership for field goals with two apiece. The selection for a fullback between "Watt" Jones and Paul Kaveny, was a difficult task, but the fine all around play of the Law star gave him the berth.

Other former selections are "Bill" McKinnon, 1933 All-Dormitory; Paul Kaveny, 1931 All-Dormitory, 1932 All-Campus; Emmett Willis, 1932 All-Campus; Simpson Efland, 1932 All-Dormitory, 1933 All-Campus; Sidney Unger, 1932 All-Dormitory; Dave McCachren, 1931 All-Campus; and Walter Bullock, 1933 All-Fraternity.

Community Club

A general meeting of the Community Club will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Episcopal parish house. The meeting will be in charge of the health department of the club.

The feature address of the afternoon will be made by P. P. McCain of the State Sanatorium.

FOREIGN LEAGUE TO MEET LATER

Regular Session Tonight Is Postponed Because of Conflict With Campus Programs.

Because of conflict with the student entertainment feature and the debates tonight, the Foreign Policy League will postpone its regular meeting scheduled for 8 o'clock, probably until after Christmas.

The recent activities of the club have been to correspond with some of the more important colleges of the south on the question of the Nye investigation of armament sales. A resolution concerning the Nye investigation has been sent to Senator Nye.

Holiday Activities

During the Thanksgiving holidays, a representative of the club corresponded with the administrator of the Washington office of the American League of Nations Association.

A representative of the club will go to New York during the Christmas holidays in an effort to confer with important men who may be secured to speak to the student body during the winter quarter. The club is also endeavoring to aid the Human Relations Institute in securing their speakers for the spring.

Medical School Photos

Members of the medical school will be photographed for the Yackety Yack at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in front of Manning hall.

HAYDON ATTENDS MUSIC SOCIETY MEETING IN N. Y.

Dr. Glen Haydon of the music department attended a meeting of the American Musicological Society in New York Saturday.

Dr. Haydon reports that the newly elected officers of the society are: Professor Otto Kinkeldy of Cornell University, president; Charles Louis Seeger of New York, first vice-president; and W. Oliver Strunk, chief of the division of music of the Library of Congress, second vice-president.

Today the study will continue with an examination of the physical set-up at Swain hall. The laundry has already been closely examined as regards methods and procedures in handling student bundles.

The committee has as its purpose, then, the study of the plants in order to effect an improvement for the students' benefit and in order to aid the plants themselves in improving their administration.

Registration Begins Thursday For Winter Quarter Classes

Frosh, Sophomores Register January 3

Sophomores Who Failed No Courses and Made Honor Roll In Spring Also Enroll.

MUST OBTAIN PERMITS

Graduate, medical, and library science students, and juniors and seniors in all undergraduate divisions of the University are expected to register for the winter quarter before the holiday season begins, according to information released yesterday by Ben Husbands, associate registrar.

This pre-holiday registration will begin December 13 in the offices of the various deans of the several divisions of the University.

In addition to the above-named classifications, the following sophomores must register: those who during their first year in residence failed no subjects; those who made the honor roll at the end of the spring quarter, last, honor roll standing being a B average.

Early Registration

It is imperative that those who are eligible shall register before the holiday season begins. If one now enrolled knows that he will not return for the winter quarter, he is not to register; but if anyone is fearful only that he may not be able to return for the following quarter, he should register, if he is eligible to do so.

When and if it is determined positively that he cannot return, he should immediately notify the dean of the division of the University in which he is enrolled

COMMERCE GROUP INITIATES SENIORS

Abernethy, Miss Surratt, Wiggins, Emerson, Davis, Kenan, And Stern Are Selected.

The local chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, Alpha of North Carolina, held its fall initiation ceremonies last night in Graham Memorial.

At that time the following members of the class of 1935 in the school of commerce were initiated: F. P. Abernethy, Jr., Geneva Surratt, J. B. Wiggins, H. M. Emerson, P. P. Davis, F. H. Kenan, and S. J. Stern, Jr.

Restricted Membership

Membership in Beta Gamma Sigma is restricted to those seniors who in scholarship rank in the highest tenth, and those juniors who are in the highest fifteenth of their respective classes.

The fraternity is the only scholarship organization recognized by the American Association of the Collegiate Schools of Business, of which association the school of commerce here is a member. The local chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma was established in 1933.

Following the initiation, Dean Carroll discussed the position of the fraternity in the field of business education.

The election of members of the present junior class will be held in the spring quarter. K. W. Young is president of the local chapter. The other senior members, elected last spring as juniors, are H. H. Harriss, A. M. Gibbes, and J. W. Gunter.

Wins Award

The Mayflower Cup, awarded annually for the book adjudged the best of the year by a North Carolina resident, was presented to Dr. Erich W. Zimmermann, professor of economics in the University, at the Wednesday night session of the State Literary and Historical Association.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS ZIMBALIST

Famous Violinist Plays Three Encores for Enthusiastic Listeners at Program.

A magic violin in the hands of Efrem Zimbalist held a large Chapel Hill audience spellbound last night for over one and one-half hours of concert entertainment.

Opening his program with the minor theme of Vitali's "Chaconne," the world famous violinist swept through the dynamic "Variations on a Theme by Mozart," by Scalero. He received two curtain calls at the completion of the first part of his program.

Second Part

He rendered Conus' "Concerto in E Minor" as the second part of the bill. The rendition of this difficult concerto consumed 11 minutes. As an encore he gave Chopin's "Waltz."

"Le Coucou," "Ave Maria," "Spinning Song," and Gypsy airs were the complementary numbers. The audience required two additional encores before their thirst for more of Zimbalist's music was sated.

Zimbalist was aided in the concert by the expert accompaniment of Theodore Saidenberg at the Steinway piano which was brought from Durham expressly for the concert.

Two Groups Conduct Radio Program Today

The Inter-fraternity and Dormitory Councils will conduct the regular weekly University Club broadcast over station WDNC, Durham, this afternoon from 5 until 5:30 o'clock.

Last night's University Club meeting was featured by talks by Coach Bob Fetzer and Ralph Gardner. Fall quarter business was officially closed at this session, the last one for 1934.

Liberal Arts Seniors

All liberal arts college seniors whose last names begin with one of the letters from T through Z are expected to report to the office of the dean of the college of liberal arts to check up on their records and to make applications for their degrees.

EDITORS' POWER DEFINED IN P. U. BOARD DECISION

Hope Is That Explanation of Relationships Will End Misunderstandings in Future.

MAKE AD ARRANGEMENTS

The Publications Union Board yesterday passed a set of resolutions defining the relationship between business managers and editors of the campus publications with the hope that a concrete statement of the powers and responsibilities of each party would prevent future misunderstanding.

Recognizing the likelihood of disagreement between the editorial and advertising departments of a publication, the board provided a procedure for settling such disputes.

Advertising

Whenever the business manager is planning to run an advertisement which might possibly conflict with the editorial policy, he is required to submit the ad in question to the editor of the publication for review.

If at that time the business manager and editor are unable to reach an agreement, a committee composed of the president of the P. U. Board, or a student member appointed by him, and a faculty member of the same organization will meet and pass a final decision.

The same method of appeal can be used by the business manager whenever he feels that the editor is granting free advertising in the news columns to groups which would otherwise pay for real space.

FRESHMEN HEAR HEDGPETH SPEAK

Infirmary Doctor Advises Exercise for Health; Warns Against Use of Patent Laxatives.

Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth of the University infirmary spoke at freshman chapel yesterday, continuing his series of lectures on health and hygiene.

"The conditions under which we eat have much to do with the assimilation of the food," Dr. Hedgpeth said. Claiming that food is more easily digested under favorable conditions, the infirmary doctor stated that, "Food which is well cooked and appetizingly prepared helps in starting our digestive organs to work. Exercise also is a great aid."

Cramming

Dr. Hedgpeth warned against breaking an accustomed routine on the eve of examinations in order to cram.

"The average normal human being is troubled with constipation," he said, "first because of laziness and second because of negligence." Advising leafy vegetables, exercise, and plenty of water as a remedy for constipation, Dr. Hedgpeth warned against laxatives "such as Ex-Lax and Feen-a-mint."

Richard Heller, freshman, conducted the devotional exercises under the sponsorship of the campus Y. M. C. A. Dean Bradshaw presided.

WORLD PREMIERE OF GREEN'S PLAY IS GIVEN TONIGHT

Playmakers to Present Play Tonight at 8:30 O'clock, Tomorrow at 3 and 8:30 p. m.

MUSIC IS BY STRINGFIELD

The Carolina Playmakers will present their second production for the current season tonight with the world premiere of "Shroud My Body Down" by Paul Green, a former member of the Playmakers organization and now one of the outstanding American playwrights.

Tonight's performance is set to open at 8:30 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre. The play will run tonight and tomorrow night at the same hour, and also tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Ultra-Clannish Family

"Shroud My Body Down," said Paul Green, the author, "concerns the life of a family of superior intelligence, forbears, and physical attractions, placed in an environment which is not worthy of it. The people surrounding this family are far below it in every respect. The members of the family associate almost entirely with each other, having little to do with their neighbors. They become ultra-clannish, although of course they still have their domestic differences."

Paul Green, professor of philosophy in the University, will be on hand at the world premiere of "Shroud My Body Down" at the Playmakers theatre tonight, although at present he is confined with a slight cold contracted while hunting last week.

"Not Like Connellys"

"Unlike the family in 'The House of Connelly'," said Green, "this family is energetic and not lacking in initiative. The main problem of this family is that it never is able to find out what is wrong with it. If these people

FAMOUS ACTRESS TO BE IN DURHAM

Lenore Ulric Will Play in "Pagan Lady"; Well-Known Actors In Supporting Cast.

The Carolina theatre at Durham will feature the appearance of the dynamic star, Lenore Ulric, this evening in the one night stage performance of William DuBois' lusty, rousing drama, "Pagan Lady."

"Pagan Lady" has been ranked among the finest achievements of Miss Ulric's triumphant career and her appearance on the local stage gives North Carolinians an opportunity to enjoy an outstanding Broadway stage success.

Child of Nature

In the new role, Miss Ulric is again the swaggering child of nature, light in heart, loose in morals, glib in tongue. She brings new life to the type of character that she played in the former successes "Lula Belle," "Kiki," "Tiger Rose," and "The Son Daughter."

The supporting cast for "Pagan Lady" is headed by several well-known Broadway players including Gerald Kent, Jess Barker, John F. Morrissey, Richard S. Bishop, Louise Kirtland, Ruth Gates, Charles Harrison and Carl Reed. Edward Hartford directs the production.

University Convocation Called To Hear Bishop F. J. McConnell

KOCH WILL GIVE ANNUAL READING OF DICKENS TALE

Rendition of "A Christmas Carol" to Be Sunday Night.

With his reading here Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall, Professor Frederick H. Koch will have presented Charles Dickens' immortal ghost story, "A Christmas Carol," exactly 107 times.

This will be the 29th year that he has read the "Carol" at the University during the Christmas season. After his appearance here he will read Dicken's tale at the State theatre in Raleigh, Sunday night, December 23. His Raleigh reading is being sponsored each year by the News and Observer for the people of Raleigh.

Setting by Selden

The stage setting and lighting for Sunday night's performance has been designed and constructed by Samuel Selden of the Carolina Playmakers.

The singing of the old English carols will be furnished by the Chapel Hill Christmas quartet, as has been done in previous years. The quartet is made up of Dr. and Mrs. Gustave Harrer and Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence.

DEBATERS MEET ASHEVILLE TEAM

University Squad Argues with Group from Asheville Normal in Two Contests.

The University debating squad met the girls' debating team of the Asheville Normal in two contests here yesterday.

The query for both discussions was: Resolved, That the nations of the world should agree to prevent the international shipment of arms.

At the first debate, Norman Kellar and Al Kaplan supported the affirmative side of the question. At the second contest, Winthrop Durfee and Robert Maynard upheld the negative.

Session Adjourns

The session last night was adjourned in order that those attending the debate might attend the Zimbalist recital in Memorial hall.

The question of imposing restrictions on the international shipment of arms having aroused so much interest in meetings of the debate squad and the opinions being so evenly divided, it was decided that two debates would add much interest to the proceedings.

No decisions were planned for these contests since it was hoped that they would be more interesting to the audience if they took more of the air of a discussion.

The Asheville Normal debaters are on a tour of the southeast. They appeared at State College before coming here.

COMMUTING STUDENTS

Students living outside of the Chapel Hill limits may obtain their Carolina Magazines today during assembly period or from 4 to 5 p. m. from the DAILY TAR HEEL business office. George Underwood, circulation manager, will also be in the office Saturday morning to distribute the publications.

Classes Will Stop From 10:10 to 11:15

Noted New York Churchman Brought Here Under Auspices of University Y. M. C. A.

LECTURES THIS EVENING

The University convocation to hear Bishop Francis J. McConnell, leading world churchman, who is visiting the University on the invitation of the Y. M. C. A., will open at 10:15 a. m. today in Memorial hall.

The regular assembly hour will be extended for Bishop McConnell's lecture. Nine-thirty classes will end at 10:10 o'clock and 11 o'clock classes will probably begin at 11:15.

Evening Lecture

McConnell's evening lecture is set for 8 o'clock in Memorial hall. For both discussions he will use as his topic, "The Voices of Times."

The Bishop's appearance at the University is his first. Attempts have been made to secure Bishop McConnell to open the Human Relations Institute in the past, but were unsuccessful.

Authorities were pleased to learn this week that he had accepted the invitation of the Y. M. C. A.

McConnell's visit to Carolina is a part of the program of the University Y. M. C. A. to secure leading churchmen to speak here.

Guest of Bradshaws

Dean of Administration R. B. House will introduce the speaker at the convocation this morning. Dean Bradshaw will present the churchman at the as-

GROVES SAYS HIS COURSE NOT NEW

Much-Publicized Marriage Course Has Been Adopted by Many Schools Since Institution.

"The proposed adoption of the much-publicized marriage course, as given at the University, by the University of Washington will not be the first course thus patterned," Professor Ernest R. Groves of the University Institute for Research in Social Science told a DAILY TAR HEEL reporter yesterday.

"There are three schools in the state which last year gave such courses," said Professor Groves. He pointed out that Guilford College, the Woman's Teachers College at Asheville, and Black Mountain Boys School included last term in their curriculum courses patterned after the one given here.

Introduced by Steiner

Dr. Jesse F. Steiner, formerly connected with the Institute here, and now head of the sociology department at Washington, is responsible for the introduction of the course there. Dr. Steiner, who was last here in 1927, describes the course as "much needed in our modern, cultural world."

The University was the first institution in the nation to offer a course in marriage. It was instituted in 1927, the year of the arrival here of Professor Groves. Similar courses have been adopted by many of the larger eastern and middle-western universities, notably the Universities of Wisconsin and Michigan.

PARAGRAPHICS

Bolshevist philosophy: don't shoot until you see the White of their ties.

The only trouble with Mr. Thompson's going to Geneva was that it wasn't much fund.

The magazine might star an article on the budget, but, good heavens, that's nothing to make light of.

On Becoming Power-Conscious

Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, made some very pertinent, if general, remarks concerning the trend of America toward becoming "power-conscious" at his speech Wednesday night in Gerrard hall. The most casual reader of newspapers could hardly fail to notice daily headlines proclaiming the progress of the Tennessee Valley experiment, which is apparently brushing aside all efforts of private utilities to halt its operation. The New Deal, it seems, will not be denied.

But that is not the whole story in so far as the coming of the people of the United States into "power-consciousness" is concerned. Mr. McNinch mentioned with satisfaction the attempt of North Carolina to stimulate interest in rural electrification by the appointment of a commission whose function that would be. Yet, in spite of the interest that has been shown by 700 communities, it still remains an interest "on paper" as far as any widespread provision for electric power in rural homes is concerned. Granted that the mass of people want power, the main problem becomes, it seems to us, a question of raising their standards of living so that they may consume power. At least that would naturally follow in this state, where the rural standard is decidedly in the lower brackets. Production of power is not the main consideration; it is not difficult to produce electricity from white coal, once the power program is begun. But to stimulate consumption of it is a prime problem on which the federal and state governments have just begun to work.

For instance, consider the power capacity that the TVA program will have when completed. Two and one-half million horsepower will be generated after the New Deal completes the series of dams that will seize the energy of rivers in seven states. This is approximately twice the amount of electric power that is already being generated in that area. Needless to point out, this is a strong argument for the coal companies in their opposition to the Roosevelt plan.

It serves to raise the question of whether the people have not still a long way to go toward becoming power-conscious, if the demand for this tremendous amount of electricity is to measure up to the supply. If it is cheap enough, consumption is sure to increase to an extent, and under governmental administration it will be cheap enough. But electric power can't be used on a broom stick; it requires a small investment in a vacuum cleaner, which is not yet within the reach of every consumer. America will become more power-conscious in time as the plans of the federal government take effect, but there is still some question as to whether the people are as fully that way as they must necessarily become.

Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

Sad, Sad, But True

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

Your editorial doubt in Wednesday's paper as to how representative of the campus is the Phi assembly comes at a timely moment. On the front page of the same issue you carry the story of that venerable organization's last meeting, at which it put the gag on all its members, prohibiting discussion of all matters ". . . which might . . . reflect the ill-will of the campus on the assembly."

It is an amazing thing that an organization which exists for discussion of matters of interest to the student body should by a two-thirds majority shut against itself the door of free expression. Hereafter, the chief function of the Philanthropic Assembly will be that of censor upon its members, though, of course, it will discuss very nice subjects to which no one can object.

If such an organization continues to live, it will be a disgrace to its own traditions and to those of the University. However, under such a policy no forum can exist long. If it persists in this shush-shush policy, the sooner it dies the better.

Your editorial seems to assume that President Graham, Deans House, Hobbs, and Bradshaw are more representative of the student body than the Phi because they take a more liberal attitude with reference to the anti-war movement. Of this I have serious doubts. I recently heard the editor of the Carolina Magazine set forth in public what he considered the position of a liberal in the anti-war movement. He seemed badly confused as to what is the meaning of "liberal." And I have recently corrected a freshman theme in which the writer called those who violate the honor system "the liberals."

I fear that the Phi Assembly is representative of a large part of the student body.

—NATHANIEL H. HENRY.

"Speaking the Phi's Mind—"

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

For the past two weeks the DAILY TAR HEEL has carried a number of articles bitterly condemning the recent action of the Phi Assembly in opposing the work of the local anti-war league. In the face of this flagrant and unjust criticism the assembly feels that it is time the campus was truly informed of why the assembly voted as it did on the issue. Doubtless the writers of these articles have little idea of the motives for the assembly's action, but are merely giving vent to their bitter feelings, with a series of loud sounding adjectives describing the assembly and its membership.

First of all the assembly condemned the local anti-war league for its action in condemning the R. O. T. C. units at Chapel Hill and State College. The assembly makes no apology for this because it feels that it has just as much right to condemn the work of the local anti-war league as the league did to condemn the R. O. T. C. work.

The assembly was also in discord with the league's action condemning the American Legion. By such action we do not wish to convey the idea that we agree with the Legion in all its activities. At the same time we do believe the Legion is as much justified to act as it wishes as a campus organization is in many of its acts in efforts to correct the evils of the world.

The league also tabled a resolution condemning the American Red Cross. Here against the assembly takes issue with the league. We believe that such action by the league would receive just as bitter criticism by many intellectual and forward looking people throughout the country as our actions did from many of our peace-loving and God-fearing students on the campus.

Finally, the assembly believes that it should know what it is buying before it contributes anything to send a delegate to Geneva. With all due respect to their chairman, we still feel that the league has the wrong kind of leadership and that the national anti-war idea will not have a fair chance to be successful as long as the present chairman is head of the league. We cannot reconcile the idea of "peace on earth, goodwill toward men" with any political doctrine of communism. We cannot syncretize a philosophy that would overthrow governments by force and revolution with an Utopian dream of world peace.

The assembly is in favor of peace but we do not bind ourselves to favor every act by the local league. We are aware that our recent action has been criticized by many people who feel that they possess a surplus of wisdom and knowledge on any problem which may be discussed. But we also feel that we are students enrolled at a liberal University and are justified in speaking our own opinions regardless of our opposition.

—THE PHI ASSEMBLY.

Expelled Journalism Student Defends "Free Student Press"

Stanley Shlosman Claims That He Has Violated No Principle Taught Him; Says So Much Pressure Has Been Brought to Bear That They Cannot Place Facts Before Students.

(Editor's note: Stanley Shlosman of Marshalltown, Iowa, one of the four journalism students expelled from Louisiana State University, gives his version of the fight for a "Free Student Press" in the following article written for the United Press.)

By STANLEY SHLOSMAN

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 6.—(UP)—As one of the four expelled journalism students, I firmly believe that I have done nothing that would have violated any principle that has been taught to me since I have attended this university.

Knowing that our cause is a just one, I am prepared to defend my actions before any board that the University would allow us to appear before.

". . . So Much Pressure . . ."

The reason that the student body and the Student Council have taken no action is that so much pressure has been brought to bear that we cannot place the facts before a mass meeting of the student body.

I have had no connection with the student paper whatsoever, but it is due to the fact such an action was taken that the Reveille staff resigned rather than submit to political censorship.

Our group did not deny the right of faculty supervision, but did object to suppression of student opinion and student thought. As a student, this is a definite curtailment of rights, and as a potential journalist, it violates every principle that I have been taught in the school of journalism here at Louisiana State University.

Did Not Act Blindly

President Smith has suspended us for doing what the constitution has guaranteed to every individual, the right to petition. Our conduct has not been disrespectful. I have not taken action blindly, but have realized what I was facing.

The entire story of the whole affair should be told, knowing that when the true information is released that conditions must change at the university or it will be nothing more than a campus of beautiful buildings with suppression of speech of all kinds, which is a deplorable condition for an educational institution that is fundamentally supposed to mould and shape the lives of the youth of the country to make them better citizens.

Register Thursday For Winter Quarter Classes

and also Ben Husbands, associate registrar, so that his registration may be cancelled. This will involve no cost on the part of the student so affected.

Junior standing is taken to mean any and all undergraduates who at the beginning of the current fall quarter had credit for as many as 15 University courses.

All juniors and seniors in the college of liberal arts, having a major, must consult with the major head and secure, prior to presenting themselves for registration, formal approved outlines of their course schedules for the winter quarter.

Permit Cards

Permit cards will be available for distribution December 12 in room 8, South building. All students registering before the holidays must secure permits before beginning registration.

All freshmen and such sophomores as do not qualify for registration before the holidays should register January 3, 1935. New students, those entering at the beginning of the winter quarter for the first time this year, should also register January 3.

Date of registration for the various divisions of the University are: schools of applied science, engineering, pharmacy, medicine, public administration, and library science, and the graduate school, December 13, 14, and 15; the school of commerce and the college of liberal arts, December 13-20.

WORLD PREMIERE OF GREEN'S PLAY IS GIVEN TONIGHT

could only find out what is the matter with them, they could very probably do something about it.

"The leading lady, one of the daughters of the family, sees the defects in the man her father wants her to marry, by comparing this man to her brothers. Likewise, her brothers realize how far other women fall short of their own sisters. This factor adds to their tendency to want to associate entirely with each other, and discourages their marrying."

Theme Is Tragic

The play is something of a tragedy, although there is some relief at the very end. In writing this play, Green realized that the subject matter was not such as to arouse interest on the professional stage, and consequently it has never been presented professionally or even submitted to professional producers.

Green usually writes the songs used in his plays, and uses ballad and folk tunes when he can find them to suit the words. For this play, however, Lamar Stringfield has written the musical scores. Green states that he is very well pleased with the music which Stringfield has adapted to his play.

sembly tonight. McConnell will be the house guest of Dean and Mrs. Bradshaw today. Business in Washington, D. C., will necessitate his leaving Chapel Hill tonight.

Bishop McConnell holds the reputation of being a very effective speaker and an authority on present day conceptions of theology. He was elected bishop in the Methodist Episcopal church in 1912 and since that time has held positions as president of the Religious Educational Association and president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. He now makes his home in New York City.

McConnell is the author of several outstanding religious books, including "The Diviner Immanence," "Religious Certainty," "Christian Focus," "The Increase of Faith," "Democratic Christianity," "The Christlike God," and others.

Infirmary List

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: J. E. Poindexter, T. B. Attmore, Ervin Kalmanoff, H. L. Mitchell, R. M. Barnes, M. E. Smith, Blair Holliday, T. D. Burnett, Janeth Younginer, J. R. Everett, Walter Albee, Guy Phillips, and Mrs. Cecil Pope.

Med Aptitude Test

The Association of American Medical Colleges' aptitude test will be given this afternoon at 3 o'clock in 206 Venable hall.

Students taking this test are those who expect to apply for entrance to a medical school by the fall of 1935.

Waldrop Chosen Captain Of 1935 Harrier Outfit

Outstanding Two-Miler On Title-Holding Track Squad.

Ranson Runners Finish Highly Successful Season.

Joseph Edmund Waldrop, brilliant cross country and track star for the past two years, was elected yesterday by his team mates to captain the harrier outfit in 1935.

The Greenville boy is a senior this year, but, having been kept on the bench during his sophomore season because of a bad leg, he will be eligible to finish his career as a runner next fall.

Waldrop skyrocketed to fame as a runner about as fast as any person ever attending the University. Coming from a small town, he had had no experience at all when first he came to Carolina.

Early Development

However, during his first year, Waldrop ran second only to Harry Williamson on the freshman harrier club. He also showed form as a miler on the yearling track team during the spring.

In his sophomore year Waldrop stayed out of cross country because of his leg but was a fairly good miler on the Southern Conference championship track team of 1933.

Last season in cross country, Waldrop first began showing real form as a distance runner. Although handicapped most of the time with a strained muscle in his side, he managed to run fairly high on the harrier club and finished among the leaders in the Southern Conference meet.

Fame Starts

However, it was on the 1934 track team that Waldrop gained most fame as a runner. Again trying the mile he was just a fair man. About the middle of the season the Greenville boy was shifted to the two mile distance and at once began improving, getting his initial first place in the dual meet with Navy.

Then in the Southern Conference track meet at Duke, Waldrop turned in one of the really surprising performances of the day. Not even thought of as a a possible first place finisher in the two mile run, he breezed along in fine style and nosed out Bird of Duke and Dunaj of Washington and Lee in a great sprinting finish for the title.

During the past season on the cross country team the new cap-

Coach Quinlan Calls For More Grapplers

The varsity and freshman grapplers are undergoing intensive workouts daily at the Tin Can under the guidance of Coach Quinlan. The squad now numbers close to 60 and is increasing in size every day. However, excellent opportunity of making the team is afforded to entrants in the 118 lb, 125 lb, and the unlimited classes on both the varsity and frosh teams as the present number of competitors in these classes is comparatively small.

The Tar Heel mentor is quite optimistic for the success of the team as compared to last year's showing. The squad has most of its varsity wrestlers from last year and is backed up by the crack freshman team which went through an undefeated season.

The first varsity match will be held sometime in the middle of January and will be followed by about seven more matches. A definite schedule of the dates of the meets will be announced in a day or two.

NETTERS PUT UP RACQUETS UNTIL SPRING QUARTER

Ladder Play Ceases with Willis And De Gray Holding Top Positions.

PLAY INDOORS AT TIN CAN

With the general acceptance of Old Man Winter in Chapel Hill, the varsity and frosh tennis stars have packed away their well-worn racquets and are preparing for the yearly layoff.

At the end of this week, outdoor play will come to a close, and the sole field of play will be situated in the Tin Can. A few of the players have already taken advantage of the court in the huge arena and have started nightly workouts.

The Pinehurst Country Club has just announced its opening fall tournament starting Saturday. If there are yet varsity stars desirous of good competition, they will probably enter this annual event, but there is doubt as to whether any Tar Heel will make the trek to the Carolina resort.

Willis Tops Varsity

Ricky Willis heads the varsity as the fall play takes its closing bow, and will retain that position until the start of ladder play again in the spring. When the opening ladder standing was issued, Willis was in third spot but due to his victories over Levitan, he replaced the varsity captain at the top.

The only unranked player to break into the first ten was Gene Goodes, who replaced Jimmy Johnston on the ladder. Otherwise, the ranking is identically the same, outside of Henderson's rise of three places. Both Abels and Dowd dropped one in advance of Archie's surge into seventh place.

The first three on the frosh list have retained their positions with De Gray at the top, followed by Robinson and Foreman. The greatest advance was made by Seymore Fast, who moved four notches in taking fourth place from Ray Bartelman. Van Hecke and Parker are the only two to drop from the ranking and were replaced respectively by Jimmy Bloom and Bob Hagey.

Bloom came from nowhere to take seventh place through three successive victories, whereas Hagey moved into the big ten by virture of a default from Parker.

Taken generally, the ladder system was unsuccessful, with many players not seeing action and others getting an overdose. The method of advancing three positions by one victory has been criticized widely and is probably due for a radical change in the near future.

The present ranking, which holds until the spring quarter, follows:

	Varsity	Freshmen
1	Willis	De Gray
2	Levitan	Robinson
3	Harris	Foreman
4	Jones	Fast
5	Minor	Bartelman
6	Whitaker	Elwell
7	Henderson	Bloom
8	Dowd	Berg
9	Abels	Yeomans
10	Goodes	Hagey

All men interested in trying out for freshman basketball manager will meet with J. C. Steele in the Tin Can Monday night at 8 o'clock.

VARSITY QUINTET HOLDS PRACTICE LONG AND HARD

Coach Shepard Finds Great Difficulty in Filling One of Guard Posts.

FIRST STRING SCRIMMAGES

Coach Bo Shepard sent his whole squad through a scrimmage yesterday in the Tin Can, preparing for the opening of the basketball season shortly after the Christmas holidays.

The cagers started the afternoon with the usual shooting and conditioning drills. The scrubs then went through a practice contest while the outstanding candidates for the team got their eyes on the basket from the foul line.

Finally Coach Shepard sent his first lineup on the floor against some reserves. Captain Snooks Aitken had his usual place at forward and was paired with Mel Nelson, letter reserve last year. Ivan Glace, another regular veteran, ran at the center post, while Jim McCachren, All-Southern, rounded out the letter players at one of the guards.

Coach Shepard will probably have the most difficulty getting a capable starter for the other guard left vacant by ex-Captain Dave McCachren. Ben Blood, letterman, is suppose to have the

BOXING TOURNEY POSTPONED UNTIL TUESDAY, DEC. 11

Mural Pugs May File Entries This Week; Eight Divisions Sponsored.

TO WEIGH IN AT EMERSON

Boxing intramurals which previously had been called for Monday, have been shifted a day and will start instead on Tuesday, December 11.

Students desiring to enter can now file their applications with the boxing manager at the Tin Can any day this week between the hours of 4 and 6 p. m.

All entrants will be required to be present at Emerson field on Monday from 4 to 6 in order that they may weigh in for the opening bouts on Tuesday. Director Herman Schnell will be on hand to see that everyone is taken care of.

Eight weight divisions are included, as follows: 115 lb., 125, 135, 145, 155, 165, 175, and heavyweight. The boxers will be allowed, as usual, a leeway of four pounds so that one can weigh 119 pounds and still enter the 115 class and so on.

The eligibility rules that apply to the other intramurals are to be in effect here. Boys who have at any time participated in varsity or freshman boxing are ineligible; all other students are free to enter.

Tar Heel Sports Writers Select 1934 All-America Gridiron Eleven

Minnesota, Stanford, Navy, and Alabama Place Two Each on First String; Barclay, Larsen, and Borries Unanimous Choices; Close Voting for Pivot Post with Robinson Winning.

Honorable mention: ends—Borden (Fordham), Erdelatz (St. Mary's), Dornin (Navy); tackles—Theodoratus (Washington State), Maddox (Kansas State), Pflum (Nebraska); guards—Ormiston (Pitt), Bale (Rice), Preston (Army); centers—Shotwell (Pitt), Robertshaw (Navy), Robinson (Tulane); quarters—Tomb (Columbia), Armstrong (Kansas State); halves— Berwanger (Chicago), Buckler (Army), Johnson (Kentucky), Simons (Tulane), Purvis (Purdue), Shakespeare (Notre Dame), Williams (California); fulls—Smukler (Temple), Melinkovitch (Notre Dame).

With the shades pulled down on the 1934 football season, everyone turns to indoor sports—and foremost among these at the present time is picking All-Star teams. Each and every person from 99 years old down has selected an All-Something gridiron team, which without a doubt in his own mind is the best possible choice.

After such a thrilling and exciting session by the Snavely Tar Heel eleven, the DAILY TAR HEEL sports staff is taking time out to make its choice for All-America honors before having a mental relapse caused by the excitement of the past season. The DAILY TAR HEEL final selection, though not entirely officially recognized, should carry much weight. The team was compiled by the staff which includes Jimmy Morris, Smith Barrier, Lee Turk, Fletcher Ferguson, Len Rubin, Stuart Sechriest, Ira Sarasohn, and Lester Ostrow.

Although none of the staff has seen all the men in action during the season, news reports and quite authoritative opinions were studied the whole fall, and the actual performances were watched from week to week.

Four teams stand out among the first string selection, placing a pair of grid stars each. These clubs are Stanford, Minnesota, Alabama, and Navy, representing the far west, mid-west, south and east. Each team was the outstanding eleven in its section, with the exception of the Middies who rank probably second to Pittsburgh. The remaining places are divided among North Carolina, Notre Dame, and Pittsburgh.

Only a trio of men received unanimous selection by the board. They were George Barclay, brilliant guard; Frank Larsen, leading flankman of the nation; and Fred Borries, ranking Midshipman backfield star. Don Hutson, Francis Lund, and Bobbie Grayson failed by one to garner all the votes. Bob Reynolds, Charlie Hartwig, and Millard Howell lacked two votes.

The closest race was for the pivot position with Lester of Texas Christian and Robinson of Notre Dame battling for top honors, and the Rambler getting first choice by a lone vote.

Basketeers Book Twenty-One Tilts; Big Eastern Trip

Nine Home Games Scheduled; Season Opens January 3 With Elon Here.

A representative and ambitious schedule of 21 games, featured by two long trips, one into Virginia and another into the east, and climaxed by the Southern Conference tourney, was announced for the University of North Carolina basketball team yesterday by Coach G. E. Shepard.

Two intersectional foes, Navy and Army, have been scheduled along with Maryland and the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn on the eastern trip. Every team in the Southern Conference will be met except Clemson, and two games will be played with each of the Big Five teams, the card listing 13 conference and eight Big Five contests.

The complete schedule follows:

Jan. 3—Elon here.
Jan. 5—Davidson at Charlotte.
Jan. 8—Wake Forest, here.
Jan. 10—W. &. L. at Lynchburg.
Jan. 11—V. M. I., there.

With the names-and-residences-listing in the student directory giving us a little "bum steer," the name of "Bucky" Harris, All-Campus selection from S. A. E., was erroneously given as Richard M. Harris, who is a member of the same fraternity.

However, we take this opportunity of saying that "Bucky's" full insignia is William Clinton Harris, Jr., and to apologize for this misleading error.

JUNIOR CLASS FEES

The following juniors have not yet paid their class fees, a check-up at the Yackety Yack office revealed yesterday:

Frosh Get 48 Numerals On Football, Cross Country Teams.

Barclay and McRae Receive Special Awards.

The University Athletic Council yesterday announced the awarding of 32 varsity monograms and 48 freshman numerals to the members of Carolina's victorious fall sports teams.

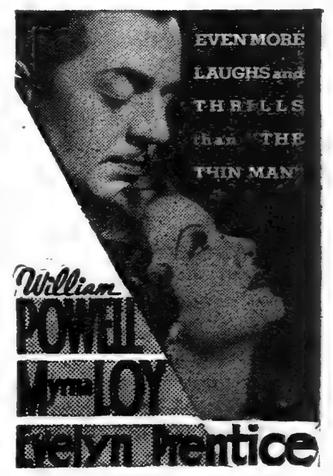
The Blue and White eleven won the Big Five title and was undefeated in the Southern Conference but barely missed the championship due to a tie by N. C. State. The Tar Heel cross country team swept top honors in both the state and conference.

The splendid performance of the Tar Heel teams this fall gives Carolina one of the finest athletic records for the year 1934 ever amassed by a Southern Conference institution.

Special Awards

A special award, white sweaters with service stripes, was made to George Barclay and Edwin McRae in recognition of their outstanding individual work. Barclay captained the Tar Heel eleven to the most successful season since 1929 and made All-America guard. McRae won the Southern Conference cross country championship.

Special blue senior sweaters with service stripes were also voted, as a reward for the team's fine record, to the other five graduating members of the football squad. These were: Charlie Shaffer, Jim Tatum, Eddie Kahn, Ralph Gardner, and Eddie Martin.



Three men received their third football letters: Captain George Barclay of Natrona, Pa.; Eddie Kahn of Roxbury, Mass.; and Jim Tatum of McColl, S. C.

Second awards went to Babe Daniel, Charlotte; Tom Evins, Oxford; Ralph Gardner, Shelby; Don Jackson, Sanford, Fla.; Emmett Joyce, Chicago, Ill.; Jim McCachren, Charlotte; Eddie Martin, Tarboro; Bill Moore, Wheeling, W. Va.; Harry Montgomery, Tarentum, Pa.; Charlie Shaffer, Greensboro; and Herman Snyder, Monroe.

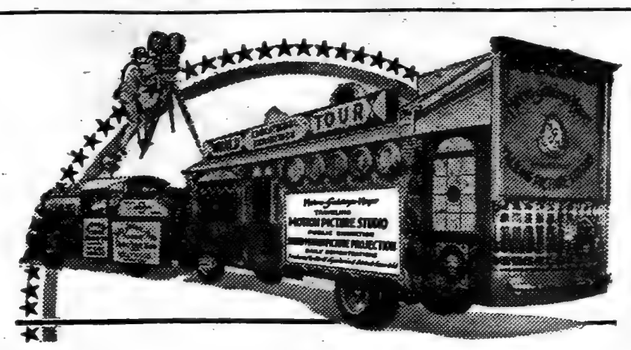
TRAVELING STUDIO TEACHES MAKE-UP

Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer Motion Picture Group to Arrive Today for Short Stay.

The feminine population of Chapel Hill will have an opportunity to learn the fine points of make-up technique when the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer traveling studio comes to town for a short stay from 12 to 1:30 o'clock today.

Leonard Smith, motion picture make-up expert, and Max Factor, artist, will reveal the latest Hollywood secrets which are used by such stars as Jean Harlow, Joan Crawford, and Norma Shearer to create illusions of allurement, glamour and charm.



Personal Advice

Personal advice in individual problems for facial beautification and complexion analysis will be given to feminine visitors by Factor.

The studio is equipped with an ultra-modern projection booth, which has regulation projection and sound equipment for the showing of sound films. The studio is designed so that the public will be able to view the projection equipment which is in one end and the sound recording room in the other.

A Hearst Metrotone Newsreel camera car will accompany the studio, together with the two additional pilot cars used to convey members of the staff. The studio will be located while in Chapel Hill in front of the Carolina theatre, and is visiting the Hill under the auspices of that amusement house.

Naval Increase?

London, Dec. 6.— (UP) — Norman H. Davis, chief of the United States delegation of the preliminary naval conference, bluntly warned Japan today that if Tokyo abrogates the London and Washington treaties she may expect a free for all naval building race.

He intimated strongly that Roosevelt was ready to proceed with a naval construction program which will outstrip Japan. Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto of the Japanese delegation tonight answered Davis' speech saying that the Washington treaty did not give Japan adequate security.

ECONOMICS MEETING

Forty members of the North Carolina Economics Association will convene in Graham Memorial at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening for their fall dinner and meeting, it was announced yesterday by Professor M. S. Heath, the University of North Carolina representative on the association's directing board.

Congressman William B. Umstead will address the group informally on the aspects of the present economic problems.

P. T. A. Congress

Dr. Harold D. Meyer of the sociology department, and Russell M. Grumman, director of the University extension division, will go to Greensboro tomorrow to attend the semi-annual meeting of the state congress of parents and teachers. Dr. Meyer is the chairman of the program-making committee, and Mr. Grumman is extension director of the congress.

J. M. MOREHEAD HERE

John Motley Morehead, recently ambassador to Sweden and one of the donors of the Morehead-Patterson memorial bell tower, passed through Chapel Hill yesterday on his way to his home in Spray, N. C. He stopped in to see Controller C. T. Woollen and left immediately.

Band Coats Due

Earl A. Slocum, director of the University band, announced yesterday that all band coats are due at the band office in the music building today.

He also announced that a concert band will be organized during the early part of the winter quarter.

Waldrop Will Captain 1935 Harrier Outfit

tain was one of the mainstays in bringing Carolina a perfect dual season and the Southern Conference and state championships.

Ed McRae, who finished his career by winning the individual conference title, was the only Tar Heel that beat Waldrop during the season; the Greenville boy finished second to McRae in most of the dual meets.

In the conference championship run, Waldrop pulled another surprise. This time he finished third behind McRae and Morse of Duke but ahead of Dunaj, Washington and Lee, and Heritage, Duke; both had defeated him earlier in the season.

The Tar Heel harriers have had a very successful season this fall, coming through without a blemish on their record. Dual victories were obtained over N. C. State, V. M. I., W. and L., and Duke. They copped the S. I. C. crown with ease to make the sixth harrier title the Ransoners have won in nine years.

Ed McRae, Waldrop, Haywood Curlee, Lou Conte, and Graham Gammon have been the leaders this fall, with Curlee as acting captain due to the inability of Captain Harry Williamson to participate because of an injury. Other consistent performers were Jack Bower, Fab Haywood, Mark Aderholt, Marvin Allen, and Bob Gardiner.

CODE BODY ALTERED BY RECOVERY BOARD

Washington, Dec. 6.—(UP)—The National Industrial Recovery board tonight removed all directors and officers of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers from the Cotton Garment Code authority.

The action was taken, it was said, because of "conflicting responsibilities" over the enforcement of the recent code amendment to shorten hours and increase wages.

Thirty-Two Monograms Given For Fall Sports

Raleigh, and Dick Lewis of Oxford, were awarded football managers' monograms.

Cross Country

The 10 men winning their letters in cross country were Haywood Curlee, Ansonville; Louis Conte, Newark, N. J.; Fabius Haywood, Concord; Edwin McRae, Peachland; Ed Waldrop, Greenville; Mark Aderholt, Lexington; Marvin Allen, Wilmington; Jack Bower, Lexington; Graham Gammon, Charlotte; and Bob Gardiner, Germantown, Pa.

Curlee was the only one to receive his third letter. The awards were the second for Conte, Haywood, McRae, and Waldrop. The others were winning their monograms for the first time.

The members of the freshman cross country team to make their "1938" numerals were: A. E. Anderson, Wilmington; I. Bronitsky, New London, Conn.; P. T. D'Ascensio, Newark, N. J.; J. M. Davison, Larchmont, N. Y.; R. Flynt, Winston-Salem; R. F. Garland, Marshville; J. R. Gove, Bergenfield, N. J.; S. W. Rabb, Lexington; J. T. Rivers, Savannah, Ga.; and J. W. Rowley, New Smyrna, Fla.

A total of 38 members of the freshman football squad received numerals as follows: I. T. Avery, Morganton; George Ax, N. Braddock, Pa.; Henry Bartos, Vandergrift, Pa.; A. A. Bershak, Clairton, Pa.; E. C. Bricklemyer, Philadelphia, Pa.; T. D. Burnette, Tarboro; Carson Coffey, Lenoir; Irving Crowell, Ho-hokus, N. J.; Arthur Ditt, Lebanon, Pa.; Paul Dixon, Jr., Pittsfield, Mass.; Walter Eckert, Amityville, N. Y.; B. T. Fields, Greensboro; Bert Finberg, Newton, Mass.; Al Gaydos, N. Braddock, Pa.; Abe Gordon, Goldsboro; G. C. Graves, Charlotte; C. H. Henderson, Wilmington; H. W. Hinkle, Lexington.

W. L. Hoffer, Jersey Shore, Pa.; E. B. Juliber, New York City; Robert Keeney, Athens, Pa.; Herman Lloyd, Chapel Hill; B. C. Maffitt, Charlotte; D. W. Meroney, Greensboro; John McDonald, Monroe; Ed Oliver, Statesville; Ed Palmer, Rushland, Pa.; C. D. Peiffer, Wilmington; Joseph Polinski, Plains, Pa.; Benson Partin, Chapel Hill; Glenn Rice, Reidsville; Fred Scherer, Newark, N. J.; R. B. Smith, Lexington; Southwood Tison, Savannah, Ga.; G. G. Thomas, Tarboro; Delbert Walborn, Montgomery, Pa.; Bill Whitenacht, Doylestown, Pa.; and J. R. Wolfe, Robertsdale, Pa.

MISS TUTTLE GIVES ADULT CLASS HOURS

Miss Lena Alice Tuttle, instructor in several fields of art, has arranged the following schedule for her adult classes:

Those interested in portrait or landscape painting will meet Thursday and Friday from 2 to 5 p. m.; persons studying costume sketching or landscape painting will meet Saturday morning from 9 to 12.

Children five and six years of age who wish to join Miss Tuttle's classes for children will meet Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 3 in her studio in Peabody building.

inside track for the position but he was absent from practice yesterday so Paul Kaveny, a forward last year, and Frank Ramsey, center last year on the Tar Baby club, took turns on the first five.

As it is early in the season the varsity still looks pretty ragged, demonstrating poor form in both passing and shooting. Jake Glace probably showed more of his old form than any of the other regulars; the lenthy center continually controlled the tip-off and recovered balls regularly from the back board.

With a large squad on hand, Coach Shepard is still in the experimenting stage, his first club far from being picked. As there are a number of likely looking players out, some of the boys now far down on the list will surely move up while some will probably be shifted into different positions before final satisfaction is reached.

"SHROUD MY BODY DOWN"
3 AND 8:30 P.M.
PLAYMAKERS THEATRE

SERVED BY THE UNITED PRESS

VOLUME XLIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1934 | NUMBER 64

CURRENT DRAMA OF PLAYMAKERS TO END TONIGHT

Two Performances of Green's "Folk Dream" Today Follow Premiere Last Night.

SHOWINGS AT 3 AND 8:30

"Shroud My Body Down," the second production of the Carolina Playmakers for the current season, will be presented in two final performances today at 3 p. m. and at 8:30 p. m. in the Playmakers theatre.

The play had its world premiere last night, under the direction of Samuel Selden of the Playmakers staff. The author of the play, Paul Green, was in Chapel Hill for the opening night.

Musical Accompaniment

Green's "folk dream" was presented with the musical score by Lamar Stringfield, head of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra. The Carolina Concert Orchestra, under the direction of Earl Slocum, played the score from the theatre pit.

Leading roles in the play were taken by Sammie Ruth Bell, Fowler Spencer, Patsy McMullan, Dan Hamilton, David D. McCachren, Harold Baumstone, Robert duFour, Alton Williams, Robert Nachtmann, and Wilbur Leach.

Supporting Cast

Minor roles were played by Louise McGuire, Hazel Beacham, Mildred Moore, David Richardson, Dancy Hawes, Vermont Royster, Jane Cover, Channing Fries, George Stoney, Dwight Brown, Ella Mae Daniel, Eloise Sheppard, Juanita Greene, Margaret Wallace, Hester Barlow, Ralph Lyerly, Felix Hamrick, Willard Miller, William Robertson, Glen Haydon, Sybille Berwanger, Christine Maynard.

The production staff for this production included Jean Ashe, Sara Seawell and Frances Caffey, John Dacey, Willard Miller, Billy Robertson, Clyde Shaw, David Biberman, John Shultz and Joyce Sayre.

"Shroud My Body Down" is a tragedy of southern aristocracy.

GRAHAM TO TALK TO STATE GROUP

University Y. M. C. A. Sends Six Delegates to Raleigh Meeting Tomorrow of "Y" Cabinets.

President Frank Graham of the Greater University and Rev. Donald Stewart of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian church will speak to an all-day meeting tomorrow of the state Y.M.C.A.-Y. W. C. A. cabinets in Raleigh.

Six Y. M. C. A. leaders from Chapel Hill will represent the University at the "Y" meeting, announced J. D. Winslow, president of the local "Y."

Two McKees

The deputation from Carolina will include President Winslow, Paul McKee, Don McKee, Billy Yandell, Henry Allison, and Warren Hattaway.

The Y. M. C. A. of the University at Raleigh will act as host to the meeting. Carter Williams of that organization is president of the joint-group.

J. D. Winslow and Francis Fairley of the local Y. M. C. A. hold executive positions in the state-wide Y. M. C. A. Winslow is president and Fairley, secretary.

Spann Presents Nativity Play Here Tomorrow

Playmakers to Produce Adaptation of Old Play at 5 p. m.

The Carolina Playmakers will present "A Fifteenth Century German Nativity Play," adapted and directed by Dr. Meno Spann of the University German department, tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre.

The cast for Spann's play will include himself, Juanita Honeycutt, Urban T. Holmes, Bob Robertson, William Olsen, Mrs. Loren MacKinney, Mrs. Ernest Mackie, Margaret McCauley, Eston Ericson, Jesse Parker, Walter Terry, Gurney Briggs, and James Dees.

The Playmakers' staff for this production of the story of the Nativity is made up of Louis Hagood, Rene Prud-hommeaux, Mrs. Loren MacKinney, and Oramae Davis.

BISHOP DISCUSSES FADS IN THOUGHT

Man's Thinking Due to Three Chief Causes, He Says.

Using "The Voice of the Times" as the subject of his speech yesterday morning at assembly period, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, leading New York churchman, said that man's thinking is due to three main causes.

The bishop believes that what he calls "fashioned thinking" is done by many people, just as they follow popular fads in dress and games.

"Symptomatic thinking" is the result of an unhappy or unhealthy environment, he says.

Radical thinking is the voice of human demand, and it is our duty to discover the human significance behind it.

REVIEW RECORDS ALUMNI MEETING

Shows New Aerial View of Campus; Pictures of Barclay, Tatum, Kahn Appear.

A new aerial view of the campus is shown on the cover of the December issue of the Alumni Review, which came out yesterday.

News of the annual general assembly of the Alumni Association to be held January 25 in Chapel Hill is carried as the lead story of the Review. At this meeting President Graham, following a recently established custom, will formally open the University's program of informing alumni of budget requests of the institution for the ensuing biennium.

The University conducts such a program every legislative year before or during the convening of the state assembly. A summary of the University's needs and requisites is carried in this story.

Four U. N. C. State Titles

Triumphantly the Review publishes pictures of four Carolina teams holding the 1934 state titles in the major sports, track, basketball, baseball, and football. Along with All-American George Barclay, Jim Tatum and Eddie Kahn, described as "stalwarts in the big Tar Heel line," appear in civilian attire in pictures.

Claude W. Rankin, president of the Fayetteville alumni, plans to heap further honors upon the great 1934 football team by presenting gold football charms to the lettermen and the coaches. These charms will be paid for by donations from alumni.

The Review reproduces in full the address "President Venable as a Colleague" delivered by Dr. H. V. Wilson at the services conducted December 17 in memory of the late Francis Preston Venable, whose life was bound up in the history and achievements of the University.

LITTLE ENTENTE THREATENS WAR

Czechoslovakia Tells League That Attempts to Disunite Entente Invite War.

Geneva, Dec. 7.—(UP)—War will be the Little Entente's answer to any move to disrupt unity among its members in the Balkans, Czechoslovakia boldly warned the world today at the special session of the League of Nations Council here.

Jugoslavia considers the assassination of King Alexander I an attempt on the part of her European enemies, notably Hungary, to turn the other nations of the Little Entente, Czechoslovakia and Roumania, against her.

Dr. Edouard Benes, foreign minister, made the threat openly during a heated debate in which Hungary formally declared herself innocent of charges preferred by Jugoslavia that she was guilty of complicity in harboring the Croatian terrorist who killed King Alexander I. He insinuated, supporting Jugoslavia, that the Marseilles shooting was merely a part of a Hungarian campaign for treaty revision and said that if any future attempt was made to emperil the unity of Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Roumania, war will result.

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 7.—(UP)— Excitement increased hourly here tonight as further reports of mass deportation of Hungarian residents by Jugoslavia became known.

STAINBACK NAMED TO MAKE SURVEY OF POWER RATES

University Instructor to Commence Investigation Here.

As part of a country-wide investigation of electric rates by the Federal Power Commission, Raymond F. Stainback, University instructor of electrical engineering, is about to commence a survey of consumers here in Chapel Hill.

Stainback was appointed to his position the latter part of last month by the Federal Power Commission. Frank R. McNinch, who spoke in Gerrard hall Wednesday, is chairman of the commission.

About two hundred consumers of electricity in Chapel Hill will be visited during the next two months by University student FERA workers. These workers will determine the amount of current used by each home-owner and the amount paid for it. The data will be tabulated by Stainback and sent on to the commission.

Similar surveys are being conducted all over the United States in order to give the Federal Power Commission a cross-sectional view of national rate structures.

In his talk last Wednesday, McNinch declared that there are more than 40,000 different rate structures now operating in the United States. He said he could not understand such extreme disparity. He said further that the engineers with whom he has conferred were also unable to discern any reason.

He hopes to obtain enough information from the national rate survey of which Stainback's work in Chapel Hill is a part, to find a scientific basis for electric rates.

Fraternity Scholarship Rating Here Is Second In Southeast

'Rather Remarkable,' Comments Bradshaw

Thirty-Six Southern Institutions Report to National Interfraternity Conference.

STAND NINTH IN AMERICA

The University is again this year second in fraternity scholarship among 36 institutions reporting from the southeast, according to the recent annual report of the National Interfraternity Conference, composed of national officers of all national fraternities.

As information released by this conference is confidential as to other institutions and as to individual standing of national fraternities, the standings of other institutions and of the individual fraternities can not be made public.

The basis of comparisons in the report is the distance of the fraternity scholastic average above or below the entire undergraduate average of the institution.

Above Undergraduates

"Rather remarkable in the country" is the comment of Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of students, on the record held by Carolina fraternities of having been for thirteen consecutive years above the undergraduate average in scholarship.

Carolina stands ninth in the nation among the institutions who submitted scholarship reports.

According to Dean Bradshaw, the University is one of the five most consistent institutions in the extent to which its fraternities excel the undergraduate scholarship average.

On 5-Year Basis

The reports, although made annually, are compiled on the basis of a period of time covering the preceding five years.

The following are excerpts from comment made by Dean Bradshaw on the conference's report:

"While there is no reason for complacency in this situation,

Rebecca Cushman Cancels Engagement for Tuesday.

Elizabeth Johnson, director of the Bull's Head bookshop, announced yesterday that no lecture program would be presented next Tuesday, contrary to previous report.

Rebecca Cushman, author of "Swing Your Mountain Gal," was scheduled to appear Tuesday but she notified authorities this week that she would be unable to fill the engagement.

NAVAL LAB GIVES CHEMISTRY GRANT

Chemistry Department Gets Donation for Special Research.

The United States Naval Research Laboratory of the Navy Department at Washington has made available to the University chemistry department a grant of money to carry on fundamental research on the thermodynamics of the lead-sulphuric acid storage cell, it was announced yesterday.

The research will be conducted under the direction of Dr. H. D. Crockford, an associate professor of physical chemistry in the University. He will be assisted by W. G. Sink of Lexington, who holds a fellowship at the University made possible by these funds.

Dr. Crockford has been employed by the United States Naval Research Laboratory at Washington for the past five years in connection with storage battery research. At present the Navy Department is maintaining three research fellowships, the other two being at the University of Illinois and Columbia University.

Infirmary Residents

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: C. W. Walker, W. E. Smith, Blair Holliday, T. D. Burnett, Janeth Younginer, Hester Barlow, J. R. Raper, W. N. Everett, Guy Phillips, Mrs. Cecil Pope, E. B. Peacock, and Mildred Moore.

Shy, Unaffected Zimbalist Scorns Eccentricities Of Fiction's Artists

Violinists of Fabled Temperament Once Existed, Musician Believes, But Have Disappeared with Other Romantic Notions; Should Concentrate on Technique, Not Mannerisms.

Efrem Zimbalist, the acclaimed violinist who played in Memorial hall Thursday evening, has absolutely no sympathy with the temperamental and weirdly dressed artist. "The violinists of fiction undoubtedly had a basis in fact," he went on to explain, "but fact has grown faster than fiction and I don't believe you will find many of this variety on the concert platforms today.

"A violinist who wishes to be always at his best cannot waste time with curious ways of dressing and the development of eccentric mannerisms. The practice of his instrument, the enlargement of his repertoire, the broadening of his musicianship—these are his problems. And they consume almost all of his time."

Has Several Hobbies

Zimbalist exemplifies his theory perfectly. He is not in the least affected, and even appears somewhat shy. He puts all of his abundant artistice temperament into his music; yet he is not limited to that one art. His hobbies carry him into the collecting of rare old books, oriental pieces, tapestries, and carved ivories.

Prizes Violin

His most prized possession is his violin, made by the master of all violin-makers, Stradivarius, when the old artist was 93. This instrument, made during Stradivarius' golden period, is now valued at $30,000.

After the performance, someone told Zimbalist how much he enjoyed the last encore, "The Swan." Zimbalist replied, "I think it is a very beautiful piece of music. When I play 'The Swan' I imagine that I am watching the great Pavlova." That was all; and yet perhaps it explains his greatness even more than his technical skill does.

GEOLOGISTS RECEIVE ROCKEFELLER GRANT

The geology department has received appropriations from the Rockefeller Foundation fund to make three field trips which will be undertaken during the coming holidays or during the Easter vacation.

Dr. W. F. Prouty, head of the geology department, Dr. G. R. McCarthy, and Dr. J. W. Huddle will conduct the field trips.

Tar-Mags Prepare For Battle With Piscatorial Yackety-Fins

Tar Heel-Magazine Husky Passers and Punters Look Good in Practice Scrimmage; Slaughter of Fishy Yackety-Fins Is Scheduled to Take Place Tuesday Afternoon at Intramural Field.

Chapel Hill, Dec. 77.—(PU)—With Larruping Lonnie Dill and Pussyfoot Page performing in great style, Coach William Xavius McDade's flashy Tar-Mag football aggregation went through a spirited scrimmage here today with 578,000 spectators, alternately freezing and roasting, on the sidelines to watch the Journalistic Jaguars tune up for their scrap with the Yackety-(now) Fins Tuesday afternoon.

Dill, pretty well pickled, tossed a forward pass to Swedish Stew Sechriest, great Tar-Mag hunchback, who purred through the bewildered reserves (R. O. T. C.) for a beautiful score. It was good for nine points.

"They" Look Lousy

The weak Yackety-(now) Fins gridders, pusillanimously puttering around on an adjacent field, looked lousy in their practice. Dirty Drane, tail-end and Captain, was stopped up all afternoon as he was thrown for loss after loss in his vaunted Durham five-points lateral reverse. Yackety-(now) Fin fans had better leave their megaphones at home Tuesday and bring a truck load of plungers if they hope to get that Drane working in top-form in the game.

F. F. S. A. E. Bahnson, good guard, also looked lousy, getting tangled up with Charlie "Creeping" Ivey every time he tried to scale the wall.

"They" Are Sissies

The slaughter of the Yackety-(now) Fin sissies is scheduled to take place Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock on intramural field. It was postponed a week when Manifold Gaskins, fishing tackle, was bitten by a crab near the Tropic of Capricorn.

"Wooden" Barnes, the Yackety-(now) Fin mentor, was pessimistic about the coming tilt.

PARAGRAPHICS

In the Americo-Japanese naval race, the winning country will probably be the fleet one.

The browsing-room boys were upset when they found that to browse means "to nibble." It's certainly food for thought.

We can't understand why wrestling comes in the winter-time. We thought it was a fall sport.

Framing a Bit Of Good Advice

The Phi, through its letter to the DAILY TAR HEEL published yesterday, raises the question of whether it did not have as much right to condemn the anti-war conference as that group did to condemn the R. O. T. C., or, in turn, as did the DAILY TAR HEEL to condemn the Phi. Nobody, least of all this paper, questions that right. However, it should not need repeating, this matter of common knowledge, that the Phi, being by nature a student organization, is subject to fair comment and criticism.

But enough of excommunication from all parties concerned. The Phi has its privileges; if at the same time it has incurred the criticism of a liberal campus, let the matter rest there.

Our only question at present is in the nature of a reminiscence of a very valid criticism of the Phi made by an old hand at the game of verbal pyrotechnics who understands the responsibility to the public of an open assembly. We refer to Professor Woodhouse, who when asked to act as critic for the Phi made a few remarks to the members warning against generalizations in public statements. If, therefore, the Phi requires a foot and a half of ten-point type to clarify its position on the all-embracing resolution condemning the anti-war conference, it appears that Professor Woodhouse's words might be embroidered into a sampler, framed, and hung over the heads of our Philanthropic representatives.

In the Beginning— .

Apropos of the usual breast-beating the state board of education has to contend with in the matter of selection of public school texts, we notice a letter to the editor in the News and Observer. It is particularly pertinent at this time since the board will select texts in the middle of this month:

> To the editor: My boy in the fifth grade asked me for 60 cents to buy a book he had to have. On the front it says "Science," but I have looked in the book and find it a book of lies, a few of which I will mention here. It says the earth was made millions of years ago. The sun and stars were made millions of years before the earth. I challenge any living person to prove this. It is no other than the works of the devil. He was a liar from the beginning and the author of lies.
> I strongly believe in the right kind of education. But when the teacher asks children these questions and they have to answer them out of a book of lies and we have to buy these in order for our children to pass grades in school . . . I for one say we have a bunch of devils running our public school system.
> The book of Genesis gives a complete description of creation. Read it, please. The earth was made first. Then the sun and stars and man was put in the world 4,004 years B.C., and Christ was born 1,984 years ago. In the beginning—God. Amen.

Fraternities Need a Boost

The National Interfraternity Conference's annual scholarship survey of fraternities showed the University again second among institutions reporting from the southeast, and that over a period of five years the average amount that fraternity grades here exceed the general undergraduate average is more than that of any of the other institutions reporting from this region except one.

This report might cause a great many fraternity men to smirk and "point with pride," as it were, but actually there is no occasion for complacency. From a study made here by the dean of students' office some years ago, there seemed to be no difference scholastically between groups of fraternity and non-fraternity men, provided the men were comparable in so far as preparatory work and intellectual aptitude were concerned. The higher average, then, must be accounted for by the fact that students financially able to join fraternities have as a rule been financially able to acquire better fundamental preparation for college, and by the fact that non-fraternity men often spend a lot of their time working, while fraternity men usually are able to utilize their time just about as they please.

Let the smirkers be content to stand on the consistently good fraternity average in the past; the thoughtful ones will see that better living conditions and extra costs should offer opportunities for fraternity men to raise their average above that of non-fraternity men. Fraternities which realize this field for improvement are laying the foundation for their future welfare, since in so far as universities are concerned, herein lies their greatest utility.

Bum Bum

Bummers to Durham, gentlemen without horses, as it were, are without honor. At least, that's what some of the bummingest bummers say.

It seems that the Yankee freshmen must learn some good old southern customs before the bummers catch up with their straying honor. You see, the "road code" is that the first man in line is the fellow who gets the first swat at the motorist who has brakes enough to stop. But the meanies from above the Mason and Dixon line are making the Tar Heels, Crackers, et al, feel awfully bad by elbowing subway-fashion to the fore and taking possession of the nice velvety back seat before you can say "Jefferson Davis."

Up in Tatallooskie county, Ohio, the fellows don't get in line; it's "first bum, first served." Around in Manhattan you have to fight not only for the ride but for the honor; only sissies come in last.

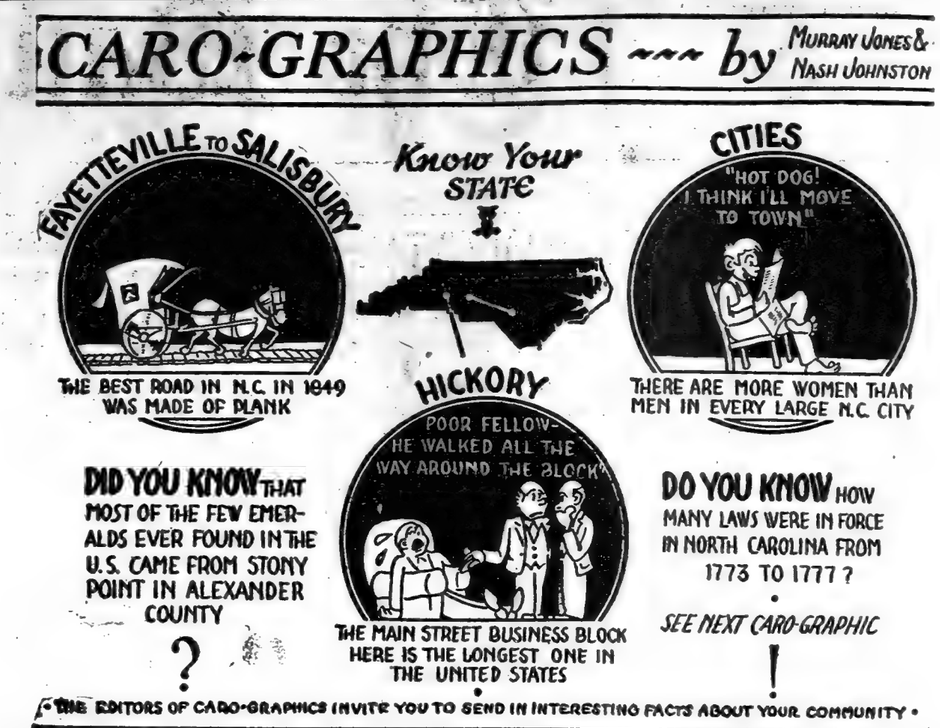
Durham is a nice little town and lots of people drive over there constantly, maybe to see the tobacco factories, maybe just to see. Anyway, with so many automobiles eating up the Chapel Hill-Durham speedway, it looks like there'd be room for everybody. Don't push, gentlemen, don't push; they also serve who only stand and wait.

It Takes Experience

Irvin S. Cobb, genial dispenser of humor and mint juleps, rushes to the breach. This time it is to assist an administration which has been floundering about in an effort to secure a satisfactory definition of "cawn" whisky. Mr. Cobb produced the following:

"Warning—Illicit corn liquor may easily be identified by these: It smells like gangrene starting in a mildewed silo; it tastes like the wrath to come; and when you absorb a deep swig of it you have all the sensations of having swallowed a lighted kerosene lamp.

"A sudden violent jolt of it has been known to stop the victim's watch, snap both his suspenders, and crack his glass eye right across—all in the same motion. . . . And if you must drink it, always do so while flat on the floor. Then you don't have so far to fall."



The administration said that the definition would be given "careful consideration."

Without meaning to be disrespectful, without meaning to be facetious, and most of all without meaning to be hyper-critical, we suggest that this is the sort of thing which makes the administration look slightly sheepish, when it has counted on prosy statistics and instead receives a gem like Mr. Cobb's.

We'll Listen

A large student audience heard Bishop Francis John McConnell yesterday morning. One of the finest speakers ever to address a local assemblage, Bishop McConnell held his student listeners throughout with his charming oratorical personality.

Bishop McConnell won his audience perfectly by being one of them and then counselled them from his experience. It is a delight to have real speakers visit the campus every once in a while to flush our cob-webby brains.

HAPPY DAYS FOR HARPO

The best vacation story which fits the print we've heard is the one which concerns Harper Barnes, former president of the student body, and the present director of Graham Memorial. "Harpo," who is listed in our own little social register — the student directory—under "Faculty and Administrative People" —couldn't get a cocktail in a Washington restaurant because the waiter thought he was a minor.

A MISSIS AS GOOD AS A MILE

Overheard in Lewis dorm by another former president of the student body, embryonic shyster Mayne Albright: "D'yu spell 'Mrs.' with one s or two? I ain't wrote a letter in so long I've forgot how."

GLORY BE

Enough time has elapsed since the University Club dinner the week-end of the Duke game to tell the one about Jim Cordon, who, in a genial mood, was representing his fraternity. Called upon to speak, Jim rose solemnly to his feet and said: "Mr. president—thank God I'm not here." He sat down after that.

VARSITY TWELVE

Shortly after the beginning of the third quarter of the Virginia game, a big black wooley dog wandered down from the Virginia side of Scott stadium onto the rain-soaked field. From the Carolina stands a drunk rose to protest in a loud voice that Virginia had 12 men on the field.

HIGH COST OF EDUCATION

Pat Gaskins boasts that several girls at St. Mary's school in Raleigh may be shipped for reading his last Finjan after the lights were supposed to be out.

BE SURE YOUR SINS

It was fairly obvious to one of the instructors in the Romance language department that the student whose paper he was reading had been copying another student's paper. Wondering from whom the paper had been copied, the instructor came to his last question, which was simply "Je m'appelle . . . " in answer to which the student, Richard Roe, was supposed to write his name. In Richard Roe's paper this question was copied too, and Richard Roe wrote: "Je m'appelle John Doe."

ZIMBOLISM

A lady not in school now asked Don Pope, one of few campus literati now extant, if he thought she'd be able to get a Student Entertainment passbook from somebody who wasn't going to the Zimbalist concert. "It'll be pretty hard to do," replied Pope thoughtfully. "I think everybody wil be going to hear the great pianist."

Music-loving, play-going Walter Terry found his fellow-members of the feature board had neglected certain aspects of their education pretty sadly. To a man, they declared that they thought Zimbalist was an instrument, a sort of offspring of the zylophone and the cymbols.

The concert was extraordinarily intelligible by comparison with the performance of Spaulding here a few years ago. We're still inclined to believe that his unforgiveable rendition of a difficult Bach concerto was more of a strain on the audience than the artist. While the Stradivarius was imitating the whole-range of musical instruments from an organ to a fife, virtually everybody got lost in the maze of the program, applauded at the wrong times, and grew increasingly conscious of how hard and uncomfortable those benches in Memorial hall are. We're glad Zimbalist took it for granted that the audience knew he was an accomplished technician; and played a concert on the violin without trying to be a symphony orchestra.

Fraternities Scholarship Rating Here Is Second

there is certainly no reason for alarm . . . .

"Although we can all take pride in our fine standing over the past five years, the more thoughtful students of the fraternity situation must realize that the influences of fraternity life on study habits and intellectual interests are capable of further improvement. Those fraternities which realize this and set to work on long-range plans with this end in view are undoubtedly laying a solid foundation for their own future."

Things are improving. Theatre patrons have quit going back and looking for the wad of gum they placed under the seat.—Atlanta Constitution.

Tar-Mags Prepare For Battle With Piscatorial Yackety-(now) Fins

"The Fins haven't been good censor last year," he remarked gloomily, "and the Yacketys are an annual washout."

The powerful Tar-Mags will run through their last practice before the game this afternoon at 4 o'clock on Intramural field. Rabid rooters will get their first squint at the starting eleven as they perfect their tricky Bahnson-Poole special play.

The spearhead of the attack will be "Hit-It" Hammer, rear-back. His running-mates will be Pussyfoot Page, one-threat back; "Poosh-em-up" Daniels, double-threater, and "Bungler" Bostick, triple-threater.

In the line are such stars as "Can't" Read, "Toast" French, I. M. Poe, U. Kahn, "Lawn" Sprinkle, "What-the" Eckert, and "Bunny" Rabb.

Last minute reports from the Tar-Mag camp have it that Doc Suss, dapper drawback, will be in shape for the game. He has been laid up for the past few days with creeping dandruff.

Tar Heel Wrestlers Will Open Season Here Against VPI Jan. 19

Grapplers Get Down to Serious Practice for Hard Season; Six Dual Meets.

MAKE TRIP TO W. AND L.

Freshman Team Expected to Be Strong; Tar Babies to Take On Five Opponents.

The announcement of an opening home match for both the varsity and frosh wrestlers on January 19 against V. P. I. increased the pepper at training yesterday. The squad eagerly awaits the opening of the season and is working extra hard in order to gain berths on the starting team.

The varsity dual schedule shows six meets with four of these to take place in the Tin Can. The grapplers will make their longest trip to Lexington, Va., to take on the championship Washington and Lee club.

Freshman Schedule

The yearling outfit will battle five opponents, meeting the freshman teams of the same schools on the varsity schedule, with the exception of Davidson.

Coach Quinlan expects a freshman club equal to last year's crack team which went through an undefeated season. He is pinning much of his hope on Claypole and Ford. Both of these men were finalists in the intramurals and come here with an enviable record in their respective prep schools.

Sophs on Varsity

The varsity squad will be composed mostly of sophomores who served on last year's frosh outfit in addition to several veteran varsity members who were not lost by graduation.

With the exception of the date of the Southern Conference tournament the schedule of the meets is as follows:

Jan. 19.—V. P. I., here.
Jan. 26.—N. C. State, here.
Feb. 2.—W. & L., there.
Feb. 9.—V. M. I., here.
Feb. 16.—Davidson, here.
Feb. 23.—Duke, there.

BOXERS WORKING FOR TOURNAMENT

Large Group of Likely Looking Candidates Preparing for Mit Bouts Three Days Away.

With the boxing intramurals just three days away the Tin Can is beginning to fill up with a group of likely looking candidates for pugilistic fame.

They stand around, some punching bags, others skipping rope and still others occupied in varied gymnastics; all are eager to learn enough in the few days that they have left so that they may be able to fight their way to the top.

Past intramuralists knowing the value of intensive training go about their jobs zealously. Former runners-up keep plugging along in the hope that this year of upsets might prove lucky for them, while last year's winners are confident that they shall lead their divisions once more.

Defending Champions

Last year's winners were: Page (Grimes) in the 115-lb class; Bynum (Sigma Nu) in the 125-lb class; Studdert (Mangum) in the 135-lb class; Kesselman (Manly) in the 145-lb class; Clayton (Manly) in the 155-lb class; Dunham (Swain Hall) in the 165-lb class; Ressler (Lewis) in the 175 lb class, and Alderman (Lewis) in the unlimited division.

Due to the excellence of the present crop of boxers, the prophesy has it that the forthcoming fights will be among the

FROSH HOOPSTERS TAKE FIRST REST

Tar Babies to Have Three More Drills Next Week Before Completing Work.

The freshman basketball candidates relaxed last evening and enjoyed their first rest since the opening of play some weeks ago. With but three more practices remaining before the long-awaited vacation rolls around, the 1934 workouts are approaching their competition, and the coming season appears to be just around the corner.

The opening clash with Wake Forest on January 8 is already looming before the earnest hoopsters, and with this in mind they are set to put everything into the remaining practice sessions.

To date, the entire squad has been drilled mainly upon the fundamentals of floor work, with nightly scrimmages between picked teams providing the outstanding feature. The coming play will probably see a few of the shining lights singled out for intensive work in preparation for the approaching encounters.

No Teams Selected

It is rather early to select teams as yet and Coach Skidmore has not ventured into that sport as yet, but promises to in the near future. Several performers have sparkled during previous sessions and seem slated for stardom with the frosh cage team. It would be difficult to select the first ten men, and to select a first five would verge upon being an impossibility.

A very few of the many that have burned the court to present are Pete Boone, stocky forward; Pete Mullis, shifty little basket-ringer; Joe Moss, "Red" Meroney, Foy Grub, and Earl Ruth. Outside of these there are several others who seemed destined for a birth on the first team and it remains only for Coach Skidmore to take the best from the good.

Next week finds the Tar Babies scheduled for but three drills, and even this is optional due to the rapidly nearing exams. However, once the holidays have faded into the background, consistent practice will be inaugurated and continued until they tangle with the Baby Deacons early next month.

Bull's Head Acquires Thirteen New Books

Thirteen new books have recently been added to the shelves of the Bull's Head bookshop, announced Elizabeth Johnson, director of the bookshop, yesterday.

The list of new books includes: "The Eve of Conflict" by George Fort Milton; "Brinkley Manor" by P. G. Wodehouse; "The World Outside" by Hans Fallada, the author of "Little Man, What Now," "Poems of Stephen Spender," "What I Like in Poetry" by William Lyon Phelps, "Creep, Shadow" by A. Merritt.

"February Hill" by Victoria Lincoln; "The Case of the Curious Bride" by Earl Stanley Gardner; "Innocence and Experience" — short stories by Phyllis Bottome, "Best Short Stories" by Edward O'Brien; "Rameses to Rockefeller"—book on architecture by Charles Harris Whitaker; "Fifth Avenue Bus"—a Christopher Morley omnibus; "Murder Calling" by David Whitelaw.

MEDYNSKY STARS IN BOXING DRILL

Diehl and O'Flaherty Work Out With Dolan; Levinson, Former Captain, Takes Fast Round.

Surpassing by far any exhibition he has presented this season, "Powerhouse" Jules Medynski, aspirant for the varsity 155 pound berth, battered his opponents from one corner of the squared circle to the other in yesterday's boxing practice.

Shmurak, game freshman heavyweight, was unable to cope with the lefts and rights that were thrown in his direction by Medynski. However, Alderman, heavyweight prospect, fared a little better, and succeeded in tying Medynski up somewhat.

With Connecticut Eddie Dolan furnishing the opposition, both Marion Diehl and Tommy O'Flaherty sparred two rounds in succession with the little left-handed bundle of dynamite. Dolan has been a great aid to Coach Rowe in the development of these boys.

Fisher Meets Opposition

Meeting with more competition than he has encountered so far this year, Joe Fisher had his hands full for two rounds with Cranmer Henderson. The peculiar style of Henderson baffled Fisher for a while, but he was beginning to find himself as the bell rang ending the second round.

Donning ring togs for the first time in many months, and entering the same ring in which he once covered himself with glory, as well as covering Carolina with glory, Marty Levinson, one-time captain of the Carolina leather pushers, boxed one fast round with Dick Bass. Levinson's name will long remain with those of us who saw his slambang settos with Bobbie Goldstein of Virginia.

Much interest is being centered in the approaching intramural tournament. The event is scheduled to get underway next Tuesday and, as usual, the winners in the respective classes will be rewarded with intramural medals. There is still some time left to come out for those that are interested.

FORM OF VARSITY CAGERS IMPROVES

Court Club Goes Through Long Scrimmage; Hard Work to Begin Next Week.

Showing gradual improvement day by day, the whole basketball squad was sent through a long scrimmage yesterday afternoon by Mentor Shepard on the main hardwood in the Tin Can.

The team regained some of its fine style of play which it displayed last season most of the time. The early season warming up and conditioning are nearing an end. Coach Bo Shepard will put the men through hard workouts next week prior to the holidays; and the team will report early from vacation to prepare for the Elon game just after the regular school term opens.

Ramsey on Varsity

Running on the first string quintet were Mel Nelson and Frank Ramsey, promising sophomore, at forwards; Jason Glace at his old position at center; and Jim McCachren and Paul Kaveny at guards. Captain Snooks Aitken, regular forward, was absent from drill, Ramsey taking his place.

Ramsey has been playing both guard and forward. Ben Blood, first reserve guard last season, reported late for drill and was run in at forward to work with Nelson.

With the first string and a reserve group taking time out, a second and third string took the floor and skirmished several minutes in an even battle. On the second group were Randy Cooner and Bill Moore at forwards, Murray Kanner at center, and Jim Hutchins and Tommy Irwin at the guards.

Two of the three basketball regulars back this year are from Charlotte. These boys are Captain "Snooks" Aitken, and Jim McCachren.

Major Schools Of Southeast Report Increase In Football Attendance

Four Biggest Games in Kenan Stadium During 1934 Drew Total of 72,000 While Last Year Only 60,000 Saw Four Most Important Tilts; Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech Show Decline.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 7.— (UP) —King Football continued to be the ruler of collegiate sports in the southeast with most of the major schools reporting increased attendance at games during the past 1934 season, according to a United Press survey.

North Carolina's four biggest games drew an estimate total of 72,000 compared to 60,000 last year, according to G. E. Shepard, assistant athletic director. The largest attendance this year was estimated at 31,000 at the Duke-North Carolina game. Shepard declared that attendance at their games this year has shown a marked improvement and has been much more uniform.

Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech were among the few major schools to show a decline in home attendance, while Florida's attendance remained unchanged from last year. Other universities reported greater crowds in the stadia.

Kingfish Helps Some

The fact that Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, "adopted" the Louisiana football team probably accounted for the increased attendance at some of the games. His junket to Nashville, Tenn., with most of the Louisiana student body as his guests, brought a gate of 20,000 fans at the Vanderbilt-Louisiana game. However, Vanderbilt's biggest crowd at home was the one which saw the Vanderbilt-Tennessee game.

The Tulane-Louisiana setto at Baton Rouge, where Tulane surprisedly defeated Long's team, drew a crowd of 31,000. The LSU-Southern Methodist game, the first on the schedule, attracted a crowd of 14,000, or 4,000 more than attended the opening game of the 1933 season. Louisiana officials reported that increased attendance marked the other home games.

Alabama Draws Well

Alabama, which travels to the west coast this month to play in the Rose Bowl game, drew larger crowds. Roy Marshall, Birmingham park board superintendent, said crowds increased at the Birmingham games of Alabama. The Alabama-Vanderbilt game on Thanksgiving had a crowd of 25,000; the Alabama-Tennessee game had 20,787; the Alabama-Georgia game drew 12,000.

Georgia Tech's poor showing during the season accounted for the drop in attendance at home games in Atlanta. Last season, 72,636 went to the four best games; this year 51,826 paid admissions.

Parsons Is Honored At Intramural Grid Banquet In "Cabin"

All-Campus Captain Receives Milk Bottle as Reward.

The campus championship Law School eleven feted its All-Campus captain, Tom Parsons, at a banquet last evening in the "Cabin." Coach "Clipper" Smith acted in the capacity of toastmaster.

Other men likewise honored were "Watt" Jones and Dan Bryan, All-Campus fullback and end respectively, and Johnny Williams, All-Dormitory center choice. Intramural Director Herman Schnell, who spoke on "Why Intramurals?", headed the invited guests.

Parsons Gets Gift

Just before the Law School anthem closed the session, the gift committee presented Captain Parsons with a token of their appreciation. The gift was a milk bottle with a nipple, which bore the inscription: "May this encourage your drinking in the right direction—not just down!"

The All-Campus selections also featured with speeches on the subject: "To what I attribute my success." Joe Mason's "unprepared-prepared" address, on "The variations in the Law School football systems throughout the nation," completed the speech-making.

Other invited guests included N. A. Townsend, representing the intramural officials; Brewster Grant, star end at Davidson last season; "Bucky" Harris, All-Campus quarterback; George Vick and Bob Wall, head cheerleaders; and Bob Floyd, who furnished the trainer for the championship game.

BUCK LEADS GRID TEAM IN AMOUNT OF TIME PLAYED

Although Lightest Man in Line, Sensational End Is Iron Man with 484 Minutes.

BARCLAY SECOND WITH 441

To the lightest man in Carolina's stout line this fall went the honor of being the "iron man" who put in the most playing time of any member of the squad.

The playing times have just been figured up and were announced yesterday by J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Jr., and Dick Lewis, the two student managers.

Leading all the other players was Dick Buck, wiry and rugged 173-pound sophomore flankman, who snagged the passes that enabled Carolina to beat Duke and Kentucky.

Buck played 484 out of a possible 540 minutes. He was in the full 60 minutes against Kentucky, State, Davidson, and Duke. Though injured the week before, he played 55 minutes against Virginia.

Captain Barclay Follows

Next to Buck came George Barclay, Carolina's All-American guard and peerless captain, who had 441 minutes to his credit.

Tom Evins, speedy tackle, was just one minute short of Hutchins' time. Herman Snyder, veteran blocking back, came close behind with 417, followed by Eddie Kahn, guard, with 397, and Babe Daniel, center, with 380.

Don Jackson led the halfbacks in the number of minutes played. His time was 283. Charlie Shaffer, who was laid up with injuries for three games but performed so brilliantly in early season that he still made All-Southern, was a close second

SEVEN TO ATTEND LINGUIST MEETING

Faculty Group to Represent University at Language Association Meeting Dec. 27-29.

Seven members of the University faculty will be official representatives from the University at the 51st meeting of the Modern Language Association of America in Philadelphia and Swarthmore, Penn., December 27, 28, and 29. The Modern Language Association is the ranking organization of its kind in America, and its annual meetings are attended by scholars and teachers from every university of prominence throughout the country.

Five members of the University faculty are officers in the various divisions of the association. Richmond P. Bond of the English department is secretary of the group which has as its province the philosophy and literature of the classical period. George C. Taylor is chairman of the division on Shakespeare, and is expected to be active in the formation of a Milton society, an undertaking proposed as a part of this session's program.

Secretary of English Section

George R. Coffman, head of the University English department, is the secretary of the entire English section. Ralph S. Boggs of the Romance language department here, is chairman of the committee on popular literature in the comparative literature division. Dr. J. C. Lyons of the Romance language department is secretary of the division on the Renaissance in comparative literature.

Two University professors are scheduled for addresses. N. B. Adams of the Romance language department will speak on "Siglo de Oro dramas in Madrid, 1820-1850," and Leonard B. Hurley of the North Carolina College for Women will speak on "A New Note in the War of the Literati."

A former member of the University English department, Howard Mumford Jones, now a professor at the University of Michigan, is chairman of the section on Victorian literature, and will also take an active part in the association meeting.

The meeting is held this year at Philadelphia and Swarthmore by invitation of Swarthmore College.

LEAGUE TO HEAR HENDERSON TALK

Math Head to Address Episcopal Young People on Peace.

Dr. Archibald Henderson will speak before the Young People's Service League of the Episcopal church tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in the first of a series of addresses by prominent University faculty members. His subject will be "World Peace."

Membership in the league or attendance at its Sunday night meetings is open to all college students and to high school upperclassmen. Once a month the program of night addresses and discussions will be varied by a social tea. Meetings are in the Parish house.

Dr. W. deB. MacNider will follow Dr. Henderson next week with a talk entitled "Religio Medici."

Pegg Essay Printed By French Journal

An article dealing with the rise of republicanism in France by C. H. Pegg, instructor in the history department, appeared in the September-October issue of the Annales Historiques de la Revolution Francais.

The feature was entitled "Sentiments Republicains dans la Presse Parisienne lors de la Fuite du Roi." Another article, "Sentiments Republicains dans la Presse Parisienne a Partir du Retour de Louis XVI Jusqu'au Rapport des Sept Commites," has been accepted for publication by the same journal in the near future.

The Annales Historiques de la Revolution Francaise publishes articles that contribute to an understanding of the age of the French Revolution, which it defines as extending from 1770 to 1830.

University Club Sponsors Plan To Show Campus Appreciation for Successful Year.

P. S. RANDOLPH IN CHARGE

Gold footballs will be awarded to the lettermen of the 1934 varsity team, coaches, and managers if plans launched yesterday by alumni, students, and townspeople are successful.

The move on the campus is being sponsored by the University Club in order to give the members of the student body a chance to show their appreciation to the football team for its successes during the past season.

Donation Boxes

Boxes for the individual donations will be placed in Graham Memorial, the Book Exchange, and at the Student Co-operative haberdashery.

Announcement was made yesterday that Claude W. Rankin, president of the Fayetteville alumni, was collecting donations from various graduates with which to purchase the gold awards.

Rankin's project is not restricted to Fayetteville alumni as he is active in collecting funds from all graduates and followers of the Tar Heels.

Two Dollar Maximum

The alumni are not accepting donations of over $2, and it was stated that all contributions over and above the necessary amount are to be returned.

P. S. Randolph is in charge of all collections from Chapel Hill alumni and townspeople. Donations may be left for him at the Student Co-operative haberdashery, and will also be applied to the purchase of the watch charms.

MUSICAL SOCIETY TO GIVE WINSTON 'FESTIVAL WEEK'

Choral Program with 150 Voices Will Launch Concert Series Tomorrow Night.

NOTABLES TO PARTICIPATE

Winston-Salem, Dec. 8.— A musical "Festival Week," to be presented by the North Carolina Symphony Society under the direction of Lamar Stringfield, will be inaugurated here tomorrow night when a choral society of 150 voices will be heard in the Reynolds Memorial auditorium.

During the week, all phases of musical activity will be concentrated here and displayed for promoters, organizers, and musicians in general. Many notables will be present, including as guest artists: Hans Kindler, Henry Hadley, Quinto Maganini, John Powell, and Robert Russell Bennett.

Five Concerts

There are five concerts scheduled, one to be given each evening, from tomorrow through Friday. After the initial concert by the festival chorus tomorrow, the North Carolina Symphony will play in a concert Tuesday night. Charles G. Vardell, guest composer-conductor, will share honors with Maestro Stringfield for the occasion.

The North Carolina Symphony will be heard again Wednesday night, with Composer Maganini conducting his compositions. A special children's concert by the symphony is on the program for Thursday.

The gala program on Friday evening by the symphony and guest artists will bring to a conclusion the scheduled musical program. Marie Maher, lyric soprano, will be heard at this final concert.

Poet-Philosopher Liked Green's Play But Was Confused

"I'm just a little feller, and I haven't had much schoolin', but if my poetry brings any pleasure or any hope to the people who read it, then writing it's worth while for me." James Larkin Pearson, North Carolina newspaper poet and philosopher, was speaking, on the occasion of his first visit to Chapel Hill.

He arrived in Chapel Hill Friday night, in time to attend a performance of Paul Green's new play, "Shroud My Body Down." Asked what he thought of it, Pearson said: "I thought it was beautiful, but I couldn't understand it. I didn't know what Mr. Green's characters were motivated by."

Pearson believes that another war may be looming on the horizon, although he hopes not. He states that none of the people in any country want war, and places the blame for wars on ambitious statesmen, and selfish makers of munitions. "If the munition-makers could realize that war destroys profits, then the traffic in arms will stop.

"If all the money that was wasted in the last war could be spent on education for the people," said the farmer-poet as his eyes swept around the ornate rotunda of the University library, "there could be a library like this here one in every county in the United States."

Benediction Of Tiny Tim Will Herald Christmas Season Once Again Tonight

Professor Koch Will Present Annual Reading of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol"; Quartet to Render Old Yuletide Songs.

"God bless us everyone!" said Tiny Tim, whose timeless toast will ring clear again tonight when Professor Frederick H. Koch reads once more Dickens' immortal ghost story, "A Christmas Carol," in Memorial hall.

Koch will renew his reading of the tale of old Scrooge and Marley at 8:30 p. m., after a half-hour program of quiet organ music by William Miller, organist for Memorial hall. Tonight's will be Koch's 107th reading of the "Carol."

Dean R. B. House will extend Christmas greetings to the University students and the people of Chapel Hill in introducing Professor Koch.

First Reading, 1905

Since his first informal reading at the University of North Dakota in 1905, he has re-told the story each year at the Christmas season for all manner of audiences—from Dakota to New England and the south, in towns, cities, and schools.

For tonght's performance, special lighting and stage effects have been arranged by Samuel Selden, technical director of the Carolina Playmakers. P. L. Burch of the University buildings department will furnish materials for the setting.

Old English carols will be rendered by the Chapel Hill Christmas quartet, as has been done in previous years. The quartet is made up of Dr. and Mrs. Gustave Harrer and Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence.

Dean Francis F. Bradshaw has been in charge of general arrangements for the reading.

John W. Parker of the University extension department will assist Selden with the lighting effects.

After Professor Koch's appearance here he will read the "Carol" at the State theatre in Raleigh Sunday night, December 23. His reading at Raleigh is sponsored annually by the News and Observer.

NATIVITY PLAY IS STAGED TODAY

Playmakers to Present Spann's Adaptation of Old German Drama of Christ's Birth.

Under the direction of Dr. Meno Spann of the German department of the University, the Carolina Playmakers will present an adaptation of an old German Nativity play at the theatre this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The drama, which tells of the birth of the Christ-child, was adapted by Dr. Spann from a fifteenth century nativity play.

Players

Included in the cast are Spann, Juanita Honeycutt, Urban T. Holmes, Bob Robertson, William Olsen, Mrs. Loren MacKinney, Mrs. Ernest Mackie.

Margaret McCauley, Eston Ericson, Jesse Parker, Walter Terry, Gurney Briggs, and James Dees.

The Playmakers' staff for this production is made up of Louis Hagood in charge of the lighting, Rene Prud'hommeaux, technical assistant, Mrs. Loren MacKinney in charge of the music, and Oramae Davis, costume director.

U. S. Agents Arrest 416 In Drugs Clean-up

Arrests in Nation-Wide Drive May Total 1,000 by Morning.

Washington, Dec. 8.— (UP) —Federal agents today smashed drug rings from coast to coast in the country's biggest drive against the illicit narcotics traffic.

Reports from raiding parties to headquarters here, up to 5 p. m., showed 416 persons had been arrested. With raids continuing through the night it was expected that the number arrested might approach a thousand.

Liberal Arts Seniors

All liberal arts seniors who have not checked their records with Mrs. Ray and have not applied for their degrees will report at the office of the dean of the college of liberal arts tomorrow.

Y. M. C. A. DELEGATION

All members of the Y. M. C. A. deputation to the state "Y" meeting in Raleigh today are requested to meet at 9 a. m. at the Y. M. C. A. building.

LIBRARY OFFERS JUVENILE EXHIBIT

Display for Children's Book Week Is Arranged by Class In Book Selection.

A display of children's books has been arranged in the exhibit cases of the library by the students of the library school under the direction of Nora Beust. This is the first of three projects to be prepared this year by the class in book selection.

The presentation of juvenile fiction, which represents a phase of Children's Book Week, is arranged as follows.

Tots to 'Teens

The first case offers a collection of books for children under six years of age. It includes the Toy Book Caravan, a parade of story book characters, gathered in England by Mrs. May L. Becker of the New York Herald Tribune.

An exhibit of books for intermediate-age boys and girls is found in the next case. The books concern fairy tales and children of other lands, and around them is perched a variety of dolls from foreign lands donated by the Durham Public Library.

The third case displays books representative of the habit interests of boys and girls in the 'teens.

H. D. Wolf to Discuss Aid for Unemployed

Prfessor H. D. Wolf will address the North Carolina Club at its meeting in the library at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. He has the subject, "Unemployment Insurance and Economic Security."

Professor Wolf will leave shortly on a leave of absence to serve on a state commission for the study of unemployment insurance. The public is invited to attend the meeting.

STATE 'Y' GROUP TO HEAR GRAHAM

All-Day Conference in Raleigh Today Will Also Hear Rev. Stewart.

President Frank Porter Graham of the Greater University will speak today at the all-day meeting of the state Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. C. A. conference in Raleigh.

Reverend Donald Stewart, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Chapel Hill, will also be one of the speakers on the program.

The University will be represented at the conference by six of the Y. M. C. A. leaders on the campus, according to an announcement made by J. D. Winslow, president of the University organization.

Carolina Deputation

This deputation will be composed of President Winslow, Donald McKee, Billy Yandell, Henry Allison, Paul McKee, and Warren Haddaway.

The Y. M. C. A. of the University at Raleigh will act as host to the delegates at the meeting today. The Raleigh organization is headed by Carter Williams.

J. D. Winslow and Francis Fairley of the local Y. M. C. A. are president and secretary respectively of the state-wide organization.

A. S. C. E. CHAPTER TO HEAR LECTURE

Hetch-Hetchy Water Supply Activities to Be Illustrated.

An illustrated lecture on the Hetch-Hetchy water supply and power of the city of San Francisco will be presented to members of the civil engineering school at 7:30 p. m., tomorrow in 219 Phillips hall.

The lantern slides are furnished by the national organization of the American Society of Civil Engineers and portray the functions of the power plant in San Francisco.

J. A. Westbrook, student in engineering, will address the group in connection with the lecture, and will describe the various slides.

Metzenthin to Address St. Mary's Students

Professor Will Explain Present-Day Germany Tonight.

On the invitation of the newly organized Deutsche Verein at St. Mary's Junior College in Raleigh, Dr. E. C. Metzenthin of the German department will address the students there on the topic, "An Attempt to Interpret Present-Day Germany."

As chairman of the Germanic section of the N. C. Education Association and as a member of the state committee for the new curriculum, Dr. Metzenthin is actively interested in the promotion of German teaching in the colleges of North Carolina.

T.B. SEALS DRIVE OPENS TOMORROW

Drive Director Declares 60 Cases Of Tuberculosis in Chapel Hill Must Be Fought.

The sale of Christmas seals to raise funds for the fight against tuberculosis will begin here tomorrow, Mrs. A. S. Jordan, publicity director for the seal-sale drive here, announced yesterday.

"There are, here in Chapel Hill," said Mrs. Jordan, "between 50 and 60 cases of active tuberculosis among people who must be helped from public funds."

"The purchase of Christmas seals," she added, "should not be considered an act of public charity, but rather a means of obtaining health insurance."

Disease Expensive

Mrs. Jordan said that statistics show that tuberculosis cuts two and one-half years from the average life of the individual. If each individual added only $100 annually to the wealth of the community, the cost of tuberculosis to the community would be $250 per person.

In reality, however, the economic cost is much higher for tuberculosis takes most of its victims from those between the ages of 15 and 44, the most productive period in the life span.

Mrs. Jordan urges the public to buy Christmas seals liberally and to invest in this reliable form of health insurance.

Church's Stolen Silver Has Great Historical, Little Intrinsic Value

Communion Collection of Episcopal Church Was Presented Mostly By Previous Generations; Melted Down, Valued at About $20.

The Communion Silver stolen from the vestry of the Episcopal church here last week was valued by the church because of the historic interest of the pieces. They all have great significance for members of the congregation, because most were given many years ago.

The oldest pieces taken were the old chalice and paten, each of which bore the inscription "The Chapel of The Cross, 1850." The chalice was given in memory of Dr. and Mrs. John Manning, by their children, and was highly valued. The silver cruet that was taken was given to the church by Bishop Cheshire in memory of his wife, Annie Webb Cheshire, with whom he had come as a young man to his first charge here, in 1878.

In Constant Use

The lavabo, or silver bowl, which is missing, was given in 1928 in memory of Seabury Daniel Thorpe, a student who was on the Student Vestry of the church, and who died suddenly in that year. All of the pieces of silverware that were stolen were in constant use every Sunday, and had been used for many years.

The thief evidently knew his silver, stated Rev. A. S. Lawrence, rector, because he took only those articles that were sterling, leaving all plated ware behind. Also, he did not molest any thing else in the church, even leaving untouched half a bottle of wine which was there. The actual value of the articles was about $200, but the value of the silver if melted down would be only about $20, it was estimated by Rev. Lawrence.

The church feels the loss deeply, because of the sentimental value of the articles, Rev. Lawrence stated, and will be glad to give a reward to any information leading to conviction of the guilty party and recovery of the silver.

'Y' CABINETS END QUARTER'S WORK TOMORROW NIGHT

Junior-Senior Section Will Evaluate Work of Past Quarter And Make Plans.

SOPHS TO DISCUSS WAR

The University Y. M. C. A. cabinets will meet in the "Y" building tomorrow night at 7:15 o'clock to conclude work for the fall quarter.

The cabinets have been discussing matters of war and peace during the quarter and Fred Weaver, sophmore, will end the series of lectures with a talk to the second year group tomorrow night on "The League of Nations."

Junior-Senior Cabinet

The junior-senior cabinet will view critically all the work that they have accomplished thus far this year. In their discussion they will attempt to evaluate their study with respect to its effect on the campus and on members of the organization.

All members are urged to attend tomorrow night's session in order to assist in forming a plan of action.

To Plan Work

An outline of next quarter's work will probably be decided upon, according to J. D. Winslow, president of the Y. M. C. A. Don McKee of the sophomore cabinet was responsible for the arrangement of the fall quarter's study.

The freshman friendship council will meet in Gerrard hall tomorrow night at 7:15 o'clock. This will be their last meeting for the year and winners of the theatre passes will be announced. A program for tomorrow night's meeting will be announced in assembly tomorrow morning.

Bookshop Committee Will Reward Year's Best Book Collection

Bull's Head Advisory Committee Wishes to Encourage Students to Buy More Books.

The Bull's Head Advisory Committee will offer a prize of ten dollars to the student who buys the best collection of books during the present school year. It is not required that all the books be bought at the Bull's Head, nor is there any specified number of books which makes a student eligible for the contest.

With the aim of encouraging students to buy more books, the Advisory Committee will inspect all collections entered in the contest some time in the spring quarter, awarding the ten dollars to that student whose collection, which must have been made during the present school year, is adjudged best.

Includes All Literature

The books will not be judged from the standpoint of bindings, or first editions, or limited editions, but from their content and authorship alone. The books need not be best-sellers, or printed in the present year, but may include the whole range of literature in all languages.

The members of the committee are: Dr. G. R. Coffin, chairman, Dean R. B. House, Harry Comer, R. B. Vance, R. B. Downs, A. M. Jordan, T. E. Hinson, W. B. Jenkins, G. L. Paine, W. T. Couch, and H. D. Wolf.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Union Board of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is printed daily except Mondays, and the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays. Entered as second class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price, $3.00 for the college year.

PARAGRAPHICS

Radical thinking may be the voice of human demand, but who ever heard a radical demand anything human?

"Wolf Will Speak Before N. C. Club." What did he do, get through the door?

We see where the Navy recruiting station needs two more Negroes. War emphatically has its darker side.

Inefficiency Of a Protest

The recent decision of the Supreme Court compelling two students, sons of Methodist ministers, to take military training at the University of California can be chronicled as just another loss for the conscientious objector to war. The mere fact that one more protest against war has been registered hardly entitles any pacifist to call the decision a moral victory. Nor can the decision of the nine old men be questioned on grounds other than the inconsistency displayed in the opinion that the land-grant school has the choice of giving military training, while the student has no choice in the matter of taking it. Our own reaction to the case is that it proves, more forcibly than ever, the futility of protest to war via the conscientious-objection route.

There has been a lingering doubt in our mind as to the sincerity of many of the so-called conscientious objectors. This particular case does not support that doubt, since the two students involved were, after all, the sons of ministers and in all likelihood had every reason that environment and association could supply them with conscientiously to object to war. In the numerous other cases that have come up before the courts, especially as appeals to higher courts, however, there is some reason to doubt whether or not the conscientious-objection principle is not an all-too-convenient wedge of entrance for the pacifist into the court system.

It is a natural avenue away from the compulsion of military training, arising under the constitutional guarantee protecting the integrity of the individual's religious beliefs. Whether it is being abused—of that no proof can be given.

One thing is certain, however. It is not an effective means of protest against war. Instead of objection to war on grounds of religion (little enough there is of it in this day and time), students must adopt an unqualified stand against it on the grounds of ethics and common sense. While this might completely exclude any hope of legally sustaining the protest, it would at least be a more candid argument against war.

University's Contribution

While there has been some post-morteming of the North Carolina work that was awarded the Mayflower Cup this year, from the University's point of view the important thing is that two of the leading contenders for the award were the scholarly handiwork of two of our faculty members, Phillips Russell and Erich Zimmermann. The difficulty of decision between their books vouches for the value of their contribution and, ultimately the University's, to the state.

Subjective Poll Results

The Literary Digest, nation's unofficial poll-taker, will distribute ballots to students of 150 leading American colleges early next month, to determine undergraduate feeling on the matter of war and peace.

The Digest poll will funnel student opinion into a concentrated influence instead of a weak, disseminated protest against war. We take for granted, of course, that the opinion as represented will be of the peace nature; this is obviously the train of student thought as manifested in the anti-war movements.

But we feel that the only actual result toward the furtherance of a national policy outlawing was will be in the instigation of thought on the part of youth, not in the representation of their opinions advocating peace to the world at large. People have been crying peace for centuries but the most rabid criers are by nature the most rabid arms-toters when gentlemen like Mr. Hearst begin columnizing and headlining about the glory of the battlefield.

The college students gain, however, by crystallizing their unanimous viewpoints on the question; even these, on the other hand, are not immune to propaganda. Let the straw vote tell the nation what the rising generation believes; but our hope is that it realizes the more fundamental object in arousing the lethargic in the pursuit of personal stimulation on the program.

Football As an Index

Increased attendance at King Football's annual fall pageant is a significant condition.

Of course, attendance varies with the quality of the team which a supporter goes to see. But the fact that opening games drew more people in most instances is a clear index of the increased ability of the football population to "shell out" for a Saturday afternoon's gridiron feast.

Viewed economically, football is a luxury and an increase in the spending for luxuries shows a definitely increased financial stability. But in many southern states football on Saturday has become a necessity, almost as much a part of the southern gentry's living schedule as three meals a day. This assertion, however, affects only a certain portion of the middle class but it is nevertheless not without basis.

On the whole, most people admit that southern football this year was particularly good, with a number of outstanding teams. Colored in our opinions as we are, in light of the Tar Heels' great showing, we feel that spectators really got their money's worth in most gridiron clashes during the past season. We would like to think that football, in its own simple way, is doing its part in getting the ball rolling toward increased national prosperity, not only in boosting the morale of the citizenry but also in giving employment through increased receipts to those whose occupations carry them to the stadia.

Let Them Understand

While this may be in the nature, somewhat, of a rushing season post-mortem, correspondence with other schools possessing fraternity systems similar to ours has brought to our mind a major discrepancy in the attitude toward the serious problem of becoming a Greek man here.

Although for the past few years the Freshman Handbook has been remarkably complete and concise, it has failed to discuss satisfactorily the fraternity situation. True, the twenty-odd lodges are listed with their personnel in brotherhood, but the facts surrounding each, facts which assume the economic rather than the spiritual side of its existence, have been utterly neglected.

Freshmen should know how much each fraternity will cost, in dues, rent, board, and social taxes. They should hear a general discussion of the advantages of fraternities as a whole, advantages governed by the size, interests, and activities of the groups.

The most pathetic voice heard on a college campus is that of a disillusioned fraternity man whose choice was unfortunately disadvantageous, either economically or socially. The Handbook could ameliorate to a degree conditions of discontent.

Snow Bond

Snow is a delightful institution. It may be cold and it may get down your coat-collar, but the pretty little white flakes are a friend to man. Everybody has a good time because nobody is any better than anyone else when Old Man Winter buries you in his white coat.

This old campus, usually eulogized as verdant and dreamy, assumes an even more beautiful aspect in winter's blanket. There's no getting around it: a college offers the most sympathetic and ideal environment in American life and snow adds to that environment a touch of philosophic atmosphere imbedded with the comforting theory that, cold or warm, life's a wonderful thing, after all.

(Beg pardon, where is this snow, anyway?)

THE THEATRE

By WALTER TERRY

The critic is hard put to analyze at first sight a drama of such complexity as Paul Green's "Shroud My Body Down." We are told no story; yet we see a moving theme, a theme gaining strength through the instruments of poetry, fantasy, and music, building the play into an operatic whole. It is the touch of music that gives us the key to Mr. Green's new development. Green has come from the folk play to the symphonic folk drama, and will not be satisfied until he has created a folk opera.

A mood of Maeterlinck fantasy enacted by O'Neill characters is, perhaps, an interesting experiment, but was it necessary for the playwright to weaken such a dramatic combination by obscurity of writing? Green's play kept the audience in such a state of bewilderment, that a full appreciation of the playwright's experiment was hardly possible. The critic by no means worships at the altar of Paul Green, but he does respect his daring in experimentation, and in the dramatic pattern of the play.

His characters are interesting and in some cases understandable. Out of a farmer he has built a Titan, who by his own power destroyed himself. Out of a girl-child with the whimsicality of an elf, he has developed a woman. He has shown us a seer with the understanding of age and its accompanying brutality.

But it was the direction of Sam Selden that breathed Theatre into this curious play. Selden maintained through simplicity the three important features of every drama: proportion, picture, and vitality.

Selden showed excellent judgement in his selection of the cast. Miss Fowler Spencer, a newcomer to the Playmakers stage, was an engaging and careful actress in the role of Lora. Miss Spencer's voice was naturally adapted to the part. To maintain the dual personality of Lora with its childlike and, at the same time, mature elements, would test the ability of a finished actress, and it is to Miss Spencer's credit that she, an amateur, should successfully conquer so difficult a task.

It is a pleasure to see an actor with the assurance and obvious experience of Mr. Baumstone. In the part of Tapley, the excellence of the interpretation was marred only by Mr. Baumstone's voice, which instead of having the harshness of age, had rather the fullness of youth. Perhaps he felt that roughness of tone would detract from the poetry of his lines.

Miss McMullan, Mr. Nachtmann, and Dan Hamilton gave fine interpretations of their characters, and maintained the proportion of the play by not over-emphasizing the importance of their parts. Miss Bell was not the Lady Jane that the play demanded. Her voice was ill-suited to the part and her gestures were often unsure. The rest of the cast was adequate and well handled.

The settings were splendid, and well in keeping with the daring of Green's dramatic experiment. The lighting complemented the excellence of the settings, creating a picture that the mood of the play demanded.

The music, an intrinsic part of this drama, would have woven itself beautifully and naturally into the mood of the play had the orchestra executed it better. Although the scoring was not always good, the melodies themselves were haunting and mystical, completing the pattern of the play.

"Germany's Peace Record" Will Be Topic of Address Tuesday.

Wilfred Evans will speak at a supper meeting of the American Association of University Women Tuesday at 7 p. m., in the Episcopal Parish house.

He will talk on the subject, "Germany's Peace Record." Evans is well informed on the subject, since he lived in Germany for three years before and after the revolution, and for a time was political secretary to the Kaiser's chaplain.

The supper will cost 50 cents. Members of the association who have not yet made reservations may call Mrs. U. T. Holmes.

LIBRARY ACQUIRES POEMS OF SLAVE

Newspaper and Geneaology Collections Are Also Secured.

The University library has made additions to its collection of valuable books. Of special interest are the collection of poems of a Chapel Hill Negro slave, George Hortin, and a rare 1722 edition of John Lawson's "Carolina."

A collection of North Carolina newspapers of the reconstruction period, and a valuable genealogical collection compiled by Stewart H. Hill, class of '96, constitute other rare volumes added to the library's archives.

Mural Boxers To Meet In Big Tourney Tuesday

Bouts Set for Tin Can; Many Entries Sign In All Weights.

Necessary to Weigh In Tomorrow at Emerson Field.

Tuesday is the date; the Tin Can is the place; and intramural boxing is the event. Barring an unforeseen cyclone the much heralded intramurals will get underway on the above mentioned afternoon, and they should supply some blood-curdling slugging bees which are sure to send quite a few of the spectators away with bad cases of high blood pressure.

When two pugilists stand toe to toe in the center of the ring hammering away at each other, a human being can not help but let loose his aroused feelings and consequently those happening to be on the outside of the Tin Can while the intramurals are going on, will be led to believe, due to the war whoops, that an an Indian tea party is taking place inside.

But whichever way you look at it, Indian tea party or Carolina boxing intramurals, the show is bound to be plenty hot and with the present spell of cold weather the bouts are not only interesting but practical.

Any of the would-be champions who still hold the desire of displaying their wares in the ring may do so by reporting to Herman Schnell at Emerson field tomorrow between 4 and 6 p. m., at which time the weighing in will take place.

Of last year's winners, only Page in the 115-lb class and Clayton in the 155-lb class have not returned to the University, but it not likely that any of the champs will defend their respective crowns since they all have gathered excess avoirdupois since last fall. However, Tuesday should find many of them in there trying to cop the medal in higher weight divisions.

GOLDEN GLOVES BOXING TOURNEY TO START JAN. 2

Annual Amateur Mass Scrapping Planned by Charlotte Paper; Will Last Four Days.

TO BE AT QUEEN CITY

The largest amateur boxing tourney in the state will get underway in Charlotte on January 2 and will continue for four days. This is the annual Carolinas Golden Gloves.

This year the Goodfellows Club is sponsoring the meet with the Charlotte Observer taking their part of the responsibility as they have done in the past years.

The Golden Gloves is quite an affair, attracting boys from all over the state. Every weight class is held from the 118-lb up to the heavyweight. The tourney is worked on the elimination basis, with everything climaxing in the grand finals on the night of Jan. 7 after two days' intermission.

Exciting Fighting

Last year the fighting was very close and exciting, but, quite unusual in large competitive games of this kind, there was hardly any kicking on the officials' decisions. Packed houses saw most of the bouts, especially the finals.

Several Carolina pugs participated in the bouts last year, and this year it is hoped some of the frosh can make the trip down to the Queen City to scrap. It is also rumored that Platt Landis, former Tar Heel ace boxer and Southern Conference champ, will enter this year.

PHANTOMS BEGIN STIFF PRACTICE AFTER DAY REST

Next Week Will Open Season of Long and Hard Work; Return Early.

BATTLE ELON HERE FIRST

Coach Bo Shepard's White Phantoms took a day off yesterday, but will return to hard work next week in preparation for the 21-game schedule which faces them.

The basketeers will stop practice long enough to take final exams, go home, kiss their mothers, visit their sweethearts, and then return to practice before the opening game with Elon January 3.

Following the Elon game on Thursday night, after the return from the holidays, the Tar Heel quint will journey to Charlotte where they will play the Davidson Wildcats Saturday. Action will be resumed here at the Tin Can on the following Tuesday with the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest offering the opposition.

Strong Elon

Coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker, Elon mentor, boasts the return of a complete team of last year's regulars. Walker is recognized as a fine coach, and his fighting Christians are expected to give the Tar Heels plenty of competition.

Led by Captain "Snooks" Aitken, Coach Shepard has picked a tentative first team composed of Captain Aitken and Mel Nelson, forwards; Jim McCachren and Paul Kaveny, guards; and "Jason" Glace, center. Frank Ramsey, sophomore, and Ben Blood, reserve, are close behind in the race for first string starting berths.

Notre Dame Trounces Scrapping Trojans, 14-0; Tennessee Vols Take 19-13 Decision Over L. S. U.

Mike Layden Stars With Shakespeare

Ramblers Get Hot to Outplay Southern California Which Misses Chances to Tally.

"COTTON" MISSES GOAL

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 8.—It was a case of brother help brother here this afternoon as Mike Layden's pair of touchdowns in the opening half led Elmer's Notre Dame Ramblers to a stirring 14-0 victory over Southern California.

However, it was the grand all-around work displayed by Bill Shakespeare in the backfield and the inspired play of the forward wall, led by Robinson and Captain Firro, that halted the Trojan attack.

The underdogs of Troy received a glorious opporunity right at the start as Notre Dame fumbled on its own 34-yard line. Watkins and Warburten smashed to the 16-yard line. The Rambler wall held and Warburten finally attempted a field goal, but the oval went wide of its mark.

Ten minutes later, with Notre Dame in possession, first down, on its own 49, Bill Shakespeare dropped back and hurled a long pass into the arms of Layden, who was waiting on the Trojan double stripe, for the first score.

Midway through the second period Notre Dame started a powerful drive that carried it to first down on the Southern Cal 2-yard mark. A line plunge took Layden over for his second six-pointer.

South Organized Big Sports Circle Forty Years Ago

First Formal Association Was Launched in Atlanta on December 22, 1894.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 8.—(UP)—Southern intercollegiate athletics soon will observe its 40th anniversary.

The first formal intercollegiate association was launched Dec. 22, 1894, at a conference in Atlanta at the historic Kimball House. The original Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association was formed at that conference.

Football wasn't the collegiate game at that time, but baseball apparently was the problem. For the purpose of organization the conference was to end the "evils" of baseball as conducted entirely by the students.

That conference took in lots of territory, for the University of Texas was a member from 1895 to 1906.

The Southern Intercollegiate Conference, later known at the Southern Conference, was organized at a meeting in Atlanta

Vaughan's Passing to Rose Features Win

Vols Get Early Lead But Huey Longites Stage Comeback To Knot Count.

KINGFISH NOT PRESENT

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 8.— A heavy bombardment of forward passes from the nimble fingers of Vaughan led the Volunteers of Tennessee to a thrilling 19-13 victory over Huey Long's L. S. U. eleven here this afternoon.

Maybe it was the absence of the "Kingfish" that brought on the defeat, but it could not be denied that the sharp-shooting Vaughan was responsible for a great deal of the defeat.

It was early in the game that this flashy Vol halfback stepped back to his own 35-yard line and passed to right end Rose for the opening score. The Vol's added another tally as Sansell crossed the double stripe. The try for the extra point was good.

However, the L. S. U. team struck back to tie the game up at 13-all for the half. Yates crashed through for the first, and McCall passed to Siglio for the second.

From this point on, the game was a dogged battle with both teams striving for a break. In the second half the deadly passing combination of Vaughan and Rose again rose to the heights and send Tennessee into a 19-13 lead which it held until the expiration of the contest to add another broken heart for the down-state dictator.

Old Liner Hoopsters Face Tough Schedule; Good Material Lacking

Terps to Battle Indiana and Ohio State in Opening Tilts; Regular Court Season Begins in January; Coach Shipley Possesses Good Record to Uphold; Only One Regular Back.

College Park, Md., Dec. 8.—H. Burton Shipley, beginning his 11th season as coach of the University of Maryland basketball, is getting his charges ready for a tough 18-game schedule with about the hardest task on his hands since he took the helm back in the season of 1923-24. That was the first season that Maryland put basketball on a real basis and Ship proceeded to put it firmly among the leaders.

Shipley in the past ten years has won 117 and lost 53 games during the regular season, a remarkable record considering the caliber of opposition. This is an average of .630 and Shipley will find it difficult to live up to that mark this year.

Maryland steps into hot competition at the outset, entertaining Indiana December 20 and Ohio State December 29, and then beginning its series of other tilts early in January.

Bernie Buscher, who played guard last year but who may be shifted to forward, is the only 1933-34 regular left. Four others, three of them lettermen, are left from last season, including Vic Willis, tall center; Ray Yowell, forward or center; and Norwood Sothoron, guard.

There are only seven others on the squad, with Andorka, Keller, and Waters, all sophomores, being the most promising. Fred Scheels, a forward who was out last year for a while, also may prove a valuable pinch-hitter.

While Shipley has reached no definite conclusions as to his starting team he has had Buscher and Waters, forwards; Willis, center, and Andorka and Keller, guards, working as his tentative first quint. This array, two juniors and three sophs, lacks greatly in experience and the Terps may have their difficulties, particularly early in the season.

The Terps' schedule is as follows:

Dec. 20—Indiana here.
Dec. 29—Ohio State here.
Jan. 2—West Virginia here (tentative).
Jan. 4—South Carolina here.
Jan. 8—V. M. I. here.
Jan. 11—Duke here.
Jan. 16—Washington College here.
Jan. 18—North Carolina here.
Jan. 23—Johns Hopkins here.
Jan. 30—Navy there.
Feb. 3—Virginia here.
Feb. 5—St. John's here.
Feb. 12—Catholic U. there
Feb. 14—Virginia Tech here.
Feb. 20—Virginia there.
Feb. 26—Johns Hopkins there.
Mar. 2—Richmond U. here.
Mar. 11—Georgetown here.

CAPTAIN GIDDINS TAKES WORKOUTS WITH MIT MATES

Alderman Scraps with Captain in Short Drill; Fisher Looks Good in Practice.

PROSPECTS APPEAR GREAT

The boxing front of the Tin Can, though not showing much quantity, afforded the spectators with an excellent view of two of the outstanding veterans, and last year's intramural champion who has been improving steadily of late. The one bout of the day saw Captain Sam Giddins boxing defensively against Lammie Alderman, endeavoring to teach the latter some of the ring tricks that he has learned through his three years fighting for Carolina.

"Slippery" Joe Fisher was down at the Tin Can for a short while looking to be in fine fettle as he hammered the punching bag around and went through other boxing gymnastics. They say that Joe was touched but three times last year as his superb boxing ability carried him through the season undefeated.

Late Bulletin

Michigan State closed its most successful season on the gridiron in many years yesterday with a 26-13 triumph over a hard fighting Texas A. & M. combine. The lone setback on the winners' record came at the hands of Syracuse University.

Kentucky Colonels Enter Violent Dispute On Corn Whiskey's Merits

"Illegitimate Off-Spring of Bourbon," Says Colonel Cobb; Indignant Colonel Chase Retorts, "Cobb Is Bad Judge of Kentucky's Prides: Good Horses, Fast Women, Beautiful Whisky."

Washington, Dec. 8.— (UP) —The Federal Alcohol Control Administration had announced that affairs had reached such a crucial position that it was necessary to find out what corn whisky is made of if this nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure.

Accordingly, experts representing all shades of thought on the subject of corn liquor assembled and right away two Kentucky Colonels collided. One of them was Colonel Irvin S. Cobb, who has made something of a literary reputation by writing short stories and recipes for mint juleps.

Doesn't Like Corn

Colonel Cobb already had filed with the Federal Alcohol Control Administration a document which set forth that it was his considered opinion that corn whisky was "the illegitimate off-spring of bourbon which tastes like the wrath to come, giving the drinker the impression that he has swallowed a lighted kerosene lamp." The colonel, as you can see, is violently anti-corn and pro-bourbon.

Well, that made Colonel E. H. Chase, temporarily exiled from Kentucky and now domiciled in Virginia, plenty mad. Colonel Chase told the Alcohol Administration that he had manufactured corn whiskey in Kentucky before prohibition, that he had had a shot of corn whiskey no longer than 48 hours ago and that he was about to go back into the business of manufacturing corn whisky.

Three Cardinal Virtues

Corn whisky, Colonel Chase added, was the parent of bourborn whisky, and Colonel Cobb was an eminent Kentuckian but a bum judge of one of the three things for which the bluegrass state is famous—good horses, fast women and beautiful whisky.

Colonel Chase said he had just returned from a tour of the bootleg stills in Virginia and that some pretty fair corn liquor was being made down there with the co-operation of snakes. Even the chairs and tables shuddered at that, but Colonel Chase hastened to explain that snakes were electric coils dropped into the whisky to hasten the ageing.

The fact finally dawned on the corn whisky experts that it was a long time between drinks, so they took a recess and everybody went out for a malted milk.

"Green Gables" Tease Woos Anne

An adolescent romance that had its beginning in a quarrel progresses by slow stages and enlivens the schooldays of Anne Shirley and Gilbert Blythe in "Anne of Green Gables," RKO-Radio's picturization of the L. Anne Shirley portrays her namesake on the screen, and Tom Brown has the role of Gilbert in this attraction which appears at the Carolina theatre today and tomorrow.

Honolulu, Dec. 8.—(UP)—A naval plane searching for the missing flier, Charles T. P. Ulm, and his two companions today sighted "a small orange colored box and floating debris" about 230 miles west of Barbers Point.

The biers weren't close enough to make positive identification. Captain Ulm's plane was silver and orange.

The navy plane radioed headquarters that if weather permitted it would land and investigate the floating objects.

GRADUATE GIVES LAW COLLECTION

Henry Groves Connor Donates 1,250 Volumes to University.

The University library and the law school have received an important collection of books, the gift of Henry Groves Connor, Jr., of Wilson, a member of the class of 1897 and of the law school class of 1898.

There is a total of 1,250 volumes in the collection, including among the law books 187 volumes of the Federal Reporter, 79 volumes of the Southeastern Reporter, 65 volumes of North Carolina Reports, and other material of value for North Carolina law.

There are also 98 volumes of history and classics pertaining to law, and 140 volumes of quasi-legal works. The latter especially enrich the collection now in the law library. Among books of a general nature there are a number of standard sets of literature, history, and science.

DI, PHI DEBATERS TO HOLD WRIGHT CONTEST TONIGHT

Durfee and McAnally of Phi, Kendrick and Mullen of Di to Debate Govt. Control.

ALL MEMBERS TO ATTEND

Debating teams from the Phi and Di societies will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall for the annual Mary D. Wright debate.

Winthrop Durfee and Albert McAnally of the Phi Assembly will take the negative, and J. W. Kendrick, and Robert Mullen of the Di Senate, will support the affirmative of the question; Resolved: That the federal government assume control of the basic industries in the United States.

Joint Meeting

Both societies will adjourn their regular meetings in time for the members to attend the debate.

Last year, the team from the Phi Assembly won the debate, and the Mary D. Wright medal was awarded C. W. Griffin.

The Phi will convene tonight at 7 o'clock in New East, Speaker Smithwick announced yesterday, and the regular quarterly election of all officers except treasurer will be held. Newly elected officers will assume office immediately after their election, he said.

MULLIS OUTLINES CLASS PROGRAM

Freshman President Emphasizes Plan to Familiarize Class With Honor System.

Speaking last night at the final meeting this quarter of the Freshman Friendship Council, Pete Mullis, freshman class president, outlined a tentative program for the class for the year, emphasizing a plan for the formation of a committee or council to better acquaint freshmen with the honor system.

Mullis' suggestion that devotionals at freshman assembly be conducted by freshman themselves rather than by outsiders was received favorably by the council, which will probably be in charge of the opening exercises if they are turned over to the class.

"Must Gauge Class Opinion"

Announcing that the first freshman executive committee meeting will come tomorrow, Mullis stated that one of the duties of the committeemen will be to keep the class informed of its activities and to determine class opinion.

For this purpose the freshman class has been divided into several groups; each member of the committee will be responsible for communicating with the freshmen in his group once every two weeks.

According to Mullis there will probably be a class smoker next quarter and perhaps a dance in the spring term.

Drew Martin was unanimously elected representative of the council on the freshman executive committee.

Grumman Speaks

The activities of the University extension division will be discussed in freshman assembly at 10:30 o'clock this morning by R. M. Grumman, director of the division.

Debate Group

University's Speaking Activities To Be Discussion Topic.

There will be a meeting of the debate group at 9 o'clock tonight in Graham Memorial.

The subject for discussion will be "Speaking Activities at the University."

Suggestions will be made for the improvement of these activities.

HOUSE REVIEWS LECTURE SERIES

Dean Advises Student to Pursue Interests, Summarizing "Intellectual Life Course."

Dean R. B. House presented a "graduation speech to his chapel course on the intellectual life" at freshman assembly yesterday morning.

Reviewing his series of talks, Dean House asserted that the intellectual life began with character and winds up with thinkink. "When we analyze life," he said, "we find two things, thought and action."

Causes of Progress

In connection with his statement that all progress was the result of thinking, Dean House told that 90 per cent of the people who visited the World's Fair in Chicago the last two years were earning a living from industries that had sprung up since 1880.

Warning against spending a college career and later life "in pious hope and vain regrets," Dean House advised that action be taken now on the subjects which interest the individual.

Dean House also suggested a list of books "which should be added to the personal library or at least read."

They were "Self Cultivation in English" by George Herbert Palmer; "The Art of Thinking" by Ernest Dimnet; "From a College Window" by Arthur Christopher Benson; "Essays of Arnold Bennet; and "The Art of Thought" by Graham Wallace.

WEAVER CLOSES WAR DISCUSSIONS

Sophomore Y. M. C. A. Considers Work of League of Nations.

Closing the series of Y. M. C. A. programs on war and peace, Fred Weaver, sophomore from Aberdeen, led an informal discussion on the League of Nations in the sophomore Y. M. C. A. cabinet last night.

The members of the junior-senior cabinets concerned themselves with making plans for the winter quarter.

Weaver presented a background of the league, showing the need for international processes of justice and explaining why the United States refused to ratify the Covenant.

The speaker also pointed out the work of the league and the chances of the United States' becoming a member of the organization.

Members of the sophomore cabinet present at the meeting, in addition to Weaver, were: George MacFarland, George G. Allen, Jr., Charlie Daniel, Eli Joyner, Don McKee, and Ed H. Vick.

Attending the junior-senior meeting were: President J. D. Winslow, Phil Hammer, Francis Fairley, Billy Yandell, J. C. Grier, Tom Bost, Claude W. Rankin, Henry Allison, Harry Riggs, and Bert Smith.

"Why Did The Lights Go Out?"

Burned Bearing in Carolina Plant and Automatic Switch Throw Village Into Darkness.

By STUART W. RABB

"Where were you when the lights went out?" is the current question of greeting. And the follow-up question, of course, is "Why did the lights go out?"

The first question is not so easily answered, but the answer to the second is easy, especially to J. S. Bennett, superintendent of operations of the University Consolidated Service Plants.

Duke's Fault

"The lights went out," he told a DAILY TAR HEEL reporter yesterday, "because the automatic switch at the Duke Power substation was adjusted to break connection when the load exceeded 1,000 kilowatts.

"The usual procedure," he explained, "is to use our own power until 1 o'clock in the morning, thereby taking care of the peak load which comes between 6 and 7 o'clock in the afternoon."

A burned bearing in the machinery used by the Consolidated to generate its own power, he said, made it imperative to use the Duke current. When, shortly after 6 o'clock Friday, the current exceeded 1,000 kilowatts, the switch in the Duke station threw itself, plunging the town into darkness.

Duke to Rescue

It was necessary to keep one half of the town circuit in darkness in order to supply the other part of town and the campus, until the Duke electrician from Durham arrived. He then adjusted the switch to take care of the current load.

A burned out transformer on the main street circuit was responsible for keeping one half of that thoroughfare in darkness for 45 minutes Saturday night.

At 1 o'clock Monday morning, darkness again descended upon the earth. Another switch in a substation that failed to alarm when it threw itself was the cause for the trouble this time, Bennett explained.

"After a year of almost perfect service," said Bennett, "all the trouble seems to come at one time."

STUDENTS STAGE SIX PLAYS TODAY

Original Dramas Will Be Presented at Two Performances At 4 and 7:30 O'clock.

The Carolina Playmakers will present their 24th and 25th series of experimental productions at the theatre this afternoon at 4 o'clock and tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

The plays that are to be presented have been written, cast, and directed by students in the University courses in playwriting, English 55 and 225.

Program

Included in the selected plays are: "The Passer-By," a play of Carolina village folk, by Ralph Lyerly; "Ancient Heritage," a play of New England aristocracy, by Philip G. Parker; "Confidentially Speaking," a satire on true-story writing, by Wilbur Dorsett.

"Octagon Soap," a country comedy, by Nancy Lawlor; "Damned Idealist," a college drama, by Charles A. Poe; "Rations," a mountain folk comedy, by Catherine Threlkeld.

The stage settings were designed by students, under the supervision of Samuel Selden of the Playmakers staff. Alton Williams, of the Playmakers, is in charge of the stage management.

Casts

The casts for the plays include:

"The Passer-By": Eloise Sheppard, Margaret Wallace, Lawrence Cheek, Burr Leach, Sarah Seawell.

"Ancient Heritage": Mildred Howard, Jean Ashe, William L. Bonyun, Walter Terry.

"Confidentially Speaking": Christine Maynard, Alan Waters, Joyce Killingsworth, Vermont Royster.

"Octagon Soap": John Walker, Frances Caffey, Juanita Green, Carl Thompson, Felix Hamrick.

"Damned Idealist": Larry Anderson, Vermont Royster, Lawrence Cheek, Fred Howard, Robert DuFour.

"Rations": Dave McCachren, Juanita Green, Mildred Howard, Harry Coble, Carl Thompson.

UNIVERSITY FERA WORK SUSPENDED

To Allow Student Workers to Prepare for Exams.

All FERA work will be suspended during this week prior to examinations, according to Edwin S. Lanier, head of the FERA organization at the University.

Exceptions to this rule are permissable where conditions are satisfactory to the student and to the department head concerned.

In regard to FERA work during the holidays, Lanier stated that, "So far as we know at this time no FERA work may be done during the holidays."

The pay-month for this federal aid work will continue, however, until Saturday.

DI WILL SELECT LEADERS TONIGHT

Executive Session's Naming of Officers to Conclude Work Of Fall Quarter.

The Dialectic Senate will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in executive session in New West to elect officers for the winter and spring quarters.

A president, secretary, clerk, and sergeant-at-arms will be chosen for the winter quarter, and a president will be selected for the spring term.

Eligibility requirements for officers, in keeping with the constitution, were read at the last session of the senate.

To Hear Reports

Reports from standing committees will be made at the convocation for the senate's approval.

It will be necessary that all members of the organization be in attendance at the meeting, it was announced yesterday by A. Mason Gibbes, president.

"Absentees will be fined 25 cents and put into the status of inactive members until a sufficiently valid excuse is given the sergeant-at-arms or the president prior to the meeting," Gibbes said.

The session will be the last meeting of the fall quarter.

Drive to Get Funds For Student Peace Delegate Continues

The drive for funds to send Phillips Russell, the University's delegate, to the Student Anti-War Conference at Geneva is progressing steadily.

Students, faculty members and others interested in the movement to stop war may make contributions at the Graham Memorial director's office.

Contributors may telephone their addresses to the office if they wish a collector to call for their contributions.

Contributions may also be made to Arnold Williams, 303 Smith building.

President Orders New Anti-Crime Machine

Roosevelt Calls on Experts to Co-ordinate Agencies of Law.

Washington, Dec. 10.—(UP)—President Roosevelt tonight called on the nation's crime experts to create an administrative structure that will tie together every crime-preventing and law-enforcing agency of every branch of government—federal, state, and local.

Roosevelt, formally opening the crime conference convened by Attorney-General Homer Cummings, told the 600 assembled delegates that their problem was two-fold.

First, he said, "I ask you to plan and construct with scientific care a constantly improving administrative structure . . . ." Second, he added, " . . . do all in your power to interpret the problem of crime to the people of this country. They must realize the many implications of that word 'crime'."

Barnes and Pool Attend Union Conference

Convention at Indiana U. Considers Administrative Technique.

Harper Barnes and Jack Pool have returned from a meeting of the National Student Union Association held at Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana.

The chief purpose of the meeting from the standpoint of the directors was to consider technical aspects of running a union. The use of federal funds in aiding a union was also discussed at this meeting.

Colleges represented at the meeting totaled 29. Texas and Carolina were the only southern colleges represented.

LEAGUE COUNCIL FINALLY SETTLES BALKAN DISPUTE

Little Entente Cracks Whip over Delegates; Hungary Tendered Luke-Warm Censure.

HUNGARY ORDERED TO ACT

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Dec. 10.—(UP)—The resignation of Foreign Minister Jevtich is believed imminent here tonight because of his failure to obtain a stronger condemnation of Hungary by the representatives of the nations of the world at the League of Nations Council.

Geneva, Dec. 10.— (UP) — The League of Nations Council reached a complete agreement tonight on a solution for the Jugoslav-Hungarian dispute by indirectly censuring Hungary for the alleged harboring of terrorists.

The resolution was unanimously adopted, the text of the bill stating that there was "a certain responsibility of the relative act connected with the preparation of the crime."

The resolution referred to the assassination of King Alexander I of Jugoslavia last October 9 as the "crime."

Demands Punishment

It added that Hungary must take immediate and appropriate punitive action against any of its own authorities whose guilt may be established.

The completeness of the victory gained by the Jugoslavian delegation came as a surprise to the assembled delegates. It had been assumed that Great Britain and Italy would prevent the adoption of any measure which might censure Hungary.

The decision shows the strength of the Little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, and Roumania, backed by France. Jugoslavia had previously bluntly threatened to resign her seat in the League of Nations Council if the council did not condemn Hungary.

Permits Necessary

Students expecting to register in the pre-holiday period beginning Thursday must obtain permit cards tomorrow at 8 South building. All miscellaneous matters, such as books over-due at the library, must be settled before permit cards can be issued.

Yackety-Fins Shrink From Encounter; Game To Supplant Rose Bowl Classic

Repeated Taunts by Fearless Tar-Mags Challenging Sissy Yackety-Fins to Combat Are of No Avail; "After Two Weeks of Roistering We'll Be Right," Say Stars.

Chapel Hill, Dec. 10.—(PU)—As hard as the fearless Tar-Mags have tried to get the sissy Yackety-(now) Fins to meet them in bloody combat, it's snow use.

At a late hour last night the mentors of the two teams, Uncle William Xavius McDade and "Wooden" Barnes, disrespectively, met in executive session over three mugs of ale (making five mugs at the meeting) and decided that the annual Ink Pot classic between the Journalistic Jaguars and the Yackety-(now) Fins should be universally regarded as the climax to the football season instead of the Rose Bowl game.

To Climax Season

Result: the famous classic will follow the Alabama-Stanford game and will be played after the Christmas holidays.

"Overflowing" Poole, star hunchback of the Yackety-(now) Fins, expressed his approval of the decision and remarked, "Boy, after giving me two weeks to get well lubricated, watch me strip their gears."

"Hit-it" Hammer, "Pussyfoot" Page, and "Bungler" Bostick immediately took off for the frozen wastes to get accustomed to playing with snowshoes and Whis skis.

PARAGRAPHICS

Proff Koch had better go easy on making "A Christmas Carol" an institution, as Dean House suggests. His appropriations will get cut.

Now an R. O. T. C. unit is proposed for the University of Virginia. What, Cavaliers in the ranks?

North Carolina's poet-philosopher Pearson couldn't understand Paul Green's body-shrouding. He "hasn't had much schoolin'."

Education
And the Purse

Back before 1800, Thomas Jefferson, man of the people, proposed an educational plan before the Virginia legislature providing for financial support by the state of certain students whose genius had been discovered in the lower grades of education. This support would be rendered in the form of free education in the then existent schools of higher education. But the plan failed to go through.

Now Harvard's president, Dr. James B. Conant, is making an appeal for more scholarship funds. He deplores the system of running the universities for the level of students who are financially, not intellectually, able to obtain higher education. "We should aim to have the scholarship funds used so as to enable the high school graduate of real ability to enter our universities regardless of financial status of his or her parents," he states.

At this University in Chapel Hill, scholarship funds are amazingly scarce. The state, of course, is doing what it can to educate every interested high school graduate—and the more fit are thus affected with the less fit—by appropriating from its funds to maintain a low cost for the University's services. But even the appropriations are diminishing and, although the cost to students remains the same, the University itself is thus being undermined of the state support which is the pillar of its being.

State control of higher education is not practicable in this light because even though the general cost level to students is reduced, the controlled institution itself is being run on the financial instead of the intellectual basis. Private philanthropists must come to the rescue if America is provide for its future administration the most intellectually able of its present generation. With finances precluding opportunity, on the part of both student and college, present-day state-controlled higher educational institutions have not a chance to contribute more than the greenbacks have to offer.

Spreading
Chapel Hill

We have emphasized in these columns before, especially during the 1934 spring quarter, the necessity of students acting in the capacity of University agents in their home neighborhoods. In such a capacity they can do much in advising and inducing collegians-to-be to acquire their higher education at Chapel Hill.

Coach Bob Fetzer, addressing the University Club recently, stressed the point that the most convincing means of University publicity is through the University students who spread its goodness. Although local enrollment has increased considerably over last year's attendance roll, there is still a growing need for more students on this campus. The most efficient working capacity, which at best is conjectural, obviously has not been reached for all its problematic determination, as the University's fixed outlay can, we believe, accommodate a much larger amount of varying capital and material.

Students who will spend the Christmas holidays in contact with prospective campusites can act to the University's advantage by convincing in one manner or another those prospects that at Chapel Hill they will find the south's greatest opportunities for educational, spiritual, and physical development.

Is There an Economist
In the House?

A headline in yesterday's Greensboro Daily News points out the fact that twenty-six more incomes of a million dollars or more were listed during the past year, while eighty-one thousand incomes of $5,000 or less had disappeared.

The natural inquiry: where did these incomes disappear to? We speculate: charity, the breadline, governmental relief. Unemployment has taken a tremendous toll for one year, yet there are twenty-six more millionaires. It looks very much as though the income had drifted from the bottom stratum of society to the top. The purchasing power of the eighty-one thousand cannot have vanished into thin air; it must have gone in part into the making of the twenty-six new millionaires.

While we do not profess the slightest degree of learning on economic questions, still this fact is obvious enough. And the same sort of thing must go on year after year. More and more people are thrown out of earning capacity, while more and more income floats to the top rank of society. Great sport for the millionaires, but dry crusts and debts for the working man, we'd think.

The wonder is, not that depressions occur, but that nations ever manage to get out of them. It is impossible to visualize a shakeup of resources vigorous enough to release the accumulated fortunes and redistribute them among society. Where so many brilliant economists have failed to crack the nut, we should be foolhardy to try; we merely observe that when the inevitable crash comes, as come it must, it will be a great as the fall of Rome, and much more entertaining.

Yah, Yah,
We Told Yuh!

In Sunday morning's issue of this newssheet, we wandered off on how wonderful snow is on the campus. But it stopped snowing, darn it!

But it snowed last night. Yah! Yah!

Appeal to Everetters

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

This is a sort of appeal to the courtesy of my fellow students in Everett dormitory. I, like many other students, am beset with papers, notebooks, and various end-of-the-quarter pieces of work. I am working late and I am working hard.

Various students in Everett place radios in their open windows after midnight, turn them on with great volume, and disturb the entire quadrangle. Just before exams, we need sleep and rest when we finish our night's work. Would it be too much to ask one or two students to show a special courtesy at this time to several scores of other students? We'd certainly appreciate it!

The Browsing Room:
Another Suggestion

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

May we have space for a word in reply to W. S. Bernard's suggestion that the library keep a collection of books in the Graham Memorial lounge for the use of the students?

We agree with Dr. Bernard's suggestion as to the desirability of having a collection of books in Graham Memorial to add to the magazines and newspapers now available in the lounge. A browsing room is generally understood to be the type of room that is fully equipped with an excellent selection of the best of the best volumes that should be made readily accessible to all students in a room that is an integral part of the library. We want a book room primarily—not another lounge—but, of course, we want the lounge. We do want a room well filled with inviting books, one that is primarily conducive to reading.

May we not keep the lounge as such? Is there not a crying need for a real browsing room?

YOU'RE AN OLD SCROOGIE

From the publication of the Dean of Administration's office, the University "Weekly Bulletin," comes this mild bit of overstatement, forwarded to this department by Dr. Lee Wiley: "Annual reading of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," by Professor Frederick H. Koch. This will be the 107th annual reading of Dickens' immortal ghost story."

FINANCIAL NOTE

We are told that in the pawnshop across the street from the King Cotton Hotel in Greensboro there may be found from time to time numerous fraternity pins. Greek badges currently represented include: Sigma Nu, Kappa Sigma and Kappa Alpha. The man who runs the shop adds that there is a great demand for K. A. pins. They come and go pretty often, it seems.

CONGRATULATIONS

It seems that Mrs. Humphries, popular Chapel Hill lady who runs the Archer House, as well as the Grill in Graham Memorial, appeared in the doorway of the office of the DAILY TAR HEEL about half-past five one afternoon recently. Reporters and sports writers were hammering away at the typewriters in the last full blast of effort to get the copy written and to the printshop, so they could go get some dinner. Industry was the spirit of the hour. Mrs. Humphries surveyed the scene. "Boys," she said, and the typewriters stopped clicking politely, "I think the new Magazine is just splendid!" Nobody said a word, and the typewriters started up their hammering again, louder than ever.

ALUMNI NOTES

To those who have followed the Playmakers more or less closely while they trod the boards of the building up behind Old East, it may be of some interest to know that Eugenia Rawls is appearing in "The Children's Hour," one of the current successes on the New York stage. And Shepperd Strudwick is to appear in Phillip Barry's new play, "Bright Star," which opens Thursday evening.

"THE UNSPEAKABLE CHASING THE UNEATABLE"

Oscar Wilde's quip about a fox-hunt is our introduction to a story about one down near Willingham, on U. S. highway number one. It seems that about 125 hounds were streaking merrily across the road in pursuit of the bush (bush is the tail of the fox, the trophy of the hunt) holding up traffic in both directions. In the first south-bound car waiting for the yelping hounds to go by was a gentleman from New Hampshire who didn't quite comprehend the proceedings. So he asked a pink-coated huntsman, slightly on the alcholic side, what was going on. Our hunter looked whimsically at the yelping hounds, at the license on the car, and at the puzzeled face of the gentleman from New Hampshire. "Wal, you see," he replied, "we-all down h-yar is lynchin' a nigger. You all'd better park yo' kyar and come and watch the fun." By this time the hounds had gotten across the road, and the Yankee clamped down on the accelerator and went tearing down the road, apparently not anxious to follow the proceeding.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

George Moore, erstwhile columnist for the now extinct "Buccaneer," wishes it distinctly understood that he is not "Gracie," whose reflections upon co-ed attendance at German Club dances attracted a lot of attention in the last issue of the Magazine. Having been congratulated on a good piece of writing he didn't do for the three hundredth time, George came to us as a fellow-scribe, asking that we publish the truth about the whole matter. We regret that we're unable to reveal the identity of "Gracie," but she definitely isn't George, so we hope you'll be satisfied with that.

There will be a meeting of the Alpha Psi Delta psychological fraternity tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in 207 New West. A paper will be read by Dr. Dashiell, head of the psychology department, on "A Synthesis of Learning Theories." There will also be a talk on "Some Treatments of Stuttering and Their Bases" by J. W. Nygard.

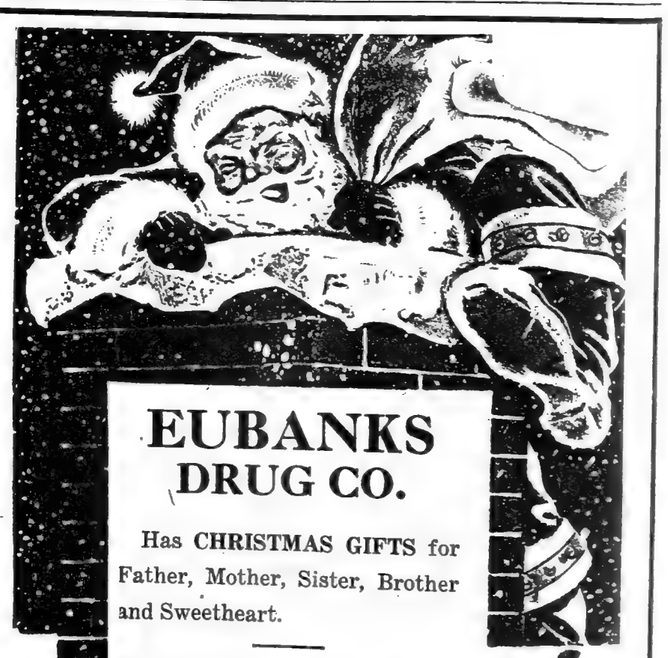
SPECIAL EXAMS

Students who have excused absences and "E's" to be removed by special examinations during the regular examination period next week should make application for them at the assistant registrar's office in 8 South building.



These applications should be made this week in order to give the recorder time to notify the instructor concerned of the students' having permission to take special examinations.

All-America Board Puts Barclay On Team; Seven Matés Receive Mention

Stanford Is Only Team To Place More Men Than Tar Heels.

Four Linemen and Three Backs Get Recognition.

Captain George Barclay and seven of his Tar Heel cohorts were singled out among the nation's best grid stars by the official All-America board and given high recognition for the excellent work they have turned out this season.

Barclay received the first string selection for All-America honors at the tackle post to become the first University of North Carolina football star ever to receive this distinct honor. Ray Farris, in 1929, came nearest to making the high honor.

The other men who received honorable mention by the board are Dick Buck and Buck McCarn, ends; Jim Tatum, tackle; Babe Daniel, center; Jim Hutchins, fullback; and Don Jackson and Charlie Shaffer, halfbacks.

Second in Nation

In placing this large number of men among the country's best, the University ranks second only to Stanford in the whole nation in placing the most men on the official roster. The Cardinals placed the amazing total of ten men on the list. Tied with Carolina for second were Alabama, with two men on the first team, and Washington, which had all honorable mentions. Placing seven were Tennessee, California, Southern California, and Minnesota. Six men were landed by Santa Clara, Vanderbilt, Ohio State, Pittsburgh, and Notre Dame.

The first team is as follows: ends—Moscrip (Stanford) and Hutson (Alabama); tackles—Barclay (North Carolina) and Maddox (Kansas State); guards—Hartwig (Pittsburgh) and Monohan (Ohio State); center—Robinson (Notre Dame); quar-

Barclay Accepts Invitation To Play In East-West Tilt

Only Man Chosen from South on Andy Kerr's Eastern Team.

George Barclay has accepted an invitation to play in the annual East-West battle on the Pacific coast this season.

The honor was a signal one, Barclay being the only player picked from the south by Coach Andy Kerr of Colgate, who selected the players from the east and who will coach the squad.

The other eastern players picked by Coach Kerr were: Brominski, Columbia; Bogdanski, Brooke and Akerstrom, Colgate; Steen, Syracuse; Munjas, Hartwig, and Weinstock, Pitt; Borden, Fordham; and Shepherd, Western Maryland.

Barclay and these will join the mid-western delegation picked by Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern at Evanston as soon as the holidays begin for an intensive period of practice together prior to the big game.

DUKE HOOPSTERS START 25-GAME SCHEDULE DEC. 17

Tackle South Carolina at Columbia in Opener; Will Journey on to Florida.

PROSPECTS NOT SO GOOD

Durham, Dec. 10.—A 25-game schedule, opening with South Carolina at Columbia, S. C., December 17, was announced today for the Duke University basketball team of the coming season.

As for the prospects this season, they are the darkest since Coach Eddie Cameron took over the job here six years ago. The entire 1934 team which lost the conference title to Washington and Lee by one point is gone, save for midget Sammy Bell, forward. Jim and Herb Thompson, All-Southern forward and guard, have finished their careers. Connie Mack, Jr., regular center, and Jim Ferguson, sub guard who starred in tournament play, did not return to school.

The schedule:

Dec. 17—Sou. Carolina there.
Dec. 18—Florida there.
Dec. 19—Florida there.
Jan. 3—Danville Independents there.
Jan. 4—Wofford here.
Jan. 7—Wake Forest here.
Jan. 9—Army there.
Jan. 10—Crescent Athletic Club there.
Jan. 11—Maryland there.
Jan. 14—Virginia here.
Jan. 15—N. C. State there.
Jan. 18—Catholic U., here.
Jan. 26—V. P. I. here.
Feb. 1—V. M. I. here.
Feb. 2—W. & L. here.
Feb. 5—North Carolina here.
Feb. 7—V. P. I. there.
Feb. 8—W. & L. there.
Feb. 9—V. M. I. there.
Feb. 12—Davidson here.
Feb. 16—Nor. Carolina there.
Feb. 18—W. Forest—Raleigh.
Feb. 21—South Carolina here.
Feb. 23—N. C. State here.

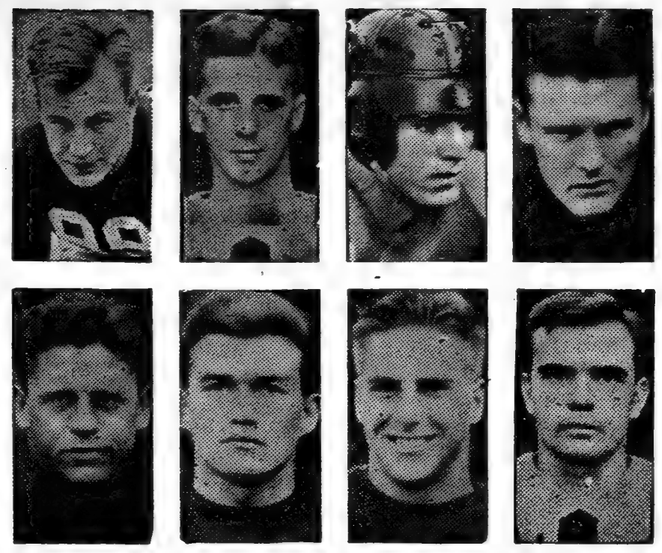
WORLD FOOTBALL LEAGUE PLANNED

Set-up May Be Based on Davis Cup Lines; Great Britain Center of Activity.



London, Dec. 10.— (UP) — Plans for an international football association on Davis Cup lines are now underway by noted European gridiron legislatures, with Great Britain as the center of activity.

At present, England and most of the European countries would be represented in the unique competition, with hopes of bringing the United States and South American nations into the fold in the near future.

A rough outline plans four zones: Great Britain, northern, middle and southern Europe. After elimination tourneys, interzone semi-finals and a final would follow, to determine the eventual winner.

There are major difficulties hampering the success of this movement. For one thing, British codes differ from the European. Rules of "charging" are radically different, conditions, grounds and refereeing also adding to the disadvantages in the union of Great Britain in European sports.

ALL-AMERICA MEN

This octet above is the Tar Heel delegation whose fine play during the season was recognized by the official All-America board composed of Alexander (Georgia Tech), Warner (Temple), Jones (Southern California), Layden (Notre Dame), Casey (Harvard), and Christy Walsh.

The men are, left to right, top row: Captain George Barclay, Dick Buck, Buck McCarn, and Jim Tatum; bottom row: Babe Daniel, Charlie Shaffer, Don Jackson, and Jim Hutchins.

Herman Snyder, Star Snavelyman, Receives Millis Blocking Trophy

Ward of Duke Takes Runner-up Honors

Iron Man Blocking Back of Tar Heel Grid Machine Gets Reward for Services.

WILDCAT PLACES THIRD

Herman Snyder, mainstay of the Carolina backfield during the past football season, was awarded the Millis Blocking Trophy last Saturday night by a committee of sports writers in the state. The award goes each year to the player judged the best blocker and interference runner in the Big Five.

By receiving the honor, the Monroe boy finally received some of the reward he deserves as a result of his great work for the state champion Tar Heels during the past season. He was truly the unsung hero of the Carolina eleven.

On the majority of the long runs made by the supposed-stars, Snyder was in front taking out the most important opponent. However, he very rarely shared the headlines with his mates or rated with them on the all-star teams chosen.

Iron Man Hump

Snyder was among the first five iron men on the Carolina eleven as a result of the 417 minutes he played. Besides doing some excellent blocking Snyder got off occasional fine runs through the center of the line

Duke Tennis Captain Wins Pinehurst Open

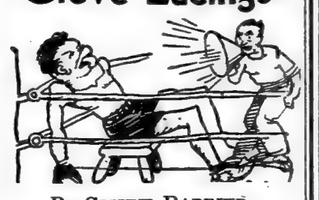
Barney Welsh, Duke tennis captain and present holder of the national public parks championship, added another trophy to his string when he ran through the first Pinehurst fall championship of the year. In the final, he squelched his own school mate, Ted Collins, a freshman, by the decisive scores of 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

Previously, he had stopped James Neville, Newport, R. I., by 6-0, 6-0 to enter the final. Collins had ousted Everett Allen, Daytona Beach, Fla., 6-1, 8-6 in his semi-final match.

Athletics Attract Big Group Of Boys Here During Fall

Approximately Three-Fourths of Boys Participate.

Carolina, with its slogan of "athletics for all," can well lay claim to some kind of a record in the matter of athletic participation for the fall sports campaign just completed.



The number of students taking part in athletics here this fall was approximately 700 for varsity and freshman sports and approximately 900 for intramural sports, or 77 per cent of the undergraduate male student body of 2,062, it is revealed in Director R. A. Fetzer's report to the athletic board.

The intramural tag football race alone drew a participation of 800 different boys. A total of 37 dormitory and fraternity groups entered teams, and 115 games in all were played. Other events on the intramural program were the cake race, and the wrestling tournament.

In addition to the regular drills and contests in football and cross country, pre-season practice and drills were conducted for the varsity and freshman teams in the sports without an active fall schedule. These included basketball, boxing, wrestling, track, tennis, and golf.

Mural Boxing Tourney Opens Today, 3 O'clock

Glove Lacings

By SMITH BARRIER

King Football has succombed. Snow has fallen. Indoor athletics have taken reign in sportsdom. Here on the Hill, the Tin Can has become a harum-scarum arena with boxers, cagers, fencers, rasslers, tracksters, and tenniseers all going their rounds.

Over in the corner nearest Kenan in the far side of the Can, Coach Crayton Rowe and his protegees have been exchanging compliments in and out of the squared enclosure. Everyone is shadow boxing, punching the leather, skipping rope, just exercising, or is in the ring showing off his wares.

The intramural slugging tourney opens this afternoon at 3 o'clock and lasts through tomorrow night. Year before last, a big crowd was on hand to witness the scraps. But last year, the tourney was held in the spring and little interest was excited. This year the fighting looks to be close. Only a few of the defending champs are scheduled to be on hand to protect their crowns—so the field is wide open for each and every novice. Exactly 28 would-be pugs have signed up and weighed in, with men in every class except the unlimited.

* * *

An interesting side light of the boxing practices is Eddie Dolan and Marty Levinson. Mr. Dolan is the gentleman with a list of consecutive wins as long as Huey. Eddie gets in the ring with the Tar Heel middleweights and gives them real workouts. With his left arm saddled up so he can not let loose a kayoer, he bounces all over the canvas, jabbing in his deadly right and hopping back out of reach of the opponent.

Bouts in Tin Can; Finals Tomorrow

Twenty-Eight Men Weigh In Yesterday; All Men Will See Action Today.

THREE CHAMPIONS ENTER

With a notable list of boxers scheduled to start the proceedings, the intramurals get under way this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Tin Can, continuing tonight at 8 o'clock; and if the recognized strength of the entrants is any criterion by which to judge the forthcoming settos, the three-round battles should be replete with all the thrills and spills which make the ring game so interesting.

Weighing-in ceremonies took place yesterday afternoon at Emerson field. All the entrants looked to be in fine condition and rarin' to go.

Number of Entries

Twenty-eight men went on the scales: eight in the 149-lb. class, six in the 159-lb. class, four in the 169-lb. class; four in the 139-lb. class, four in the 129-lb. class, and only two in the 119-lb. class.

Of the 28 pugilists three were champions of their divisions last fall. Sam Kesselman came home in front in the 149-lb. division; Wally Dunham took first honors in the 169-lb. class, while Bert Ressler led the pack in the 179-lb. class. Ressler has lost weight since last year's intramurals, and barring all upsets he should meet Dunham in the finals of the 169-lb class. Kesselman, however, will not find the going so easy for his division contains some of the best boxers in the tourney. O'Herron in the 149 is the premier stepper of the frosh boxing squad, and he will undoubtedly enliven the proceedings quite a bit.

Henderson, a 159 pounder, also of the freshman team, is a hard slugger who has shown good form in his recent workouts. Herm Steingrob is another first-year man who has shown fine potentialities in going through his paces with the yearling squad.

And last, but not least, is Les

RALEIGH TO GIVE DUKE GIFT FETE

President Graham Will Attend Celebration of Tenth Anniversary of Endowment.

Final plans were drawn yesterday for the celebration in Raleigh today of the tenth anniversary of the seventy million dollar endowment left by James Buchanan Duke to schools, hospitals, and orphanages in the Carolinas.

Notables to Attend

In attendance will be President Frank Graham of the Greater University, and invitations have been sent all full professors here.

The celebration, which is being sponsored by the city of Raleigh in co-operation with the chamber of commerce, will attract many notables from the two Carolinas.

Dr. W. C. Rankin, a director of the Duke Endowment Foundation, announced late yesterday that neither Doris Duke, the "richest girl in the world," nor her mother would be in attendance at the celebration, as had originally been planned.

All-America Board Puts Barclay On Team; Seven Mates Receive Mention

ter—Howell (Alabama); halves—Lund (Minnesota) and Berwanger (Chicago); and full—Grayson (Stanford).

That good tackles were scarcer than ever, was the final decree of the board. For this reason and also for the reason that excellent guards were quite numerous, Barclay was shifted from the guard post which he played nearly all season up to the tackle position, to make way for both Hartwig and Monohan.

Quoting the board's final report:

"Playing at either guard or tackle, Barclay has been an indefatigable worker since October and has played in nearly every minute of every game. At all times he bears the chief burden of his team's defense and opens large holes for the backfield's progress. He is so proficient at backing up the line—and so indispensable—that Carolina centers who are able to play in the line are assigned to Barclay's position most of the time, to permit him to operate as defensive center.

"Barclay has been used all season to call signals in the huddle and has not made a serious error of judgment. He has been shrewd and faultless in the refusal or acceptance of penalties."

Eight men from the other schools in the state also received honorable mention. Five were from Duke and are as follows: Parker, Cornelius, J. Dunlap, Durner, and Wentz. Davidson placed Mackorell and Morgan, while State ranked a lone man in Sabol.

Fourteen Confined

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: George Kornegay, Francis Rasberry, C. W. Wallen, M. E. Smith, Blair Holliday, T. D. Burnett, Mildred Moore, J. R. Raper, W. N. Everett, Denmuth Spivey, Mrs. Cecil Pope, Howard Hamrick, C. B. Hinnart, and Meares Harris.

Fraternity Photos

Freshmen and sophomores must have their pictures taken this week for the fraternity section of the Yackety Yack. Otherwise they will be omitted.

The 10 per cent discount on Yackety Yack bills expires December 15.

NRA Men to Encourage Industrial Output

Restricted Production Hampers Recovery, Roosevelt Says.

Washington, Dec. 10.—(UP)—President Roosevelt tonight committed the governmental administration to a program calling for an increase in industrial production, now restricted by NRA codes.

In an address by telephone to the American Farm Bureau Federation meeting in Nashville, Tennessee, Roosevelt said that continued agricultural improvement depended, in part, upon the expansion of domestic purchasing power of farm products, by increasing the output of industrial goods.

The president publicly indorsed for the first time Secretary Henry A. Wallace's contention that this nation must increase its purchases of foreign goods if American farm exports are to be augmented appreciably.

Little Marty also puts on his exhibition when he climbs through the ropes. Ducking, jay-walking, hay-making, and displaying one of the most unusual (?) offenses and defenses ever seen, Levinson keeps his sparring partner in laughter as well as the spectators. Marty is remembered as the star Tar Heel captain of 1932 who, bandaged up as a wounded soldier, fought in the conference tourney with enormous odds against him, to gain the unanimous applause of the whole south.

This season prospects look great for a crack ring club. Four of last year's regulars are back and, with the flock of ace sophomore material, form the nucleus of Rowe's hopes. The way things look now, the probable (definite by no means at all) line up will read: 115-lb class—Marion Diehl; 125-lb—Maxie Frucht; 135-lb—Tommy O'Flaherty; 145-lb—Joe Fisher; 155-lb—Jule Medynski; 165-lb—Captain Sam Giddens, Morty Ellisberg, or Max Novich; 175-lb—Marvin Ray; and unlimited—Jimmy Carruth or Lammie Alderman.

Each man packs lots of class in his mits and with necessary improvement will be able to stand the best of Dixie sluggers or boxers. The 165-pound division will present the big difficulty—not in finding material but in selecting which man to use. Giddens and Ellisberg are lettermen and Novich a soph. All are good, and may the best man win. It would be possible to move one down to the 155-lb class but Medynski seems to have that place sewed up. In the unlimited section, Carruth has the lead at present but Alderman is showing fast improvement and will give the big sorrel-top a scrap for the varsity No. 1 position.

The schedule to date lists three home varsity meets and also a pair of home frosh meets. The bookings are as follows: Jan. 12—V. P. I. away (varsity and frosh); Jan. 19—South Carolina here (varsity) and Presbyterian Junior College (frosh); Jan. 26—Virginia here (varsity and frosh); Feb. 2—N. C. State here (varsity), Oak Ridge away (frosh); Feb. 15—Duke away (varsity and frosh); Feb. 22-3—Southern Conference tourney.

and gained much ground through pass receiving. He was also an important cog in the strong Carolina defense, vying with Captain George Barclay for honors in backing up the line.

Jule Ward, blocking back for Duke's eleven, gave Snyder the greatest competition for the award. The Carolina ace received seven votes while Ward got six and a half, first place counting one vote and second a half.

Snyder received six firsts and two seconds while Ward was given three firsts and seven seconds. Jim Morgan, all-state end from Davidson, was the other state blocker to be honored; he got one and a half votes.

The winner is just a junior and has another season of eligibility before finishing his career as a Big Five grid player. Should he capture the award again next year Snyder will be the first player to be honored twice.

H. A. Millis, prominent High Point business man, gives the trophy. He started the award in 1933. Last year Horace Hendrickson, Blue Devil quarterback, was voted the prize.

English Interviews

Phillips Russell will be in his office at 210 Murphey today, tomorrow, and Thursday between the hours of 3 and 4:30 p. m. to interview students who wish to take English 53, creative writing course, next quarter.

An interview is required by University regulation of students expecting to take the course.

WOMEN TO HEAR SPEECH BY EVANS

"Germany's Peace Record" Is Topic for Address Tonight.

"Germany's Peace Record" will be discussed by Wilfred Evans at a supper meeting of the American Association of University Women in the Episcopal Parish house at 7 o'clock tonight.

Evans' activity as political secretary to the chaplain of Kaisar Wilhelm, last emperor of Germany, and his residence in Germany for three years before and after the revolution make him well informed on the subject.

Reservations may be made by members of the association by calling Mrs. U. T. Holmes. The supper will cost 50 cents a plate.

ELISHA MITCHELL SOCIETY

The 356th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in 206 Phillips hall.

The main feature of the program will be a talk by Dr. English Bagby, professor of psychology, on "The Genesis of an Hysterical Symptom."

There will also be a paper read on "Natural Hybrids of Septobasidium" by J. N. Couch.

EGISTRATION FOR UNIORS, SENIORS EGINS TOMORROW

homores of High Standing lso to Enroll; Freshmen Register After Vacation.

ASSES BEGIN JANUARY 4

Pre-holiday registration will in tomorrow morning, according to an announcement from the registrar's office yesterday.

Graduate students, medical students, library science students, and juniors and seniors in all undergraduate divisions of the University are expected to register before going home for the Christmas holidays.

Those sophomores who, either here or in another college or university, passed all subjects during their freshman year and who also made an average grade of B during the spring quarter or semester, should also register during the pre-holiday registration period.

Registration December 13-15

Registration in all divisons of the University that are concerned in the pre-holiday registration, except the college of liberal arts and the school of commerce, is scheduled for tomorrow, Friday, and until noon on Saturday, December 15.

Liberal arts and commerce students begin registering tomorrow and continue until noon on Thursday, December 20.

All freshmen and such sophomores as do not qualify as set forth above should register for the winter quarter on January 3, beginning at 9 o'clock. Students enrolling here at the beginning of the winter quarter for the first time this academic year also register on January 3.

Classes begin Friday, January 4.

Everyone who registers before the holidays and upon going home learns that he cannot return for the resumption of his class work should notify immediately the dean of the division of the University in which he has registered and should also notify Ben Husbands, associate registrar, so that the registration can be cancelled.

Civil Service Commission Distributes 49,200 Documents For One Mechanic

Washington, Dec. 11.—(UP)—Unemployment being what it is in this country, you wouldn't think the U. S. A. would have to send out 49,200 documents before it could hire a mechanic, but that is the situation, fellow citizens, and nothing can be done about it except to amend the Constitution.

Most anybody else could get a mechanic by walking up to one and saying "Want a job at 50 bucks a week with Saturday afternoons off?" But the government doesn't do things that way. It has to abide by what it calls "official rules and regulations of the United States Civil Service Commission"—a phrase which some unpatriotic cynics insist on condensing into "red tape."

Mechanic! Mechanic!

Now it happened that up in Philadelphia where the government has a naval aircraft factory, the boss decided he needed a mechanic. He passed the word along to Washington where the Civil Service Commission looked up the rules. The rules said that the Commission had to inform every mechanic in the United States that there was a job open in Philadelphia. If there turned out to be one, lone mechanic in the middle of Death Valley who didn't know about the job, all sorts of catastrophes would occur, including some five-hour speeches in the Senate.

Well, the Civil Service Commission buckled down to business and the first thing it did was to print 16,000 copies of an announcement saying it would like to hire a mechanic. These were mailed out and posted in public buildings in every city and town in the country. Then it occurred to somebody that maybe all the mechanics didn't hang around court houses, so 15,000 announcements were sent to district managers of the Civil Service Commission who were instructed to spread the news around.

Commission Worries

By that time there were roughly 100,000 mechanics who would have been tickled to death to take the job in Philadelphia, but the Civil Service Commission was worried over the fact that maybe there was a mechanic somewhere who hadn't even heard of Philadelphia, much less the job.

So 18,000 more announcements were sent out—one for every daily and weekly newspaper. By this time, of course, this business of sending announcements was running into big dough, but the Civil Service Commission decided to have one more fling. It sent 200 announcements to magazines dealing with aeronautics and engineering, and challenged anybody to find one single mechanic who didn't know about the job.

Whether the boss up in Philadelphia ever got his mechanic is a mystery and the Civil Service Commission is too tired to worry about it.

Terrorists Arrested

Moscow, Dec. 11.— (UP) — Nine out of twelve terrorists arrested at Minsk have been executed, an official communique said tonight.

They were a part of scores of white guards and others rounded up after the recent assassination of Sergei Maronovich Kirov, Leningrad Bolshevik leader.

The Minsk terrorists, like nearly 100 others executed since the Kirov shooting, were given summary trials by the supreme court in which they were charged with carrying arms and plotting terrorist acts.

Rogerson's Report On Business Organization

(Editor's note: L. B. Rogerson, assistant controller of the University, submitted the following plan of operations to President Frank Porter Graham. It concerns the business activities of the Chapel Hill branch. The DAILY TAR HEEL presents the report in full to enlighten the campus on the divisional activities and functions of the business office. An explanation of this side of the administration should be especially interesting in the light of the recent consolidation of the three units.)

The organization plan in operation at the Chapel Hill branch of the Greater University divides the business activities of the University into five major divisions, namely:

1. Finance, covering the functional activities of collections, custody, and disbursement of funds, and custody of securities.

2. Control, covering the functional activities of budget and accounting records and control.

3. Purchases and Personnel, covering the functional activities of purchasing, stores-keeping, personnel control other than faculty, and certification of payrolls.

4. Operation and Maintenance of Physical Plant, covering the functional activities of additions and betterments, operation and maintenance of buildings and grounds, and direction of general University services.

5. Operation of Commercial and Auxiliary Enterprises, covering the general management of electric, water, telephone, laundry, dining halls, dormitories, rental, retail stores, and other service agencies.

Each division is headed by an executive to whom is given sufficient responsibility and authority to secure proper results. Each division is supplied with qualified line assistants who share with the division heads the responsibilities and authority necessary to perform the tasks assigned to them.

The directing and co-ordinating head of the five major divisions is the representative of the controller—the assistant controller. To assist him in deciding matters of concern to more than one division is a committee without authority except to recommend, composed of the heads of the five major divisions and the managers of the various service agencies. To advise him in the management of student-supported enterprises is a committee composed of three students appointed by the president of the student body.

Each division head decides for all divisions the methods to be used in the performances of the functional activities in his charge. For example, the head of the control division decides the kind of records to be kept at the laundry. Each division head directs, supervises, and is responsible for the execution of the work performed by others in his division, regardless of the type of work done; however, in the delegation of tasks to the line members, he holds them responsible for doing their tacks as outlined by the proper functional head. For example, the head of the division of auxiliary enterprises holds the superintendent of the laundry, and the superintendent of the laundry

Bing Crosby Makes Bet With N. C. Dorm

Bing Crosby, popular crooner of radio and moving pictures, last night in his nation-wide hook-up program for the Woodbury Soap Company made a wager with the residents of Lewis dormitory on the outcome of the Alabama-Stanford Rose Bowl game.

In a recent program, the singer stated that Alabama University would see stars when it meets its opponent, the Stanford Cardinals.

The boys from Lewis were quick in voicing their opinion to the contrary in a special-delivery airmail letter to the popular artist.

Last night, Bing announced that should Alabama win the game, the Carolina dormitory would be the recipient of a ping-pong table fully-equipped. If Stanford wins, the dormitory residents are each to write a card to the president of the Woodbury company requesting that Bing's salary be raised.

LITERARY GROUPS CHOOSE OFFICERS

Vergil Lee Is Elected President Of Di; Clarence Griffin Will Head Phi Assembly.

The Dialectic Senate and the Philanthropic Assembly elected officers last night for the spring quarter.

Voting in the Di Senate was conducted by show of hands rather than by secret ballot.

Charles Rawls was elected as president for the spring quarter. Officers who will assume their duties next quarter are: Vergil Lee, president; Charles Rawls, president pro-tem; John Kendrick, critic; Bob Williams, clerk; and Fred Eagles, sergeant-at-arms.

Out-going officers are: president, Mason Gibbes; president pro-tem, Bill Weaver; critic, Vergil Lee; clerk, John Kendrick; and sergeant-at-arms, Bob Williams.

Phi Assembly

Clarence Griffin was elected speaker of the Phi Assembly for the winter quarter last night by the vote of 20 to 17 over Charles Poe, the other candidate for the speaker's chair.

Robert Smithwick, retiring speaker, tendered his farewell address. Wylie Parker was elected unanimously to succeed Winthrop Durfee as speaker pro-tem. Winthrop Durfee was elected unanimously to succeed Wylie Parker as sergeant-at-arms.

Harry McMullan was favored by the assembly over Raiford Douglas Baxley for the position of reading clerk. A ways and means committee of Frank Gresson Potts McGlinn, chairman, Albert McAnally, and Raiford Douglas Baxley was chosen upon unopposed nomination by the assembly.

For assistant treasurer, chosen from the freshman class, the assembly elected Billy Seawell over Drew Martin.

WOLF FORETELLS SOCIAL SECURITY FOR UNEMPLOYED

States That We Must Turn Our Technical Skill Toward Better Social Arrangement.

SPEAKS BEFORE N. C. CLUB

"There will be millions of unemployed even when the depression is over, and the government can't set things aright by indefinitely paying people for refraining from producing the things we need because it is impossible to pay them for producing them," declared Dr. H. D. Wolf of the school of commerce, in an address before the North Carolina Club here last night on "Unemployment Insurance and Economic Security."

Dr. Wolf then pointed out that the true remedy is going to be a strong system of unemployment insurance. "It is imperative," he said, "that we turn some of our skill and intellect in technical efficiency toward a better social arrangement. We must perfect our economic system, and to do this we must apply the same principles to our economic hazards as we do to our physical hazards.

Behind Rest of World

"We lag far behind the rest of the civilized world in this," Dr. Wolf declared. "About 20 countries have unemployment insurance affecting approximately 50,000,000 workers, while we have little or none at all. Our trouble is not that there is opposition to the plan, however, but that there is so much argument over its form."

Dr. Wolf then outlined the Wisconsin plan and the Ohio plan as the two outstanding systems advocated in the United States, and predicted that their

Lawyer Recommends Constitution Change

Washington, Dec. 11.—(UP)—The elimination of the constitutional right of man to refuse to incriminate hmself, and a law allowing juries to convict on a ten to two vote were proposed tonight by Ferdinand Pecora, former acting district attorney of New York county, as two methods by which criminal courts may be made more efficient.

Pecora was a speaker at an evening session of Attorney General Homer S. Cumming's crime conference. He claimed criminal courts have sometimes failed in duty where judges were appointed for political reasons. He urged the bar associations to be vigilant in seeing that only competent men be selected.

Mullen Is Partner In Di Senate Victory

Both Teams Digress from Topic To Cast Aspersions on Campus Daily Publication.

CROWD OF 11 PRESENT

J. W. Kendrick, sophomore member of the Di Senate, won the non-existent Mary D. Wright medal last night as the Di Senate, represented by Kendrick and Robert Mullen, defeated Winthrop Durfee and Albert McAnally, Phi Assembly representatives, in the annual Mary D. Wright debate.

The senators were setting forth the affirmative side of the question: Resolved, That the federal government should assume control of the basic industries in the United States.

Attack Tar Heel

Although they disagreed on the question of control of basic industries, the debaters united in taking digs at the DAILY TAR HEEL, Representative Durfee wiping his brow with a red bandana to refute the DAILY TAR HEEL's statement that the Phi Assembly trembles at the sight of red, and allowing to peep forth from his coat the corner of a red tie which he proposed to put on should a DAILY TAR HEEL reporter appear.

Less colorful was Senator Mullen's attack on the campus daily. In beginning his speech, he stated that "unlike the DAILY TAR HEEL," the Di Senate is willing to allow other people to express their opinions.

GENEVA DELEGATE NEEDS ONLY $50

Interested People in Asheville Contribute $100; Donations to Defray Traveling Expenses.

The Anti-War Conference announced yesterday that $50 was needed to enable R. P. Russell, University junior, to attend the nternational Student Conference at Geneva, Switzerland, on December 28.

With $100 donated by a number of interested people in the city of Asheville and $50 contributed by students and faculty members here, the conference asks all others wishing to contribute to place their donations at the office of the director in Graham Memorial, or with Arnold Williams in 303 Smith.

American Delegation

The student conference was called by the World Student Congress against War which met in 1932. The attendance of the American delegation this year is being sponsored by a committee headed by Dr. Harry F. Ward, president of the Union Theological Seminary of Columbia University.

The American group will meet in New York City and embark on board the Olympia December 21. The expenses for each delegate will be unusually small because of special arrangements made by the committee in charge with the World Tour Steamship line.

The total amount will include railroad fare, steamship transportation, and living expenses in Geneva. Personal expenditures are not included in this figure of $200.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Union Board of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is printed daily except Mondays, and the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays. Entered as second class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price, $3.00 for the college year.

PARAGRAPHICS

Mr. Mullis wants to "gauge class opinion." A popular local measuring apparatus is the half-gallon jar.

Any explanation of why the lights went out is nothing more than current opinion.

Federation
To the Fore

Carolina's ex-campusite John Lang, president of the National Student Federation of America, comments on the Supreme Court's decision in support of the University of California's suspension of two student conscientious objectors to compulsory military training as follows:

"Although the Supreme Court has ruled that a student has no legal right to object to military training in colleges which prescribe it, the National Student Federation of America will continue its campaign to have all such courses made optional. The Supreme Court's decision does not alter the federation's conclusion that military training should not be compulsory in institutions of higher learning because neither its educational nor physical training values warrants its consecration as a necessity to the development of character and background, the aim of higher education."

While we know that there are many who will take direct issue with the ex-Tar Heel, we are highly enthusiastic over the federation's stand on this abhorrent question. There is recourse in legislation and it is the duty of student leaders to bring pressure to bear on those who mould the statutes.

In the Raleigh unit of the University, one of the court's land grant schools, the military flourishes much to the disgust of many on that campus, though Chapel Hill is immune.

American colleges will never be able to join together in unified action the spirit of the campuses against war as long as the R. O. T. C. exists as a compulsory part of educational training. Despite wind-bags like Mr. Hearst, legislation can and must remedy this fault existing under the court's interpretation relating to land grant schools.

Boxing
The Ears

The gentlemen from Virginia still feel slightly groggy about last year's Virginia-Carolina boxing relations. The Cavaliers say they're sick to their stomachs but we'd suggest the pain is in the neck.

A Cavalier sports writer with the good old Dixie name of Everett Lee admonishes his fellow Virginians not to believe all they hear about Carolina's last year's freshman boxers not being in school this year. They're in Chapel Hill all right, he avers, and goes on: "So when you see Fisher, Medynski, O'Flaherty, Diehl, Frucht and the rest of them climb through the ropes against Virginia, don't turn to the person behind you and exclaim, 'Well; for Pete's sake; I thought they had all left for Harlem and the Bronx long ago.'"

Mr. Lee should rest his fears of fellow Virginians turning to the person behind. The neck, we suggest, might snap in twain.

Noble
Philanthropy

The tenth anniversary of the signing by the late James B. Duke of his indenture creating the Duke Endowment for philanthropic purposes was observed in Raleigh yesterday. It marked a truly great deed, the results of which have been far-reaching and magnificent.

From the educational point of view James B. Duke's philanthropies have become perhaps the most universally known. In the promulgation of education through Duke University, this fund has done much for the youth of America. It has supplied this state with another large, progressive university, offering definite advantages to a certain class of students.

The growth of Duke University has helped this University at Chapel Hill immeasurably. It has fostered a spirit of educational rivalry, instigated beneficial reforms and developments in the state system of higher education, and given another opportunity to a group of students in this state which otherwise might be drawn from the state borders.

Duke does not compete with the University in offering education to the state students as a whole except through its abundant scholarships. The University, a state institution, is run for state students at state expense and with its traditions, its liberal reputation, and its historical records, it is unchallenged in this field. Duke, on the other hand, caters to those students who can afford more to pay for a larger, more copious display of collegiate atmosphere, attracting a cosmopolitan student body to a cosmopolitan and new educational enterprise. Old Trinity is no more.

We welcome Duke's nearness and Duke's facilities. With it and the University and the many other excellent institutions of higher learning in this state, we can truthfully say that North Carolina offers as much in this field as any commonwealth in the union.

Against All Odds

Following the recent resignation of Carl Thompson as student delegate to Geneva's peace conference, R. Phillips Russell has stepped in with a vigorousness that would become any gentleman.

Supporters of the drive, in face of campus condemnation, have attempted to improve its standing in various ways. But when one of their efforts, that of writing notices on the blackboards, is rendered null and void by sinister individuals who alter the wording to be facetious and ridiculous, then the utter lack of appreciation on the students' part is seen.

It would be a dark reflection on the Carolina student body if it failed to take advantage of its opportunities as presented. We often wonder how or why the campus can become so impractical as to remain blind to them.

War on Crime

President Roosevelt has asked for the cooperation of the country's experts on crime in an organized nationwide drive against it. He has requested the development of definite anti-crime organizations, in an effort to lessen and nullify the existing conditions.

This is undoubtedly an admirable step, and one which should yield very satisfactory results. It has seemed increasingly evident, what with fast automobiles, good roads, radio, and other modern paraphernalia, that local forces are incompetent to handle the problem of large-scale crime. The request of the President voices a very timely need, and appears to be the very thing we have been looking for.

This project can fail as easily as it can succeed, for the reason that it requires the backing and enthusiastic support of every citizen—a thing most difficult to attain. The present attitude toward crime is vividly portrayed by the success of various rackets or "rake-offs" in bulldozing their victims into submission, instead of stirring them up to the point of action against such evil practices. When the public is willing to stand up and strike back when it is being grossly preyed upon, when it has substituted active indignation for foolish sentiment, then will this program succeed.

Quiet,
Please!

The plea that was voiced in the "Campus Mind" yesterday by a resident of Everett dormitory might well be presented to the inmates of all the dormitories on the campus.

It is more important than ever right now that absolute quiet be maintained in every dorm from now until the end of the quarter. These last few days are more important than all the rest put together. If a student can really have the quiet to concentrate for the next six or seven nights, he has a fair chance to do really creditable work in his final exams.

There is no doubt but that it is almost impossible to study when there is being "hell" raised in another room in the dorm. Quiet, please!

Rogerson's Report On Business Organization

holds the laundry cashier, responsible for keeping the records of the laundry in the manner prescribed by the head of the division of control. In this manner, functions, duties, and relationships are clearly and definitely established and maintained.

Each division head, therefore, has dual responsibilities. As functional officer, his responsibilities are designated by functional activities, i.e., activities of a like nature, the results being a high order of specialization and uniformity. As executive officer, his responsibilities are designated as to performance of those directly under his direction and supervision, the results being a high order of accomplishment.

At present, the division of finance is divided into two sections. The University treasurer heads one section and is accountable for the deposit of all funds collected by the general cashier, the disbursement of funds by joint signature of self and auditor, and the custody of all securities. The general cashier heads the other section and is accountable for the correctness and collection of all student accounts for tuition, fees and room rents, the correctness and disposition of all funds turned in to him from all sources, and the proper adjustment of accounts. The general cashier has one assistant, his and the treasurer's correspondence being taken care of by the secretary to the assistant controller. All transactions in this division pass through the National Cash Register Accounting Machine.

The division of control is headed by an auditor, with an accountant next in command. The auditor is responsible for the budget and accounting systems, routines and procedures for automatic internal checks and controls, statements and reports, and departmental auditing. The accountant is accountable to the assistant controller through the auditor for office management and the correctness of transactions and the accounts.

This set up relieves somewhat the undesirable situation of the auditor being responsible entirely for the antagonistic functions of recording and auditing, and prevents the auditor from originating transactions. The staff consists of one stenographer, a bookkeeper, two Burroughs posting clerks, and an assistant to the auditor who also serves half time as payroll clerk. The accounting procedure requires that all transactions originate outside of the accounting department, that they be authorized for recording by the accountant, and that they be audited and certified to by the auditor. Complete accrual systems are kept for the University service plants and trust funds within the state controlled cash budget systems.

Auxiliary records are kept for stores, work in process, retail method for retail stores control, and complete cost control records for the various activities. Reporting follows the form recommended by the National Committee on Standard Reports for institutions of higher education and the requirements of the State Budget Bureau. Results control is effected through the budget, standardized routines and procedures, signed accountability, departmental reports, statements, and auditing.

The division of purchases and personnel is headed by a supervisor. As supervisor of purchases and stores, he is accountable for all purchases made by the various departments, commercial and auxiliary agencies, for operating stores control, and the mark up and mark down of retail stores merchandise; as personnel officer, he is accountable for the control and welfare of personnel other than faculty and the certification of payrolls.

The staff consists of two stenographer-clerks. On purchases a complete catalog and state contracts file is maintained. Four Get K O's In First Round Of Mit Tourney

Final Bouts Scheduled For Tonight; Frosh Take Victories.

Before a crowd of 200 cheering fans, the boxing intramurals got underway yesterday afternoon in the Tin Can.

Twenty-six swatting behemoths faced each other in the first day of boxing, which featured four knockout victories.

Joe Lotian acted as announcer. On the east side of the ring sat "Party Boy" Diehl, official timekeeper, and Jim Carruth, judge, while Tom Parsons, the remaining judge, occupied a seat on the west side of the ring.

Shores (D.T.D.) and May (Manly) in the 149-lb class, were the first pair to receive instructions from Referee Marty Levinson. With the sound of the bell, both boys came out of their corners fast and wasted no time in unloading their guns.

Gets Knockout

Shores, number one man on the frosh boxing team, had too much for May to cope with; 34 seconds of the second round had elapsed, when the slaughter was stopped by Levinson, and the fight was awarded to Shores on a technical K. O.

The next bout pitted O'Herron (D.K.E.) against Gilliam (Independent). O'Herron started slow but increased his pace as he went along, and midway in the second round he had his opponent hanging on the ropes, when the referee stepped in and awarded O'Herron the bout; it was the second technical kayo of the afternoon.

After fighting three closely contested rounds, Henderson (Mayflower) was awarded the decision over Rowley (D.K.E.). This bout was featured by Henderson's aggressiveness and hard slugging, but Rowley displayed some fine jabbing, which kept the bout in doubt up to the final seconds.

Bost Beaten

At this point, there was a lull in the proceedings due to a lack of contestants present, but after fifteen minutes, the bouts started again with Sam Kesselman (Aycock), defending champion in the 149-lb class, versus Bost (Sigma Nu). Despite the gameness of Bost, Kesselman soon proved his superiority, and was coasting easily in the second stanza when Levinson prevented further disaster by stopping the encounter, and raising Kesselman's right hand in token of victory.

The last bout of the afternoon found Oliver (Ruffin) against MacArthur (Grimes). Oliver started slugging early and continued his hard hitting throughout the first. MacArthur, although beaten, stuck to his guns gamely and got in some fine counter punches at the finish of the third round. Oliver was awarded the decision by both judges.

Semi-Final Bouts

When the evening bouts began at 8 o'clock, there was a crowd of 500 fans, sitting in all parts of the Tin Can and a great many of them watched the fights from the precarious seats on the rafters.

Les Ostrow (T.E.P.) lost a close decision to Hendel (Mangum) after going three fast rounds. The next bout brought Murnick (T.E.P.) and Horn (Old West) together in one of the premier slugfests of the evening, featured by Murnick's fine boxing and his opponent's durability. Murnick was awarded the decision.

Blue (Mangum) put on a last round spurt which completely

Doping The Sports

By JAMES MORRIS

FOOTBALL is swiftly taking a back seat now in favor of winter sports but there still remain several loose ends to tie together before the grid game fades from the picture entirely. Coach Carl Snavely's first Carolina grid club not only turned in an excellent season but the majority of the individual players have received recognition all over the United States. The ease with which Captain Barclay made the official All-American was not so much a surprise; the astonishing thing was that seven other Tar Heels received honorable mention from the board. I still don't believe any kind of group is able to get a good enough look at every college player in the United States to pick out the eleven best, but think the pickers must depend a lot on publicity. In the case of Barclay and the other Tar Heels it was Bob Madry, head of the news bureau. The news bureau did a great job and should receive more than just a passing hand.

I WAS glad to see that at least one group recognized Hump Snyder, blocking back of Carolina's fine team. Hump didn't get half the praise he deserved for his work both on offense and defense, although he was probably the most important cog in Coach Snavely's machine. The new Tar Heel mentor stated at the very first practice session of last winter that blocking was nine-tenths of his offensive system no matter who was carrying the ball.

NOW that most of the grid teams have finished their schedules the annual cry for new coaches has begun. In contrast with last year, the Tar Heel fans are able to sit back in comfort, more than satisfied with the set-up that functioned during the past season. At present South Carolina is doing the most hollering in the Southern Conference. According to an editorial in The Gamecock, South Carolina publication, Coach Laval, veteran mentor, is on the spot plenty as a result of last year's record. The gridders lost four out of nine games, most of the defeats coming at the hands of just fairly good elevens.

LOOKING forward some, dope has it that a few of Carolina's outstanding track men will see action in one or two of the big indoor meets up north this winter. Ed McRae, title-holder of the Southern Conference mile and cross country runs, and Harry Williamson, conference half-mile champion, are the boys who will likely do most of the running, in distances ranging from 800 meters to two miles. No official announcement has been made yet but the track coaches have been figuring on the Knights of Columbus meet at Madison Square Gardens, January 5, and the Mellrose games held sometime in February.

COACH Bo Shepard has his state champion basketeers hard at work in preparation for the opening of the season January 3, which by the way is just one day before the end of the holidays and as a result a sad thing for the great number of students who won't be able to get back until a few hours after the tilt. The strength of the cage club is still an unknown quality. All depends on whether a couple of the likely looking players out will be able to fill the positions left vacant by Dave McCachren and Virge Weathers and if the three regulars left will perform as well as they did last year regardless of the new combination.

YESTERDAY'S motion picture, advertising the great Freddie Crawford, was sort of a suck-in. The Duke All-American appeared in but one scene and that time he didn't even have on his grid uniform. However, he was wearing a sweater with an "S" all over it and then performed a little interference work by knocking Tom Brown out of a conversation with a skirt.

CAROLINA VARSITY CAGE CLUB TAKES FAST SCRIMMAGE

Entire Squad, with Exception of Captain Aitken, Takes Long Practice in Tin Can.

WILL COME BACK EARLY

The varsity cagers took a long workout yesterday afternoon in the Tin Can with a fast scrimmage as the highlight.

The whole squad was on hand with the exception of Captain Snooks Aitken; and Coach Bo Shepard was given a real opportunity to look over his material and try to select his starting five.

The team will return early from the holidays to get in some necessary drilling prior to the regular season which begins on January 3 with Elon here. It is not definite just when the men will come back.

First Lineup

As things lined up yesterday, the first quintet had Jason Glace at center; Mel Nelson and Ben Blood at forwards; and Jim McCachren and Paul Kaveny at guards. Blood, reserve guard last year, was run at forward in place of Captain Aitken. With the regular forward's return, Blood will more than likely be shifted to alternate with Kaveny at guard.

Frank Ramsey, up-and-coming sophomore, alternated with Blood at forward and turned in a good performance. His height and ability to handle the ball, as well as his being a good shot, will make this soph a valuable reserve. Tommy Irwin, of diamond fame, substituted for Kaveny at the guard place, and Randy Cooner also saw action.

Coach Shepard spent part of the practice session drilling the rest of the squad, sending nearly every man on the bench into the scrimmage before it ended.

Undefeated Alabama Prepares For Fourth Trip To Rose Bowl Classic

Thirty-three Crimson Tide Gridders Will Head Westward by Train On Friday Before Christmas; Thomas-Coached Eleven Has Scored 287 Points to Opponents' 33; Two All-Americans.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 11.—On the Friday morning before Christmas at exactly 10 o'clock, a train load of football players will embark from the campus here. They will be the University of Alabama Crimson Tide gridders and they will be singing "California, Here We Come."

The whole south will join in to give the Tide a hearty send-off and wish it the best returns of the day—especially on that New Year's Day when it encounters Stanford's Cardinars in the annual classic of the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena, California.

Fourth Time West

For the fourth time in eight years, Alabama has been invited to the Rose Bowl. Thrice Wallace Wade carried the Tide westward; this year Frank Thomas will lead the parade. And Coach Thomas will be trying to uphold Alabama's record of no defeats in Rose Bowl competition.

The Tide has turned in a total of 287 points this season to the opponents' 33. In the last three games, the Thomasans piled up a total of 113 tallies to a blank on the enemy's side. Leading this array of offensive power has been Millard "Dixie" Howell who has carried over ten touchdowns. Joe Demyanovich has tallied seven times. Riley Smith has converted 20 points after touchdowns.

The Tide possesses a team composed entirely of stars. Two of the team made first choice All-America honors while six received honorable mention. Howell at quarterback and Don Hutson at end were on the first string. Bill Lee at tackle, Charlie Marr at guard and Demyanovich at full have been leading candidates for sectional and even national all-star honors. Bryant at end, Smith in the backfield, and Francis at center have also received much recognition.

The Tide has been attributed with having the best line in Dixie this season, both offensively and defensively. Few yards have been gained through this mass of Alabama beef and skill. The backfield is likewise strong in all respects. Punting and passing are handled by Howell. All the four regular starters are ace broken-field runners and Demyanovich is a great line-plunger.

Leaving Friday, December 21, the team composed of 33 men plans to arrive in Pasadena on Christmas eve. Only one workout will be taken enroute to the coast, that at San Antonio, Texas, where a two-hour drill will be held to limber up the tired muscles.

WOLF FORETELLS SOCIAL SECURITY FOR UNEMPLOYED

general ideas will be incorporated in federal bills eventually enacted. He said that such a measure, the Wagner-Lewis bill, was introduced in the last session of Congress with the purpose of forcing the various states to pass unemployment insurance acts, and that it undoubtedly was withheld only to make way for the president's more comprehensive program of social welfare.

Goes to Congress Again

Dr. Wolf thinks that a similar bill will be introduced largely as a result of the reports made by the two groups President Roosevelt has appointed to investigate the subject, a special committee and an advisory commission, the latter being headed by Dr. Frank P. Graham.

Discussing the two systems, Dr. Wolf said the Wisconsin plan holds that unemployment is preventable by employers, and that its proponents therefore shape their bill in a way to give the employer every possible means of forestalling the evil. The Ohio plan, corresponding to the system used in Europe, holds that unemployment is largely beyond the control of any individual employer, and places primary emphasis on relief for the unemployed. Compared to what America has spent for unemployment relief, the European plan, as demonstrated in England, has been a success, he said.

Dr. Wolf said that most plans call for the employers to foot the bill by contributing about two or three per cent of their pay rolls. "Of course," he said, "the man who uses the goods is the man who pays in the end."

MANY BASEBALL SWAPS EXPECTED AT N. Y. MEETING

Tom Yawkey, Boston Red Sox Owner, Center of Attraction As Magnates Meet.

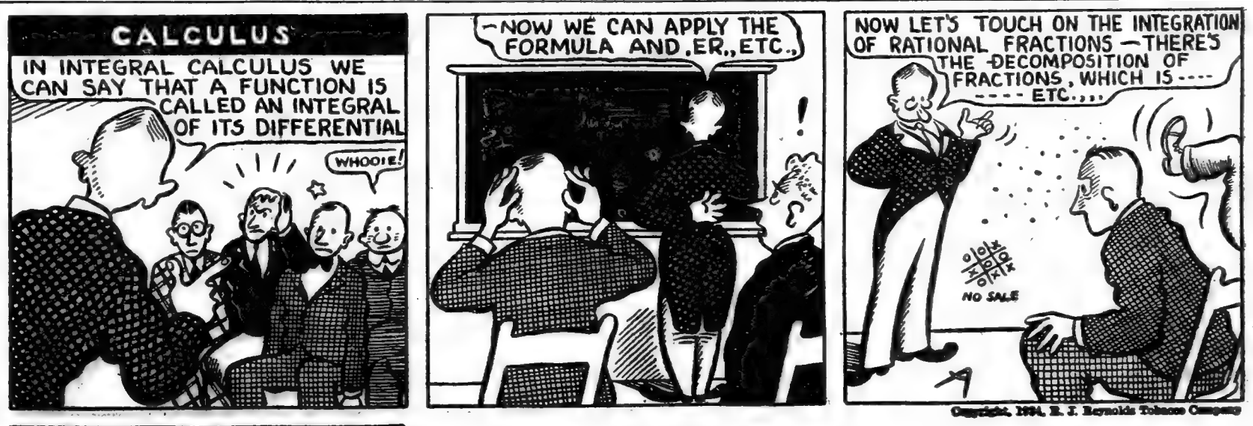
WILL CONSIDER BAMBINO

Most anything may happen today as the American and National Leagues get into the middle of their annual meetings at New York. As yet very little trading of ball players has resulted during the meetings but it is believed that there will be quite a bit of exchange before the conclusion of the gatherings.

Tom Yawkey, millionaire owner of the Boston Red Sox, is the center of attraction as he still seems willing to part with his cash in an effort to get a top club. However, the young magnate has stated that just because he was willing to give some $200,000 for his new manager, Joe Cronin, other traders should not expect him to continue spending such large sums.

Want Infielders

Yawkey and his first assistant, Eddie Collins, are at present looking for second and first basemen in an effort to round out a perfect infield. Mellilo and Burns of the St. Louis Browns are the first boys on Yawkey's list but he will also consider Buddy Myers, former team mate at Washington of Manager Cronin.



Also receiving much attention in the American League camp is Babe Ruth, mighty slugger in the junior league for the past 21 years. The Babe has said that he has finishd his career as a player and is looking for a job managing.

As yet no managerial jobs have turned up and it looks like the Bambino might be forced to retire on his already tremendous fortune. However, because of his value to the game during the past years and because he still wants to remain in baseball, the league heads are anxious to find something worthy of the Babe.

The baseball heads will also discuss the ball, which is now being used in both major leagues, and probably make plans for the all-star game.

GRUMMAN SPEAKS AT FROSH CHAPEL

Extension Director Outlines Purposes of Extension Classes and Correspondence Courses.

R. M. Grumman, director of the extension division of the University, outlined the University correspondence course and extension classes to members of the freshman class at a chapel program yesterday.

Expressing his belief that the extension bureau is of interest to all students and the spirit of a modern state university, Grumman said, "For 22 years Carolina has recognized her responsibility to function in the interest of the people of the state by organizing in 1912 the extension service.

32,000 Enrolled

"Since that time, 32,000 persons have been enrolled either in the extension classes or in the correspondence school.

"At the outset, the division is committed to the ideal that education does not end at the school house door. Education is a process that continues through life. To be truly educated, one must educate himself. The extension division is one means of self-education."

Grumman continued by showing figures from past records claiming that 16 per cent of the freshman class drops out by the end of the first year. Figured on the present class of 765, this number would be 122. "By the sophomore year, 50 per cent will have fallen by the wayside," the extension director said.

"At graduation 73 per cent will have left school or, out of this class of 765, 558 will have gone." In reply to these figures, Grumman said, "Many students then find it impossible to go through school. Therefore, it is necessary for them to resort to some other means. According to that, some of you will be prospects for our study course."

Kendrick, Di Debater, Wins Wright Award

Gerrard hall, the scene of the forensic struggle, may be classified approximately as follows: two spectators from the Phi; three spectators from the Di; three judges, R. J. M. Hobbs, J. G. Evans, and Edwin Lanier; the timekeeper, Gene McIntosh of the Phi; the presiding officer, newly-elected Phi Speaker C. W. Griffin, who won the medal last year; and the alien press representative.

The above attendance statistics are accurate only with respect to the beginning of the debate. The audience dwindled toward the end.

Next Debate Chosen

The University debate squad met in Graham Memorial last night to discuss and formulate plans for the proposed debate with Wake Forest during the winter quarter.

The team which will meet the Baptists has not yet been selected. The subject will be the munitions question.

Freshmen Meet Deans

Commerce freshmen will meet Dean Carroll in Memorial hall at 10:30 this morning, and the applied science freshmen will assemble in Venable hall to hear Dean Bost.

English 53 Interviews

The required interview with Phillips Russell for prospective students in English 53 next quarter may be had between the hours of 3 and 4:30 p. m. today and tomorrow.

ARE YOU DIZZY?

Nancy Carroll and Jack Benny as star and master of ceremonies of the star-studded ocean-going radio troupe in Reliance's "Transatlantic Merry-Go-Round," released through United Artists and showing today at the Carolina theatre.

CHANGES IN COURSES

Professor W. A. Olsen will give his public speaking course in the winter quarter instead of the spring quarter as announced in the catalogue for this year, Dr. G. R. Coffman, head of the English department, said yesterday.

Professor George McKie's course in the oral interpretation of non-dramatic literature has been postponed until the spring quarter.

English Graduates

Dr. George R. Coffman, head of the English department, announces that he will register graduate students in English in his office from 10:30 to 12 o'clock today and from 2 to 4:30 p. m. tomorrow and Friday.

PROFESSORS ADDRESS SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY

Dr. J. N. Couch and Dr. English Bagby were the principal speakers at the 356th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society in 206 Phillips hall last night.

Infirmary

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: C. R. Weinberg, Howard Hamrick, H. L. Mitchell, C. W. Waller, Meares Harris, M. E. Smith, Blair Holliday, T. D. Burnett, Margaret McDonald, C. W. Andrews, Delbert Walborn, J. R. Raper, W. N. Everett, C. B. Hinnant, Benmuth Spivey, and Mrs. Cecil Pope.

COMMUNIST UPRISINGS SUPPRESSED BY AUSTRIA

Vienna, Dec. 11.—(UP)—The government here determined to crush all threats to its semi-Fascist regime tonight.

It was announced that there had been a wholesale round-up of communists in Lint, the capital of Upper Austria, the seat of previous uprisings.

The dispatch claimed that 150 communists had been thrown into jail.

Crittenden Speaks To Raleigh Women

C. C. Crittenden of the history department addressed the Association of University Women last evening in Raleigh on "Bunk in North Carolina."

He pointed out the fallacies in the popular belief of the sanctified attitude toward the early Colonial women, the hardships they endured and the trials they were forced to undergo, and the absurdity of the anti-British attitude during the American Revolution.

The word "bunk" was first introduced in the vocabulary in 1820, when it was coined by members of Congress for the repeated speeches of Mr. Felix Walker, the congressman from Buncombe county, North Carolina, during the discussion of the Missouri Compromise.

Med School Registration

Medical students are required to register tomorrow, Friday, or Saturday, December 13, 14, and 15. Every student is required to get a permit for registration before obtaining registration blanks in the Dean's office. Those permit cards will be available at 8 South building today.

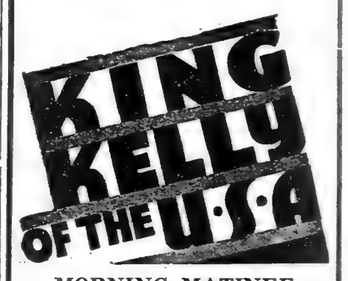
overwhelmed Austin (Lewis) and received the decision by unanimous choice of the judges. After fighting to a draw for two rounds, Bass (Beta Theta Pi) threw caution to the winds and waded into Simmons (Independent) and gained the decision after a free-swinging battle.

Shores Gets K. O.

Shores (D.T.D.) and Kesselman (Aycock), both making their second appearance of the day, met each other in the semi-final of the 149-pound class. Kesselman, evidently tired from his previous encounter, was overwhelmed by Shores' two-fisted attack. Levinson awarded the fight to Shores after 35 seconds of the first round.

The next bout found boxer against slugger and, as in the preceding encounters, the slugger prevailed when Oliver (Ruffin) continued the hard-hitting he had displayed in the afternoon and forced the referee to stop the fight in one minute and 35 seconds of the third round. Schiffer (Aycock) was the victim.



In one of the fastest bouts of the night which was in doubt until the last round, Henderson (Mayflower) eked out a well-earned victory over De Veto (L.C.A.).

In the final fight of the evening Dunham (Swain Hall) and Hearn (Mangum) staged one of the hardest slugging matches so far in the tourney. Both boys were out on their feet the last 30 seconds of the fray, but Dunham kept plugging away mechanically to earn the decision.

The winners will meet for the finals tonight at 8 o'clock sharp in the Tin Can. Bleachers will be installed for the benefit of the spectators.

REGISTRATION TODAY DEANS' OFFICES

The Daily Tar Heel

SERVED BY THE UNITED PRESS

REGISTRATION TODAY DEANS' OFFICES

VOLUME XLIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1934 — NUMBER 68

STUDENTS BEGIN ENROLLING TODAY FOR WINTER TERM

Graduates, Seniors, Juniors, and Privileged Sophomores Will Register This Week.

TO REGISTER WITH DEANS

Registration for the winter quarter will begin today for graduate students, seniors, juniors, and sophomores who either passed all their courses last year or made "B" or better on all their courses in the spring quarter of last year.

Attention is drawn to the stipulations regarding sophomore eligibility for registering today. In yesterday's issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL, it was stated that sophomores must both have passed all courses last year and received a 'B' average last spring. However, Assistant Registrar Husbands announced yesterday that either condition would render the sophomore eligible for pre-Christmas registration.

Permits Necessary

The enrolling procedure will take place in the office of the deans of the various schools. Before a student may register, he must obtain a permit card from room 8 South building.

For all divisions of the University except the college of liberal arts and the school of commerce, registration will end at noon Saturday. Liberal arts and commerce students may register during a period extending through next Thursday noon.

Freshmen and sophomores not eligible to register before the holidays will register January 3 in Bynum gymnasium.

Dr. G. R. Coffman will register graduate students in English in his office today and tomorrow from 2 to 4:30 p. m.

UNIVERSITY CLUB WILL END DRIVE

Collections for Awarding Gold Charms to '34 Varsity Team Will End Tomorrow.

The movement sponsored by the University Club, to present the 1934 varsity football team, coaches, and managers with gold football charms, will end tomorrow.

The donation boxes, which are located in Graham Memorial, the Book Exchange, and the Co-op haberdashery, will be taken away tomorrow. The club hopes to collect $200 with which to buy the charms.

Alumni Donations

Donations from Chapel Hill alumni and townspeople may be left with P. S. Randolph at the Co-op clothing store.

Claude W. Rankin, president of the Fayetteville alumni, is also collecting donations from the widely scattered graduates of Carolina.

The movement gives the students a chance to show their appreciation for the excellent record made by the 1934 gridders.

Deering Visits Campus

Paul Deering, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at V. P. I. at Blacksburg, Va., spent the day yesterday at Carolina as a guest of the University "Y" officials.

Deering is making a tour of certain southern schools. From here he will go to Duke.

Local Merchants Association Provides Street Decorations

The Christmas festoons of lights and greenery which decorate the business section of the village main street are the result of the efforts of the recently-organized Chapel Hill Merchants Association, H. H. Taylor, Student Council representative, announced yesterday.

Members of the association contributed funds for the project and also solicited money from other business firms, campus organizations, and fraternities. James Fowler and J. C. Lane led in the amount of money collected.

The University Consolidated Service Plant did the actual work of putting up the decorations and wiring the lights.

L. V. Huggins, president of the association, wishes to thank all who donated funds for the decorating.

Organizations and individuals contributing to decorating the main street, according to Taylor, are: the Students Co-op Store, Student Co-op Cleaners, Paul Green, W. S. Roberson, Book Exchange, Friendly Market, Durham Road Dairy, University Club, Phi Gamma Delta, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Beta Theta Pi, Kappa Sigma, Bo Shepard.

C. P. Hinshaw, Paul Robertson, H. A. Whitfield, Grail, L. J. Phipps, Gas Company, Harry's Grill, German Club, Chi Phi, Theta Chi, Chi Psi, Phi Delta Theta.

Bank of Chapel Hill, Berman's, Bruce's, Stetson "D", Little Shop, Pritchard-Lloyd, Strowd's, Alfred Williams, Eubanks, Model Market, Service Insurance Agency.

Orange Printshop, Hill Bakery, Cobb & Homewood, Tom Howard, Dr. Nathan, McMillan Motor Co., Gooch's Barbecue, Gooch's, Durham Dairy, Doyle Florist, Crescent Cafeteria, Goody Shop, Andrews "M" Store, University Shoe Shop.

W. C. Lyon, Ledbetter-Pickard, Jefferson Standard, Western Union, Carolina Coffee Shop, Coleman's, Carolina Theatre, New Deal Cafe, Campus Confectionery, Wootten-Moulton, Dr. Clark, Poe's Garage, Carolina Barber Shop.

FRESHMEN PLAN TO INSTILL HONOR IN STUDENT WORK

Class President Appoints Honor Council to Co-operate with Y. M. C. A. Program.

NICK READ HEADS BOARD

"Pete" Mullis began his duties as president of the freshman class last night by devoting the first meeting of the freshman executive committee to a consideration of the honor system.

Stressing the failure of freshmen to observe the conditions of the honor system, Mullis appointed a committee to collaborate with the "Y" Friendship Council, which is taking action upon the same matter, in formulating an honor council. The council, according to Mullis, will work to install in the minds of the freshmen a feeling of honor in their work.

Committee Named

In connection with the honor council, Mullis said that the future of the honor system depended upon the freshmen. The committee appointed to meet with officers of the Friendship Council is headed by Nick Read. He is assisted by Joe Pandi, Pryor McFadden, Cecil Ford, and Cranmer Henderson.

Mullis then forwarded several proposals for the members of the executive committee "to think about that we can begin an active organization immediately," suggesting the formation of a loan fund and other campus improvements.

DASHIELL SPEAKS

Dr. J. F. Dashiell, head of the psychology department, gave a talk on "A Synthesis of Learning Theories" at the meeting of the Alpha Psi Delta psychological fraternity last night in New West.

J. W. Nygard completed the program by delivering a talk on "Some Treatments of Stuttering and Their Bases."

PTA TO SPONSOR HIGH SCHOOL HOP TOMORROW NIGHT

Jimmy Fuller to Play; Affair Is For Benefit of High School Athletic Association.

ADMISSION: ONE DOLLAR

Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra will play in the University Tin Can tomorrow night at a Christmas dance for the benefit of the Chapel Hill high school athletic association.

The hop is sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association, and members of the University faculty, including Mr. and Mrs. R. B. House, Mr. and Mrs. English Bagby, Mr. and Mrs. George Howard, and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. MacKinney, who will act as chaperones.

To Be Informal

The dance will be informal and the decorations, in the Christmas spirit, will be done in red and green. Part of the proceeds will be used to purchase suits and other equipment for the girls' basketball team.

Admission will be by tickets, which may be bought for one dollar from girls of the Athletic Association, or at the door, scrip. The dance will last from 9 to 1 o'clock.

Time of Course Changed

Commerce 61, a course on sales management, will be given in the winter quarter at 9:30 a. m., instead of in the spring quarter as listed in the catalog.

English 53 Interviews

Prospective students in English 53 may get the required interview with Phillips Russell between the hours of 3 and 4:30 p. m. today.

No League Meeting

There will be no meeting of the Foreign Policy League tonight, K. C. Frazer of the history department announced yesterday.

U. N. C. Chemist Gets Rockefeller Grant

Money Given Dr. A. S. Wheeler To Further His Studies.

Dr. A. S. Wheeler, acting head of the chemistry department, has received a grant of money from the Rockefeller Foundation to further his studies with paracymene, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Wheeler has been developing the chemistry of this product, which is found in spruce turpentine, since 1918.

Thirteen papers of the University professor have been published on this subject in the "Journal of the American Chemical Society." Several more papers are nearly ready for publication.

In one of the papers to be published, a new indicator for quantitative analysis will be described. This compound is a dye and is called Cymyl Orange.

CLUB WILL GIVE CHORAL RECITAL

H. Grady Miller Will Direct Program of Christmas Music Saturday Night.

Two musical programs will be presented in the Hill Music hall this week-end, it was announced yesterday from the music department office.

The Chapel Hill Choral Club will present a program of Christmas music Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock.

Program

The musicale will be directed by H. Grady Miller, and will consist of the following:

"When the Christ Child Came," by Clokey; "The Sleep of the Child Jesus," Gevaert; "Shepherd's Story," Dickonson; and a group of Christmas carols.

The solo artists will be Mrs. L. C. MacKinney, chairman of the concert, soprano; Mrs. R. H. Wettach, contralto; Jesse Parker, tenor; and G. A. Harrer, bass. Mrs. A. S. Wheeler will be at the piano and Nelson Kennedy at the organ.

Organ Recital

Professor Nelson O. Kennedy of the music department will play his monthly vesper organ recital Sunday afternoon, at 5 o'clock in Hill Music hall.

This concert will be the last of the series this quarter, the next one taking place in January.

Kennedy's program is as follows: "Sketch in C Minor," Schumann; "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor," J. S. Bach; "Nun danket alle Gott," Karg-Elert; and the "Fourth Symphony," Widor.

CANTRELL WINS PRIZE

Prize winners were announced yesterday in a contest for students of marketing which was sponsored by J. V. Ashbaugh of the Durham Dairy Products, Inc.

Jean Smith Cantrell was awarded the first prize of $5. Henry Lunsky received the second price, $3; and the third prize of $1 went to W. G. Vinson.

The three prize winners may get their awards at Professor Taylor's office in Bingham hall.

MEDICAL REGISTRATION

Medical students must register today, tomorrow, or Saturday. Permit cards, which are required before registration, are available at room 8, South building.

Zimmermann Discusses Trade Theories

Winner of Mayflower Cup Addresses Economics Seminar.

Dr. Erich W. Zimmermann, recent winner of the Mayflower Cup for the best book of the year written by a North Carolina resident, addressed the meeting of the economics seminar last evening on the "Recent Theories of Foreign Trade."

Zimmermann said that in economic literature the orthodox theory of international trade has been both attacked and defended with considerable force and skill.

"The former geographical division between Anglo-Saxon economists on the defensive and other economists on the offensive has become blurred," the speaker stated.

Differences in theoretical views result in part from varying appraisal of the function of theory, Zimmermann said, pointing out that those who view theory as a foundation of economic policy are more apt to defend the orthodox theory with its implied recommendations for free trade, and that those who consider theory merely as a tool for the analysis and explanation of facts and conditions tend to favor progressive modernization.

ENGLISH SCHOLAR TO OFFER COURSE

Dr. Hardin Craig of Stanford University Will Teach Course On English Renaissance.

Dr. Hardin Craig of the University of Stanford, one of the most distinguished scholars of the English Renaissance in this country, will be visiting professor of English here next quarter, teaching his Renaissance course, which will be offered to juniors, seniors and graduates.

Although Dr. Craig has made his reputation chiefly through his research activities, he is reputed to be an interesting lecturer appealing alike to undergraduates and graduates.

Popular Lecturer

He was popular as a lecturer at the Universities of Minnesota and Iowa, and is expected to give public lectures next quarter in each of the three branches of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

Dr. Craig is connected with the literature and language departments here through their quarterly journal "Studies in Philology," edited by Dr. G. R. Coffman, head of the English department. For a number of years he has compiled the bibliography of recent writings in the English Renaissance which appears in this publication.

In the Association of American University Professors Dr. Craig has been very active, having served on a number of important committees.

Dr. and Mrs. Craig are expected in Chapel Hill soon after January 1, and they will probably live at the Carolina Inn.

Duke Professor Talks

Dr. W. K. Boyd of Duke University addressed the history department of Carolina last night on the subject of possibilities of co-operation between the Duke faculty and the faculty of the University of North Carolina, with special reference to the problems in history.

ROOSEVELT ASKS LEADERS TO BAN WAR FOR PROFIT

President Tells Industrial Heads To Prepare Legislation to Insure Profitless War.

BARUCH TO PLAN PROGRAM

Washington, Dec. 12.—(UP)—President Roosevelt asked the group of powerful federal and industrial leaders assembled at the White House today to prepare suitable legislation for the coming session of Congress that will take the profit out of war and will assure orderly mobilization of American men and resources in event of a future conflict.

His action was immediately sharply criticized by members of the Senate Munitions Investigating Committee as an attempt to restrict that committee's inquiry. The Munitions Investigating Committee has been in session for over a week, and is now conducting an extensive probe of the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Co.

Baruch Named

Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier and head of the war industries board under President Wilson, was named chairman of President Roosevelt's legislative group and will take charge of drafting the necessary legislation.

Baruch said tonight that war profits could be limited most effectively through a high tax on excess gains. He said, "People should be allowed to make money during war, but they shouldn't be allowed to keep it."

PRESS RELEASES ECONOMICS BOOK

W. T. Couch Announces Publication of Professor Evans' "Basic Economics."

W. T. Couch announced yesterday the release by the University Press of a book by Professor J. G. Evans of the University commerce school faculty entitled "Basic Economics."

In his book Professor Evans has treated such questions as: In what way should resources be combined and controlled so as to produce as many needed goods as possible? In what ways is human nature an obstacle to a rational system of production and consumption? Can the gap between an economics of plenty and one of scarcity ever be bridged?

Norlin's Lectures

Another book released recently which should interest Carolina students is a collection and arrangement of a series of lectures delivered here last year by Weil Lecturer George Norlin, president of the University of Colorado. They have been compiled and issued under the title "Fascism and Citizenship."

Dr. Norlin's material was derived from personal experiences during a stay as "guest professor" at the University of Berlin, both before and after the rise of Hitler.

Other books released during the past month include "An American-Mexican Frontier" by Paul S. Taylor of the University of California and "Organized Labor in Mexico" by Marjorie Ruth Hunt. Miss Hunt is a research associate in the Social Service Research Council.

PARAGRAPHICS

There weren't even enough spectators at the Wright debate to organize a posse to look for the medal.

Mr. Crittenden seemed to have a lot to say about "Bunk in North Carolina." Not bed.

We would say the Cardinal rule of football is blocking—or beating Alabama.

Give to a Worthy Cause

That Phillips Russell, anti-war delegate to Geneva, needs only $50 to complete his expense fund is both good news and bad news. It is gratifying to learn that through the generosity of those who have contributed Russell needs only this small amount. At the same time, however, it would be too bad if donations ceased coming in when the goal is so near and when contributions from sources other than this campus have been given so freely.

The anti-war delegate is to represent the University in a worth-while project. It is the University's responsibility to see that he is given a chance to accomplish his purpose.

Make your contributions—now!

It's a "Crip"

With the beginning of registration today, juniors and seniors will start rustling through catalogues and class schedules in a last-minute effort to map out their courses for the winter quarter. Although thought should have been given to this subject before now, it is not too late to make some valuable decisions in choosing courses to be taken after the Christmas holidays.

Our point at this particular time concerns what are known in campus parlance as "crip" courses. This term, while perfectly good in itself, is too inclusive to be fair to a large number of courses that the University offers. Some courses are definitely crips, meaning in this case that there is nothing particularly valuable to be gotten out of them. Others are called crips because they are easy to pass. The funny thing about most of these courses is that the average undergraduate thinks he is putting something over on the professor who teaches the easy-to-pass course by taking it.

Crip courses can be good courses. We have in mind one course in particular, "Rural-Social Economics," which for a North Carolinian (since the course is concerned with social and economic conditions in the state) is extremely advisable. Yet it is regarded unfairly as a crip, in spite of the fact that students who take it find it very worthwhile.

This, in turn, brings up an important question in the choice of courses. Our idea on the subject is that more attention should be given by students who are North Carolinians to taking courses which are directly concerned with the study of this state. This does not by any means preclude the taking of other courses on subjects other than North Carolina; if it did, such a plan of study would perhaps be too narrow. But for the student who has a choice of electives, the wise thing for him to do would be to learn something about the state he is to live in. Crip or no crip, it's valuable.

Buy Seals!

The local administrative committee in charge of the sale of Christmas seals and the dispensation of local funds for tubercular cases is instituting one of the most sympathetic and beneficial-to-the-campus innovations in the field of local public health.

This year the money received from the sale of the seals on this campus will be placed in a local fund for use in University tubercular cases or symptomatic emergencies. Students whose tests at the infirmary show a need for an X-ray to detect the presence of the serious tubercular germs and who are unable to pay for the X-ray can make appeals to the committee and the X-ray will be provided from the fund.

There were fifteen cases this year where students needed X-ray treatments and could not afford the dollar charge. Of course, this dollar charge is not the only cost to those who have been found tubercular and for those so afflicted and unable to pay for sanitorium cure, the fund offers aid.

Not all of the money collected from the local seal sale will go to the local fund. Seventy-five per cent will be thus directed, the remainder going to the state sanitorium and to defray expenses of the national tubercular campaign. The whole system is one of America's greatest charitable institutions.

Students must co-operate in every manner possible with fraternity and dormitory representatives by purchasing Christmas seals with the spare nickels and dimes. Now that the recipiency of their donation is so close and vitally connected with their welfare, it should make their obligations to co-operate all the more powerful.

Efficiency and Satisfaction

The report of L. B. Rogerson, University assistant controller, reveals a new business administration set-up that to the lay student represents the last word in efficient and democratic organization.

The students naturally demand that the business administration guard their interests as affected by the work of the business departments. Thus, the business office must hear the student side of the questions of mutual interest. The Student Advisory Committee was created for this purpose.

The students also demand that they get their money's worth. The whole system embracing the centralized control and decentralized detail idea embodies efficiency in business administration, assuring satisfactory procedures.

We welcome Mr. Rogerson's publicity because it marks the first time the business office has ever seen its way clear to let the campus know what goes on behind the barred windows. This secrecy had aroused a latent antagonism on the students' part which used to flare forth every once in so often. Now that the whole system as so efficiently organized by Mr. Rogerson has been explained, our only kick to business office policies can be that there's nothing wrong to kick about.

Perpetual Unemployment

Dr. H. D. Wolf of the University's school of commerce believes that there will always be millions of unemployed in this country even when the depression is over, and that the government cannot keep on indefinitely paying people for refraining from producing things we need because it is impossible to pay them for producing them. He offers as his remedy for the situation a strong permanent unemployment insurance.

It is not a pleasant prospect to look forward to, but it is imperative that we face the facts as they stand. The United States is far behind other countries in sponsoring unemployment insurance, countries which have recognized its inevitability and accepted the plan as the best possible solution.

With millions of unemployed in this country the situation is an acute one. That Congress will enact some such legislation seems fairly evident at the present; the trouble appears to be in deciding upon a suitable plan. The sooner red tape is done away with, the quicker relief comes.

Pass the Oakum, Boys

We see where the boys up in Washington are up to their old tricks. It seems that somebody in the Aircraft factory in Philadelphia needed a new mechanic. But according to the official rules and regulations, the Civil Service Commission had to inform every mechanic in the United States of the vacancy. So, in all, 49,200 documents were sent out, before the boss in Philadelphia got his mechanic.

The worst of it is that this is only one foible of one department of an administration out of which misspent money flows like water leaving a colander. How can governmental economy be anything but a farce when laws remain on the statute-books providing for such pork-barrel policies? We need caulking in some of these cracks.

Mangum Dormitory Takes Intramural Ring Tourney As Knockouts Feature

Dunham, Shmurak, McLean Climax Tourney With Knockouts.

Delta Tau's Runner-up; Ruffin Dorm Places Third.

A crowd of 1,000 madly cheering boxing fanatics witnessed the finals of the spectacular intramurals last night in the Tin Can.

Mangum dormitory walked off with the honors by compiling 175 points, which is the most that is allowed to any dormitory or fraternity entered. Delta Tau Delta was close behind with 100 points, while Ruffin took possession of third place with 80 points to its credit.

First Bout

The bouts began at 8 o'clock as Referee Levinson called Hendel and Page, both of Mangum, to the center of the ring. Hendel piled up a advantage due to his long reach, but was held in the final setto. Hendel won the decision because of the lead he had piled up in the early rounds.

Joe Murnick (T.E.P.) received the championship of the 129-lb division through the forfeit of Blue (Mangum). Previously Murnick had displayed fine all-around ring capabilities and he deserved the honor bestowed upon him.

The crowd came to their feet as Shores (D.T.D.) and O'Herron (D.K.E.) climbed through the ropes, and walked to their respective corners. At the opening bell the pugilists shuffled slowly to the center of the ring and circled around each other, looking for an opening. Shores suddenly sprang upon O'Herron like a lion upon its prey, throwing rights and lefts to the head. Shores continued this two-fisted attack and did not give O'Herron a chance to get set, taking seven out of the ten points awarded for the round. O'Herron came back strongly in the second round and, plugging away tirelessly, knocked Shores all around the ring.

At the bell for the final round both boys came out of their corners fast, eager to gain the initial advantage. Wasting no time, they stepped into each other and slugged it out furiously. There was a profound silence as the audience waited expectantly for the judges' final decision, which went to Shores.

Wally Dunham (Swain Hall), defending champion, in the 169-lb class was pitted against Herm Steingrob (Alpha Epsilon) in the final of that division. The first round was fairly close, with Dunham having the edge. In the second Steingrob was knocked flat twice, Dunham gaining a T.K.O.

In the second round of the 179-lb bout between Shmurak and Gwyn, both of Mangum, the bout was halted as Shmurak, throwing his first punch of the round, knocked Gwyn to the canvas. Gwyn gamely wanted to continue, but Levinson stopped the fight, and awarded Shmurak the decision on a technical K. O.

In the closing setto of the evening McLean (D.T.D.) battered Stutz (Ruffin) around the ring to gain a technical knock-out in a minute, twenty-nine seconds of the first round. This bout ended the intramurals for 1934.

Duke Pugs Open Season Saturday With Richmond

Durham, Dec. 12.— Seven members of Duke University's 1935 boxing team will be making their varsity debuts when the Blue Devil pugs open with Richmond University at Richmond on Saturday night.

Making their first appearance as varsity performers will be: Abe Altermann, bantam; Jack Kneipp, lightweight; Bill Sippel or Conrad Wyvell, welter; Al Mann, junior middleweight; Raymond Matuliwicz, middleweight; Don Schmit, light heavy; and Sully Granger, heavy.

These newcomers, with the veteran Captain Freddie Lloyd, will compose the 1935 ring team. The coming campaign will mark the second year Lloyd has served as captain. He led the 1933 team as a junior but was forced out of action last season by an operation.

YEARLINGS STOP CAGE PRACTICES UNTIL NEXT YEAR

Frosh Discontinue Basketball Work Until After Holidays Because of Exams.

FIRST GAME JANUARY 8

It may have been the intramural boxing bouts raising havoc in the corner, or the fact that Coach Skidmore was absent, but regardless of the cause, the frosh basketball squad again remained idle in the Tin Can last night.

This was the fifth consecutive day of rest for the frosh hoopsters and this premature vacation will be prolonged throughout Christmas. The squad, in the few workouts that were held, shaped up as a promising group, and when the final selection comes, a fast and shifty five should be the result.

Last year the frosh team was only fair, rolling up big scores in a few encounters, but falling down disappointingly in other instances. However, with the present aggregation of basketballers, it appears that Coach Skidmore may put out a better team than usual.

Stanford's Powerful Club Preps For Battle With Tide In Bowl

Cards Fired with Indignation as Public Acclaims Them "Underdogs"; Thornhill's Outfit Called the Strongest Club in Years; Team Possesses Numerous All-America Nominations.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Palo Alto, Cal., Dec. 12.—A determined band of gridders, fired by the general opinion which places them as "underdogs" in the coming Rose Bowl encounter, will start some real hard work immediately. Coach Tiny Thornhill has given his Stanford Cardinals, west coast champs, a short rest following the big California game and also because exams are going on at present.

This year's edition of the Cardinals will be the most formidable outfit that Stanford has ever sent to the Bowl, in fact much stronger than the eleven which tied Alabama, 7-7, back in 1927.

Best on Coast

The Cards have bowled over everything the Pacific coast could wash up—that is, except the powerful Santa Clara eleven, which tied Stanford in an early season game. They have chalked up nine wins. Besides Santa Clara, California has been the only team to score on the Stanford crew, while the home outfit has run completely wild.

Alabama is slated to bring several All-Americans with them; Stanford can match the Dixie prides with her own men. Bobby Grayson and Monk Moscrip received official All-America first teams honors. Grayson can play anywhere in the backfield and Moscrip holds down the flank in great style. Bob Reynolds at tackle and Bones Hamilton at halfback rank not far behind the first two stars. In fact ten of Thornhill's men received mention by the All-America board.

Iron Man Squad

The Cards are not only powerful, but also versatile. The team appears to be one composed of iron men, as only three of the regular lineup have failed to play a complete game during the season.

Tiny Thornhill's line is picked to match anything the southerners can bring over. Big and fast is the entire forward wall from end to end.

VARSITY CAGERS POLISH OFFENSE IN BIG WORKOUT

Shifting of Kaveny and Blood Is Biggest Development of Practice Sessions.

FIRST TEAM LOOKS GOOD

Coach Bo Shepard polished the offensive attack of his first string cagers in yesterday's practice at the Tin Can.

The shifting of Paul Kaveny from forward to guard and of Ben Blood from guard to forward has been the chief development in early basketball practice.

Forwards Get Hot

Led by Captain Snooks Aitken the first team soon caused the defense of the green-shirted reserve quint to crumble. Mel Nelson also demonstrated his ability at being a dead shot at the basket.

Jim McCachren's floor work was outstanding. The Tar Heel guard appears to be rounding into the playing form which placed him on the All-Southern team last season.

Jason Glace, center, and Paul Kaveny, guard, completed the first team's starting lineup.

LEAGUE TO HAVE REPRESENTATIVES AT S. C. MEETING

League Also Sponsors Broadcast Over WBT in Charlotte Tomorrow from 5:30 to 5:45.

TO FORM STUDENT GROUP

Joe Barnett and Clarence Griffin will represent the local Foreign Policy League at the annual convention for the discussion of foreign affairs to take place today and tomorrow at Winthrop College.

Barnett and Griffin were selected to attend at a meeting of the executive and programs committees of the league Wednesday. The delegates will leave this afternoon with K. C. Frazer of the department of history and government.

Professor Frazer, adviser to the league, attended the conference last year and was influential in its successful accomplishments.

U. N. C. Delegates

The purpose for which the delegates are attending the meeting is to further the project of the Foreign Policy League in organizing a southeastern group which will be active in expressing student opinion on the foreign policy of the United States. They will also act as official University representatives at the conference.

The league will also sponsor a radio broadcast over station WBT, Charlotte, tomorrow from 5:30 until 5:45 p. m. An outline of the league and its endeavors will be presented by members of the group.

A representative of the league will journey to New York City during the Christmas holidays with letters to Nicholas Murray Butler and Stephen Duggan in an effort to bring to Chapel Hill speakers of national note.

RECITAL IS HEARD TOMORROW NIGHT

Program Will Begin in Hill Music Hall at 8:30; Kennedy to Give Recital Sunday.

The Chapel Hill Choral Club recital will begin in Hill Music hall tomorrow night at 8:30 o'cock, according to an announcement made recently by the music department.

Professor Nelson O. Kennedy will present his regular monthly organ recital on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. This recital will be the last of the series this quarter.

Miller Directing

The musicale of the Choral Club will be directed by H. Grady Miller and will consist of the following: "When the Christ Child Came," Clokey; "The Sleep of the Child Jesus," Gevaert; "Shepherd's Story," Dickonson; and a group of Christmas carols.

The solo artists will be Mrs. L. C. MacKinney, chairman of the concert, soprano; Mrs. R. H. Wettach, contralto; Jesse Parker, tenor; and G. A. Harrer, bass. Mrs. A. S. Wheeler will be at the piano and Nelson Kennedy at the organ.

Kennedy's program on Sunday afternoon is as follows: "Sketch in C. Minor," Schumann; "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor," Bach; "Nun danket alle Gott," Karg-Elert; and the "Fourth Symphony," Widor.

Christmas Recess

Christmas recess will begin the afternoon of Thursday, December 20, and will end Friday morning, January 4, with the beginning of classes at 8:23 o'clock.

The termination date is contrary to the announcement in the University Record, which states that the recess officially ends Thursday morning, January 3. However, the change in the recess ending date was announced yesterday by Dean A. H. Hobbs, chairman of the committee on registration, and substantiated by Dean of Administration R. B. House.

Freshmen, new students, and all students who will not have previously registered, will register Thursday, January 3, beginning at 9 a. m.

WOLF GATHERING SURVEY REPORTS

Records Will Be Basis in Formulating Unemployment Insurance Bill.

Employing six research workers and a statistician, Dr. Harry D. Wolf of the University school of commerce has begun, as executive chairman of the State Unemployment Insurance Commission, the task of assembling reports on a survey of the jobless in this state that he has been directing since last August.

When the data is complete, it will be presented, together with a bill providing a system of unemployment insurance, to the forthcoming General Assembly.

General Fund

The bill to be presented is expected to specify periodical payments by both employers and employees into a general fund to be used to aid the workers in time of unemployment.

Such a bill was introduced at the 1933 session of the Legislature by Senator W. O. Burgin of Lexington, but it was deferred when Governor Ehringhaus appointed the commission on which Dr. Wolf is now serving.

Dr. Wolf will remain in Chapel Hill until the completion of the report. He outlined the forthcoming legislation in an address to the North Carolina Club December 11.

XMAS SEAL DRIVE NOW IN PROGRESS

Mesdames W. R. Berryhill and A. S. Jordan Head Campaign; Proceeds Go to Students.

The annual drive for the sale of Christmas seals in Chapel Hill is now underway under the direction of Mrs. W. R. Berryhill and Mrs. A. S. Jordan, publicity director.

This year the receipts from the local sale will be used to create a fund for use of University students afflicted with or having symptoms of tuberculosis. The money can be used to pay for X-ray treatments for students unable to raise the money for such a purpose and also for sanitorium treatment of financially-incompetent students found to be tubercular.

Downtown Booths

Booths for the sale of the seals will be placed at the post office and at other convenient spaces down town. Fraternities will respond to the campaign through their own representatives and dormitories are being canvassed by Y. M. C. A. members.

Heretofore the proceeds from the sale have gone to the Chapel Hill township.

The creation of the student fund will take care of students in the future, similar to 15 such cases this year, who are unable to get proper medical attention.

Mrs. Jordan stated recently that there are between 50 and 60 active cases of tuberculosis in the community. These will be affected through town seal sales, a record being kept during the campaign of receipts from students and townspeople as separate contributing units.

Part of the money received goes to the expense of the national tubercular relief organization and to the state sanitorium. Seventy-five per cent of the money, however, goes to the local unit.

Bull's Head Open

The Bull's Head bookshop in the Y. M. C. A. building will remain open during the holidays, announced Elizabeth Johnson, director of the bookshop.

Miss Johnson stated that she would be at the shop "between sleeps, between eats and between a few other necessary periods of recreation."

Sluggish German Intellectuals Give Profusely To Fiery Cause

The "World Topics in German Four Class," an eight-thirty assembly conducted by Dr. E. C. Metzenthin, voted the other morning to appropriate a sum of not less than $4.00 from its treasury for the purpose of aiding ex-assemblyman Phillips Russell in his trip to Geneva.

The class, suddenly realizing that Russell's name had been dropped from the roll and knowing the value of Russell's profoundly intellectual contributions to the world political discussions carried on at its meetings, willingly voted that its coffers be emptied by at least $4.00 for his cause.

Burdened Souls

The assembly is composed of a group of students whose very souls are burdened with every international problem. For months they have chewed the anti-war rag with vigor; always, of course, Russell led the chewing. From Russell's head there continuously popped words of extraordinarily pearly textures. So pearly that at times they even outshown those of Dr. Metzenthin—but rarely.

For the last 12 assemblies the W.T.I.G.F.C. has been extremely sluggish in action. Many members for lack of topics resorted to ruminating on bits of gum. Even the Herr Professor became less ardent in his pursuit of argument. From a center of intellectual fire the class suddenly sank into a crater of Germanic darkness.

This condition so vexed the Herr Doktor that he looked about for reasons. Thus it was that recently he explained to the assembly that the absence of Russell was the sole cause of the sudden change in things. It was thought that Russell had just given out of fire. "So," said the Herr Professor, "We must send him to Geneva for new coals."

Nazi Terrorists Plan Assassination of Fey

Vienna, Dec. 13.—(UP)—Minister of Interior Major Emil Fey has been slated for an early assassination by a small group, determined to be fanatical Nazis, the United Press learned tonight from high authorities.

The plot was part of terrorist activities that are keeping Europe in a turmoil, one attempt already having been made on Fey's life last month.

The recent plot against the Department of Interior head is a challenge to the League of Nations in its new resolution calling on all members to aid in a stern campaign to rid the Continent of terrorism which has taken a startling toll in lives among leaders in the past year.

HIGH SCHOOL A.A. TO SPONSOR HOP

Jimmy Fuller and Orchestra Will Furnish Music.

An informal dance, lasting from 9 to 1 o'clock, will be given tonight in the Tin Can for the benefit of the Chapel Hill High School Athletic Association. Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra will furnish the music.

The hop is sponsored by the Athletic Association, and members of the Parent-Teacher Association, including Mr. and Mrs. R. B. House, Mr. and Mrs. English Bagby, Mr. and Mrs. George Howard, and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. MacKinney, will act as chaperones.

The Tin Can will be decorated in red and green. Tickets will be one dollar and may be bought at the door or from members of the Athletic Association.

Part of the proceeds will be used to buy suits and other equipment for the girls' basketball team.

DOCTOR HEDGPETH SPEAKS ON COLDS

Infirmary Official Discusses Preventative Measures for Common Ailments.

Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth of the University infirmary concluded his series of lectures on health and hygiene at freshman chapel yesterday morning.

Calling attention to the possibility of exposure at this time of year, Dr. Hedgpeth asserted that chills were a presupposing factor in colds. Warning against leaving gym in a sweat without adequate protection against the wintry weather, he asked the freshmen "not to turn on the cold water immediately on taking a shower, but to taper it on slowly."

Athlete's Foot

The infirmary physician told, in connection with a discussion on the so-called athlete's foot, that the infirmary was now working on preventive measures to be placed in the shower rooms.

Condemning the popular measure against cold at night by closing the windows in the room, Dr. Hedgpeth claimed that the more oxygen that circulated throughout the room the greater was physical and mental alertness.

Dean Bradshaw announced that there would be no freshman chapel this morning due to Dr. Frank P. Graham's trip to Washington.

Four Divisions Made Of Schools And Departments Of University

Faculty Adopts Plan "to Co-ordinate Kindred Subjects and Departments for General Good of University and Students" And to Formulate Junior-Senior Study Programs.

Meeting Wednesday afternoon, the general faculty adopted a plan by which kindred departments and schools will be classified into the four divisions of humanities, natural science, social science, and commerce for the purpose of formulating programs of study for the junior and senior years.

The new plan, which will go into effect September, 1935, is intended, according to Dean R. B. House, "to co-ordinate kindred subjects and departments for the general good of the University and the students."

Instruction will be organized under the new system to carry out this intention as far as possible; but the plan, says Dean House, "aims at the same time at full freedom for special and individual programs of study."

Special Courses

Certain special courses, such as pharmacy, engineering, premedical and pre-dental work in applied science, and B.S. courses in chemistry and geology, necessarily have programs which do not fit in with this plan. Adjustments will be made to meet this situation.

There will be no change in the administrative set-up under the new system.

From the faculties of the four divisions President Graham will select councils which will do most of the actual work of formulating the programs of study. These councils will advise with the various constituent departments of the divisions and will be open to suggestions from individual students as to the courses of study they wish to pursue.

"6-6-6 Plan"

Each student will follow in his last two years what is known as the "6-6-6 Plan." He will take six courses in his major, six, upon the advice of the council

JEALOUS DORM ATTACKS LEWIS

The offer of Bing Crosby to present Lewis dormitory with a fully equipped ping pong table in the event that Alabama's Crimson Tide makes Stanford see stars, has brought forth signs of revengeful jealousy.

A group of boys from a neighboring quadrangle surrounded the dormitory and began the siege. Rocks, milk bottles, and all available debris was hurled in the direction of the windows, which crashed in many places. The residents of the rooms affected by the crashes rushed out and put the vandals to flight.

Caught!

One of the more daring occupants of the stricken dormitory followed the attackers and soon returned to the dorm claiming that he saw said-rivals entering Mangum. The police were then notified and rushed over to Lewis' neighbor. One of the boys involved in the mischief walked out of Mangum and as he broke into a run was caught by an officer. He claimed to have been at the dorm store during the time of the siege, but the finding of rocks in his pocket quickly convinced the officer to the contrary.

Peace apparently reigns supreme in the trouble area.

The total amount of the damage was five windows and a broken sign. The windows have been replaced but the sign remains down. Lewis dormitory residents are now having heated discussions as to whether "Lewis" should once again adorn their residence or whether instead "Crosby" should be substituted.

HAYES AND FERA CLASSIFY MAXIMS

Students Working under FERA Funds and Supervised by Spanish Professor.

Through FERA funds, several boys, under the direction of F. C. Hayes of the Spanish department, are making a file of Spanish proverbs.

Approximately 32,000 proverbs have already been filed out of a total of about 80,000.

Historical Dictionary

The ultimate end of this work is to compile an historical dictionary of Spanish proverbs.

In one of the books of Spanish proverbs used in making this collection, 14 pages deal with God; 8 pages on friendship; 5 pages on love; 3 pages on death; 8 pages on evil; 11 pages on man; and 17 pages deal with women.

Proverbs, Mr. Hayes pointed out, are practically the same everywhere. As an illustration, he quoted, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." The Spanish version of this is, "A bird in the hand is worth more than 100 buzzards flying."

CLASS ENROLLING CONTINUES TODAY

Registration Ends Tomorrow Except for A.B., Commerce.

Registration for the winter quarter will continue today in the offices of the deans of the various schools.

Registration began yesterday. Graduate students, seniors, juniors, and sophomores who either passed all their courses last year or made "B" or better on all their courses for the spring quarter of last year are eligible to register.

Before a student may register he must obtain a permit card from room 8 South building.

For all divisions of the University except the college of liberal arts and the school of commerce registration will end at noon Saturday. Liberal arts and commerce students may register during a period extending through next Thursday noon.

Freshmen and sophomores not eligible to register before the holidays will register January 3 in Bynum gymnasium.

Dr. G. R. Coffman will continue to register graduate students in English in his office today from 2 to 4:30 p. m.

PARAGRAPHICS

And from the intentions of a major part of the campus, Doc Craig's course will probably have to be given in Kenan stadium.

The way the New Deal is distributing 49,200 documents for one mechanic, it looks as if F.D.R. has found the forgotten man.

The incoming Tide will no doubt fill the Bowl to overflowing.

Honor Among The Freshmen

The new freshman president is starting out on his tenure of office with an appointment of a committee to study the honor system. He stressed the failure of freshmen to observe the conditions of the honor system, and hopes that the work of the committee will serve to instill in the minds of the present freshman class a feeling of honor in their relations here.

Committees and programs devoted to this same purpose have been instigated here before, but up till now they have been mainly nominal and inactive. The field for action and a definite stand on this question is self-evident. If Mullis succeeds in his plan, he will have accomplished something few freshman presidents in the past have, a fulfillment of pre-election promises.

Congratulations are due to him and to the committee that he has appointed.

Governmental Housecleaning

Second only to unemployment in these United States is the ever present menace to American society—crime. Even here crime is placed second only because unemployment is a more recent and a more immediate problem; that is, it has become a foremost ill condition to be relieved by the federal administration within the past few years. Crime, however, costs the nation annually approximately two and a half times what unemployment relief consumed during the past year.

Governor Ehringhaus of this state recently appealed to the United States as a whole, as well as to the law administration of his own state, to inaugurate a sweeping campaign to terminate that evil. Federal officers have in previous years launched drives of the sort advocated by the governor, but they have all been sadly short-lived. These former thrusts have been encouragingly successful while in operation.

Ehringhaus, in stating the main reasons why crime prevention in this commonwealth is not faring better (and he might well have allowed the reasons to apply to the country in general), enumerated the two most important as being: 1) disorganization of the law enforcing agencies, and 2) inadequate personnel.

This latter is doubtless the most imminent of the two, inasmuch as it points toward those members, inevitably present in all governmental departments, who are suckers for bribes and who are potentially crooked. If it were possible for the governor in his house cleaning to weed out such individuals, his project would be well on the road to success. He might try this at least, and the installation of officers, county agents and the like, who have recently been elected and are shortly to be installed, is not a bad place to start.

Taking Profits Out of Warfare

President Roosevelt stirred up a tempest when he asked a group of powerful federal and industrial leaders to prepare legislation for the coming Congress which will take the profit out of war and assure orderly mobilization of American men and resources in the event of future conflict. The president's action was severely criticized by members of the Senate munitions investigating committee, which feels that this step will halt and check the investigation now being carried on.

President Roosevelt wants to get a definite piece of legislation against wartime profit making through the present session of Congress. The most important recommendations for the new legislation include equal treatment and distribution of labor, safeguards against inordinate rises of wartime prices, and conservation of guidance of private capital for essential uses during time of stress.

The committee's accusations seem to hinge on the fact that it is afraid that the work will be discounted. Its apprehension seems to us to be justified. The committee has uncovered a cesspool of blood-money and has made revelations that heretofore have not been public property. It has gone about this investigation to show the impotence of arms legislation when confronted by a munitions lobby. Anything that even remotely resembles a hindrance to a complete probe of the situation would be contrary to the public good. Let the investigation be concluded, then legislate. And in the meantime, let every newspaper in the country publish the filthy transactions of these "merchants of death." It will be a powerful deterrent to war.

A Hand for The Glee Club

The Glee Club is a campus institution composed of a comparatively small group of students who devote three hours of their more or less valuable time a week to practice, and they have succeeded in getting up a repertoire of some ten songs that is far from bad. Grady Miller has been on the job at every practice during the quarter and has even gone so far as to institute an extra practice once a week for those new men who felt that they could benefit from more individual instruction.

The University Glee Club occupies on this campus a unique position, incongruous when compared to the position occupied by the glee clubs in other large universities. To be a member of such an organization in universities like Harvard and Yale is a recognized and sought after honor. Here the members are comparatively unknown unless they are active in other fields also. Yet, the quality of the University Glee Club's work stands on equally as high a plane as the choral work in other schools.

Campus attitude toward trained group singing is, as in other lines of endeavor, lethargic. Lamentable though this is, the remedy can lie only with the individuals. Until this attitude changes, the Glee Club will probably have to resign itself to its fate, and have as its reward appearances in other schools and its own personal satisfaction of a job well done.

Fun for The Kiddies

Yesterday afternoon we had quite a time getting the South building magnates to decide about the date on which Christmas recess solemnly ends.

After a long official argument officialdom granted us an extra day. We're tickled!

Credit Where Credit Is Due

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

May I express to you in behalf of the entire business staff appreciation of your editorial commending our present organization plan. Student understanding and confidence are especially essential to the best performance of this office. They are necessary also as a firm foundation for the alumni loyalty and support of the future. These considerations will lead us always to encourage the interest and advice of student leaders relative to our problems.

I deem it important, however, to call attention to a possible wrong interpretation of your editorial. The policies and arrangements that you have been good enough to commend are not so much an innovation as a gradual development over a period of years. They embody the ideas and judgment of the entire local business staff, under the wise guidance of the controller, Mr. Charles T. Woollen, and also the suggestions of other University officers.

While glad to accept responsibility for the adoption of the plan, I wish to make it clear that credit for its good features must be widely distributed.—L. B. ROGERSON, Ass't Controller.

Changes Being Made In Geology Courses

Geology courses are being revamped and are being made more practical by effecting a greater relationship to the modern business methods, according to an announcement from the department head yesterday.

The course in commercial geography or geology 52 offered by the department of geology is to be given in the winter quarter with a decided shift of emphasis to make it more applicable to present conditions.

The course in the geology department will revolve around such problems as the disposition of the Saar Basin, the recent Japanese aggressions, and the Balkan troubles, with emphasis on the manner in which they affect world trade. The purpose in the drastic change in the geology courses is to give a general understanding of world commerce and a knowledge of some of the more crucial international problems.

Playmaker Head to Discuss Folk Drama in Los Angeles.

Speeding across the continent of North America, up hill and down dale, sleeping and eating and gazing out of pullman windows on the vast expanse of our native land, Professor Frederick H. Koch is on his way to Los Angeles to tell a group of teachers how to make folk plays.

Koch left last night on his railroad cruise to the west, planning to whisk across and back again before December 23, when he is scheduled to appear in Raleigh to read Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

Many thousand miles must be traversed before the Carolina Playmaker head will give his six lectures, two a day, to the annual Teacher's Institute in Los Angeles. According to Koch, he will use as the general topic for his lectures, "Making an American Folk Drama."

Koch taught in the University of California and the University of Southern California in past summer school sessions, and the people of California will not be disturbed should Proff Koch climb off the west-bound express, drowsy eyed, sooty and tired. They know that no ride on an iron horse can shake loose his heart-full of folk drama.

CAROLINA LEADER MAKES COLLIER'S MYTHICAL ELEVEN

Pick by Grantland Rice Is No. 4 for Great Tar Heel Guard.

New York, Dec. 13.—(UP)—George Barclay, Carolina's varsity guard-captain, continued his All-America habit today by being named on the Collier's Weekly team.

The magazine placed on its annual selections the following: ends—Hutson, Ala., and Larsen, Minn.; tackles—Lee, Ala., and Reynolds, Stanford; guards—Barclay, North Carolina, and Bevan, Minn.; center, Shotwell, Pitt.; quarterback—Grayson, Stanford; halfbacks—Wallace, Rice, and Borries, Navy; fullback—Lund, Minn.

By making the annual selection of Grantland Rice and an advisory board of well-known coaches and sports writers, it brought Barclay's total on famous All-America teams to four. He was also picked on the first elevens of the All-America board, NEA, and AP.

CAROLINA CAGERS SHOW GOOD FORM IN FAST PRACTICE

Although Aitken and Glace Missing, Varsity Club Clicks on Both Offense and Defense.

RAMSEY TRIED AT CENTER

Coach Bo Shepard's White Phantoms took a fast scrimmage yesterday afternoon and turned in quite a creditable performance. In fact, they really got hot on both offense and defense.

Playing without the services of two star regulars, Captain Snooks Aitken and Jason Glace, the first string quintet had things practically its own way over the second squad. Individually and as a team, they showed what resembled midseason form. They clicked near perfectly on offense; and only widely scattered breaks for the goal by the seconders broke their practically impregnable defensive play. Their passing was by far the best of the early season practice.

New Lineup

Again Ben Blood, first reserve guard last season, was at the starting forward post, teamed with Mel Nelson. With Jim McCachren at guard was Paul Kaveny, and Frank Ramsey was in the jumping place due to the absence of Glace.

Both the forwards looked good in breaking for the basket and making good some fast crip shots. McCachren came in also for some nice shots under the hoops, as well as Kaveny. Ramsey devoted his attention to his specialty, the push shots several feet away from the basket.

The showing yesterday was a vast improvement over previous working. With the addition of the two regulars to the scrimmages, the first string quintet sizes up to be a potential aggregation with several excellent reserves.

Boxing Meeting

Coach Crayton Rowe has called an important boxing meeting tonight at Emerson field at 7 o'clock. He wants all varsity boxers and all freshmen who took part in the intramural mit tourney to be present.

FROSH DOMINATE BOXING TOURNEY

Five Yearlings Get Titles in Fast Tournament; Several Prospects See Action.

The intramural boxing tourney closed in a blaze of kayos Wednesday evening, but the memory of it still lingers among the spectators who packed the bleachers. The smoke of battle having cleared, Mangum holds a clear claim to honors.

Freshmen dominated the winners, five first-year men capturing their final bouts to take the titles. Larry Hendel, freshman of Mangum, started the fireworks by receiving the nod over Page, last year's champion, in the 119-lb class. Tuesday night, Hendel slowed up Les Ostrow and he followed this win with a victory over Page, giving him the title.

Joe Murnick, 129-lb firebrand, donned the next crown, winning his division by forfeit from Jim Blue. In his only encounter, Murnick put on a brilliant exhibition in taking the decision from Horn.

Bass Shows Form

The 139-lb class was taken by Tommy Bass, yearling, in a clean-fought bout, when he outboxed Benton in three fast rounds. It took a spurt by Bass in the final round to bring him the advantage over his opponent, who kept on even terms for the opening two settos. Bass had previously beaten Simmons in a wide open contest that drew roars of approval from Tuesday's crowd.

VARSITY RUNNERS MAY MAKE TRIPS NORTH FOR RACES

Efforts Made to Get Invitations To Leading Indoor Games; Start Winter Practice.

MEETS TO BE AT NEW YORK

At its meeting yesterday afternoon, the varsity track squad was told that all possible efforts are being made to get invitations to the leading indoor track and field games to be held in New York City during the winter.

Plans were also made for the entire squad to begin work in preparation for the annual Southern Conference indoor track carnival, to be played in the Tin Can either on March 2 or 8. The definite date will be decided today or tomorrow at the conference officials' meeting.

Invitations for Stars

As things stand now it looks possible that invitations may be obtained for one or two of the outstanding Tar Heel tracksters. If more can be received, a relay team may be sent.

The men who come first in the reckoning for the trips would be Harry Williamson, brilliant middle distance man who really stepped out in last summer's NICAA and AAU meets, turning in a 4:12 mile; and Ed McRae, fast long distance man who eased through the SIC cross country meet this fall.

The games which are in question at present are the Knights of Columbus, Millrose, NYAC, and AAU carnivals.

Ruffin Dorm Leads Intramural Play For Fall With 395 Points

With football, the cake race, wrestling, and boxing already completed, Ruffin dormitory leads all campus teams in the pre-holiday ratings with a total of 395 points. In doing this it almost duplicated its last year's fall quarter activity when it led with 396.

Mangum holds second position in the campus standings with 309, while Sigma Nu, fraternity league pace-setters, ranks third with 274. Lewis is in fourth with 274. The complete standings are as follows:

NEW FOOTBALL LEADERS

Harry Montgomery and Hump Snyder, who were picked yesterday by their teammates to act as co-captains on the 1935 grid team. The two halfback stars will attempt to fill the shoes left vacant by the brilliant George Barclay, Carolina's first All-American.

Alabama And Stanford Are Rated About Equal In Pre-Game Summary

By SMITH BARRIER

New Year's Day. Rose Bowl, Pasadena, California. Alabama versus Stanford.

This is the climax to a most illustrious football season. The University of Alabama, pride of all Dixie, is going west to make its fourth visit to the Tournament of Roses; and Stanford University will act as the home team, presenting what is recognized as the strongest club on the coast in recent years.

Two elevens of brain and brawn will meet. Two groups of brilliant stars of the gridiron will meet. Two master coaching minds will meet. And—as things line up now, it looks like another surge of the Tide from down Tuscaloosa way.

No Games Even Close

Frank Thomas' boys have swept through nine without defeat or any nearness to a close game. Tiny Thornhill's squad has also won nine games but have a tie with Santa Clara marring a perfect record. 'Bama has tallied 287 points to the Cards' 219, while the Stanford team has allowed only 14 points against it to the Tide's 33.

Both teams boast men of All-America calibre. The Tide's Howell, Hutson, and Lee are matched by Stanford's Grayson, Moscrip, and Reynolds. Five additional men on the Dixie squad received honorable mention on the official selection while seven of the Cards were given the same honor.

Frank Thomas is completing his fourth year at Alabama and in his regime there has won 33 games, lost 4 and tied one. Tiny Thornhill is finishing his second year at Palo Alto and this marks the second time he has taken his team to the Bowl.

Man for Man Rating

Getting down to the real facts, it seems that the teams are nearly equally balanced. Alabama possesses the strongest and best all-around line in recent Dixie football; Stanford can match this with Pacific's best. Alabama should have a slight edge on the flank positions. Moscrip and Hutson balance up evenly; but Bryant, another fine end, should be given the edge over Thornhill's Topping, although the latter is steadily improving and may reach his height on New Year's Day.

At tackle only a flip of the coin could decide the difference. Reynolds and Lee are among the best tackles in the nation. Stanford's big Callaway is rated one of the best tackles on the west coast; Whatley of Alabama is possibly an equal to Callaway.

Alabama should hold a slight lead in the guards. Marr is the outstanding guard of the group giving 'Bama the deciding point. This year Stanford lost the ace pair of guards, Corbus and O'Connor. They have been replaced by Rouble, Adams, Black, and Walton, with the first two getting the starting call. Thomas' other guard is Dildy.

Muller Best at Center

Muller, the Card powerhouse center, looks slightly better than the southerner, Francis. Both are fast and almost impregnable on defense.

The backfields are the prides of the nation. Both are fast and clever, gifted in all the arts a good quartet should possess. Defensively and offensively both have completely outshone all the opposing backs during the season. The Stanford four of Alustiza, Hamilton, Van Dellen or Maentz, and Grayson are just an equal match for Alabama's Smith, Boozer, Howell and Demyanovich.

Alustiza does the punting for the Pacific team and Howell for the southerners. The former is an accurate kicker, but Howell probably has overshadowed him. The Tide halfback has a marvelous average for the year of 43 yards. The same men do the passing, and again Howell is the better of the two.

Bucking the line for short gains in a pinch is handled by Hamilton and Grayson of Stan-

BACKFIELD ACES WILL HEAD 1935 FOOTBALL TEAM

New Leaders Have Been Lettermen for Two Years; Juniors.

Herman Snyder and Harry Montgomery, backfield stars for the past two years, were yesterday elected by their teammates to captain the 1935 Tar Heel football team.

Both co-captains have won their letters for the past two years. Snyder hails from Monroe, while Montgomery is from Tarentum, Pennsylvania. The new leaders will succeed the brilliant George Barclay, All-American guard.

Both boys were aces on the freshman team in 1932, Hump playing at fullback, while Montgomery was a triple-threat halfback. Harry came to school already with a reputation; his brother Cliff made All-American quarterback at Columbia last year and was the biggest star of the Rose Bowl classic last New Year's.

Snyder Stars in 1933

In 1933, under Coach Collins, Snyder held down the regular fullback post while Montgomery alternated at the quarterback position. Snyder was probably the most consistent ground gainer on the team.

During the past season Snyder was shifted to the important blocking back spot and turned in a excellent performance in every contest. Besides running interference in perfect fashion, h emade occasional gains by hitting the line and catching passes; Baldy was a power backing up the line on defense.

Snyder climaxed the season by receiving the Millis Blocking award given to the man considered by several state sports writers the best blocker in the Blg Five.

Montgomery started on Coach Carl Snavely's first eleven as an understudy to the All-Southern Charlie Shaffer, right wingback. When Shaffer was injured Monty was moved to the first string and started the Georgia Tech contest.

He also began calling the signals from the wingback post and soon was spotted as a clever signal caller; his heady work added much to the late season drive. He was especially brilliant in the 7-0 victory over Duke for the state title.

STATE PLUMBERS REQUEST COURSE

Dean Miller Comments: "It's All News to Me."

A proposal petition to U. N. C. by the North Carolina Association of Plumbing Contractors for the installation here of a course in heating, air-conditioning, ventilation, and related subjects is, in the words of Dean W. J. Miller of the school of engineering, "All news to me."

The association voted to ask the University for consideration of the aforementioned courses at its annual convention which met in Greensboro last Tuesday. President W. E. Wilson of Asheville presided.

Several state papers have attacked in their editorial columns the idea of the addition of any such courses. The Raleigh News and Observer, on its editorial page under the caption "Add Plumbing," says, "And if plumbing at Chapel Hill, why not cosmetology or beautistics at Greensboro."

FROSH DOMINATE BOXING TOURNEY

Bill Shores, promising freshman, was probably the most outstanding youth in the tourney. Winning his opening two fights by the technical knockout route, he climaxed his campaign with a thrilling win over the steadfast Ed O'Herron. O'Herron, in relinquishing the title, was unable to stop the tigerish tactics of the winner, although he was in on his opponent time and time again.

Ed Oliver, frosh grid star, was awarded the medal in the 159-lb class, when Henderson failed to appear for his bout. Oliver, with his baseball windup, had kayoed Vic Schiffer in his sole fracas.

Dunham in Second Win

Twice-champion is the distinction that fell to Wally Dunham when he battered Herman Steingrob out of the tournament in the final of the 169-lb division. Holding the title last year, he repeated Wednesday evening by dropping Steingrob for the count, having defeated Hearn in his opening battle.

The most surprising incident of the tourney occurred when Shmurak, first-year fighter, on the defensive the entire encounter and seemingly on his way to certain defeat, caught the confident Harvey Gwyn with a haymaker and sent him reeling out of the competition. This was Shmurak's only fight, and it was one punch that brought him the 179-lb medal.

The unlimited title went to Roger McLean, who opened fast and overpowered Stutts of Ruffin, to stop him in the first round. Neither contestant had fought a preliminary round and McLean took the title through his win.

High School Gives Four Plays Tonight

The Dramatic Club of the Chapel Hill high school will present "A Dramatic Cargo," consisting of four one-act plays, tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the high school auditorium. Admission will be ten cents.

Members of the club are directing the plays as well as taking parts in them. Proceeds will be used by the club to finance its participation in the state dramatic tournament this spring.

The plays and directors are as follows: "Peter Appears," directed by Louise Hudson; "Cinderella and the Glass Earring," directed by Rachel Howard; "The Artists Nightmare," directed by Mary Anne Steene; and "The Woodcutter's Christmas," directed by Max Boone.

ford and fullback Demyanovich of the Tide. All three are good, in fact among the leaders in the country; but Grayson's presence here gives the Thornhillians the edge. Hamilton is also an excellent blocker.

All the men are good broken-field runners with Grayson and Howell taking the lead. These two made most All-America picks due to their ability to step off-tackle or around end and then squirm through a thickly inhabited secondary and tertiary defense for long gains.

The Stanford offense is built mostly around Grayson, although Hamilton shares the top honors with the fullback. The Crimson Tide's drive is based entirely on Howell. Of the 43 touchdowns scored during the season, Howell has tallied 10 of them. Grayson is likewise the high-scoring Cardinal.

Placekicking Ace

Place kicking advantages will fall to the Stanford eleven. Moscrip is their ace, having kicked 19 points after touchdowns and five field goals during the season. He is fifth highest scorer in the conference, but has never scored a touchdown. Smith of Alabama has converted 20 points after six-pointers via placement.

Leaving the physical side of the question and going to the mental, it looks like Stanford is getting the breaks. Alabama is generally rated the best of the two and likely winner. Stanford is the underdog and, with the fight that is generally conceded the underdog, may overpower the Tide, which may be over-confident. The Cardinals are also remembering the quite illustrious upset the smart Columbia Lions handed them last year.

Alabama will be attempting to uphold their record of undefeated play in the Bowl; and incidentally Thomas' visit will mark the only time a Notre Dame schooled mentor has appeared in the Bowl with the exception of the old master, "Rock" himself.

BAND MEMBERS MUST RETURN EQUIPMENT

All members of the University band who have not returned their band coats must do so immediately.

This is imperative as officials will be forced to take drastic measures to collect the coats if they are not in before the holidays begin.

Coats are to be taken to the office of the music department in Hill Music hall.

GREENSBORO GETS PHI BETE DIVISION

Dean Jackson Speaks at Installation of Honorary Society.

Greensboro, Dec. 12.—A section of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary fraternity, was installed at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina this afternoon. The division is to be known as the Woman's College section of Alpha Chapter.

Dr. Theodore H. Jack, president of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, made the principal address of the occasion. Dr. W. C. Jackson, dean of administration at the college for women, was among the others who spoke this afternoon and at the dinner served at the Greensboro Country Club this evening.

FIND BODIES OF COUPLE MURDERED BY BANDITS

Shanghai, China, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Bodies of John C. Stam, 27, and his wife Elizabeth, 25, murdered by bandit abductors, were found eight miles from Tsing-teh, the China Inland Mission reported today.

The fate of the couple's two months old daughter, Helen, is unknown, although the first reports from Tsing-teh had indicated that one of the bodies found was that of an infant.

Kenneth Scott, Davidson sophomore and brother of Mrs. Stam, is confined in the college infirmary after learning of the murders.

Charm Drive Ends

According to an announcement made yesterday by Frank Willingham, president of the University Club, the drive for money to buy gold football watch charms will end tonight.

Williams to Head Philosophy Society

Dr. Henry Horace Williams, head of the department of philosophy in the University of North Carolina, has been elected president, and Lawrence Flinn of Chapel Hill named secretary of the North Carolina Philosophical Society.

The Philosophical Society was founded recently at an informal meeting of teachers of philosophy from various colleges in the state held in the home of Prof. Alban G. Widgery of Duke University.

The election of Dr. Williams was in recognition of the esteem in which he has so long been held.

The purposes of the society, it was stated, are "to provide opportunities by regular meetings for closer contact among those interested in philosophy in the state; to encourage more attention to it in educational institutions, and in general to arouse interest among thoughtful men as an important factor in facing the problems of modern life."

Among others present were Dean Bradshaw, Professors Emory and Milton Williams from the University.

LANIER SUPPORTS 'C' REQUIREMENT FOR AID IN FERA

State FERA Authorities Instruct Benefitted Colleges to Require Good Scholarship.

TO SETTLE GRADE SOON

Edwin S. Lanier, Y. M. C. A. self-help secretary and head of the FERA student aid committee at the University, announced yesterday that he considered a "C" average necessary for students receiving federal aid in the University.

The N. C. Federal Emergency Relief Administration this week instructed all presidents of colleges and universities in the state which are receiving federal aid, "that no FERA students who fall below good scholastic attainment may be continued as a beneficiary of federal funds."

Many "C" Applicants

Lanier's statement followed: "I feel that, in view of the large number of students now here and wanting to enter here after Christmas who have academic averages of "C" or better, all our quota of federal aid for students should go to students who have made at least a "C" average by the end of the present quarter."

President Frank Graham and Dean R. B. House have intrusted the University self-help committee with the responsibility of administering the University's quota of federal funds to aid self-help students, amounting to $4,335.

To Interpret Standing

This committee functions through the self-help office. Within the next few days, according to Lanier, the committee will make a definite announcement concerning its interpretation of what constitutes good scholastic standing for FERA students.

Lanier stated further, "It is past time for the application of the same rule by the self-help committee in awarding all self-help jobs within the control of the University. The University scholarship committee is already observing this standard."

Leader in Policy League To Speak Over WBT

Clarence Griffin to Be Heard in Broadcast Today.

Well-rounded student opinion as a means of influencing governmental policies in favor of world peace will be voiced this afternoon by Clarence Griffin, University student from Williamston, in a radio address over station WBT, Charlotte, from 5:30 to 5:45 o'clock.

Griffin, who is a leader in the Student Foreign Policy League, will explain the work of that organization, which was founded last year.

F.D.R. REASSURES ORGANIZED LABOR

Legislation Succeeding NRA to Retain Labor Safeguards, Promises President.

Washington, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Roosevelt tonight assured organized labor that the administration would retain certain safeguards for workers in the legislation which will replace the NRA.

He announced plans to retain these features in a new set-up at a press conference shortly after he had conferred with President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Green Offers Program

Green, apprehensive over the plans of industry and business to present a united front on New Deal legislation at the coming session of Congress, laid before Roosevelt a program which labor regards as essential to the future economic welfare of the nation's workers.

The six-point program includes a request that Section 7-A be made a basic law. It asks continuation of the child labor ban, continuation of the maximum hour and minimum wage provisions among other things.

A.B., COMMERCE SCHOOLS ENROLL THROUGH DEC. 20

Other Divisions Close Registration at Noon Today; Penalties For Late Registration.

FROSH AND SOPHS, JAN. 3

Pre-holiday registration will end today at noon in all divisions of the University except the school of commerce and the college of liberal arts, in which it will continue until noon Thursday.

Freshmen and all sophomores not eligible for pre-holiday registration will register January 3, beginning at 9 o'clock.

Any scheduled student, resident in the fall quarter, who fails to register during the registration period will be placed on class probation for a period of one month for each day's delay and will be charged a delayed registration fee of $5.00. No excuses are accepted.

Failure to attend first classes in the new quarter carries the same penalty.

Failure to Return

Students who find after going home that they will be unable to return are urged to notify before January 4 the registrar and the dean of the college or school in which they are registered.

Bills are payable January 4. Those preferring to pay in advance and avoid standing in line at the cashier's window may do so by attaching to their bill a money order or check and mailing it to the cashier. The bill will be receipted and returned.

The following payment schedule has been adopted for those who do not wish to pay by mail:

Jan. 4, names beginning with A through B; Jan. 5, names beginning with C through E; Jan. 7, names beginning with F through J; Jan. 8, names beginning with K through M; Jan. 9, names beginning with N through P; Jan. 10, names beginning with Q through S; Jan. 11, names beginning with T through V; and Jan. 12, names beginning with W through Z.

A failure to pay or to make proper arrangements for payment during this period will result in a $5.00 fee for delay.

LAWYERS START JAN. 3

Contrary to previous announcements in the DAILY TAR HEEL, the lawyers will not start classes on January 4, but on the 3rd.

AU REVOIR

With this issue the DAILY TAR HEEL ceases publication for the fall quarter.

Work will be resumed Friday afternoon, January 4, and the first issue of the winter quarter will appear Saturday, January 5. Until then, Merry Christmas and a sloppy New Year.

CLUB WILL GIVE CHORAL RECITAL

Chapel Hill Choral to Give Musicale Tonight at 8:30; Organ Program Tomorrow.

A Christmas recital will be given by the Chapel Hill Choral Club this evening at 8:30 o'clock in Hill Music hall.

H. Grady Miller will direct the musicale which will feature "When the Christ Child Came" by Clokey, "The Sleep of the Child Jesus" by Gevaert, "The Shepherd's Story" by Dickenson, and a group of carols.

Solo Artists

Included in the solo artists are Mrs. L. C. McKinney, chairman of the concert, who will sing the soprano parts; Mrs. R. H. Wettach, contralto; Jessie Parker, tenor; and G. A. Harrer, bass.

At the piano will be Mrs. A. S. Wheeler while Nelson Kennedy will play the organ.

The regular monthly organ recital by Professor Nelson O. Kennedy will be presented tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. This will be the last recital of the quarter.

He will offer in this program Schumann's "Sketch in C Minor," Bach's "Toccato and Fugue in D Minor," Karg-Elert's "Nun Danket alle Gott," and Widar's Fourth Symphony.

FRATERNITY PHOTOS DUE

Today is the last day for organizations to take advantage of the 10 per cent discount offered by the Yackety Yack for paying their accounts early.

All fraternity photographs must be in before the Christmas holidays begin if they are to appear in the annual.

Science Registration to End

All students in the school of applied science who are eligible to register before the Christmas holidays and who have not yet done so are expected to complete their registration by 1 o'clock today.

Russell's Attendance At Geneva Peace Congress Seems Assured

Dean Gives Scholastic Re-Entrance Rules

New Students Must Pass 1 Subject; Others, 2 Courses.

Requirements for re-entrance in the University for the winter quarter were explained yesterday by Dean D. D. Carroll, in the absence of Dean Hobbs.

A freshman or any other student taking his first quarter's work in this University, to be eligible for re-entrance, must pass at least one subject, either a full or a half course.

A student completing his second quarter's work must pass at least one subject and, for the two quarters' work, have credit for at least two full courses.

Students in their third quarter and upperclassmen must pass at least two full courses.

N. C. PWA SPENDS OVER $9,000,000

Approves Contracts for More Than $5,500,000; Former Dean H. G. Baity Heads Works.

According to an analysis of PWA work in North Carolina since its inception to December 1, arranged by Dr. H. G. Baity, administrator of PWA work in this state, over $9,000,000 has been spent on approved projects.

The sum has been appropriated to various drainage systems, municipal features, armories, hospitals, water and sewer plants, schools, gymnasiums, roads, and bridges.

To Spend More

Approved contracts amounting to $5,530,200 are under constructions with another $7,832,686 worth pending. To date $9,717,100 has been spent.

A total of 154 applications has been made for government aid in 327 projects. The projects have been undertaken in 128 localities throughout 77 counties.

Projects totaling $2,858,533 have been disapproved. Over a million dollars worth have been withdrawn. About $6,000,000 has been spent on schools and gymnasiums throughout the state.

Dr. Baity was formerly dean of the engineering school here.

Faculty Men To Attend Language Meeting

Several Carolina Professors Hold Offices in Association.

Many members of the Carolina faculty will attend the 51st meeting of the Modern Language Association of America at Philadelphia and Swarthmore, Pennsylvania, from December 27-29. They are: Dr. George R. Coffman, Dr. G. C. Taylor, Dr. W. M. Dey, Dr. Sturgis E. Leavitt, Dr. U. T. Holmes, Dr. N. B. Adams, Dr. J. C. Lyons, Dr. W. L. Wiley, Dr. R. S. Boggs, Dr. R. W. Linker, and F. C. Hayes.

Dr. Coffman is chairman of the English section of the association; Dr. Taylor, chairman of English V section on Shakespeare; Dr. Holmes is on the nominating committee for the Romance language division; Dr. Boggs, chairman of Comparative Literature II, and Dr. Lyons secretary of Comparative Literature IV.

Dr. N. B. Adams will present a paper at this meeting.

$45 More Is Needed To Cover Expenses

If Required Funds Are Raised, Student Delegate Will Sail From N. Y. December 21.

ASHEVILLE DONATES $110

If $45 more can be collected before Tuesday, R. Phillips Russell, prominent Carolina junior, who has been chosen to represent the University of North Carolina at the National Students' Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, will sail from New York City on the S. S. Olympic, December 21, for Le Havre, France.

Russell received yesterday from interested citizens and civic organizations in his home town, Asheville, a certified check for $110, which, together with what has been collected here, makes the total amount received for the trip so far about $160.

To Leave Tuesday

Confident that the needed amount will be raised, Russell plans to leave Tuesday for New York to join the other American delegates on the Olympic.

He expects to land in France December 27 and to arrive at Geneva in time to take part in the opening session of the conference the next day.

The purpose of the meeting is to bring together student ideas and opinion as to means of promoting permanent world peace. Some of the leading writers and thinkers of the world are expected to lead the discussions of the assembled students.

Prominent Leaders

Among these are: Romain Rolland, prominent French author, and Dr. Harry F. Ward, president of Union Theological Seminary of Columbia University.

Russell expects to return to

M'KEES TO SANTA STUDENT-STAYERS

"Y" and Graham Memorial Will Entertain; Names Wanted.

According to their annual custom, the University Y. M. C. A. and Graham Memorial will sponsor one or more holiday parties for students remaining at the University during the Christmas vacation.

All students who expect to remain in Chapel Hill over the holidays, except residents of Chapel Hill, should turn in their names and local addresses at the office of the Y. M. C. A. before the end of examinations, announced J. D. Winslow, "Y" president.

Y. M. C. A. workers, Paul and Don McKee of Chapel Hill, will be in charge of the holiday activities and they are very anxious to learn the names of all these students, regardless of class, in order that adequate plans can be formed for the festivities.

NO REST FOR BULL'S HEAD

Contrary to its usual custom of closing on Saturday afternoons, the Bull's Head bookshop will remain open all day today and December 22.

Elizabeth Johnson, director of the shop, will keep the Bull's Head open day and night during the regular hours over the Christmas holidays.

Brilliant Steam Heating Plan Fails When Tar Turns Tables

"Best Laid Plans of Mice and Men Oft Will Gang Awry"; in This Case, Because a Good Rule Works Both Ways.

The boys in Swain hall worked under "forced draft" yesterday, and the boarders ate emergency rations as a result of what has been called "one of the most brilliant experiments in contemporary steam heating."

The unknown person, or persons, who instigated the experiment conceived the idea of running an inch-and-a-half pipe from Swain's heating and cooking steam line into the inky, oily midst of the hundreds of gallons of Tarvia road-surfacing fluid stored in the old water tank near the rear entrance to Swain.

Aim: To Un-goo Tar

The object was to force steam through the Tarvia and thus reduce it to a lower viscosity so that it might be tapped and used to surface the by-ways of Chapel Hill.

All went well as long as the steam pressure remained high. The Tarvia became fluid, and a quantity was drawn off. But the pipe to the steam system remained connected.

When the pressure of the Tarvia exceeded the falling steam pressure, the Tarvia poured into the steam-piping system. It coated the interior of all the pipes, and, through the return steam line, poured into the boilers at the Consolidated Service Plant.

"The whole piping system here may have to be replaced," T. S. Howard, assistant superintendent of Swain Hall, told a DAILY TAR HEEL reporter yesterday.

Therefore the boys in Swain hall were washing dishes by hand last night, instead of by the usual steam-cleaning process; were forced to use the stoves for all cooking; and were behind the eight-ball in the preparation of the 400 gallons of coffee consumed nightly by boarders.

And the instigator of the plan for the heating of Tarvia by steam has learned that it is a poor rule that doesn't work both ways.

Concerning Every Student

Up pops the Charlotte Observer with a sage observation on state finance in its relation to education:

> The last legislature figured that the revenues from taxes for highway purposes would bring in around $16,000,000 and set its road appropriations accordingly.
>
> This was relatively the same amount that was appropriated for public education, evidently, the mind of the assemblymen being that these two major functions of state government should be financially geared to the same spending tempo.
> Actually, however, the revenues for roads ran up to nearly $22,000,000—$6,000,000 in excess of expectations, while, of course, the allotment for schools had to remain stabilized.

The Observer goes on to make mention of the fight that is going on for this surplus among the other spending agencies of the state. Which is all well and good, in spite of the hesitancy to express itself pro or con that is apparent in the Observer's position, or lack of it.

Almost in the same editorial breath, though in a separate editorial, by the way, the Charlotte paper points out University alumni will occupy 43 per cent of the seats in the Senate (including "Sandy" Graham), and 30 per cent of those in the House. Which means nothing whatsoever, except that we are glad to learn that University alumni are so prominent in state politics.

Notwithstanding this pardonable pride, in regard to the latter observation we are tempted to let loose a loud "So what?" that will make the atmosphere of Chapel Hill shudder with temerity.

We students are too much inclined to accept the status of North Carolina education as something irremediable. It is true that no amount of what is usually referred to as "concerted student action"—in more concrete terms little short of a verbal assault on the General Assembly and a mental siege of the capitol—will help the situation any. But students of the University can use their influence in a modest way to maintain the University's position in the eyes of the state.

From the figures referred to at the head of this column, it is evident that a re-adjustment of appropriations is pending for action of the General Assembly when it meets in January. The University, through Dr. Frank Graham's plea before the advisory budget committee, has already made its application—or breathed its prayer—for an increase in appropriation. Naturally, however, every other spending institution supported by the state is doing the same. But the thing that concerns every student in a small way would be for him to show by action, word, and thought the worth of the University to the state. It is entitled to a fair break in the next biennium.

Less Red Tape

By virtue of the decision of the general faculty last Wednesday afternoon, a change will be made next September which will affect profoundly the courses of study offered by the school. For one thing, the choice of subjects will be greatly simplified by the "6-6-6" plan. Too long has the matter of choosing courses which will eventually add up to provide one with a diploma been a source of much brain-cudgelling, hair-pulling, and perusal of the catalogue.

The new division of courses of study into four major topics is a noteworthy change. For a long time, the catalogue has been somewhat haphazard in its arrangement, difficult of comprehension, and a most inconvenient source of information. We hope that, under the new arrangement, it will be simplified.

If this end is achieved, it will be a long stride forward for an administration notoriously involved in a labyrinth of red tape. But we still are awaiting with bated breath the news that a method of registration has been devised which is more efficient and more time-saving than the one in use at present.

Spanish Custom

Upon hearing of the classification, under the direction of F. C. Hayes of the Spanish department, of an historical dictionary of old Spanish proverbs, our fancy was struck by the apparent relative importance to the Spain of old of the subjects dealt with.

While God was undoubtedly an important word to the Castilians, goddess apparently carried more weight, for, according to our figures, 25 per cent of the proverbs in one of the old books was devoted to the subject of women, while only 20 per cent of the time was spent thinking about God. On the other hand, much to our astonishment and disbelief, that subject of mystery, love, was exceeded in its low percentage only by that question of even greater mystery, death.

It looks as if we are all brothers under the skin after all. Although we hate to admit it, it might seem that these maxims would represent the trend of thought of man the world over, and ever though it hurts our masculine pride to say it, woman is evidently the power behind the throne. Man's great desire to have some power greater than he to look up to and to worship, is represented by the importance of God in these old proverbs, and finally, man's conceited willingness to talk about himself is shown by the fact that his subject is third in importance.

Such pseudo-philosophizing needs an O. Henry's ramifications. Anent Spanish proverbs, when all's said and done, our favorite—was it Pancho who said it?—happens to be the most comforting of thoughts: "It all comes out in the wash."

Practical Quotations

The Daily Californian brings together two quotations—let no man put 'em asunder, splendid examples as they are of two diametrically opposite viewpoints on the much-scrapped-over principle of, What is a college education? Compare them silently, for they need no comment:

President Robert G. Sproul: "Their [universities'] job is to open the minds of men and women and develop their powers to think, to give them knowledge of truth and the processes by which it is found, so that they may become informed and reasonable human beings. Leave them alone to do that job well and the future of America will be assured."

Senator Huey P. Long: "This is my university [referring to L. S. Uey]. I'll throw anybody out who utters a word against it. There'll be a new editor of that student paper tomorrow if they print anything against Huey Long. I'll expel a thousand students if necessary if anything is done against me. I've built up this university. It's my school. I don't want any criticism of anything I do."

If there is one thing that a college education should teach anybody it is humility. That is one of the first things that the true scholar learns, his meekness born of awe before the mass of human knowledge. For the ordinary student, his humility lies not so much in things not yet learned, as in the lesson of humbleness that the great forces at work in education have produced and will continue to produce. His humility is a product of the realization that what he comes in contact with is so much grander than himself that such an attitude is only fitting before it.

Huey Long's statement—"this is my university"—is the rash of the country lawyer breaking out in him. Unfortunately for Huey, even if he had by any stretch of the imagination any claim to "his" university, the very forces that he claims to control will defeat him in the long run. The university and all that it stands for are infinitely greater than Huey and his kind, who claim "an extraordinary time" as the pretext for the stifling hold that they seek to maintain. After Huey's, Dr. Sproul's statement is a welcome emetic.

DR. GEORGE WILL ATTEND SESSIONS

Anatomy Professor Leaves Next Week for New York.

Dr. W. C. George of the department of anatomy will leave next week for New York City to attend the annual meeting of the Corporation of the Bermuda Biological Station for Research.

Dr. George was elected to membership in the corporation a few years ago when the station was recognized and endowed by the Rockefeller Foundation, the colony of Bermuda, and the British government.

The Bermuda station is one for research in the fields of general biology and oceanography. Control of the properties and policies of the station is vested in an international group of scientists and public citizens ealled the "Corporation," of which Professor E. G. Conklin of Princeton University is chairman and Professor Herbert W. Rand of Harvard is secretary.

Graham Will Speak At Campbell Event

Buie's Creek, Dec. 14.—President Frank Graham of the University of North Carolina has accepted the invitation of Campbell College trustees to be present at the Founder's Day program here January 31, in connection with the formal inauguration of Campbell's new president, Leslie H. Campbell, who last spring succeeded his founder-president father, the late Dr. J. A. Campbell.

After a memorial program honoring Dr. Campbell in the afternoon, and the inaugural banquet in the evening, Dr. Graham will speak as a representative of the University of North Carolina.

MATH TEXT USED IN 19 INSTITUTIONS

Drs. Lasley and Browne Receive Publishers' Praises.

Nineteen colleges throughout the nation have adopted the University freshman mathematics book by Dr. John Lasley and Dr. E. T. Browne, members of the math department here, it was announced yesterday by the McGraw-Hill Book Company, the publishers.

The schools which have adopted the book, "Introductory Mathematics," are Brooklyn College, Bucknell University, Chicago Junior College, Colgate University, Duke University, New York University, University of North Carolina.

University of Pennsylvania, Northwestern University, Pomona College, Teachers College of Columbia University, Temple University, Limestone College, Wilkes-Barre Junior College, Guilford College, Carroll College, Wesley College, N. C. C. W., and Lincoln High School.

The publishers praised especially the sections on linear equations, determinants, and homogeneous linear equations. Commending the sound, logical organization, the publishers congratulated the authors on their selection and balance of material.

SCHENCK TO BE INITIATED INTO LEGAL FRATERNITY

Vance Inn, University chapter of Phi Delta Phi, international legal fraternity, will initiate Judge Michael Schenck of Greensboro, recently appointed Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, into honorary membership January 5 at 5:15 p. m.

The initiation will take place at Manning hall and will be followed by a banquet at the Carolina Inn.

Invitations have been extended to lawyers throughout the state who are alumni of the fraternity, and many are expected to attend.

Council Gives Approval

The Student Council has approved Russell as the representative of the University at the conference.

Contributions by students and others interested in the peace movement can be made at the office of the manager of Graham Memorial, on the first floor. A person wishing to have a student call for his contribution may telephone the manager's office.

Members of the finance committee of the local anti-war conference are also contacting individuals for contributions and urge that the remainder of the necessary fund be raised at once.

Phantoms Close Practice Until After Christmas

Team Returns Dec. 28; Engages Elon First

Coach Bo Shepard Discontinues Work Due to Exams; to Drill Squad Hard.

STARTING FIVE UNCERTAIN

Although Coach Bo Shepard closed the regular pre-holiday practice with Tuesday's drill, several of the Tar Heel court players took workouts in the Tin Can yesterday.

Coach Shepard stated that supervised work would be over until after the exams, but that he wanted all the members of the squad to get in as much practice as possible without hindering their studies.

The courtsters are still far from being in top condition and as a result Coach Shepard will call from 10 to 15 players back to the University on December 28 in order to get them in the best possible shape for the tough 21-game schedule, opening against Elon January 3.

Lineup Uncertain

With the first practice period over the starting lineup is yet far from being settled. At present Captain Snooks Aitken, forward; Jake Glace, center; and Jim McCachren, guard, look like the only certain members of the first five. These three are the regulars returning from last year's Big Five championship club.

The forward and guard positions left vacant by Verge Weathers and ex-captain Dave McCachren are giving Coach Shepard the main trouble. Mel Nelson, letter reserve from last year, seems to have the inside lane in the battle to become Aitken's running mate.

Nelson is a fine dribbler and shot, but tends to be erratic at times. Ben Blood, also a reserve letterman and who played at

SIXTEEN GAMES WILL COMPRISE STATE SCHEDULE

Wolfpack Basketball Team Will Open Season Against Wofford; Another Game Pending.

MEET U. N. C. JANUARY 30

Raleigh, Dec. 14.—(UP)—A schedule of 16 games with another pending was announced for the North Carolina State College basketball team by Dr. R. R. Sermon, athletic director and coach of the varsity club.

The unsettled date is January 17 when the Wolfpack will play either Wofford or Furman on the South Carolina team's court. The season's play lists 11 Southern Conference battles. Each Big Five school will be played twice except Davidson, which is met only once.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Jan. 5—Wofford here.
Jan. 12—Wake Forest here.
Jan. 15—Duke here.
Jan. 16—Davidson there.
Jan. 18—Clemson there.
Jan. 19—South Carolina there.
Jan. 25—V. P. I. here.
Jan. 30—North Carolina there.
Feb. 5—Wake Forest here.
Feb. 7—South Carolina here.
Feb. 11—V. P. I. there.
Feb. 12—V. M. I. there.
Feb. 13—W. & L. there.
Feb. 19—North Carolina here.
Feb. 23—Duke there.

FOOTBALL

FACTS AND GUESSES
By
Bill Anderson

Alabama's contingent, which will mix blows with Stanford in the nation's first football headliner the first of January, is considered to have the greatest galaxy of stars and potential All-Americans of any eleven in the nation.

The "Milky Way," as the folk down Tuscaloosa way, suh, refer to the big red elephants, has a sterling pair of All-America linemen in Don Hutson, end, and Cap'n Bill Lee, tackle. Behind the line, "Dixie" Howell, the greatest back the Tide has had since the halcyon days of cinemactor John Mack Brown, is another All-America standout. His running mate, Joe Demyanovich, is not so bad either.

With such standouts, we concede Coach Frank Thomas' boys the edge over the corporation of Moscrip, Reynolds, and Grayson by a couple of touchdowns.

Last week, Yale and Princeton athletes moved on Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to play field hockey—not opposing one another but against the Vassar lassies. Yale took the field on the first day, but found the girls playing for keeps, even a wee bit rougher than one would think from debutantes. The Vassar captain kept dishing it out plenty, but one of the Yale men finally sent her to the showers with a bad eye. Result: she failed to play against Princeton. Vassar lost to Yale, 4-0.

Princeton men also found the girls rough. But so were the men. One knocked the breath out of a Vassar beauty, but she could take it, resuming play with her teammates . . . only to lose again. Umpire Virginia Fessenden said Princeton broke every rule in the book! Princeton 5, Vassar 2. Following both contests, tea was served in the drawing room . . . ho hum!

* * *

Track, the sick man of collegiate athletics, is definitely on the up turn. Last spring 25,000 fans saw five events run off one May afternoon in Palmer Stadium, Princeton, N. J. The occasion was merely the resumption of the ancient rivalry between the big three, Cunningham, Bonthron, and Venzke.

And this winter, athletic promoters in the east are getting all set to run off some indoor track meets (by invitation only) which will feature the doings in the U. S. sports world.

The first of the big meets will be staged in the Brooklyn Armory, January 5 . . . auspices of the Knights of Columbus. Then come the Melrose Games, Madison Square Garden, February 2.

Passbook Notice

Athletic passbooks will not be given out before the Carolina-Elon basketball game here on January 3 after the holidays to those who registered before leaving. Admission to the game will be free to all. This report is not official, however; the athletic directors were out of town last night and could not be reached.

MARYLAND PUGS HAVE PROSPECTS OF FINE SEASON

Six Lettermen in Eight Classes, Including S. I. C. Champ, Present High Hopes.

SEVEN MEETS SCHEDULED

College Park, Md., Dec. 14—Coach Jack Harmony's University of Maryland boxing team is going to be pretty tough for its opponents to get along with this season.

With a letterman available for six of the eight classes and good talent for the other divisions, the Terps should do well in all of the eight meets on their program.

Among those on hand are: Stew McCaw, Southern Conference light-heavy champ who is dropping back to the 165-pound division; Al Farrell, heavyweight tourney runner-up; Carl Stalfort, another capable heavy; Lyman McAboy, one of the outstanding 155-pound performers in 1934; Bill Waller, 125, and Walter Webb, who has moved from the lightweight to the 145-pound class, both of whom scored consistently last season.

Harold Burns, ace 145-pounder of 1933, who fought only two bouts last fall, hopes to return to the ring despite a leg operation from an injury received outside of athletics.

The schedule is as follows:

Jan. 11—V. M. I. here.
Jan. 18—St. John's of Annapolis here.
Feb. 2—Wash. & Lee here.
Feb. 9—Penn State here.
Feb. 16—Virginia at Richmond.
Feb. 22-23—Southern Conference tourney.
March 2—Army here.
March 11—Catholic U. here.

TWO NEW TEAMS ON REVISED CARD

Tar Baby Basketeers Now Prepare for Schedule; Raleigh High, Cone "Y" Added.

Coming from the tranquil freshman basketball camp is the news of a newly released schedule, containing two important additions. The new listing shows a 16-game schedule, with two teams having been added to the former list.

Raleigh high and Cone "Y" have both recently joined the list of Carolina's opponents and will journey to Chapel Hill to take on the Tar Babies.

The complete schedule as revised:

Jan. 8—Wake Forest here.
Jan. 11—Durham High away.
Jan. 12—Raleigh High here.
Jan. 15—Oak Ridge here.
Jan. 18—Cone "Y" here.
Jan. 24—Oak Ridge away.
Jan. 26—Belmont away.
Jan. 30—N. C. State here.
Feb. 1—Belmont here.
Feb. 2—Wake Forest away.
Feb. 5—Duke away.
Feb. 8—Belmont away.
Feb. 13—Davidson here.
Feb. 16—Duke here.
Feb. 19—N. C. State away.
Feb. 21—P. J. C. here.

Phi Delts And Mangum Capture 1934 Fall Bowling Championship

All Matches Played In Graham Memorial

A. T. O. and Aycock "A" Teams Are Runners-up in Their Respective Divisions.

MANGUM UNSCORED UPON

Bowling also made its debut for the year this fall; an unofficial tourney that brought mythical titles to Phi Delta Theta and Mangum dormitory, in their respective divisions, has just been completed.

The tournament, staged by Graham Memorial, attracted 14 teams of three players each. The Dormitory League opened on November 5 with 8 teams competing, whereas the fraternity section got underway two nights later with six earnest combinations.

Phi Delta Theta scored six consecutive wins, piling up 16 points, while dropping only two. Close behind, but lacking the necessary punch, was A. T. O. with 14 and 2. These two teams had clashed on the initial night, the Phi Delts squeezing out a 2-1 victory, which eventually won the tourney for them.

Unscored Upon

In the dormitory division, Mangum entered into four battles and emerged with an unscored upon record, winning all by 3-0 tallies. Upon their heels came two Aycock contingents; the 'A' team scoring 10 points to their opponents' 2, and the 'B' squad rolling up 10 points and dropping 5.

In this division, a few teams played six matches; while others competed but in four, confusing the final point score. Aycock 'A' had likewise won four and lost none, but Mangum received honors by virtue of their higher scores.

The only other outstanding point of interest in the tourney was the record of the team of "Ace-King-Jack" entered in the dormitory section which kept a virgin offensive record. They had a grand total of 0-15, and Lewis was not far behind with 0-12.

The compiled scores read as follows:

Fraternity Division
Phi Delta	16-2
A. T. O.	14-4
Chi Phi	9-6
Sigma Chi	4-8
Chi Psi	4-14
L. C. A.	1-14
Dormitory Division
Mangum	12-0
Aycock 'A'	10-2
Aycock 'B'	10-2
3 Aces	10-8
3 W's	8-4
Manly	7-8
Lewis	0-12
A-K-J	0-15

Books Due Monday

All library books issued to students are due Monday. Books issued Monday and Tuesday will be due Wednesday. Thereafter they will be circulated for use in the building only unless special permission is obtained, it was announced yesterday by Olan V. Cook, in charge of circulation.

Library hours during the holidays will be from 8:15 a. m. to 5 p. m. Thursday, December 20, and from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. from December 21 until January 3. The library will be closed all day on Christmas, New Year, and Sundays.

INTRAMURAL INKLINGS

By FLETCHER W. FERGUSON

This week's boxing tournament brought to the close a very successful quarter of intramural athletic activity, which found Ruffin dormitory, the 1933-34 winner, out in front with a 395-point total for its pre-holiday accomplishments.

The football season, which was climaxed by Law's 7-3 victory over Sigma Nu for the campus title, found 800 different individuals participating. The all-time high for this sport was set in 1932 when 832 took part. Last year's mark was 743.

Although it did not capture any championships or set the intramural sports world on fire, Delta Tau Delta gave the fall quarter two of its outstanding performers.

One was Bill Shores, who made a halfback post on the All-Fraternity football team, did well in the wrestling tournament, and double-fisted his way through to the 149-lb boxing title in a most auspicious fashion.

The other was Roger McLean, a junior, who was chosen for the right guard post on the All-Campus grid combine. Though he didn't participate in the grunt and groan tourney, he showed up well by easily capturing the heavyweight boxing title left vacant by Lammie Alderman, leading varsity candidate.

While on the subject of the mit game, we notice that but one 1933 champion repeated—Wally Dunham of Swain Hall, in the 165-lb class. Three knockouts, three judge's decisions, and two forfeits comprised the eight final verdicts.

After the return from the Christmas recess intramural attention will be focused upon basketball, bowling, and ping-pong,

YEARLINGS HAVE STRONG NUCLEUS FOR MIT SQUAD

Team Has Excellent Reputation To Uphold; 1934 Team Was Foremost in South.

SHORES, O'HERRON BEST

Carolina's frosh boxing team has a strong reputation to uphold in its debut into intercollegiate boxing circles. Last year's yearlings were recognized as the outstanding first-year team in the south, and it is hoped that the Tar Babies of '38 will make an equally brilliant showing this winter.

On the basis of past practice sessions and recent intramural achievements, they look to be a fast-stepping, hard-hitting group of pugilists.

Leading Scrappers

There is no question of the fact that Bill Shores and Ed O'Herron, both of the 149-lb division, are the class of the promising squad. Due to the ability of these two boys, Coach Rowe will probably shift one from this class as both should prove valuable. In the 159-lb class, the team has a very formidable man in Oliver.

Not far behind the above-mentioned is Tommy Bass, 139-lb brilliant fighter. This boy has a wicked left jab which he uses to fine advantage and which was an important factor in bringing him the mural title.

Shmurak, who gained the 179-lb championship by flattening his opponent, stands to improve some before he can be counted on as a consistent winner. In practice he seems more of a boxer than a slugger, but turned the tables in his first test, winning by virtue of a vicious right.

Herm Steingrob, who had the misfortune of meeting the defending champion in the 169-lb class, is as game and aggressive as they come. The 119-lb division has Larry Hendel, a virtual skyscraper, in full command.

VILLAGE WILL SEE CHURCH PAGEANT

Cast of 50 Will Depict Scene From Nativity at Methodist Church December 23.

A community Christmas pageant, "Every Man to His Own City," in three scenes, by Bernice Kelley Harris and Irene H. Fussler, will be presented at the Methodist Church at 7:30 p. m. Sunday, December 23.

The first scene will take place in the courtyard of the Methodist Church, representing the courtyard of the inn at Bethlehem.

Scenes Inside and Out

The second scene will occur inside the inn, or in the church auditorium, and the third scene in the courtyard and the stable of the inn, represented by the old Methodist Church building.

The churches of the town are co-operating in the presentation of the pageant.

The cast includes about 50 persons, who will try to depicit as realistically as possible what might have taken place in and around the inn at Bethlehem on the night of the Nativity. Everyone in the community is invited to attend.

with the court game getting the lion's share. Team entries will be acceptable January 3, and play will probably commence on the 9th.

The 1934 season saw 40 teams battling over the seven weeks period, each participating in eight games. Ruffin defeated Swain Hall and S. A. E. emerged as fraternity league winners from a five-way tie to enter the finals, which the dormitory leaders won by a 14-5 score.

For the past three years S. A. E., using practically the same team over that period, has made its way into the finals, but has failed to once capture the campus title. Ruffin defeated it twice, while Old East sandwiched in for the 1933 honors.

The annual Graham Memorial bowling tournament came to a close this week with the teams representing Mangum and Phi Delta Theta taking their respective divisions. The intramural competition will find numerous other teams challenging their rights to championship claims.

Ping-pong will go along hand-in-hand with the other two winter quarter sports, and will find Phi Kappa Sigma attempting to defend its last year's honors. However, if Alabama defeats Stanford in the Rose Bowl classic, the Lewis dormitory team will be a heavy favorite for the crown.

Director Herman Schnell stated yesterday afternoon that it has not as yet been decided whether the annual intramural track meet will be held in the winter or spring quarter. Law School's small, hand-picked group of stars edged out Phi Delta Theta in last year's meet.

Couch Makes Tour

Reports Southern States Favor University Press Books.

W. T. Couch of the University Press returned yesterday from an extended tour of the southern states, including South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi.

Couch reported that books released by the University Press have been favorably received throughout the sections he visited.

On his tour he interviewed librarians, state and college officials, and personal friends.

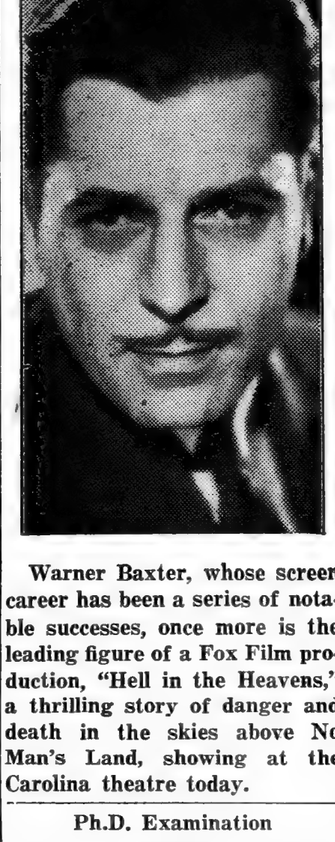
guard last year, has been working some at forward and may get the call because of the brilliant fashion in which he handles the ball.

Frank Ramsey, freshman center last year, but who has been tried at every post this season, is another possibility at forward if he shows improvement.

At the open guard spot Paul Kaveny, reserve forward for the past two years, seems the likely choice at present. Kaveny is big and handles the ball well.



However, Coach Shepard might shift either Blood or Ramsey back to the defensive position while several other boys have been making a strong bid for the ex-captain's vacant post.

Some of the members of the squad who might work into the lineup and who have been alternating on the second five are: Bill Moore, Randy Cooner, and John Rainey, forwards; Kanner and Webster, centers; Jim Hutchins, Tommy Irwin, Harrison, Derrickson, Bullard, and Stewart, guards.

Stars Again

Warner Baxter, whose screen career has been a series of notable successes, once more is the leading figure of a Fox Film production, "Hell in the Heavens," a thrilling story of danger and death in the skies above No Man's Land, showing at the Carolina theatre today.

Ph.D. Examination

The oral examination for John Hiliary Andrew Workman for a Ph.D. degree in the department of education will be held December 22 at 7:30 p. m. in Peabody hall.

All members of the graduate faculty in the division of philosophy and political and social sciences are invited to be present.

Facts and Guesses

Following this is the New York Athletic Club Invitational, which is slated for the 16th of the same month. The grand finale for the tracksters will be the A. A. U. meet which will come on the last Saturday in February.

Carolina, it is hoped, will get the opportunity to send some of its stars to a few of these meets. Last year, the University, for the first time in history of Dixie track, won all the major titles offered. The "Flying Tar Heels" won the Southern Conference indoor crown, the state title, and the outdoor track and field honors. Coach Bob Fetzer looks good to repeat with McRae, Williamson, Abernethy, Hawthorne, and Childers back. All of these men, if Carolina gets bids to the eastern indoor meets, should make the trips . . . they are good enough for fast company and deserve the opportunity.

Briefs: Dartmouth, Harvard, and possibly Johns Hopkins University tennis teams are coming south next spring to train with Carolina's conference champs. Meets are being negotiated for the Tar Heels' home courts.

Historians to Washington

Among the members of the Carolina history department who are planning to attend the 50th anniversary meeting of the American Historical Association in Washington, D. C., on December 27, 28, and 29, are Cecil Johnson, C. H. Pegg, J. C. Russell, and L. C. MacKinney.

Prouty and Huddle To Attend Meeting

Dr. W. F. Prouty and Dr. J. W. Huddle will be present at the meeting of the Geological Society of America to be held at Rochester, N. Y., during the holidays.

At the society's meeting Dr. Prouty will read a paper on the silurian deposits of eastern Tennessee.

Dr. McCarthy, also of the geology department, will be on a field trip in the southeastern part of the state to study the geology of the section around Lumberton.

Dr. McCarthy will be accompanied on the geological survey by J. R. Johnson and H. W. Shirley, geology majors.

DR. AKERS TO CHICAGO

Dr. S. G. Akers, director of the library school of science, will be present at the meeting of the American Library Association in Chicago from December 27 to 29.

Dr. Akers is a member of the general council of the American Library Association and chairman of the association's committee on library terminology.

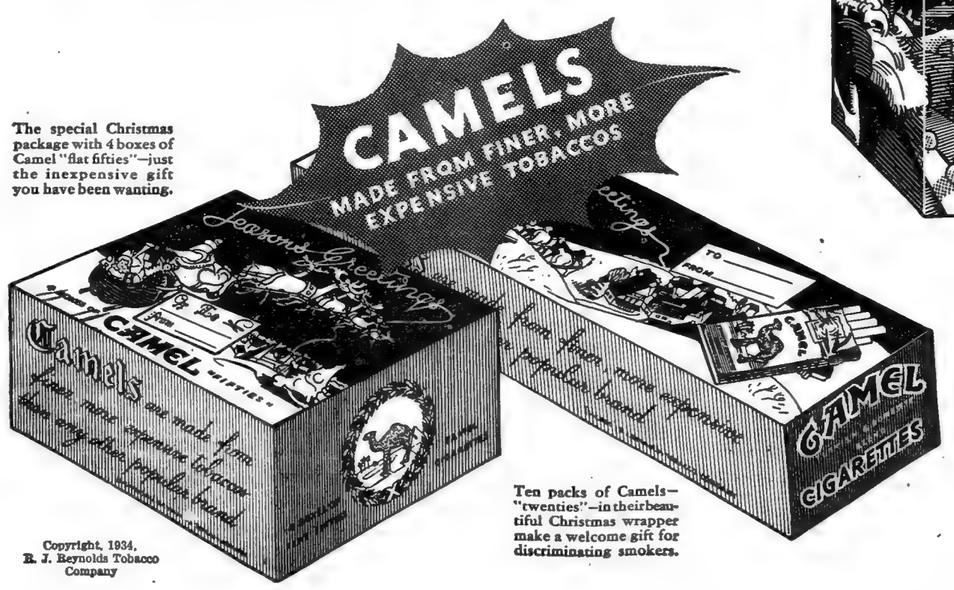
MAKERS OF CAMEL CIGARETTES
AND PRINCE ALBERT SMOKING TOBACCO



A pound of Prince Albert in glass humidor, gaily packaged.

The 1-pound tin of mild, mellow "P.A." specially wrapped for Christmas.

● Cigarettes for Christmas! No smoker ever has too many. But which cigarette? Remember that the brand you give reflects your own good taste...your sense of discrimination. That's why we suggest Camels. They are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos than any other popular brand. They are the choice of distinguished men and women in every field of the social and business worlds. And their finer tobaccos bring that welcome "lift" in energy—that warm good cheer—which is, after all—Christmas!

The special Christmas package with 4 boxes of Camel "flat fifties"—just the inexpensive gift you have been wanting.

Ten packs of Camels—"twenties"—in their beautiful Christmas wrapper make a welcome gift for discriminating smokers.

● Is there a pipe smoker on your Christmas list? Then your problem is solved. He's made it easy. Give him long evenings of calm contentment. Give him the sheer joy of ripe, mellow tobacco—cool and mild and biteless. Give him Prince Albert..."The National Joy Smoke." What a man spends his own money for is what he really likes. And more men spend their money for Prince Albert than any other pipe tobacco.

KNIGHT TO HEAD CONSOLIDATED U. SUMMER SCHOOL

Dr. Edgar W. Knight, Recently Named Kenan Professor, to Establish Office Here.

GRAHAM ANNOUNCES POST

Dr. Edgar Wallace Knight, Kenan professor of education in the University at Chapel Hill, has been appointed director of the summer school for the Consolidated University of North Carolina, it was announced recently by President Frank P. Graham.

Dr. Knight will set up the central office of the consolidated summer school at Chapel Hill and will be responsible under the president for its entire program, which will operate in three units: at Chapel Hill, at State College in Raleigh, and at the Woman's College in Greensboro.

Details Not Completed

The local organization of each division of the summer school is yet to be arranged. The appointment of Dr. Knight and the organization of the entire summer school were made by President Graham upon the advice of the administrative council of the faculty representatives of the whole University.

The administration of the regular year will as far as possible now carry over into the administration of the summer school, President Graham said.

Knight's Duties

It will be the special function of Dr. Knight to plan a rich coordinated program of study at the three units, and to assemble a faculty of high quality to serve not only the students from the

PLAYERS CHOOSE COWARD COMEDY

Tryout Date for "The Young Idea" Scheduled for Tuesday Afternoon and Evening.

Tryouts for the coming Playmakers' production of Noel Coward's "The Young Idea" will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 4 p. m. and 7 p. m. in the Playmakers theatre.

The new play, the first bill for the winter quarter, will be presented January 30, 31, and February 1. Harry Davis of the Playmakers staff will direct the production.

Fourteen Roles Open

The production will require 14 characters, seven men and seven women. Copies of "The Young Idea" have been sent from New York, but at present the one copy of the play is on the reserve shelf in the University library.

Noel Coward's "The Young Idea" is a bright, sophisticated English comedy and follows the same style as his "Hay Fever" which the Playmakers produced with success last year.

In the original production of "The Young Idea," Coward himself took a leading role and the first cast included several outstanding actors.

CLASSES TODAY

The office of the dean of administration announces that classes will be held today according to the regular Tuesday schedule.

BAND INSTITUTES NEW SCHEDULES

Musicians to Practice Monday Afternoons, Thursday Nights.

A new schedule, arranging for band rehearsals on Monday afternoon and Thursday night, was announced yesterday for the University Band.

The new hours will allow rehearsals on Monday at 5 p.m. and on Thursday at 7 p.m.

Freshmen who will have gym conflicts under the new arrangement are requested to report to Dr. R. B. Lawson at the gymnasium and alter their gym schedules.

Plans are being made for the University Band to present at least one public concert during the winter quarter and several open air appearances during the spring quarter.

WINTER RUSHING STARTS MONDAY

Fraternities Will Seek Men Not Previously Registered; Same Rules for Rushing.

Winter quarter fraternity rushing for men not previously registered in the University will begin Monday and last for one week.

The same rushing rules, observed during the fall quarter, will be in force this term, Harold Bennett, president of the Inter-fraternity Council, announced yesterday.

"No invitations will be sent out to prospective rushees, as during the fall; but the fraternities are to communicate with their prospective new men after Monday," Bennett stated.

A period of silence will be in effect until rushing officially opens.

Pledging will take place Tuesday, January 15, at the office of the dean of students, 205 South building, in the same manner that is followed during out-of-season pledging.

Business Staff

There will be a meeting of the entire business staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the business office.

LINDY DENOUNCES HERR HAUPTMANN FOR KIDNAP HOAX

Bereaved Colonel Testifies Defendant Is Man Who Collected Ransom Money.

HAUPTMANN UNDISTURBED

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 4.—(UP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh stared into the eyes of Bruno Hauptmann today and swore he was the man who collected $50,000 as the price for the life and safety of a child that was already dead.

It was the most damaging testimony offered so far against the prisoner, but if Hauptmann realized that he didn't show it. All spectators in the hot, little New Jersey courtroom seemed more interested in the testimony than did the man whose life hung in the balance, and who sat all day with arms folded and a blank look molded on his face.

Identified Voice

Lindbergh further testified that he recognized Hauptmann's voice as that of the man who took the ransom.

Defense Attorney Edward J. Reilly, in cross examination, revealed the line of defense that will be followed.

He will try to prove either, first that somebody slipped in the front door of the Lindbergh home and carried the child down stairs and out the front, ignoring the fact that a ladder was found outside the nursery window, or attempt to prove, second, that somebody handed the baby out of the crib, and that neither Hauptmann nor anybody else actually entered the room after climbing the ladder; that instead they stayed outside and received the baby from someone inside of the nursery.

The American flying ace was excused in the middle of the afternoon. The last witness of the day was Mrs. Elsie Whately, widow of the Lindbergh butler, who denied her husband was a philanderer and recounted events of the kidnaping day.

Court was adjourned until 10 a. m. Monday.

"Browsing Room" Plans Meet Set-Back; No Room Available

R. B. Downs, University Librarian, Heartily Endorses Idea But Says That There Is at Present No Free Space; Matter of Expense Also Obstacle; Advocates Not Discouraged.

While the controversy about the location of the proposed browsing room in the library rages in the column provided by the DAILY TAR HEEL for the expression of campus opinion, R. B. Downs, University librarian, comes out with a statement.

"The browsing room should logically be a part of the University library. I want students to associate not only required reading but also reading for pleasure with the library. Such a room could be most efficiently administered under the library roof."

Cold Water

Practical-minded Librarian Downs proceeded to throw what browsing room enthusiasts may consider a dash of cold water on the plan.

"At present," he said, "every suitable room is filled to capacity with other books and until additional space can be provided there is no space free. Another obstacle in the way at present is the matter of expense, as a considerable sum would be required to furnish a browsing room comfortably and to procure attractive books for recreational reading."

"The earliest practical date for beginning a browsing room," he continued, "is probably late in 1935 or 1936."

Downs added that he was thoroughly in sympathy with the idea and that he thought when the time comes to add the browsing room it should be one of the most attractive and comfortable in the library which could be used for the purpose.

"Never Say Die"

Miss Nora Beust and her students of the school of library science, with whom the idea of a browsing room originated, refuse to be discouraged at the prospect of having to wait several years for their idea to materialize.

Enrollment Totals 2,463 For Winter Quarter

Husbands Says Pre-Holiday Registration was 1,292.

Registration for the winter quarter had reached a total of 2,463 at noon yesterday, according to Associate Registrar Ben Husbands.

Pre-holiday registration for upperclassmen and privileged sophomores was 1,292. Thursday and Friday, 1,040 freshmen and sophomores were enrolled.

Late registration will continue through Wednesday, and a special fee of $5 will be charged. Husbands expects about 40 or 50 more registrants.

PRINCETON DEAN TO OPEN MARCH SERIES OF TALKS

Second Speaker for Human Relations Institute to Be Head Of Atlanta University.

OTHERS ARE TENTATIVE

Dr. Robert Russell Wicks, dean of chapel at Princeton University, has accepted the invitation of the Human Relations Institute to speak on the Institute program, Sunday night, March 31, announced Charles Poe, chairman of the Institute, yesterday.

Dr. Wicks' address will open the seven-day session of the Institute at a mass meeting of students in Memorial hall.

John Hope, president of Atlanta University, has also accepted an invitation to appear on the Institute program. From the standpoint of the Negro, he will discuss "Inter-racial Relations." The date for his address has been set for Tuesday, April 2.

Others to Speak

Other speakers have tentatively accepted the invitation. This number includes: J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation of the United States department of justice, and Dr. Paul Douglas of the University of Chicago.

The Institute committee reported yesterday that pressure was being brought to bear to secure acceptance of Secretary of State Cordell Hull; Donald Richberg, director of the National Emergency Council; S. Clay Williams, NRA administrator; Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Samuel Seabury of New York; United States Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

Poe announced that the Institute committee will meet at some time next week.

"Y" CABINET OFFICERS

All officers of the three Y. M. C. A. cabinets are requested to meet in the office of Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University "Y," at 10 o'clock this morning.

Any member of this executive group who has a conflicting class at this time will report at Comer's office at 10:30 o'clock instead.

M.A. Applications

Dean W. W. Pierson of the graduate school announced yesterday that Monday will be the last day for submitting applications for admission to candidacy for the master's degree at the June commencement, 1935.

Payment of Fees

The schedule for the payment of student fees at the cashier's window of the business office is as follows:

Jan. 5—Students with names beginning with A through E.

Jan. 7—Students with names beginning with F through J.

Jan. 8—Students with names beginning with K through M.

Jan. 9—Students with names beginning with N through P.

Jan. 10—Students with names beginning with Q through S.

Jan. 11—Students with names beginning with T through V.

Jan. 12—Students with names beginning with W through Z.

Failure to pay or to make arrangements for payment during this period will result in a $5.00 fee for delay.

ALUMNI TO MEET HERE THIS MONTH

Group Plans Eventful Schedule For Annual Business Meeting of Graduates.

The program of the annual assembly of the University Alumni Association, announced today, contemplates a full schedule of events for representatives of local alumni clubs and permanent class officers and other alumni who will gather here in January for their annual business meeting.

The principal session of the 1935 Alumni Assembly begins with a supper in Graham Memorial January 25. Dr. Hubert B. Haywood, of Raleigh, president of the Alumni Association, will serve as toastmaster and will preside over the business session.

President Frank P. Graham will discuss with alumni representatives the University's appropriation request which will go before the Legislature next month. Dr. Graham's address, in the nature of an annual report to the alumni of conditions in the University, features the program.

Elections

Business to be conducted at the Friday evening session includes the election of directors of the Alumni Association, and the nomination of officers for the ensuing year. President Haywood has appointed two committees to present nominees for president, first and second vice-presidents, and an alumni representative on the University Athletic Council.

An added feature of the 1935 alumni gathering will be the meeting Friday afternoon of specially selected alumni who will discuss and formulate a program to inspire the making of bequests to the University.

The alumni events will continue Saturday, January 26, with a luncheon meeting of officers and executive committeemen of the University classes scheduled to hold reunions at commencement next June. These classes include 1885, '94, '95, '96, '97, '10, '13, '14, '15, '16, '25, '32, '33, and '34.

Yackety Yack Men

An important meeting of the division heads of the Yackety Yack staff will take place at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon in the office.

Six Prominent University Men Receive Kenan Professorships

Appointments Reward Rare Achievement In Scholarship

Dashiell, Dey, Harrer, Knight, Taylor, and Zimmermann Honored by Awards.

The recent appointment of six new Kenan professors at the University is a major event of this University year. The appointments have met with wide approval, most enthusiastic among those who are intimately acquainted with the members of the faculty as teachers and scholars.

The new appointments are as follows: John F. Dashiell, head of the psychology department; William M. Dey, head of the Romance language department; Gustave A. Harrer, professor of Latin; Edgar W. Knight, professor of education; George Coffin Taylor, professor of English; and Erich W. Zimmermann, of the department of economics and commerce.

Method of Selection

Appointments were made by the executive committee of the board of trustees of the University on the recommendation of President Frank P. Graham.

The Kenan Professorship Endowment and Reserve Fund, which made the appointments possible, was established at the University in 1916 by the will of the late Mrs. Mary Lilly Kenan Bingham, in memory of her father, William R. Kenan, and her uncles, James G. Kenan and Thomas S. Kenan.

Professor Dashiell, a teacher of unusual powers, eminent among American psychologists and one of the recognized leaders of the Gestalt school, is the

EXECUTIVE GROUP HEARS BRADSHAW

Freshmen to Meet Only on Mondays, Fridays; Will Aid in Planning Programs.

In a short meeting after the regular freshman assembly yesterday, Dean Francis Bradshaw tendered to the members of the Freshman Executive Council the suggestion that they aid him in planning the programs for the coming sessions of freshman assembly.

He told the members of the council that, with their co-operation he hoped to arrange programs that will be interesting as well as instructive during the winter quarter.

Dean Bradshaw outlined, in the absence of President Mullis, a plan that will make the members of the executive council the "antennae" to whom the freshmen may individually suggest the types of programs that they prefer.

Sub-Committee Suggested

He suggested that President Mullis appoint a sub-committee from the executive committee which will assist Dean Bradshaw in the actual arrangement of the programs.

During freshman assembly, Dean Bradshaw announced that, during the winter quarter, freshmen will be required to assemble only on Mondays and Fridays, except when special sessions are necessary. The deans of various schools, he announced, may still call meetings

PARAGRAPHICS

It's too bad we can't get the legislature to meet during the Christmas holidays. Maybe then they would talk turkey.

The catalogue remarks that classes will be held today "as if Tuesday." As if Tuesday isn't good enough?

President Roosevelt wants to bust up the holding companies. That's easy if something doesn't hold up the busting company.

Roosevelt And Youth

President Franklin D. Roosevelt brought a note of intense optimism to the youth of this country in his stirring address yesterday, optimism in that what he had to say was comforting to the present generation whose responsibility will be tomorrow what the national recovery policy effects today.

We have asked each other on every campus in this country: how will we bear the expense of this extensive administrative activity? How long will this relief business continue? What effect will the virtual dole system have upon our generation? Will we sustain our morale as well as recover our economic stability? Will it be our duty to support through federal funds the destitute of the nation?

The president encouraged us. The business of relief must be quit because it burdens the nation and creates dependents; the dole is a violation of American tradition; local responsibility can and will be resumed; security payments to unemployed on government projects shall not be so large as to breed dependence upon government funds by destroying individual initiative. Child labor has been effectively outlawed; the human as well as the economic element in the country has been realized; morale has appreciably been bolstered by invigorating economic adjustment. Permanent improvements utilizing and preserving the nation's natural resources will result from the administration's efforts.

The president has an eye for youth, in his personality and his activity. If it is true that the future generations will pay the heavy financial investments, then lessen the burden as much as possible. If it is true that the morale of tomorrow's citizenry depends on today's inspiration, then make the present generation as contented and prosperous as possible. If the money which tomorrow's generation will pay back must be spent today, let it be invested in secure and permanent projects, as near self-liquidating as possible.

We of the younger generation with fears of war were comforted by the president's statement that "there is no ground for apprehension of America's participation in armed conflict." Peace results from economic agreement and our national policy is purported to solving internal economic difficulties and adjusting external disparities.

The morale of America's youth, shaken by the seemingly impossible situations which the present generation is creating, is being restored. We have cause for confidence in today's leaders who care for the welfare of tomorrow's America. We can have confidence in an administration whose policies are far-sighted as well as practicable.

Starting On Friday

There's an old saying that nothing should be started on Friday which can't be finished on Friday.

However little we are inclined to think of the adage, it seems very appropriate at this time. The students are unanimously agreed that having to return to school yesterday was a mistake that can be avoided by better scheduling of holidays. It's a big enough mental hazard to return to school after the holidays, anyway, without having to face the prospect of returning on a week-end with two idle days intervening before classes begin in earnest.

The wide-spread dissatisfaction with having to return on a week-end is ample suggestion that this experience should not be duplicated in the future. No doubt the administration will take heed to its correction as a matter of practical foresight.

A Matter Of Record

"Jan. 5. Saturday. Classes as if Tuesday."

So belches the University Record.

But none of the faculty ever read the Record, or those that did probably disregarded the above-noted item. At any rate, classes today will be held in approximately one out of five classes, which is amusing but somewhat shameful.

First they tell us Christmas holidays terminate January 3, then it's the 4th. Now they say Saturday classes and not even the professors know whether the Record is right or wrong, or the administration daffy or determined.

We hope somebody gets together and fixes things so this liberal old University gets out next summer sometime before August.

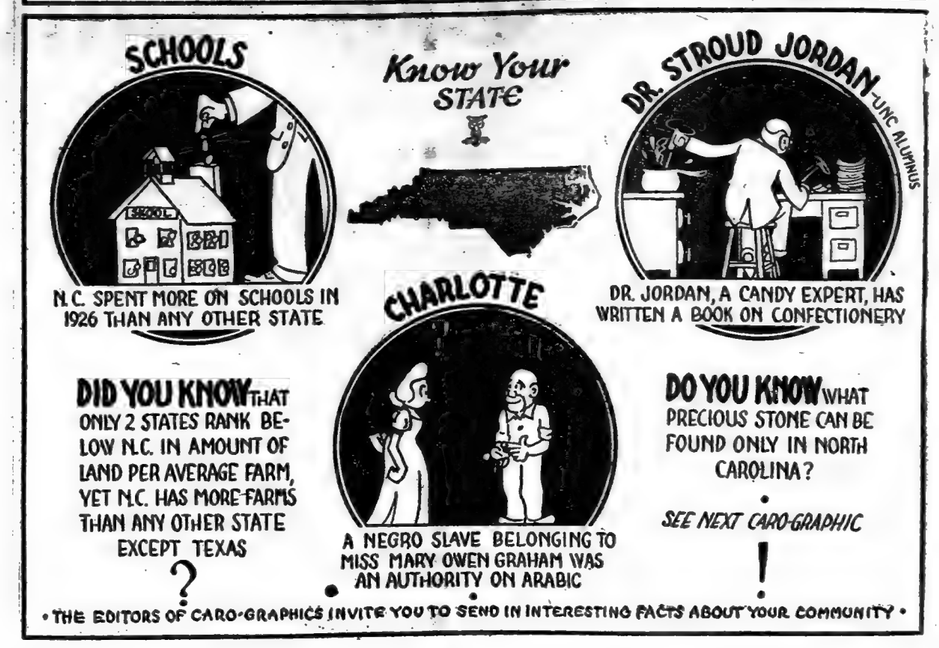
A Winter Wonderland

The campus has every reason in the world to anticipate with interest one of the greatest sessions in University history.

From now until March 16 the University calendar will be packed with exciting activity. The first student-faculty get-together promises epoch-making interest; the budget fight offers serious activity vital to every student on the campus; a re-birth of student enthusiasm in campus and administrative affairs marks intense student activity; lecture series, fast indoor sports, student investigations, national effects, international problems—all offer a program for student ambition.

American students have greater opportunity than ever before of studying the world's progress. Let it not be said that there are students in Chapel Hill who are bored with nothing to do or think.

Army and Navy A Sample Case



No greater bait for the wiles of a press that propagandizes in favor of increased armaments could be provided than the detention of a Japanese in St. Petersburg, Fla., on the charge of taking pictures of the harbor, the naval station, and a United States cruiser that happened to be anchored there. It is not hard to picture the blazing headlines proclaiming the insidious espionage of the Yellow Peril, nor the innuendo beneath them that more armaments are the key to national safety.

Such occurrences are furthermore over-emphasized from every point of view. The increasing publicity being given to the activities of peace-time spies has pretty well fixed it in the minds of the well-informed that spying is going on and will continue to go on and little can be done about it, so there is nothing particularly alarming in the detention of a Japanese.

But there is another side to the question. The ones who usually raise such a howl whenever a foreign agent is caught doing a little amateur photography are guilty of the identical betrayal which they so loudly deplore, meaning in a great many instances the army and navy departments. These are the defenders of our country, we are told. Yet, as Senator Nye of the munitions investigating committee recently remarked in a radio broadcast from Washington, the navy is little more than a munitions salesman's sample case. Senator Nye actually cites cases where the government very conveniently dispatched war vessels to certain points on the globe—to serve as demonstration agents for foreign countries who were prospective buyers of armaments made by American munitions makers. And the war department has been shown to be very accommodating in planning defenses for, notably, the South American countries.

How characteristically human it is to seize on the unimportant and ignore the devastating truth is shown nowhere better than in a daily newspaper. Let the little Japanese receive no more than passing notice, we say; let the munitions investigation continue to make the front page of every newspaper in the country. Discover foreign spies, of course; but smoke out the less palatable variety that exist in our own country first.

author of standard books on psychology and a contributor to psychological journals. He has taught with distinction at Columbia University, Princeton, Minnesota, and Oberlin.

Professor Dey has served as head of the Romance language department and as professor of French at the University since 1909. He is recognized by his colleagues as a superb teacher and leader of teachers who is deeply interested in undergraduate education and student life.

Professor Harrer, who won his A.B. and doctrate from Princeton, where he later served as instructor, came to Chapel Hill in 1915 as an instructor of Latin. He has established himself in the University and community as a teacher of unusual strength, as a scholar of national distinction, and as a leader in the American Classical and the American Philological Association.

Professor Knight, a native of Northampton county, graduate of Duke University and member of Phi Beta Kappa, received his Ph.D. from Columbia University in 1913. He was professor of education at Old Trinity College (now Duke University), superintendent of the Wake county schools, was visiting professor at Columbia University, and has been professor of education at the University since 1919.

He is author of "Education in the South," "Among the Danes," "Education in the United States," "Culture in the South," and other volumes.

Professor Taylor, an inspirational teacher and eminent scholar, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, a native of Charleston, S. C., and a graduate of the University of South Carolina. He received his M.A. at Harvard and his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago.

Professor Taylor was head of the department of English at the University of Colorado from 1899-1909, and has been connected with the English department at the University since 1925.

Professor Zimmermann, recent winner of the Mayflower Cup, awarded annually by the Mayflower Society for the best book of the year written by a North Carolina resident, is a native of Germany.

Professor Zimmermann was a consulting economist of the United States bureau of mines from 1920-23, member of the staff of the Porto Rican survey of the Brookings Institute, and fellow in the American Geographical Society. He is the author of "Foreign Trade and Shipping," "Ocean Shipping," and "World Resources and Industries," which is internationally recognized as the standard work in its field. Professor Zimmermann has been connected with the department of economics at the University since 1921.

of their respective schools on Wednesdays.

Dean Bradshaw stressed the need for a quick start in the scholastic work for the winter quarter, calling to mind the fact that there are almost twenty less class days in this quarter than in the fall quarter.

He suggested that each student take "time out" every night to plan the following day's activities. He endorsed using a schedule plan that would give ample time for both study, recreation and sleep. He warned against trying to "short change" himself in allowing too little time for sleep.

GRADUATE GRANTS FUNDS TO CHURCH

Gift of $50,000 Presented to Local Methodist Church.

An anonymous gift of $50,000 to the University Methodist church for the purpose of wiping out an old indebtedness was announced today by Rev. Dr. M. T. Plyler, editor of the "North Carolina Christian Advocate" and chairman of a joint commission which was appointed by two North Carolina conferences to supervise the construction of the church.

The identity of the donor was carefully concealed, the only inkling of the generous individual being the statement of Dr. Plyler that he was a resident North Carolinian and a graduate of the University of North Carolina.

Tar Heels Clash With Wildcats At Charlotte

Big Five Basketball Outfits Meet In Important Battle Tonight In High School Gym.

DAVIDSON IS FAVORITE

Shepard Will Start Same Five That Opened Against Elon; Strength Is Unknown.

Carolina	Pos.	Davidson
Aitken	F.	Ross
Nelson	F.	Harris
Glace	C.	Morgan
Kaveny	G.	Peabody
McCachren	G.	Yelverton

Carolina's White Phantoms will really swing into their basketball schedule tonight when they face Davidson at the Charlotte high gym. The battle will be the first Big Five test for the State champions.

Davidson holds the favored position as a result of fine play in the several tilts the Wildcats have already had. The Cats gave Duke plenty of trouble last Wednesday before finally bowing 39-35. Thursday Davidson came back fast in the second half to tie the count and then went on to finally beat Wofford, 40-35.

Built around Jim Morgan, lanky center, the Wildcats have a veteran team which has already displayed both speed and scoring power.

Phantoms Look Poor

As yet the strength of the White Phantoms is unknown. Coach Bo Shepard was far from satisfied with the showing against Elon, his club demonstrating very little of the power of last year's title club. Although the Phantoms showed moments of speed and skill, as a whole the passing and shooting was ragged and the defense loose.

The Tar Heels will start the same outfit that played together most of the time against Elon. The present combination is built around the veterans Captain "Snooks" Aitken, forward; Jason Glace, center; and Jim McCachren, guard.

Two New Members

Paul Kaveny, guard, and Mel Nelson, letter forward, are receiving the call to fill up the holes left by Virgil Weathers and Dave McCachren, a couple of All-Southerns who graduated.

All students who have not gotten their books should do so before the business office closes Tuesday if they plan to attend the game with Wake Forest here Tuesday night.

WHITE PHANTOMS DROP ELON 34-21 IN OPENING GAME

Tar Heel First Team Takes Fast Lead in First Half; Elon Outplays Reserves.

GLACE LEADS IN SCORING

Carolina's White Phantoms opened their 1935 cage season Thursday night by trimming the Elon Christians 34-21, with the first string outfit showing up strong and the reserves very weak.

The starting lineup turned on the heat in the first period to pile up a substantial 27-8 lead at half-time. But the reserves entered the game and were unable to match the play of the Christians. In the last period the Heels tallied only seven points.

Elon Scores First

Elon started the game with a goal but the Phantoms opened their bag of tricks and began scoring. With Jason Glace and Jim McCachren setting the pace, Coach Bo Shepard's men had things their own way. Carolina held the ball most of the first half. Elon returned after the rest a new team and, meeting a sub Tar Heel bunch, completely outplayed the Heels.

Besides Glace, who was high scorer of the game the 12 points including eight straight free throws, and McCachren, Paul Kaveny turned in a fair performance. Nelson snagged nine markers.

Smith was the outstanding Christian with his fine floor play and shooting.

MURAL PROGRAM TO OPEN JAN. 13

Winter Season Will Get Under Way with Court Title Play; Other Sports on Card.

The winter program of the intramural athletic department will get underway on Thursday, January 13, when play will commence in the basketball leagues. As usual approximately forty teams will compete for the campus championship.

Bowling, ping pong, and possibly foul shooting will also be on the program this quarter. Further announcements concerning these sports will be made later.

Basketball entries can be made with Director Schnell at his office in 310 South building every day between nine and five, or at the intramural office between five and six. Entries will be accepted until 6 o'clock next Wednesday, at which time the schedule will be drawn up.

Managers Notified

Final instructions were mailed out to the dormitory and fraternity athletic managers last evening; and when making their team entries, the managers are requested to tell the hour and days preferable for play. This must be done as the directors wish to arrange the schedule as conveniently for each team as

RINGSTERS WORK FOR FIRST MEET

Carolina Boxing Outfit to Open Against VPI in Two Weeks; Several Veterans Back.

After a layoff of some two weeks, the leatherpushers have again resumed their daily workouts. The pugilists went through their paces yesterday afternoon under the eyes of Coach Rowe. Due to the fact that there is only one week left before the Carolina scrappers meet the V. P. I. contingent, the boys have plunged into serious training.

Coach Rowe is building his squad around the following veterans; Ernie Eutsler, 119 pounder; Captain Sam Giddens, 155 pounder; Morty Ellisberg, 165 pounds; Marvin Ray, light-heavyweight; and Jimmy Carruth, heavyweight.

Several Soph Stars

At present, Diehl, ace 119 pound sophomore, is battling for a varsity berth. Tommy O'Flaherty, former yearling, aiming at the lightweight post, Joe Fisher, freshman welterweight of last year's Tar Baby team, fighting for the varsity notch at that weight, Max Novich, also a sophomore with an enviable freshman record, casting eyes at the middleweight post, and Lammy Alderman, endeavoring to control the heavyweight situation.

All freshmen and varsity men are urged to report to the Tin Can daily, as much preparation is needed before the tiff with V. P. I., scheduled for Saturday night, January 12.

Cat Letters Awarded

Davidson, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Fifteen varsity football letters were awarded to members of the 1934 Davidson squad. At the same time service letters were given to six seniors.

Six members of the freshman cross country team and one member of the varsity were awarded letters. Earle Frazer, state two-mile champion, was the lone harrier honored.

THIRTY MATMEN AGAIN AT WORK

Initial Encounter, Against VPI, Is Just Two Weeks Off.

A squad of about 30 wrestlers resumed training for their first meet which is scheduled to be held two weeks from today. The workout conducted by Coach Quinlan was mostly limbering up due to the two weeks of no practice. Beginning Monday, stress will be laid on the application of the many holds taught by the wrestling mentor.

Carolina Stars Perform Today In Brooklyn Meet

BOXERS TO MEET

Freshman and varsity boxers will meet today at 4 o'clock in the Tin Can, Coach Crayton Rowe announces.

Ed McRae, Harry Williamson, And Graham Gammon to Run At K. of C. Indoor Games.

COMPETITION IS STRONG

Track and Field Games Will Open Season; McRae and Williamson in Special Events.

A trio of "Flying Tar Heels" will participate in the Knights of Columbus indoor track and field games in Brooklyn today. They are Harry Williamson, Ed McRae, and Graham Gammon.

The big K. of C. games will pry the lid off the 1935 track season, one which all followers are looking to as the best in years. Last year record after record was broken and this year these same record breakers are back for more.

The K. of C. games will precede several other outstanding New York City affairs, which include the Milroe and the NYAC meets.

Tar Heel Events

Williamson and McRae are entered in special events, the former in the 800-meter event and the latter in the 3000-meter run. Gammon is in the 1000-meter handicap.

The run today will mark McRae's debut among national runners. He has tackled the best in the south, but this will be his first chance among the big time distance men. McRae was co-captain of last spring's conference indoor and outdoor champion track team. He is the record holder of the SIC indoor mile and was winner of the conference cross country run this past fall.

Today's performance will mark Williamson's return to big time running among the nation's best. Last summer this Tar Heel was one of the outstanding performers in the national competition. He ran a close fourth to Bonthron, Cunningham, and Venzke in the world record-breaking mile run in the National Intercollegiates. Venzke barely outran Williamson, the

TAR HEELS WIN SIC AND STATE HONORS IN 1934

Carolina Teams Get State Titles In Four Major Sports; Also Top Four SIC Races.

MANY INDIVIDUALS STAR

As the Blue and White banner of the University of North Carolina flew proudly at the top of both the Big Five and Southern Conference flagpoles, all Tar Heels joined in the New Year's wish that the year 1935 will be as good to their teams as the one just finished.

For Carolina teams in 1934 swept the State titles in all four major sports and won championships in indoor and outdoor track, baseball, and cross country to tie Washington and Lee for top honors in the Southern Conference.

The Tar Heels' record in the Big Five is thought to be without parallel. In addition to capturing the four major sports crowns, football, basketball, baseball, and track, they won in cross country, tied with State in boxing, and finished second to State in wrestling and golf.

Netters Still Strong

In addition, the Tar Heel netters, though lacking in stars for tournament play, swept all their dual meets in the state and south again for first claim to team honors in both leagues.

Two of the teams surpassed all previous performances by a Carolina squad. The baseball team, coached by Bunn Hearn, won 20 of its 21 college games with a phenomenal winning streak of 18 straight. The track team, led by Coach Bob Fetzer, became the first team ever to capture the Southern Conference indoor and outdoor and the state title in one season.

Gridsters in Surprise

The surprise package of the year perhaps was the football team, which in its first year under Coach Carl Snavely upset the dope to capture the state title and down such big teams

F.D.R. PROPOSES 'A JOB FOR ALL'

Congress Cheers President's Address Stating Determination To Safeguard the Home.

Washington, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Roosevelt told cheering and enthusiastic Congress today that he proposed to give every able bodied destitute American a job and provide for the security of family and home.

He said it could be done without endangering the government's credit. He claimed healthy strides out of the depression had already been made, but added that the job had been only partly completed.

Washington, Jan. 4.—(UP)—The United States Senate heard President Roosevelt's message today in joint session with the House of Representatives.

It adopted resolutions regretting the deaths of Speaker Henry T. Rainey and Representative-elect Frederick Landis of Indiana.

After listening to memorial addresses by Senator J. Ham Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, and Senator William H. Dieterich, Democrat, Illinois, it received a constitutional amendment giving Congress the power to regulate hours, wages, and conditions of labor, a "safety at sea" bill including an inquiry into the Morro Castle disaster, a bill providing a $1,000 fine for photographing United States fortifications, and many others.

The Senate recessed until Monday.

The House, after hearing the presidental message, approved a new Appropriations Committee slate, and received several hundred bills. It also adjourned until Monday.

PETE BOONE LOST TO FROSH SQUAD

Newly Released Schedule Shows Three Major Revisions.

With the holidays just a pleasant memory, the frosh basketball squad put their noses once again to the grindstone, as they plunged into last minute preparations for Tuesday's encounter with Wake Forest.

The first check in the frosh advance toward cage glory came with the loss of Pete Boone, star forward of preliminary workouts, who failed to return to the University. However, a wealth of material lies in the large squad, and his absence may be nullified by some of the promising youngsters out for the forward posts.

For the third time in as many weeks, the frosh schedule experienced the axe as teams were shifted and dropped. The newly released list shows a 14-game schedule; Durham High and Cone "Y" being dropped from the early dates. The only opponent added to the schedule is Darlington, whose team invades Chapel Hill on February 8, replacing the previously set clash with Belmont.

The squad will continue practice today with an informal workout in the Tin Can at 4 o'clock and then complete preseason training Monday evening

WAYNICK TO SPEAK

Capus Waynick, chairman of the state highway commission, will address the North Carolina Club Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, presenting a survey of the highway situation and the problems, with respect to highways, that will face the present legislature.

The club will meet in the basement of the library.

CAMPUS LEADERS ATTEND CONGRESS

Four Tar Heels Meet with National Student Federation.

Four Carolina campus leaders were in attendance at the annual congress of the National Student Federation of America that convened at the Parker House in Boston, Mass., from December 28 last until January 1.

Students representing the University at the congress were: Vergil Weathers, student body president; Elizabeth Jane Durham, president of the Women's Association; Joseph Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, who represented all campus publications, and Harper Barnes, director of Graham Memorial.

John Lang, Carolina graduate, presided over the session. Lang is serving his second year as president of the N. S. F. whose headquarters are in New York City.

Williamson continued his fine running in the Milwaukee AAU games by winning the National Junior 1500-meter race. In the spring he had stepped through the best of the Dixie competition, setting state and university records in the half-mile.

Gammon is just a sophomore this year and has yet to see varsity competition. As a yearling last spring he developed into a crack half-miler, his best time being 1:59.8 for a state frosh record.

All three runners will be facing the strongest competition of their careers, with the possible exception of Williamson. Bonthron, Venzke and possibly Cunningham will be facing Williamson. McRae will have all the crack distance runners of the Empire State opposing him as well as other leading national runners. Gammon will meet likewise strong opposition in his handicap event.

GAMECOCKS FACE VA. QUINT TONIGHT

Henry Sturm, Ace Forward, Returns to Cavalier Lineup; to Play in Memorial Gym.

University, Va., Jan. 4.—Virginia's basketball team is ready to face South Carolina tomorrow night in the Memorial gymnasium with Henry Sturm, high scoring forward, back in the position he has filled during the last two seasons.

Since Monday the Cavalier courtmen have been hard at work under the supervision of Coach Gus Tebell. Drills were held morning and afternoon until yesterday when University classes began again after the Christmas recess.

Sturm, who counted more than 200 points last season, was ont able to play in any of the three games before Christmas. But a bad finger, that has bothered him considerably, has now entirely healed and he has shown in practices this week that he has gotten the range of the corded basket.

Richmond U. Monday

Virginia follows the South Carolina game tomorrow night by meeting Richmond University here on Monday. The Spiders defeated the Cavaliers 25 to 16 when the two teams met in Richmond on December 22. But Sturm was in the stands while this contest was being played, and his presence in the game may make a difference for the return engagement.

Paired with Sturm as a forward there will be Orlin Rogers, the swift floorman who is captain-elect of Virginia's baseball team. Ray Smith will probably be started at center unless Coach Tebell decides to use a new man, Bud Abbitt.

Rest of Lineup

Dave Marrett and Harold Gist are the probable starters in the guard positions. Two other wearers of the basketball "V," Lucian Cox and Ned Booker, will be ready to go in as forwards.

The South Carolina team did not lose a single Southern Conference game last winter during the regular season, but was not successful in defending its championship in the Raleigh tournament.

Next week the Virginians have two games in the Memorial Gymnasium here, Richmond on Monday and William and Mary on Thursday, before they go to play their first game away from home against Washington and Lee, conference champions, in Lexington on Saturday night. Two other games are to be played with the Generals, one here on February 15, one in Lynchburg on February 26.

Public Health Course

The 12-week course in Public Health Administration, given during the fall quarter, is to be repeated. Four public health officers are enrolled: Doctors A. J. Eller, Wilkesboro, N. C.; Horton Camp, Wassaic, N. Y.; J. R. Beck, Dover, Del.; and H. L. Sumner, Asheville, N. C.

The course will be conducted jointly by the medical school, school of public administration, school of engineering, and the North Carolina state board of health.

PAINTING DISPLAY WILL OPEN TODAY

Music Hall to Exhibit Art Projects by American Artists.

An exhibition of oil paintings by contemporary American artists will open in Hill Music hall this afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of the Southern Art Projects.

The exhibit will continue through January 15, and will display 25 paintings valued at $40,000. Individual works range from $300 to $5,000 in value.

The paintings, lent by the Grand Central Galleries of New York City, will be displayed from 2 until 5 p. m. and from 7 until 9 p. m.

The Southern Art Projects was formed this year through a small grant by the Carnegie Corporation and embraces three institutions: the University here, the University of Virginia, and Telfair Academy of Arts and Sciences in Savannah, Ga.

President Graham is chairman of the Projects executive committee while R. M. Grumman, head of the extension division, has charge of the exhibit.

More programs are being planned by the group, the second of which will be Monday evening when Dean Meeks of Yale University will speak in Gerrard hall.

as Georgia, Kentucky, Georgia Tech, and Duke, and which was undefeated though tied once in the Southern Conference.

Among the year's individual stars, Captain George Barclay won an All-American football berth. Charlie Shaffer and Jim Tatum also made All-Southern. In track, Ralston LeGore was crowned the national A.A.U. javelin and Harry Williamson the junior A.A.U. 1500-meter champ.

Jim McCachren was All-Southern in basketball, while Ed McRae won the conference cross country run and Norment Quarles the lightweight boxing title. Nate Andrews with five wins and no losses and Fred Crouch with 10 wins in 11 starts led the pitchers, while Thurman Vick topped the hitters with a mark of .417.

Dr. J. W. Lasley, professor of mathematics, and Dr. W. F. Prouty, head of the department of geology, will be guest speakers at the January meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, in 206 Phillips hall, at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday.

Dr. Lasley will talk on "The Integration of Monge's Differential Equation." Dr. Prouty will read a paper on "The Structure of the Coastal Plain."

possible.

The winners of the fraternity and dormitory leagues will meet for the campus title on February 27, allowing each team to play eight games in the seven weeks that precede that date.

Basketballs cannot be given to each team, but starting Monday there will be an intramural assistant at the Tin Can from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock in charge of letting out basketballs, should any teams desire practice sessions before the season opens.

The season last year was one of the best on record, producing a long line of bright stars, strong teams, and close games. Ruffin dormitory annexed the campus championship by a 14-5 final victory over S. A. E. It was the loser's third consecutive appearance in the finals without annexing the crown.

The rules shall be governed by the official intercollegiate code, with but two exceptions. The periods shall be eight minutes in length with one-minute intermissions between quarters, and an eight-minute rest between halves. The center line and three-second rules shall not apply because of the smallness of the intramural court.

Dr. Haydon Is Appointed on Council of Learned Societies

At the last meeting of the American Council of Learned Societies, Dr. Glen Haydon, head of the music department of the University, was appointed a member of the committee on musicology.

Other members of the committee include: Carl Engel, chairman, Richard Aldrich, Otto Ortman, Jean Beck, George Herzog, and W. Oliver Strunk.

Modern Language Association of America Holds Annual Session at Swathmore.

Playing host to representatives from over 200 colleges, Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pennsylvania, was the scene of the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association of America held December 27-29, 1934.

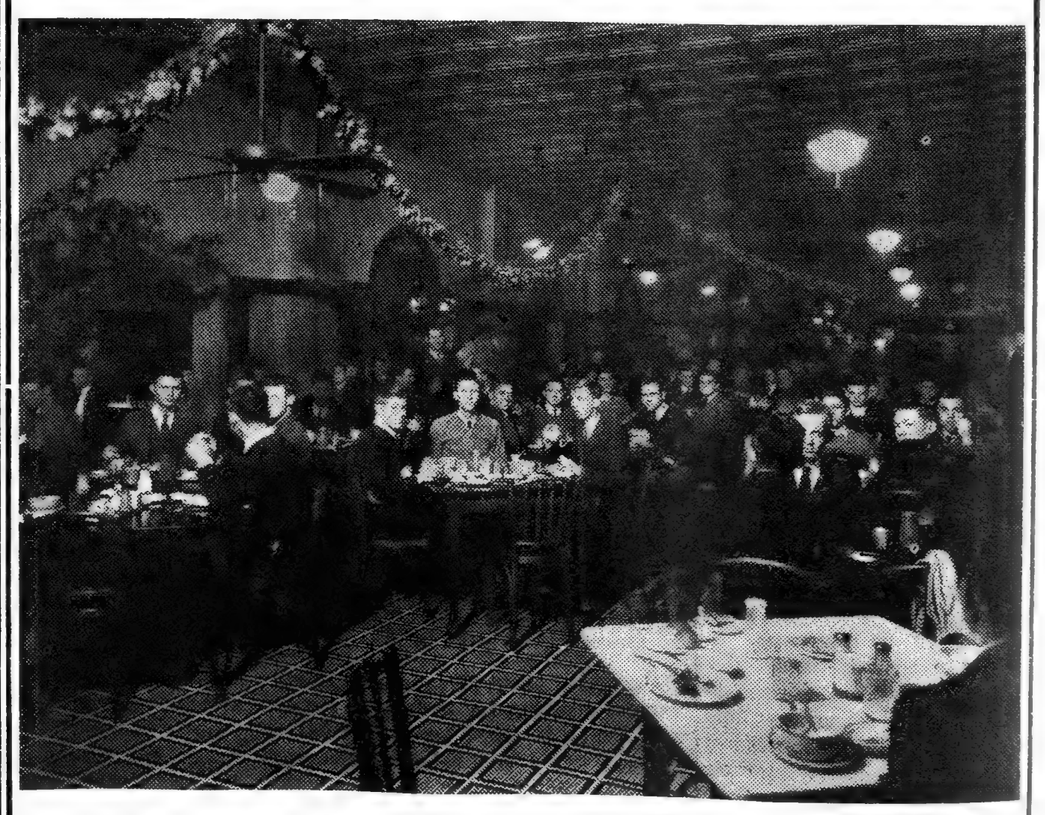
This meeting marked the 51st anniversary of the founding of the association and the seventh time it has met in the Philadelphia district.

Several members of the University faculty were honored at this meeting.

Professors Are Officers

Dr. R. P. Bond was continued as secretary of the section on 18th century English literature. Dr. G. C. Taylor took an active part in the organization of a special research group on Milton. Dr. Hardin Craig, visiting professor from Stanford University, was elected to membership in the executive council of the association.

In the Romance Language department Dr. J. C. Lyons was made chairman of renaissance comparative literature. Dr. R. S. Boggs continued as chairman of folk lore and was elected secretary of the mediaeval Spanish section. Dr. R. W. Linker was elected secretary of the mediaeval French section.



TAR HEELS CLASH WITH WILDCATS

His squad still not showing any real playing form, Coach Shepard with the assistance of Coach Walt Skidmore, gave the courtsters a lengthy workout yesterday afternoon in the Tin Can. Nine Tar Heels will make the trip to Charlotte. The Queen City fans will have special interest in the contest due to the fact that two of the Carolina veterans are native sons, Captain Aitken and Jim McCachren. The two stars played together on the Charlotte high school cage teams of former years.

KINGFISH'S COURT RULES CRESCENT CITY IS BANKRUPT

Court Appoints Receiver for City and Draws Municipal Purse Strings.

STANDARD OIL "PUNISHED"

New Orleans, Jan. 5.—(UP)—Huey "The Kingfish" Long spread his fins tonight in a farewell gesture and, with the aid of his friendly state supreme court, virtually threw the city of New Orleans into receivership.

He defied the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana and dared that corporation to withdraw from the state to escape his "spite" tax. He ignored a mass meeting of angry refinery employees who were faced with the loss of their jobs, and prepared to leave for Washington where he hopes to become a member of the new congress.

Supreme Court Acts

The state supreme court backed Long's decree by a vote of four to three, and named Judge A. L. Ponder of Amite as the would-be receiver for the city which refused to bow to Long's dictatorship and now is face to face with the "tyrant's penalty."

The order issued by the court prohibits the city from paying money to any person, firm, or corporation, until the proceedings are given a hearing on January 15.

"If the Standard Oil Company will buy all its crude oil from Louisiana," the Kingfish apparently reasoned, "We'll debate the tax, or we'll rebate the tax on that part that is purchased from Louisiana oil fields."

LINDY HOUSEHOLD AIDED KIDNAPING, DEFENSE CLAIMS

Hauptmann's Lawyers Work Frantically to Combat Testimony Given by Flyer.

WEEK'S PLANS OUTLINED

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 5.—(UP)—With their backs to the wall, Bruno Hauptmann's legal defense staff declared today that a gang of criminals, aided consciously or unwittingly by members of the Lindbergh household, kidnaped and murdered the "flying colonel's" young son.

The German carpenter's battery of lawyers are working frantically this week-end to find means of combatting the startling testimony given the court yesterday by Colonel Lindbergh.

Ransom Extortioner

This testimony placed their client definitely in the role of ransom extortioner. The defense lawyers outlined to the United Press an equally amazing theory which will be offered next week.

They will attempt to show that Dr. J. F. Condon was a visitor to the scene of the crime before it was committed. They will crack down with vehemence on the story to be offered by Betty Gow.

With these two points emphasized, the defense intends to attempt to establish the theory that the crime was plotted in professional criminal circles, and that some of the major characters in the melodramatic prosecution actually became tools of the plotters.

Person Hall Will Open Soon As Campus Fine Arts Center

Dr. Graham and Miss Leila Melchin Tell Raleigh Audience of Plans for Museum Here.

After having been in a state of reconstruction for almost a year, and the worst eyesore on the campus, Person hall will soon be completely restored and converted into an art museum. Plans for the development of the edifice as a center for the fine arts were disclosed by President F. P. Graham and Miss Leila Melchin, an officer of the American Federation of Arts, at the meeting of the North Carolina Art Society recently in Raleigh.

Begun in Savannah and spread to Chapel Hill and Charlottesville, the Southern Art Projects is concerned with establishing not only a depository for art treasures here, but a school of creative art as well. It has been pointed out that this school, if established, would match the departments of drama and music in fostering the study and appreciation of the fine arts.

Mrs. Katherine P. Arrington, president of the state art society and a generous contributor toward rebuilding Person hall, expressed the hope that in the future every community in North Carolina may have an art center.

ATHLETIC PASSBOOKS

All students who have not received their athletic passbooks for the winter quarter may obtain them tomorrow or Tuesday, it was announced yesterday.

No passbooks will be distributed after Tuesday.

The tickets will be given out from the cashier's window in the University business office, first floor of South building.

'Y' WILL DISCUSS CRIME PROBLEMS

Tentative Program Schedule Will Be Presented at First Meeting of This Quarter.

A tentative schedule of programs for the Y. M. C. A. cabinets was submitted to officers of the groups yesterday and will be discussed at the regular cabinet meetings tomorrow night in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The subject upon which the programs have been organized is "Social Disorganization" and will embrace the various phases of the crime problem.

Meeting Tomorrow

The meetings tomorrow night will be given over to a discussion and planning of the quarter's work and to a re-organization of the internal procedure of the several cabinets.

Tentative programs include discussions on "What is Crime?", "Who is the Criminal?," "Punishments for Crime," "Prisons," "Juvenile Delinquency," "Pros and Cons of Capital Punishment," and "Modern Methods of Combatting Crime." Professor Harold D. Meyer assisted in the formulation of the study.

Other programs will include talks by prison wardens, criminal investigators, ex-criminals, and crime experts.

Student Fees

Students whose names begin with F through J may pay their student fees at the cashier's window tomorrow.

The schedule for other students is as follows:

Tuesday: Students with names beginning with K through M.

Wednesday: Students with names beginning with N through P.

Thursday: Students with names beginning with Q through S.

Friday: Students with names beginning with T through V.

Saturday: Students with names beginning with W through Z.

ALUMNI PREPARE PLANS FOR YEAR

University Speakers Emphasize Financial Condition of University at Local Meetings.

With the convening of the state assembly near at hand and the General Alumni Association business meeting scheduled for January 25, local alumni associations throughout the state are holding annual or semi-annual meetings to elect officers and to plan activities for the coming year.

As this is a legislative year, special emphasis is being laid by speakers from the University at these meetings on the financial situation of the University; and alumni are making plans for contacting legislators from their counties and acquainting them with the needs of the state educational institutions.

Work of Committees

Committees are also being appointed at these meetings to deal with prospective Carolina students from the state high schools and prep schools and to make plans for the co-operation of alumni groups with the director of the alumni loyalty fund.

During the month of December Wilkes county alumni were addressed in North Wilkesboro by Felix A. Grisette, director of the alumni loyalty fund; Dean of Students Francis Bradshaw and Alumni Association Secretary Mayron Saunders spoke at Rockingham in Richmond county; and Dean E. L. Cloyd of State College addressed alumni of the three institutions now included in the consolidated University gathered at Lenoir in Caldwell county.

Other Sessions Held

Other meetings were held in Lincolnton, Shelby, and Sylva.

Coach Carl Snavely and Secretary Saunders will speak Thursday at a meeting in Greenville, S. C., to alumni of upper South Carolina, including former Carolina men from Spartanburg, Anderson, and Gaffney.

Coach Snavely will talk to Lee county alumni in Sanford, January 17; and he and Coach Robert Fetzer will make addresses in Concord before Cabarrus county alumni February 1.

Other meetings are expected to be held soon in Wilmington, Oxford, Charlotte, Mount Airy, and in Johnston and Pitt counties.

SCOUTS WILL CONVENE

There will be an important meeting of the Boy Scout committees of the Cherokee Council and others interested in scouting tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in 215 Graham Memorial, John F. Kenfield, chairman of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro council, announced yesterday.

"Mama, Who Is That Man?"

Ed Lanier is a married man! He no longer bunks in the Y. M. C. A. He has an apartment of his own in Chapel Hill. A man of property.

Tired from a day's heavy work in the self-help bureau, the man of property whisked across the campus toward his new home. The thick, darkening air penetrated his overcoat. Good to have a home!

Into the apartment rushed Lanier. . . . Straight for the mushy chair and the DAILY TAR HEEL. . . . Cool smoke. . . . Warm hearth fire. . . .

"Mama, who is that man?" The frightened baby girl on the carpeted floor crawled toward her mother who had just come from the kitchen—It was not Mrs. Lanier!

The man of property let go his smoke, crushed his paper, and started up to face the woman. A thousand apologies. . . . He had entered the wrong apartment!

Greyhound Officials Present Plan For Local Bus Schedule

EDITORIAL STAFF FIRED

Pending final authority from the editor, who is absent, Phil Hammer, chairman of the editorial board, announced yesterday that every member of the editorial board has been dropped from the staff.

Tryouts for the board will be conducted beginning tomorrow every afternoon the coming week from 2 until 4 o'clock.

FAMOUS CHEMIST WILL TALK HERE

Dr. H. C. Urey, Nobel Prize Winner, Will Be Guest of Local Sigma Xi Society.

Dr. Harold C. Urey, Nobel Prize winner in chemistry for 1934, will address the North Carolina Chapter of the Society of Sigma Xi here next Saturday night.

The Duke Chapter of Sigma Xi will be the guest of the local organization. The arrangements for the lecture are being made by Dr. E. K. Plyler, president, and Dr. H D. Crockford, secretary of the North Carolina Chapter of the Society of Sigma Xi.

Dr. Urey is the third American chemist in the history of the Nobel Prize awards to receive the chemistry award. The prize was made for Dr. Urey's work on the discovery of deuterium, the heavy isotope of hydrogen.

Native of Indiana

Dr. Urey is a native of Walkerton, Indiana. He is a graduate of the University of Montana, took his Ph.D. degree from the University of California. He was the American-Scandinavian fellow in Denmark during 1923-24, studying under Niels Bohr at Copenhagen. He has served as an associate in chemistry at Johns Hopkins and has been

Water Resources Unit Moved to Raleigh

Division Has Been Stationed Here for Last Ten Years.

The Division of Water Resources and Engineering of the State Department of Conservation and Development which has been stationed at the University for the last ten years has been moved to Raleigh.

The creation of the division was the result of the work of Professor Thorndike Saville when he was a member of the University faculty. He began his investigations into the water resources of the state in 1919.

In 1925 when the Department of Conservation and Development located the division in Chapel Hill, Professor Saville was placed in charge.

"The transplanting of the division," comments the Chapel Hill Weekly, "may have some relation to the argument, which has been in progress for the last two or three years, over the question of moving the University's Engineering School from here to Raleigh. What puzzles Chapel Hill," the Weekly continues, "is why the move was made without persons intimately concerned having any opportunity to express either approval or disapproval."

CAMPUS TO SIGN WRITTEN PETITION

Proposed Route Would Connect Greensboro, Raleigh, and Chapel Hill.

CHEAPER RATES EFFECTED

Officials of the Atlantic Greyhound Lines met with a special committee appointed by the administration yesterday morning and presented a plan for the inauguration of a bus line from Greensboro to Raleigh via Chapel Hill.

The Greyhound officials submitted written petitions which will be circulated on the campus and presented to the North Carolina Utilities Commission in an effort to get a certificate for the inauguration of the new line.

Students Endorse Plan

The student committee heartily endorsed the program and made arrangements to have the petitions signed by University students who wish the new service. Members of the group were: Harold Bennett, Phil Hammer, Haywood Weeks, J. D. Winslow, and Dewitt Carroll.

The bus line submitted a schedule stipulating four buses to Raleigh and Greensboro daily, at rates measurably lower than now obtainable and at a greatly reduced travelling time.

Petitions to Be Signed

The hearing before the utilities commission will be held January 22. It is planned to have petitions presented also from Chapel Hill townspeople and

YALE PROFESSOR WILL MAKE TALK TOMORROW NIGHT

Dr. Meeks to Speak on "Problems of Present Day Architecture" in Gerrard Hall.

TALK TO BE ILLUSTRATED

Dr. Everett V. Meeks, dean of the school of fine arts at Yale University, will lecture tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall on "Problems of Present Day Architecture."

The public lecture, under the auspices of the Southern Art Projects, will be illustrated by means of slide pictures.

Professor at Yale

Dr. Meeks is professor of architecture at Yale and director of the Yale art galleries. He is a fellow in the American Institute of Architects.

The Southern Art Projects is an organization formed this year through a small Carnegie Corporation grant. It includes three institutions in the south, this University, the University of Virgina, and the Telfair Academy of Arts and Sciences at Savannah, Ga. President F. P. Graham is chairman of the executive committee.

Part of the program sponsored by the Southern Art Projects in co-operation with the University of North Carolina, the University of Virginia, and the Telfair Academy of Arts and Sciences at Savannah, Ga., is an exhibition of oil paintings by contemporary American artists in Hill Music hall. The exhibit was opened yesterday and will remain open through January 15. These paintings are borrowed from the Grand Central Galleries of New York City.

PARAGRAPHICS

The Beust browsing-room scrimmagers will probably be penalized for too many Downs.

If the Freshman Executive Committee will act as class "antennae," what's Dean Bradshaw—the lightning arrestor?

From the recent announcement it looks like the June-September session will be under the spell of a summer Knight.

Busses Or Bust

The attempt of the Atlantic Greyhound Lines to run a full-scheduled service from Greensboro to Raleigh through Chapel Hill will be heartily endorsed by hundreds of students on this campus who have protested in vain for years against the present bus service and connections with the outside world.

Petitions will be circulated through several student mediums throughout the campus and will be forwarded to the North Carolina Utilities Commission before which a hearing for the new line will be held January 22. If the commission approves and grants a certificate, Carolina students and townspeople of Chapel Hill and boroughs along the way will have available at last a transportation service with fast connections to all points of the country on this great national bus network.

Rates will be made cheaper through the new plan because lines will be direct and a part of a national system instead of a local service using antiquated coaches which are expensive to operate. Students living outside of the state can get direct connections at Raleigh, Greensboro, and Winston-Salem for all points.

It is urged that students using busses regularly or who will have occasion to patronize a well-knit, speedy, and reasonable bus service in the future cooperate with Greyhound officials by signing the petitions which will be circulated this coming week.

A Dose Of Soda

The Y. M. C. A. takes more than its share of bumps from a skeptical campus, but the leaders are planning the program of the cabinets with skill and foresight.

Whereas the organization probably never can see again days such as existed when it was the focal center of University activity, the Y. M. C. A. can nevertheless serve its members very definitely and effectively. Realizing that it is in the internal and not the external conditions that ineffectiveness exists, the leaders have made plans for the winter quarter which embrace an entire reorganization of the cabinet procedures and which bode well for the future of the groups as intensifying elements.

The discussion series for the winter quarter will evolve from the subject of crime. If the plans for more efficient internal participation are worked out, the contribution of such discussions on this subject will be important.

So now the Supreme Court of Louisiana, too, is dancing to Huey Long's tune. It seems that President Roosevelt will have to make good his threat of last summer to intervene if Louisiana were to lose her republican form of government.

Cops and Robbers

There have been more robberies reported for fraternity houses immediately before and during the recent holidays, making the fact obvious that the solution of the stealing problem did not end with catching a single suspect.

Chapel Hill police are absolutely inefficient when it comes to the robbery problem. The fault is not wholly their own, because obviously the members of the force cannot be every place at once. But we know of one case where the victim of a theft tried for four hours to find a policeman to whom to report the robbery and never even located a brass-buttoned blue-coat.

Some action must be taken. If the administration sees fit to take over the problem, it should do so thoroughly and with particular planning. Servants in the houses cannot, unfortunately, be depended upon to catch robbers as well as turn back the sheets and the burden must rest with someone else.

The Chapel Hill police force has a ridiculously easy task as it is, few college towns causing less trouble than Chapel Hill. Perhaps if it would direct its attention to thief-catching instead of watching the cars roll by on Franklin street, a more efficient local administration and a more contented public would be the result.

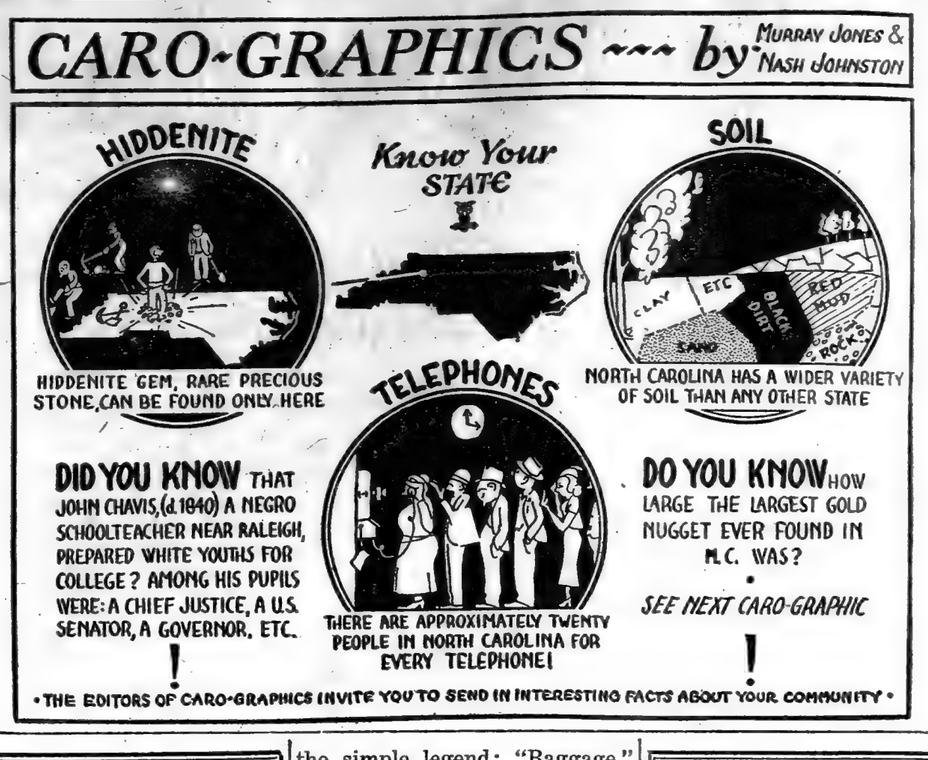
Great Men And Stipends

The appointment of six such outstanding men as Professors Dashiell, Dey, Harrer, Taylor, Knight, and Zimmermann to Kenan professorships meets with our whole-hearted approval. Each man has achieved greatness in his field and well deserved the honor.

In these days of University financial debility, the Kenan professorships offer the more brilliant instructors some peace of mind as regards keeping the home fires burning and in this way allow freer lives for the furtherance of their contributions to the field of learning. The pity is that the struggling young brilliants cannot likewise be relieved of economic worries in order to allow them this ease of burden, but perhaps the necessity of having to keep at two grindstones is what is the motivating force for future professorial greatness.

The University is fortunate indeed to have the stipends available and extremely lucky to have such high-calibre men to share them. It would be highly desirable to have more funds for our professors.

Help to the President?



If we should wake up one fine morning to read in the papers that Franklin D. Roosevelt had come into contact with officers of the law for crashing his automobile into a parked car, most of us would either refuse to believe the report or open our mouths in amazement. There would be something peculiarly shocking about such an incident involving the man who is supposed to be the symbol of law enforcement.

Yet something analogous to this fantastic situation really happened. Not Franklin D. Roosevelt was implicated, to be sure, but his son, 22-year-old Franklin D., Jr., who drove his car into a parked automobile while on his way to a dance in Philadelphia "early New Year's morning." Nobody denies that the President's son is as vulnerable to auto mishaps as any man in the street, but having an accident is one thing and driving a car into a parked automobile is another. It gives rise to a lot of speculation regarding whether the wreck was not preventable—to an even greater extent than most wrecks are.

Franklin, Jr.'s dubious accident on New Year's Day supplies the last bit of trimming to the unlovely antics of the Roosevelt children that have been on every front page throughout the past year. First came Elliot's divorce, then the inane publicity that was given to Mrs. Dall's divorce, and finally—it may be anti-climax, perhaps—the accident of the President's namesake. As private citizens, it may be argued that the Roosevelt children have a right to all these, but unfortunately they can do nothing which does not also turn the spotlight mercilessly on the first family of the land.

The President cannot be blamed for the doings of his children, who are old enough to be out of the realm of parental responsibility. But it undoubtedly causes him anxiety when they show so little regard for his position. Both of the divorces might have been postponed until after his term of office, even if it did mean prolonging what the divorce courts are so fond of calling "Mental Anguish." And Franklin's accident might have been averted if he had had his mind more on the tremendous responsibility of his father and less on getting to a New Year's dance.

Regrettable conclusion though it is, no one can help feeling that the Roosevelt children have done nothing to help their father at the crucial time when he is working out a new destiny for the nation.

ANYTHING GOES?

Now that the last echoes of the "Continental," "The Object of My Affections," "You're The Top," and "Stay As Sweet As You Are" have faded into your memories of the holidays, you might like to hear the story about the Washington debutante who was presented to the Bachelor's Cotillion in Baltimore. For exclusiveness, stiffness, and stuffiness, the Baltimore Bachelor's Cotillion is considered second in America only to the St. Cecelia in Charleston. Anyway, our bud spent approximately two thirds of the evening with men old enough to have sired her hopping about the floor to "The Blue Danube," "Spring Song," and similar sophisticated rhythms, in strict accordance with the card which had been made out for her. Finally, she drew a younger man, and together they ploughed their way through their elders to the orchestra.

Putting on her nicest smile, the young lady asked the director sweetly: "Do you think you could play 'Stardust?' "

"I'm sorry, madam," murmured the orchestra leader respectfully, "but 'Stardust' is considered too sexy for the Bachelor's Cotillion."

HE SAW STARS

And Eleanor Bizzell, one time desk man on the DAILY TAR HEEL, returns to her alma mater after a highly successful half-year at the Pulitizer (Columbia) School of Journalism long enough to tell this one about the New York bud who met Carl Carmer at a tea in New York. Introducing her, the hostess murmured: "This is Carl Carmer, my dear. You know—'Stars Fell On Alabama'."

"Oh goody," replied the darling of the four hundred. "I know all the words."

CHECK YOUR BAG, MISTER?

We're not convinced that the mind is all that travel broadens since we observed a little tableau in the noisy, crowded station in Greensboro Thursday night. It looked like old home week. Trains were coming in and out, as trains will do in railroad stations, the air was rent with loud huzzas of welcome, and people trotted around from group to group assuring everybody that they'd had a nice time. The kind of bustle known in Chapel Hill only in the office of the Carolina Magazine prevailed. At any rate, the only collected people in the room were three girls, apparently students at the Woman's College in Greensboro. They were standing in a doorway, waiting. The door bore the simple legend: "Baggage."

so?

Few courses given at the University in recent years have received as much advanced publicity and attention as that which has been accorded English 111, given by Dr. Hardin Craig, visiting professor from Stanford University. It pleases this department very much indeed to report that on the second day of class, the genial scholar observed seriously: "I have an idea that scattered through the scholarly journals there are a number of articles of fundamental importance."

SURE, THASS AW RIGHT

Shortly before the holidays a freshman pledge who had been celebrating New Year's Eve a trifle in advance stumbled into the dormitory room of a member of Beta Theta Pi. Quoth he: "I'm a Phi Kappa Sigma, and you're a fraternity man, but thass aw right."

FRANTZ TO PLAY HERE JANUARY 23

ther, Dalies entered the Huntington School there, earning his way through from the age of 16 years on by solo recitals, concerts with his mother, and as organist and director of a church choir.

Frantz entered the University of Michigan, again working his way through with his musical talent, graduating with the highest honors. In quick succession he won three prizes: a competition for solo appearance with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra against 99 competitors, the Naumburg Foundation competition with 100 entrants, and the prize carrying with it appearances with a major orchestra offered in a nation-wide contest by the National Federation of Music Clubs combined with the Schubert Memorial Foundation.

Appearance in New York

Frantz's triumph when he appeared first in Philadelphia, then in New York, as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra was both instantaneous and overwhelming. Music critics have predicted for him the most brilliant career ever achieved by an American-born pianist.

Most of Frantz's study of the piano was done with Guy Maier, interrupted by brief periods of work in Europe with Artur Schnabel and Vladimir Horowitz, but he has not forsaken all things else for music. He is fond of sports, at various times engaging in skiing, basketball, and swimming. During his busy days in Boston at the Huntington School he confined himself to his favorite sport, swimming, and was captain of the school team, winning several championships.

Comer Returns

Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University Y.M.C.A., returned to Chapel Hill last week to resume his duties as "Y" leader.

Comer spent November and December in Texas, recuperating from attacks of influenza and Devil's grip. Mrs. Comer accompanied her husband on his leave.

Edwin S. Lanier, University self-help secretary and head of the local FERA administration, officiated in Comer's stead during his absence.

White Phantoms Wallop Davidson Wildcats, 36-26 In Opening Big Five Tilt

Reserve Center Gets 13 Points to Take Top Scoring Honors

Tar Heels Hold Eight-Point Lead At Half Time.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Charlotte, Jan. 5.—Carolina's basketball team, state title holder, started on a campaign for its second straight championship here tonight by downing a speedy Davidson quintet, 36-26.

Bernie Webster, taking over the first string center position because of the absence of the sick Jason Glace, was the star for the Tar Heels. The substitute pivot man played brilliant ball leading the scorers with 13 points through five field goals and three fouls. He also guarded well, holding the usually high-scoring Morgan to six points.

Lead at Half

The entire White Phantom club showed a reversal of form over the Elon game, both passing and shooting in better style. The Tar Heels held a 19-11 lead at halftime, which was never overtaken. However, in the final period the Wildcats came back fast to play the contest on more equal terms.

A highlight of the battle was the accurate foul shooting of both fives. The Tar Heels missed only one try out of 11, while Davidson made good on eight out of nine.

Captain Snooks Aitken, Carolina's speedy forward, also starred for his outfit, playing a beautiful floor game and making good on four hard shots from the field. Jim McCachren continued his fine play both on offense and defense.

For the losers Peabody, veteran guard, was outstanding. He dropped in three goals for a total of six, besides playing a headsup game on the defense.

VIRGINIA MITMEN BATTLE HARVARD IN OPENING MEET

Cavaliers Attempting Their Third Consecutive Season Without Defeat.

FIRST FIGHT IS SATURDAY

University, Va., Jan. 5.—Virginia's opening boxing match against Harvard University, next Saturday, January 12, in the Memorial gymnasium, is the event many Cavalier sports followers have been looking forward to ever since the Southern Conference ring champions put aside their boxing gloves last February.

This is the second session in succession that the Crimson boxers have opened the season here. Last winter they were defeated 6-2 by the Cavaliers who went on without a defeat through their third consecutive campaign in the ring.

Open Work

Johnny LaRowe, coach of the Cavalier boxers, got his charges to work again yesterday afternoon for the first time in four weeks. He found most of them out of condition, but ready to work at top speed in preparation for facing Harvard.

Maynard Womer, defending welterweight champion of the conference, has been in the hospital with influenza, but he has so greatly improved during the last few days that Coach LaRowe has not given up hope of having him in the ring when the campaign opens.

In no dual meet since 1931 have the Cavaliers been defeated. The match with Harvard will be their 19th since they last lost to Pennsylvania. In addition to the boys from Cambridge the Virginians this year face V. M. I., North Carolina, V. P. I., Navy, and Maryland before making a defense of their Southern Conference title in the ninth annual tournament here on February 22 and 23.

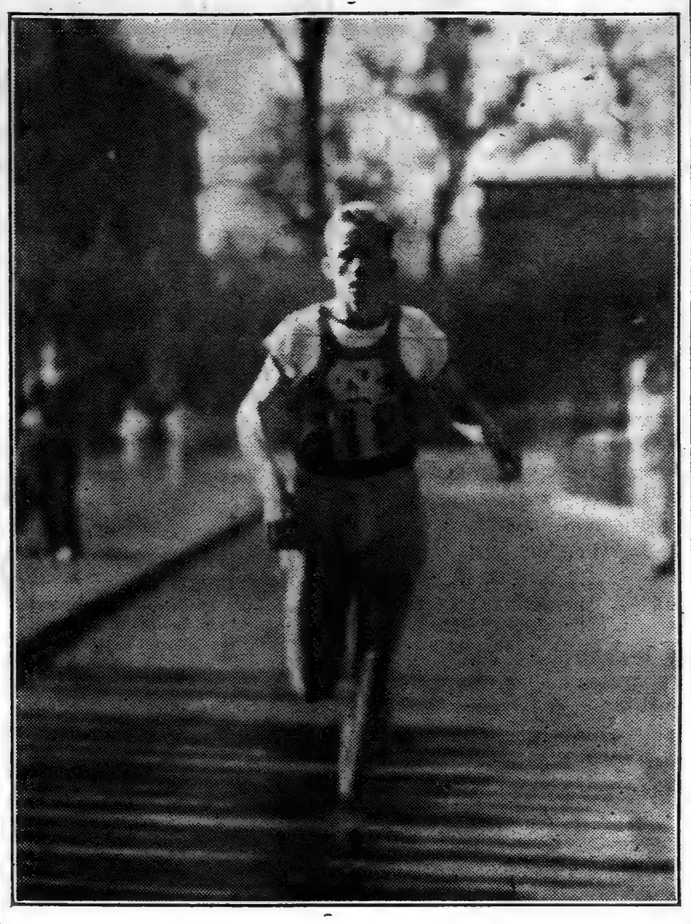
VARSITY BOXERS TAKE HARD DRILL WITH YEARLINGS

Veterans and Sophs Mix Gloves With Each Other; Frosh Encounters Also.

SCRAP V. P. I. SATURDAY

Freshmen and varsity mitmen put on some classy exhibitions in the Tin Can yesterday in preparation for their forthcoming meet against V. P. I. next Saturday in Blacksburg, Virginia.

Flashing quantities of excellent fighting form the glovers were all over the ring, punching each other about in their best and fastest practice to date.



Many veterans mixed it with the up and coming sophs in an attempt to hold their coveted positions on the team. Two of the outstanding sophomore pugilists, Fisher and Medynski, traded blows in a hard, fast contest which was featured by the former's flawless blocking and footwork, and the latter's terrific wallop.

O'Flaherty went to the wars against the promising yearling, Tommy Bass, and then took on his last year's teammate, Dickson. O'Flaherty looked good as he shoved his opponents around the ring for three rounds, forcing them to take the defense through his two-fisted attack. Bass showed up well, displaying fine blocking ability, while Dickson was always in there willing to mix it with his foe.

The next encounter brought Max Novich and Captain Sam Giddens together in the premier slugfest of the afternoon which ended with honors even. Both boys fought hard and clean in their three-round setto, ducking, weaving, and socking in a manner which should bring results in the meet this coming Saturday.

Morty Ellisberg and Shmurak, ace frosh, romped around in the final heavy bout. Ellisberg fought better than at any time this season, darting in and out and slugging in expert fashion. Shmurak too showed an improvement over his former work and he should be a great help to the yearling team.

A FLYING TAR HEEL

The above man is Ed McRae, ace Tar Heel distance runner. Last night in the K. of C. games, he was entered in the 3000-meter event. He ran five of the eight laps with the leader, but was forced to withdraw from the race at this point.

The picture above is McRae just before he broke the tape in winning the Southern Conference cross country run last fall.

Co-Captain-Elect Snyder Picks Two All-Opponent Grid Teams

Duke and Tennessee Place Trio of Gridders Each on Mythical First Eleven Picked by Snyder, Assisted by Joyce and Pendergraft; Seven of Nine Opponents Place.

First Team	Position	Second Team
Wentz (Duke)	l.e.	Ruppert (Kentucky)
Wagner (Kentucky)	l.t.	Isaacs (N. C. State)
Hatley (Tennessee)	l.g.	McCulloch (Georgia)
McKnight (Georgia)	c.	E. Dunlap (Duke)
J. Dunlap (Duke)	r.g.	D. Wilcox (Ga. Tech)
Shi (Georgia)	r.t.	Durner (Duke)
Pounders (Tennessee)	r.e.	Morgan (Davidson)
Mackorell (Davidson)	q.b.	Roberts (Ga. Tech)
Vaughn (Tennessee)	h.b.	Alexander (Duke)
Parker (Duke)	h.b.	Palmer (Tennessee)
Johnson (Kentucky)	f.b.	Chapman (Georgia)

"Hump" Snyder, co-captain-elect, aided by "Punchy" Joyce and Paul Pendergraft, Tar Heel guards, summarized the successful 1934 grid season by picking the above All-Opponent teams.

The Tar Heel trio honored Duke and Tennessee by selecting three gridsters from each institution for first string positions on the mythical team. Georgia and Kentucky placed two men each on the first eleven.

Seven of the nine teams on Carolina's schedule are represented on the All-Opponent selections. Wentz, Duke; Mackorell, Davidson; and Johnson, Kentucky were unanimous picks by the "All-Opponent Board."

built in the eighteenth century. General Thomas Person, for whom the hall was named, made possible its construction by a contribution of about one thousand dollars in silver after work had been suspended through lack of funds. Person hall was first used as a chapel; later it housed at various times the departments of medicine, chemistry, pharmacy, and music.

In addition to Mrs. Arrington, the Federal government has supplied money for the building of the museum. Although work is suspended at the present time, it is expected that it will be resumed soon, and the work finished in the spring.

Big Sports Program Planned This Week For Tar Heel Teams

Cagers Play Four Games Including Trip Into Virginia.

A game with Wake Forest here Tuesday night followed by a three-game trip into Virginia gives Carolina's rebuilt basketball machine a heavy card for this week.

The White Phantoms will open their Southern Conference schedule with Washington and Lee, the 1934 Conference champions, at Lynchburg Thursday night. They play at V. M. I. Friday and at V. P. I. Saturday nights.

The varsity and freshman boxing teams will swing into action next week, opening with V. P. I. at Blacksburg Saturday. Likewise the freshman basketball team, which entertains Wake Forest Tuesday and Raleigh High Saturday. The first meet for the wrestlers does not come until the following week.

FROSH STARTING LINEUP DOUBTFUL FOR FIRST GAME

Moss, Mullis, King, Ruth, and Grub Probable Starters in Wake Forest Encounter.

CONTEST THIS TUESDAY

With but two days remaining before the opening contest for the frosh quintet, Coach Skidmore faces the perplexing task of selecting a starting lineup.

There is an individual struggle for each post but five youngsters seem to have the edge and will probably take the floor Tuesday evening against the Wake Forest first-year outfit.

The pivot position has narrowed down to a battle between "Lanky" Joe Moss and "Red" Meroney, with the former having the slight advantage. Moss, a product of the Connecticut floorboards, has showed up rather well with a peculiar shot from the shoulder that has a decided knack of dropping through the hoop. He also uses his height to advantage under the basket.

Forward Posts

The forward positions seem destined to fall to Pete Mullis and "Whitey" King. Mullis, star of last year's strong Charlotte High team, is one of the fastest and surest shots on the squad, completely making up for a slight disadvantage in height.

King has flashed a beautiful game and if he lives up to preseason form will be one of the most outstanding players among the frosh. Teamed with Mullis at forward, King will complete a pair that will be a nightmare to the opposing quintets.

Leading Defense Men

Protecting the basket as guards will probably be Earl Ruth and Foy Grub. Ruth, another standout from Charlotte, seems to be a sure choice for his position due to his sterling work the past weeks. Grub has shown up about as well as his running mate and will probably face the Little Deacons also at the opening whistle.

Abe Bloom, as an alternate, is liable to replace either of the above mentioned before game time or after. Bloom, another youth that made the long trek from Connecticut, has shown a wonderfully fast and steady floor game as well as a good eye on the offensive.

Other boys who have definitely established themselves as members of the diminished squad are Ramsey Potts, of tennis fame, Hagey, Allen, Dowd, Nye, Lee, McCaskill, Fraulis, and Martin.

With this formidable set of hoopsters, the frosh team should travel a good way in its circuit and the opening setto is awaited with optimism and no little anxiety.

BATTLESHIP

Take a number from one to ten; double it and add a million. That's about how many dollars one-fortieth of a battleship costs nowadays.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 5.—In one of the closest 800-meter races ever witnessed by Empire City track fans, Glenn Cunningham of Kansas nosed out Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania with only inches to spare. This was the feature event of the ninth annual Knights of Columbus indoor track games here.

Four men finished neck to neck for the leading positions. Following the first two were Bill Ray of Manhattan and Harry Williamson of North Carolina.

Williamson Fourth

The Kansas star took the lead with a lap and a half to go and maintained this advantage. Venzke pulled up, however, and came very near beating Cunningham. The winning time breezed in at 1:57.3.

Williamson was holding the third post coming down the home stretch, but, tiring under the great strain, was passed by the sprinting Ray. The Manhattan ace was clocked at 1:58.8 while the Tar Heel ran it in 1:59.

Gammon Third

In the 1000-meter handicap Graham Gammon of North Carolina turned in the best race, although finishing third in the final results. Both Scott and Rote of New York were ahead of the Tar Heel, but they held a 60 yard handicap compared to Gammon's 15 yard advantage. The time was 2:32.1 minutes.

Joe McCluskey of Fordham won the special invitational 3000-meter event in the time of 8:48 minutes. Paul Mundy, Joe Mundy, and Fred Titzell, all of Millrose, followed in order. Ed McRae of North Carolina ran up with the leader for five laps but was forced to withdraw.

University Band

Members of the University band are urged to notice that the new schedule, arranging for rehearsals on Monday afternoon and Thursday night, goes into effect at once.

The new hours will allow practices on Monday at 5 p. m. and on Thursday at 7 p. m.

At present, plans are being made for the University band to give at least one public concert during the winter quarter. During the spring term the band will make several open air appearances.

Jason Glace, elongated ace pivot man of the White Phantoms, was sick yesterday and had to remain in the infirmary when the team went to Charlotte.

MURAL BASKETBALL

Managers may enter teams in the intramural basketball leagues starting tomorrow until 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. Entries are acceptable from 9 until 5 at 310 South, and from 5 until 6 at Emerson stadium.

FACULTY ATTEND VARIOUS SESSIONS DURING HOLIDAYS

Professors Take Part in Numerous Conferences of Learned Societies in Country.

NO FREE TRAVEL FUNDS

A number of the members of the University faculty attended meetings of learned societies in various sections of the country during the holidays.

Since the University now has no travel funds for such purposes, the professors attending these meetings did so at their own expense. This prevented the attendance of many who would have benefitted by these conferences.

Language Conference

Twelve attended the 51st meeting of the Modern Language Association of America: Dr. George R. Coffman, head of the English department, and Professors U. T. Holmes, Ralph S. Boggs, J. C. Lyons, G. C. Taylor, W. M. Dey, Sturgis E. Leavitt, N. B. Adams, W. L. Wiley, R. W. Linker, F. C. Mayes, and Richmond P. Bond.

The meeting of the American Historical Association was attended by Dean W. W. Pierson of the graduate school, and the following members of the department of history and government: Professors W. E. Caldwell, C. C. Crittenden, Cecil Johnson, L. C. MacKinney, J. C. Russell, H. M. Wagstaff, J. G. deR. Hamilton, C. B. Robson, and Carl H. Pegg.

Chicago Session

Members of the department of history and government attracted to Chicago by the meeting of the American Association of Political Science were: Dean Pierson, Professors E. J. Woodhouse, C. B. Robson, W. S. Jenkins, and K. C. Frazer.

Attending the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Pittsburgh were: Dr. J. F. Dashiell, head of the psychology department, Professor Arthur Ruark, head of the physics department, and Professor R. E. Coker. Dr. Coker also attended meetings of the American Society of Zoologists, the American Society of Naturalists, and the Ecological Society of America while in Pittsburgh. He was also at a committee meeting of the National Research Council.

Geologists Travel

Professor S. T. Emory of the geology department spoke at a meeting of the National Council of Geography Teachers in Philadelphia. Professor W. F. Prouty, head of the geology department, and Professor J. W. Huddle attended a meeting of the Geological Society of America in Rochester, N. Y. Professor G. R. MacCarthy, of the same department, went on a field trip to the eastern part of the state. He was accompanied by J. R. Johnson and H. W. Shirley.

Professor Susan G. Akers, director of the school of library science, was present at a meeting of the American Library Association in Chicago.

Professor W. C. George of the school of medicine went to New York for the annual meeting of the Corporation of the Bermuda Biological Station for Research.

Professor Glen Haydon, head of the music department, read a paper at a meeting of the Music Teachers National Association in Milwaukee.

Yackety Yack Staff

An important meeting of the division heads of the Yackety Yack staff will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the office of the publication.

R. W. Madry Marries Miss Maggie Lee Farmer of Wilson.

Tarboro, Jan. 5.—Miss Maggie Lee Farmer, of Wilson, and Robert Wilson Madry, of Chapel Hill, were married here at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the Calvary Episcopal church in the presence of only the immediate members of the two families.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bertram Brown, the rector.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Irwin Langley, and the bridegroom by his brother, J. T. Madry.

Musical Features

Miss Hazel Worsley of Rocky Mount played for the processional Lohengrin's "Wedding March," and during the ceremony she played softly McDowell's "To a Wild Rose." Just before the processional Mrs. J. T. Madry sang "O Promise Me." The couple left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

The bride was attired in a green travelling suit and wore a corsage of orchids and Palma violets.

The bride is the daughter of the late James Arthur Farmer, who was a prominent Wilson lawyer, and Mrs. Maggie Clyde Daughtridge Farmer.

Bride's Relatives

On her maternal side, Mrs. Madry is a granddaughter of the late William M. Daughtridge and a niece of the late Lieut.-Gov. Elijah Daughtridge of Rocky Mount. On her paternal side she is a granddaughter of the late Benjamin Farmer of Bailey.

She was educated at the Wilson schools and at the Atlantic Christian College. For several years she has held a responsible position with the Barnes Harrell Company of Wilson.

Bridegroom

The bridegroom is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Madry of Scotland Neck. He was educated at the Scotland Neck schools, the University of North Carolina, and Columbia University. For severel years he was a member of the reportorial staffs of the New York Herald in Paris and New York. For the last twelve years he has been director of publicity at the University of North Carolina.

Whitaker Plans Return Of Employment Agency

Movement Is Underway to Re-Establish Office in County.

A movement to reestablish an office of the National Re-employment Service in Orange County was being pushed forward this week, according to an announcement today by Starlin Whitaker, former manager.

Re-establishment of this service has been approved by the county Board of Commissioners, Relief Director George H. Lawrence and Representative-Elect B. J. Howard.

The Re-employment Service was formerly in operation here for about a year under the C.W.A. grants and co-operated with the Federal Employment Service. More than 2800 persons were given work.

The former committee for selecting qualified workers was composed of Whitaker, Carl Durham, P. L. Burch, O. L. Crabtree, Mrs. Carl Forrest, Bonner D. Sawyer, Gilbert T. Ray, and Moody Durham.

"Between 3400 and 3600 trained workers are available in Orange county," commented former manager Whitaker.

N. C. JOURNALISTS PICK HEADLINERS FOR CONFERENCE

Speakers for Annual N. C. Newspaper Institute Announced.

A number of well known speakers have accepted invitations on the program of the 11th annual North Carolina Newspaper Institute to be held January 23, 24, and 25, here and at Durham.

The list includes John Stewart Bryan, president of William and Mary College, and former editor and publisher of the Richmond News-Leader; James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville Banner; R. R. Harriss, of the editorial staff of the Baltimore Sun; William D. Nugent, vice-president of Media, Inc.; Struthers Burt, novelist, of Southern Pines; Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina; Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke University.

Marvin H. McIntyre, one time member of the staff of the Asheville Citizen and now secretary to President Roosevelt, will be a guest of honor of the Institute, and while not slated for a set speech, will probably make an informal address.

Dr. Hiden Ramsay, general manager of the Asheville Citizen-Times, who is president of the North Carolina Press Association this year, will preside over the sessions of the Institute. He will also deliver the response to President Graham's address of welcome.

As has been customary for the past several years, the Thursday evening session will be held in Durham with Duke University acting as host at a dinner meeting at the Duke Union.

Henry R. Dwire, director of public relations at Duke, is in charge of arrangements for the program there.

Press Releases Manual By Dr. Hickerson

New Method Explained for Testing Stresses in Buildings.

A new method for analyzing the bending stresses in buildings, bridges, bents, viaducts, and other framed structures, is explained in "Structural Frameworks: A New Method of Analysis, with Tables," a volume by Professor Thomas Felix Hickerson of the University's school of engineering, which has been released by the University of North Carolina Press.

The book presents a full treatment of the theory involved, with numerous illustrative drawings and examples and 69 pages of original tables applicable to various types of continuous beams and frames, in which restraining influences due to the supporting columns are taken into account for the first time.

The publication is intended to be of service as a text and as a designing manual for professional engineers and architects.

The local petitions will be circulated through the University Club, the Inter-fraternity and Dormitory Councils. A representative of the Greyhound organization will be on the campus next week to get the petition movement underway.

The Greensboro-Chapel Hill-Raleigh line will make direct connections with bus lines to all parts of the country. The route to Raleigh will be direct and not via Durham, as the present coach company now directs, and will be covered by the Greyhound buses in approximately 50 minutes.

FAMOUS CHEMIST WILL TALK HERE

connected with Columbia University since 1929, being promoted to a full professorship in the spring of 1934.

A member of several scientific societies, among which are the American Chemical Society, the American Physical Society, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Urey has been a prolific contributor to atomic chemistry and physics, and appears frequently in the literature as an authoritative writer in his field.

Winner of Gibbs Medal

Last April Dr. Urey received the Willard Gibbs Medal for the discovery of deuterium and enjoys the distinction of being the youngest scientist so honored. Now, scarcely entered the forties, Dr. Urey becomes one of the small distinguished group of American chemists to whom the Nobel Prize has been awarded. Other Americans who have received that honor in years past are Theodore W. Richards of Harvard and Irving Langmuir of the General Electric Research Laboratories.

While in Chapel Hill Dr. Urey will be the guest of his friend and former associate on the Johns Hopkins faculty, Dr. Arthur E. Ruark. He and Dr. Ruark are co-authors of the book, "Atoms, Quanta, and Molecules." He will come to Chapel Hill from Richmond, Va., where Friday night he will address the Virginia Section of the American Chemical Society.

Hepburn Will Play In "Little Minister" Today and Tomorrow

Star of "Little Women" Acts Part of Babbie, Gypsy Girl.

Katharine Hepburn returns to the local Carolina theatre as Babbie, the gypsy girl, in her new production, "The Little Minister," to be shown today and Monday.

Miss Hepburn, who was awarded the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences medal for the best performance by any film actor during 1933, has made, to date, only five pictures. But every one of these has been acclaimed as an extraordinary production.

She was established as a screen star of the first rank in her first picture, in which she co-starred with John Barrymore. But perhaps her most famous work is her characterization of Jo in "Little Women." This picture was a gold mine to her film company and set record runs in many cities.

Miss Hepburn is supported in the production "Little Minister" by John Beal, Alan Hale, and Rob Dow.

NORTH CAROLINA CLUB

Capus Waynick, chairman of the state highway and public works commission, will speak to the North Carolina Club tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. The club meets in the basement of the University library.

Waynick will present a survey of the highway situation and discuss the problems, with respect to highways, that face the present legislature.

PLAYMAKERS GIVE REVELS SATURDAY

Philip Parker Will Be in Charge Of Annual Carnival.

The Carolina Playmakers' annual Twelfth Night Revels are scheduled to be presented at the theatre Saturday night.

Philip Parker, student Playmaker, will be in charge of the gala affair. The occasion will mark one of the highlights for the winter quarter in the activities of the dramatic group.

All persons who have participated in Playmakers' work are invited to attend the revels. The performance will include a portion of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," an old English drama, and numerous sketches with members of the faculty and student Playmakers taking the leading roles.

The general tone of the affair will be a collection of "take-offs" on the several phases of the Playmakers' work.

Committee Begins Preparation For Student-Faculty Day Here

February 20 Is Date For University Fete

Speeches at Convocation, Departmental Exhibits, and Visits To Frats Are Features.

STAGE PROGRAM PLANNED

The special committee preparing the first annual student-faculty day scheduled for February 20 met yesterday in South building to complete plans for the event.

The program for the holiday, arranged through various committees with student members of the main group acting as chairmen, has been tentatively decided upon and work has been begun in the preparation of a full-day's schedule.

To Open with Assembly

Chronologically, the day will begin with a convocation in Memorial hall in the morning, with notable alumni and campus leaders slated to speak.

After this, the departmental exhibits, which will be displayed throughout the following week in Graham Memorial and various department locations, will be visited by students, faculty and visitors.

Then the luncheon hour, featured by faculty visits by invitation to all boarding houses on the campus, will provide the mid-way point.

A special committee headed by Jack Pool is working on this feature. Edwin Lanier and Agnew Bahnson head the two committees to prepare for the morning exercises.

Special Football Game

For the afternoon, a program in Kenan stadium or Emerson field, featuring a special football game by Coach Snavely's footballers, will be presented,

'Y' GROUPS PLAN TALKS ON CRIME

McIntosh Resigns as Vice-President of Junior-Senior Cabinet; Two Nominated.

The sophomore and junior-senior Y. M. C. A. groups met separately last night and completed plans for a series of cabinet discussions which will be held this quarter on the subject of crime and social disorganization.

Each cabinet ratified the tentative program of weekly discussions submitted by the "Y" program committee. Students were selected at the sessions last night to lead each of the topics to come up for consideration.

McIntosh Resigns

The junior-senior group accepted the resignation of Craig S. McIntosh from the position of vice-president of the association. McIntosh was elected to the post last spring.

Tom Bost and Billy Yandell were nominated for the office of vice-president, and at the next joint session of the Y. M. C. A. on January 28 an election will be held to fill the position.

The junior-senior cabinet will hear discussions on crime led by Francis Fairley, Tom Bost, Bert Smith, Phil Hammer, J. D. Winslow, J. C. Grier, and Billy Yandell.

Leading discussions in the sophomore cabinet will be T. P. Yeatman, George MacFarland, Phil Kind, Don McKee, and C. C. Martin.

Di Senate Will Induct New Officers Tonight

Vergil Lee, President, Will Make Inaugural Address.

New officers of the Di Senate will assume duties as the organization enters its winter quarter schedule at 7 o'clock tonight in New West.

Vergil Lee, new president, will make his inaugural address. Others taking office are: Charles Rawls, president pro-tem; John Kendrick, critic; Robert Williams, secretary; and Frederick Eagles, sergeant-at-arms.

The program will be devoted to induction of officers and considering plans for the winter quarter.

MAGAZINE ISSUE PRINTS APPEALS FOR LIBERALISM

Author of "Just Plain Larnin'" Again Discusses Fate of Thinking Teacher.

McKEE SCORES R. O. T. C.

The January issue of the Carolina Magazine will appear tomorrow, it was announced yesterday by Joe Sugarman, editor. It will feature two articles that should be of interest to all its readers.

The first, contributed by James M. Shields, a teacher in a Winston-Salem junior high school until his dismissal last summer, is entitled: "What Happens to a Teacher Who Thinks."

Shields was the author of an article published in the American Mercury this month bearing the title "Woes of a Southern Liberal." He is now employed by the FERA in Washington.

Dilemma of Progressives

His article in the Carolina Magazine discusses his irregular dismissal and the general situation in which progressive teachers remaining in Winston-Salem find themselves.

The specific reason for Shield's dismissal was that the Winston-Salem school board objected to his novel, "Just Plain Larnin'," in which he attacked the forces in Winston-Salem that opposed progressiveness and liberalism.

R. O. T. C. Article

The second article, by Don McKee, is entitled "R. O. T. C. at State College." This article by McKee is the result of a three-months study of military training and its background at State College.

McKee, a sophomore at the University, proves conclusively that an R. O. T. C. unit need not be compulsory at the Greater University's agricultural school. Presenting the point of view of the students and faculty at that institution, he shows that the R. O. T. C. should enjoy the status of nothing more than an extra-curricular activity.

Other articles, short stories, poems, and book reviews appear in the January issue.

Payment of Fees

Students whose names begin with K through M are scheduled to pay or make arrangements for payment of their winter quarter student fees at the cashier's window of the business office today. Students are urged to observe this schedule.

PHI WILL DEBATE ON RE-ADMISSION

Other Bills Concern Petitions of Greyhound Bus Co. and Grades at Mid-Term.

With four new officers in the saddle, the Phi Assembly opens the winter quarter at 7:15 o'clock tonight at the regular meeting.

The following bills will be discussed tonight: Resolved, That the University lower its re-admission requirements; Resolved, That the utility commission grant the Greyhound Bus Company the privilege to operate through Chapel Hill; Resolved, That grades be given at mid-term.

New Officers

Speaker Clarence Griffin will give his inaugural address. Other new officers who will serve for the first time tonight are: Wiley Parker, speaker pro-tem; Winthrop Durfee, sergeant-at-arms; Harry McMullen, reading clerk; and Frank McGlinn, chairman of the ways and means committee.

The initiation of new members will be held next week.

Engineer Editorial Staff

There will be a meeting of the editorial staff of the Carolina Engineer tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock in 214 Phillips hall, Walter King, editor, announced yesterday.

GOW TESTIFIES AT LINDY TRIAL

Nurse Knows "All the Answers," Walks Away Smiling; N. J. Police Take Stand.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Betty Moat Gow came triumphantly through what has been described as the hardest ordeal of her life today as she told the curiously morbid world the story of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

She took two hours' hard hammering from Edward J. Reilly, Hauptmann's attorney, but walked out of court erect and smiling. The little yellow feather on her hat bobbing jauntily through the peering crowd outside the courtroom, she walked away. She had answered a barrage of questions without a fault, and was dismissed about mid-afternoon.

Troopers Testify

The last three witnesses to take the stand in today's chapter of one of the most famous of world trials were three New Jersey state troopers. Frank Kelly, finger-print expert, testified that he had been unable to find prints of hands on the nursery window-sill.

Joseph Wolf testified that a note was found on the window-sill and that there were two scratched places against the outside wall where the top of a ladder had rested. Lewis Boerman corroborated Wolf's testimony.

Support Of Schools Does Not Need Road Funds, Waynick Says

States Three Objections To Diverting Funds From Road Taxes

"There Is No Justifiable Rivalry Between Schools and Highways for State Revenue."

Capus M. Waynick, chairman of the state highway and public works commission, speaking before the North Carolina Club last night, outlined three objections to diversion of highway revenue to general fund purposes and stated that the protection of the schools does not depend on such diversion.

Summing up the three reasons against diversion, Waynick said: "The ownership and operation of a motor vehicle should not be used as the measure of taxation beyond the limit of the demand for support of the road system."

Road System Needs Funds

First, according to the commission chairman, the road system needs all the money being derived from highway taxes.

Of secondary importance in Waynick's opinion is the pledge, "uttered from time to time by authoritative political executives of the state," that highway revenue shall not be diverted from the highway debt and the maintenence of the highways.

His third objection is the million-dollar annual loss of federal money that the state would incur under the Hayden-Cartwright Act's penalty provision, which directs a 30 per cent cut in allotments to any state allowing "raids on its automobile and gasoline levies."

In support of his statement that "There can be no justifiable rivalry between schools and roads for the state's support," Waynick said:

"Revenue from other sources

Tar Heel Meeting

The entire editorial staff of the Daily Tar Heel will meet at 5 p. m. today in the office of the publication, Editor Lonnie Dill announced last night.

All members who expect to continue working on the publication will be present, as the list of active staff members will be revised.

COMER OUTLINES PLAN OF EVENTS

Dr. Koo Will Lecture First on Schedule Sponsored by "Y" Cabinets During Winter.

In a well attended meeting of the Freshman Friendship Council last night a list of its activities for the coming quarter was formulated.

Harry C. Comer, recently returned to the University from a leave of absence, announced the following coming events of the winter quarter that will be sponsored by the "Y" cabinets:

Program

Dr. T. C. Koo, a native Chinese, will lecture on January 28; and a symposium on religion will be held later, presenting three well known clergymen who will talk on the primary concerns in civilization which Protestants, Catholics, and Jews share in common as American citizens.

The quarter will close with the large meeting of the Human Relations Institute held once every four years.

Committees

The president, Jimmy Coan, appointed the following committees to carry out council projects:

Appointed to Serve Term of Two Years

Professor Harry Russell, Claude Rankin, Jimmy Morris, Jim Daniel Other Members.

BOARD MEETS TOMORROW

Following the expiration of the one-year term of Professor M. S. Heath of the economics department on the Publications Union Board December 31, Dean Robert B. House announced yesterday the appointment of Professor W. F. Ferger, also of the economics department, as his successor.

When the P. U. Board was reorganized last year, Professor Harry K. Russell of the English department was appointed to serve a two-year term and Heath to serve a one-year term. This proceedure was adopted in order to have one faculty carry-over member on the board each year.

Appointment Each Year

One faculty member will be appointed the first of each year hereafter to serve for two years and one faculty member's term will expire at the end of each year.

Faculty members are not eligible for re-appointment. The appointments are made each year by the University administration.

Besides Ferger and Russell the board is now composed of Claude Rankin, president; Jimmy Morris, secretary; and Jim Daniel, treasurer. The latter three members are students elected to the board last spring in the campus elections.

The board will hold its first meeting of the winter quarter tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

UNIVERSITY CLUB WILL RECEIVE BUS PETITIONS TODAY

Petitions of Greyhound Lines, Signed by Students, Will Go To N. C. Utilities Board.

CLUB TO PLAN ACTIVITIES

The University Club will begin its winter quarter activities when it meets this afternoon in 209 Graham Memorial at 5 o'clock.

Many matters of importance will be introduced and acted upon at the session, President Frank Willingham announced yesterday. It is imperative that all members attend.

Phil Hammer will present a group of petitions drawn up by the Atlantic Greyhound Lines for distribution to fraternity and dormitory representatives.

Signed by Students

The petitions, signed by all students on the campus interested in a more efficient bus service, will be forwarded to the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

Plans will be made for the entertainment of the numerous visiting teams which will be at Chapel Hill during the quarter, and a discussion and possible constitutional inclusion will be in order regarding the eligibility of members for club keys.

Publication Campaign

Agnew Bahnson will report on the joint publication campaign in which members can participate for a dissemination of Carolina publications among state residents and alumni.

A check on the roll will be made, at which time members whose absences warrant expulsion will be ejected and new appointments ordered.

President Willingham said yesterday that an extremely important plan to be effected in conjunction with alumni officials will be discussed.

Finjan Business Staff

There will be a meeting of the business staff of the Carolina Finjan at 7:15 tonight in the office of the publication.

DEAN WILL GIVE VOCATIONAL HELP

F. F. Bradshaw Will Start Series of Talks This Morning on Life Work.

In order to lend vocational guidence to students who can not decide upon a schedule of courses, Dean Francis F. Bradshaw will conduct each Tuesday at the regular chapel period a class devoted entirely to life work, he announced in chapel yesterday.

The first meeting will be held this morning, the dean of students said, and each succeeding Tuesday. Although the conferences are designed especially for freshmen, other students will be welcomed.

Dean R. B. House introduced the first of a new chapel series yesterday using as his theme for Monday and Friday mornings, "Self Measurement."

Talks on Re-admission

Reporting on the hearings of the cases of 82 boys, pleading their cases as to why they should be allowed to re-enter school after failing more subjects than permitted, Dean House asked the students "to give themselves a chance."

He termed "circumstances beyond control, sickness, trouble at home, and business" as types of failure—"conditions that upset the fall quarter."

Rev. Don Stewart, pastor of the Presbyterian church, led the devotions. Describing the Saar plebiscite as "possibly a vote of European importance," he read two poems opposing war.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Union Board of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is printed daily except Mondays, and the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays. PARAGRAPHICS

Dale Ranson's Brooklyn telegram read: McRAE PULLED TENDON WEDNESDAY STARTED RACE TONIGHT AND HAD TO DROP OUT RETURNING SUNDAY. What was it, a marathon?

From a look at Person hall, we'd suggest they close it up before they formally open it.

Local expectations: maybe Coney Island's devil-ride will buy the Carolina Coach Company's buses.

The Rude Awakening

The only kick we have coming about the summary buccaneering of the Division of Water Resources and its spiriting away to Raleigh is that no letter of marque or reprisal attended the aforesaid act. Which is to say that occurring as it did during the holidays, without a chance of being subject to the approval or disapproval of the officials with whom it was so intimately connected, it represents an unwarranted removal of a ten-year-old institution, founded on this campus and in many respects a part of it.

Yet we are glad it happened.

The loss of this division is infinitely less than would be the loss of the engineering school. But that is exactly what is going to happen if the administration persists in its sleepy policy of presuming that "virtue is on our side and we will win out" and letting Chapel Hill be bulldozed out of its engineering school. It's being done; the legislature is primed to accept the superficial arguments that in the interest of consolidation the engineering school belongs in Raleigh.

Mrs. G. L. Donnelly, secretary of the division, knew nothing about the moving day until it was in progress; State Geologist H. G. Bryson returned from a trip to the western part of the state to find the division gone; and members of the engineering faculty witnessed only two truckloads of office equipment as their information that the division had quietly scrammed.

And one fine morning we may wake up to find the engineering school, too, has been spirited away. Who knows?

Academic Question

The jury for the trial of Bruno Hauptmann, charged with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, may or may not provide an inkling as to the emotional appeals that will be set forth in an attempt to secure his conviction on an indictment of first degree murder. Sensational as it is already, there is reason enough to believe that the trial, before it reaches the jury, will have made history in the way it will arouse the universal sentiment of the mothers and fathers of children.

Of the 12 men and women who will decide the fate of Hauptmann, it is interesting to note that only three have no children. Of the nine others, one woman has an adopted child, another two step-children. Supposing a hypothetical lack of state's evidence in the theoretical not-guilty scale of abstract justice, could it be possible that parental love would sway the jury to send Bruno Hauptmann to a murderer's death?

Roads vs. People?

Whether it is merely the limelight of publicity or the more searching light of truth, the illumination that has been cast upon the 1935 general assembly, which meets next Wednesday, offers an absorbing chiaroscuro of issues. As a legislature, it will consider among other things—unemployment insurance, child labor amendment, state drivers' license law, absentee ballot law, and further sales tax legislation. But topping all else will be the financial issues, which hitherto have attracted more controversy, we daresay, than any of the foregoing with the possible exception of the sales tax. Unfairly or not, from recent comments it would seem that the disposition of the highway surplus has surmounted even the consideration of more vital legislation in importance.

Latest of the trends in this direction is the foreword to the assembly of Capus Waynick, recently appointed chairman of the highway commission. The chairman, if his picture of the needs of the highway commission is considered, paints a doleful portrait of the state of North Carolina roads and bridges. That perhaps is true enough, but it is also a strange contrast, not especially since it comes from Mr. Waynick himself who naturally enough is pulling for the home team from his position as head of North Carolina's road system, but because no other state official has set forth in such graphic style from such a peak of eminence the condition of the state's school system.

We believe with all sincerity that the state has the utmost right in its pride in our roads to wish to protect that investment which makes them possible. But there is also such a thing as making Roads overshadow People—the people of the state, both present and future. An oft reiterated argument, which does not make it any less applicable here, is that material prosperity is not everything, that an investment in the concrete good is no more valuable than one in the intangible betterment. Education certainly comes under the head of this latter investment. As Dr. Frank Graham remarked before the advisory budget commission, it is the "barometer of the commonwealth." It is, in other words, the measure of our citizenry.

There will undoubtedly be an even bigger fight over the disposition of the highway surplus than is indicated from the opening gun as sounded by Chairman Waynick. While this is not to make suggestion as to what part, if any, ought by nature and right and equity to go to the schools, our demand is that they be given the equal protection of the state's finances along with such a spending department as the highway commission. If the case resolves itself into one of Roads vs. The People, the general assembly, as judge and jury, should see that its duty lies toward the latter.

Truth and The Press

Giant headlines in the various newspapers throughout the nation have been hinting strongly of impending war in Europe. This practice has been prevalent for the past several weeks all over the United States, yet peculiarly no really serious trouble has resulted from the supposed critical controversies.

According to the syndicated news reports, Russia was due to have a gigantic war with Japan some weeks ago; Germany and France are supposed to be on each other's neck in the Saar territory, playing to an audience including Mussolini, John Bull, and various other powers who are presumably hanging around in anticipation of a chance to assist their favorite side. All in all, the newspapers have painted a very black landscape on the European canvas and thrust it before the American reading public as authentic.

Dr. W. H. Wannamaker, dean of students at Duke University, has only recently returned from a trip to Germany and surrounding countries with the expressed opinion that "the newspapers in this and other countries are greatly distorting the news about Germany and Hitler just to make hot news."

We are more than inclined to agree with the Duke dean in regard to this matter because had one-third of the stuff printed along this line been well founded, Europe would have been a raging inferno long before this time. Generally speaking, the residents of these United States are sadly ignorant of the true condition of affairs prevalent in the East today; we have only newspapers and magazines as a source of information upon such matters, and much too often these accounts are biased or false.

It is a generally accepted fact that the American is a person whose emotions are highly susceptible to colorful propaganda; his opinions are, as a rule, easily and definitely formed at an instant's notice; reasons are insignificant to him. Because of these facts, our tabloids should be more careful about their statements of facts and the conclusions which they draw; serious results might easily come of carelessly written articles involving such vital problems as are rife today.

OUR HOPE FOR YEARS TO COME

We happened to be wandering around in a large Baltimore department store a few days before Christmas, riding up and down on the escalators, which make us feel like Fred Astaire looks when he dances, and watching the crowds of last-minute shoppers. We inevitably ended up in the book department, where the first thing to greet our eyes was a huge table piled high with books like "Can Prayer Be Answered?," "God In This Modern World," and the quaint little edition of Dickens' "Life Of Our Lord." On the very top of the heap, near the sign, "Religious Books," was the beautiful two-volume edition of Galsworthy's "The Forsyte Saga" and "The End of the Chapter."

FISH STORY

William Beebe, famed for his underseas exploration, is the hero of a story Carl Thompson swears is true. It seems that Mr. Beebe was in a hurry to catch a train after he'd delivered a lecture, when some member of his audience asked Mr. Beebe to perform a post-mortem on a goldfish of which the stranger had been very fond. Beebe explained his hurry, wrapped the goldfish in his handkerchief, and hurried off to catch the train, promising to mail the analysis to the owner of the goldfish.

Trotting hurriedly to the station, the famous explorer sneezed, and pulled out his handkerchief. The poor little goldfish fell out on the pavement in the snow, and disappeared from sight. Remembering, Beebe got down on his hands and knees and started looking for the fish in the snow when a policeman came up.

"Whatcha doin', buddy?" he asked.

"Looking for my goldfish," replied Mr. Beebe.

"Lissen here, buddy," said the cop kindly, "you better come along down to the station with me and getta cuppa coffee."

This the explorer refused to do. Instead he explained that he was in a hurry to catch his train, and asked for help in locating the missing fish. Deciding to humor the lunatic until he should have the opportunity to nab him, the cop bent over in the snow and half-heartedly started looking for the fish. Suddenly his hand closed over something cold and clammy—it was our dead fish.

"Say, buddy," said the law, looking piteously at Mr. Beebe, "maybe you'd better take me down to the station and get me a cuppa coffee."

FASHION PLATES

We don't know that it's significant of anything in particular, but the automobile license tags for nearly every state on the South Atlantic seaboard look pretty much alike this year. North Carolina and New Jersey are identical, with silver on black, Maryland, black on white, is practically undistinguishable from the green on white of the District of Columbia, and the dark blue on white of Virginia. To clap the climax, the Iodine state, our little neighbor to the south, has black on white and white on black, the one half-year, the other full.

ALUMNI NOTE

Stuck into a Washington theatre program during the holidays we found an illustrated announcement of a recital by Ted Shawn and his Men Dancers, who appeared last winter in Chapel Hill. Surprised were we to recognize in five of the fourteen pictures, Carolina '34 grading a chorus and jumping about in a manner not particularly reminiscent of his two years of playwriting, acting and contributing to the Carolina Magazine here, his training under Phoebe Barr notwithstanding

On the Y. M. C. A. bulletin board yesterday many people noticed the following announcement: "To whom It May Concern—If a large brown suitcase was found on road between Durham and N. Y. City during the holidays please notify me at 404 Grimes," to which an unidentified wag had added the question: "Which side of the road?"

Bob McGill, Bob Baker, and David Thorpe will serve as program committee for the quarter, and Drew Martin, Giles Winstead, Bill MacDonald, and Bob McGill volunteered to meet with the News Boys' Club of Durham and act as advisers.

The group chosen to confer with the special committee from the freshman class on the honor system consisted of Warren Haddaway, Baldy Arrington, and Jimmy Coan.

A social committee was appointed to plan for a social and report at the next meeting. The tea tasters are Gene Simmons, Howard Hussey, and Tom Bass.

Waynick emphasized the character of the highway system as a public utility and said that the commission is not through with building roads.

Magazine Deadline

All copy for the February issue of the Carolina Magazine must be in by January 23, it was announced yesterday by Joe Sugarman.

Anyone wishing to contribute an article to the magazine is asked to see the editor at the magazine office, 108 Graham Memorial. Office hours on week days are from 2 to 4 p. m. On Saturday from 11:30 to 1 o'clock.

Glee Club

The Glee Club will hold its first practice of the winter quarter this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Hill Music hall, it was announced yesterday.

The manager urges especially any student wishing to join to be on hand for this practice. He states that newcomers have an especially good chance of making the Glee Club this quarter since it is beginning a new program.

Phantoms Battle Deacs Tonight; Tar Babies Open Season

GLACE STILL OUT; GAME IN TIN CAN TO BEGIN AT 8:30

Lengthy Veteran Center Remains on Sidelines with Flu; Webster to Start Again.

LACK RESERVE STRENGTH

New Tar Heel Five Is Short and Will Depend on Speed and Skill to Get Victory.

Carolina	Pos.	W. Forest
Aitken	F.	Sheppard
Nelson	F.	Brunt
Webster	C.	Byrd
Kaveny	G.	Clark
McCachren	G.	Hatcher

Coach Bo Shepard's White Phantoms will be out to win their second Big Five contest when they meet the Wake Forest Deacons at the Tin Can tonight.

The Big Five fireworks will start at 7:15 o'clock when the freshman teams of the two institutions get together. The varsity game will get under way about 8:30.

"Jason" Glace, lanky Tar Heel center, has been declared definitely out of tonight's affray. He is still in the infirmary with flu.

Was Star in Elon Tilt

Glace led the scoring in the Elon game, and his absence tonight will somewhat lower the Tar Heels' chance of winning. His accurate shooting and his skill at recovering balls from the backboard will be greatly missed.

Latcher Webster, Coach Shepard's new find who rang up the highest score in the Davidson game Saturday, will be at center in the starting lineup tonight. Since Webster is not as tall as Glace he will probably have difficulty in getting the tip-off against the Deacon center.

Webster, center; Captain Aitken and Nelson, forwards; and Kaveny and McCachren, guards, will make up Coach Shepard's choice of a starting lineup against the Wake Forest quint tonight.

The new Tar Heel combination is characterized by its speed, skill, and fire rather than by its size. With Glace out, the quint does not list a single player who tops 6 feet. It lists two 1934 regulars, Captain Aitken and McCachren, with a third letterman, Nelson, and two reserves, Kaveny and Webster.

Coach Bo Shepard is also worried about reserve strength.

Valiant Tar-Mags, Rash Yackety-Fins Hold Dark Practice

Thursday Is Date for Titanic Ink Pot Classic.

Now that all the excitement about Alabama not being able to Stanford another team actually leading them in a game and Tulane making Temple Warner where they got all their power New Year's Day has died down, the time and place for the real climax of the football year has been named.

The Ink Pot classic between the Tar-Mags and the Yackety-(now) Fins will be thrust upon the campus at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon on the intramural field.

Both teams held secret practice yesterday and the local Winchell couldn't obtain anything resembling a story, but he stowed away last night in "Tack" Hammer's noseguard and has promised the DAILY TAR HEEL an exclusive story for tomorrow's paper.

A BUNCH OF THE NATION'S BEST

CAROLINA BOXERS SHOW FINE FORM

Tar Heel Ringsters Start Final Week of Practice Before Meet with V. P. I.

Displaying their best brand of boxing to date, the Tar Heel mitmen plunged into their final week of preparation for the opening meet against V. P. I. Saturday night.

Last year's freshman glovers, who are the nucleus of the present team, were especially outstanding in yesterday's practice session. Joe Fisher, Medynski, O'Flaherty, and Novich occupied the spotlight when they were in the ring.

Marvin Ray, football star and boxing veteran, made his first appearance of the year in the ring and showed himself to be the slugging terror that he was last year. He went two rounds against Lammie Alderman and showed some of the hardest punching seen since the beginning of boxing practice.

Alderman Improving

Before taking on Ray, Alderman went two fast rounds against Jim Carruth, and showed vast improvement over his previous efforts. Using a newly developed left jab to near perfection, he kept poking Carruth off balance, but he proved miserably weak in the in-fighting where his opponent had the best of it.

Joe Fisher boxed two periods versus Carruth and went two more with O'Herron. Showing his usual flawless technique, he had both of his opponents on the go.

Captain Giddins was in good form in his setto with Medynski. In the first round Medynski could not touch Giddins who kept dancing around, feinting and jabbing in expert fashion. Consequently the bell for the second period found Giddins a rather tired pugilist and he had much difficulty in staving off the weaving rushes of Medynski.

Max in Slugging Bouts

Max Novich slugged through two rounds apiece against Morty Ellisberg and Sam Kesselman. The first bout was not as exciting as the second setto wherein both boys stood toe to toe and knocked each other about for three minutes. Kesselman, who

Tar Heel Runners Do Well In Races At K. C. Games

McRae Forced to Drop Out Because of Injured Foot; Was Running with Leader.

The trio of tracksters, led by Coach Dale Ranson, did quite well by themselves in the Knights of Columbus indoor track games in Brooklyn last week. Although not snagging any first places, they showed up well among the best of the nation's competition.

Their showing was so well, in fact, that it may warrant invitations to the remainder of the big Empire City track meets which include the Millrose, NYAC, and National AAU meets.

Graham Gammon turned in one of the gamest runs ever seen, report many of the veteran track followers who witnessed the race. The Tar Heel was next to last in a field of 40 in the 1000-meter handicap.

Needed to Be Gridster

To win, Gammon would have needed to zig-zag his way through the whole mass, running in broken field football style rather than in regular track form. He nearly did this. The winners, who were 45 yards ahead of him at the start, barely won by five yards. Incidentally, it was one of the best performances Gammon has ever turned in.

Harry Williamson also stepped out. The ace Cunningham won the race in 1:57 minutes. Williamson was two seconds behind him, although finishing only fourth. This shows how close the race was. Venzke in second was right on the winner's heels and the Tar Heel was just two yards back of Ray, who had put on a excellent sprint to nap Williamson.

Ed McRae Is Injured

Ed McRae in the 3000-meter run was forced to withdraw from his race after running five laps right up with the leaders. He had run that far with a very bad foot and it just would not hold him up any longer. He hurt the foot before leaving here, and again several days before the race.

MAT PROSPECTS STILL LOOK POOR

Thirty-Five Candidates Are Out; Efland Only Letterman Back; Depending on Sophs.

Prospects for a successful mat season are rather gloomy at present according to Coach Quinlan, Tar Heel varsity wrestling mentor. Only 35 candidates are out for the freshmen and varsity squads.

The 1934 varsity aggregation was hard hit by graduation. Sim Efland, 165 pound entrant, is the only letterman returning from last year's team. The 1935 contingent will be made up chiefly of sophomores, and reserves from past seasons.

Coach Quinlan stated yesterday that no member has yet cinched a regular berth and he urged that new men report for practice. Practices are to be held daily starting at 4 o'clock.

Need Heavyweights

Both varsity and freshman teams appear weakest in the heavier weights. As yet there is no man out for the unlimited weight on either team which was Coach Quinlan's greatest worry last year.

Leading varsity matmen are Bonner, Douglas, Ward and Umstead. This quartet was chiefly responsible for the fine showing made by the yearlings of 1934. The Tar Babies were undefeated in five matches last year.

The outstanding freshman grapplers this year are Ehringhaus, Ford, Gibbons and Love. The success of the 1935 yearlings will depend largely on the showing made by these boys.

Yesterday's practice session was devoted chiefly to wrestling fundamentals, calisthenics, and conditioning. The first meet of the season with V. P. I. is only eleven days off.

TRACK NOTICE

All varsity and freshman track men who have been issued equipment are requested to see Coach Dale Ranson at Emerson stadium this afternoon between 2 and 6 o'clock. Workouts will begin today.

If any man does not see Coach Ranson today, he must check in his equipment with Sargent Kellar immediately.

SPORTS MEETING

All members of the sports staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL are to meet in the Graham Memorial office today at 2 p. m. This meeting is important and attendance is required, absence without excuse causing immediate dropping from the staff.

HIGH BASKETEERS OPEN PLAY TODAY

Local Clubs Face Yanceyville in High Tin Can at 4 O'clock.

Chapel Hill high school's basketball teams, of both boys and girls, will open their 1935 season here this afternoon in the high school Tin Can. The outfits will be opposed by Yanceyville and the first battle will get underway at 4 o'clock.

The contests being the initial ones of the year, little is known about the strength of the local clubs. Coach B. W. Davis stated that he expects a good season from the material on hand.

CAROLINA FROSH FACE BABY DEACS IN PRELIM GAME

Pete Boone Returns to School And Will Play with Mullis, Moss, Grubb, and Ruth.

CONTEST STARTS AT 7:15

A confident but cautious quintet will trot out upon the boards tonight in the Tin Can to open its 1935 campaign against the first-year Wake Forest aggregation.

The preliminary workouts came to an end yesterday afternoon with Coach Skidmore putting the finishing touches upon the promising outfit. The entire week has been devoted to intensive practice and with the aid of Bo Shepard the team has taken on a new polish and speed.

Yesterday's outstanding occurrence was without doubt the unexpected return of Pete Boone to the squad, and this valuable addition has pepped the team to a new pitch which spells coming disaster for the Carolina opponents.

Boone will replace King at a forward post, causing the sole change in the previously announced lineup. "Pee-wee" Moss, sky-scraping center, will open the game at the pivot post. Mullis and Boone will cavort in the forward positions, while Grubb and Ruth will take care of the guard positions.

Each of the first five has had previous experience upon strong high school teams and with a strong reserve group in the fold the Tar Babies are due to show up well.

The second team also appears capable of holding its own with the best of them. "Red" Meroney will be at the tap position, while Andy Bershak and "Whitey" King are reserves at the alternate posts. Newark, N. J., is well represented at the guard positions with both Abe Bloom and Bill Franks hailing from that city.

It is upon these fifteen men that Coach Skidmore is banking to carry Carolina's colors to victory and that Coach Shepard of the varsity is eyeing with regard to future varsity timber.

The game will get under way at 7:15 when "Horse" Hendrickson, former Duke grid star, will toss the ball between the two centers.

GRAIL PRESENTS DANCE SATURDAY

Bill Allsbrook Will Furnish Music for First Affair of Winter Quarter.

The first Grail dance of the winter quarter series of three affairs will be presented Saturday night in the gymnasium from 9 until 12 o'clock.

Bill Allsbrook, ex-Carolina ace maestro, will bring his popular Carolina Club orchestra back to the campus to play for the dance.

Plays in Greensboro

Allsbrook's band, one of the best known of many excellent musical orchestras produced in Chapel Hill, left the campus last year for the Tintilla Gardens, Richmond, and is now in Greensboro for an engagement.

Simmons Patterson, manager of the social affairs given by the Grail, announced yesterday that tickets, which may be purchased for one dollar apiece, will be on sale at Pritchard-Lloyd's and at the door.

"You're Headed For Hell," Huey Long Tells Senate

Washington, Jan. 7.—(UP)—"You're headed straight for hell," Huey Long told the dignified United States Senate today.

Continuing his blunt and illiterate bombardment of all phases of the New Deal that happened to occur to him, Long charged Roosevelt with innocently dealing with New Orleans figures who, through real estate transactions, were connected with vice operations.

FINJAN MEETING

There will be a meeting of the editorial staff of the Carolina Finjan in the office of the publication at 7:15 o'clock tomorrow night. All members are asked to be present.

P. A. Seniors

All seniors in the school of public administration who expect to receive their degrees in June are requested to call at 108 Alumni building sometime this week to fill out an application for a degree.

Folk Dancers

There will be a meeting of the folk dancers in Peabody hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock it was announced yesterday.

GRAIL MEETS TONIGHT

The Order of the Grail will meet at 10 o'clock tonight on the second floor of Graham Memorial, George Moore announced last night.

E. R. A. WILL SOON THROW OPEN 43 TENNIS SURFACES

Asphalt, Clay, and Concrete Courts to Be Completed.

An announcement from the ERA division in Orange county reveals the encouraging news that 43 tennis courts will soon be thrown open to the student body.

The courts will be completed for the spring quarter and the complaint of congestion will be forever stilled. The entire tennis colony is divided into three sections; south, middle and north.

The southern section will have 13 asphalt and 6 clay playing surfaces. The middle will be composed of 6 asphalt, 2 concrete and 6 clay courts, most of these having been in use last quarter. The remaining northern division will be solely asphalt courts, 10 in all.

These 43 courts will be a great aid to the future tennis stars that were hampered by the lack of courts in their quest for fame.

WOLF SPEAKS TONIGHT

Professor H. D. Wolf will deliver an address on unemployment insurance at 8 o'clock tonight before the American Association of University Women here.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. S. Wheeler, 714 E. Franklin street.

SCIENCE SOCIETY ISSUES JOURNAL

Elisha Mitchell Society, Observing 50th Anniversary, Publishes Papers by Professors.

In commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, a journal of scientific papers has been published, it was announced yesterday.

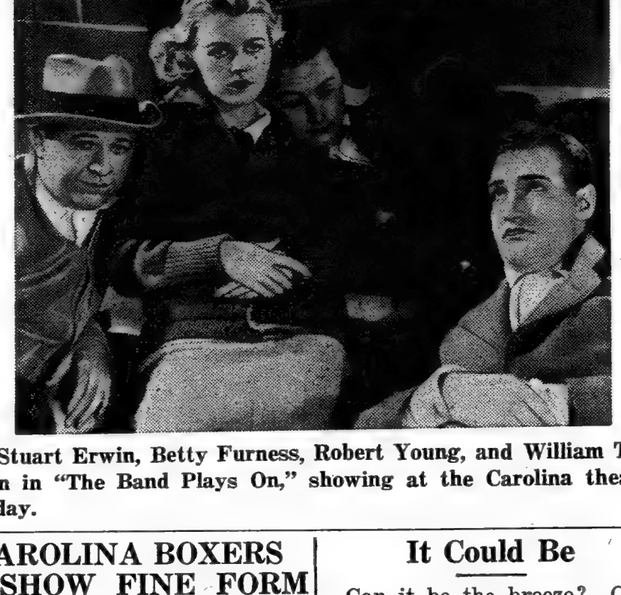
The journal was edited by a committee under Dr. W. C. Coker, and contains several documents by University faculty members. Among these is a paper by Dr. Archibald Henderson of the mathematics department which he presented at the anniversary celebration in Gerrard hall.

Lasley Collaborates

Dr. John Lasley, Jr., also of the mathematics department, collaborated with Dr. Henderson on another paper featured by the journal entitled "Mathematics Praetermissa."

According to Dr. E. T. Browne, an article "of great importance" is an index of papers presented by scientific men of the University from its founding in 1795 to the present day.

The journal does not deal exclusively with mathematical subjects, but follows all scientific fields embraced by the honorary society.



EVANS SPEAKS TONIGHT

The Philological Club will meet tonight in the lounge of the Graduate Club at 7:30 o'clock.

Wilfred Evans will speak on "African Dialects and Folk-Lore."

Evans was born in South Africa and is acquainted with many African dialects.

volunteered to help when there was a shortage of available sparring partners, showed up surprisingly well against his more experienced opponent.

O'Flaherty was the aggressor in his two-rounder against McDonald, and swarmed all over the bigger man. McDonald did display some fine accurate jabbing.

Ernie Eutsler, last year's 119-pounder and now fighting featherweight, turned out for yesterday's practice and showed good form in his short workout. "Party Boy" Diehl, who has been ill recently, was around the ring yesterday taking it easy; there is a chance that the 119-pounder will be ready to shoot the works in his opening encounter Saturday.

Another victim of sickness, Bill Shores the slugging freshman, was in the Tin Can getting back into shape, and he too should be physically fit when the bell rings for his setto.

It Could Be

Can it be the breeze? Or is it the thought of starting school again that caused more students to be confined in the infirmary yesterday than have been since the beginning of the fall quarter?

Those students confined yesterday were: R. J. Lovile, Melvin Gillie, Albert Share, J. H. Knight, M. D. Savin, C. E. Van Horn, Leon Goodrich, W. R. Weaver, Robert Puig, J. W. Mosier, Jean Cantrell, J. H. Raney, C. R. Fry, J. G. Klingman, A. J. Zink, Tom Hines.

Walter Gordy, Mae Smith, E. G. Austin, Denmuth Spivey, Lester Ostrow, C. C. Bennett, Romaine Howard, David Spelt, C. G. Atwood, V. M. Bundy, Ed Kahn, J. B. Carne, G. W. Armfield, Henry Bartos, and Stewart Coffey.

MULLIS SELECTS PROGRAM BOARD

Martin Appointed Chairman of Freshman Committee to Plan Assembly Meetings.

A freshman class program committee has been appointed, it was announced yesterday by Clyde "Pete" Mullis, president of the first-year students.

The committee is headed by Drew Martin as chairman, and has the following members: Stuart Leake, Warren Haddaway, Crowell Little, and Paul Wolfe.

Assembly Programs

The group will determine freshman chapel programs and other feature programs for first-year men.

Any freshman who has suggestions for possible programs during the winter quarter is asked to get in touch with a member of the committee.

As the group wishes to furnish programs which will be enjoyable to all, it will be necessary for the class to co-operate in planning them, President Mullis asserted.

Scientific Society

The 357th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will be held in Phillips hall at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Dr. John W. Lasley, Jr., of the mathematics department, will talk "On The Integration of Monge's Differential Equation."

"The Structure of the Coastal Plane" will be discussed by W. F. Prouty of the geological department.

TWO WITNESSES CLINCH CHARGES AGAINST GERMAN

Identify Hauptmann as Man Who Handed Condon Note to Taxicab Driver.

"LIAR," SAYS HAUPTMANN

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 8.—(UP)—Something snapped inside of Bruno Hauptmann today, and suddenly he sat up and began a fight for his life

It was just in time, as the state had brought two men to the witness stand and had them swear Hauptmann had committed two damning acts.

First, he drove a green automobile along the road to the Lindbergh house on the day the baby was kidnaped, and, second, that 11 days later he handed a note addressed to J. F. Condon, kidnap go-between, to a taxicab driver.

Calls Witness Liar

Hauptmann, calling one witness a liar, classed another as crazy; but neither judge nor jury heard him. It was the first time Hauptmann had shown the slightest interest in what was said by witnesses.

Minor morning witnesses identified ladders in the courtroom in connection with the case.

The last witness of the day was Al Reich, former "Adonis of the prize ring," who through a love of outdoor and indoor sports became a close friend of Dr. Condon. After telling of accompanying Condon on the rendezvous at the cemetery with the extortioner, he was dismissed, to be called back to the stand tomorrow.

Five or six witnesses from the Morgan Bank, including one of the partners of the famous House of Morgan, will testify, Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., announced tonight. Their testimony will be concerned with the delivery of $70,000 in ransom money to Lindbergh, and the checking of the serial numbers.

STATE SYMPHONY TO CHANGE BASE

Will Present First Concert in Raleigh January 15.

Raleigh, Jan. 8.—The North Carolina Symphony Orchestra will move its headquarters to Raleigh January 14 and will play its first concert here at the City Memorial Auditorium Tuesday night, January 15.

The orchestra, the only state symphony in existence, has been making its headquarters at Winston-Salem since September and has played concerts throughout western and central North Carolina.

The first concert to be given here, which will inaugurate a series of weekly performances, will be a standard symphony and will feature George Gershwin's famous "Rhapsody in Blue."

Since the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra was placed on a permanent basis last May, three cities have been used as a base from which the orchestra went to various cities throughout the state to carry the symphony music to the public. Chapel Hill was the first. Last summer the orchestra moved to Asheville where it remained until September when it transferred its headquarters to Winston-Salem. Raleigh is the fourth

"I'm A Good Boy," Says Haywood; But Chapel Hill Isn't Quite Certain

"Imagine my surprise," said Haywood Weeks yesterday, "when I heard that a warrant was about to be issued against the Student Co-operative stores for violation of the law."

The DAILY TAR HEEL reporter tried hard to imagine, but he is no good at it, no better, in fact, than he is at mumbly-peg, —or conundrums.

"Look at me," plead Haywood. "Don't I look like a good boy?"

Then he had to explain. Haywood said that the low-down on all the eye-brow raising was that he heard his step-child, the Co-op, was not in compliance with a North Carolina statute requiring every business house not operating under the name of the owners or else. Else pay the owners or lese. Else pay $50 or spend 30 days like a bird in a guilty cage.

Scrams—to Hillsboro

Now, Haywood is a good boy. Haywood is conscientious. He scrammed to Hillsboro last Friday and immediately filed the names of the Co-op directors with the clerk of the superior court of Orange county. Clerk Nixon, who is also a conscientious fellow, scratched his head and remarked that it was the first case of its kind he remembered in his three terms, come Michaelmas.

"Aha," said Haywood because he really had nothing better to do, "then it must have been another law enforcement campaign being waged by the Chapel Hill police."

So, said Haywood, he went to see Judge L. J. Phipps, who is judge of the recorder's court here. Judge Phipps explained that on New Year's Day he had called the attention of Prosecuting Attorney Roy McGinnis to this violation by Chapel Hill merchants.

Judge Phipps, who is also secretary of the Merchants' Association, outlined to the prosecuting attorney a four-point program of law enforcement for the coming year. In addition to the above violation by Chapel Hill merchants, he called attention to the need for enforcing membership in the state bar association among practicing lawyers; enforcement of the Turlington Act, not only, he said,

FRANTZ TO PLAY HERE JANUARY 23

Famous Young Pianist to Perform Under Auspices of Phi Mu Alpha Fraternity.

Youthful Dalies Frantz, piano prodigy ranking with the world's masters, will appear here in Memorial hall January 23, under the auspices of Phi Mu Alpha, musical fraternity.

The symphony orchestra soloist will present in Part I of the recital the following program: Gigue in G Major by Bach; Chorale in G Minor (arrangement by Busoni) by Bach; Organ Fugue in D Major (arrangement by D'Albert) by Bach; Intermezzo in C Major by Brahms; Rondo (Perpetual Motion) by Weber.

Listz Sonata

In Part II the world acclaimed boy artist will render Sonata in B Minor by Liszt to be played without pause. It will include Lento Assai; Allegro Energico, and Andante Sestenuto.

After an intermission Frantz will play Das Wandern by Schubert-Liszt; Sonetto 104 del Petrarca by Liszt; Etude in F Major (opus 10, No. 8) by Chopin; Suggestion Diabolique by Prokofieff; and Ritual Fire Dance by De Falla.

After making a New York debut with Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, he has been featured soloist with the Chicago, Detroit, and Denver Symphony Orchestras.

Born in Denver, Frantz was educated at the Huntington school in Boston and the University of Michigan.

MATH SEMINAR

Dr. E. T. Browne of the mathematics department will address the mathematics seminar this afternoon at 3 o'clock in room 360 Phillips Hall.

The subject of Dr. Browne's talk will be "Some Topics from the Algebra of Matrices."

All mathematics students are invited to attend.

ALUMNI TO ELECT 4 NEW OFFICIALS

President Hubert Haywood Appoints Nominating Committees to Select Candidates.

Dr. Hubert Haywood, president of the General Alumni Association, recently announced the appointment of two committees to nominate candidates for the offices of president, first and second vice-president, and alumni representative on the Athletic Council.

Each of these committees will nominate one candidate for each of the four offices, and the nominations will be confirmed or changed at the annual business meeting of the association here January 25.

Members of the association will vote by mail during the period from January 24 to March 1.

To Name Two Directors

Two representatives at large for the board of directors will also be named by each of the two nominating committees, and these candidates will be voted on at the meeting.

Kenneth Royall of Goldsboro is chairman of one of the committees. Other members of his committee are W. F. Carr, Durham, and Dr. J. F. Patterson, New Bern.

The other committee is composed of Charles W. Phillips, Greensboro, chairman, the Reverend D. L. Rights, Winston-Salem, and Stahle Linn, Salisbury.

DR. TAYLOR RE-ELECTED AT MEETING IN CHICAGO

Professor Malcom D. Taylor of the school of commerce was re-elected vice-president of the National Association of Marketing Teachers at the annual meeting of the group held in Chicago during the Christmas vacation.

At the annual meeting, the directors decided to issue a quarterly journal to be known as the National Marketing Review. The first issue of this new magazine will appear late in the spring of this year.

SOLONS INACTIVE; WAITING FOR F.D.R.

House Marks Time with Investigation in One-Hour Session; Senate Declares Recess.

Washington, Jan. 8.—(UP)—A four-day-old 74th Congress, faced with finding work for 3,500,000 unemployed and other tremendous tasks, found itself with virtually nothing to do today, so the House started an investigation.

Roosevelt's practice of sending only one piece of legislation at a time caused the delay. With the first item on the schedule, a social security plan for enactment, he is expected to transmit a message on the subject late this week, putting the law makers to work in earnest.

Discuss World Court

While the Senate recessed, its foreign affairs committee met to discuss a resolution for American adherence to the World Court.

The House, which expected to take up the $750,000,000 independent office bill, the first departmental appropriation measure of the session, was delayed by the fact that the appropriations committee wasn't completed until today.

Consequently, the House confined itself to a one-hour session during which it launched the first investigation of the new Congress, an inquiry into the real estate bond holders protective committees. The House also received several bills of resolution.

The Senate is in recess until Thursday.

Yale Professor Praises University Architecture

Dr. E. V. Meeks, Dean of Yale School of Architecture, Says Best Characteristic of Our Buildings Lies in Harmony of Colors; Disappointed in Gothic Structures at Duke University.

By J. E. POINDEXTER

"I was greatly disappointed in the architectural effectiveness of Duke University because its Gothic buildings are not in harmony with its natural setting," said Dr. E. V. Meeks, dean of the school of architecture and director of the Yale art gallery. Dr. Meeks visited Chapel Hill Monday and lectured under the auspices of the Southern Art Society on "Trends in Modern Architecture."

Asked if he favored any special type of buildings for college constructions, Dr. Meeks declared that he did not. "There is only one condition that I make," he remarked; "the buildings must have a native appropriateness. For example I should not like to see a Gothic cathedral standing in the midst of a pine forest. Such a setting calls for Georgian or some other style of building design native to the south."

Harmony

Dr. Meeks was unbounded in his enthusiasm for the sound architectural qualities of the University buildings. He pointed out that the best characteristic of our buildings as a group lies in their pleasing harmony of color. He offered as a cause of this condition the fact that locally produced sand, clay, and stone were used in the construction of the older buildings, all of which blend in a variety of tawny shades.

The Yale professor, picturesque with his neatly cut black beard, continued, "Your general architectural scheme, although developed spontaneously, shows real and distinctive character. Indicating austerity and simplicity, it fits perfectly into the traditional architectural development of the south."

Jeffersonian Trend

He declared that the architectural trend of the campus dates from about 1830. It owes its origin to Thomas Jefferson and other amateur architects of the period, who based their designs on classical lines. The Playmakers theatre with its Jeffersonian corn capitals and simplicity of line is the best local example of this trend.

Someone laughed and asked Dr. Meeks to criticize the Morehead-Patterson tower. The laugh turned to a dry grin when Dr. Meeks replied, "It's very good, I think. Of course, it's built on a small scale; if it were a third larger it would be better." "What about the fool's cap on the top?" he was asked. "That's all right, too," continued Dr. Meeks. "The trouble with you fellows is that you are too close to the University to criticize it fairly. You can rest assured that your bell tower is better than the majority of such structures."

Most of Dr. Meeks' criticism was directed at the library.

University Club To Circulate Petitions For New Bus Schedule

EDITORIAL BOARD

All men who have tried out for the editorial board of the DAILY TAR HEEL since the reorganization and all members of the former board are asked to meet with Phil Hammer, editorial board chairman, this afternoon in Graham Memorial at 3 o'clock.

Trophy Committee

Pool Names Pitt Head of Group to Collect Athletic Trophies.

Jack Pool, president of the senior class, yesterday announced the appointment of Billy Pitt as chairman of a trophy committee.

The action of the committee will consist of gathering all University athletic trophies and other awards, and arranging them in an attractive display in Graham Memorial.

The collection will be made in hopes that it will lead to a permanent trophy room. According to Pool, at present the awards are scattered all over the campus with no permanent display. The exhibit in Graham Memorial will be the first time that all the trophies have been displayed together.

Winter Quarter Fees

Students whose names begin with N through P are scheduled to pay or make arrangements for paying their winter quarter student fees today at the business office.

Organization Adopts New Sales Campaign

Group Arranges Schedule for Welcoming Visiting Athletic Teams During Quarter.

Forty petitions were distributed to University Club men, representing every campus dormitory and fraternity, yesterday afternoon to be circulated for the signatures of all students interested in the establishment of a new bus line by the Atlantic Greyhound Lines through Chapel Hill.

The petitions will be collected next Tuesday and forwarded to the North Carolina Utilities Commission, which body will hold a hearing January 22 on the Greyhound line's proposal for a new route from Greensboro to Raleigh via Chapel Hill. If the commission grants a certificate of operation, the new service will begin immediately.

Speedier Transportation

The new bus service will provide a much speedier trip to both of the main points and connecting centers on either end of the new line. The Greensboro-Raleigh route is the only unlinked distance of any importance in the Atlantic Greyhound's southern system, and if the privilege of connection is granted, will afford direct connections for all parts of the country.

As proposed, four buses will be east- and west-bound daily, the rates being considerably cheaper than those now charged and the trips negotiated in much less time.

Students are especially requested by the student committee in charge of the petition-signing to avoid duplication of signatures or fictitious names.

Other business of the University Club meeting yesterday, after petitions had been distributed, included the arrangement of the club schedule for visiting team welcomes during the winter quarter and the adoption of a sales campaign presented by Agnew Bahnson.

GRISETTE LEAVES FOR NORTH TODAY

Director of Loyalty Fund to Be Present at Conference.

Felix A. Grisette, director of the alumni loyalty fund, has been invited to attend a conference on alumni education of about 20 high college officials and leaders in alumni work in the country.

The conference, sponsored by the American Association for Adult Education, a unit of the Carnegie Corporation, will be held at Vassar College, January 14. Grisette, who is chairman of the aims and policies committee of the American Alumni Council, expects to see at the conference two former members of the University faculty, President H. W. Chase of New York University and Dr. L. R. Wilson, librarian of the University of Chicago.

Mr. Grisette will leave Chapel Hill this evening to attend to alumni loyalty fund business in Philadelphia January 10 and 11 and to be present in Buffalo, N. Y., at the meeting of the executive board of the American Alumni Council January 12 and 13. From there he will go to Vassar.
